ARTHUR AND BLAINE.

They Were Long on Greenbacks and Short on Change.

There is a good story of the presidential excursion down to the eastern shore of Maryland. The party embraced Secretaries Blaine and Windom and others. They were fortunate enough to hear an excellent sermon from the venerable Protestant Episcopal bishop of Maryland, who was there to administer the rite of confirmation. President Arthur and the two secretaries sat in quiet satisfaction. But their peace of mind was suddenly dispelled. The offertory was sung. At the familiar words: "Let your light so shine before men," etc., the President and the secretaries each quietly dropped a hand into a pocket.

"Lay not up for yourselves treasures on earth."

Windom drew forth a crisp $1 note and held it between his thumb and forefinger, ready for the approaching plate. The President and Mr. Blaine went a little deeper into their pockets. One brought up a nickel and the other a dime. Their faces flushed. It would never do to make such a contribution.

"He that soweth little shall reap little, and he that soweth plenteously shall reap plenteously. * * * God loveth a cheerful giver."

The President went to his pocketbook, and the secretary of state explored his vest pocket with nervous fingers.

Zaccheus stood forth and said unto the Lord: 'Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor, and if I have done wrong to any man I restore fourfold.'"

The plate was only four pews away. What the President found in his pocketbook was one $50 note and a $10 greenback—nothing smaller. What Mr. Blaine found was two $10 notes—nothing smaller. To put in a nickel or a dime only was not to be thought of. To give $10 was more than either cared to do. Each looked at Windom sitting there calmly with his dollar note in hand. He shook his head.

"Charge them that are rich in this world that they be ready to give and glad to distribute."

There was no time for further pocket exploration or consideration. With a smile of commiseration at each other, and something like glee on Windom's placid countenance, the President and the secretary of state each planked down his $10 note for "the poor of this congregation." And the worst of it is, said one of the party afterward, that he would probably never get them credit only for the dollar or two which they intended to give.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Gen. Wheeler's Prayers.

Gen. Wheeler is a religious man. He was brought up in the Episcopal church with a natural reverence for sacred things and faith in the efficacy of prayer. One of his former secretaries tells the story that while the general was engaged in a campaign in Congress some years ago he spent the night at the plantation of a constituent. His host accompanied him to the room at the top of the house and bade him good night, but being reminded that the General might want a glass of cool water before retiring, he carried a pitcher and some glasses with him without knocking. He was surprised to find Gen. Wheeler on his knees before the bed engaged in his devotions. He waited patiently until the General arose and apologized for the interruption.

"Don't mention it," said Gen. Wheeler. "I think all of us ought to kneel before we retire, and thank our good Maker for His mercies and blessings."

The members of Gen. Wheeler's staff say that they have never heard him in he never lay down to sleep without offering a prayer and never arose in the morning without thanking God for His protection and preservation.—Chicago Record.

Amateur Actors.

"Actors are always making fun of amateurs," said a prominent dramatic teacher the other day, "and I don't deny that in many cases they have reason. But I do not go to the opposite extreme and declare that there is more real regard for art in a good amateur theatrical school than in the best regular company in the United States.

I elevated my eyebrows a little at this.

"Oh, I mean it," he went on warmly. "An earnest amateur will study a whole play for the sake of getting a proper ception of his or her one part, though the part be but a small one.

"Imagine a professional actor or actress doing that!

"The amateur has a real reverence for the drama, for Sheridan, for Bulwer Lytton, for Sardon.

"The professionals, as a rule, place them in the same line of work as they do Frohman, Simms or Hoyt and 'walk low' their lines, don their costumes and play their parts with but two ideas in their mind—to make all the points they can and get out of the theater in time to attend to something else!

"And when it comes to playing one part for a whole season or longer, for all the art that the paid Thespian bothers about can be lost to sight in a thimble."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Directory Glued to a Board.

Lying on the counter in a city business office where there are many visitors was a directory to whose open covers were glued on the back to a piece of board that was not quite so long as the spread of the covers. It was thus possible to turn under the edges of the cover on either side, and so the book could be easily lifted. The book could be read about freely on the board to which it was glued, and its pages freely consulted, but it could not be closed. In this widespread form and with flapping leaves it would be rather an unhandy and inconvenient thing to carry off. It was, indeed, with a view to prevent it from being taken away by some absentminded person that the book was glued to the board.

Vienna's Total Abstainers.

The Society of Total Abstainers just confered in Vienna is the first ever established in Austria. Everybody drinks in Austria. An Austrian baby begins to sip beer at the age of three months, and, as it grows up, learns to consume the liquor in ever-increasing quantity, until, when a full-grown man, he can drink it by the gallon.

Latest Collecting Fad.

Among the latest collecting fads is a search after odd trade signs and circulars. The collectors declare there is more fun in it than anything in the collection line yet tempted.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked:

"Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constantly increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendations of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them especially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion. I had for one, and at that time obtained good results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules praised very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $3 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules may last me a month, and I would not be without them for $1 if it were my last dollar." All the time of this interview there were other persons who applied for Ripans Tabules, and who objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and if I take part in recommending the Tabules to one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers induces some other person thereby afflicted to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES (packed in a paper carton without glass) to sell for five cents, is now on sale at most druggists. This is the cheapest and most convenient form in which medicine has ever been offered to the public. The ten Tabules will be sent to any address for five cents. Send twelve packets (sixty Tabules) to any address, postage prepaid, on receipt of 60 cents. Address, RIPANS CHEMICAL CO., No. 10 Spruce Street, New York.

ALFRED SPEER,

THE ORIGINAL

Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

VICK SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands of satisfied Customers for a half century and to celebrate the 50th year in business I have issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 64 pages, handsomely colored, a beautiful lithograph, and many half-tone illustrations of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Bulbs, etc., and is printed in white and gold. A marvel in Catalogue making, as nothing of an all sold book pertaining to the garden, both new for the same, and a descriptive catalogue of all the best sorts, it is too expensive to give away indiscriminately, but will be mailed to those who will plant it and have a copy, therefore we will send the Golden Wedding Guide for 1894 for 25 cents worth of flower and vegetable seeds 15 cts

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

It tells how credit is given for fruit and ornamental trees and other goods.

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue

A perfect little gem of a price list. It is small in size (only 3 inches square), but complete, and in handy shape for reference. FREE enlarged, improved, and up to date on all subjects relating to gardening. Each issue has a colored plate. Special 3 months' trial offer—Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 25 cts.

Vicks Monthly Magazine,

OUR NEW PLAN of selling Vegetable Seeds by weight, gives you more money than any other seed house in America.

JAMES VICK'S SONS,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

SEEDS Best Seed Farm
Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the newest and best varieties—quality the highest—prices reasonable. Send for catalogue.
WEEBER & DON, Seed Merchants
114 Chambers St., New York City.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest, Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds and odorless Lawn Dressing.

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,

119 East Front st.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The instruction given in a university ought to be a production of accurate information."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Definitions are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superfluity of quantity characterizes its every department.

Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President.
GEO. W. ROCKEFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. FORT, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our cloths. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full directions for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (225 C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, OCTOBER, 19. 1899. NO. 42.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

MURDER TRIAL IN SOMERSET NEXT WEEK.

Mrs Fingerhuth Will Have to Answer for Roehricht's Death.

WILL LAST THREE DAYS.

CASE PRESENTS SENSATIONAL LEGAL FEATURES AND COMPLICATIONS.

Shooting is Practically Admitted—Question is Regarding the Motive and the Circumstances—Will be the First Women in Somerset Held to Answer for a Capital Crime—First in Thirty-five Years in State.

For the first time in thirty-five years a New Jersey judge and jury will be called upon next week, to consider the charge of a capital crime against a woman. Beginning Monday the trial of Mrs. Catherine Fingerhuth will open at the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Somerset county held at Somerville. It will be Somerset county's fourth murder case in the last three years, and will be the most sensational of all from a legal point of view. There are some knotty legal questions to unravel, and the case will attract much attention throughout the State.

The story of the shooting is too well known to need elaboration. On the afternoon of Tuesday, September 12th, Mrs. Fingerhuth shot and almost instantly killed her landlord, Paul Roehricht, of 2135 Seventh avenue, New York, near Washington ville. The fatality was the result of an attempt to evict the Fingerhuths, and Robert M. Clark, Roehricht's lawyer, escaped a similar fate through the failure of one of the cartridges to explode.

Mrs. Fingerhuth was arrested that afternoon as was her son, Oscar, who arrived at the scene of the shooting shortly after it happened. They were taken to the Somerset county jail at Somerville where they have been confined ever since. Theodore Fingerhuth, the husband, was arrested the same night but released the following day.

The Coroner's Jury, which met at North Plainfield, brought in a verdict that Roehricht was murdered by the woman, and the son, Oscar, was named as an accessory. At the meeting of the Somerset county Grand Jury, in the early part of the month, Mrs. Fingerhuth was indicted of murder and her son and husband named as accessories. Theodore Fingerhuth was then arrested and has since been a prisoner in the jail at Somerville.

Mrs. Fingerhuth and her husband and son will be defended in the trial which starts Monday by Walter L. Hetfield and William G. DeMeza, both of this city. There is no attempt made to claim that Mrs. Fingerhuth did not fire the fatal shot. There are two witnesses who saw her point the revolver, pull the trigger and saw Roehricht stagger after he received the fatal wound.

The defense will try to prove that Roehricht and his party were attempting to invade the house occupied by Mrs. Fingerhuth, the old Aaron Allen homestead on the road from Washingtonville to Scotch Plains, on the borders of Somerset Park, and that the shooting was justifiable as it was merely an attempt on the part of Mrs. Fingerhuth to defend her home and repel invaders.

The defence will further try to prove that Roehricht, though the owner of the property was an invader in the eyes of the law and had no right to trespass on the property and that he made no attempt to invoke the usual process of law to evict the Fingerhuts. There will also be an attempt to prove that the Fingerhuths were justly entitled to live on the Allen farm according to an alleged contract made with Roehricht.

The prosecution will attempt to show that Mrs. Fingerhuth's act was a premeditated one and that she was instructed in that course by husband and son, the latter of whom purchased and gave her the revolver with which she did the shooting. The strength of their case will depend on their ability to show that Roehricht did not have anything personally to do with the attempt to force an entrance into the house and that the circumstances did not give Mrs. Fingerhuth the slightest grounds for the use of firearms in repulsing the attack.

There are some nice legal questions that will have to be decided and which will give both sides plenty of opportunity to present powerful arguments. There will be no conflicting testimony regarding the salient points of the shooting. The act is practically admitted. It is the provocation and the motive on which the prosecution and the defence do not agree.

The trial is expected to last three

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4.

NOW KNOCKING AT ELIZABETH'S DOOR.

Westfield and Elizabeth Company's Application.

LIKELY TO BE GRANTED.

PROMISE CARS TO BE RUNNING BY THANKSGIVING DAY.

Application Filed With the Elizabeth City Council and a Date for a Public Hearing Set—It Seems to be the Opinion That the Council Will Grant the Franchise Without Very Much Delay.

The expected application from the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company for an entrance to Elizabeth was presented to the Elizabeth City Council Monday night, and a public hearing will be held in the Council chamber on the evening of Nov. 1, at 7:30 o'clock.

Colonel E W. Hine and Lawyer Richard F Henry represented the company. Col. Hine said if the franchise was granted Nov. 1, the trolley cars would be running to Plainfield by Thanksgiving Day. The right that is asked from Elizabeth is the last connecting link in the route. There are other breaks between Elizabeth and Plainfield, but the right of way has been secured in each instance, and the work of making the connections is being pushed.

The application was formally presented in the Council meeting by Councilman Carlton. It asked for right of way over Jersey avenue to West Jersey street, for connection with the tracks of the North Jersey Street Railroad Company. This route will bring the cars into Broad street through West Jersey street.

Accompanying the application, Mr. Carlton offered a resolution appointing Nov. 1, at 7:30 p. m., the time for a public hearing.

The members of the City Council did not publicly express themselves, but in the talk prior to the meeting the impression was given that there will be no opposition to the immediate grant.

The general belief is that this road, which will connect Elizabeth with most of the cities and towns in the county, will be of great benefit to the city. Elizabeth is the county seat, and the people outside have interests there that this means of communication will show.

LUNCH FOR PUPILS.

High School Now Has an Official Dispenser of All Kinds of Sandwiches.

Principal Ira W. Travell, of the Plainfield High School, has inaugurated a new scheme of providing lunch for the pupils of the High School at a nominal cost. It has been the custom of many of the pupils to purchase all variety of cakes and pastry at recess time for a light lunch, while others carried something from home. It was thought best to have something wholesome and substantial rather than the indigestable pastry and cake. So Mr. Travell has made arrangements with Mrs. E. R. Noe to supply the school with a stock of sandwiches to be sold to the pupils for two cents each. The plan was first tried Monday and fifty sandwiches were easily disposed of at recess. They were made of lamb, beef, chicken, etc. Tuesday eighty sandwiches were sold, and the plan will be continued hereafter.

An Exciting Blaze.

A brief but exciting fire occurred in the law offices of Murphy & Blatz on East Front street yesterday noon. Mr. Murphy, of the firm, started to turn down an oil stove. The wick would not work. The wick was then turned up by mistake and flared up. In attempting to take the top off the stove it was upset and the oil spilled over the floor. Fireman George Feiring happened to be passing at the time and assisted in the extinguishing of the flames.

To Explain Wireless Telegraphy.

Carl Kinsley, who is in the service of the War Department examining the practibility of the Marconi system of wireless telegraphy, has been in Plainfield for a few days as the guest of his old college friend, I Winthrop Travell, of College place. Mr. Kinsley will speak to the Plainfield High School in a few days on the subject of "Wireless Telegraphy," which he will illustrate with some of Marconi's apparatus.

Booming Plainfield.

There was a meeting of the S. D. Drake Realty Company last Tuesday when a number of plans and schemes were introduced to further the interests of Plainfield. They will be taken up from time to time with a view to booming Plainfield property.

WORKERS IN THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL

Closing Sessions of East New Jersey Association.

OFFICERS WERE CHOSEN.

FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE ASSOCIATION REPORTED.

All the New Officers Elected Were From Newark—Next Convention Will be Held in Elizabeth—Rev. A. E. Main Talked on the "Home Department"—Other Addresses Were Made.

The forty ninth annual meeting of the East New Jersey Baptist Association was continued Tuesday afternoon with a much larger attendance than in the morning. President William J. Corbet, of Elizabeth, presided, and after the praise service conducted by Rev. Alex. Macgeorge, of the North church, Newark, S. D. Turton, of Newark, presented the report of the treasurer. It showed that after all the expenses were paid there is still a balance of $532 in the treasury. The amount raised for all purposes was $11,000, and the expenses of the schools was about $7,000. The sum of $110 was contributed to the State work. During the year three schools withdrew from the association and one disbanded, leaving a total number at the present time of thirty-nine schools and a total membership in the schools of about 8,000. All the schools were reported to be in good conditions financially and spiritually.

The next number on the programme was "What Did You Do With Last Quarter's Review?" This was a conference led by Rev. Frank Fletcher, of Dunellen.

The event of the afternoon was the address on "The Sunday school Teacher, His Personality, Preparation and Work," by Rev. J. L. Campbell, D. D., of the Lexington Avenue church, New York. This address was brimful of bright ideas and suggestions.

Following the above there was the department devoted to primary work, and the "Graded Primary" was the subject of a talk by Mrs. Alonzo Pettit, of Elizabeth.

The report of committees and election of officers followed. The first committee to report was the one having in charge the arranging of a place of meeting for 1900. It was decided to meet with the members of the First Baptist church in Elizabeth.

The auditing committee reported that the accounts had been examined and found correct, and the committee on enrollment reported the presence of 139 delegates, and the largest representation from New Market which was twenty-one. Representatives were present from Newark, Elizabeth, Bergen, Perth Amboy, South Plainfield, Jersey City, New Market and this city.

The nominating committee then presented its report and recommended the following as officers for the ensuing year: President, George Wakefield, Newark; vice-president, George Lawrence, Newark; secretary and treasurer, S. D. Turton. These officers were unanimously elected.

President Corbet then appointed George E. Hall, of this city, and Mr. Applegate, of Jersey City, as a committee to arrange for the next convention at Elizabeth.

The last number on the programme for the afternoon was an address by Rev. Dr. A. E. Main, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, on the "Home Department."

During the time of recess the women of the Park Avenue Baptist church served supper in the banquet room, and at 7:30 o'clock the evening session opened with devotional exercises. The chief event of interest at this service was the address by Rev. Jesse L. Hurlbut, formerly pastor of the First M. E church, but now of New York. He took for his subject "The Sunday school for the Times," and one of the most practical addresses of the convention was given.

Dr. Hurlbut's address was listened to attentively and it proved to be helpful and inspiring. This brought the convention to a close and after the closing exercises there was an adjournment.

Discharged From the Hospital.

George Pollard, an employe of the Berlin Bridge Company, who was injured recently while working on a bridge on Greenbrook road, was discharged cured from the hospital yesterday.

Hanrihan Will Probably Recover.

Patrick Hanrihan, the young man employed at the Crescent Embossing Works, who had his arm taken off last Monday, is improving, and it is now believed that he will recover.

FOR THE UNRULY GIRLS.

SUMMARY OF INTENDED REFORMS AT INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

Annual Meeting of State Charities Aid Association—Approves of Recommendations Made by Chairman Hall.

The annual meeting of the managers of the New Jersey State Charities Aid Association was held Tuesday in New York. Among the matters discussed were the abuses alleged to exist at the Industrial School for Girls at Trenton. Lawyer David P. Hall, of Plainfield, the chairman of the committee on reformatories, made a report which showed that the committees had sent to Gov. Voorhees two communications in reference to the alleged brutalities and had suggested reforms. Mr. Hall said that he had received two letters from Gov. Voorhees in answer to these communications. The last letter was received yesterday. In it the Governor stated that he had sent the committee's communications to the newly-chosen board of trustees of the Trenton institution, which body would undoubtedly give them careful consideration.

Mr. Hall said that the day was rapidly approaching when the Industrial School at Trenton would be conducted in a manner that would be a credit to the State of New Jersey instead of being a disgrace. He was of the opinion that the Governor of New Jersey would aid the State Charities Association in bringing about the reforms suggested. This would mean the abolishing of corporal punishment, and the doing away with the cells and the straightjacket. It would also mean that girls would not be kept in solitary confinement for more than twenty-four hours, nor would they be compelled to live on bread and water for more than that length of time. Moral suasion would be used, and when that should fail, the refractory girl would be put to bed for a few hours each day. A book would be kept in the institution in which would be kept a memorandum of all punishments, the name of the persons punished and the character of the punishment inflicted. Runaway girls would be punished by depriving them of privileges and taking away their credits for conduct.

Mr. Hall's report was accepted and approved.

PART OF RIG FOUND.

Discovered in a Livery Stable at Comack, L. I.—Horse is Still Missing.

David C. Smalley, of North avenue, has got on track of his stolen rig, all but the horse having been secured. It was found at Comack, L. I., and through the efforts of Fred Conklin, of Huntington, L. I., who was visiting in this city at the time the rig disappeared. Being a close friend of Mr. Smalley he took an unusual interest in the matter.

He traced the wagon and harness to Comack and notified Mr. Smalley last Sunday that he was sure the property was his. The owner went to Comack Tuesday and identified the harness and wagon, and then received information which made him feel sure he would soon get the horse and man. The search is being continued today by Mr. Smalley, and by night he hopes to have his horse. The property was found at one of the liveries, where it had been left presumably by the man who went away with it.

If the man is caught he will probably be brought back to this city to answer to the charge of horse stealing.

Under-paid Messenger Boys.

T. Marley has resigned his position as telegraph messenger for the Western Union Telegraph Company, and his place has been taken by Henry Angleman. The company cannot expect to secure boys who will give good service for the wages paid by them, out of which they are obliged to buy their uniforms.

Will Visit the Exposition.

A letter received from Isaac Squires, who is now traveling abroad, states that he is delighted and enjoying himself. He is at present at Genoa, Italy. He intends to visit the Paris Exposition next year, and cannot say just when he will be home.

Praise Services Next Sunday.

The regular monthly praise service at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held Sunday night next, instead of the last Sunday in the month, as usual.

An Organ Recital.

This evening W. H Miller, organist at the First Presbyterian church, will give a free recital at the church. He will be assisted by P. Ludwig Conde.

May Run for the Council.

George J. Tobin, of North avenue, is a possible candidate for Councilmanic honors from the Third ward this fall.

ELECTRICITY CAUGHT HIM IN A MANHOLE.

The Dangerous Plight of a Cable Workman.

SHOCKED BY THE CURRENT.

PULLED OUT OF THE MANHOLE BY FRIGHTENED COMRADES.

Accidentally a Switch Was Turned on a Pole, Which Sent the Electric Current Through a Cable Into the Manhole Where George Galbraith Was Working—Injuries Were Not Serious.

George Galbraith, a lineman employed by the Standard Underground Cable Company, of New York, which has the contract to change the wires of the Plainfield Electric Company, had a narrow escape from instant death about 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. It seems strange that Galbraith was not killed. As it was, he received a severe shock, that for a few moments rendered him partially unconscious.

Galbraith was in a manhole at the northwest corner of Front street and Somerset street engaged in making the necessary changes to the electric light wires. Another man was on a pole near the Somerset corner running the wires down the tubing used for the purpose of making the connection with the underground conduit.

By some manner this man turned the switch located near the top of one of the electric light poles. This made a connection with the cable being laid for the electric wire. Instantly the electric fluid was sent along the wires and into the manhole where Galbraith was at work. The first thing the public knew of the man's perilous predicament was when they saw a sheet of flame shoot out of the manhole, quickly followed by a puff of smoke, only to be repeated several times.

The other linemen took in the situation at a glance and ran to the manhole expecting to find Galbraith's dead body. Fortunately they were mistaken in their conjecture. Though badly shocked Galbraith was still alive, though partially insensible. As quickly as possible he was helped from the manhole and taken to a nearby drug store, where he was given restoratives. He soon revived.

An examination of Galbraith's injuries showed that one of his hands had also been burned. Although considerably shaken up Galbraith insisted upon returning to work as soon as he had a few moment's rest. The incident created considerable excitement and when the report went out that a man had been shocked to death a large crowd gathered about the vicinity.

Galbraith, who is a man of rugged constitution, tall and of powerful frame, is a resident of New York, his family living on Thirty-fifth street. He is considered one of the most faithful men in the company's employ.

NEW CORPS OF USHERS.

They are of Great Aid to Manager Edwards in Running the House.

Manager Maze Edwards, of the Stillman Music Hall, has at present a very efficient and gentlemanly corps of ushers who greatly add to the success of the management by their excellent work. Through their efforts perfect order is kept and there are no mistakes made in the seating of the patrons. Alex. Muir is head usher. His assistants are Clarence Bittenhouse, George Apgar, Nelson Peterson, Charles Peterson, Walter Sherwin, Frank Cross and John Evans. They have provided themselves with neat metal badges. The programme boys are Charles Suer and John Carty. Walter Higgins is the business-like chief door keeper and uses several of the ushers to assist him in his duties.

The Companion's New Calendar.

Every new subscriber to the 1900 volume of The Youth's Companion will receive a beautiful calendar. The calendars given by The Companion to its friends are famous for their delicacy of design and richness of coloring. That for 1900 will surpass any one of former years. It is the last calendar of the century and the publishers have endeavored to make it the most beautiful one. Those who subscribe now will receive not only the calendar as a gift, but also all this year's November and December issues of the paper from the time of subscription.

No Quorum Present.

The absence of a quorum prevented a meeting of the Plainfield Advancement Association last Tuesday. President Smalley was kept away by an engagement and Secretary Martine was out of the city. The only members present were Elston M. French and J. B. Coward.

DALY SAYS HE DIDN'T; MARTINE SAYS HE DID

Former Says His Bryan Fight is Not Abandoned.

FARMER ORATOR EXPLAINS.

TELLS HOW MR. DALY CAME TO SAY WHAT HE DID.

A Very Caustic Interview from the Congressman Over the Report That He Will Not Father the New State Committee—Mr. Martine Reiterates the Statement That Daly Told Him So.

Hoboken, Oct. 18th—Congressman Daly yesterday characterized as utterly false and without foundation the report that he had abandoned his efforts to oust Chairman Wm. B. Gourley and the present Democratic State committee, and supplant the committee with one more favorable to Bryan and the Chicago platform.

"Do you deny that you had any such conversation with Mr. Martine?" the Congressman was asked.

"I most certainly do," was the reply. "While in Plainfield last week I had a talk with Mr. Martine on the condition of the party in this State, but I never told him that I had decided to abandon my fight against Mr. Gourley, or that the men who are affiliated with me on the committee of fifteen would fall in behind the band wagon of the regular organization. I do not believe that Mr. Martine said so, either. He has undoubtedly been misquoted."

Congressman Daly also said that a meeting of the committee of fifteen had been called for next Tuesday in Trenton.

Mr. Martine was seen this morning by a local reporter and shown the interview with Mr. Daly.

"Congressman Daly and I," said Mr. Martine, "are the best of personal friends, and are in a general way in political sympathy with each other as regards to the Democratic party. I have no desire to add to Mr. Daly's political troubles over the management of the party in New Jersey, but I must reiterate that Mr. Daly told me substantially what it was reported that he did concerning the idea of forming a new State committee or holding another State convention in the interests of Bryan. Mr. Daly and I talked over the situation in the State, and I plainly told him that it was a great mistake for him and those associated with him on the committee known as the 'True Democrats,' to advocate another State committee and convention. I pointed out that the consummation of such a move would be the engendering of factional feelings that ought to be allayed instead of aggravated, and that so far as accomplishing anything for Bryan, of whom I am an admirer and advocate, it would be very impolitic. Besides this it would be impossible to oust Chairman Gourley and his committee, even if there might be cause for it. They are the regular representatives of the party organization, and I believe are doing every thing that is possible to further the best interests of the party. However, the outcome of the talk was that Mr. Daly finally said that he would use his influence to have the movement for a new committee and another convention abandoned when the committee met again, as he realized that New Jersey Democrats would be for Bryan in 1900, and that if there had been any cause for a fight sometime ago it had now been wiped out by the general acceptance of the idea that no other name than that of Bryan would we heard for the Presidential nomination in 1900."

The Cadet Corps.

A meeting of the young men who are planning to organize a cadet corps will probably be held this evening when a report will be heard from the committee that interview Captain George F. Edwards and when arrangements will be made to regularly organize the corps.

Fireman Recovering.

L. M. Dunavan, of East Second street, the local fireman who was injured while descending one of the sliding poles at fire department headquarters, is much improved and it is hoped that he will be able to walk a little by the first of next month.

Now a Resident of Plainfield.

Silas D. Drake moved Tuesday to Plainfield, where in the future his interests will be identified with affairs that are local. He has now practically centered all of his interests here.

Teacher's Association.

An interesting and instructive meeting of the Somerset County Teachers' Association was held at Somerville Saturday in the High School building.

Mrs. Isaac Brokaw, of Somerville, is visiting friends in this city for a time.

REED IS AN EASY WINNER

Renominated For Senator On the First Ballot.

HE RECEIVED 25 VOTES.

THOMPSON FACTION WAS COMPLETELY ROUTED.

A Surprise Sprung by the Supporters of the Senator by Making the Nominations Without Adjournment.

(By a Staff Representative.)

Somerville, Oct. 18—After one of the bitterest factional fights ever recorded in Republican ranks in Somerset county, President of the Senate Charles Arthur Reed, of North Plainfield, was today renominated for the office of State Senator.

When the convention met in the Court House at 11:05 o'clock this morning, it was expected by all except a few on the inside that the temporary organization would be formed and then a recess taken till afternoon for the purpose of allowing the committee to do their work. The Reed men, however, decided to take no chances of combinations being formed during the recess for the purpose of defeating their favorite, and as a result precedent was thrown to the winds and the nomination of Mr. Reed accomplished just as soon after the latter's strength was known as it was possible to do so. This order of things on the part of the Reed leaders was a great surprise to the opposing faction, headed by Chancery Clerk Lewis A. Thompson, of Somerville, and completely routed the opposition to the Senator.

When the convention was called to order in the court house every member of every delegation was present and the room was crowded with Republicans and Democrats anxious to see the outcome of the convention which has attracted such attention. Chancery Clerk Thompson, who has been chairman of the county committee, called the convention to order.

J. Newton Voorhees, of Franklin, an out-an-out Reed man, was named for chairman and was elected without opposition. William Gilhooley, of Bernards, was chosen secretary. The chairman then appointed the committees and the chairmen of each of as follows: Organization, Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield; rules, H. J. Davis, of Bernards; resolutions, B. A. Hegeman, Jr., of North Plainfield; credentials, T. V. D. VanDyren.

A recess of a few minutes was then taken, after which the committees reported. The Committee on Resolutions offered a platform that endorsed the National and State Republican administrations, congratulated the people of Somerset county on the defeat of free silver and the subsequent prosperity of the country, and finished by highly eulogizing the record of Senator Reed and Assemblyman Cooper in the Legislature.

Mayor Smalley, of North Plainfield, then sprung the surprise on the Thompson faction by moving that the nominations be proceeded with before adjournment. Fred Pope, of Somerville, a Thompson delegate, vigorously opposed the motion, but when it was put to a vote the motion was carried with a hurrah.

Mr. Pope then arose and nominated Former Sheriff George Dilts in a speech, the trend of which was that the convention should not only nominate a good man, but one that could be elected. Such a man he considered Dilts to be.

Joseph A. Frelinghuysen's name was placed in nomination for the office by a delegate from Montgomery.

Then Former Mayor Hegeman, of North Plainfield, nominated Senator Reed in a glowing speech, which rehearsed the record of Reed in the Legislature, and ended by saying that Somerset county was Republican beyond question and that if the members of the party were true to Republicanism it would be easy to elect any nominee, and especially such a man as Senator Reed.

Mr. Hegeman was then called to the chair and J. Newton Voorhees, who

CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

WEATHER IN MANILA

A FALL OF SIX FEET OF RAIN IN ONE MONTH.

Record For the Month of July Was Nearly 47 Inches, Equalled Only Once Since Records Have Been Kept.

It never rains in the United States except at Utica, in the State of New York, and somebody with themselves, and stay busy for sometimes a week at a spell. There is no language of hyperbole in speaking of rain there. Not only does it rain, but it rains hard and the cars and the Dutch and all the rest of the push, but it keeps on raining after it has got them all beaten a block. That is the part that jars.

There were days when it seemed to the casual observer, who had just floated in at headquarters by the banana route or in a canoe, that the campaign was being delayed by undue depth of water in the neighborhood of the campaigners. There were supply ships in the bay that no cause would ever for almost three weeks. The wind howled, the rain soared, the waves rose, and if Washington did its duty by Manila, there went forth from the national capital the information that the insurrection in the Philippines would not be suppressed until the rainy season was over. The veterans of last year sat around and said: "Oh, you ought to have been at Camp Dewey. There was where it rained a bit on its own book. Why, I have waked up time and time again just in time to catch my gripsack with everything I had in the world with me floating out under the tent flap. Why, this is only a gentle dew to what we got down there."

In Manila the venders of grass for the ponies delivered it in bancas dilligently navigated along the streams at the sides of the streets. Along the line the men on outpost duty stood their tours in trees or in boats, and sometimes had to swim to their posts.

According to the records at the observatory the month of July was peculiar in several particulars. Its rainfall was almost unprecedented, and nearly all of it occurred in the three weeks between the 2d and 22d. In that period the city was under the influence of various cyclonic centres that traversed either the Pacific or the China seas. There were three distinct typhoons. The first was off the north side of Luzon, and drifted up around the north end of the island, passing on to Formosa and the westernmost of the Japanese islands. There was also the influence of this disappearing storm that on the 9th and 10th gave Manila a taste of real ability to rain, the precipitation for those two days being fourteen and a half inches.

The signals were hardly down after this storm than they went up again for a new one that had formed in the China sea to the west of Luzon and marched slap bang into the continent of Asia.

Then came the star of the whole aggregation. Of this the observatory bulletin for July says:

"This storm, perhaps the most remarkable of the month, affected the weather of Manila more especially on the 18th, 19th and 20th. On the 18th the storm was 80 miles and 270 distant from Luzon, and its cyclonic influence reached out at the same time to Japan and the Philippines; the centre seemed to move then, with a marked tendency to westward toward the island of Formosa, but on and after the 19th it inclined northward, and on the 21st the centre was off Shanghai, where the storm raced with great intensity, doing considerable damage. The barometer fell to 29 inches."

In the three days thus specified Manila caught a terrific downpour. Nearly two feet of water fell, and the town, that had been traveling in rowboats during the first typhoon began to contemplate the advisability of getting in a few arks of modern design and approved accommodation for a long stay. Then the sun broke, and life in Manila began to show itself in the blue mold that grew to phenomenal dimensions on one's clothes. "If you watched your boots for a little while you could see it start, and over night it would attain a length that would entitle it to enter a warning," writes a man in Dakota. "Wheat field just ready for the self-binder. With four pounds of pure camphor in every compartment of your wardrobe the mold attack was unhindered. It advanced on both flanks, front and rear at the same time. Nothing could withstand it. Tailed paper was a laughing stock. It pervaded even the sacred precincts of zinc-lined trunks and tin boxes built especially to keep it out. Hardtack lumps, kept buried in the wardrobes at the imminent risk of the total destruction of the contents by fire, made faint impressions on the persistent mold. There was nothing to do but wait for the sun and swear that if you ever got out of this country nothing would induce you to come back."

The observatory has been keeping statistics of rainfall and other things since 1865, and in all that time there has been only one month that was wetter than the one just passed. That was September, 1867, when 1560.3 millimeters or 61.672 inches fell.

February has the smallest average of all the months, precipitating 11.8 mm. Only six times in the thirty-three years has the February record gone above 20, and as many times it has been 0.0. Nineteen times the February rain was less than ten millimetres. Ten times January has been satisfied with less than ten millimetres, seven were less than five, and it has several times gone almost to the hundred mark, and once, in 1883, it reached 307.2.8. December in 1867 was only 905.5 mm. In the first four months of 1883 the precipitation was 3063 mm., but for the corresponding months of the next year was only 5.9 mm.

This shows why some persons say there is no rainy season in Manila. That probably is true, technically, but almost any American soldier who put in July down there will stand up for the proposition that when the winds prevail from the west there is a likelihood of dampness there or thereabouts.

NOT REGIMENTALLY DRUNK.

A Distinction Without a Difference in Military Phraseology.

"We had some very funny experiences during the late war," said an officer wearing the shoulder straps of a major of volunteers. "As you are probably aware, the greatest crime of which an enlisted man can be guilty in the eyes of the military authorities is that of drunkenness, and the majority of punishments inflicted at the camps were for this offense. While we were in Tampa the greatest watchfulness had to be exercised in order to prevent the men from smuggling liquor into the camp, but in spite of all precautions, cases of intoxication were frequent. One day, a man of my command was arrested by the guard as he was trying to carry a full-sized jag past the unsympathetic sentry on duty.

"In the morning, after he had had time to sleep off the fumes of his debauch, he was brought before me as the senior officer of the regiment, for investigation. After his arrest he sent for the surgeon of the regiment and had certified to his company, that after they had inspected him, both declared that they could detect no signs of liquor on the accused man. The case, of course, was a difficult one to decide. On the one hand the non-com. of the guard swore positively that the man was drunk, and on the other hand I had the word of two officers, one of whom, the doctor at least, was entitled to respectful consideration as a medical expert, after having heard the evidence of the two officers I called upon the non-com., a typical son of the Emerald Isle, for his evidence.

"'Sergeant, was this man drunk when he came off guard?'

"'True to the traditions of his race, he replied.

"'Well, sir, he had been drinking.'

"'That is not the question; I asked you if he was drunk.'

"'He had taken liquor, sir.'

"'But was he drunk? Was he drunk? Give me a straight answer.'

"The man hummed and scratched his head as if for inspiration, and finally, feeling that he worked out, while a number of officers listened anxiously for the answer:

"'Well, sir, he was not to say rightnately drunk.'

"As soon as I was able to control my countenance and my risible faculties, I asked:

"'What do you mean by 'regimentally drunk'?'

"'If a man can pass the guard without falling down, and only staggers, he is only not full him rigimentally drunk, but he ought to be taken in all the same.'

"Amid a roar of laughter, I discharged the man on the same time warning the over-zealous non-com. to be sure that a man was 'rigimintally drunk' before confining him, and that he was not confining a man who had been sacrificing too ardently at the shrine of Bacchus, the question used to be asked, "Was he rigimintally drunk?"

Battlefield Nobility.

It is from the Fleming Day, who has been untiring in her devotion to the Camp Walworth work, that I have a remarkable story told by a certain Bowie Rider, who, by the way, is well go unmentioned, says a contributor to Leslie's Weekly." This man, it seems, had been deputy marshal of Cripple Creek, and for months before the war he had been hot on the trail of a noted desperado, wanted for horse-stealing and for murder. More than once the marshal and his men had nearly run the outlaw to earth, only to lose him at the last.

Then, suddenly, the war broke out, and things of less moment were forgotten. A captain of the Rough Riders, who knew the marshal's unflinching courage and his skill as a horseman, wrote him an urgent invitation to join his troops, and the invitation was promptly accepted.

So it came, a few weeks later, that this ex-cowboy, ex-miner and ex-hunter of criminals found himself at Tampa in Uncle Sam's uniform. And one of the first men he met was the desperado, so long sought for in vain, only now he was in soldier's clothes, a Rough Rider, too, with the rest of them.

"Well," said the hunted man coolly, as their eyes met, "you've got me at last."

"How do you mean I've got you?"

"Why, you have. You came for me, didn't you? I lay down."

"I didn't come for you," said the marshal. "I'm here to fight under Roosevelt, same as you are. I don't know you, except as a soldier."

The outlaw looked at him, doubtful.

"You mean you're not my enemy any more?"

"No, sir: I haven't got any enemies now but Spaniards."

"And you ain't goin' to give me up?"

"Not in a hundred years. There's the line, comrade."

And through the days that followed there were not two stancher friends in the whole island of Cuba than those two. Whatever hatred for each other had been pitiless. And after the war, when the marshal lay ill at Roosevelt Hospital, it was the ex-outlaw who came to his bedside to cheer him. And later it was the marshal who used his influence with a man of position to get honest work for this wrongly hunted man. Such was his gratitude was as deep as his resolve to lead a better life was sincere.

Summons of the Drum.

Hark, I hear the tramp of thousands,
And of armed men the hum;
Lo! a nation's looks have gathered
Round the quick, alarming drum—
Saying "Come,
Freemen, come!
Ere your heritage be wasted," said the quick, alarming drum.

"But when won the coming battle,
What of profit springs therefrom?
What if conquest, subjugation,
Even greater ills become?"
But the drum
Answered: "Come!
You must do the sum to prove it," said the loud, unanswering drum.

Thus they answered—hoping, fearing,
Some in faith and doubting some,
Till a trumpet voice proclaiming
Said: "My chosen people, come."
Then the drum,
Lo, was dumb!
For the great heart of the Nation throbbed one, answered: "Lord, we come."
—Bret Harte.

FASHION HINTS.

New Ideas in Various Departments of the Wardrobe.

The line of white in the front of mourning bonnets is permitted only to widows. In all other cases of mourning it is omitted.

The wearing of gloves by a hostess on her "at home" day is not countenanced by women of the best taste. It is a caprice of fashion which is necessarily out temporary.

DINNER BODICE.

Strong rice water is employed instead of starch for linen by some of the best French laundresses.

Kerosene is useful for other purposes than burning. Shoes which have become stiffened by dampness may be softened by being dressed with kerosene, and it will also serve to brighten pewter and tin and to clean iron articles.

The fashionable coiffure is as loose as possible. The hair is wired throughout and arranged in a bouffant style, the ends being drawn to the top of the head and coiled simply. A careless effect is, above all things, desirable, but the carelessness must not degenerate into untidiness.

A picture is given of a dinner bodice. It is tight fitting and is of ruby surah shirred all over. A corselet of renaissance guipure covers a part of the bodice, and the larger portion of the sleeves and the entire collar are covered with guipure. The corsage is worn without a belt and is slightly pointed in front. A bow of ruby foulard is placed at the left side.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SKIRTS.

Different Methods of Hiding the Fastening.

The one absolute rule with regard to the closing of the skirt is that it shall be invisible. It may be at the middle of the back, at the middle of the front, at one or both sides at the hip, but it must be adequately disguised. Whenever trimming follows the line of a seam the matter is simplified, as the decoration will conceal the fastening; also when the fastening occurs at each side of the tab-

BRIDESMAID'S GOWN.

ble, so that the collar stands up directly from the dress. In front are four tails, two quite long, say a foot. At the throat is a fancy bow of cream lace held by a bunch of violets. These are artificial, but are intended for looks only and when worn will be replaced by real ones. Chinchilla is the fur in another one, made with a smaller and more rolling collar and with a cascade of ten tails. A velvet bow was set at the throat on a bunch of the fur.

There are victorines, boas and short capes among the new early furs. Some boas have the appearance of being just simply limp little animals, their heads, feet and tails all being a part of them.

These fancy furs are all that are required with the fall costumes. The most of them have neat jacket shaped coats, finished in close design around the neck. This makes these pretty, new furs a welcome addition.

It is a NEW YORK fact that tight, flaring, double, paneled, tunic or princess skirts will be the favorite, for at the present time they are all seen and often. Probably they will all be worn. Still, my own impression is, from what is seen here and abroad, that the flaring skirt, with or without tailor stitching, will be a favorite.

Just at present tailor stitching in heavy silk is the prime favorite. Some really elegant effects are wrought with it. There was one Havana brown cloth tailor suit, the lower skirt touching the ground all around. There was a tunic, with strapped applique around this, cut out in graceful shape and heavily stitched. The tight basque jacket was also stitched and strapped at the waist and sleeves. The wide revers and collar were of striped seal brown velvet.

There was a brown felt hat trimmed with brown tulle, velvet, striped quills and a bunch of red lawn roses. There are many brown suits, the tunic imitated by trimming, and these range through all grades and kinds of material.

Brown suits, blue suits, automobile red suits, gray suits and black suits are all seen and are all fashionable. Dark green and several shades of prune are also in vogue. Some are very brilliant, and others, again, are very soft and subdued in tint. So much black is worn that I really think half the suits of the season will be in the new crepons just as taken hold of popular favor, and at least in skirts we shall see much of it.

The ugly and graceless coats and wraps of the extremists are likely to find adherents. They are as shapeless as a grain sack and look on a woman an. Add to that a desire to put some feminine touch to it, and you see the result. Some are cut box shape pure and simple. Others have a seam in the back. One has a slight point in the back and two in front, while the sides are slashed up nearly to the arms. Stitching trims this coat.

Then there are mantles simply beyond the powers of description. I note one in particular. It was of soft woolly zibeline plaid in gray white and brown. The plaid was at least eight inches square. It was cut in loose sack fashion and pointed deeply in the back and still deeper in front, so that the point came almost below the bottom of the dress. Cut in with the side seams were wing shaped sleeves, which reached around in front like a cape.

The pretty and jaunty little jacket basques are the favorites. Very many have vest effects in front of the same or other material. Often one sees a dark red vest with gilt buttons and others made of regular vesting, such as our grandfathers wore.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

NEW FALL FURS.

Some Suitable Costumes For the Chill Days of October.

Fur collarettes are the most stylish of all additions to a costume, and as they will be in quite general use on cool days, almost before you read this, I shall mention a few of them.

The season of furs does not begin till November, but these collarettes may be worn all through October. There is a plaited victorine of chinchilla, the folds lying flat and close, ending in a stole front. The collar is high and round and has a rolled band border. At the throat is a bow of very pale pink tulle, with a fancy buckle imitating emeralds in the center. At the bottom of the stole tabs are ruches of the tulle. Rather a queer combination altogether, but a pretty one as well.

Another arrangement is really a pelerine. This has the rolled high collar, the flare being a little more pronounced. The cape portion consists of two skunk skins laid over the shoulders flat, the heads hanging down. They join in the back in satin ribbon. In the open space in front there are four tails and two full rosettes of black velvet set at the neck.

A zibeline collar is high and fluted all around. There is no bottom part to this, which is a novelty. In front are four tails, two quite long, say a foot. At the throat is a fancy bow of cream lace held by a bunch of violets. These are artificial, but are intended for looks only and when worn will be replaced by real ones. Chinchilla is the fur in another one, made with a smaller and more rolling collar and with a cascade of ten tails. A velvet bow was set at the throat on a bunch of the fur.

NEW FALL STREET COSTUMES.

There are victorines, boas and short capes among the new early furs. Some boas have the appearance of being just simply limp little animals, their heads, feet and tails all being a part of them.

These fancy furs are all that are required with the fall costumes. The most of them have neat jacket shaped coats, finished in close design around the neck. This makes these pretty, new furs a welcome addition.

It is a NEW YORK fact that tight, flaring, double, paneled, tunic or princess skirts will be the favorite, for at the present time they are all seen and often. Probably they will all be worn. Still, my own impression is, from what is seen here and abroad, that the flaring skirt, with or without tailor stitching, will be a favorite.

Just at present tailor stitching in heavy silk is the prime favorite. Some really elegant effects are wrought with it. There was one Havana brown cloth tailor suit, the lower skirt touching the ground all around. There was a tunic, with strapped applique around this, cut out in graceful shape and heavily stitched. The tight basque jacket was also stitched and strapped at the waist and sleeves. The wide revers and collar were of striped seal brown velvet.

There was a brown felt hat trimmed with brown tulle, velvet, striped quills and a bunch of red lawn roses. There are many brown suits, the tunic imitated by trimming, and these range through all grades and kinds of material.

Brown suits, blue suits, automobile red suits, gray suits and black suits are all seen and are all fashionable. Dark green and several shades of prune are also in vogue. Some are very brilliant, and others, again, are very soft and subdued in tint. So much black is worn that I really think half the suits of the season will be in the new crepons just as taken hold of popular favor, and at least in skirts we shall see much of it.

The ugly and graceless coats and wraps of the extremists are likely to find adherents. They are as shapeless as a grain sack and look on a woman. Add to that a desire to put some feminine touch to it, and you see the result. Some are cut box shape pure and simple. Others have a seam in the back. One has a slight point in the back and two in front, while the sides are slashed up nearly to the arms. Stitching trims this coat.

Then there are mantles simply beyond the powers of description. I note one in particular. It was of soft woolly zibeline plaid in gray white and brown. The plaid was at least eight inches square. It was cut in loose sack fashion and pointed deeply in the back and still deeper in front, so that the point came almost below the bottom of the dress. Cut in with the side seams were wing shaped sleeves, which reached around in front like a cape.

The pretty and jaunty little jacket basques are the favorites. Very many have vest effects in front of the same or other material. Often one sees a dark red vest with gilt buttons and others made of regular vesting, such as our grandfathers wore.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

THREE GIRL EDITORS.

Interesting Family of Young Women Journalists in Missouri.

One of the brightest and most enterprising women journalists in the United States is Miss Perl Griffin of Maryville, Mo. Perhaps no woman journalist ever faced harder obstacles or greater dangers than this clear girl, level headed young lady.

On April 8 Frank Griffin, owner of the Maryville Daily Review, was shot down in the street while gathering news by a political enemy. That day The Daily Review failed to appear for the first time since its foundation, but the next day it came out under the editorship of Perl Griffin, the daughter of the murdered man. The paper was dressed in deep mourning, and a brief and pointed editorial from the girl's pen described the shooting and announced that the Journal would be continued as a family affair.

Frank Griffin was the father of three very pretty girls. Their names are Perl, Zoe and Lula, and the oldest one, Perl, is barely 23 years of age. When Mr. Griffin started his first paper, the Maryville Advocate, about ten years ago, his eldest daughter begged to be taken into the office to learn the printer's trade.

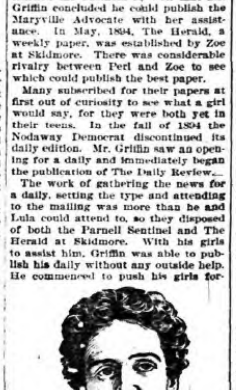
She soon learned to set type and do other work which must be done around a country newspaper office. She was quick to learn and soon was able to attend to all of the business of getting out the paper.

Zoe and Lula wished to quit school and learn to set type. Their father took them into the office, and they, like their older sister, soon became expert typesetters and able to assist Perl and their father in getting out The Advocate.

In 1894 Mr. Griffin saw an opening for a weekly paper at Parnell City. He bought an old plant and Perl issued the first copy of The Sentinel. It was a bright, newsy paper, of which the citizens were proud, and was given a good support. Other country newspapers commented favorably upon its clean, newsy appearance. The youngest daughter, Lula, had by this time learned the business so well that Mr. Griffin concluded he could publish the Maryville Advocate with her assistance. In May, 1894, The Herald, a weekly paper, was established by Zoe at Skidmore. There was considerable rivalry between Perl and Zoe to see which could publish the best paper.

Many subscribed for their papers at first out of curiosity to see what a girl would say, for they were both girls in their teens. In the fall of 1894 the Nodaway Democrat discontinued its daily edition. Mr. Griffin saw an opening for a daily and immediately began the publication of The Daily Review.

The three girls worked like men on a daily, setting the type and attending to the mailing was more than he and Lula could attend to, so they disposed of both the Parnell Sentinel and The Herald at Skidmore. With his girls to assist him, Griffin was able to establish his daily without any outside help. He commenced to push his girls forward, and alternately they were assigned the work of gathering the news and editing the paper. Their editorials were favorably commented upon. Mr. Griffin was a lawyer, and during court he was so busy with his work as an attorney that he left the full charge of The Review to his daughters.



MISS PERL GRIFFIN.

The day before their father was shot I had occasion to visit the office of The Review. I found Perl feeding the cylinder press, while Lula was attending to the mailing of their afternoon issue. That girls understood the full details of the business could not be better shown than when they were put in new and larger rooms about a year ago. The cylinder press was taken down and put up under the supervision of Perl and Lula.

In May, 1898, Guilford, in the southeastern part of the county, was without a postoffice. A chance came to purchase an outfit cheap, bought it, and Zoe began publishing the Guilford Grit. She showed the true Griffin pluck and, although Guilford has barely 300 inhabitants, was able to make expenses. In November of the same year she was married to Clarence Miller of Savannah, Mo. Mr. Griffin then gave the plant as a wedding present. Mrs. Miller decided that Melbourne, Mo., a new town on the Port Arthur route, was a better place for a newspaper, so in January of this year she moved the Guilford plant there and commenced to publish the Melbourne News. It is still being run by her and is an established success. It is well patronized by the Melbourne citizens and the farming community surrounding.

It is not probable that there is a family of girls in the United States who have at the head of these Griffin sisters been able to successfully edit and publish weekly and daily papers. The Review is the only daily in Missouri that is being run by women.

MILDRED MERRIAM.

GREATEST WOMAN FENCER.

Frau Emma Steege's Skill as a Swordswoman.

German women are not given to fads. Whatever they take up really amuses and interests them. They do not go in for a sport simply because the rest of their set do. Frau Emma Steege, whose skill as a swordswoman is world renowned, has succeeded in securing many devotees for this healthful exercise at the German capital. She received her training from her husband, who was fencing master at the Berlin University. She is the cleverest fencer in Europe. In her school of fencing are seen the most fashionable and exclusive women of the city. New York women took up the fad some time ago. One set of young women went in for it quite extensively.

When Pauline Whitney, Gertrude Vanderbilt and Miss Sutton were undebutantes they attended every morning Professor Jacoby's academy.

FRAU EMMA STEEGE.

The average girl takes a few fencing lessons because she folls add to the decorations of her dress. The gown is her delight. She has her picture taken in it to send to her back number lovers. She scorns the heavy corduroy skirt and plain waist of Frau Steege. Her skirt is accordian plaited silk, her waist a Toreador effect, a tiny dagger (a paper cutter) is thrust through her belt, a gauze scarf floats airily over her shoulder for a buckler. She does not know whether she is studying the French or Italian school, and does not detect the difference between a broadsword and a rapier.

But for the perfect development of every muscle, the rounding of unbecoming angles and for smoothing out niartistic lumps of flesh, there is nothing so successful as scientific fencing.

To Beautify a Storeroom.

"How to beautify the storeroom," may be a popular subject for conversation among housekeepers who have aesthetic tastes, but the cook who keeps a supply of large boxes of heavy pasteboard, covered with beautifully flowered paper, landscape paper, or paper with quaint human figures upon it, for storing purposes. There are two sizes of boxes; the one just large enough to hold a soft cushion, and the other about twice as large. They sell for, respectively, 75 cents and $1.25 each. The smaller boxes are given with sofa cushions bought at the place. The larger boxes would make an aesthetic resting place for a down comforter when not in service.

Gives a Demure Expression.

The present style of drawing the hat well over the forehead gives a more serious and demure expression to the face underneath than does the upturned brim. All the shades of plum, heliotrope and violet are very popular for trimmings, and the new shade of green which are now being so much worn. White and black gowns are being ordered for this season. One gown which I saw, and which seemed to catch the popular fancy, was of ivory-colored etamine, the bodice with an empiece, ment of Maltese guipure. The waistband was incrusted with amethysts. Two shades of violet velvet trimmed the bottom of the skirt.

Chaperons on Trains.

One of the largest railroad corporations in the country employs three women to act as chaperons or guides to tourist parties that travel over their routes. Miss Zerelda Wallace Beaty, Miss Emma C. Bingham and Miss Anna M. Richardson look after the comfort of the people they accompany and explain the points of interest along the way. To people who have travelled but little they are of great assistance. Their services are not forced upon any one, but they are present to be called on when wanted. They usually make themselves known to the women of the party, and are willing to give information at all times.

Clever Woman Decorator.

A woman with a clever, original brain and deft fingers can, however small her purse, work wonders in the decoration of her home. One such woman recently rejuvenated one of her apartments and made it a veritable place of beauty. She accomplished the transformation with a pot of paint, several rolls of cheap, coarse burlap, nickel-headed tacks, common sense, quick fingers and good taste. She is going to paper another room soon, and will buy the roll-en-finish wrapping paper and stencil it herself.

THE TALK OF BIRDS.

HOW OUR FEATHERED FRIENDS CARRY ON CONVERSATION.

The Calls by Which They Express Delight, Surprise, Anger, Distress and Warning — An Interesting Study for Young Folk.

Although it is getting late in the season for our feathered friends to sing much, it will pay to remember what flows for the coming times.

Not their songs—who would try to repeat in words the songs of the beautiful throats of the wood-wilding bird?—but the calls by which the birds express delight, surprise, anger, distress, warning, their characteristic notes, makes what we term Bird Talk, says the Philadelphia Times.

Some of these sounds seem to be common to all birds, as the sweet, twittering mothers talk in the nest; some common to certain families, as the cheeping note of the sparrows, and the similar calls of the orioles, the cardinals, and various other whistling birds.

But on the other hand every bird has a great many different calls of its own. The Virginia quail's talk is no t limited to its name not. Bob White! Bob White! but has a number of cheerily to the long grasses. The mother quail knows her baby talk and she has also a call of three notes, a signal call to her, and one she leaves her nest in the brooding season. The mates use their "scatter call" when they roam the country in flocks, and they signal to let each other know where they are —Are you here? Are you here? besides other notes in time of trouble.

As for the gold-winged woodpeckers, the males make their love calls like a party of old fox hunters. Yarrup, yarrup! yp! yp! Mr. Chapman, who has especially studied what birds say, describes also a salute, hail and beauty, keep'er: a meditative cuh-cuh-cuh, and a sound "like the swishing of a willow wand,' weechew, weechew. They also chuckle and complain, and the baby cold wings call incessantly from their high-hole nursery.

The cardinal's call are almost numberless, slow and querulous, quick and lively, full of joy and triumph, or anxious and troubled. The orioles are known by a gay and bold whistle, whi-di-m, whi-di! high among the branches, but they have also a harsh chack, chack, which they use freely when vexed and they are very easily vexed, or frightened, in spite of their brave show and their joyous songs.

Catbirds have two notes of warning; the first is a rather low chuck! chuck! as if in a whisper, and the other, more imminent danger, is loud and shrill and nasal. The cuckoos also cluck-cluck, and in addition to a rattling call, tutter-tut, tuk-tuk, and coo-coo, not the distinct cuckoo call that the European cuckoo gives, but one slightly resembling it.

The wood thrush also has various calls. Sitting one sunset hour at the edge of a wood I saw and heard a wood thrush in the top of a tree near me call to his mate, brassy note, a quick, clipping call, a chatter, the usual pit, pit, and interspersed all these with its delicious whistle, and a soft call of one note, which is its characteristic song. I have heard these sounds before, but could not believe that they came from the throats of golden throat until I caught him in the act.

Place has its influence over song. The melody of the Western meadowlark is more liquid and flutelike and sweeter than that of the Eastern, and there is a difference between the notes of the Northern and the Carolina chickadee.

There are a great many individual variations, and these are likely to occur in certain kinds of birds. The mendowlarks may have a nasal call, a bobolink may accompany his song with a pipe, sweet as a flute, and subject to any change that the caprice of the singers suggests.

The great Carolina wren has a multitude of calls, all hard to define, all marvelous in their sonorous, ringing quality from such a tiny throat. As for the mocking bird, "mocking" birds, endowed with the double gift of mimicry and ventriloquism, one never knows what to expect. Mr. Burroughs compares noise of a mocking bird's lovesong to that of a puppy, a duck, a kingfisher, a crow, a fox and a cat, besides others indescribable.

On the other hand there are unexpected likenesses as astonishing in widely different birds as the difference in birds of the same family, or the notes of the wood pewee and the chebec, says "What?" the red-eyed vireo. "Do you hear it? Do you believe it?" the whiteeyed. "Who are you,eh? the yellow-throated. "Do you see me? the cardinal calls "Quick, quick, hurry!" the tanager, "Up, up, in the tree top."

All these are bird notes in man's words, but there are also for bird families an untranslatable language. Kingbirds have "a steely clatter;" waxwings hiss; the cedar-bird swallows twitter, hummer birds squeak; woodpeckers rap; ruffed grouse drum or beat a tattoo' owls snap their mandibles; the quail and the hawk make sounds like a sneeze, and like wings cutting swiftly through the air.

Sorry for Them.

Tommy, aged 4, was very fond of climbing upon his mother's lap for the purpose of being petted and caressed. One day his mother found him gazing at some goldfish in a globe with a thoughtful look on his face. "Why, Tommy," she asked, "what makes you look so solemn?"

"'Cause I' sorry for them baby fishes," answered the little fellow.

"And why are you sorry for them?" she asked.

"Their mamma hasn't any lap for them to sit in," was the reply.

WOMEN'S REALM

TO INTEREST CHILDREN.

Let Them Work With You in All the Occupations of Home.

Constant change in occupation is the law of the growing child, because the law of his growth demands it. The work of the home and its environs is admirably adapted to this necessary constant change.

Let the children work with you. Share with them, and they with you, in all the occupations of the home Talk, explain, sing, while at work, and there will be no lack of interest. It is only when the little ones are left to work alone or with other children, on tasks which they do not comprehend that they become bored.

The healthy, happy child is naturally an enthusiast in anything which he undertakes. He likes work. His play is work—business—and he would prefer to spend his energies in some way that will "help," if he only knows how to do it. Of course he must not be kept at one thing until the muscles and faculties employed become wearied.

After he has kept his arms, hands, legs and feet moving in a certain way for a few minutes, he must change. He will change so as to bring other parts into play, unless he is arbitrarily prevented; and when that happens he loses interest and becomes a dull, sullen, uninteresting "bother of a boy," judged by the ordinary onlooker, when in fact, he is only tired out and suffering. Let him work like a man and play and do not let the children be counted out of the homemaking and housekeeping.

Taxed for Wearing Trousers.

Women using male attire are taxed for the privilege in France. For the privilege of wearing men's trousers the French government charges women a tax of about $10 a year.

This, however, does not give every woman who is willing to pay the tax a right to wear such garments. The government confers the right as a tribute to great merit and makes it, in fact, a sort of decoration given to women as the ribbon of the Legion of Honor is given to men.

The only women to whom has been granted the right to wear male attire are Georges Sand, Rosa Bonheur, Mme. Dieulafoy, the Persian archaeologist, Mme. Foucalt, the bearded woman, and two feminine sculptors, Mme. Fourmeaux and Mme. Jeanderon.

How jealously the right of wearing male attire by women in France has been guarded may be seen in the recent case of Mme. Steinheil. This lady is well known for her propensity to fight duels and her efforts to get elected to the French assembly.

Last year she petitioned the government for the right to wear men's clothes, but the French authorities refused her, perhaps, as a pretty woman, with a profusion of blonde hair.—Tit-Bits.

Why Babies Are Cross.

It seems almost absurd to advise mothers not to pinch babies' feet, and yet plainly we may say much of the fretfulness and irritation of babyhood is due to tight shoes and stockings. Not tight, perhaps, from a grown-up standpoint, but sufficiently snug to hurt the tender, soft flesh of baby feet. The shoes that are got for the very little ones, alas, are terrible instruments of torture because of some slight roughness or pressure.

If the shoe fits snugly, no matter how soft it is, the sole is sure to press into the sensitive flesh and irritate the nerves. Baby flesh is so soft that the mothers or nurses often do not notice how badly the little foot is being crowded until impeded circulation tells the story of suffering.

And small stockings are frequently a means of injury as are small shoes.

Always buy both shoes and stockings *at least one size larger than the so*called "easy fit." This rule should hold good until the foot has ceased to grow, for surely it would be a generation of healthier, better-tempered and more graceful men and women.—Demorest Magazine.

A Pneumatic Corset.

A corset made of rubber is adapted for the use of women who are learning to swim. It is formed in cut on the same general lines as all corsets, and made double, so that the air space between the two thicknesses may be blown up, and serve not only to present a neat appearance to the figure, but also to buoy it up and give confidence to the mind. A lack of confidence is responsible for the slowness with which this accomplishment is learned by woman, and this corset should prove a boon to women who delight in aquatic sports but have no hardihood for them. The very knowledge that they can not sink leaves their brain clear enough to think of the proper strokes for hands and feet, and as soon as they find they can move through the water from one place to another, and become accustomed to these movements, the corset may be discarded. It is much more shapely than the big rubber rings and corsets of the seaside, in fact, does not show at all, as it conforms to the shape of the wearer.

A New Bracelet.

The newest bracelet is exceedingly Oriental in design. It is a heavy gold ring, which slips on and off over the hand, and is studded with three gems, a jade stone, amethyst and coral. Another novelty in the bracelet line is also a heavy gold ring, from which is suspended no less than half a dozen bangles in animal designs. Pigs, goats, dogs and horses appear to be the favorites. These animal bangles are also much used as watch charms.

An English newspaper recently offered a prize of £5 for the best reply to the question, "Who makes the best wife?" A ready housewife won the prize, for in the immortal words of the late Oliver Ditson she replied: "Yours truly, Jemima Boggs."

A heavy corded ribbon embellished with brocaded bowknots in a contrasting color, is much in vogue for the stocks finished at the neck with a long bow.

STREET CAR RULERS

THREE MEN WHO CONTROL NEARLY TWO THOUSAND MILES.

That Gigantic Combination Headed by Wm. C. Whitney, P. A. B. Widener and Wm. L. Elkins—Their Rule is an Absolute Monarchy.

Three men in this country control over 1,500 miles of horse railways, on which 25,000 men are employed and 10,000 cars are operated.

They may justly be called the street railway kings of the nation, for they control the transportation facilities of the three largest cities in the country —New York, Chicago and Philadelphia —besides Pittsburg, Baltimore, a half dozen smaller municipalities and hundreds of square miles of suburban territory.

They are William C. Whitney, of New York; Peter A. B. Widener, of Philadelphia, and William L. Elkins, of Philadelphia.

The influence of the system under their direction would make a trunk line from Boston to Denver, but it is many times more valuable as any trunk line in the country.

The three men mentioned do not own these lines. Their ownership is divided among thousands of stockholders in all parts of the country, but Whitney, Widener and Elkin direct them as absolutely as though they were the sole owners.

(P. A. B. Widener.)

Nor does this represent the extent of their financial power and their industrial enterprises. They control to a large extent the gas supply of Philadelphia, Chicago and Pittsburg. They are the masters of the electric light power and transportation facilities in these and other cities.

They represent, roughly speaking, half a billion of invested capital possibly the greatest aggregation of corporate wealth this country has ever seen accumulated. They have made vast fortunes for themselves and the men behind them from the control of municipal franchises. They have developed a new corruption, one that proved another avenue to multi-millionairedom —that of the municipal corporationist.

More than this, the union of brains and capital which has made the combination between Messrs. Whitney, Widener and Elkins is a new development of the trust idea in the land of trusts. Heretofore the combinations across lines of capital have worked together for the carrying out of some single enterprise, perhaps, for a few more years they have worked, each for himself or each against another. These men have seen the mutual and individual advantages of working together all the time. They are the pioneers of what will prove to be, perhaps, the last and greatest of all trusts—the trust of millionaires.

This combination of interests is undoubtedly a good thing for the men concerned. Their fortunes, in each case rated by the tens of millions, bear eloquent testimony to that fact. Is it a good thing for the public? Opinions differ on this point, but Mr. Widener, who has been the most active of the three in building up the combinations, does not hesitate to say that it is. In his Philadelphia office a few days ago he said to the writer in the course of an interview:

"The extension and improvement of street railway lines made possible by the centralization of management and control has invariably resulted in greater benefit to the public than to the owners of the lines. The combination of the street lines in any city makes it possible to operate them at the least cost. The paralyzing effects where a car line is a great convenience to the residents, but where it would hardly be profitable to operate as an independent line. It provides in most cases a longer haul for a single fare.

"On the Philadelphia, Chicago and New York lines to-day passengers are carried distances at which there is positively no profit to the companies. But the loss in dollars and cents is evidently more than the profits from short hauls. In all the case of street railway consolidation with which I am familiar the combinations have resulted in the introduction of improvements and in more rapid transit. In Philadelphia the change from the old system of traction to the trolley early last year, brought by the consolidation of separate lines, has been worth hundreds of millions to the city.

"In my opinion all successful combinations of capital are beneficial to the public. Combinations do not raise prices. If they attempt to do so they invite competition and are bound to prove unsuccessful.

"The old order of things is changing. Business is no longer a matter of competition between individuals. It is a competition between nations. By the combination of capital in business we will master the trade of the world."

Some Truth in This.

Judge George H. Brown told the Grand Jury in the Criminal Court in Raleigh, N. C., that he attributed the increase of crime in the State to the failure of juries to punish when they ought to, and to a too sympathetic public opinion, "even ministers of the Gospel." he said, "hanging around the Court House and dogging the Judge trying to beg off convicted criminals."

NOTES ON PORTO RICO

A GOSSIPY LETTER OF INFORMATION AND INCIDENT.

Brief Description of San Juan—Getting Into Morro Castle—Interviewing a Native—Dancing and Music Popular Amusements.

(Special Correspondence.)

San Juan is worth a brief description, its commercial importance being underestimated in the United States just as that of Ponce is overestimated. The city with a slender claim to metropolis of the island owing both to its natural and acquired advantage. It stands upon an island something over two miles long, about a quarter of a mile wide, and separated from the main land at one end by a narrow arm of the sea, over which is the bridge of San Antonio. It was the object of a rugged bluff nearly three-quarters of a mile from the mainland, connection being made by a small ferryboat. It is a walled town, with guardhouses and battlements, and yet it did not take long for the Spanish commander to cry, "Don't shoot; I'll come down!" when Admiral Sampson threatened to bombard Morro Castle last summer.

Although built over two hundred and fifty years ago, the town is still in good condition. Its population of nearly 25,000 and contrary to the usual custom in Porto Rican cities a good many people live on the ground floor. Running water has just been introduced, though the people mostly drink rain water caught in about as filthy cisterns as can be imagined. It is lighted by a full supply of vermin, and dogs enough to buy generously at the moon. The streets are narrow, but will usually admit of two carriages abreast. It has far more and finer public buildings than can be found on the entire balance of the island. There are two good palaces for the officials, a jail, theatre, barracks, custom house, military hospital, cathedral, Episcopal palace and a seminary.

Gas and electric light works are established, and the stores and shops are better than any others on the island. There is no manufacturing of any consequence, though a new railway, six running parallel with the island, and seven at right angles. Just at present it is pretty well filled with soldiers and promoters.

Morro Castle shows the marks of the bombarding Admiral Sampson gave it, although not as much as reported and judicious, being more in the nature of a warning than anything else. An intelligent Spaniard tells me that the shells which struck the main commander at the castle thought it was merely a visit from Cervera's fleet, which was giving an unusually effusive call, but when a shot went clean through the top walls and landed against a private house beyond, the Spanish realized that something serious was likely to happen. Then when another shot made a hole as big as a hogshead in the front of a church, passed through the confessional, smashed in a wall in smithereens, everybody began to flee, and when daylight came not a soul could be seen in the town.

It is not an easy matter for the castle it necessary to secure a pass from the United States military authorities, but I knew nothing of this at the time of my visit, so I went over on the deck of an ocean steamship, who had the usual supply of gold lace upon his attire. We each purchased Spanish swords as relics, which I carried in my undercoat and upon the easiest means of conveyance. Although the one I carried seemed to delight in getting tangled in my legs and in tripping me up when down, the guard evidently took no for military magnates, for he saluted promptly and passed us through the city. Once passed the first sentry we got along easily. Merit thus often pays tribute to ignorance.

A mile to the seashore defended by a battery enables troops to enter or leave the fort, or receive succor when needed. Down below are the dungeons where Spain kept her military prisoners. The entrance passage to these are in the form of crescents, and the only light is through diminutive barred windows, which are about worn away by years of use as seats for the unfortunate inmates who clung to them to secure as much as possible the light of day. The castle of San Cristobal, facing the ocean northwest of the city, is likewise a strong fortification, being for the purpose of a water battery. It is connected with Morro Castle by a well-constructed wall.

So much for the city. Its people are a study. Nowhere can be found in all the central or southern parts of the island. Indeed, the inhabitants of the entire north shore are more intelligent than those found even in the city of southern part, simply because they have been in closer touch with civilization. But this is saying very little. Mungo Park found as much in the heart of Africa a class of men who told the story of their heroic forefathers, and the Sandwich Islanders have boasts for their prowess and their illustrious sires. But the Porto Rican has no history, no ideals, no ancestry, no folklore.

On the road from Caguas to San Juan I stopped at the hut of a native, who *seemed to be of more than average in*telligence. With the aid of an interpreter, for practically we were without a language you need good tools—I tried to find out if there were any distinguished natives on the island. Were there any great statesmen? Any inventors, or orators, or statesmen? He had never heard of any.

"Poets run wild and rank in almost every land, you know," I said. "Ask him if Porto Rico has any poets."

Our native friend blinked his eyes, and, with a faraway look, said he was sorry he could not, but I shall always think that he did not quite understand me, for in the next breath he said:

"But there is a man living near Rio Piedras who has a dozen game cocks, roosters, and he is known all over the island as a great cock fighter."

A. A. H.

In a letter to his parents, Lieutenant Colonel Little, of Kansas, tells about meeting an American doctor who had been on the island of Luzon for twenty-two years, according to his story, every village had its school houses before the war broke out, and, in a way, all the natives are educated, with the exception of a few wild tribes.

TOM BOWLING AT THE GUN

How Yankee Gunners Fired in the Battle With Montojo's Fleet.

WHY WE WON AT MANILA

Good Marksmanship on a Rolling Vessel Means More Than the Public Appreciate.

The Big Guns Under Perfect Control at the Hydraulic Cylinder—Some of the Difficulties the Manipulator Has to Contend With—The Remarkable Work of the Crews.

Lieut. Bradley A. Fiske, U. S. N., of the Petrel, who took part in the engagement of Cavite bay, contributes an article to the Century on Why We won at Manila. Lieutenant Fiske says of the "man behind the gun:"

Look him as he stands, at rock-string in hand, behind his gun, his legs wide apart as he balances himself on the unsteady deck, his eyes fixed on the sights of the fine gun and the enemy, whom he sees through the narrow aperture of the gunport. He knows that his gun is all right, and the powder and shell men have done their part, years ago, the necessary steps were taken which placed this terrible weapon in his hand to-day, so fashioned that if he fires a gun and the shot will hit the mark. But the rolling of the ship from side to side throws the line of his gunsights high up against the sky, and then down to the water's edge, as no ship steers exactly straight, the line of sight moves irregularly to the right and left; so that his sights appear to be describing irregular curves, now against the background of the sky, and now against the background of the sea. An average roll may be said to be about two degrees on each side, or fourteen degrees from one side to the other. The average time of rolling from side to side is seven seconds, making the line of rolling one degree about half a second.

Suppose now that Tom Bowling is firing at an average ship, say twenty feet high, about twenty-five hundred yards away. If he fires at the middle of the target, as he should do, this gives him a margin on each side of ten feet, which subtends an angle at Tom Bowling's eye of about one-twelfth of a degree; so that Bowling must aim so that the line of his sights are "on," and do everything required to fire the gun in one-twenty-fourth of a second,, or else he will miss the target. Now, as Bowling can be depended on for such rapid thought and nerve-action, even under the best conditions of quiet and calmness; that is, he cannot be depended on to do it every time.

Much can be done by a good gunner's captain in the way of timing for a smooth time, and firing a little before the sights bear. No one knows this better than Tom Bowling. So he braces his feet on the steadying deck, every nerve stretched to its utmost tension. He sees that the gun is pointing a little to the right of the enemy's bow. He has been through the gunnery trainers work their training-levers, or if in a turret, start the turning engine for him as to turn the gun to the left. Meanwhile, as the ship rolls, the end gradually is approaching the target from the right, it is also rising and falling with the rolling of the ship. Tom Bowling sees that the line of his sights rise to the level of the target, the trainers will have got the gun nearly, but not quite, in the direction. He braces himself for a quick pull of his lock-string; and then a wave strikes the ship on the starboard bow, or the helm is shifted a little away, and goes the line of sight far off to the left, before the sights get up. "Right!" orders Bowling instantly; and the gunners work like mad to get the gun right quickly, but cautiously, for much depends upon them now. "Well!" "Right!" "Left!" etc., come the orders in quick succession, as Tom Bowling and his trainers work the gun. Suddenly the line of sight strikes the target; and as it does so Tom Bowling's eye, a quick pull of his arm a tremendous noise, a stifling cloud of smoke, and in comes the gun as if it were a projectile itself, and after having cleared across the ship and out at the other side; but it quickly, yet gently, slows, then stops, controlled perfectly by the hydraulic cylinders, and instantly it runs out again, and is ready to be loaded and fired once more.

In an instant the second captain has unlocked and thrown open the breech; quick hands wash off the powder residue from breech-block and bore, and then above in the shell and powder. The second captain closes and locks the breech with a heavy clang, puts in a new primer, and reports the gun ready. "Left!" cries Tom Bowling, the whole succession of actions is reperformed.

If anybody could have gone from the top of the ship of the United States fleet during the eventful hour between five and half-past seven on that beautiful Sunday morning he would have seen about fifty such guns doing all doing the same things and in the same way. He would have seen fifty guns' crews all eagerly, yet coolly, working their guns, like so many machines, each division of guns, and each turret under the charge of an officer responsible for it.

A Father's Tribute.

At the engagement at Las Guasimas Capt. Allyn K. Capron, of the Rough Riders, was killed. His son, Allyn, was killed. His body was left for a time where it fell. Its hat was placed to cover his head and a black rubber poncho flung over the body. Only the rough, mud-clotted shoes protruded from beneath the poncho. Word was sent to Capt. Capron, Sr., and he soon learned the news of the engagement. White-faced, but upright, he stood for a moment looking down at that black, forbidding outline in a hypath of a thicket—all that remained of the last of three promising sons. Stooping he lifted the hat from the dead boy's face, and gazing at him with mixed eyes said:

"Well done, boy!"

Then replacing the hat he turned on his heel and marched stiffly away.

THE TIME OF DREAMS

THEY OCCUPY BUT A MINUTE FRACTION OF A SECOND.

A Scientist Says There Are Three Classes of Dreams and Tells How They Are Caused—The Effect of An Overloaded Stomach.

Dreams may be divided into three classes. Those caused by abnormal action, those brought about by external action and those which result from the strong influence of another's will upon the sleeper.

Dreams are generally a repetition of thoughts unguarded by reason. Those caused by internal action, or brought about by action within the body, are due entirely to the action and state of the stomach, and as the food is digested they draw up the nourishment and distribute it throughout the nervous system to replace the waste that has taken place during the day. If the stomach be overloaded with an abundance of heating food too much nourishment is forced upon the brain, causing an abnormal filling of the channels, thereby expanding them, bringing them in touch with others and causing the matter from one to flow into or to mix with the fluid of neighboring channels. Whenever the fluid flows in a channel more or less forcibly the thought which originated that passage is reproduced more or less vividly. Hence comes the general mixing up of thoughts which originally had no connection with each other.

An overloaded stomach also causes a flow of blood to the brain, sent there by nature to assist in assimilating the extra nourishment, and the overcharged blood-vessels pressing upon the nerve channels near the brain cause even more turbulent disturbances. This accounts for the advance of so many medical men that no considerable quality, especially of animal food, should be taken immediately before bedtime. The crossing, recrossing and the bursting of these fluid channels brought about in this way produce the absurd mixtures of fancies that often come to us when we sleep.

The stomach, too, is a mill which keeps on forever grinding, the walls acting as the grindstones. When, therefore, there is nothing between them, or, in other words, when the stomach is empty, one wall grips upon another, causing an irritation of the nerves, which produces that peculiar sensation of falling from some great height.

To understand how external action will effect the dreams of the sleeper, it must be borne in mind that these dreams which seem to take hours and even days in passing really occupy only but a minute fraction of a second. Therefore, we are awakened by some loud, strident noise, say by the cracking of a whip, then between the time the sound reaches the ear and the time we are yet asleep, to the time we are fully awake to realize what has caused the sound, a few minutes only have elapsed, those few minutes being more efficient to allow of a dream of apparently several hours' duration.

As an example. A milkman driving up behind a sleeper cracks his whip. cracks his whip smartly. Immediately the thought produced by the sound causes a dream. The sleeper imagines himself a soldier, who has fallen into the enemy's hands. He is led out to be shot. He stands blindfolded with hands tied behind him, facing the soldiers. He hears the click, click, click, as the rifles are cocked. He hears the word given and the noise of the volley rings out in his ears. Then he hears ens with a start to hear the rumble of the milkman's wagon wheels as he crashes along and drove over the rough cobblestones.

A blow, a cut, or a sensation of pain will operate in the same way, and would produce dreams of those things connected with pain just as the noise awoke those connected with sound. For instance, a sleeper dreams that he is closed up in a box, or in a closed carriage, and is being rapidly driven off in some unknown direction by a man who has designs upon his purse and life. He thinks that in his struggles to get free, and in a tussel drives an arm through the glass window, but finds instead that he has cut and bleeding. It smarts fearfully, and he awakens to find that he has thrown out his arm and his hand has smashed the looking glass standing on the table by the bedside. The whole passed be*tween the time that the hand struck* the glass creating the sensation of pain and the moment the sleeper awoke to realize the fact.

Prof. J. O. Neumann, F. R. S., a physiological student of some note, is a firm believer in the theory that all dreams, or those brought about by the strong influence of another's will or thought. This claims that the same as in hypnotic suggestion, with the difference that the person bringing about the effect does so unconsciously. Mr. Neumann cites an instance in which he had personal knowledge, knowing as he did all the parties to the case.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Religious Notes.

The Ministerial Union of Richmond and Manchester, Va., has determined to institute a series of Sunday afternoon meetings of all evangelical Christians, at which, in addition to devotional exercises, addresses shall be made by men appointed by the ministerial unions of the several denominations on the following Christian themes: The Brotherhood movement in Cincinnati for discerted Christian work, instituted about a year ago with organizations from the Methodist, Presbyterian, Congregational and Episcopal churches, has been strengthened this year by the accession of branches from the English Lutheran and Christian denominations. Of the 34 British districts of the Wesleyan Methodist church 21 show increase, 12 show decrease and the district of York is in the unique condition of having neither advanced nor receded during the year. Of the 836 circuits in the Methodist Episcopal church, south report an increase this year, 296 a decrease and 42 remain stationary.

A Business Curfew.

A unique curfew arrangement is that in vogue in nine of the Lewis county towns, under which the bell rang at 8:15 every evening as a signal for the merchants to close their stores and quit business for the day.—Kansas City Journal.

The churches of the United States claim 26,000,000 communicants, being about one-third of the entire population. During 187 the growth in church membership was 631,000.

GONE UP IN SMOKE.

BUT FEWER CIGARETTES ARE USED THAN FORMERLY.

Tobacco Chewing is Also Somewhat on the Decline, but Snuff Taking Still Continues—Interesting Statistics From the Government Report.

The Government reports just issued shows that during the fiscal year of 1898-99 this country manufactured for home consumption 4,529,872,304 cigars. This is an apparent decrease of 12,144,296 from the year before. It should be stated that in April and May, 1898, when it was known that the tax was to be increased, there were a rush to get goods shipped out of the factories to escape the new tax, and it is estimated that about 120,000,000 cigars were thus made in excess of the normal product. These cigars really belong to the fiscal year just ended, and so it may be said that there was an actual increase instead of a decrease in production.

The tax amounted to $16,307,108 for 1898-99 against $13,626,049 in 1897-98, an increase of $2,681,058. It is also interesting to note that on the revenue of prosperity the product of what was generally regarded as th e cheap cigar districts no longer showed the great increases of a few years ago. The stogie districts of Pennsylvania show a decrease of 20,000,000 for the year, while the higher grade Philadelphia goods show an increase of nearly 12,000,000; the cheap goods of Ohio fell off 19,000,000, but the Virginia cheroots and stogies show a gain of 10,000,000. The ultra high grade cigars of the Havana cigars from imported Havana tobacco show increases, Key West and Tampa gaining 2,500,000 and New York gaining 14,000,000.

In cigarettes there is a crisis. For the past ten or twelve years this product steadily grew, increasing from 2,151,551,000 in 1887-88 to 3,169,000,000 in 1897, passing even the record of cigars. Then came the anti-cigarette agitation, and the tax was advanced from 50 cents a thousand to $1.50. The effect is seen in the fact that this year the total production amounted to 3,735,698,-946 only. That there be apparently but the decrease in the world's demand for cigarettes is shown by the fact that the exports of American-made cigarettes continue to increase, despite the numbers of European firms with American machinery and American methods which have recently begun business. For the eleven months closing May 31 the total exports of cigarettes were 1,-664,517,000, as against 809,317,00 for 1897-98, or an increase of 365,200,000. The tax on these was $2,496,775, against $1,213,975 in 1897-98, an increase of $1,282,800. In manufacturing tobacco, which includes plug, fine cut and smoking varieties, there is the greatest change. The heavy decrease in the chewing tobacco shows apparently that at last the habit is well under way to extinction. The stronghold of the chewing industry, Missouri, shows a decrease of 5,000,000 pounds last year, the Louisville tobacco district shows a decrease of 4,500,000 pounds, New Jersey shows a decrease of nearly 5,000,000 pounds, and the New York district, taking in the cheaper chewing tobacco, has a decrease of 1,000,000 pounds. The decrease of 57,135,231 pounds in manufactured tobacco from a gross output of 297,098,405 to 234,282,-941 pounds would seem to be in chewing tobacco rather than in smoking tobacco, although there appears little doubt that the use of the better class of the cheaper kinds of smoking tobaccos has largely increased. The high-priced grades, selling at $1 a pound and upward, are greatly decreased in popularity. Once again the exports tell a different story. Last year there was exported 700,618 pounds of plug tobacco, as against 709,648 pounds in 1897-98, an increase of 73,823 pounds for the year.

Of snuff there is little to be said. It shows a total product for the year of 14,627,000 pounds, this being a decrease of 894,045 pounds from last year's record, but this is not a decrease in snuff taking, a product which is aged before sale, and the last two years combined show a gain of pretty large proportions.

Rush for Two-Cent Fares.

The new two-cent tickets on the branch lines of the Chicago General Railway were in great demand when presented for sale at the Harrison Street depot. Conductors were provided with big packages of tickets, but disposed of them soon. The cars were crowded with men going to their stock yards in the early morning, and extra tickets were called for by every conductor on the road during the afternoon.

Hundreds of men working at the yards who formerly walked to work readily bought the cheap tickets and evinced a sudden desire to ride. Late in the afternoon the cars could not accommodate all the passengers. The departure is an overwhelming success," said an officer of the Chicago General. "The fare is practically a cent a mile, and the company contemplates the extension of its lines at an early date on a similar schedule."

For Coin Collectors.

The Postoffice Department has received hundreds of letters asking for information about the shipment of $1,000,000 worth of silver coin to New York on the transport Buford, to pay for Cuban money orders. This money consists of old gold, silver and copper coin. The greater part of the amount is in rare old gold pieces. Much of it is badly abraded. The coins are of various dates back to 200 or 300 years. There are hundreds of pennies several hundred years old and all well preserved. Besides abraded coins there are many that are plugged. The government will not lose anything on them as they were all taken by weight. Many thousands of them will sell for far more than their value to coin collectors. A considerable proportion of the coin looks as if it had been buried during the war.

WOMEN'S REALM

Stop Your Hair Falling Out.

If your scalp is easily irritated it is more than likely that the skin needs softening.

Women complain of their hair falling out, the constant desire to scratch the scalp, the dry appearance of the locks. They notice it; it irritates them, but they do nothing to alleviate it, thinking nature will take care of itself. Nature does, but she makes you suffer first, for she wants help.

If all these symptoms have appeared —and eight out of ten women so complain—this is what the specialists will do for you: Put on freely a tonic that softens, loosens, oils. Quinine is used sparingly on a scalp and hair dried out by salt baths.

This tonic is rubbed in by thirty minutes of massage. Each part of the scalp is vigorously rubbed. Little by little the oil soaks in, and the locks remain glossy.

After the tangles are combed out, the hair is divided and sub-divided and a stiff, elastic brush used.

Wondrous Woman.

Every woman is secretly proud of her guests who dress well.

Some girls set their caps for husbands and others set their capital for titles.

A girl in love is often unable to express her thoughts, but it's quite different after marriage.

A chaperon is one who accepts the implication that she is old enough not to need watching.

Families are generally best conducted in which the wife does all the scolding. A man's scolding does no good.

When a poor girl who is long and lanky suddenly acquires wealth she at once becomes divinely tall and graceful.

When the girls are in doubt as to whether a visiting girl's complexion is "real" they take her wading and find out.

After a woman has been married two or three months she goes around with an expression on her face that looks suspiciously like wisdom.

Gluten Bread.

Persons suffering from diabetic troubles often find difficulty in getting the pure gluten bread at the bakers. It can, however, be readily made at home, with the assurance that neither starch, which contains sugar, nor sugar itself enters into its composition. In the winter the sponge can be set at night, but in the summer it is more advisable to set it in the morning and bake it later in the day. Dissolve half a cake of *compressed yeast in half a cup of luke*warm water, with a teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of butter and flour to make a stiff batter. When thoroughly mixed, beat in the whites of two eggs, and set to rise. When light add only sufficient gluten flour to mold the loaves, as it should be as soft as it can possibly be handled. Put in greased pans, let it rise again until light and bake in a moderate oven three-quarters of an hour.

A Successful Experiment.

A lady, who from a generous heart or miscalculation prepared too many sandwiches for a recent picnic luncheon, was at a loss to know what to do with those left in her basket. She was about to toss them out when a friend suggested that she take the filling home and cook them for breakfast. The novelty of the experiment tempted her, and, following the instructions to roll them in beaten egg and fry, serving hot, she had a dish which all pronounced delicious.

You see the meat between the slices of bread was cooked by the egg, while everyone knows that ham and eggs and fried bread naturally go to*gether, few would have thought of the* above method of serving them.

To Grease Waffle Irons.

There are a few special points in greasing waffle irons that are well for the novice to bear in mind. Put over the fire to get quite hot one cake of pork, then rub both griddles with a piece of salt pork or suet on a fork or a bit of butter or sweet drippings tied in a clean cloth. The heat will melt the butter and let it run through the cloth. Close the griddles and reverse, which will allow the fat to run evenly over them. Put the butter into the center of the waffle from over the fire, cover and cook.

Electric Linen Marker.

A useful invention is the electric linen marker. The linen is moistened with water or salt water, and a silver stamp is pressed upon it. A current of electricity is then sent through the silver stamp, through the linen, and prints it with a salt of silver. The current is then reversed, and the silver is reduced from the salt, thus forming permanent characters in the cloth.

A Big Mistake.

There are young women who think that they make themselves particularly agreeable to their male acquaintances by making themselves as much like them as possible in manner and conversation. This is the way these young women make one of the biggest mistakes of their lives.

The Thimble a Dutch Invention.

Thimbles are said to be of Dutch invention. The manufacture of them was commenced in England by one John Lofling, a mechanic from Holland, who carried on the business of thimble-making at Islington about the year 1695. He is said to have been very successful.

The Constitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Flat Commutation Rates.

After much agitation of the subject and considerable urging on the part of its patrons, the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad has decided to adopt a flat rate for commutation tickets, which will remove that inconvenient sliding scale that has been in effect for years. This is an especially advantageous concession on the part of the railroad to the commuter element, as all who do business in New York and live in New Jersey will appreciate without argument. Under the old scale if a man missed a month he would have to begin at the first rate again, but now every one will be on the same footing. The sale of yearly tickets will be discontinued, and tickets may now be purchased at the New York stations as well as at the local offices.

The flat rate for commutation tickets is not only a convenience to the commuter of today, but is a feature that will tend to bring more people to reside for temporary periods in the towns along the line of railroad that maintains the plan. The sliding scale of rates, beginning with the first month's price of a ticket considerable above the average for the year, is said to be a deterrent to many who would like to spend from one to three month's in suburban home. It is to be hoped that the Central will follow the action of the Lackawsana in establishing the flat rate for commutation tickets.

Much in Little.

Writing on the marvelous facilities for concentration afforded by art an accomplished essayist has said: "A massive wood, a great stretch of river or lake and a remote mountainous horizon may all be suggested to the mind by a drawing two inches long and one and a half inches high." Following up this idea, says the Philadelphia Record, it may be remarked that a like facility of condensation is offered by intelligent modern newspaper advertising. A great deal may be said in a little space; the advertiser's establishment and wares may be portrayed in verbal descriptions with as vividness and skill that will strike the reader's fancy and arouse his interest. This is the chief object of an advertisement, since when public attention is attracted to a line of wares the people in general are sure to want to personally inspect them.

The third ticket foolishness of the Middlesex County Democrats is due to the failure of the New Brunswick Common Council to grant a saloon li cense to one Howley. It seems that Howley and a few political consorts nominated an independent ticket in the Sixth ward at the last municipal election. They made such a fight that the regular nominees nearly failed of election. In order to punish Howley the Democratic Council refused to renew his license this year. Howley and his friends considered this as an effort on the part of the machine to secure revenge. The nomination of a county ticket is the way they are slapping back, and the movement, though confined to New Brunswick, will take many Democratic votes, thus helping the chances of the Republican ticket.

There is something strikingly peculiar about the preliminary campaign in Union county. It is a fact that not a solitary soul has mentioned "Farmer Orator" Martine for any of the nominations to be dealt out by the Democrats this year. This is a political novelty, and appreciated by none more than the "Farmer Orator" himself, who, though as sturdy an advocate of Democracy, has passed that period that is charitably described as being "in the hands of his friends."

There is an editor not a thousand miles from Plainfield who have more friends by applying the old axiom "it is better not to know enough than to know too much that is no sc" when he assumes to speak for some of the Republicans of Union county.

Congressman Daly, in deciding to abandon the project of a rump State committee for the Democrats, has displayed a timely appreciation of knowing when he is whipped.

If Restaurateur Childs is named for Senator by the Somerset Democrats he ought to be able to do the Republicans to a brown.

Those whiskers of Oom Paul must be of the Kilkenny kind—ready for a fight at the drop of the hat.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but does coffee, because it is beautiful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about ¼ as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

HE SHOT TO KILL.

A Negro Trooper's Quick and Accurate Aim at a Sharpshooter.

In another part of the armory I found some men in the hospital corps, of whom 18 went to Cuba with the Seventh. One of them, a writer in Leslie's Weekly. Among these was Dr. Robert Froelich, who told me a good sharpshooter's story.

"It was on the morning of July 2," he said, "and I was going down the Savilla road toward El Caney, when I came up with a detachment of artillery that pretty soon blocked the way. The men sang out to me to keep my eyes open for sharpshooters, who were picking off soldiers all about. I had gone a hundred yards or so when I heard the peculiar bat of a low-flying ball, the dangerous kind—quite a different sound to the bee-eese of a ball singing over your head, which can't hurt you.

"I dropped quickly behind a gun and studied the trees to find out, if I could where that ball had come from. Just then the buck nigger came down the road whistling as if he was going to a ball. He carried a carbine and a lot of water bottles. I was just thinking that he had better be careful, when a bullet sailed past his head so closely that he must have got the wind of it. And he hadn't taken three steps more before another whizzed by and clipped me.

"'Dat man's gettin' real pesky.' I heard the nigger say, and then he threw himself on the ground like a football player making a hurdle. And as he crouched he, too studied the trees, and I could picture that he was an old Indian fighter, and knew the tricks of the business. For two or three minutes he never moved nor made a sound. Then he sprang up as suddenly as he had gone down, and fired his carbine as a man would drop his pistol, like a flash, without taking aim. At least, I don't see how he had time to aim, but instantly after the shot I saw a little bunch of leaves in a cocoanut palm, and presently as I watched, I saw a rifle drop from the branches, and then a dark body come tumbling to the ground from a height of 150 feet.

"'Guess dat's one monh foh me,' said the nigger, and, without further interest in the matter, he picked up his water bottles, which had fallen to the ground, and went down the road whistling as before.

"'If you boys wants dat Spanish gen'leman, you can have him,' he called out, when he started off. And two or three of us hurried to the spot where the sharpshooter had fallen. Some of them said he was a Frenchman. I don't know what he made that out, for I only know that he wore a tight-fitting skull cap, and had two large palmleaves pinned over his breast, so as to give better protection from the sun. I think that the crotch was a little platform which had supported him, and on it was food and water. We found about 400 Mauser bullets in the dead body, and he would doubtless have used everyone of them on us if our colored friend hadn't stopped him. I don't think I ever saw a quicker or prettier shot than that.

Newspaper Warriors.

A correspondent in this war had to display many more qualities than audacious enterprise and the capacity for vivid description on short notice. The expenses that must be incurred were something tremendous, and the correspondent who had not in addition to dash and brilliancy a shrewd Yankee notion of driving a bargain could have easily have run his employer into bankruptcy, says Harper's Bazar.

On the outbreak of the war the staff vessels to carry correspondents to the cable offices were increased astonishingly, and were chartered at the exorbitant rates that Yellowpress was able to charge under the circumstances. One journal had no less than ten seagoing craft in commission, at an aggregate expense of over $1,500 per day for their use only, and as it cost from 50 to 80 cents per word to send press matter from st. Thomas or Jamaica, and $1 to $1.80 per word for press cables from Hong Kong, a correspondent was put to his wits to know where to stop.

One New York correspondent paid $4,500 in cable tolls for a report of the description of the fight with Cervera to his newspaper. A writer in McClure's gives a good idea of the absolute necessity that exists that Yellowpress on the newspapers in order to accomplish the remarkable feat of newspaper ling that last summer saw. Owing to the special facilities that these way shipowners exacted from Spain, $9,000 a month for the use of each of these boats, and the newspapers were also compelled to pay the prohibitive expense of fire insurance, which the interest underwriters of New York fixed at the enormous rate of 5 percent per month—equal to a year to nearly the total value of the boat.

One managing editor's salary for a single week, including cable and other expenses, amounted to $1,100. A single correspondent representing another New York newspaper is said to receive $10,000 a year.

Circumventing a Shell.

Most thrilling was the story of Major William Duffield Rose, commanding the Seventy-first Regiment, of a battlefield scene during one of the battles in Cuba, as told in Leslie's Weekly. The Major says: "I had just begun to examine a poor fellow's wounds when I saw a shell coming toward us high overhead. I thought it must surely pass beyond, but it struck a tall tree and ricocheted to the ground, exploding at the very spot where we were standing. I saw the danger I gave the wounded man a sharp push forward, throwing him to the ground, also in a forward direction, as I knew that the fragments of the shell would be driven backward by the momentum.

"The explosion came not ten feet from where we were lying, and both of us were buried in the dirt hurled violently over us. There was a hole in the ground where the shell struck big enough to set a barrel in, but neither the soldier nor I got any hurt. The others about thought this quite a miracle, and came running up, thinking to find us dead. All these details I remember with the utmost distinctness."

ONE SCORE YEARS OF MARRIED LIFE.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Cliffton Celebrated Wedding Anniversary.

WAS HELD AT "ROSELAWN."

RESIDENCE ELABORATELY DECORATED FOR THE OCCASION.

Pink and Green Were the Prevailing Colors—Many Relatives and Friends Were Present—Social Hour and Supper—Then the Young People Danced —Among the Guests who Were Present.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Clifton celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary Saturday evening at their residence, "Roselawn," on West Seventh street. A delightful evening was spent by the relatives and friends who gathered in honor of the occasion.

The house was artistically decorated for the event with palms and potted plants and cut flowers. Green and pink were the prevailing colors in the drawing and dining rooms. The table was elaborately decorated with pink carnations and streamers of smilax. The large reception hall and the trellis work of the stairway were decorated with autumn foliage.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton received the congratulations of their friends and a pleasant hour was spent. After supper was served, the young people spent the remainder of the evening in dancing. Mrs. C. D. Whitall and Mrs. Clarence Woodcock presided at the dining room.

Among the guests were: Former Senator and Mrs. Keyes, of Somerville; Mr. and Mrs. William Wagoner and Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Wagoner, of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. Henry V. Wagoner, of Bensonhurst; Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Jenkins, of Patchogue, L. I.; Miss Fieldie Holm, of Brooklyn; Terry Smith, of New York; Rev. and Mrs. Charles L. Goodrich, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Woodcock, Miss Marion Woodcock, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. John French, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Titsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bocap, Mr. and Mrs C. D. Whitall, Mr. and Mrs. W. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Groendyke, the Misses Chase, Robert A. Suffren, Philip S. Suffren, George E. Fuller, Miss Ella Titsworth, Miss Ella Whitall, Paul Whitall, Clifton Whitall, Lawrence Whitall, Mrs. E. B. Williams, Miss Mabel Maxson, Harry Maxson, Silas Yerkes, Miss Margaret Yerkes, the Misses French, Max Moraller, Miss Catherine Webster, Miss Mamie Terry, Miss Ida Bocap and Barry Maxson.

P. Ludwig Conde furnished the music.

Building a Road in the South.

Civil Engineer F. A. Dunham is very busy in Bradley county, Tenn., where he is engineer for about 95 miles of county road. He has a large force of engineers and assistants at work getting in grade stakes, etc., preparatory to the macadamizing being started, which he hopes to get under way about November 1st.

E. M. Vall is in charge of Mr. Dunham's office in this city, and is prepared to execute all orders in a satisfactory manner.

All Professional Musicians

In justice to Wm. N. Bartow, who resides at Cranford, it should be said that his band, which furnished music for the Exempt Firemen's Association last Thursday, is Bartow's Military Band, of New York, and it has no connection with Cranford or any other band. It is composed of all professional musicians. Mr. Bartow has no association with the band at Cranford.

To Secure Lower Fares.

Secretary H. C. Runyon is engaged in sending out invitations to the boards of trade in all boroughs between Elizabeth and Somerville to meet with the Plainfield Board of Trade Monday night, November 20th, for the purpose of taking concerted action with reference to an attempt to secure a reduction of fares on the Central Railroad.

To Erect a Big Building.

Thomas Callahan, the grocer of Richmond and East Third streets, is about to make another large improvement on Richmond street. He is going to erect a fine building on the east side of the street, 70x42. There will be four stores on the first floor and six apartment flats over head, with all modern improvements.

Mary Luke Was Drunk.

Mary Luke came up before City Judge Runyon Tuesday a. m. on the charge of being helplessly drunk yesterday. Mary made a solemn promise to return to the Industrial Home, leave rum alone in the future and behave herself. On those conditions, sentence was suspended.

Looking After His Fences.

Former Assemblyman Robert Houston, of Elizabeth, has been in Plainfield calling on some of his political friends.

Educate Your Bowels With Cascarets.

Candy Cathartic, cure constipation forever. 10c, 25c. If C. C. C. fail, druggists refund money.

JERSEY JUNIORS OBJECT

TO FIGHT RULING OF THE NATIONAL COUNCIL.

An Important Conference Held In Somerville Monday Night — Committee Was Appointed to Act in the Case.

About fifty members of Franklin and Somerset Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., of this city, went to Somerville Monday by trolley for the purpose of attending a union meeting of councils to discuss the question of reduced representation and increased taxation as imposed by the National Council. A number of the state officers were present and representatives from about twenty-five councils, mostly from Somerset county.

It was the sense of the meeting, as emphatically expressed by all, that the members refuse to pay the increased taxation on the basis of a lower representation, and it was decided to employ counsel to fight the alleged unjust law in this matter. It was stated that the members of the order in Pennsylvania had refused to pay the increase and that immediately the National Council had declared their charter null and void. It was expected that the same action would be taken regarding the action by the New Jersey members, but a feeling of opposition was strongly expressed and the members will fight the legality of the law.

For instance, this State has a membership of 31,000 and the representation in the National Council has been cut in half, in other words it was 12 and it now will be as an example, Nebraska, which has a total State membership of 125, and is allowed a representation of two at the National convention. The eastern members feel as though the western members are trying to gain control of affairs, and they will not allow it if it can be avoided. The present per capita tax is 27 cents, and this is quite a jump from twelve years ago when it was 8 cents.

It is considered that the evident purpose of the western States is to allow one or more representative to each State, and in this way with the past councilors, and members of the National body, the control of affairs would be in the hands of the westerners, when in reality their membership is far less than that of the east.

From the councils represented last evening, one representative from each was selected, and these members formed a committee for the purpose of drafting suitable resolutions on the subject which were adopted at the meeting and which will be presented at the session of the State Council to be held at Trenton next week Wednesday, when this matter will be taken up for consideration. The members are determined that if they cannot have the representation they will not pay the taxation.

FUNERAL OF LATE ELLIS CAMPBELL.

Held Monday Afternoon and Attended by Many Friends.

The funeral services of the late Ellis A. Campbell were held Monday at 2 o'clock from the house at Avon Park. There was a very large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, conducted the services and spoke comforting words to the bereaved ones. There were three vocal selections rendered during the services by a quartette consisting of Miss Fellows, Mr. and Mrs. J. Campbell and B. T. Barnes. There was a very beautiful display of floral offerings from relatives, friends and associates of the departed.

Those who served as pallbearers, relatives of Mr. Campbell, were William Kelly, of Avon Park; Sanders Kelly, of Manchuen; Lewis Kelly, Woodbridge; John I. Holly, of Avon Park, and William Coulter, of Oak Tree. Interment was at Hillside Cemetery.

Nominated as District Deputy.

T. C. Smith, of Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., was last Monday nominated as district deputy to succeed Nimrod Horton. Floyd Fuller was chosen delegate to the Grand Lodge. Representatives were present from six lodges, and the meeting was held in the rooms of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44.

Beauty Is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean the blood, keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin today to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads, and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets,—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

To Save Time and Labor.

Welda the West Front street confectioner, has patented a machine for dipping chocolate cream which will save much time and labor. Mr. Welda is now having one made for his own use.

—This is the seventieth year of publication of "The Country Gentleman," the only agricultural newspaper, and it is just as interesting and valuable as ever. Its contributors are experts in their several departments, and it is indispensable to all country readers who wish to keep up with the times. Single subscription $2 a year.

Congratulations in Order.

Congratulations are being offered to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Chamberlain, of Westfield. It is a fine boy. Mr. Chamberlain was formerly Miss McIntyre, of North avenue.

From Case to Desk.

Owen Smith, of Watchung avenue is now a reporter on the New York Evening Sun. He commenced work on the Sun as a typesetter.

DYSPEPSIA

"For six years I was a victim of dyspepsia in its worst form. I could eat nothing but milk toast, and at times my stomach would not retain and digest even that. Last March I began taking CASCARETS and since then I have steadily improved, until I am as well as I ever was in my life."

DAVID H. MOFFATT, Newark, O.

CASCARETS TRADE MARK REGISTERED REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c.

CURE CONSTIPATION forever. Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York. 311

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

OFFICIAL CALL.

Union County Democratic Convention.

In accordance with a resolution adopted at a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee of the County of Union, held Wednesday, October 4th, 1899, the Democratic voters of the County are hereby notified that the COUNTY CONVENTION to nominate candidates for Senator, County Clerk, Sheriff, Coroner and three Members of the General Assembly, and to transact such other business as may come before the Convention, will be held at 2 o'clock p. m. And also, that the Democratic voters of the County are requested to meet in their respective Wards, Townships and Boroughs, on to elect delegates to the said County Convention. The ratio of representation will be one delegate for every fifty, and one for every fraction exceeding twenty Democratic votes cast at the last Gubernatorial election.

At Turn Hall, in the City of Elizabeth, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1899,

Wednesday Even'g, Oct. 25,

The number of votes given in each Ward, Township and Borough, with the number of delegates to which each is entitled is as follows:

	Votes	Delegates
Elizabeth—
First ward	561	11
Second ward	349	7
Third ward	442	9
Fourth ward	297	6
Fifth ward	273	5
Sixth ward	307	6
Seventh ward	352	7
Eighth ward	512	10
Ninth ward	356	7
Tenth ward	258	5
Eleventh ward	140	3
Twelfth ward	84	2
Railway—
First ward	196	4
Second ward	305	6
Third ward	163	3
Fourth ward	123	2
Fifth ward	86	2
Plainfield—
First ward	203	4
Second ward	173	3
Third ward	136	3
Fourth ward	205	4
Clark Township	44	1
Cranford Township	196	4
Fanwood Township	196	4
Garwood Borough	70	1
Linden Borough	43	1
Roselle Borough	111	2
New Providence Township	45	1
Roselle Park	63	1
Springfield Township	79	1
Summit (1st dis. 134)	382	7
Summit (2d dis. 248)
Union Township	274	6
Westfield Township	231	5
Total number of delegates		141

A member of the County Executive Committee for the ensuing year, for each ward, township and borough, will be elected at the above primaries.

The recommendation of the Democratic State Committee, in reference to the membership and organization of the County Committee will be presented to the Convention for its approval.

By order of the Democratic County Executive Committee.

JAMES A. LOWELL, Chairman.

T. C. Latimer, Secretary.

1831 Success to Your 1900 Country Gentleman.

The ONLY Agricultural NEWSpaper, AND ADMITTEDLY THE Leading Agricultural Journal of the World.

Every department of it written by specialists, the highest authorities in their respective lines.

No other paper pretends to compete with it in quality or in quantity. It gives the agricultural NEWS with a degree of fullness and completeness not even attempted by others.

Best Reviews of the Crops
Best Market Reports.
Best Answers of Meetings.
Best Everything.

Indispensable To All Country Residents WHO WISH TO KEEP UP WITH THE TIMES.

Single Subscription, $2;
Two Subscriptions, $3 50;
Four Subscriptions, $6.

Special Inducements to Raisers of Larger Clubs.

Write for particulars on this point. Club Agents Wanted Everywhere.

Four Months Trial Trip 50 cents.

SPECIMEN COPIES

will be mailed free on request. It will pay anybody interested in any way in country life to send for them. Address the publishers,

LUTHER TUCKER & SON.
10 19 8 ALBANY, N. Y.

CLEARING SALE OF PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of of good second-hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7	Octave Square	$ 40
7¼	"	70
7⅓	Upright	150
7⅓	"	165
7⅓	Hallet & Davis	190
7⅓	" "	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20, $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

$300 and up, and 3 years' time if you want it. Other makes—Cabinet Grands, all improvements. $225—$? per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,

94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

500 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.

CONTENTS:

Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.

Same book in better binding 50 cts. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York

JAS. M. DUNN,

Dealer in

GROCERIES, PROVISIONS, VEGETABLES, FRUITS &c

GARDEN SEEDS

resh and carefully selected.

224 PARK AVENUE

OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.

Everything usually found in a first-class grocery.

Goods delivered free of charge.

P. P. VanArsdale,

PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 189, or left at Willett's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 E. Front street, corner Elm street. 9[1y]

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 132, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. B CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corne of Park avenue and Second street.

Children Teething

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa.

Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POST OFFICE.

NEW YORK AND LOCAL MAILS.

Arrive—7:30, 8:40, 11:30 a. m.; 2:30, 5:00, 5:30 p. m. Close—7:20, 9:15 a. m.; 12:30, 1:45, 5:00, 7:45 p. m.

SOMERVILLE AND RARITAN MAILS.

Arrive—8:40 a. m.; 5:00 and 6:15 p. m. Close—7:20 a. m.; 12:30 and 4:00 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7:30, 8:40, 11:30 a. m.; 2:30 and 6:15 p. m. Close—7:20 and 9:15 a. m.; 12:30, 5:00 and 7:15 p.m.

Through fast mail for West and South, close 5:30 and 7:15 p. m.

WARRENVILLE.

Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—9:30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m. Mail closes at 5:15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M.

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Anthracite Coal Used Exclusively. Insuring Cleanliness and Comfort.

Stations in New York, Foot of Liberty, and Christopher and South Ferry, Whitehall Streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT OCT. 30th, 1899.

For New York 2 14, 2 57, 5 27, 6 20, 6 40, 7 25, 7 40, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 a. m., 12 09, 12 44, 1 35, 2 12, 2 40, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 9 30, 10 00, 11 30, p. m. Sunday 2 14, 3 30, 4 30, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 30, 10 00, 11 30 p. m.

For Newark at 2 14, 2 57, 5 27, 6 20, 6 40, 7 25, 7 40, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 a. m., 12 09, 12 44, 1 35, 2 12, 2 40, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 9 30, 10 00, 11 30, p. m. Sunday 2 14, 3 30, 4 30, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 30, 10 00, 11 30 p. m.

For Elizabeth at 2 14, 2 57, 5 27, 6 20, 6 40, 7 25, 7 40, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 a. m., 12 09, 12 44, 1 35, 2 12, 2 40, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 9 30, 10 00, 11 30, p. m. Sunday 2 14, 3 30, 4 30, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 30, 10 00, 11 30 p. m.

For Somerville at 5 18, 7 12, 8 19, 9 05, 9 40, 11 05, 11 30 a. m., 12 56, 1 45, 3 20, 5 41, 6 05, 6 35, 7 05, 8 05, 9 57, 10 55, 11 29 p. m.; 12 44 night. Sundays 5 18, 9 40, 10 44 a. m.; 12 56, 3 40, 5 05, 6 05, 8 05, 10 55, 11 44 p. m.

For Lake Hopatcong at 5 18, 8 19, 9 56 a. m.; 1 56, 2 30, 5 27, 6 35, 8 21 p. m. Sunday at 5 05, 9 56 a. m.; 2 05, 6 05 p. m.

WESTWARD CONNECTIONS.

5 18 a. m.—For Flemington, Lambertville, Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Manch-Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Upper Lehigh, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

7 12 a. m.—For stations to High Bridge, connects for stations to Hampton.

8 19 a. m.—For Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R. Easton, Bangor and Manch Chunk.

9 05 a. m.—For Flemington, Junc. High Bridge Branch, Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R. Easton, Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg, Manch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Mauch Chunk, Shamokin, Nanticoke and Upper Lehigh, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

1 56 p. m.—Way for Easton, connecting at Junction for stations to High Bridge.

2 30 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Manch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

5 27 p. m.—For Flemington and Easton.

6 35 p. m.—For Flemington, Bangor, Allentown, Manch Chunk, Reading, Harrisburg, Williamsport, High Bridge for stations on High Bridge Branch.

8 05 p. m.—For Flemington.

9 57 p. m.—For Easton and at Junction for D. L. & W. R. R.

10 55 p. m.—For Easton.

11 29 p. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Manch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Williamsport, Shamokin and Scranton.

8 00 a. m. Sundays—For Flemington and Easton.

9 30 p. m. Sundays—For Germans Valley, Flanders, Kenvil, Easton, Allentown, Manch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Williamsport, Reading and Harrisburg.

5 00 p. m. Sundays—For Flemington.

6 30 p. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Manch Chunk, Reading, Harrisburg.

FOR LONG BRANCH, OCEAN GROVE, ETC.

Leave Plainfield at 3 37, 8 13, 10 27 a. m.; 3 46, 4 17, 6 27 p. m.; Sundays, except Long Branch, 8 12 a. m., 5 20 p. m.

For Perth Amboy, 3 37, 5 27, 8 13, 8 27, 9 05, 10 27 a. m.; 3 46, 4 17, 6 27 p. m. Sundays, 11 28 p. m. Sundays 8 52, a. m.; 5 20 p. m.

For Atlantic City, 8 27 a. m. 4 17 p. m.

For Freehold, 3 37, 8 13, 10 27 a. m.; 1 35, 4 17, 5 27 p. m.

For Lakewood, Toms River and Barnegat, 3 37, 8 13 a. m.; 1 35, 4 17 p. m. Sundays 8 52 a. m.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

Leave Plainfield for Philadelphia, 5 17, 8 16, 8 44, 9 16 a. m.; 12 02, 3 30, 4 30, 5 30, 6 30, 8 21 9 22 p. m.; 1 17 night. Sundays, 5 17, 8 16, 8 44, 9 16 a. m.; 12 02, 3 30, 4 30, 5 30, 6 30, 8 21, 9 22 p. m.; 1 17 night.

For Trenton, 5 17, 7 18, 8 44, 9 16 a. m.; 1 02, 2 16, 4 30, 5 30, 6 30, 8 21, 9 22 p. m.; 1 17 night. Sundays, 5 17, 5 45, 9 16, 10 45 a. m.; 7 36, 4 30, 5 30, 6 30, 8 21, 9 22 p. m.; 1 17 night.

For Baltimore and Washington at 5 17, 8 44, 10 44 a. m.; 12 02, 3 30, 6 30, 8 21, 9 22 p. m. Sundays, 5 17, 10 44 a. m.; 3 36, 6 30, 8 21, 9 22 p. m.; 1 17 night.

For Buffalo, Chicago and all points West, week-days at 9 54 a. m.; 2 01, 6 26 p. m.

(Plainfield time is given by the railroad.) Any change cars at Bound Brook.

Through tickets to all points at lowest rates may be had on application in advance to the ticket agent at the station.

J. H. OLMACHEN,
General Superintendent.
H. P. BALDWIN,
General Passenger Agent.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect May 21, 1899.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N.J.

WESTWARD.

9 05 a. m. daily, and 7 25 p. m. daily except Sunday. Easton local.

9 02 a. m. daily. Express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Canandaigua and principal intermediate stations.

11 56 a. m., 2 34, 5 22 and 9 26 p. m. daily except Sunday. Local for Bound Brook.

12 01 noon daily except Sunday. Black Diamond Express for Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

2 34 p. m. daily local for Easton, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

4 06 p. m. daily except Sunday, express for Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Pottsville, Hazleton, Shamokin, L. & S. branch and principal intermediate stations.

6 21 p. m. daily except Sunday, 6 55 p. m. Sunday Manch Chunk local.

7 02 p. m. daily, solid vestibule express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto, and principal intermediate stations.

9 26 p. m. daily express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto. Carries sleeping car passengers for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Easton and Manch Chunk, and no baggage east of Sayre.

11 22 p. m. daily express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Canandaigua, Rochester, Batavia, Geneva, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge and Chicago. Day coaches from New York to Chicago.

EASTWARD.

For New York and Philadelphia, local, 6 49, 7 46, and 9 40 a. m.; 3 04 and 5 19 p. m. daily except Sunday. Easton local, 7 46 a. m. and 5 19 p. m. Express 7 05, 8 56, 10 09 a. m., 12 15, 2 07, 5 00, 7 07 and 9 39 p. m. daily except Sunday. Local, day 10 00 a. m., 2 07 and 7 11 p. m. 4 06 p. m. daily, local to Parkview.

PERTH AMBOY AND BRANCH.

For Perth Amboy and intermediate stations 8 05, 10 09 a. m.; 5 22 and 8 10 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday 10 23 a. m. and 8 10 p. m.

Train leave Perth Amboy (State street) 7 15, 8 35 a. m.; 4 30 and 6 30 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday 10 a. m. and 5 40 p. m.

Excursion tickets, good all day or added to the Ticket Agent, South Plainfield, N. J., Chapman's Station, Metuchen, or points south or west may be purchased at the South Plainfield office. Telephone 9F1. Call us up without extra charge. The Agent will gladly call for and check baggage.

COL. ROLLIN H. WILBUR,
General Superintendent.
S. BERTHOLF,
Division Passenger Agent.
CHAS. S. LEE,
General Passenger Agent.
26 Cortlandt St., N. Y. City.
NEW YORK, NEWARK & SOUTH RAILROAD, Depot foot of Cortlandt, Dutterness and West 23d Streets.

DEMAND THE OLD RELIABLE RAZER

SOLD EVERYWHERE
WILL SHAVE ANYTHING
ANY WAY
RAZER GRADE

Woolston & Buckle,

PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Y. M. C. A. ANNIVERSARY

HELD AT VARIOUS CHURCHES IN THIS CITY.

To Commemorate the Organization in Plainfield of the Y. M. C. A.—Able Addresses Delivered by the Pastors.

The thirty-second anniversary of the organization in Plainfield, of the Y. M. C. A. was observed in several of the churches of this city and North Plainfield Sunday. It was on the 28th day of October, 1867, that the local society was formed by a number of prominent citizens interested in religious matters, who realized the needs of such an organization which in the 32 years of its existence has reached out and brought together hundreds of young men, who have been benefitted not only in a spiritual but also in a mental and physical manner. The first officers of the local Y. M. C. A. were: President, Hon. Alexander Gilbert; Vice president, James W. Jackson; corresponding secretary, H. O. Newman; recording secretary, Nelson Runyon. Later Mr. Newman was elected treasurer of the association and held the office more than 22 years.

For some years the association occupied rooms on East Front street, where the Salvation Army now holds forth. But the growth of the association demanded larger quarters and a handsome building was finally erected at East Front street and Watchung avenue. It was occupied for the first in 1895.

Among the other presidents of the association have been Charles W. McCutcheo, James W. Jackson, C. E. Tyler, Hugh A. McGee, H. B. Munger, H. O. Newan, F. J. Miller, W. D. Murray and Stephen Cahoone, the present incumbent.

Yesterday morning in the following churches anniversary exercises were held and addresses made by the pastors: First Baptist, First Presbyterian, First Methodist, Crescent Avenue Presbyterian and Holy Cross Episcopal.

In the evening Frank Smith, Army and Navy Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., addressed a large audience in Trinity Reformed church. Appropriate sermons and addresses were also made in the evening by the pastors of the Park Avenue Baptist, Warren chapel and Grace Episcopal churches.

Saturday at the usual service Rev. A. E. Main, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, preached an interesting sermon on the local work of the Y. M. C. A.

In the afternoon the men's rally meeting at 4:15 was conducted by Capt. George D Morrison, who delivered an able address on the good work in hand.

Next Sunday morning anniversary exercises will be held at Grace M. E church, and in the evening at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church. Anniversary exercises will be held in the Congregational church, Sunday, November 12 h.

A CLEVER ENTERTAINER.

Royal S. Goldsbury Pleased All Who Heard Him in the Y. M. C. A. Hall Last Night.

Last Thursday at the Y. M. C. A. Hall, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, a large and appreciative audience assembled to enjoy an entertainment given by that peerless impersonator, Royal S. Goldsbury. From beginning to end he kept his audience roaring with laughter, and his witticism produced a happy effect on all.

Edgar Sheppard, president of the society, was in charge, and he assisted in making the affair a pleasant one. A feature of the entertainment was the first public exhibition in this city of the wonderful piano player, the "Angelus," by Messrs. Vanderbeek & Sattels. This is a wonderful instrument and as manipulated by Mr. Sattels was a pleasure to all. The entertainment was a success financially and otherwise.

How Are Your Kidneys?

Dr. Hobbs Sparagus Pills cure all kidney ills. Sample free. Add. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or N. Y.

Upon the Invitation of Rector Schenck.

It was upon the invitation of Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph.D., that Frank Smith, the army and navy secretary of the Y. M. C. A., delivered the address in Trinity Reformed church last Sunday. Dr. Schenck met Mr. Smith while on his vacation last summer, and becoming impressed with his work invited him to speak in his church.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains, children as well as adults enjoy it. Many ladies who cannot take coffee, will find Grain-O just the beverage they need. It is not a medicine, but a delicious food drink that nourishes and strengthens the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

PAST THE ALLOTTED AGE

SEVENTIETH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY OF REV. W. C. NELSON.

Made the Occasion of a Pleasant Gathering of Friends and Relatives of the Old Couple Last Saturday Night.

In pleasant remembrance of the seventieth birthday anniversary of Rev. W. C. Nelson, of 95 Summit avenue, and also as a surprise for the parson's estimable wife, a number of friends arranged an unexpected visit for the couple Saturday. Owing to the many relatives present the affair took on the character of a family reunion.

The guests were chiefly from out of town.

The relatives present were as follows: Chas N. Nelson, the eldest son and wife from Pine Brook, N. J.; Geo. C. Nelson and wife and three children of Somerset place; A. B. Karner and wife and two daughters of Bradford avenue; Wm. B. Coddington and wife of Mount Horeb; Mrs. G. N. Karner and daughter of Albany, N. Y.

Other guests were: Mrs. L. M. Roe and Miss Florence Roe, of Newark; Mrs. Henry Chase of Totterville; Mrs. Samuel Ewing and Miss Carrie Ewing of Woodbridge; Mrs. Lizzie L. Cole of Nyack; Miss Essie May Force of Rockaway; Mr. J. W. VanHorn and wife of Duer street. All these was former parishoners of Mr. Nelson.

The rooms were decorated with autumn leaves and flowers. After the dinner there was exercises of song and recitations and reminiscenses of the past. The two little grand-daughters presented words of cheer to Grandpa, and Baby Esther Karner wrote a letter which interpreted was as follows: "May you live long and be happy."

Mr. Nelson is not by any means in his dotage but was the most sprightly and vivacious of any present on the occasion. There was a large number of costly and useful presents left by the guests.

Kate Brown, of Nutley, Essex county, a former parishoner, sent an interesting poem, entitled "Growing Old," which was read at the gathering.

AIDS IN ENDEAVOR WORK

PRESIDENT SHEPPARD, OF TRINITY, APPOINTS HIS COMMITTEES.

The Committees Will Look After the Various Details of the Work, and Will Serve for the Ensuing Term.

Edgar F. Sheppard, president of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, has appointed the following committees to serve for one year from November 1st:

Lookout committee—Miss Ella C. Benedict, chairman; Miss Mable Wilson, Miss Sadie Searing, Hiram Humes and Willard Swick.

Prayer meeting committee—Miss Mable Woodruff, chairman; Miss Lillian Force, Miss Cora Laire, E. E Anthony and Charles M. Dolliver.

Social committee—Mrs. E. E Anthony, chairman; Mrs. Bertha Richards, Miss Nellie Fenner, Miss Viola Huff and Miss Bessie Martin.

Sunday-school committee — Miss Lillian Remsen, chairman; Miss Helen Bogart, Miss Jennie Rose, Miss Olive Wyckoff and Henry Seader.

Music committee — Miss Jennie Quick, chairman; Miss Achsah Holmes, Miss Emma Gillem, Miss H. M. Krehling and Horace Martin, Jr.

Missionary Committee—Miss Minnie Wyman, chairman; Mrs. F. C Adams, Miss Sara Holmes, Miss Mary L. Pugh and Miss Dollie Bolsterle.

Temperance committee — F. E Smith, chairman; A. L. Force, W. F Oliver, George Bolsterle and Harry Crawford.

Flower committee—Miss Mary Berkaw, chairman; Miss Josephine Kissam, Miss Carrie Mehl, Fred Dunavan and Charles Zimmer.

Visiting committee — Miss Anna Searing, chairman; Miss Hattie Powelson, Miss Grace Berg, Miss Edith DuBois and A. T. Runyon.

Reception committee—A. K. Willett, chairman; Chauncey F. Colthar, Julius Williams, William Wyman and Fred T. Ross.

Fire Did Not Interfere With Transfer.

Regarding the fire last Friday morning which partly destroyed the Denton homestead on Prospect Hill, it should be stated that it has in no way interfered with the transfer of that property to the S. D. Drake Realty Company, as stated by another paper. Owing to the fact that the company desired a guarantee title the transfer was delayed for a few days. This deed was passed over today to the company and all Signatures of the interested parties have been affixed.

TROLLEY BLOCKED AGAIN BY ENGINES.

Obstacles Encountered at the B. & O. R. R. Crossing.

MEN WERE WITHDRAWN.

WHAT CAUSES OPPOSITION DOES NOT APPEAR.

Same Kind of a Blockade the Rikers Encountered From the Lehigh Valley at the Aldine Switch a Short Time Ago—Work of Laying the Rails on Second Avenue in Roselle Started.

The Rikers tried to steal a march on the B. and O. Railroad near Cranford Friday night, and had a well-laid plan to capture a grade-crossing and lay trolley tracks across the railroad on South avenue. The B. and O. Railroad have a freight junction at that place, where the line branches off the Central Railroad east of the Cranford depot. This line runs across country and through Elizabethport, crossing a bridge to Staten Island.

A Central Railroad engine ran in on the B. and O. tracks late and stopped near the crossing. When a train on the road came along the engine backed out on the main line of the Central road. When the trolley men found the engine on the scene they decided not to try to get across the railroad tracks.

It was the same kind of a blockade the Rikers had to contend with on Second avenue, at Aldene, a few weeks ago.

Col. E. W. Hine, Representative Gaddis and other officials of the road remained at Cranford nearly all night. Late in the afternoon 200 men, under the direction of foreman Knight, were taken from work on the line in the cut back of Westfield, between that place and Scotch Plains, and brought to this place. Several teams and wagons accompanied the men, who were quickly put to work on South avenue at the bridge which crosses the Rahway river.

The trolley company recently strengthened the bridge and laid rails over the structure. There remained about six hundred feet of road to be laid, with the bridge as the centre point. The Cranford Township Committee, when it extended the time of the franchise to the street railway company in which to complete its line, especially provided that the macadamizing work should be completed throughout the township by October 15th.

All the rest of the work, with the exception of this stretch of the road and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crossing, has been completed, and South avenue has been macadamized, except at the bridge. The men worked all night laying the rails, and the work was nearing completion when macadamizing the street began.

The bridge on South avenue is located in a woods, and many lanterns were required in order to furnish light for the men to work during the night. It was a wonderful scene of activity, and many Cranford people visited the scene of the work duing the night.

No effort has been made by the trolley men to capture the Baltimore and Ohio grade crossing since that night.

The work of laying rails on Second avenue at Roselle began at 6:30 Saturday morning. Second avenue is to be a boulevard eighty-one feet wide, according to the conditions of the Roselle franchise. The Rikers are allowed to lay one rail and this is the work they are doing, which, when completed, will place the line in shape for running cars through the borough.

Coming Leaves

Nothing but leaves now adorn the Plainfield streets, and the mischievous little boy is stealing about with a box of matches seeking fun. In the meantime householders are obliged to snuff the conditions smoke and say nothing.

Received $2,000 in Taxes.

Saturday last Collector George F. Brown, of the borough, received over $2,000 in taxes and he is very much pleased with the way the people are responding.

Catarrh Cannot be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.

Sold by druggists, price 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

REED AN EASY WINNER

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.

opposed Reed for the Assembly nomination three years ago, and then again for his nomination as Senator two years ago, delivered a speech in favor of Reed, saying that his brilliant record in the Legislature and his services to the party had completely won him over to his side.

The vote was then taken. Senator Reed received the full support of the delegations from North Plainfield, Bedminster, Bernards, Hillsboro and Franklin, giving him twenty five votes—three more than necessary to nominate. Dilts received the full vote of Bridgewater, Branchburg and Warren, fifteen in all, and two from Montgomery. Frelinghuysen received two votes from Montgomery.

Senator Reed's nomination was then made unanimous.

Assemblyman E. E. Cooper, of Warren, was renominated by acclamation.

The convention then adjourned for dinner, and convened again at 2:30 o'clock when Senator Reed was escorted before the convention and greeted with great applause. He delivered a speech thanking the delegates for the honor they had conferred on him, and assuring them that he would do his best to be elected, and if elected to serve the county faithfully and with credit. He urged that harmony prevail for the best interests of the party.

A number of routine organization affairs were then taken up and disposed of, after which the convention adjourned sine die.

By the result of the convention Senator Reed not only becomes a candidate for re-election, but also becomes the recognized leader of the party in Somerset county. The county committee will be made up of a majority of members favorable to him, and he will be held responsible for the policy of the party in the county.

BEFORE THE CONVENTION

Scenes of Great Political Activity Made by the Contending Faction.

(By a Staff Representative.)

Somerville, Oct. 18—The air was so laden with politics of the G. O. P. persuasion this morning that it fairly floated around in chunks. By 8 o'clock this morning Main street began to see familiar political faces, and an hour later the preliminary convention work was in full swing.

Delegates from the various townships commenced to arrive early. Former Sheriff George Dilts, who is the Thompson candidate for Sheriff, and whose candidacy is to be used as the testing quality of the Chancery Clerk's influence, was in Somerville over night, and established head quarters at the County House, directly opposite the Courthouse park.

Senator Reed was on hand early in the morning, too, coming up from Plainfield on one of the first trains. The Senator did not think it necessary for him to have regular headquarters. His stamping ground was along the Courthouse park, where there were many little confabs between the different politicians, and a wealth of handshaking at every turn.

The Plainfield delegates were active emissaries for Senator Reed. There is no doubt where they stand, and so they kept a weather eye out to see to it that none of the Reed men were inveigled into the Thompson camp and lined up with the Bridgewater man, The North Plainfield delegates were Robert M Clark, Jr., Dr. J. F. Cooley, B A. Hegeman, Jr., Mayor Newton B. Smalley and F. W. Wohlfert.

A cursory view of the situation showed that there was no change from yesterday so far as a compromise being effected between the two warring factions. Senator Reed has five delegations who are sure to stand with him. This gives him a working majority of three votes. The Thompson men claim the delegations from Bridgewater, Branchburg and Montgomery, though the latter town was in doubt until this morning. Warren township delegates are "on the fence." They said that they would wait and see what the convention developed. They are last on the roll call and are expected to go with the faction that has a majority.

Miss Benham to Marry

Miss Ida Benham, for sometime past an assistant operator at the Western Union Telegraph office at the North Avenue station, has resigned her position, which took effect Saturday. Her place is being filled for the present by Mr. Jones, from Jersey City.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

DIED WHILE GOING TO DOCTOR'S OFFICE

August Hoagland Suddenly Overtaken By Grim Reaper.

DIED IN NEW BRUNSWICK.

COMPLAINED AT FIRST OF NUMBNESS IN ARMS.

Was Employed by Glazer, the Dealer in Fat, and Was in New Brunswick on Business for His Employer—Coroner Viewed the Remains and They Will Be Brought Here for Burial.

August Hoagland, of East Second street, dropped dead Saturday afternoon on the streets of New Brunswick. He had complained of a numbness in his arm and was bound for the home of a physician when death overtook him. He was 45 years of age and had resided in Plainfield for the past fifteen years, coming here from a farm in Middlesex county.

Mr. Hoagland was first employed by Clifton & Campbell, the wholesale produce dealers. At the time of his death he was in the employ of Glazer, the dealer in fats on Clinton avenue. He lived on Johnston avenue, near East Second street, and leaves a wife, a grown up son and daughter. He was a brother-in-law of Motorman J. B. Martin, Saturday Mr. Hoagland went to New Brunswick. Early in the afternoon he called at a butcher shop and complained of a numb feeling in his arm. Then he was seized with a severe coughing spell.

His condition not improving Mr. Hoagland went to Eastburn's drug store at the corner of Bayard and Neilson streets. Here a clerk gave him some medicine and advised him to go to the office of Dr. Henry Baldwin, one block up Bayard street. The clerk, Daniel Golden, offered to walk up with the man.

When near Dr. Baldwin's office Golden left Hoagland to return to his store. Shortly after this Hoagland was seized with another coughing spell which seemed to overcome him, for he fell to the ground. He was at once carried to the physician's office, but was dead before he reached it.

Coroner Moke was notified and viewed the body. It was turned over to Undertaker Quackenbos and will probably be brought to this city for burial.

FOR LOWER GAS.

The Board of Trade Opinion is Favorable to the People's Gas Company.

There was no business done at the meeting of the Board of Trade Monday evening owing to the fact that a quorum was lacking. There was a general discussion by those present, however, of the advantages of the new gas company. The general opinion was that the city should grant the franchise and give the company a chance to lower the price.

It was expected that some of the local merchants would be on hand to discuss the advisibility of the Plainfield merchants uniting in some move ment to bring outside trade to this city. Some of those particularly interested were unable to be present.

We give no rewards. An offer of this kind is the meanest of deceptions. Test the curative powers of Ely's Cream Balm for the cure of catarrh, hay fever and cold in the head and you are sure to continue the treatment. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. It is not drying, does not cause sneezing. It is soothing and heals the membrane. Price 50 cents at druggists or by mail. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

Mrs. Isabella Drain, of 73 Leland avenue, left for Burlington, Iowa, Tuesday, where she intends to take up her residence for the winter at least. Her departure from Plainfield is on account of the ill health of her nephew, a young lad, who has been ordered by her family physician to have a complete change of climate.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

Knights Held a Drill.

Nelson B. Dungan, of Somerville, was in town Monday p. m. attending the regular conclave of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., who held a drill in preparation for the intended visit of the grand officers at an early date.

Lost the Use of Her Limbs.

The illness which detains Grace Vail, of Elmwood place, at home, has developed into a severe form. It has deprived her of the use of her limbs. The physician in charge does not apprehend any serious results.

A Missionary to Speak.

Next Sunday will be Foreign Missionary Sunday at the Congregational church. A missionary from Micronesia will speak in the morning and his wife will address the Endeavor meeting in the evening.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

NO.	CURES.	PRICES.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Gripings, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
19	Ophthalmia, Sore or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Asthma, Oppressed Breathing	.25
22	Ear Discharge, Earache	.25
23	Scrofula, Swellings and Ulcers	.25
24	General Debility, Physical Weakness	.25
25	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Disease	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
29	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
31	Painful Menses, Pruritus	.25
32	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitations	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34	Scarlet Fever, Scarlatina	.25
35	Chronic Congestions, Headaches	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists or Mailed Free.

Sold by Druggists, or sent postpaid on receipt of price. Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL

"THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding; Fistula in Ano; Fissure and Bleeding of the Rectum The relief is immediate—the cure certain.

PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent post-paid on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

LOCAL and CLIMATIC

Nothing but a local remedy or a change of climate will cure

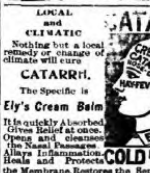
CATARRH.

The Specific is

Ely's Cream Balm

It is quickly Absorbed. Gives Relief at once. Opens and cleanses the Nasal Passages. Allays Inflammation. Heals and Protects the Membrane. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Large Size 50c. No Injurious drops. Regular Size 50c. Family Size $1.00. At Druggists or by mail.

ELY BROTHERS 56 Warren Street New York.



MICA AXLE GREASE

lightens the load—shortens the road.

helps the team. Saves wear and expense. Sold everywhere.

MADE BY STANDARD OIL CO.

DIED.

SULLIVAN—In this city, at her late residence, 24 Madison avenue, on Sunday, Oct. 15, 1899, Mrs. Mary Sullivan, aged 60 years.

CAMPBELL—At his late residence, Park avenue, on Oct. 16, 1899, Elias A. Campbell, in his 66th year.

JAMES—In North Plainfield, Saturday, Oct. 21, 1899, William H. James, aged 36 years, 11 months and 7 days.

HOAGLAND—Suddenly at New Brunswick, N. J., on Saturday, Oct. 14, 1899, Augustus E. Hoagland, aged 45 years.

MURDER TRIAL IN SOMERSET NEXT WEEK

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.

days. The first two will probably be devoted to hearing the testimony of the witnesses who will number about thirty. Then will come the summing up which will probably occupy another day. No sensational features are expected to develop in the testimony. The circumstances of the shooting are pretty well known and have been covered.

The general sentiment is that Mrs. Fingerhuth will be convicted, but not of murder of the first degree. There are comparatively few who believe that she will plead guilty.

Mrs. Fingerhuth is the first woman in New Jersey to answer to the charge of murder since Bridget Durgan was tried, convicted and hung at New Brunswick thirty-five years ago for the murder of the wife of Dr. Coriell, of New Market. She is the first woman in Somerset county to ever be brought up on that charge.

It costs you nothing whether you continue the use of tobacco or quit. NO-TO-BAC makes you strong, kills the craving for tobacco, with satisfaction guaranteed, 50c and $1.00, at your druggist, or by mail. Book and sample free. Address The STERLING REMEDY CO., Chicago or New York.

STOP SMOKING NO-TO-BAC

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE,

Between Front and Second streets.

Tinners,

Plumbers

Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,

Brick and Portable Furnace

Gas Fitting. Tin Roofing.

Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanlike manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues.

First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF.

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles. Has removed from 261 West Front street, to South side of Somerset street, first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

A Free Trip to Paris!

Reliable persons of a mechanical or inventive mind can secure a free trip to the Paris Exposition. Write for full particulars. Address with stamp, PATENT RECORD, Baltimore, Md.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsoria.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS COPYRIGHTS

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public with out cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free.

Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address

MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

Corner Front St. and Park Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale and Exchange Money to Loan on Approve Security

CUBA'S SOUTHERN COAST.

Details of a Trip By Sea From Port Royal to Havana.

HARBOR OF SANTIAGO.

Features of the Beautiful Tropical Sunset and the Remarkably Short Twilight.

Isla de Pinos Which Is Famous for Its Fine Forests, Salubrious Climate and Thermal Springs—Progreso Is Far From Carrying Out the Idea Its Name Implies—Where Cleanliness Is Tabooed.

One who has not witnessed a sunset in tropical waters may be said to have lived almost in vain. There is no use trying to describe it—the crimson and gold, green, amethyst, purple and sapphire, reflected in varying tints on sea and shore, on sails and hills, in wonderful but brief pyrotechnics. I have seen hard-headed business men, as void of sentiment as the cattle and crops, the ores and machines they have come down here to invest their money in, "gush" like school girls under the glamor of the Western skies and drop into poetry with Wegg-like facility anent the dying day and Twilight letting her curtain down and pinning it with a star.

Our steamer left Port Royal at sunset, and hardly had we time to note the mossy roofs and towers of that shabby town all gilded in the evening light, before the picture faded and old Ocean became indeed a "grassy and melancholy waste." It is worth coming far to watch the stars blaze out in the tropical night. There seems to be three times as many as are seen in the skies at home—all larger and brighter, not twinkling as in colder climates, but shedding a soft and steady illumination. And then the mysterious, far-reaching milky way; and the literally "golden" moon, swinging nearer to earth here than elsewhere!

The main course from Jamaica to Havana lies in a northwesterly direction across the Caribbean Sea, with several ports of call en route. First, almost due north to Santiago, at which point I did not find this time, retaining too vivid recollections of the fever recently encountered there. Through the yellow haze of a tropic morning we saw again the apparently unbroken wall of the Sierra Maestro; and at length the historic gap was disclosed—just wide enough to admit an ocean liner. The wonder is that Cervera's seven-thousand-ton cruisers ever managed to wiggle through the twisting neck of that bottle! The shallow water at the entrance of the silting channel does not conceal a sandbar, but a living, growing barricade of coral rock, requiring the most careful piloting to pass in safety. Deathless coral is at hand when Yankee engineering will render the broad, deep bay beyond as accessible as it is now one of the finest harbors in the hemisphere.

WHOLESALE DISTRICT, SANTIAGO.

Isla de Pinos, the only island of consequence among the hundreds that encompass the Queen of the Antilles, is nearly square in form, perhaps 60 miles long by 50 broad, and of exceedingly picturesque appearance. The island is famous for its pine forest and beautiful marbles, its salubrious climate and wonderful thermal springs. It is already a favorite sanitarium, and Cubans believe that a short residence here is an unfailing panacea for consumption.

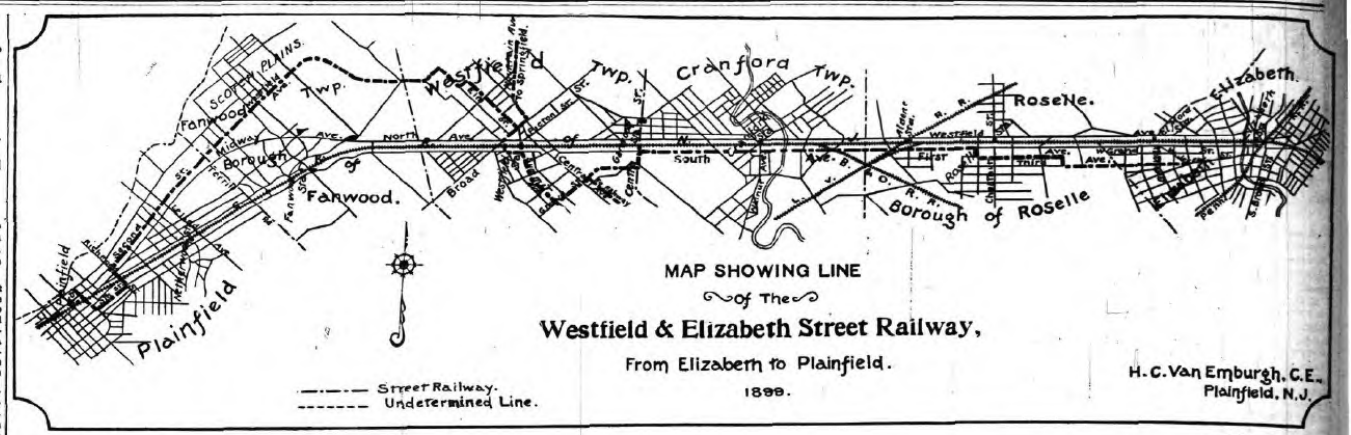
To the north and east of Isla del Pinos the sea is dotted with the archipelagoes of Los Canarios and Banco de los Jardines; innumerable tiny islands, such as "emerald gems in the ring of the wave." Traveling among them is unalloyed delight. The boat winds in and out the labyrinthine channels, over waters blue and luminous as the tropical skies, and so beautifully translucent that starfish lying on the silvery bottom, or sea flowers growing lengths below, look as though seen through glass. The air is indescribably balmy, the same in summer as in winter, and the eyes are continually feasted upon the beauties of verdure-clad shores and distant mountains, veiled in clouds.

Progreso, the Mexican port, is far from carrying out the idea its name implies, having made only a reputation worth mentioning in about 400 years of Spanish occupancy. Groups of dark-faced men lounge lazily in the doorways, and women in garments of spotless white are squatted along the curbstones with bowls of cooked meat for sale, or are busily employed with ahi and odorous of grease and garlic.

In this part of the world it is considered a pernicious and unhealthful habit to wash one's face in the morning; but for "outside barbarians," who sometimes take such fearful risks, a big tin basin is provided at which each takes his turn, using the same water that has served his predecessors, or replenishing the supply himself from the well in the patio.

From Progreso to Havana the journey is comparatively uninteresting, made mostly in the dark of night and far from shore. At daybreak Havana is sighted, and by sunrise the steamer is anchored between the Morros and Cabanas fortifications, whose "frowning walls" no longer frown upon our countrymen.

FANNIE B. WARD.



By Courtesy of The Elizabeth Journal.

H. C. VAN EMBURGH, Engineer.

A. A. GADDIS,

HON. CHANDLER W. RIKER, President,

COL. E. W. HINE, Secretary,

L. W. SERRELL, Contracting Engineer,

NEW TROLLEY LINE IS NEARLY FINISHED.

A REVIEW OF WORK AND INFORMATION FOR THE FUTURE.

Originally Published in The Elizabeth Journal and Reproduced in The Daily Press by Courtesy of The Journal.

When the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company finishes its work on the line now in course of construction, and it is opened, it will be one of the biggest events in trolleydom yet recorded in Northern New Jersey.

With commendable enterprise the Elizabeth Journal has compiled a history of the enterprise up to date, which also includes a wealth of interesting information concerning the methods to be used in operating the line, which will connect with the Plainfield Street Railway Company. Through the courtesy of The Journal, The Daily Press is enabled to reproduce several interesting parts of the article, as well as a view of the route of the trolley and pictures of the chief officers of the company. It is as follows:

The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, of which the Hon. Chandler W. Riker is president, Colonel Edwin W. Hine, secretary, and Adrain Riker, a director, was incorporated Jan. 11th, 1897, with a capital of $250,000. The object of the company was to build a trolley line from Elizabeth to Plainfield. Representative A. A. Gaddis came to Westfield and first began talking trolley to the people nearly three years ago. Today every franchise has been secured, excepting for the section in Elizabeth, and the road is rapidly nearing completion. There remains about one-half a mile to be built between Westfield and Scotch Plains, and then cars will be running from Plainfield to Roselle. This work, it is expected, will be completed inside of one month, and cars will be running by Nov 1st to the Elizabth city line.

The estimated cost of building this line between Elizabeth and Plainfield will amount to $450,000. The great amount of street grading, macadamizing and opening a private property secured by the company has already cost a mint of money. Nearly six miles of boulevard, 80 feet wide, will be secured by the several municipalities through which the trolley will run, and the benefits to property owners, the municipalities and the people can hardly be estimated.

The Cars.

The cars to be used by the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company over the main line will be unlike any used in this section of the country. At first it was the intention to use the double deck cars. This, however, could not be done on account of the overhead brides located along the line.

The company is now considering the adoption of a style of car which is not only a beautiful conveyance, but a comfortable vehicle. These cars are adapted for winter and summer use, and can be changed to suit one condition of the weather to another in a few minutes. The cars resemble the Broadway cable cars used in New York city. The windows are much larger than usual, and slide completely out of sight when an open car is desired. By simply closing the windows and turning on the electrical heating apparatus the car is converted into a winter one. These cars are also vestibuled and are designed to not only protect the passengers but also the motorman and conductor from the extreme cold of winter. The cars are lighted throughout by electricity, and the seats are highly upholstered. The cars are the same as are being used very successfully by the Twin City Transit Company, of Minnesota, which road connects St. Paul with Minneapolis.

For some time the company has been considering the style of car with which to equip the road, and it is almost certain that this style of car will be used. While on his vacation this summer Col. Hine visited the shops of the Twin City Transit Company at Minneapolis, and inspected these cars, which he will recommend to the company. There is be car to compare with this. The idea of a suitable car for a double track road has been shown to be worked out successfully by the adoption of these combination cars in the west. As a comfortable conveyance for the traveling public there is nothing in the shape of a trolley car in the east to equal these cars. The cars will run under fifteen-minute headway, making four cars an hour between this place and Plainfield.

The cars will be beautifully painted and lettered. Along the body of the car will be painted "Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company." The signs on cars will read as follows: "Elizabeth and Plainfield," "Roselle," "Cranford," "Westfield."

Map of the Route.

The route of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company trolley, to connect Plainfield with Elizabeth, is clearly shown on the above map. At the Dunellen line, where the cars of the Plainfield Street Railway Company connect with the cars of the New Brunswick Traction Company for New Brunswick, the line commences.

Beginning at a point in Front street in Plainfield, thence over that thoroughfare, touching the Clinton and Grant avenue stations of the Central Railroad, and continuing on to Watchung avenue, passing through the business sections of Plainfield to the Plainfield depot.

Thence to Fifth street, through Fifth street to Richmond street, where connection is made with the branch trolley running to Netherwood. The main line continues through Richmond street to Second street, thence through Second street to a point about 300 feet east of Netherwood avenue, which avenue runs to the depot on the north side of of the Central Railroad.

From the point east of Netherwood avenue the line runs over a private right of way known as the extension of Second avenue to Scotch Plains or Fanwood township. This private right of way will be a boulevard 80 feet wide, and passes through the lands of the estate of Elias Cone, the J. K. VanNess property, and Mrs. Mary McCrea's property to the Plainfield city line.

Thence continuing over pr vate right of way and boulevard in Fanwood township through the lands of the estate of Warren Ackerman, William H. Brower, Aug. G. Stepard, Charles N. Flanders, John R. Marsh, to Park avenue in Scotch Plains or Fanwood township.

The line then crosses Park avenue into Westfield avenue, and runs on a 50-foot street for about 1,000 feet with single track, again turning into double track, and an 80 foot boulevard which was dedicated by the property owners; still along Westfield avenue to Westfield road, crossing Westfield road; thence through private property being the extension of Westfield avenue, and still continuing on an 80 foot boulevard through Cook's property and the properties of Ackerman, Sheelan and the Osborn estate and Austin properties to the intersection of the Jerusalem road and Morse avenue at the Westfield avenue township line.

All of the foregoing is boulevard with the exception of the 1,000 feet mentioned. Continuing along the Jerusalem road in Westfield township to Brightwood avenue, to Prospect street, to a point about 1,400 feet north of Dudley avenue; thence through private property, making another 80-foot boulevard through the lands of Richard N. and Robert M. French, a portion of the Amos Clark property, Mrs. Mapes property, and the A. D. Bloodgood property, making the extension of Elm street to Elm street proper, at the intersection of Dudley avenue.

Continuing over Elm street to Broad street, the main business block in Westfield; thence over Broad street to Westfield avenue, the county road, crossing under the Central Railroad to South avenue, touching the Westfield depot at Summit avenue; thence over Summit avenue to Grove street, to Central avenue, crossing Central avenue, the county road, at right angles to a private right of way, through the Ripley estate, now owned by the Westfield Land and Improvement Company, of which William S. Welch and J. S. Irving, of Westfield, are the principal owners, continuing on through the Garwood Land and Improvement Company property to Spruce street, to Centre street, to the Garwood depot. Centre street is an 80 foot boulevard, and was originally so made by the land company. At South avenue and the end of the Westfield township line the trolley line turns into South avenue and runs in Cranford township over a straight line on that thoroughfare, touching the Cranford depot at Walnut street. Continuing along South avenue to Aidene, where the line touches the Aidene depot on the Central Railroad, and the Faltoute depot on the line of the Lehigh Valley.

South avenue, near this point, merges into First avenue, Roselle; thence over First avenue to a point 100 feet west of Locust street in Roselle, through private right of way to Second avenue, the boulevard to be widened to 81 feet and paved from curb to curb; this boulevard runs from Locust street to Sheridan avenue; at Sheridan avenue the line turns at right angles, and runs thence over Sheridan avenue to Third avenue, to the line of the city of Elizabeth, which is located in the woods a short distance east of Dark lane, at Lorraine.

Third avenue is Jersey street in Elizabeth, and it is over this thoroughfare that the line will likely come into Elizabeth, connecting with the West Jersey street line of the North Jersey Traction Company running to Broad street at Elizabeth.

Another proposed connecting link to get into Elizabeth is through Pennington street, or private right of way, and connect with the West Jersey street line near Grove street. Still another connection might be made by going over private right of way to Bayway to El Mora station, and then making connection with the north side trolley. The intention is to make the connection on the south side of the Central Railroad tracks with the West Jersey street trolley in Elizabeth. The connecting link may be made over Jersey avenue to the Jersey street line, or over Jersey avenue to Bayway; thence over Bayway or private right of way to Pennington street, to Jersey avenue, and the Jersey street line, or over private right of way paralleling Pennington street.

Consents have been obtained from the required number of property owners on Jersey avenue at Elizabeth, and the map of the connecting link, together with the application for a franchise, will be presented at the next meeting of the city council to be held on Monday evening, Oct. 16.

The length of the line is 63,700 feet from Plainfield to the city line of Elizabeth, or about 12 miles. There is 8,600 feet of the road in Plainfield, 12,100 feet of road in Fanwood, 18,580 feet in Westfield, 11,700 feet in Cranford, and 12,800 feet in Roselle.

Rates of Fare.

The rates of fare from Elizabeth will be as follows: To Roselle, five cents; to Cranford, five cents; to Westfield, seven cents; to Scotch Plains; ten cents, and to Plainfield, fifteen cents.

The main line will connect with all lines of the North Jersey Traction Company in Elizabeth, and the Plainfield Street Railway Company at Plainfield.

A twenty-cent fare will be charged when transfers are to be given over the Plainfield lines to all points and Dunellen, and the Elizabeth lines to all points, including the Newark line. Transfers will also be given over the cross country line. When that line is completed the rates of fare will be determined.

In time the main line will connect with an extension of the Plainfield line to Hillside cemetery, which line will run over Woodlawn avenue, through Oak Tree, connect with the Plainfield golf links, and on to Metuchen and connect there with the New Brunswick lines. One of the conditions of the last franchise granted the Plainfield Street Railway Company was, that it build to connect with the Hillside cemetrey. This petition is now pending, and the road will likely be built in the spring.

School tickets will be issued, the same to be sold at half fare, to be good when presented by a scholar going or coming from school between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. The fare over the main line of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company's trolley is placed at the rate of one cent a mile.

The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company has its line completed excepting a small portion at Roselle and Fanwood, which work can be done very quickly. The company will ask the City Council at its next meeting for a franchise over Jersey avenue at the point where that thoroughfare begins at West Jersey street, on the line of the North Jersey Traction Company, where it proposes to connect with the line to be built on Third avenue in Roselle, the same being a connection of Jersey avenue at that place.

A trolley line to the suburban section means a great benefit to the business houses and stores of Elizabeth, a boom for suburban property, and rapid transit between Elizabeth and Plainfield, connecting all the important towns, and such a mode of rapid transit as the people in the outlying districts have never had before. When this road is completed a few minutes' ride in comfortable cars will bring the people to this city, the county seat, to do their shopping from not only Roselle, but from Aldene, Cranford, Garwood Westfield and the immediate vicinity. To ride the entire length of the line from Plainfield to Elizabeth will not require more than thirty-five minutes.

The territory through which this road will pass is thickly populated, Cranford has a population of over 3,000 and Westfield has a population of nearly 5,000. The line passes directly through the centre of each of these important towns, and a cross-country line will be constructed which will connect all the outlying districts of Westfield and Rahway.

FIRE DESTROYED THE DENTON HOMESTEAD.

Gave Fire Department a Long Run At 2:30 A. M.

OF INCENDIARY ORIGIN.

IT HAD BEEN PLANNED TO REBUILD THE STRUCTURE.

The House Was Built in 1860, Fire Chief Doane Being One of the Men Employed on It—Now Owned by Miss Emma Egel—Loss on the Building Will be $2,500, With Insurance of $1,000 on It.

The burning of the old Denton homestead on Hillside avenue early Friday a. m. gave Plainfield a vivid illumination. The fire, which was undoubtedly of incendiary origin, was probably started to give the visiting firemen a little excitement that was not down on the programme. It came too late, however, for most of the visitors had left when the alarm came in from box 76 at 2:30 o'clock Friday a. m.

The Denton homestead stands on the high ground just south of Prospect avenue. It formerly belonged to the Denton estate but was recently sold to the S. D. Drake Realty Company with the rest of the Denton farm for the opening up of that section for building. The house itself was recently sold to Miss Emma Egel, of Lincoln, who had the plans all drawn and was intending to move the house to another lot and entirely remodel it. The house was built in 1860, when Chief T. O. Doane was employed on it.

When the apparatus reached the scene of the fire, the roof was all ablaze and the flames were roaring out of the windows. The interior was like a furnace. There is no clue to the origin of the fire, but as the house was vacant incendiarism is the only probable solution. It is supposed that the fire was started in the kitchen or at the foot of the back stairs and spread all over the house before the flames showed themselves. The walls of the house are nearly intact, but the roof is entirely gone. The rooms of the second floor are completely gutted, while those on the first floor are not much better off.

The building is estimated to be worth $3,500, and the loss is placed at $2,500. It was empty. The insurance on the house amounted to $1,400 with E. M. French & Co.

The fire broke out again this morning and Chief Doane and No. 2 hose wagon went to the scene of the fire and the ruins were thoroughly soaked.

An Excellent Band.

There is no doubt but what the music furnished last Thursday by Wm. Bartow's band was as fine as any ever heard in this city. There were in the band four musicians from Sousa's Band, and the entire band was made up of men who know how to give the best music. The Exempt Firemen's Association are to be congratulated on the selection of music.

Saw the Department Run.

The out-of-town firemen had a good chance Thursday to see the Plainfield fire department turn out for a fire. An alarm was sent in from box 12, corner of George and Johnston streets, at 9:35 o'clock. The fire was only a burning brush heap and the visitors returned to town disappointed.

Old Ball Player Greeted.

John Harkins, once famous in baseball circles and a terror to Plainfield's team, was a guest at the borough parade Thursday and marched over the whole line of march. He did not seem to mind it in the least and he received an ovation along the line.

Where Women Rule.

A number of Plainfield women members of the Federation of Women's Clubs, will go to Atlantic City Thursday, October 26th, to attend the fifth annual meeting of the association. The convention will continue for two days.

FIREMEN'S GREAT DAY.

Thursday's Parade Was A Big Success.

FIVE HUNDRED IN LINE.

EIGHT VISITING COMPANIES PARTICIPATED.

Several Thousand People Came To Town To See The Parade—Great Weather—Excellent Appearance Of Marching Companies—Big Dinner At Sangerbund Hall — Speeches Made By Many Prominent Guests.

Under a coludless sky, five hundred of Jersey's finest volunteer firemen tramped through the streets of North Plainfield and of Plainfield Thursday afternoon amid the plaudits of an enthusiastic crowd and the fluttering of flags and bunting on every hand. It was the most successful gathering of its kind in the annals of the local departments, passing off without a mishap to mar the general enjoyment. For half a day the visiting firemen simply owned the town and there wasn't anything too good for them. They went everywhere and the strains of martial music could be heard at every street corner until late at night when the last of the visiting companies departed homeward.

The weather bureau gave out that showers might be expected during the afternoon but they never came. It was warm, more like August than October, but never a cloud put in its appearance. The streets soon became dusty with the unusual traffic and the warmth was severely felt by the firemen with their heavy dress coats. Aside from the heat, the weather was ideal for the parade.

The efforts of the North Plainfield department, under whose auspices the whole affair was conducted, had spread the news of the parade far and wide. As a result there was an army of several thousand spectators beside the firemen who gathered in city and borough at the hour for starting. Sidewalks were crowded and the people good humoredly pushed and shouldered each other as they lined up along the curbs. The borough schools were closed for the afternoon and the small boys went positively wild over the music, the many uniforms and the excitement of it all. Even the older ones felt the thrill of the occasion. It has been long since Plainfield has had such a rousing time.

William C. Smith was marshal of the parade and he had everything down to a system so, with his assistant marshal, John P. Emmons, he was enabled to get everybody where they belonged and the parade ready to start within twelve minutes of the appointed time, 2:30 o'clock.

The line of march published in the Daily Press was followed without deviation. During the morning the borough and city streets along which the parade was to go simply blossomed out with a grand array of flags and tri-colored bunting. Every house and every store had its decoration, some of them quite elaborate. Every piazza and window was filled with watchers who applauded and waved at the passing firemen.

The committee in charge made its headquarters at Spencer's store on Somerset street, and there the invited guests were received and placed in the waiting carriages. Marshal Campbell with two others of the borough police force were on hand to head the procession. Two marshals on bicycles preceded it.

The parade started with the following formation:

Chief Marshal, William C. Smith.

Invited guests in carriages.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, Mayor George W. Rockefellow, of Plainfield, Assessor Elston M. French, of North Plainfield, and City Judge William N. Runyon, of Plainfield.

Andrew Love, Sr., of the Board of Health, and Superintendent John Adelmann, of the Plainfield Street Railway.

Former Assemblyman A. V. Vandoren, of Millstone, Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., Councilman S. S. Swackhamer and Attorney Francis J. Blatz.

Senator Charles A. Reed, Assemblyman E. E. Cooper, of Warren, Councilman George T. Rogers and Councilman John Valiant.

Borough Clerk Frank W. Rowley, Borough Collector George F. Brown Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., and Councilman Harrison Coddington.

Mayor E. M. Updyke, of Bound Brook, Former Mayor John H. Van Winkle, F. T. Woodhull and Jacob Kruey.

Dr. J. H. Buchanan, Dr. Zeglio and Dr. Mattison.

Freeholder Andrew Lutkins, Surrogate Newton Spencer, former Borough Clerk Harry Brokaw, of Somerville, Street Commissioner Thomas Dowd and Jacob Voehl.

Chief George H. Fairchild, and Assistant Chief William Demarest, of the North Plainfield Fire Department; Chief T. O. Doane and First Assistant Chief J. W. Murray, Jr., of the Plainfield Fire Department, Former Chief Andrew Carey.

Bartow's Band, of Cranford, 20 pieces.

Exempt Firemen's Association, of Plainfield. J. E. Flannery, marshal; Joseph Blimm and Charles C. Burnett, assistant marshals. 80 men and silver hose carriage.

Liberty Band, of New Brunswick, 20 pieces.

Princeton Fire Department, First Assistant Chief Jesse Snook, Second Assistant Chief Chas. McDermott. Mercer Engine Company, No. 3, 40 men and hose wagon. Foreman Edward C. Kopp. First Assistant Foreman Charles E. Sager, Second Assistant Albert Stryker.

L. D. Fife and Drum Corps, of Perth Amboy, 12 men.

Perth Amboy Fire Department, Chief J. H. Terrill, Jr., First Assistant Chief John Kress, Second Assistant Chief T. Chuney. Lincoln Hose Company, No. 1, 60 men and hose wagon. Foreman Charles McKenzey, First Assistant Foreman Hanletta, Second Assistant Foreman William Willer.

Goodwill Band, of New Brunswick, 18 pieces.

New Brunswick fire department, Chief John Banker; First Assistant Chief John Pierce; Second Assistant Chief Charles Banks. Phoenix Engine Company, No. 3, 57 men and steamer, 25 guests, including Board of Aldermen. Foreman Morris Bauer; First Assistant Foreman William Faulkner; Second Assistant Foreman Oscar Bauer.

Crescent Band, of Raritan, 18 pieces

Raritan fire department, Chief Eugene Dilts. Relief Hose Company, No. 2, 42 men and hose carriage. Foreman John Sleicher. First Assistant Foreman A. J. Chamberlain; Second Assistant Foreman Thos. Enright.

Westfield fire department, First Assistant Chief J. A. Dennis. Empire Chemical Engine Company, No. 2, 32 men and chemical engine. Foreman W. B. Toucey; Assistant Foreman J. O. Blenis.

Brown's Band, of Bayonne, 20 pieces.

Bayonne fire department. First Assistant Chief John T. Beck; Second Assistant Chief Harry Phillips. Hope Chemical Company, No. 3, 40 men and hose wagon. Foreman Andrew Phillips; First Assistant Foreman S. Osborne; Second Assistant Foreman James Seymour.

Goodwill Fife and Drum Corps, of New Brunswick, 18 men.

Bound Brook fire department, Chief Fred J. Pettengill; First Assistant Chief R. F. Cody; Second Assistant Chief Charles VanNess. Bound Brook Hose Company, No. 1, 60 men and Ivy Hook and Ladder Truck. Foreman David VanNess; First Assistant Foreman Fred Miller; Second Assistant Foreman Chas. Toman.

Independent Fife and Drum Corps, of Plainfield, 14 men.

North Plainfield fire department. West End Hose Company, 20 men and hose carriage. Foreman, John H. Higgins; First Assistant Foreman, Frank Perry; Second Assistant Foreman, Wm. Paasch.

Queen City Band, of Plainfield, 18 pieces.

Warren Engine Company, No. 1, 40 men, steamer and hose wagon. Foreman W. B. Bennett; First Assistant Foreman F. M. Lunger; Second Assistant Foreman E. J. Smith; Engineer, A. F. Brokaw.

The two Mayors and Senator Reed received most of the applause given to the invited guests. There was lots of cheering for the Exempts with their silver hose carriage. The old Gazelle band engine was dragged to the starting place but owing to the misunderstanding it was decided not to have it in the procession. Bartow's Band was with the Exempts and gave fine music. Five of the musicians were from Sousa's band.

Eight of the Exempts were unable to march over the route and followed in carriages. Among them was William G. Barnes, the only living member of Plainfield's first company, organized in 1832.

The Princeton boys looked well in their uniform of buff frock coats and blue trousers with the big fire helmets. The crowd marked them at once for the excellent line they kept. Perth Amboy had a good turnout.

New Brunswick's crack company, Phoenix, was uniformed in blue, with the blue fatigue caps. There was a great ovation at every turn for the New Brunswick boys who did some great evolutions and kept splendid alignment.

Of the visiting companies, Raritan seemed to catch the public eye. Relief Hose Company was made up of a select body of men who were not to be excelled in physical appearance. Their uniforms with the buff long frock coats and trousers and fatigue caps of the same colors were decidedly becoming. They marched well and were generally favorites with the crowd.

The Bayonne company looked more comfortable than the rest as they paraded in uniform blouses without coats. There was a natty turnout from Bound Brook that attracted favorable attention. Westfield's delegation was not a large one but an intelligent looking set. Their uniforms all blue, were spick and span.

The twenty men from the West End Hose Company were received with enthusiasm. Every member of the company was there and the brand new uniforms, long frock coats and trousers of blue, looked well indeed. They wore fatigue caps of blue. Herman Klinsman had a team of sorrels driven tadem to the hose cart and he handled them very cleverly.

There were cheers upon cheers for the boys of Warren Engine Company who brought up the rear of the procession. They had Queen City Band with them. The new uniforms and the new white fire helments came in for lots of praise. The firemen looked well in them and everybody was pleased.

Many of the firemen in the procession carried bouquets that were given to them by their friends along the line of march.

At the close of the parade the various companies separated and adjourned to Saengerbund Hall and Arlington Hotel, where a substantial supper was served by members of Warren Engine Company and the West End Hose Company. The former company entertained five hundred firemen and guests of honor at Saengerbund Hall, where Caterer William Stephenson provided the eatables, and Proprietor Jensen, of the Arlington Hoetl, provided for the balance of about two hudred. There was an abundance of everything and the firemen who were very hungry were equal to the occasion.

The quests of honor at Saengerbund Hall were all called upon for a speech after the inner man was provided for. Chief George H. Fairchild made an admirable toast-master. He first called for Mayor Smalley, who welcomed the boys and gave them assurances of regard for them. Mayor Rockfellow, of this city, then made a short speech, welcoming the boys on the part of the city. The next speaker was Senator Charles A. Reed, who gave the firemen a short, but impressive talk, and mentioned the various companies, all of which he was glad to meet. Councilman George T. Rogers, chairman of the fire, water and lamps committee, assured all that they were welcome and paid some complimments to the firemen for their fine appearance.

Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., could not escape and he was called upon. He responded in his usual happy manner, and gave the boys a good speech, as did also Surrogate H. N. Spencer. A surprise was in store for the crowd when Chief Fairchild called on Congressman William Daly, who just happened in. Mr. Daly never at a loss for words, gave a rousing speech, and elicited the enthusiasm of all. Closely following Mr. Daly the toast-master called on Jamee E. Martine. The popular Plainfielder from "Cedar Brook Farm" received a great ovation, and his enthusiastic remarks were heartily applauded. Chief T. O. Doane, of the Plainfield Fire Department, responded happily and expressed his appreciation for the way he had been treated. The last speaker was John H. Carney, who is a favorite with the firemen. He carried a revolver and by discharging it a few times called the boys to order, after which he recited a parody on "Barbara Freitche," entitled "Sampson Seven Miles Away." His German dialect won the crowd who cheered lustily.

Each speaker was received with the loudest applause and enthusiasm. After the speeches all left the room and assembled in front of Warren Engine house, which was brilliantly illuminated and open to receive visitors. The several bands and drum corps gathered outside and discoursed lively airs to the enjoyment of all. Everybody was loud in their praise of the way they had been treated and again and again thanked the borough firemen for their hospitality. The committee in charge did everything possible to give everybody a good time and they succeeded in every respect. They looked after the visitors and gave them personal attention. About 8 o'clock the visitors began leaving for home, but many remained until a late hour and attended some of the various amusements about town. During the evening there was a display of colored fire along the various streets and the town was fairly alive with people.

New Arc Lights.

New arc lights have replaced the old ones at the North Avenue station, and better light is now given. The Plainfield Electric Light Company very wisely made the change, and a better lamp is now used.

A Fireman's Severe Loss.

At the Arlington Friday morning Callman Daniel Force left his coat on a hose wagon and did duty in a rubber coat. When he reached home he found that his pocketbook, containing $22, was gone.

GOLFERS GATHERED AT HILLSIDE CLUB.

Members of Park Golf Club Were Elaborately Entertained.

AN IMPORTANT SOCIAL TIME.

THREE COMPETITIONS HELD DURING THE DAY.

Miss Loizeaux Won Ladies Handicap Saturday Morning—H. D. Hibbard and H Wright Tied With Low Score for Men's Cup—Miss Evans and Geo. VanBoskerck Won Approach and Putting Contest.

The exchange of club courtesies between Plainfield's two golf clubs marked the beginning of a new epoch in local golfing circles. The Hillside Tennis and Golf Club devoted Saturday to the entertainment of the members of the Park Golf Club and arranged the reception on such an elaborate scale as to be one of the chief events of the season. Society evinced its approval by turning out en masse to do honor to the occasion. There were three competitions held during the day and a tea and informal reception at the club house in the afternoon.

The first event of the day was the women's handicap, nine holes, medal play, for a cup offered by Vincent Loeser. This competition was started in the morning with twenty-one of the fair players from both clubs. First honors went to the home club, Miss Loizeaux winning through clever play with a gross score of 61. Miss Loizeaux is comparatively a new player. The scores in this competition were:

	Gross.	Hand.	Net.
Miss Loizeaux, H.	61	16	45
Miss D. Elsberg, P.	75	23	52
Miss C. Sinclair, H.	76	24	52
Miss Marion F. Bowen, H.	73	19	54
Mrs. E. N. VanBuren, H.	68	14	54
Miss Adelaide C. Ball, P.	79	24	55
Miss G. Rushmore, H.	88	12	56
Miss Sara B. Ball, H.	91	35	56
Miss May Healy, Hillside.	69	10	59
Miss Edith Hyde, Hillside.	74	15	59
Miss Ethel Bowen, H.	78	18	60
Miss E. M. Ashurst, H.	75	15	60
Miss M. VanBoskerck, H.	62	2	60
Miss May Evans, Hillside.	69	8	61
Miss G. M. VanBoskerck, H.	72	10	62
Miss E. Schoonmaker, H.	72	7	65
Miss L. VanHarwerden, H.	74	7	67
Miss L. VanHarwerden, H.	68	0	68
Miss Dunnahoe, Hillside.	90	22	68
Miss Stuart, Hillside.	85	12	73
Miss E. Cox, Hillside.	87	14	73
Miss Tomae, Hillside.	97	24	73

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the first pair in the men's competition, handicap, eighteen holes, medal play, for a cup offered by the Hillside Club, started from the clubhouse and the fifty-eight other competitors followed over the links in rapid succession. Then there were a number playing who did not take part in the tournament. It was the largest attendance of the season, nearly two hundred playing on the course during the day.

While the men's competition was being finished, an approach and putting contest for mixed pairs was started. The contest for the approach was made from a point fifty yards from the edge of the green and over a bunker. Each pair was allowed three trials, the lowest aggregate scores winning. Miss May Evans and George VanBoskerck distinguished themselves by holing out twice in two strokes and once in three, making a total two better than the best score made during the women's national championship contest, held at Philadelphia last week.

Those who finished all three rounds, and their scores, were as follows:

Miss May Evans, Hillside.
Geo. VanBoskerck, Hillside.	2	2	3—7
Miss C. Ball, Hillside.
T. R. VanBoskerck.	4	3	3-10
Miss M. VanBoskerck,
W. de la R. Anderson, Park	4	3	4-11
Miss Edith Hyde, Hillside.
H. Shepard.	3	4	4-11
Miss Sara M. Howell, Park.
Fred P. Taylor, Park.	5	4	4-13
Miss E. Schoonmaker, Hillside.
Parker Manning.	4	5	5-14
Miss Fannie Cox, Hillside.
L. Schoonmaker.	5	5	6-16

The others who competed were Miss Grace Kaufman and J. W. Baker, Hillside; Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers and N. P. Rogers, Jr., Hillside; Miss Kaufman and W. T. Kaufman, Hillside; Miss Catherine Reinhart and L. H. VanBuren, Hillside; Miss Loizeaux, Hillside, and Aubrey Crowe, Park; Miss Adelaide G. Ball and C. E. Faber, Park; Miss Helen Martin and Owen H. Fleming, Hillside; Miss Lida Van Herwerden and Henry V. Ryder, Hillside.

The visitors from the Park Club were liberally treated in the handicaps. Many of them were considerably handicapped, however, by the fact that the course was entirely new to them, and their scores were consequently not as low as they otherwise might have been. Honors were divided, H. D. Hibbard, of the Park Club, and Howard Wright, of the Hillside Club, tieing for first place with 75 net. W. Lester Glenney, who was scratchman, played par golf, 82, but it failed to give him better than sixth place. As a general thing the scores were very good and the handicapping remarkably fair. There were a few who entered after the handicaps were arranged and were therefore compelled to start from scratch. They included S. L. Schoonmaker and C. B. Tyler, and J. T. Scott and Arthur Murphy, from the Park Club. Forty-eight cards were turned in for the event. They were as follows:

	Gross.	Hand.	Net.
H. D. Hibbard, Park	100	25	75
Howard Wright, Hillside.	96	21	75
Owen Fleming, Hillside.	92	15	78
George C. Wright, Park.	102	24	78
W. T. VanD. Hedges, H.	97	16	81
W. L. Glenney, Hillside.	82	0	82
G. W. Cooley, Park.	104	21	83
H. P. Lounsbury, Hillside.	107	24	83
R. F. Tilney, Hillside.	97	14	83
J. W. Day, Hillside.	106	23	83
Morgan T. Townsend, P.	105	21	84
J. T. Kaufman, Hillside.	90	6	84
W. L. O. Glenney, Hillside.	100	16	84
Dr. C. Ard, Hillside.	96	11	85
H. M. Sheppard, Hillside.	100	15	85
W. de la R. Anderson, Park	100	14	86
W. S. Murray, Hillside.	101	15	86
F. P. Taylor, Park.	101	14	87
H. P. Lounsbury, Hillside.	107	20	87
C. T. Barrows, Hillside.	110	22	88
W. T. Taylor, Hillside.	113	25	88
J. W. Baker, Hillside.	94	6	88
Olaf Saugstad, Hillside.	108	19	89
N. P. Rogers, Jr., Hillside.	101	12	89
A. R. Fisk, Hillside.	91	0	91
F. B. Cook, Park.	106	15	91
L. H. VanBuren, Hillside.	114	22	92
Benjamin Hillside.	122	28	94
Charles A. Reed, Park.	120	25	95
E. H. Roland, Hillside.	111	16	95
Robert Ernst, Hillside.	113	18	95
S. L. Schoonmaker, H.	95	0	95
T. Hinds, Hillside.	116	20	96
Geo. VanBoskerck, H.	120	24	96
C. E. Burke, Hillside.	121	25	96
C. E. Faber, Park.	122	24	98
W. C. Smith, Hillside.	124	26	98
Chas. Hyde, Park.	124	26	98
W. Fisk, Hillside.	100	0	100
Chas. Moore, Hillside.	125	25	100
D. W. Barrows, Hillside.	122	18	104
Howard Fraser, Hillside.	130	25	105
J. T. Scott, Park.	118	0	118
F. L. Martin, Hillside.	136	0	136
F. C. Martin, Hillside.	148	25	123
Benjamin Hillside.	152	25	127
Arthur Murphy, Park.	128	0	128

Those who completed but did not turn in their scores were Walter L. McGee, Aubrey Crowe, W. J. R. Thiers, Dr. G. W. Endicott, Samuel Townsend, of the Park club; and Howard Huntington, H. W. Beebe, Hegeman Foster, F. S. Rogers, J. W. DeGraff, T. R. VanBoskerck and E. R. Ackerman, of the Hillside club.

The social features of the reception to the Park Club were given special prominence. Invitations to the number of five hundred were sent to the active members of both clubs and to those prominent in local society circles. All the afternoon, the club house was the centre of activity. With the charming decorations and the beautiful gowns of the ladies, the large reception room of the club house presented a pretty scene. Refreshments were served in the dining room which was also tastefully decorated. The ladies who assisted in the dining room were Mrs. George P. Mellick, Mrs. J. W. Reinhart, Mrs. George A. Strong, Mrs. Josiah Browne, Mrs. Rowland Cox, Mrs. Henry P. Talmadge, Mrs. A. H. Atterbury, Mrs. E. H. Roland, Mrs. Alex. Gilbert, Mrs. Walter E. Stewart, Mrs. Mason W. Tyler, Mrs. Geo. VanBoskerck, Mrs. Samuel Huntington, Mrs. J. B. Dumont and others.

Steward Ivamy was in command of the corps of waiters and was very satisfactory in his duties. During the afternoon, there was an informal concert by Dr. Leo Sommer's Neapolitan Troubadors, from New York, who rendered both vocal and instrument selections. They were in costume. The music was excellent.

The house committee was everywhere and there was universal praise for the very successful manner in which every detail of the affair was carried out under the direction of that committee which was composed of Mrs. E. T. Barrows, Miss Maud Van Boskerck, George P. Millick and John Douli Miller.

The golf committee had charge of the arrangements of everything outside of the clubhouse which proved equally successful. The golf committee is composed of Henry Lowe, H. M. Shepard, T. R. Van Boskerck, Olaf Saugstad and Lewis E. Waring.

DINNER AT GOLF CLUB.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Chapman Acted as Hosts—Those Who Were Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Chapman gave a dinner at the clubhouse of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club Thursday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Leiters, of New York, who have come to the "Chestnuts" on West Seventh street to spend the winter. Mr. Leiters is Mr. Chapman's partner. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Leiters, Former Mayor and Mrs. Alex. Gilbert, Councilman and Mrs. F. H. Andrews, Councilman and Mrs. E. T. Barrows, Former Councilman and Mrs. J. T. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ladd, Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Browne, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Kaufman and Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Rowland.

Deals of a Real Estate Firm.

LaRue & Cuming, the real estate brokers, have leased a flat on North avenue to J. Sheim, of Wilmington, Del., also a house on Summit avenue to William Victor. They have also sold the house on East Third street, owned by Samuel Wilkins, to Mrs. Margaret Walker, of this city.

Miss Rudd on the Stage.

Miss Daisy Rudd, of this city, is now a member of the English company "The Sign of the Cross," that is now playing in Boston. This company was shipwrecked a few weeks ago, and was rescued under the greatest difficulty. Miss Rudd was not with the company at the time.

PLAINFIELD BRIDE; BRUNSWICK GROOM.

Nuptials of Popular Young Couple Performed Oct 11th.

A PRETTY HOME WEDDING.

MISS CORA AMELIA SHEPPARD MADE A HANDSOME BRIDE.

Ceremony Performed at the Home of the Bride's Parents, Which Was Elaborately Trimmed for the Occasion—Couple Given a Rousing Farewell on Their Departure by Train for Wedding Tour

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Sheppard, 210 West Fifth street, was the scene of a very pretty wedding October the 11th at 4 o'clock, when their daughter, Miss Cora Amelia Sheppard, was united in marriage to Maurice E. McGrath, of New Brunswick, in the presence of the relatives and a few intimate friends.

The home was beautifully decorated with smilax and roses. In the hallway and along the balustrade the smilax, intermingled with roses, was twined from one end to the other.

At the hour appointed for the ceremony Miss Gertrude Sharp, of Plainfield, rendered the wedding march from Lohengrin, and at the same time the bridal party appeared in the front parlor through the hallway. The ushers were Frank H. Leitheiser and John Watson, of New Brunswick, who preceded the party, and were followed by the bride leaning on the arm of her father. The bridemaid, Miss Edna Woodruff, of Phillipsburg, came next, and then the groom and his best man, Edgar Sheppard, cousin of the bride. The party formed in a circle in the parlor, where the happy couple were made one by Rev. Charles T. Illick, pastor of the M. E. church, of Lahaska, Pa., and who is a cousin of the bride.

The bride wore a becoming gown of old peach colored broadcloth, trimmed with point lace and white satin, and she carried bridal roses. The bridemaid was gowned in garnet broadcloth, trimmed with white taffeta, and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Following the ceremony the congratulations and best wishes of all were extended to Mr. and Mrs. McGrath, and many years of success and happiness were wished them. A wedding supper was then served, and during the early part of the evening the bride and groom departed from the city to enjoy a bridal journey. On their return they will reside in New Brunswick, where the groom has been employed for many years as a clerk in the postoffice. They will go to housekeeping at once in the groom's own residence which has been handsomely furnished.

The presents received by the popular couple are elegant and costly. They include a bedroom suit, a chiffonier, silverware, goldware, banquet lamps, china, and a check for a handsome amount.

The bride is a popular young woman and for a long time was in the employ of Crosby & Hill, where she made many friends.

Guests were present om Brooklyn, New York, Trenton, New Brunswick, Easton, Pa., Phillipsburg and Plainfield.

The bride and groom arranged to leave Plainfield at the North Avenue station at 5:27 o'clock last evening for New York. When they arrived at the station a short time before train time, they were met by a large number of the wedding guests, who appeared with plenty of rice and tin horns. The couple were given such a time as they will never forget during the festivities the Newark free excursionists arrived at the station and swelled the crowd. They joined in and had lots of fun. The bride and groom took things good naturedly and enjoyed the fun immensely, and when finally they boarded their train they waved their hands to the crowd and departed amid laughter and good feeling.

OCTOGENARIAN HONORED.

Surprised Tendered to Venerable Father of Mayor Smalley, of North Plainfield.

William L. Smalley, the venerable father of Mayor Smalley, of North Plainfield, was agreeably surprised last Thursday. The old gentleman reached his eighty-first birthday yesterday, and the children decided to take some notice of the important event. The affair was kept from Mr. and Mrs. Smalley, who in the afternoon had been invited to the home of the Mayor, where they witnessed the parade.

When the old couple returned in the evening to their home at 29 Craig place they were surprised to find gathered there children and grandchildren, to the number of about thirty.

The only out-of-town member of the family present was Wm. L. Smalley, Jr., of Princeton. Owing to a recent death in the family none but the relatives were invited to last evening's festivities.

Dr. Lewis, of Seventh street, has gone west on a tour of business in connection with the Seventh-Day Baptist denomination.

LOST HIS ARM IN A HURRY TO GET HOME.

Terrible Accident That Happened to a Raritan Fireman.

FELL FROM A COAL TRAIN.

JAMES CONBOY HAD MISSED A PASSENGER TRAIN.

Said to Have Been Slightly Intoxicated—Arm Crushed So That It Had to Be Amputated at the Muhlenberg Hospital Last Friday — Laid at Side of Track Unconscious for Some Time.

The only accident that happened to mar the festivities of Thursday was that which befell James Conboy, aged 22 years, a member of Relief Hose Company, of Raritan, but as the unfortunate affair occurred at Bound Brook it really cannot be said that it had anything to do with the celebration here.

Conboy is a weaver and he was anxious to reach home in time to go to work Friday a. m. It was late when he left Plainfield, and upon arriving at Bound Brook he learned that it would be a long time before a passenger train would go to Somerville. He had been drinking some and he determined to get home if he had to go on a coaler. It was not long before one came along, and Conboy made an attempt to get aboard.

He missed his footing and went under the train. That the man was not killed is a mystery. His injuries were bad enough, however, and as a result he loses his arm from a point just below the shoulder joint. He fell by the side of the tracks, after his arm had been so horribly mangled, and became unconscious. The accident is supposed to have happened about 4 o'clock Friday and it was about 5 o'clock when the man was found.

Dr. Fisher, of Bound Brook, was called and after ascertaining the man's condition, decided it was best to send him to the hospital. This was done and the man was taken there in the ambulance about 6 o'clock from the North Avenue Station. Friday about noon the arm was amputated, and although Conboy is suffering considerable from shock, it is believed he will recover.

AN OLD RESIDENT GONE.

ELLIS A. CAMPBELL DIED EARLY SATURDAY MORNING.

His Career Has Been an Active One and He Leaves Many Friends Behind —He Passed Away at Avon Park.

The community was shocked Saturday to learn of the death of Ellis A. Campbell, of Avon Park, which occurred this morning at an early hour. He had been seriously ill for some time, but only those closely associated with him knew of his critical condition. Mr. Campbell was one of the best known citizens in this vicinity.

Mr. Campbell was sixty-nine years of age, and was born near Oak Tree. He was the son of John Henry Campbell, who was one of the best known drovers in New Jersey. The son was raised on a farm and remained home until he was about twenty-two years old. He then came to Plainfield and engaged in the butcher business with the late George Frazee.

After leaving that establishment he continued the business in another part of the city. Several years later he gave up that business and engaged in a patent roofing business. In following this business he went west where he remained for sometime.

Upon his return he took up his residence here and finally engaged in the hotel business, where he died. During his latter years he lived a retired life, although he was always a busy man. He loved horses and always enjoyed a good race, and whenever there was any racing on the track near his home he was a prominent figure.

He leaves a widow, a brother, William, who lives in the west, two sons, J. H., a local produce dealer; Edward, who lived at home, and daughter, Mrs. S. P. T. Wilbur, of East Front street.

The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon from the house at Avon Park, Park avenue, at 2 o'clock.

MISS HUNT A BRIDE.

Marriage Took Place at the Home of Peter S. VanFleet—Groom From Connecticut.

A number of relatives and friends assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter S. VanFleet, 703 West Front street, Wednesday evening to witness the marriage of Miss Grace Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Hunt, formerly of Westport, Conn., to George E. Pouch, of Connecticut. The ceremony took place at 9 o'clock and was performed by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church.

After tieing of the matrimonial knot, congratulations were offered, supper was served, and dancing was enjoyed by the guests. At a late hour the bride and groom left for a wedding trip, after which they will reside in Connecticut. Music was furnished by Prof. Frazee.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought
In Use For Over 30 Years.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

TEACHERS ARE SHOWN HOW TO TEACH BEST.

Annual Institute of Primary Union Held Monday.

MANY INSTRUCTIVE TOPICS.

MEMBER OF JOHN WANAMKER'S SUNDAY-SCHOOL WAS HEARD

Miss Harlow Spoke of the Various Departments of Sunday-School Work and Gave Many Instructive Suggestions, Afterwards Conducting The Lesson for Next Sunday—Others Who Spoke.

The annual institute of the Plainfield Primary Teachers' Sunday-school Union held in the parlors of the Seventh-day Baptist church Monday afternoon and evening, was one of the most successful as well as interesting ever held. There was a large attendance of members and visiting friends and the various topics and numbers on the programme were very helpful to the workers.

The afternoon session opened with devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. Powlison, after which there were whispering breezes from the summer primary school. This included a review on intermediate work by Miss Nettie Beeching and Miss Carns, of this city. Then followed the primary song led by Miss Beeching, and the roll call by the secretary and treasurer, Miss Spicer.

After the offering and recitation of memory verses under the direction of Miss Beeching, there was a conference hour conducted by Miss Harlow, of John Wanamaker's Sunday-school in Philadelphia. Miss Harlow spoke of the various departments in Sunday-school work and gave many new and original suggestions. Under this topic there were talks by Mrs. Powlison, of this city, Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Hearts, of Westfield, on the cradle roll and supplemental work and grading in the primary room. In this discussion all received much help and the suggestions offered were of much practical benefit.

The singing of a primary song by all present was followed by a kindergarten game followed by a grand march in which all the members took part. This was in charge of Mrs Powlison, of this city, and Mrs. Baker, of Westfield.

This concluded the afternoon session, after which all adjourned to another room where members of the union provided and served a pleasing supper for all.

The evening session was opened with a song service conducted by David E Titsworth. Then there was a report of the lessons for the year by Miss Rowley. After a well rendered soprano solo by Miss Blanche Fellows, Miss Harlow was introduced and she taught the Sunday-school lesson for next Sunday. The topic is "Ezra's Journey to Jerusalem," and the able way in which this lesson was taught proved exceedingly helpful to all. Miss Harlow is a worker of unexceptional ability and held the closest attention of all throughout.

While the offering was being received there was an instrumental selection by Messrs. Spicer and Barnes. Then followed the closing number on the programme, a review of last year's work by the secretary and treasurer, Miss Spicer This report showed a very successful year. There have been added to the roll fifteen members, making a total membership of 46. The total average attendance of members and visitors was 28, and fifty meetings were held There was raised $57, of which amount $15 was contributed to State and international primary work, and $5 was presented to the Y. M. C. A. as an appreciation of the favors extended in allowing the Union to meet at that place. The balance of the money was used to meet the expenses of the Union. During the year teachers from other Unions have been present and spoke and there were two joint meetings with Junior Christian Endeavor superintendents, which were in charge of Mrs. W. S Lowry, superintendent. Addresses have been given by Rev. Mr. Bennett, of Lyons Farms; C. L. Ladd, of Jersey City; Dr. Main, W. D. Murray, D. S. Rogers and Mr. Olmstead, of this city. The latter gave a chalk talk. The Union is now in a very prosperous condition financially and otherwise, and the new year is started with strong hopes of even greater success

QUITE A COSTLY GOAT.

Daniel Had It in His Arms and Got Damages Because He Was Put Off of the Car.

It may cost the North Jersey Traction Company $90 hereafter to put a goat off any of its trolley cars. At least, a jury so decided Monday in the Union County Court in Elizabeth.

Vincent Daniel, who is the Italian interpreter for the court, on March 7th last started for New York with a goat, which he meant to present to his sister-in-law. He was allowed to ride from Elizabeth to Newark, and the conductor, Harry W. Marbach, collected two fares from him and gave him a transfer to East Newark. When he boarded a car in that city, however, the conductor told him it was not a cattle car and that he must abandon the goat or get off. Daniel refused to do either and was summarily ejected.

He then sued the company for $2,000 damages. The conductor of the Elizabeth car swore he saw no goat and that Daniel must have had it under his overcoat. Mrs. Ellen Keefe, a passenger, testified that Daniel had the goat in his arms. John Stefand testified that Daniel wore no overcoat and that he saw him board the car with the goat.

Judge Vail charged the jury that the company had a legal right to put the man off when it was against its rules to carry animals on the car, but that when his fare was taken and a transfer given him the company entered into a contract which it was bound to carry out. The jury gave Daniel a verdict for $90 and costs

Location of Fire Hydrants.

B. Frank Cortieil, chairman of the fire and building committee of the Common Council, and Chief Doane, of the Plainfield fire department, made a round of part of the city Saturday afternoon with a view to locating several new hydrants. Mr. Cortieil decided in favor of hydrants on East Front street at Netherwood, Leland and Raymond avenues. Two more hydrants will be located on Arlington avenue near Arlington place.

THE SOCIAL PROBLEM.

OUTLINED BY A GRADUATE OF PRINCETON UNIVERSITY.

Interesting Lecture Delivered by Prof. Wyckoff Before the Monday Afternoon Club at All Souls Church.

A cultured audience gathered at All Souls church Monday afternoon to listen to Walter A. Wyckoff's lecture on the "Social Problem." The lecture was given under the auspices of the Monday Afternoon Club, of which Mrs. J. M. Walding is president. Mr. Wyckoff, who is a graduate of Princeton University, and the author of "The Workers," a series of able articles recently published in Scribner's Magazine, is a polished speaker and possessed of a versatile vocabulary, which familiarity with his subject makes apparent.

He referred to the geometrical progress of the country and the production of the enormous power that, follows population. What the development of the country in the next twenty-five years would result in as regards the development of the social problem time alone could determine. That situation would be as easily faced as have those that have arisen in the past. He then referred to the evils effects of the present sweat shop system as found in the large cities through the country. In Chicago alone he said there were more that 2,000 of these shops and the competition was so great that the employes had often to face the dire necessities of life. As a remedy to eradicate the sweat shops Mr. Wyckoff suggested that the authorities would have to force the manufacturers to have the garments made in the regular factories, where the employes would be better paid and where the sanitary laws could be so enforced as to not be detrimental to health.

In reference to the centralization of capital on the one hand and the centralization of labor on the other he thought that would be regulated by the law of supply and demand. It was absurd to attempt to legislate against capital. History and statistics show that the centralization of capital is of vast benefit to the laboring man. He said he thought that the coming election would have much to do with the social problem. In fact much more so than is apparent at present. Mr. Wyckoff then depicted in a logical manner the weak points of the socialistic theories and closed by reciting in a clear manner how modern development will bring out the possibilities for man by the concrete solution and not by the sentimental—that it was the exceptional man who enters the field and regulates the social problem. It was not true, he said, that the workman of today is worse off than he used to be but on the contrary he is better paid, lives better and his condition is continually improving.

At the close of the lecture, which was one of the most able expositions of the social problem ever heard in this city, a number in the audience asked Mr. Wyckoff questions which he cheerfully answered. The lecture was both interesting and instructive.

DOG CAUSED A FALL.

Druggist Powers Painfully Hurt While Riding His Wheel On Somerset Street.

John Powers, the Somerset street druggist, met with a painful accident Monday afternoon while riding his wheel through Somerset street toward Front. His famous bull dog was with him and persisted in getting in front of the wheel. Mr. Powers could have passed through safely if a wagon had not appeared in his path.

In trying to avoid running into the wagon he struck the dog and was thrown with great force from his wheel. His fall was even worse from the fact that his wheel slipped on the trolley car tracks. Mr. Powers' injuries consist of a sprained arm and hand, and today he is detained at home. He received medical attention from Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, who happened to be near at the time of the accident.

AN IMPOSING CEREMONY.

Confirmation of Samuel Rottberg in the Jewish Synagogue.

An imposing ceremony took place at the Jewish synagogue, 204 West Front street, last Saturday morning and yesterday. It was the confirmation of Samuel Rottberg, of West Third street, at which time he read the Bible in public for the first time and made an address. Sunday afternoon a reception was held in the synagogue, when the young man made a short address thanking his parents and the guests for their kindness. This was followed by a supper, after which Rabbi Rorenson gave an impressive address to the young man who was confirmed. Another address was made on his behalf by Rev. Mr. Fine, which was followed by a short talk by Max Goldstein, on his behalf as a friend.

The young man received a number of fine presents from his relatives and friends. As he enters manhood he obligated himself to live the right kind of a life.

To Cure Constipation Forever.

Take Cascarets Candy Cathartic. 10c or 25c. If C. C. C. fail to cure, druggists refund money.

THE DRYEST STATE

RAIN FALL VARIES FROM THREE TO TWENTY-FIVE INCHES A YEAR.

The People Do Not Concern Themselves Much About the Rain, But They Have a Fine System of Irrigation.

Arizona has some timber in the mountains and grass in the valleys, but these grow in spite of the fact that Arizona is in the dryest part of the United States. Even within the boundaries of this one territory, however, the rainfall varies from over twenty-five inches a year at Camp Goodwin in the mountains to three inches a year at Yuma on the desert. Twenty-five inches of rainfall a year means, perhaps, a possible crop. Three inches a year means no water at all. The people of Arizona do not, therefore, concern themselves much with rain. They talk about it once in a while, and on occasions an inch or two does come down in a solid chunk and is called a cloudburst, but such a rainfall has little relation to the possibilities of the soil from a practical point of view.

The settler in Arizona first seeks running water, and then, with confidence, settles himself upon the land and straightway proceeds to get rich, for running water upon Arizona soil is like unto a gold mine—it produces wealth. This has been a fact ever since the memory of man, for there are Arizona ditches which are nearly 400 years old, and the present generation is not quite sure what manner of people dug them.

It is within the memory of man, however, when Arizona was almost a trackless desert, overrun with fierce and warlike Indians, and it is within the memory of even the children of Arizona that all this has changed; deserts have been made to bloom and all wars like Indians have either been sent to the happy hunting grounds or are used for exhibition purposes in wild west shows and Eastern expositions.

All this has been done by ignoring the usual way of watering the earth and by utilizing the melting snowbanks as they waters raced toward the sea. Fifteen hundred miles of artificial water courses, or ditches, have these ambitious and industrious Arizona people dug, and 500,000 acres of this wonderful valley lands grow rich with green things of the earth in response to the water from the ditches. It is not all fun to settle on these arid lands, and it is no easy task to have dug these ditches, but the results have paid ten fold to those who dared the task. Great mining camps are always near by. Miners always have money to spend They want the best the earth can give them, and the irrigated lands of Arizona have been paid for with the money dug from the bowels of the volcanic hills.

The running streams of Arizona are now doing all they can and still more water is wanted. To get this the people of the valley are so faced with preparing to store the little that falls from the clouds at some seasons of the year. In the mouths of rugged canyons they will place great rock dams. The melting snow and the winter rains will here mingle and lie quiet until the drought strikes the valley below and the parched vegetation calls for their use. Then the stored water will be loosed, to add more greenery, hence more wealth, to the dryest place in America.

An East Side Doll.

"I wish," said a young lawyer, who has just come to this city from his home in Brooklyn, "that I had kept account of the queer incidents I have noticed in the course of my walks through the east side since I came here. One of these incidents—it happened one rainy day last week—made a particularly strong impression on me. I was hurrying down Cherry street, holding my umbrella between me and a fine driving rain, when I noticed a little girl standing in the gutter. She was a very little girl, not more than 5 or 6 years old, poorly dressed and quite unprotected from the rain, so far as an umbrella went.

"I hurried along, vaguely thinking about how wet and cold and miserable the child must be, and reiterating in my mind the resolution to which I often come, not to go home by the ferry, but to take the bridge for the express purpose of escaping the sight of the ill-clothed poor down there. When I came quite up to the child she turned suddenly and faced me. She looked up with that irresistible smile and said quite simply but pleasantly:

"'My dolly's a'seep.'

"I looked down and discovered she was nursing in her little arms a whiskey bottle, quart sized and unadorned, save for a white label discolored by the rain. What did I do? Oh, I acquiesced in the dolly theory and expressed a few of the adult idiocies usual under under those circumstances. Then I took a good look at the shining eyes in the child's rain-wet face and went on. But in spite of any care in impressing on my mind the fact that her eyes were happy, I haven't been able to get rid of the recollection of that dolly."—New York Sun.

Dog Leaves Home to Live With Foxes.

Cascade Township, Lycoming county, has a dog that was stolen by foxes, and which now lives in the woods with the sly animals that stole it. N. J. Maloney, a farmer of the township, had had several chickens stolen by the foxes. Mr. Maloney was not the only person who missed some of his chickens. There were others. Some of the neighbors waited with shotguns for the thieves, and four or five foxes were killed.

Instead of doing that Mr. Maloney put a six-month-old pup in a kennel near the chicken coop. He thought the dog would frighten the foxes away; but he was mistaken. The first night that the pup was put on guard the foxes made a raid, and, besides one or two chickens, stole the dog. It was thought that the foxes had killed the dog; but several nights ago the dog was seen going along the edge of the mountain with the foxes. The dog has assumed the slyness of a fox and can run nearly as fast as the foxes.

"We have walked eleven miles this morning without stopping," said one Filipino soldier, discontentedly.

"That's so," answered the other. "We might as well join a golf club and be done with it."—Washington Star.

CUBA IS PROSTRATE.

ITS FERTILE FIELDS ARE VAGANT AND ITS PEOPLE DESTITUTE.

William Willard Howard's Vivid Description of a Scene of Desolation and Despair—Cuba in All Its Nakedness.

"After a year of peace the island of Cuba shows practically no progress toward its own reconstruction. The desolation that war and Weyler wrought continues almost without abatement. The fertile fields are vacant; the farmhouses in ruins. The destitute and helpless farm folk remain in the towns, waiting for assistance to return to the cultivation of their lands. On the outskirts of the town and on some of the large plantations a little attempt has been made to resume cultivation of the soil. The country as a whole is tenantless and idle. Thousands of Cuban widows are without homes or any means of support. Many thousands of helpless orphans beg their bread from door to door."

This statement of the present condition of Cuba was made by the Executive Committee of the Cuban Industrial Relief Fund by William Willard Howard, general manager of the fund, on his return from Cuba a short time ago. Mr. Howard continues:

"The improved condition in Cuba that one now and then sees reported by casual travelers and others refer almost wholly to the improvements in sanitation and civil administration. In these two things there has been decided improvement. The administration of General Brooke and his officers has been and is a wonderful object lesson in honesty and efficiency. The Cubans cannot yet believe that it can be real, so great is the change from Spanish corruption and incapacity. Some day I hope that General Brooke will receive full credit for what he has done in Cuba. The relief work that I have already done in Cuba shows me how hard is General Brooke's task.

"I stood one day recently on the top of the Pan de Matanzas, the highest mountain in Central Cuba. The view covered a radius if fifty miles. I could see from the neighborhood of Havana to a point some distance beyond Cardenas, nearly a hundred miles east and west. I could see from the Straits of Florida on the north side to the Caribbean Sea on the south. In all that wide sweep of country there was little to be seen other than wreck and ruin and desolation. It was as though one looked at a desert from which all signs of human life and activity had been withdrawn. The people were huddled in the towns along the railways. The fields were overgrown with weeds and tall grass; the ruined walls of farmhouses loomed through the luxurious vegetation like skeletons which nature was trying to cover with a screen of dense vines. One had to look again to see that the fires of ploughed field in all that wilderness of ruin. By far the greatest extent of ploughed land that one could see was two red lines on the north side of the Cardenas road to the mountains in Colla Morla, where the Cuban Industrial Relief Farms are located.

"I have never seen a more pathetic sight—I can say Cuba in all its nakedness. The ruins, the desolation, the destitution, came home to one's mind and heart in one white, sweeping view. Until I stood on the mountain top I had not really seen Cuba. I had traveled through Santa Clara, Matanzas and Havana provinces on the cars; I had driven through them in carriages back and, more than that, I had walked perhaps a hundred miles through the deserted fields and among the ruined homes of the five provinces, but it was from the mountains in the midst of all the desolation and destitution, but until I stood on the top of Pan de Matanzas I had not known Cuba.

Mr. Howard believes the ordinary traveler is inclined to be so much impressed with the standing of the scenery that he does not properly appreciate the extent of the destitution. One cannot see Cuba from a hotel piazza, nor yet from Cuba from a flying train its desolation on the railway. The beauty of the scenery charms the casual traveler, so that he sees only the noble palms, the standing of the cocoanut or granite topped with ostrich plumes, and does not realize that the only shelter which the poor reconcentrados have is the shade of the trees which bring out of the leaves and bark of this same stately tree. They see the beauty of the trees but not the desolation and misery that lies at its feet. It is hard to realize that a country of such great beauty can hide so much misery.

"Why have the plantations not resumed operations?"

"That is easy of answer. We have on our relief farm, working for five cents an hour, men who own large tracts of excellent farming land. I asked one of them, merely to hear what he would say, why he did not resume the cultivation of his land and rebuild his burned sugar mill, instead of working for us for forty-five cents a day. He looked at me a moment, as though questioning the sanity of my inquiry. Then he held out his hands, palms up, and said: 'That is why.' His hands were empty."

The bulk of Cuba's agricultural existence depends on the cultivation of sugar cane. With prices ruling low for only 2½ cents a pound on the seacoast in Cuba, there are few capitalists who will lend money to owners of Cuban sugar estates. The investment in the sugar industry caused by the war gave the manufacturers of beet sugar such an advantage and such a hold on the market that the small Cuban grower of sugar cane finds himself crowded pretty close to the wall.

In illustrating this point Mr. Howard said: "It requires as much cultivation of Cuban sugar is now one-fifth of what it was before the war. If Cuban sugar, with only one-fifth of the normal production offered for sale, is only 2½ cents a pound, delivered on the seacoast, what is likely to be the price of sugar when the production is restored to its normal full? The capitalist, who has money to invest, hesitates right there. It is not that the capital let loose by another revolution would destroy his investment, for that certainty is remote; it is that he fears the price of sugar, when the plantations resume operations, will not enable the cane grower and the cane grinder to work at a profit. If the borrower cannot make a profit the lender cannot have a safe investment for his money."

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked:

"Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I like to save a dollar, as any thrifty woman does, and I was told by a friend that Ripans Tabules could be had for a dime. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasted me a month and I was cured by them without them now if it were my last dollar. At the time of this interview there were present two customers who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady was willing, as she may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending Ripans Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the talking about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly afflicted to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS RIPANS ONE GIVES RELIEF

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at many druggists. Ten for five cents. This is the cheapest way to buy Ripans Tabules. One dozen of the five cent cartons (12 tabules) can be had by mail for sixty cents. Address RIPANS CHEMICAL CO., No. 10 Spruce Street, New York. The five cent carton (TEN RIPANS TABULES) is all we sell for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some druggists in bottles containing 60 tabules for 60 cents. Ask the druggist nearest you.

ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had.

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thicker and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest,
Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds
and odorless Lawn Dressing.

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,
119 East Front st.

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our cloths. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full directions for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (225-C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept

VICK SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands of satisfied Customers. The Seed Business will celebrate the 50th year in business we have issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 24 pages lithographed in colors, 8 pages finely printed in tints, 100 pages filled with handsome half-tone illustrations of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Fruits, etc., elegantly bound in white and gold. A marvel in completeness. Gives information on all subjects pertaining to the garden, with cost for the same. Tells how to grow everything that is grown in a garden. It is not too expensive to give away indiscriminately, but we want every flower lover to have a good garden to have a cozy, therefore we will send the Guide with a DUE BILL for for 25 cents in payment for flower and vegetable seeds

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

It tells how credit is given for full amount of purchase to be used in other seeds.

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue

A perfect little gem of a price list. It is simply the Guide condensed, finely illustrated, FREE enlarged, improved, and up to date as all subjects relating to Flowers, Vegetables, Horticulture, etc. Regular subscription price, 50 cents a year.

Vicks Monthly Magazine,

Special 1899 offer—the Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 25 cents.

OUR NEW PLAN of selling Vegetable Seeds gives you more for your money than any other seed house in America.

JAMES VICK'S SONS,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

SEEDS FOR THE Garden—Farm
Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the newest and best varieties; quality the best; prices as low as consistent with seeds that are sure to grow. Our Illustrated Catalogue FREE.
WEEBER & DON, Seed Merchants
114 Chambers St., New York City.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says:
"The International is a wonderfully compact storehouse of accurate information."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superfluity of quantity characterizes its every department.

Specimen pages sent on application.
G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers
Springfield, Mass.

DIME Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President,
GEO. W. ROCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January 1 will draw interest from that first.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, OCTOBER, 26, 1899. NO. 43.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

HOWARD AND HOUSTON PROBABLE NOMINEES.

There's a Chance For Coriell and Halsey.

A COMBINATION POSSIBLE.

OTHERWISE THE SLATE IS LIKELY TO GO THROUGH.

Houston's Nomination for Shrievalty Seems the Inevitable Result — But There May Be a Deadlock Between Howard and Halsey Which Would Give Plainfield Candidate a Chance.

The time for noise on the part of the various candidates for nominations on the Union county Republican ticket this fall is over. From now until this afternoon at 3 o'clock, each of the would-be nominees and his friends are hard at work pulling "wires" and trying to in some way win the support of the various delegates elected to the county convention.

Plainfield has a delegation of thirty-seven to go to the county convention and that delegation is going solid for somebody. It is impossible now to say what course of action the Plainfielders are going to take when the convention begins. Two of the local wards selected delegations which were openly in support of B. Frank Coriell although they went uninstructed. The other wards sent delegations uninstructed.

The results of the primaries through the county have divided the delegates into two parties. One party or faction openly supports the candidacy of William Howard, of Rahway, for County Clerk, and Robert Houston, of Elizabethport, for Sheriff. The other doesn't. The latter is divided. A strong element in upper Elizabeth favors Charles Halsey, of Elizabeth, for County Clerk, but has no candidate for Sheriff. Now the Plainfield delegation is understood to favor B. Frank Coriell for the Shrievalty nomination. The Plainfielders are anxious at any rate that this city shall have something on the ticket.

At present Coriell is a deputy to Clerk Howard who is after the nomination. Mr. Coriell is understood to be in favor of Mr. Howard. Such a state of affairs would naturally cause trouble in case the friends of Coriell should unite with Halsey to nominate the latter instead of Howard for the County Clerkship.

In the convention the Sheriff will be nominated before the County Clerk. There is no doubt but that Robert Houston, of the 'Port, is the strongest candidate in the field for the Shrievalty. There are certain Plainfielders who firmly believe that the nomination was promised to him three years ago and that the promise ought to be kept. In past years the 'Port and Plainfield have stood by each other. There are men who believe that Houston is almost certain, with his present support, to receive the nomination.

If Houston is nominated, will Plainfield put up a candidate for the County Clerkship and if such a candidate is put up, who will he be? This is a possible outcome that is worrying some Plainfield Republican workers. There is no telling what combinations may be made before the convention is called to order. On these combinations will depend the answers to the questions mentioned. If the contest between Howard and Halsey for the County Clerkship results in a deadlock, then there will be a chance for a Plainfield candidate to be put forward as a compromise candidate and secure the nomination.

Present prospects point, however, toward the probable nomination of Houston and Howard with a single Assemblyman to satisfy Plainfield.

To Lessen Chance of Fire.

F. C. Lounsbury, of the Crescent Embossing Works, is having a brick building erected close to the works in which he expects to store combustible materials which is used in his business. The many frame structures in close proximity to his works has led him to take this action to insure safety to his property.

A Private Wire.

The Councilmanic committee has given Mr. Morse of West Front street, the privilege of having telegraph wires run across Grant avenue and West Front street to his house. Mr. Morse is associated with the telegraphic department of the Jersey Central Railroad.

Plenty Who Will Run.

It is rumored that there are any number of Plainfielders who want to be elected Councilmen at the next city election. Heretofore there has been a scarcity of candidates, but this year is an exception to the rule.

JERSEY WILL SEE BRYAN

HE IS TO MAKE A TOUR OF THIS STATE IN DECEMBER.

Committee of Fifteen Met in Trenton Yesterday — They are Bound to Have Jersey Fall in Line for the Nebraskan.

The Bryan Democrats held a lengthy meeting in Trenton Tuesday and completed their plans for the delivery of the State to Bryan at the next National convention. The meeting of the committee of fifteen named at the Philadelphia conference was held for the purpose of creating a distinctive Bryan State committee. Congressman William D. Daly, of Hoboken, who is Mr. Bryan's personal representative in New Jersey, presided. The principal speeches were made by James Minturn, of Hoboken; Allyn Brewer, of Camden, and Charles Stokes, of Beverly.

It was decided not to be aggressive and attempt to oust the present State committee, but to arrange all the details of the coming State convention and to select the delegation to the National convention. It, however, the convention should name a delegation favorable to Senator Gorman or any man but William Jennings Bryan, a convention will be called ten days later and a Bryan delegation elected, and the fight carried into the National convention.

The committee, after much discussion, agreed upon an invitation to all Democrats to get on the Bryan band wagon before the next State convention.

Col. Bryan will come to New Jersey about the first week of December and will be given a triumphant escort through the State. He will speak in Camden, Trenton and Newark. A committee was named to arrange the details. It consists of Congressman Daly and James Minturn, both of Hoboken; John F. Hall, of Atlantic City; John Wright and Allyn Brewer, of Hoboken; Charles Stokes, of Beverly, and Anthony Killgore, of Frenchtown, Hunterdon county.

TO FIGHT MATCH TRUST

MATCH MAKING MACHINES TO BE MADE IN BOUND BROOK.

The Company is Organized With $100,000, But it is Said Has $5,000,000 at Its Command if It is Needed.

What promises to be a lively fight between concerns each representing a large capital will have its beginning in the filing Saturday with the Secretary of State at Trenton, of the report of the newly organized American Match Machine Company. The fight will be between it and the Diamond Match Company, in which Edwin Gould is largely interested, and which up to the present time has enjoyed a monopoly of manufacturing machines for the making of matches.

The company is capitalized at $100,000, but it is asserted that there there is more than $5,000 000 back of the company, and that many millions of dollars more are available if the Diamond Match Company should decide to make a fight against the new company.

A large plant has been erected at Bound Brook, with a daily capacity of match making machinery equal to 800 gross or 180 boxes. Already orders have been received for machinery for five factories which are to be established in cities between New York and Chicago. One of these cities is in Pennsylvania and another in New Jersey. The capacities of the different plants range from 500 gross of 100 boxes of matches daily up to 4,000 gross.

Hitherto all the patents for match making machinery in this country and several in Germany have been held by the Diamond Company, which thus was secure in its monopoly.

Middlesex Prohibition Ticket.

The Prohibition party of Middlesex county has nominated the following ticket: For Sheriff, Jesse Perry, of Metuchen; for County Clerk, A. G. Holman, of Cranberry; for Assemblymen, Joseph Sylvester, of Perth Amboy; Rev. Joseph Horner, of New Brunswick; Symmes Perrine, of Cranberry; for Coroners, Dr. E. B. Dana, of Metuchen; E. A. Hulse, of Perth Amboy. The party decided to continue its organization in the county. The following county officers were chosen: President, C. F. Garrison of Cranberry; secretary, F. A. Demarie, of Cranberry, treasurer, Jesse Perry, of Metuchen.

Medals for Jersey Heroes.

The medals which the State of New Jersey has secured to present to the New Jersey volunteers in the Spanish-American War have been shipped by the Quartermaster General to the captains of the several companies for distribution to the men who served under them.

CONSOLIDATION DENIED.

LACKAWANNA WILL NOT LEASE THE JERSEY CENTRAL.

Rumors of an Approaching Consolidation Denied by the President of Each Road—The Causes of Stock's Advance.

The truth of the rumor which has been currently circulated in Wall street for the past few days that the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western road was negotiating for a lease of the New Jersey Central was emphatically denied by the officers of both railroads yesterday.

President Truesdale's private secretary said that there was no possible foundation for any report to that effect.

"In the first place," he said, "this road could not in any way be benefited by any such combination of interests. I understand that the report has it that our road would be able to compete with the Pennsylvania for Western traffic. That is absurd, for our road has no idea of competing with the Pennsylvania road in any way that generally occurs in the ordinary course of the road business.

"I see that it has been said that the advance of our stock has been assigned as an indication of some contemplated big deal or combination in which our road was interested. The real reason for the advance of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western stock is the large increase in the earnings of the company for the past few months and the economical management of the road."

President J. R. Maxwell, of the New Jersey Central Railroad said that he had not yet heard of any proposed leasing of his road.

"If such a thing were going to take place in the near future," said President Maxwell, "I should think that I would have had some word of it; but I have not."

ON A TOUR OF INSPECTION.

Grand Jury Visited County Jail and Commended Warden Dodd for His Work.

Elizabeth, Oct. 25—The Grand Jury of Union county has completed its labors and will announce the result of them to the court tomorrow morning. At the session of the Grand Jury yesterday the last of the cases was considered and the Grand Jurors were taken to the county jail, where they inspected the jail and the prisoners.

There were several very tough characters locked up there. All were much pleased with the remarkably clean and neat appearance of all parts of the jail. Warden Dodd's efforts had evidently met with much success. The condition of the county jail was compared with that of Plainfield's city jail and the Grand Jurors were of the opinion that Plainfield ought to be indicted for allowing such a state of affairs to continue in the city.

TO DEBATE A BIG QUESTION.

Rev. J. B Cleaver and Councilman Swackhamer to Discuss the Policy of Imperialism.

What promises to be the most interesting and exciting public debate held in Plainfield in several years will take place this evening in Reform Hall, when Rev. J. B. Cleaver, of Bound Brook, who has become quite a factor in the Republican party of Middlesex county, and S. S. Swackhamer, president of the Common Council of North Plainfield, will discuss the question—Resolved, That the United States should follow a policy of imperialism." Rev. Mr. Cleaver is a profound believer in President McKinley's policy with reference to the Philippines, and he will take the affirmative of the question. Councilman Swackhamer, an ardent Democrat, will represent the negative side. Col. Mason W. Tyler, Gen. Negley and Alex. Miller will act as judges.

M'lle Mira Marisona, a grand opera singer, will be present and sing for the audience.

STRUCK BREWERY WAGON.

James Brady, of Easton, Narrowly Escaped Death Last Night on Railroad Crossing Near Easton.

Easton, Pa., October 25.—The east bound passenger train No. 16 on the Jersey Central Railroad struck one of the Seltz Brewing Company's wagon at Stuker's Crossing last night. The driver was thrown out and badly injured and one horse was killed. The train is due in Plainfield at 9:30 o'clock.

James Brady, of 130 West street, this city, was driving. He did not hear the whistle until too late. The locomotive struck the wagon and threw it some distance in the ditch. Brady had a leg broken and was badly bruised and cut. He was brought to the hospital. He will recover. One horse was killed outright and the other was injured.

A FORGED CHECK BY A DRUG CLERK.

Edmund Dantes Arrested on Complaint of Druggist Hepburn

THE CHECK WAS FOR $12.

IT WAS CASHED BY DR. LEONARD, THE DENTIST.

The Accused Was Employed as a Clerk By Charles E. Hepburn—Of Late He Had Charge of Druggist Hall's Store—Held To Await the Action of the Grand Jury, But Is Released On Bail.

Edmund Dantes, a drug clerk, formerly of Newark, was arrested yesterday by Constable Mattox on a warrant issued by Justice Nash upon complaint of Charles E. Hepburn. The charge against Dantes is for forging the name of "Hepburn & Co." to a check for $12.

The check was drawn October 2d on the First National Bank, of this city, and made payable to W. Yates. It was cashed by Dr Leonard who deposited at the First National Bank when the forgery was discovered.

Dantes was employed at Hepburn's drug store for several months last summer. Later he entered the employe of Druggist Charles Hall, at Watchung avenue and Fifth street, and had charge of Mr. Hall's store for a few weeks while the proprietor was abroad. While in Mr. Hepburn's employ Dantes gave good satisfaction and when he severed his connection with that establishment, he was given a letter of recommendation.

Before Justice Nash yesterday a.m., Dantes waived examination and gave bail for his appearance before the next Grand Jury. Kolman Rittberg went on his bond for $150.

SHAM BATTLE POSTPONED.

Brooklyn's Crack Regiment Did Not Meet Rahway Soldiers.

Rahway, Oct. 25.—The sham battle which was to have taken place Saturday morning at Demarest-on-the-Hill, a few miles from here, has been indefinitely postponed. The battle was to have been fought by a company from the Brooklyn Twenty-third Regiment and the Spanish War veterans of Company F, of this place Lieutenant Cloke, who was to have commanded the Rahway soldiers in the fight, received a telegram Thursday afternoon from Brooklyn that the soldiers from there could not come to Rahway and that the affair was off.

The Rahway men are much annoyed and disappointed over the message, as they were preparing to give the visitor- a royal reception and a fine dinner after the fight was over, and have been put to considerable expense in connection with the affair.

Force—Todd Nuptials

The marriage of Miss Sarah Elizabeth Todd, formerly of the borough, and Benjamin R. Force, of East Front street, took place yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's brother, Abram Todd, Bernardsville. Rev. Mr. Force, of Bedminster, officiated. The affair was a very quiet one, and was attended by a few relatives. The happy bride and groom are spending a few days in Philadelphia, and on their return will live on East Front street, near Washington street.

SURPRISE WAS COMPLETE.

Delightful Affair in Honor of Birthday of Miss Hazel VanSickle.

A delightful surprise was arranged last Tuesday for Miss Hazel VanSickle, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Van Sickle, of East Third street. It was the occasion of the celebration of her twelfth birthday. The Misses Simmons were interested in arranging it. There were some forty guests present and they spent a delightful evening playing games. The surprise was complete.

Discussed Boys' Work.

There was an interesting meeting of the boys' work committee of the Y. M. C. A. last Tuesday. A liberal discussion was indulged in regarding the best plans to persue to obtain the best results and how to improve the work. The conference held last week awoke considerable interest among the boys. It is believed that much benefit will result from these conferences, which have come to be looked upon by the boys of vital good to the welfare of the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Dryden have returned from their wedding journey spent in the south and are stopping at the home of Fred S. Green, of Mercer avenue.

William Symons and family, of Rutland, Vt., have taken up their residence in this city. Mr. Symons having secured a position in New York.

EVENING WITH AUTHOR

JOHN KENDRICK BANGS ENTERTAINS A CULTURED AUDIENCE.

Selections From His Works Read at the Y. M. C. A. Hall—Society Graced the Occasion and Gave Mr. Bangs a Reception.

Society of Plainfield paid John Kendrick Bangs, a deserved compliment last evening by its appearance at the hall of the Y. M. C. A. on the occasion of the readings given by that well-known author. The entertainment was given for the benefit of the Wellesley College Endowment fund. The audience was one of culture and refinement, but in point of numbers was not large. There were five numbers on the programme.

Mr. Bangs was introduced to the audience by Henry M. Maxson, the superintendent of the public schools.

The ability of an author to read correctly and entertainingly his own productions is often questioned. It is, indeed, a difficult position in which to place one of refined sensibilities. While Mr. Bangs can not be said to give evidence of embarrassment or positive awkwardness, nevertheless his elocutionary powers, and delivery lacked that degree of fitness expected to be found in a literary genius of Mr. Bangs' splendid reputation. In kindly difference to the gentleman it is the opinion of many people who listened to his readings that it is possible that his writings can be better handled by some person other than the author. However, the entertainment was a pleasing one and Mr. Bangs' graceful literary ability was much admired.

The readings included selections from "Coffee and B-partes," "Van-Bibber's Failure," "Ghosts I Have Met," "Peeps at People" and "A House Boat on the Styx." The readings were well received and their author generously applauded.

The patronesses of the entertainment were: Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, Miss Bass, Mrs. Albert B. Beers, Mrs. Charles B. Brooks, Mrs. Josiah Brown, Mrs. John Bushnell, Miss Cock, Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, Mrs. R. Henry Depew, Mrs. J. B. Dumont, Mrs. Geo. W. Ferry, Mrs. Alex. Gilbert, Mrs. Ellis W. Hedges, Mrs. Wm. T. Kaufman, Mrs. August W. Kleinecke, Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, Mrs. Thomas Minford, Mrs. Wm. T. Pelletier, Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph, Mrs. Frank Richmond, Mrs. James T. Scott, Mrs. Louis G. Timpson, Miss Tweedy, Mrs. Mason W. Tyler, Mrs. George VanBoskerck, Mrs. Daniel T. VanBuren, Mrs. Orville T. Waring.

COAL PRICES.

President of the New Jersey Central Reports Great Demand for Anthracite.

President J. Rogers Maxwell, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, is quoted as saying:

"As for coal prices, it seems to me that they are going to be higher. Certainly it looks so at present, with the enormous demand.

"Our road is doing a wonderfully heavy and gratifying business, and we are making money. In coal alone we are now carrying over 25,000 tons, while the general freight and passenger business is excellent. What is more, this condition of things promises to continue all fall and winter—indeed, there is no indication of any let-up for a good time to come.

"You can see what faith we have in the future when I tell you that we have just ordered 1,000 box cars and 500 gondolas to be ready for April next.

"The Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg, is now operating with us, assuring a large interchange of traffic and an inlet into other fields. By next spring that line will be in full blast, and of course that will help us still further.

"As for general railroading conditions, so far as I can see and learn, they are of the best throughout the entire country."

Funeral of Archibald Douglass

The funeral services of the late Archibald Douglass, who died suddenly a few days ago, were held Monday afternoon from the residence of the parents on West Eighth street, and Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, officiated, assisted by Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes. There was a large attendance of the friends of the young man, and the floral tributes were many and handsome. During the service selections were sung by Miss Charlotte Messersmith, Mrs Samuel Case, Wyatt Barnes and E. E. Runyon. The interment was at Hillside cemetery, and those who acted as bearers, all associates of the departed, were Edgar Daniels, Rav Bigiow, Edward Hobbie and Owen Yerkes.

—The preparatory work of opening and widening Woodland avenue is being pushed rapidly under the efforts of that energetic man—S. D. Drake.

HALSEY IS CONFIDENT

CLAIMS HE WILL HAVE OVER 100 DELEGATES IN THE CONVENTION.

Says That He Will Have Eighteen From Plainfield and More Than Enough to Renominate Him for County Clerk.

Elizabeth, October 25.—When asked about the outcome of the Republican primaries throughout Union county Monday night, County Clerk Howard seemed very jubilant yesterday morning. He cheerfully remarked:

"They can't beat me now, as I will have over 180 votes on the first ballot. I have secured thirty-seven delegats in Elizabeth, nineteen in Rahway, eighteen in Plainfield, eight in Union, five in Roselle, four in Fanwood, two in Springfield, ten in Westfield and one each in Linden and Clark. This makes a total of 105, and I am promised Summit's nine votes after the first ballot, but as ninety-three is all I require I do not need them. In fact, Summit's delegation will probably cast its vote for me at the outset. I consider the contest as indicated by Monday night's voting, practically settled in my favor."

The success of County Clerk Howard of course means the nomination of Robert G. Houston, of Elizabethport, for Sheriff, as their forces worked together in the battle. William Dorval, of Westfield, who is a candidate for Sheriff, will probably get a complimentary vote from that township.

Candidate Halsey was seen yesterday afternoon and said he had not yet given up the fight, and that he did not believe Howard had more than nine votes in Plainfield.

"If I get the balance of the delegates there," remarked Mr. Halsey, "I can still win in the convention. Howard will not get all the votes he claims in the townships. I am satisfied with the fight I put up in Elizabeth, where I downed the machine and secured a majority of the city's delegates. The leaders fought me tooth and nail, but they did not win."

HORSE FELL INTO BROOK

PERPLEXING PLIGHT OF TONY LUSARDI TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

Drove on to a Bridge That Had Not Been Completed and Stood Full Into a Hole—Trolley Car Passed Very Recently.

Anthony Lusardi, the North avenue fruit dealer, had a lively experience Tuesday afternoon while driving home from Bound Brook. Lusardi attempted to drive over the trolley bridge the other side of Lincoln, which is not quite completed. The horse stepped on some planking that was not fastened, and his feet went through.

After the harness was removed, and the loose planking taken away, it was comparatively easy to roll the horse off the bridge, and Lusardi and an assistant lost no time in doing so. Down went the horse, followed by a terrific splash. The animal did not seriously object to the involuntary plunge. The horse and wagon had scarcely been removed from the bridge when a trolley car came along, and went over the bridge like a flash. The passengers and those in charge of the car little realized the danger that might have resulted seriously.

The horse was then rescued from the stream, harnessed up again and the homeward journey continued without further trouble.

ENTERTAINED AT CARDS.

Miss Pierson Gave a Pleasant Affair in Honor of a Guest.

Among the first galeties of the season was the progressive euchre party given Tuesday afternoon by Miss Pierson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Israel C. Pierson, of Watchung avenue, in honor of her friend, Miss Corbett, of Wilmington, Del. The house was prettily decorated with flowers. In the parlor and library eight small tables were arranged, at which the guests played six hand euchre. Miss Corbett and Miss May Evans were the winners of two handsome prizes, while Miss Edith VanBoskerck and Miss Emma Schoonmaker carried off the consolation prizes. Refreshments followed the game.

L. M Dunavan, of fire headquarters, who fell recently and injured his leg, is now able to get about with crutches. He hopes to go to work in a few weeks.

B. S. Braider, of Manning avenue, who sustained a serious injury to his leg some time ago, is improving favorably and he hopes to be able to get about before long.

Walter Bennett, of the borough, who was nearly killed by a shock of electricity recently, has entirely recovered from the injuries sustained, and has gone to work again.

Miss Maude VanDyke, of East Front street, has returned from visiting out-of-town friends.

HALSEY IS CONFIDENT

CLAIMS HE WILL HAVE OVER 100 DELEGATES IN THE CONVENTION.

Says That He Will Have Eighteen From Plainfield and More Than Enough to Renominate Him for County Clerk.

Elizabeth, October 25.—When asked about the outcome of the Republican primaries throughout Union county Monday night, County Clerk Howard seemed very jubilant yesterday morning. He cheerfully remarked:

"They can't beat me now, as I will have over 180 votes on the first ballot. I have secured thirty-seven delegats in Elizabeth, nineteen in Rahway, eighteen in Plainfield, eight in Union, five in Roselle, four in Fanwood, two in Springfield, ten in Westfield and one each in Linden and Clark. This makes a total of 105, and I am promised Summit's nine votes after the first ballot, but as ninety-three is all I require I do not need them. In fact, Summit's delegation will probably cast its vote for me at the outset. I consider the contest, as indicated by Monday night's voting, practically settled in my favor."

The success of County Clerk Howard of course means the nomination of Robert G. Houston, of Elizabethport, for Sheriff, as their forces worked together in the battle. William Dorval, of Westfield, who is a candidate for Sheriff, will probably get a complimentary vote from that township.

Candidate Halsey was seen yesterday afternoon and said he had not yet given up the fight, and that he did not believe Howard had more than nine votes in Plainfield.

"If I get the balance of the delegates there," remarked Mr. Halsey, "I can still win in the convention. Howard will not get all the votes he claims in the townships. I am satisfied with the fight I put up in Elizabeth, where I downed the machine and secured a majority of the city's delegates. The leaders fought me tooth and nail, but they did not win."

EVERYTHING COMES M'GRAIL'S WAY NOW.

Middlesex Will Try To Send Him To State Prison.

PRINCIPAL WITNESS CAUGHT

LARRY READY FOUND HIM AT THE OLD HAUNT.

Danny Cobb's Testimony Will Play Important Part In Convicting McGrail—Danny Saw the Fight—Florence Grote Will Be Returned To Home For Wayward Girls From Which She Escaped.

Everything is coming "Reddy" McGrail's way this time. After the physical beauties of his face were spoiled, the authorities of Middlesex county are going to use their best endeavors to send him to state prison. Larry Ready, the boss at the "tanks," the man who so severely punished McGrail, Tuesday captured the principal witness in the case.

Before Ready took a hand in the rescue of little Florence Grote from the hands of the gang of tramps, McGrail and Danny Cobb, a notorious character from Newark, were quarreling over the girl. Cobb had a coupling pin in his hand and was preparing to go to war with McGrail when Ready interferred. Cobb witnessed the attempt on the part of McGrail to kill Ready with the razor, and he also saw how Ready handle the leader of the tramps.

Cobb appeared afterwards in Dunellen and told his story, but when the authorities decided that he would be a convenient man to have around Cobb was nowhere to be found.

To-day Ready was on duty with beat Tuesday by Detective Decker, his arm in a sling. During the morning Cobb showed up at the old haunt, and Ready quietly explained that he was wanted. Cobb did not think favorably of the scheme, but Ready, even if he only had the use of one hand, was a clinching argument in favor of the suggestion. Cobb was taken to New Brunswick during the day by Detective Dougherty.

At New Brunswick Cobb explained that he had nothing to do with the departure of Florence Grote from the home both. He saw her with McGrail and his gang and noticed her brother's fruitless efforts to bring about her return. He thought it was a shame that such a young girl should be with that gang of toughs and had attempted to take her home when Ready interfered. Cobb's testimony will be given against McGrail and will be an important feature in his conviction.

Florence Grote was taken to Elizabeth forea, and will be confined there until she can be transferred to a home for wayward girls in New York. Florence was confined there sometime ago after being arrested by the police in a raid at the Port. She subsequently escaped and returned to Elizabeth where she remained until she went away with McGrail and his cronies last week.

A MIDNIGHT MILL.

A Fugitive Event Pulled Off at Raritan—Sports From Plainfield Were There.

Raritan is greatly exercised over information that leaked out Tuesday of a twenty-round "mill" that took place at midnight Monday near that place, between the featherweight pugilists, "Kid" Thomas, of Newark, and A. Bufano, of Collinsville, Pa.

The fight came off in a large ice house near the town, and was witnessed by about two hundred men from Somerville, Bound Brook, New Brunswick and Plainfield. The arrangements were made with the greatest secrecy. The authorities got wind of the fight early in the night, but agents of the managers gave them false tips about the place, and led them a wild goose chase until after the fight was over.

A HIGH BRIDGE BRIDE

Miss Catherine Meaney Becomes the Wife of Wilbur Shaffer.

The marriage of Miss Catherine Meaney, of High Bridge, and Wilbur Shaffer, of this city, took place Tuesday at St. Joseph's church, High Bridge, and Rev. Father Coughton, rector, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Father Westman, of St. Mary's church, this city. The maid of honor was Miss Nellie Meaney, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Miss Annie Daly and Miss Margaret Meaney. John Meaney was the groomsman. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Shaffer will reside in Plainfield.

Mrs. Jeremiah Cash, of South avenue, is still very ill at her home.

HAVANA'S FAMOUS PRISON

The "Cabanas" Where Many of Cuba's Sons and Daughters Met their Fate.

GREWSOME DUNGEONS.

Cells Whose Secrets Are More Dreadful Than Were Those of Ancient Venice.

Prisoner's Walk Where General Lee Conferred With Competitor Prisoners—The Famous "Foso de Los Laureles" Where Executions Took Place—Faced Wall With Backs to Firing Squad.

The Morro and the Cabanas, as they rear their drear walls above the harbor and city of Havana, frowning down at the hundreds of American and Cuban flags, seem to cast a still lingering shadow over the dawn of Cuban independence. Although the red and yellow of Castile no longer floats over those battlements, the grim fortresses still represent the shackled menace of Spain's vanished power. Within those walls, deep down in the rock's recesses, many a budding aspiration and thought of liberty has been fondly crushed out.

The story of Morro and Cabanas prisons can never be adequately told. It contains such depth of human misery, such refinement of mental torture, such barbarity of physical suffering enforced by the inhuman jailers, that the full truth must ever hide its head from the scrutiny of civilization.

The entrance to the Cabanas is reached by a narrow passageway, winding round the face of the cliff from the rickety wharf at the water's edge. Fine covered and paved, this road has been a way of sorrow for many a prisoner who has wearily tramped up the steep incline. Few have returned along that path. The majority have faced fate more or less bravely, with their backs to the firing squad and a cry of "Cuba libre!"

Forty feet from the summit of the cliff a small grass covered plot is reached. In front are two gnarled and rugged laurel trees, their roots stretching down the rocky slope and twisted through the scanty soil like the bones of some partly exhumed mammoth.

To this spot such of Spain's prisoners who had been allowed the privilege of communicating with their friends were led, shackelled and guarded, four soldiers to each man, and for a brief moment permitted to breathe the clear air and enjoy the bright sunshine. For thirty precious minutes they had a glimpse of the world outside, before being thrust back into their dungeons in the inner walls of the Cabanas. It was here that General Lee conferred with the Competitor prisoners, and here where Julio Sanguilly, after many months' confinement, proposed to break loose from his guards and escape down the cliff. Preferring the risk of immediate death by a Mauser bullet to continue longer subject to the insufferable horrors of his prison.

Crossing this grass plot, a narrow gateway to the left gives admittance to the outer works of the fort. To the right, the landside towers a huge wall cut out of the solid rock, forming a posse, or ditch between the land approaches and the outer works. From the top of this massive outer defence the ground slopes inland, the only approach to the castle being a smooth, sloping sward, raked at all points by guns mounted on the walls. This ditch extends round the castle until it ends in the sea. On the Morro side it is crossed by a wooden drawbridge of ancient construction, and raised and lowered by an elaborate system of weights and pulleys.

The southern portion of this moat is the famous Fosse de los Laurele, martyr ground of Cuba's liberty. A long, gloomy walk, gravelled on one side, on the other the long rank grass. Right and left are the frowning walls of the fortress. At the northern end the walk twists round to the west. Midway are six trees of the class from which the place takes its name. Twisted and distorted, their trunks seem to have lost their natural shape by witnessing many scenes of human agony. They draw their nourishment from the blood-drenched ground, and nature abhorrent at such a price for being, has shown her protest in crooked branch and chilly fitful leaf.

ENTRANCE TO CABANAS FORTRESS.

Two paces from the trees is the execution ground. A mound of stones and a dotted wall, cut and scarred by many a bullet, are the only existing memorials on the spot where so many of Cuba's sons have died for freedom. Here, in the cool gray of the morning, were led out those whose crime had been a too great devotion to what they deemed their duty.

The prisoner was placed against the wall, his back to the firing party, who were but a few feet distant. The soldiers filling around passed taunting remarks, in the language of the bull ring, they asked Jocularly what kind of a fight the victim would put up. Occasionally, if the condemned man were looked upon as worthy of their feelings carried them so far that they actually assaulted him on his way to execution. The vilest taunts were poured on the head of the murder and for hours were tortured by the unfeeling bitterness of his persecutors. But at last the farce was ended. The lieutenant in charge of the firing party threw away his cigar, the orders, "Load," "Present," "Fire," were given and the writhing corpse on the ground was all that remained of the follower of free Cuba.

GOWNS FOR FALL.

Most of Them Are Elaborately Trimmed With Braid—The New Jackets.

So much discrimination is shown in the use of braid that it is one of the most pleasing as well as refined trimmings for almost all woolen dresses and many wraps. Braid is always pretty, no matter how much or little there is of it.

The other day I fell in love with a fawn and brown shepherd check suit. The skirt had three clusters of three rows each of brown castle braid around the bottom. There was a tight basque with three narrow lines all around it. The bust part was cut out and filled in with seal brown velvet, and the high medici collar was faced with it.

Another gown had a tunic cut in points, each outlined with narrow black soutache. The material was dark blue imperial serge. The waist was nearly covered with lines of the braid. Other designs there are in almost endless numbers. One very elegant suit was of stone gray whipcord. There was a tunic overskirt, lapping up high at the left side to display the underskirt. There were three rows of half inch hercules braid in black, laid so close to each other that they almost touched. The skirt had row after row of the braid, reaching fully to the knees, set so closely that scarcely a sign of the material of the dress showed.

PRETTY FALL STYLES.

The belt was a row of wider braid, with a gilt buckle at the waist. The bodice closed to the right, surplice fashion, and was cut away at the neck to show a vest front, also braided, but in vermicelli design. There was a rolling collar in surplice shape, and on this were three rows of the braid. At 7 cents per yard the braid must have cost quite a penny, let alone the labor.

Still other fancies in braidings show several rows of titan braid, sewed flat and close together, turning into curlycues at the ends, on sleeves, collars and sometimes in the backs. Some very neat and attractive skirts have panels set in each side of the front breadths richly braided. This is done by machine, and the patterns are elaborate and handsome.

Braid as a trimming is always pretty and never obtrusive. It is suitable for any woolen material. The silk and metal braids are also often seen on rich silk gowns. Silk soutache and cut jet are used to ornament the velvet garments, of which we shall see so many in a few weeks.

Of a verity the jaunty little jackets of this season are the prettiest ever before made, and the variety is simply astonishing. There are those with square fly fronts, others slashed, scalloped, pointed, sloped and nobody knows what else. Many of these are richly braided with fine soutache, while others gain their style by a broad effect in one row of titan braid brought in a curved line. Some have no visible buttons. Others have 10 and 12. There is something for every one's taste—and purse.

The velvet coats are superb. There are several styles of these. One, and I think, the richest, is a sort of half fitting princess shape reaching nearly to the knees. It is lined with fine satin or silk and in many cases bordered with fur and elaborately beaded, braided or hand embroidered. The embroidery where it is picked out with fine cut jet beads is the finest. All kinds of wraps and velvet coats may be trimmed with jet and passementerie, some being black and others being in rich dark colors, such as plum, garnet, etc.

There are some queerly shaped wraps where the waist is snug and resembles an Eton around the bottom, but the back is cut full and has the lawn one's ears will permit, and the sleeves are loose, hanging affairs, more like a cape than anything else.

One of these was made for a bright little lady whose taste is fine. It was of white broadcloth. The waist portion was covered with an arabesque design in gold soutache. There were seven rows of the braid around the sleeves, set very closely. There were six gilt and cut crystal buttons on the front near the neck, three on each side. Needless to say that they were for ornament, not use.

There are numbers of beautiful tailor made velvet suits, mostly black, but they are too costly for everybody and doubly so since velvet will not bear rain or snow, while winter woolen stuffs are expected to stand everything, especially the eravanetted fabrics. There are new ways of trimming woolen dresses which I may mention here.

One is the arrangement of velvet ribbon rosettes. These are enjoying an unexpected popularity.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

CORNHUSK HATS.

Unique Millinery Which Has Made Famous a Kansas Woman.

Several world famous women receently received unique samples of millinery. The women were Queen Victoria, Helen Gould and Mrs. McKinley. Each received a hat made entirely of cornhusks.

The hats were manufactured by Mrs. M. J. Cusack of Atchison and were sent as souvenirs of Atchison's recent corn festival, which, as you know, was held to celebrate the great Kansas corn crop of 300,000,000 bushels.

Mrs. Cusack is not only a pioneer in this novel industry, but she has brought her work to an artistic perfection far beyond all other similar attempts. She is a retired milliner and has been experimenting with cornhusk millinery for several years. She has discovered a method of softening the husks and of dyeing them. This method she keeps secret and has persistently refused to reveal it.

With nothing but cornhusks Mrs. Cusack can turn out bonnets and hats which might readily be mistaken for imported French "confections." Some of the effects she secures with the yellow maize wrappings can hardly be excelled by skilled workers in the finest Italian straw.

Mrs. Cusack was born in Ireland, but has lived in Atchison for many years. The hat which she has sent to Queen Victoria is of a Marie Stuart shape and is trimmed with passion flowers made of cornhusks. The flowers have a wonderfully natural and artistic appearance. The frame is of royal purple braid, and knots of cream colored husks are fastened among the flowers. The strings of this exquisite chapeau are really marvelous, having been knitted and softened and dyed husks. The bonnet was handsomely boxed and accompanied by the following note:

To Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen:

I am sending you today a bonnet I have made of cornhusks as a souvenir of the corn carnival, a festival held at Atchison, Kan., U. S. A., to celebrate the largest corn crop ever raised in an American state.

I beg you will accept it as my simple tribute to the greatest of sovereigns and greatest of women. It is a little thing to you, but I have worked at it with loving hands, and if you will

CORNHUSK HAT FOR MISS HELEN GOULD.

"try it on" I am sure it will become you, as a queen, and a woman. May you live long and may who love your name, your good deeds and the example of your life.

I am born in your dominions, and, though I have lived in the United States many years, I have yet to find an American who would not cheerfully join me in the finest sentiment in the English language:

God save the Queen!

Though now a citizen of Kansas and of the great republic, I am still the loyal subject of the queen of women, Victoria. MRS. M. J. CUSACK.

The hat for Miss Gould, for whom Mrs. Cusack has a great admiration, is made after a pattern sent from Paris. The bonnet is woven in imitation of Tuscan braid and is dyed in two shades of lavender. It is almost covered with violets made from husks, and beneath the brim is a bunch of ten roses.

In making this hat Miss Gould's ornurette type has been kept in mind by her milliner, and the high crowned hat, with its graceful, rolling brim, trimmed with violets, shaded from the palest tender to the deepest purple, will, it is thought, be particularly becoming.

Mrs. McKinley's bonnet is a little toque for evening wear. It is composed of cream colored cornhusks, trimmed in rows and graceful rosettes of black. Roses, frame and all are made entirely of cornhusks.

It is just possible that in thus introducing to the world the product of her nimble fingers Mrs. Cusack has founded a new industry which will make the American corn crop more valuable than ever. If Mrs. Cusack can make artistic and beautiful bonnets from cornhusks, why cannot other women do so too? Why should we send to the yellow fields of Lombardy for the straw which we use in hats when so many acres of material just as suitable are to be found in our western states?

It has taken us more than a century to find out that corn husk is so many uses. Today we not only use it for making Johnnycake and other edibles, but we use the corn pith to make our warships unsinkable.

In a few years many of us may be wearing cornhusk hats. If we do, I shouldn't be surprised if we had to pay as liberally for them as we do now for those of straw. LUCY LAWS.

Club For Women Lawyers.

A women lawyers' club has recently been organized in New York city. It is formed for mutual helpfulness, and 40 women lawyers are comprised in its membership. At 220 Broadway there are an extensive law library for the use of members and a cozy reading room, with large table for the use of students. Regular monthly meetings are to be held, whose object will be to further acquaintance and comradeship among the members.

Among the many noted newspaper correspondents sent to Rennes to report the Dreyfus case was Mrs. Emily Crawford, an English woman journalist.

FASHION'S FANCIES.

Floral Decorations For the Table. Costume Accessories.

Flowers are used in great profusion as table decorations. The arrangement is always low, as tall bouquets interfere with social feeling by obscuring the view of guests. Flat baskets and bowls are used, and trails of foliage are carried upon the cloth, but not so as to be an inconvenience to the service.

Muslin and nainsook, plain or embroidered, are used to trim silk gowns. This is another variation of the curious fancy for combining wash goods with wool or silk materials, which has been already exemplified by the use of piqué and duck applications and stitched straps on cloth costumes.

FAILLE COAT.

Large, old fashioned brooches of tinted gold, enamel or bijaving are now turned into belt buckles by the fortunate possessors, who thus obtain an ornament entirely original and individual.

A pleasing fall dress of coat of gray faille. It is short in front and has rounded contrails. The body and sleeves are encircled by applied bands and motifs of blue velvet. The basque is cut away at the neck and wrists to show a plastron of gray silk plaited horizontally. The collar and cuffs are of blue velvet. The coat may be worn with a fine or grey skirt.

LINGERIE.

It Is as Thin, Soft and Delicate as Possible.

Underwear is as much subject to the changes of fashion as those articles of apparel which are in the more public position. Any radical alteration in the style of gowns involves a corresponding alteration in the garments underneath.

The clinging materials in the present mode necessitates the avoidance of all bulky underwear. The thinnest and finest of materials are used and are shaped closely to the figure. Lace, embroidery, insertion and fine lace, all applied in flat ways, are the favorite decorations, although very slender women may use ruffles if they ner of flouness, usually over a flounce of some material. Entire gowns among the new models are thus trimmed, but frigse is an ornament which requires to be used judiciously and in not too great profusion in order to give the best effect.

LOUIS XV COAT.

The cut depicts a Louis XV coat of black velvet. It is tight at the back and partly fitted in front, closing at the left side with jeweled buttons. The basque is bordered with a circular ruffle of white satin with an embroidered edge, and the revers and cuffs are of white satin to match. The high, flaring collar has a border of white satin embroidered, and the cravat is of white lace. A hat of black velvet is trimmed with black plumes, black velvet and jeweled ornaments. JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE SEASON'S STYLES.

Fashions For Children and Grown Persons.

The costumes of even very small girls recall those of the mothers. The little skirts are made in circular form, with no fullness at the top. The sleeves are tight and plain, the bodice is often different from the skirt, and rich laces appear as collar and revers.

A fine pattern trimming for children's dresses is insertion, through which is interwoven the narrowest possible ribbon or velvet, a bow of loops occurring here and there. When short dresses are thus trimmed, the ribbon matches the underdress in color.

At the beginning of every season the waist different from the skirt is loudly proclaimed to be entirely out of date and wish. As far as possible, all garments covering the hips are fitted by darts and have neither gathers nor plaits, even the waistband being omitted when it can be done.

FALL BACK.

Corset covers are made in the form of a short bolero, when they are worn at all, and are tied across the bosom. Fine nainsook or cambric is used, or the covers are entirely composed of bands of lace and embroidery.

The picture shows a long, straight sack of plain cloth. It has a capuchon of the same material, and the fronts are much rounded away. The edge of the capuchon is bordered with a scalloped application of velvet, and a similar application adorns the circular ruffle which finishes the sack. There are velvet cuffs on the plain sleeves. The high, flaring cloth collar is bordered with stitching. Buttons and cords serve for the fastening.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Champion Speller of His State.

Judge Henry S. Kelly of St. Joseph, who is the author of three law books, is also the champion speller of the state. He can spell any word in the English language with which he is at all familiar. His law books used to be printed in St. Joseph by the old St. Joseph Steam Printing company, and the printers used to watch his copy day after day for mistakes in orthography. There was a belief among them that the judge would pay $10 for any mistake of that kind that the printers would find. The old printers are nearly scattered, but a few of them are here yet. They met the other day and talked about old times, and about Judge Kelly's books. They kept a dictionary close at hand to watch for mistakes, but they never found any. Mike Lawlor was one of the printers, and he was something of a speller himself, but he failed in vain for a misspelled word in the copy furnished by Judge Kelly.—St. Joseph (Mo.) News.

WINTER STYLES.

Accessories and Trimmings of Various Sorts.

The newest models for winter hats and bonnets tend to show one color instead of many in combination. Often the color is that of the costume with which the hat is to be worn.

Guipure is as much used as ever for decoration, and that having a heavy pattern is sometimes enriched by a tiny ruche of fine ribbon, which follows the main lines of the design. The ribbon may be white or colored. Embroidery in colored silk is also added to guipure.

Prince is coming more and more to the front and is shown in all colors and widths. The narrowest is employed to edge ruffles and ruches, while the deep varieties are used on skirts in the man-quite "come by." Every season, however, the individual waist appears in a variety of forms and gives the contradiction to such reports, holding its place among the best worn fashions. In French flannel, taffeta and silks of all grades, as well as lace and mousseline de soie, it is well to the fore for the coming winter and will be seen as much as ever.

WINTER WRAP.

Today's picture shows a new model for a winter wrap. It is a cape of heavy cloth, of demiength, and is curved in to the figure at the back. In front is a close fitting pointed vest with large armholes. The cape has a standing collar and a high, flaring collar. All the edges are bordered with stitched bands of cloth, and the wrap is lined with satin to match the goods. The velvet vest is trimmed with a velvet bow and white feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Accommodating.

"He only needs a little urging," is a common phrase among us when somebody seems reluctant to push himself forward. A man is not always disposed to give another credit for his modesty.

When Garibaldi, the Italian patriot, was in London his popularity was unbounded, and the crowd wished him to exhibit himself continuously. One particularly noisy admirer of the general used to tell this story:

"I was in the Strand at the time, and the crowd was so thick that I couldn't even see his carriage, much less him, so I just hallood, 'Stand up, Jaribawldi,' and blowed if Jaribawldi didn't stand right up in the carriage and let me see him."

SOME COLONIAL DISHES

We Have Annexed Many Queer Luxuries—How to Prepare Them.

America's territorial gain through the war with Spain has brought up the subject of Spanish cookery, and many soldiers and sailors returning from our newly acquired countries will bring home tales of deliciously cooked dishes that have fired the hearts of the American housekeepers with ambition to emulate them at home.

Cookery, as a rule, in Porto Rico and in Havana is not apt to strike the American palate as especially good. The Spaniard runs largely to ragouts, and there has an inordinate oil of cheap quality. The salads are delicious, and the guava jelly, served as a green leaf with a bit of fresh cheese as an accompaniment, is the morsel fit for an epicure. The coffee does not seem equal to the good old American—brew made by a Southern "mammy."

Spanish cookery is found in its perfection in New Orleans, where it is refined by a mixture of French art. From a restaurant in the French quarter of that city come those favorite Spanish dishes, which are easily prepared and very good:—

Spanish steak is prepared from two pounds of steak, the round preferred; two clores, half a dozen red chilis, one tablespoonful flour, some garlic, thyme and drippings.

Soak the chilis and cover with boiling water; soak until tender, then scrape the pulp into the water. Cut the steak in small pieces, fry brown in hot butter, add flour and brown it, cover with the chili water, add the garlic and the thyme, simmer until the meat is tender and the gravy rich and brown.

Tamales are a favorite dish with Americans. Take two quarts yellow dried corn and mill in the water mixed with one-half teacup of lime. Let it boil until well cooked. Wash thoroughly and grind until it is very fine. Boil a piece of pork in water and when it is very tender; let it cool and cut it in small pieces. Mix the ground corn with enough of the broth in which the beef was boiled to make it soft, and add two cups of butter or beef drippings; season with salt and knead thoroughly.

Take three dozen red chilis, remove the seed and roast in a moderate oven for a few seconds, then place in tepid water and grind until fine, together with a head of garlic; strain through a coarse sieve.

Soak dry corn leaves in corn water, and when well soaked shake them and apply a thin layer of the corn dough on the half of each leaf; put a spoonful of the stew on the prepared leaves, cover with the prepared leaves and tie with a string also made from leaf. When the tamales are finished place them in a large pot with a little boiling water and boil them one hour. Any other meat may be used. A "metate," or grinder can be purchased from any Mexican dealer.

Chili con carne is a toothsome dish. It is made of round steak, a tablespoonful of drippings, two tablespoonfuls of rice, one quart boiling water, two large red peppers, onions, salt and flour. Cut the steak into small pieces and put in a frying pan with the hot drippings and rice and a cup of hot water; cover closely and cook until tender; remove seeds and part of veins from peppers; cover with a half pint boiling water and let them stand until cool. Then squeeze them in the hand until the water is thick and red. If not thick enough add a little flour. Season with salt and onion, if desired. Pour over the meat and serve very hot.

Spanish fried chicken is excellent. Wash the rice and brown it in hot butter. Add onions, tomatoes and garlic. Cover the whole with hot water. Season with salt and pepper. Let the rice cook thoroughly, but do not stir it.

Jimbalaya is a Spanish Creole dish and is made from one pound of rice, one pound of ham, cut up; two large tomatoes, a small piece of red pepper and a sprig of parsley.

Fry these in a heaping spoonful of butter; add one pint of boiling water; stir in the rice slowly, cover the pot and set it where it will cook slowly. Salt to taste and season with hot. Jimbalaya may also be made with oysters shrimps or chicken substituted for the sausage.

Tortillas are made from a quart of flour, a cup of milk, two tablespoons of butter and salt. Make a thoroughly kneaded dough; take a piece and pat between the hands until it makes a large round thin cake; bake on a griddle until brown.

Frijoles con queso are prepared by boiling one pint of red beans until soft; then drain and turn into a frying pan with drippings or butter; salt to taste. Add a little Cayenne pepper and one pound of cheese cut into cubes. Stir until the cheese dissolves and thoroughly blends. Serve very hot.

To prepare stuffed green chilis remove stems and seeds from six chilis; boil two pounds of beef or mutton until tender and chop fine; add one large ripe tomato, two onions, two slices of fat pork chopped fine, one dozen each olives and raisins, vinegar and salt, sugar and pepper to taste. Fry all together until done; remove from fire and stuff the chilis; then dip them in batter and fry in butter.

Photographing in the Dark.

Tests have been made by Dr. Russell, the London physicist and photographer, in exhibiting the ability of certain substances to photograph themselves in the dark. Substances treated by him with sundry metals, woods, especially if charred, oils and substances containing them, have only confirmed his power to impress the image of their form and lines upon a photographic plate, if left in contact with it or at a little distance in front of it, when kept in the dark for days or short or time. Various salts of uranium, that have been kept under such conditions for two years, have proved as active in their effects at the end of that time as at the beginning. Experiments also at different temperatures with the same substances have shown that the higher the temperature the more rapid is the action upon the plate.

ON THE FIELD OF EL CANEY

Thrilling Account of the Battle By Lieut Wallace, U. S. Infantry.

A MEMORABLE MARCH.

Bodies of the Dead Soldiers Lined the Road and War Became a Stern Reality.

The Awful Rain of Bullets From a Spanish Stone Fort—Rivers of Lead Flowing in Each Direction—Cannon Found the Range and Structure Was Quickly Demolished.

Lieut. William Wallace of the Seventh United States Infantry, a nephew of Gen. Lew Wallace of "Ben Hur" fame, tells of his experience in the trenches of Santiago de Cuba as follows:

"At 4 a. m. June 24 we moved forward and marched about six miles over the worst road imaginable. All the roads here are of the same character, and were originally foot and mule paths, but centuries of rain has made them deep gullies scarcely wide enough for one man and his pack to march in. We reached a beautiful coast grove about 8 in the morning. Everyone was nearly exhausted by that time. There were no horses or mules yet and I saw a general carrying a pack. I believe it was the intention to camp here during the day, but the Spaniards thought differently.

"The rough riders (riders by courtesy only, since all were afoot) were exceedingly anxious to get into Santiago first. They thought they could simply walk over every Spaniard in sight and get into the town that night. The army needed an advance guard, so they, supported by the Fifth and Ninth cavalry, were detailed as such.

"We had not been in camp more than half an hour when furious firing was heard far to the front. The Seventh, which throughout was at the head of the column was hurried forward, followed by the rest of the brigade—the Twelfth and Seventeenth infantry.

"No one who made that march will ever forget it. Exhausted to start with, the men soon began to lighten themselves of their packs. The road was simply lined with packs, blankets and haversacks. You could have walked afterward all the way on government blankets. Hour after hour we kept it up and at 2 o'clock we came to a halt where the incessant firing had taken place. The firing, however, had ceased.

"The rough riders with our cavalry had driven the enemy back. The appearance of the Spaniards caused them to further retire. Why, I do not know, for 300 of our men could have held such a position for a week, perhaps a month. It was the first real evidences of war. Our dead soldiers lined the road, and the wounded were being taken to the hospitals a little in the rear. I can never forget the sight, and from that moment the picnic part of the war ended for us. War became a stern reality at the sight of those dead soldiers.

"An hour's rest here and again we are pushed to a better position. Another rest and again on until finally at 7 o'clock we went into camp for the night. On looking back we saw that we moved about, but never far. We did ordinary patrol duty and covered the assembly of troops in the rear. By 9 at night, El Caney was fairly formed, and in a pouring rain we set out. But where to was a mystery. By 9 that evening we had marched parallel to the north side of the city, about three miles east of El Caney.

"At daylight, July 1, we were ordered forward without breakfast, toward Caney. At 7 some firing was heard in the front and the march was hastened.

"The worst of it all was, that no one seemed to know where the fire was coming from. There was, as I afterward saw, a stone fort on the left and a blockhouse to the right. The bullets were coming thicker and thicker. Death was all around.

"The order finally came to advance. The company crossed a bullet-shower ered field in good order. I never expected to get across alive. Very soon the companies were all behind the fort commanding the town. The fun began when all the companies commenced to fire into the town. It was rivers of lead flowing in each direction. The fusilade was awful, yet to rise so much as to your knees was certain death. Finally, after a whole day or useless firing, the cannon got the range of the stone fort and silenced it. This was the key to the Spanish position, and after its fall the firing grew less heavy. At 4 o'clock the Spanish firing ceased altogether, and a little later we were withdrawn."

The Naval Engineer in Battle.

If you were seated up in a heated iron tank floating on the sea and informed at intervals that you must now and then let in daylight and splinters, you would get a dim idea of the lot of the engineer's men aboard a battleship in action. But the engineer's men have to work in the hurly-burly, and you would go mad in your tank. The enemy's shot pours in the ship. The engineer's men by this time know not where the enemy is or where the ship is heading. All they can't stop to think about it. Keep that bearing cool, shoulder to the iron, and mind the fellows where they fall, but the men in the engine room have to face the splinters out of the machinery. Steam pipes are pierced. Mend 'em. Crawl behind the bulkheads and stop that steam leak. The upper engine room is anything. Scalded? Never mind. It's all in the day's work. Don't log the water down. Pass the coal slowly. Keep that fire in the bunkers. In the lower engine rooms the thermometer shows 126 degrees in front of the ventilating blowers; in the upper engine rooms 190 degrees.—Engineering Journal.

KISSEE'S YOUNG BRIDE

She Prefers Happiness in a Hut to Misery in a Palace.

SHE IS 15 AND HE IS 65.

Woes of a Lonely Old Man and How He Wooed a Child and Lost Her.

He Tells His Story and She Tells Hers—A Music Box Would Not Satisfy Her—The Recent Sensation of a Famous Missouri County.

Capt. Alexander C. Kissee, "King of Taney County, Mo.," has given in his own words the story of how he, at the age of sixty-five, married Rosa Dora Garrett, a mere strip of a girl half a century his junior, and after a honeymoon of two weeks she fled from Kissee Hall to return to the dolls and toys and picture-books she had left at the humble home of her parents.

Gen. Cassius M. Clay, of Kentucky, married his Dora and lost her.

Capt. Kissee married his Dora and lost her.

The child wife tells of a younger love—Charley McVey, a farmer boy of nineteen years—who plows among the rocks and hills of Taney County in summer and feeds live stock in winter and does other farm chores, for which he receives $15 a month and his board.

Rosa Garrett is now living at the home of her father, Alvin Garrett, seven miles from Kissee Hall, in Taney County. Mr. Garrett is a plain farmer.

Here is Capt. Kissee's story: "I am the father of twenty-three children, but all of them except nine are dead, and most of the survivors are married and moved away. So since the death of my second wife last November I have been lonely here in this big house.

"I decided a short while that I would marry again. I concluded that I didn't want any hen, but a pullet of fryin' size. I had heard Rosa Garrett spoken of as a rather smart and pretty girl, and as she is of fryin' size I determined to get acquainted with her. There was a big fish fry and barn on Beaver Creek, and the whole neighborhood for miles and miles was there. I knew the Garretts would be at the fry, so I went to get an introduction to Rosa. She smiled as I shook hands with her, and after we had talked a few minutes and I started to walk away she said: 'Capt. Kissee, we would like mighty well to have you come and see us some time.'

"That set me to thinking that the girl had a favorable opinion of me, so a day or two after the fish fry I drove over to the Garrett place. Mrs. Garrett met me at the door. I told her that I wanted to marry, that I was in a hurry and saw no need of fooling away time with a long preliminary courtship. I told Mrs. Garrett that I wanted a fryin' size pullet, so to speak—fryin' size is just my way of saying that no old maids or widows need apply to me—and that I reckoned her Rosa would do about as well as any in the country.

(Capt. A. C. Kissee and his child wife.)

"I told Rosa that I had come to marry her, and that she might wear dresses befitting the mistress of Kissee Hall. She seemed to think it was all so sudden-but I reminded her that some of the best trades I had ever made in my life were made in a hurry. She said: 'Ask pa and ma.' I asked Mrs. Garrett if she cared if Rosa married me. Mrs. Garrett said: 'Go to the barn and ask pa.' She calls Mr. Garrett pa, and I asked him. He said, 'Yes.' I went back to the house and told Rosa to put on her shoes and hat and go with me to Forsyth, the county seat, to get the license. An hour later we were at Forsyth getting married.

"I brought Rosa here to Kissee Hall and installed her as mistress. We had a fish fry, a barbecue and a dance in celebration of the marriage. We invited the people for miles around. I was proud of Rosa and wanted people to see her. I bought her china dishes and a silk dress and a muslin box.

"I used every possible effort to make her happy, and I showed her through the big house and told her she was the ruler of it all, but in spite of everything I could do for her child would pucker up and cry half a dozen times a day. She would throw herself down on the floor in some of the way rooms and cry as if her heart would break. Finally I asked her what was the matter. She told me that she didn't love me, and that she was sorry she had married. I neglected business of every kind then and devoted my whole time trying to please her. That just made matters worse. And then she left me, as you know."

And here is Rosa Garrett's story: "I would rather live in a humble log cabin with a husband to whom I am the mistress of Kissee Hall. I would rather wear calico bought by the man I love than to dress myself in silk bought by a rich man I do not love. I left Capt. Kissee because I do not love him and never can. There is another boy, a poor boy—and he may always be poor—but I love him, and when I get ready to marry again he may have me if he wants me.

"Yes, his name is Charley McVey. Everybody knows him, so I had just as well tell it.

"You ask how I happened to marry Uncle Alex? Well, that is easy to answer. He came here and took me so by surprise that I lacked the presence of mind to say no. We have always looked up to him here as the richest and the biggest man in Taney County, and his word is usually accepted as law. I agreed to marry him without really knowing what I was doing. I regretted it almost a moment after we had started to get the license, but I was too timid then to go back on my agreement.

"Charley McVey came to see me at the home of a relative soon after I was married to Uncle Alex. As Charley took hold of my hand I could not help but cry. Tears were also in his eyes. 'Why did you do it?' he asked. Then my heart seemed to be breaking. My head was in a whirl. I was dizzy. We were standing in the yard by the well. I clutched at the well-curb for support. Charley looked on in silence. It was the first time I had seen him since I had been installed as the mistress of Kissee Hall. He looked pale. Just then my married sister came out of the house and told me to go in. She said it didn't look right for a married woman to be keeping company that way with young men. Charley went away.

"I hope I shall never see Kissee Hall again. I have had enough of it. I will marry again some time, but I am young yet and am in no hurry about it."

FASCINATING CAIRO.

The Most Picturesque and Interesting of Oriental Cities.

Frederic Courtland Penfield, former United States Diplomatic Agent and Consul-General in Egypt, describes in the Century Magazine the picturesque features of the African metropolis, with illustrations by Paul Philippoteaux.

From its founding in 969 by the Fatimite califfs, as an offshoot of the tented settlement of Fostat on the present site of Alt Masr, or Old Cairo, the capital of African continent, and chief seat of Mohammedan learning—has had a romantic history. Scenes of great exploits of great personage, from Saladin to Napoleon, of sanguinary conflicts between Christian and Islamism, and the memorable massacre of the Mamelukes; cradle of religion and cults; home of the Arabian Nights' tales; the place where lasting principles of philosophy and science were conceived, and where Bible scenes were laid, Cairo has become the classic ground of winter idlers from every clime.

Cairo looks old, but comparatively is not. Alexandria has the appearance of newness, but it was built a hundred years old before the first stone of the present capital was laid. But the Cairo of to-day is only the development of Fostat, Old Cairo, New Cairo and Heliopolis, probably. There has always been a great city there or there-abouts, changing in appellation with its locale.

The visit to Egypt has become almost as essential to Americans—and quite before to Europeans—as that to Mecca. The Mohammedans' religion makes them the more reverent cult of the prophet, but pleasure draws those favored by fortune to the Nile capital time after time. Cairo is more than interesting. It is fascinating. The antiquarian, the student and the sage, and have always been at home there; and the invalid, real or imaginary, seeking a climate finds here and about the khedival city the superlative air and temperature.

Artists never weary of reproducing Cairo's picturesque scenes and vivid colorings. The blue of the skies, the splendor of the setting sun, the turquoise afterglow, and the yellow-browns of the desert, seem to be best suggested in water colors. Like Venice, Egypt demands a master hand in oils.

The traveler of impressionable nature yields to the fascination of Cairo's quaint Eastern life as perfect as if not far beyond the Orient's threshold and doubly satisfying because found with a half-hour of the creature comforts of hotels conspicuously modern. To walk the streets of an Oriental capital wherein Bible lore has been made, and delve by day in museums and mosques perpetuating a mysterious past, the dine de rigueur in the evening, and to the best music in Europe at hand explains a charm that Cairo has for mortals likting to witness Eastern life providing they are not compelled to become a part of it. If Egypt disappoints the indecisive idler can in four or five days be back at Paris or the Riviera.

PRISONER RELEASED

Because It is no Crime in Texas To Counterfeit Nickels.

Governor Sayers has just pardoned out of the penitentiary a man named Draughtsup, who was sent up three years for counterfeiting. His crime was for counterfeiting. His release from prison is on peculiar grounds. He was sent up under the State law for counterfeiting. The law says he counterfeited and passed was nickels. His release was secured on the ground that under the Texas law he could be convicted for perfection of money save of gold and silver. The counterfeiting of nickels was, therefore, argued not to be punishable by imprisonment. The statute is very explicit in its definition of what counterfeiting is. The legal presumption of the case was to the effect that inasmuch as he was "doing" perfection a term of imprisonment for a crime that was no crime under the Texas laws.

His pardon was secured upon the petition of all the Court officers who tried him, and who expressed the opinion that he was not guilty under the Texas law. He had counterfeited a small amount of money, and had already served several years, that also had a tendency to make the officials more lenient towards him. His case, however, presents that peculiar reading of the Texas law on counterfeiting, which has hitherto been overlooked until it possessed this case by some dark-minded lawyer.—Austin, Tex., Cor. St Louis Republican.

First Tramp—In the road. Why don't you go in? The dog's all right. Don't you see him wagging his tail?

Second Tramp—Yes, and he's growlin' at the same time.—Judge, which end to believe.

SOME ILLICIT STILL RAIDS.

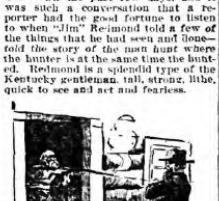
Trilling Facts Told by United States Revenue Officers.

MEN WHO ARE HUNTED.

Jim Redmond, a Man Who Has Been Through a Baptism of Bullets.

Stories That Form the Material for the Richest Romance—Fight in an Attic—Terrible Battle With Pistols —Where the Use of a Pistol is as Natural as That of the Hand.

As you read this you may begin to have a vague idea of the strenuous life that the United States Revenue Agent lead when they are assigned to raid illicit stills in the heart of the Carolinas or Tennessee. It is hard to get one of these officials to tell his past experiences, but if you ever succeed break your most pleasant engagement without compunction, and you will be entertained beyond the power of the narrated to do it. Such a man has been in Cincinnati the past few days, and it was such a conversation that a reporter had the good fortune to listen to when "Jim" Redmond told a few of the things that he had seen and done—told the story of the man hunt where the hunter is at the same time the hunted. Redmond is a splendid type of the Kentucky gentleman, tall, strong, lithe, quick to see and act and fearless.



[As He Got to the Door He Let Fly.]

The first story he told was of Revenue Agent Bouldin, whose name is a familiar one in the mountains where he's been, and who is impatient of city life and the comparative ease in which the City Revenue Agents find themselves. Bouldin got information from a North Carolinian, whose name will remain forever unknown. It is death to be found out as an informer for the Government against the operators of illicit stills. The man told Bouldin where a certain still was situated. Bouldin knew the man to charge and went at once to arrest him. He found the man at the door.

"I want you," said Bouldin.

"All right," was the answer. "Wait until I get my coat."

He went in and came out with his coat, but with a shotgun charged with buckshot. As he got to the door he let fly. Bouldin saw what he was doing. He himself was armed with a pistol, but was too far off to shoot, but the man had the first shot. So Bouldin lifted his hand across his heart, or he would have been a dead man instead of a live one. He got the load in his body full of shot. As it was his arm received fearful lacerations and his breast was riddled. After the first shot the shiner had discharged both barrels at once) the mountaineer fled. Bouldin, however, was not done. He knew the man would come back. So he went a little distance down the hillside and lay down behind a fallen tree. He was too weak from loss of blood to sit. However, he raised his left hand to the top of the log and waited for six hours. He was almost fainting when, through the haze that had gathered in front of his eyes, he saw the shiner returning. Bouldin almost with his last strength pulled the trigger. The shiner fell a little inside of the mark than Bouldin usually shot. The man tumbled over and flopped like a decapitated pigeon. Bouldin lived a week in torture and that mountaineer is still at large.

The next story that Redmond told was about a still which Jim, in the terror of the Stokes County (North Carolina) shiners, was the leader with Walter Dais as his aid. Charley Tate, a revenue man, was sent to attack it, but he mistook the place and did not arrive in time. In Kernersville, N. C., there was a man named Jordan and he and a friend, Hall, went to the place. Hall killed in the fight which followed. The elder Jordan was not suspected, but he soon was. When the officers arrived they met the elder Jordan. They told him that they had come to examine the premises. He said it was agreeable to him, and the second floor was found a half dozen barrels of illicit whisky. They rolled these out on the ground and a dozen officers began to break them open—the search proved to be a third floor, which in these country houses is an attic, with the only entrance through a trap-hole in the ceiling and there are no steps. A man has to remove the cover of the manhole, and if he has no ladder, must swing himself up. When the officers asked him to remove the cover he suddenly lost all his politeness.

"If you want to go up there you'll have to remove the cover yourselves," he said.

David took him at his word and removed it. Smith was in the attic and seen as the cover was removed Davis leaped into the opening. He had hardly got his hands in when Banner Jordan, who stood below, threw a pistol, a revolver and tore Davis's right arm from the fingers to the elbow. Nevertheless, Davis kept on trying to get up, and Smith had to pull him down by main force. Just then Banner Jordan tried to spit his body pierced and in doing so he knew enough the blustering and cowardice and fled. The floor fell forepmost, and he landed shooting with pistols in both hands. Davis pulled his pistol and shot back. He put six bullets into Jordan through and through.

Smith was busy keeping out of the range of both the contestants. At last he found an opening, and, stealing around Jordan he put the seventh bullet into him and finished him. Then he put his left arm around Davis and started with him downstairs. In his right hand was his trusty revolver. As they got down the door opened and the elder Jordan emptied a shotgun at them. The charge struck and disabled Smith's right hand in which he held his pistol, while Davis—he whipped the weapon into his left hand, which he never removed from around his partner, and shot the younger Jordan dead, sending him to join his son. He took no aim. They didn't do it in that country. A pistol is as natural to them as their hands. And they take no more aim than they would to throw a stone, and they can kill a bird in a treetop with a throw.

Smith knows all the ways of the 'shiners. He used to be one himself, and while he was in the heyday of his lawlessness no Deputy from the Government ever went after him and come back. After a half dozen had been lost this way a seventh was sent to the same country.

THE CURSE OF WOMEN.

Those Who are Compelled to Beg for Money.

Of all the burdens a woman is called upon to bear there is none that can be made so galling to her as dependence. Man is usually, in the family life, the breadwinner. He never knows the woman wants comes to her from his hands. It could, of course, be given to her in such a way that she could forget how her self-respect is one of ten is not. Consequently, if she is a proud woman, she will bewail in secret her dependence and mourn over the shame and humiliation which it brings to her. Men are seldom so mercenary as women, but for the selfish pleasure of showing their power masters, like the jailer who rattles his keys lest the prisoner forget that he has lost his liberty, they neglect in most cases to make a stated allowance for household expenses, but say with a lordly air: "The money is always here; if you want any, ask for it." It may be handed over without a murmur, but the very fact of being obliged to ask for it is humiliating to a sensitive spirit.

Were a man to would he not allow my children to come to me for every nickel they wanted, but I would make them an allowance. That would teach them just the value of money and make them less extravagant and would cultivate that feeling of independence which goes so far toward making a successful character.

We are all more or less conceited, and to have money which is absolutely her own gives a woman a feeling of self-respect that is very comforting and conceit. There are wives who have to use all the diplomacy of a foreign minister to obtain a new gown. You know some husband is always scanned of his wife's "down-at-the-heel" appearance. Almost all women, no matter what their social position, have a passion for dress, admired, and not more than one in a hundred would be a sloven if she were allowed sufficient money with which to clothe herself properly.

Go into any down-town haunt where Bacons is king and you will see these same husbands idle away a day's wage upon socialists. Look at them among the votaries of fortune who crowd around the long paper-type or perhaps some back room where the purlieu poet ticker are rapidly passing to a motley crowd of masters, clerks and even porters who play the horses, they will be found in force.

In the evening the wife fondly begs for money for a new gown for "Laura," then the (soft) indulgent husband and the (soft) indulgent wife go to the theater, of course, with "the ruinous expense of keeping up a family" as the text.

Then, on the other hand, there is the unselfish boy or brother who spends his money on lottery tickets nor slot machines; who works early and late that his children may have a better start in the field, who no need to toil, and to maintain the ostentation of display upon which depends the social success of a vain and frivolous wife. This family seems to think that all the "head of the family" is good for is to accumulate riches and pay bills. They stand before him with open hands, crying, "Give, give," as the horse leech of Scripture. These men are as much martyrs as any that were ever burned at the stake. Perhaps this same extravagant family, if confronted with the question in figures which every month they spend more or less foolishly, would be surprised and incredulous. If has been so often urged, it is safe to say again to all husbands and fathers, make your family an allowance, that in very shame the extravagant may restrict their expenditures, and that the sensitive wife and daughter may be spared the humiliation of begging for a mere pittance, and may feel their dependence so keenly, when they should in fact be equal sharers in the family purse, although no more than equal. There is a justice in all things.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

(A Maddening Jingle.)

Fortune for a Lad.

At Columbia, Maury county, Tenn., 20-year-old William Howard was left an estate by his mother a few years ago. The money was put in the home farm. When phosphate was discovered on the place he refused to sell. Young Howard has just leased the property to a company which pays him a royalty of $1.20 a ton on all phosphate mined, and he is growing rich at the rate of $1,000 a day. Over 500,000 tons are on the farm.

THE MINERALS OF CUBA.

Results Do Not Demonstrate That the Field Is Either Large or Varied.

THE HOLGUIN GOLD MINE

Copper Occurs Frequently and There Are Quantities of Manganese and Iron.

Mines That Had Lain Idle for More Than a Century—Total Lack of Systematic Exploration—Coast Range Rich in Hematite and specular Iron Ores—Many Claims Located in the Sierra Maestre.

If we listen to the voice of the charmer, or go in books or Cuba for our information, we shall find that the mineral resources of this island include gold, silver, mercury, lead, antimony, copper—in the mine, iron, manganese, pitch, bitumen, and even coal; but when we look for practical metallic results commensurate with these varied mineral resources we shall be disappointed.

The gold fiction is the most time-honored, for the original Spanish settlers expected to find gold mines in Cuba. According to their historians, "much gold was taken from this island at the beginning of the conquest," but it would appear that most of this was taken from the chiefs, or caciques, of the Indians and very little from the ground. "El Viage-o Universal," Madrid, 1707, says: "Some of this metal (gold) is still found at Holguin." Whenever the existence of gold in Cuba is discussed this "mine" del rio Holguin is invariably brought forward. It is true that some work has been done at this point and a little gold has been extracted, but there has never been any systematic exploration, and there is nothing there which may be dignified with the name of a mine.

In like manner most of these mineral resources have given away at the search light of investigation, until only copper, iron and manganese remain. Of most of the others listed above, it is fair and proper to say that they have been found but not worked. It may fairly be doubted if mercury and coal have ever been found, although "denunciations" of mercury exist.

Copper occurs frequently, in greater or less quantities, in the metamorphic rocks which form a large portion of the island of Cuba. The principal occurence is as chalcopyrite, in quartz veins in the metamorphic rock, at the village of Cobre, in the mountains about twelve miles west of the city of Santiago de Cuba. The mines at this point were discovered some three hundred years ago and were worked to a limited extent, but always as crown possessions or under royalties to the crown. They were abandoned and had been idle for more than a century when, in 1830, an English company reopened them and worked them systematically and actively, employing as many as 2,000 men. A railroad was built from the mines to Santiago Bay. The remains of this road still exist.

JURAGUA MINE

The railroad was owned by a Spanish corporation, which owned the mines and railroad became involved in litigation. The railroad company won its suit, "but killed the goose that lay the golden egg," for the excessive freight charged by the railroad, the reduced price of copper, the scarcity of labor, and the breaking out of the ten years' war combined to close the mines once more.

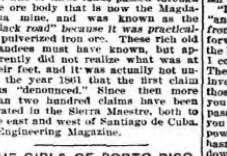
The extensive plant of the English company—which included what was, in its time, the largest Cornish pump in the world—their crushing and concentrating machinery and buildings, are now perishing but a picturesque heap of ruins.

There is no available record of what these mines have produced, but the deepest shaft seen by the writer was 600 feet deep and the underground workings are said to have been very extensive.

There are a number of manganese mines in the province, mostly to the west of Santiago de Cuba, which have been worked in a desultory way the lack of proper transportation facilities making it impossible to work them on any considerable scale, although the ore is very high grade. The Ponupo Mining Company, an American corporation, has built a branch of the Sabanilla y Moroto railway into its mines and is shipping extensively.

The iron mines near Santiago de Cuba, gone, Ily known as the Sierra Maestre, is rich in hematite and specular iron ores. Great quantities of fine ore aside have been dissolved out by the action of surface waters, from which they have been redeposited in concentrated form. In many, probably in most cases the ore bodies are the result of the weathering of isolated bodies of crystalline, and their replacement by iron oxide from the percolating waters. For this reason they are without definite walls or regularity of arrangement. They are scattered along the range of hills for a distance of eighteen or twenty miles, but there is no continuity of formation.

The region where these deposits exist was formerly occupied by the plantations of wealthy Spaniards. Everywhere in these beautiful hills can still be seen the remains of the fine roads shaded by bamboo hedges, over which the proprietors passed in their volan-



HARBOR OF SANTIAGO.

tes. One of these roads passed through the one body that is now the Magdalena mine, and was known as the "black road" because it was practically covered over with ore. These rich old grandees must have known, but apparently did not realize what was at their feet, and it was actually not until the year 1901 that the first claim was "denounced." Since then more than two hundred claims have been located in the Sierra Maestre, both to the east and west of Santiago de Cuba.—Engineering Magazine.

THE GIRLS OF PORTO RICO.

Four of Them in a Smoking Tournament With Americans.

Americans who come down here are both amused and surprised at the vast amount of smoking indulged in by the native women, writes a Porto Rican correspondent of the New York sun. Those of high standing socially are not addicted to the habit, but among the country women the practice is almost universal. And the fair ones do not confine themselves strictly to cigarettes, either. Big black cigars in the mouths of really very pretty young girls are a common sight in the country districts. Cigarettes are really more of a luxury, because the paper in which they are rolled has to be bought, but the tobacco for cigars can be raised and rolled by any one taking the trouble.

Not long ago the writer, then recently arrived, rode into the country one fine day and stopped at a native shack on the military road. Four smiling women greeted him at the door. One of them was perhaps thirty years of age and had a baby in her arms. The other three were not more than fifteen, although they had the development of American girls much older. They were all dark of skin, but with that shining straight black hair which is so often seen on the Indians in whom is combined the Spanish with the negro blood.

Having given him water, the Porto Rican invited the stranger into their home, and then began the customary linguistic wrestling bout, in which the simplest ideas were exchanged only after much violent gesticulation, facial and digital effort. During the conversation—so called by courtesy—the woman with the baby became so excited that she laid the baby on a table on the table and began puffing at it furiously to calm her nerves. The visitor was also excited, although somewhat surprised at his hostess' action, he felt it to be his duty to offer cigars to the other members of the party. The three young girls accepted the offer with pretty little waves of the hand and just as though it was the most natural thing in the world. They reached for a box of matches, which, by the way, are the most plentiful things on the island, there being three match factories in successful operation—and lit up with the nonchalant air. They smoke with much gusto inhaling the smoke like the ordinary American cigarette smoker. And how they did enjoy it! It would be a thing to boast of, but the Porto Rican woman can spit with all the power and precision of the most inveterate male tobacco chewer that ever lived. It is really amazing. Sad to relate, all their skill is wasted. The spittoon is unknown, and they would much rather use the floor than the corners. Nearly all the rooms in this country would be considered far from a happy one.

Snakes the Cats of the Philippines.

The snakes are the professional rat catchers in the Philippine archipelago, and every well-regulated household must have one. Manila is full of the taller bungalows in Manila," a correspondent writes, "possess what are called house snakes—huge reptiles, twelve or fourteen feet long and as thick as a fire-engine hose, that permanently reside in the roof and live on rats. These big creatures are harmless and rarely, if ever, leave their abodes. Judging from the noise over my cloth ceiling, a pair of these pets find pasturage up above, and I can hear them wheeling around about once a week in their chase after rats.

They are good though noisy rat catchers; but since they must needs eat all they can catch, their efficiency seems to be limited to their length of stomach. The only way to get rid of the rats seems to be to buy more snakes, and this is simple enough, for you often see the natives hawking them around in towns, the boas curled up around bamboo poles, to which their heads are tied.

VOICES OF PROJECTILES.

A Warning Note That Makes Seasoned Veterans Duck Their Heads.

ACTION IS INVOLUNTARY.

Difference in the Character of Sound Which Is Made By the Big Shells.

Scream of the Eight Inch Shell and the Angry Roar of the Thirteen—Sampson's Message to General Toral Which Was the Real Means of Accelerating His Surrender.

One of the naval officers off Santiago was talking about ducking his head when bullets or shells came uncomfortably close, and, as he was never known to duck, he was asked why he did it and heard the song of projectiles funumerable in the Civil as well as in the Spanish war, what he said was listened to. "I duck because I like to duck," he said, "and ducked hard, when a 13-incher from the Oregon went over our deck, forward, and pretty close, too, during the bombardment. Help it? Of course I couldn't. Neither could anyone else. The pregnant hinges of the knee work involuntarily in reverence to one of those roaring missiles. You duck as you would wink if a fellow made a pass at your face or would sneeze if you struck a feather up your nose. Will power isn't any good in such emergencies hasn't time to work. Your head bobs down and your legs bend before you can say to yourself: 'I am a coward.' I cordially ass.' Funny, too, and also involuntary, I think, is the quick look that follows the bobbing to see if you have been observed. You think you have been and equally of course nothing is said because everyone knows by experience how it is himself."

"How are the bullets—Mausers, for instance?" I asked.

"Oh, they're different. Generally they come too fast for ducking and you quickly get used to their whine or their zip. You know, too, that if the sound is a whine the bullet is a good way off and if it is the sharp 'pat' it is too late to move, as the missile has passed you. Besides, the rifle bullets are usually expected, while I never knew the close arrival of a big projectile to be anything but surprising. I think, too, the windage must have something to do with the effect on nerves and muscles. I have seen the big shells that were discussed as to how close an 8, 10, 12 or 13 inch shell in full flight could come to a man without knocking him over by atmospheric displacement. One doesn't seem to be any rule; seems to depend on the man, or his position at the time the shell passes. It is not believed, however, any one could keep his feet if a high calibre shell came within five feet of him. I have no ambitions in that."

"Did you ever notice the difference in the character of the sound made by an 8, 10 or even a 12-inch shell and that which accompanies a 13-inch, 1100-pound fellow?"

I assured him I had not, as when an kind fate made me an attendant at such elaborate funeral feats I thought of sins, not sounds.

"Well, it's very marked. Now your sub-calibre projectiles, and even the bigger ones from 6-inch guns, have a petulant sort of wail with them. There is a great deal of the spiteful mingled with it. Once, however, I've heard an eight-inch cry as if in agony, and the scream of its flight, as it left you, sunk into a sob almost human. But that is exceptional, although some and says so. Its tone is horror made manifest, but the horror that is inspired, not that which is felt. There are few, on the other hand, who have heard as the devil makes his twelve-mile leap. An angry, dominating roar, a demoniacal spread of sound, a very savage outburst of passion in the air—that's what the thirteen tells to the tympanum. But, bless my soul, what rot I'm giving you. Almost anything is beyond talk, though, if the greatest poetry is that which most deeply stirs the heart, I imagine the threnody of the big thirteen is not prosaic."

Thinking over this queer differentiation of projectile sound—as if some shells could be heard as well as they had to do, while the most destructive of all fairly cloat through space on their missions of death—I understood better the purport of Sampson's message to Toral, when the Admiral told him: "I have been firing 12-inch shells into Santiago to-day. You must surrender. The Oregon, Massachusetts and Indiana will open on you with 13-inch shells to-morrow, commencing about 9 o'clock."

Toral surrendered, as you will remember, and in his despatch to Blanco mentioned this Sampson ultimatum.

"Oh, My! Oh, My! : Wasn't Scared."

A surgeon relates that before Santiago, he (the surgeon), going to the front, met with a young officer sitting beside the road, trembling like a leaf, and whither than the dead men around him. A sight of the wounded he began to talk, says the San Francisco Argonaut.

"I'm a coward. I'm a coward, I'm a coward," he said. "I'd never 'a' thought I did. I'm disgraced forever. I was going along all right, not thinking of anything but getting at the darned Spaniards, when I tripped on some on, and running ahead as fast as I could, when all of a sudden I stubbed my toe, or something, and down I went headlong, heels over head, but I must have been, for I came galloping back here, sick as a dog. I'm a coward, and I wish I were dead! Why don't you put a bullet through me? I've got such an awful goneness right here," and he put his hand to his stomach.

The surgeon gave him a quick look and caught him as he plunged forward in a faint. Where the awful goneness was a Mauser bullet had found its billet. They carried the wounded man to the field hospital, and he chuckled all the way. "Oh, my! oh, my!" he said over and over; "I wasn't scared! I wasn't scared!" and then he would laugh delightedly: "I wasn't scared! I was hit—I was just hit. I ain't a coward after all."

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY,

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Somerset County Nominations.

For Senator.

James J. Bergen.

For Member of Assembly,

L. M. S. DuFour.

Somerset County Candidates.

With a condition of affairs existing in the Republican party that will tend largely to contribute to Democratic success, the Democrats of Somerset county have nominated a ticket that ought and probably will result in once more putting the county in Democratic ranks.

Hon. James J. Bergen of Somerville, heads the ticket as a candidate for Senator. Mr. Bergen is a man whose public record, and it is an extensive one, commends him to not only loyal Democrats but as well appeals to the support of respecting Republicans who desire the triumph of clean, fair politics and an able representative of the interests in the highest legislative branch of the State government.

First of all, Mr. Bergen knows the needs of Somerset county people as well as any man in that bailiwick. The greater part of his life has been spent there in active participation in its affairs, and if elected to the high office for which he has been nominated he will be in a position to appreciate personally what action in the Legislature will best serve the interests of his constituents—Democrats and Republicans alike.

Beyond his personal ability, Mr. Bergen also has had the advantage of having had the experience of several years of Legislative life, during which he was recognized as one of the most brilliant and capable Legislators in the State. There is no man in the State who, as a member of the State Senate, would command more respect and influence than Mr. Bergen, and in this respect Somerset county voters may rest assured that any measure he might introduce for the benefit of their interests would be more likely to become a law than if it was in the hands of a man who, while personally able and honest, did not have the Legislative experience that the Democratic candidate possesses.

Somerset county Democrats should realize that the next Senator from that county will vote for a United States Senator next year, and as partisans it is their duty to rally loyally and enthusiastically to Mr. Bergen as the representative who is pledged to carry out the ideas held by the Democratic party of that county.

Mr. Bergen's running mate is L. M. DuFour, a bright, aggressive and popular young Democrat, as a candidate for Member of Assembly. Mr. DuFour is a pleasing personage, who can be depended upon to represent the county faithfully and conscientiously in the Lower House. He deserves and undoubtedly will receive the full Democratic vote in the county.

Plainfield's Need.

There seems to be some prospect of securing another factory in this city other than the one mentioned in last Saturday's Press. It is understood that a large concern has an eye upon Plainfield as a most advantageous place to re-establish a plant that will employ a number of skilled mechanics. That is what Plainfield needs—a greater number of diversified industries.

It is the cities having factories and plenty of good mechanics located permanently within her borders that are always prosperous. A manufacturing town is a lively place to live in and one in which enterprising business men are found in good numbers.

The mechanic is the fuel which keeps the merchants' machinery in operation. The mechanic makes a good citizen and the money he earns is spent in the town where he earns it.

GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF

to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally indulged in and almost as universally injurious. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite.—Coffee upsets the stomach, ruins the digestion, affects the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

Cheaper Gas in Passaic.

The city of Passaic is undergoing an experience similar to Plainfield in the effort to secure gas at fair rates, but as Passaic has been agitating the subject longer, with more chance of definite developments, it will be profitable and interesting for the people of this city to know something about how our sister city is progressing in the matter.

In the first place it was proposed to establish a municipal plant in Passaic, but the committee in the Common Council who looked into the project struck a formidable obstruction by discovering that there is no law in New Jersey that permits of a municipality owning a gas plant. This information will doubtless be a surprise to many, and as applied to the situation in Plainfield it seems that the only way to secure relief from the present high rates will be by private competition. The People's Gas Company would therefore seem to have a very strong point in its favor in applying for a franchise in this city.

The agitation in Passaic has done something, however, as it will in Plainfield, probably, even if the People's Company should fail in its present effort to get a foothold, and that is that the old company has already offered better terms for furnishing the commodity than could have ever been expected if there had been no likelihood of competition.

The Paterson and Passaic Gas Company, which has had much the same kind of a monopoly as the Plainfield Gas Company in this city, has submitted a proposition that will tend to give the city fair rates, although it puts the company in the unenviable position of admitting that they have been charging more than a realization of a fair profit in the enterprise required. The company agrees to cancel its present contract with the city, and make a new one for the city which will give the city greatly reduced rates—in some instances almost a reduction of 100 per cent. The company also agrees to make a wholesale reduction in the rates to private consumers by a sliding scale for a period of five years, which will finally bring the price down to $1 per thousand square feet of gas. Up to a short time ago the company was extorting $1.80 per thousand feet from the people of the city.

The inability of establishing a municipal plant in Passaic, however, has resulted in the organization of the Citizens' Company, which, like the People's Gas Company, of Plainfield, guarantees to furnish gas at a maximum price of $1 per thousand feet from the outset.

Under such conditions it would seem as though the Passaic officials would be acting for the best interests of the community by granting the new company a franchise.

In one of its facetious moods the Hackensack Republican makes this suggestion: "The Hoboken statesman, William D. Daly, is pleased with the idea that his name may be brought before the Democratic National Convention next year as a candidate for vice-president. Stranger things have happened in the Democratic politics of this State than that Mr. Daly's name should be presented to the convention by Mr. Gourley, of the New Jersey delegation. Why not make this an event for having a love feast and harmonizing the party?"

One report says that Vice-President Hobart is a very sick man and almost simultaneously another report says that he is on the high road to recovery. But whatever his condition may be Mr. Hobart has the kindly wishes of Jerseymen, irrespective of political persuasion, that he may regain his good health and continue to fill his high office in the distinguished manner his Washington career has thus far been noted for.

The majority of the delegates elected at the Essex county primaries will favor Samuel Kalish, a well known Newark criminal lawyer, for State Senator; Jacob Haussling, of Newark, for Sheriff, and Horace Stetson, of Orange, for Surrogate. Haussling and Stetson may not accept. In that case it will probably be George M. Titus for Sheriff and Oliver H. Perry for Surrogate.

The idea of a permanent clubhouse for the use of loyal Democrats for political and social purposes the year around ought to be a popular one with the members of that party.

Middlesex county would probably think itself out of the land of the living if it did not have an attempted or actual murder case to deal with every few weeks.

The young Democracy of Elizabeth is said to be pushing Bernard J. Higgins for the nomination of County Clerk by the county convention Friday.

The white winged dove of peace did not roost among the Republicans of Plainfield last night.

To Cure Constipation Forever.

Take Cascarets Candy Cathartic. 10c or 25c. If C. C. C. fail to cure, druggists refund money.

The Inventor.

A Missourian has design'd a combination of shovel, poker and tongs in one implement for fire-place use, the poker having a pair of lugs, which carry it in a slot in the shovel handle, to extend over the blade and form the tongs.

Broken umbrella ribs are easily repaired by a Canadian's invention, consisting of a tubular section of metal, having its interior shaped to fit the rib, with set screws in one side to be tightened and grip the broken end of the rib.

For holding conductor's checks on car seats a new device is composed of a small magnet secured to the side of the car or on the seat, while each check has a small strip of metal at one end which is attracted by the magnet.

Horses' blinders have been patented from blowing into the car windows by the use of a new guard, which is designed to be placed between the sill and the raised sash, and extend out from the side of the car far enough to shield the opening.

Chicago inventors have patented a shield for pneumatic tires which will protect the tire from punctures, the tread being flat and extending beyond the tire, and the inner edge with a metallic strip inserted in a slit formed in the face of the tread.

Cattle are prevented from getting on the railroad tracks at grade crossings by a new guard, which is formed of zig zag plates, bolted to the ties to form ridges and depressions parallel with the rails, the sharp spikes set vertically on the plates.

To add to the comfort of bicycling a spring attachment has been patented, which is inserted in the rear fork, with a centre rod in each fork engaging the hub connection, the springs holding the rods down and lessening the shock and jar to the rider.

For use in mortising holes in doors for the insertion of locks, etc., a new boring tool has a series of cutting bits set in sockets in a frame, with gear wheels connecting the sockets to revolve all the bits by connecting a brace to one bit and turning it.

Broken rudders on ships at sea can be replaced by a Canadian's temporary steering device, which comprises a set of brackets slung to fit portholes of the hull, with guy ropes for holding them in position, the rudder frame being carried by the brackets.

Paper can be reduced to bicycles without the necessity of tying by the use of a Pennsylvanian's device, a bracket being clamped to the frame which is made to carry a pair of curved spring forks, which press against the rear fork to grip the package.

A resident of New Zealand has invented a thimble which has a section at the tip recessed to contain a small steel disk with a sharp blade set in the bottom of the recess to sever a thread when picked up by the hook, making a handy device for a seamstress.

Vegetables can be rapidly sliced or mashed by a newly designed cutter, having a hopper resting over a set of knives carried by a base, with a lever mounted on one side of the base to depress a plunger in the hopper and force the vegetables between the cutters.

A combination couch and chair has been designed, having the seat portion double, and the upper section hinged to the lower to turn outward and be supported by the arms, while the hinged back is lowered into a horizontal position and rests on two folding legs.

Loaves of bread can be kept fresh for some time by a Boston man's patent package, which is made of waxed paper or other air and waterproof material, the bread being placed in the package and sealed up while the loaf is at a temperature of about 90 degrees.

A new tethering device allows animals to feed over a large area without incumbering them with a long rope to entangle their feet, a long rod being fastened at one end to a stake, with tangent wheels on the rod, which allows it to be drawn around by the animal.

An interchangable billiard-cue tip has been patented, which is formed of a button with an eyelet in the rear, the tip of the cue being slotted and containing a hook rod operated by a cam lever to engage the eye of the tip and draw it tight against the end of the cue.

The Cynic.

Even the worm will turn—perhaps into a butterfly.

When marriage is a failure the husband sometimes liquidates.

The man who has no price is the only one really worth buying.

A woman never forgives a man his failure to ask to be forgiven.

When a man is riding a hobby it's always a good plan to give him the road.

Some feminine matchmakers seem to make a specialty of friction matches.

It's a sad blow to the loafer when the boxoffice receipts fail to jar on.

Art may be long at times, but it's usually too short to make both ends meet.

Too much of the repentance nowadays is done in broadcloth and ashes of roses.

Some people are inclined to mind their own business, but lack the ability to do so.

We will soon begin to hear of "draft riots" caused by people failing to shut the door.

Although a man may acknowledge he has faults he seldom owns up to those his friends accuse him of.

It may be cowardly to kick a man when he's down, but it's sometimes necessary in order to get him up.

The Classic.

Manners easily and rapidly mature into morals.—Prince Hoare.

It is not alone what we do, but also what we do not do for which we are accountable.—Moliere.

Zeal is very often a blind, or badly regulated, when it encroaches upon the rights of others.—Pasquier Quesnel.

I love to lose myself in other men's minds. When I am not walking, I am reading. I cannot sit and think. Books think for me. I have no repugnances, Shakespeare has performed for me, nor Jonathan Wild too long.—Lamb.

Wit, like every other power, has its boundaries. Its success depends on the multitude of others it deceives and impresses, and that as some bodies, indissoluble by heat, can set the furnaces and crucibles at defiance, there are minds upon which the rays of fancy may be pointed without effect, and which no fire of sentiment can ignite or exalt.—Johnson.

The Filipino.

Filipino women never wear hats.

American compositors earn good wages.

Sale of liquors on Sunday is strictly forbidden.

Freedom has an editorial calling for the arrest of bicycle "scorchers."

The children of the peasants usually run nude till they are 8 to 10 years old.

Natives are rarely seen on the streets of Manila after 7 o'clock. This is owing to military orders.

The number of Spanish now in the Philippines is less than any time during the last fifty years.

The police are keeping their eyes open for cases of cruelty to animals. A native was fined $10 for driving a horse with a broken leg.

The highest mountains of the Philippine Islands are Halcon (Mindoro), 8,868 feet; Apo (Mindanao), 8,804 feet; Mayon, active volcano (Luzon), 8,283 feet, and San Cristobal (Luzon), 7,375 feet.

"As a sound and promising investment for capital it would be difficult to find any industry in the Philippines that could beat the cultivation of rubber plant in this respect," says Freedom.

The women stick to their Philippine costume, which is very becoming in its rich colorings and openness. The stockingless feet are slipped into dainty little embroidered velvet shoes with wooden soles.

Since the beginning of the war Manila's foreign population has increased greatly. There are always fortunehunters and many adventurers of various kinds ready to follow in the wake of a conquering army.

The peasants wear only what necessity demands, but that they may happen to have. The men get on nicely with muslin trousers reaching to the knees, while a piece of gaudy cloth wrapped jauntily over the shoulders give to the women a singular picturesqueness.

A Kansas soldier boy, writing to his folks, conveys the astonishing information that he was arrested and lodged in the guard-house for "trying to observe the Sabbath." A little further along, however, he explains that he slipped away from camp and went fishing.

The Porto Rican.

Baseball is popular.

Bonds are being built.

Engineers are in demand.

Hammocks are the usual beds.

Coffee sells for five cents a pound.

Ten oranges can be bought for one cent.

There are no venomous reptile on the island.

The hotels are distinctly bad, the stores the same.

Every traveler says the island's greatest need is schools.

The coffee crop is three times as valuable as the sugar crop.

There is general satisfaction with the American system of collection of affairs.

Spain was the island's market. That has been taken away and the tariff prevents trade with the United States.

So far the development of production is concealed the present facilities are inadequate, and will have to be improved if trade is to expand.

A few Spanish newspapers in San Juan make a point of attacking the official acts of every American holding government jobs, whether he is doing his duty or not.

Practically all timber for building is imported. In fact, there are no mills. With plenty of water power for paper, twine, sacking, etc., with lots of water power, practically, not a factory can be found.

The prevailing idea of the United States, according to a traveler, is that it is a country about half the size of Porto Rico, which has a city called New York and a few smaller ones. Porto Rico is so big that it is about the size of San Juan and not nearly so large as Ponce.

The Atchinson Globe Man.

An Atchison woman takes a husband, seven children, five son-in-laws, twenty-seven grandchildren, four nieces, two nephews, an uncle and five cousins in your way to the top of the ship and draw it tight against the end of the cue

When a bride's husband goes away it is necessary to amuse her, as they amuse a baby when its mother goes down-town to trade at the store.

There are many pretty girls in a certain church in Atchison while the preacher takes great credit to himself because the sermons attract the young men.

It is said that an Atchison old girl pays a young man to take her around and be "devoted" to her.

Church people should be patient with the girl who quits going to prayer meeting when she is in love. She will drift back in a few months to ask their prayers for her husband.

There are two sisters in Atchison. One is proud and lordly and is posted on all the smart talk, and the other is meek, suppressed and apologetic. The two kinds of women took a trip together, and when at a hotel in a strange town the lordly one registered as "Miss ——— and maid." The suppressed sister was too meek to protest and and the lordly sister had a good time that day in a lordly way.

The Hawaiian.

There are no labor unions.

Taxation is on a basis of 1 per cent.

Royal sentiment has died out completely.

It is estimated that $25,000,000 is invested in sugar.

Land worth $5 an acre three years ago now sells for $50.

Native markets are poor, and nearly everything eatable has to be imported.

Many new plantations are being capitalized for amounts varying from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000.

The natives still feast on taro, raw fish and poi, and are still the careless, lay people they have always been.

Skilled labor is in good demand, but unskilled labor is a drug, the supply of Japanese and Chinese being large.

At the time of its discovery by Capt. Cook, the population of the island was about twice as large as it is to-day.

There are just as many physicians, dentists, and lawyers in Honolulu as there are in any city of the same size in the United States.

Since annexation there has been a mania for consolidation in the city of Honolulu, and even the larger shops and candy stores have formed trusts with a view to discouraging outsiders from offering competition.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

John I. Blair, the venerable Jerseymen, in his earlier days owned a western railroad along the route of which he established a series of lunchrooms, at which employes of the road were to be charged 50 cents and all passengers 75 cents. Mr. Blair once dined at one of these, and, concluding his meal, laid down a half dollar. "Hold on!" cried the cashier, "you don't belong to this road." "I know that," replied Mr. Blair, "the road belongs to me."

It has been suggested by a reader of the Daily Press that the citizens at once take steps to remember the brave boys who are in the Philippines fighting to uphold the honor and glory of these United States. By sending the soldiers Christmas boxes will be a handsome way in which to show that we all appreciate the dangers and hardships which the gallant wearers of the blue are enduring while following to victory the Stars and Stripes Quartermaster General Ludington has made public the fact that the Government has decided to transfer free of charge from San Francisco any Christmas boxes which may be delivered there prior to November 20, for distribution to officers and soldiers in the Philippines. Such boxes should be consigned to Major O. F. Long, General Superintendent Army Transport Service, San Francisco. The Government will also forward from New York any Christmas boxes which may be delivered there prior to Nov. 1, such boxes to be consigned to Major B. F. Jones, General Superintendent Army Transport Service, Pier 29, Columbia Stores, Brooklyn, N. Y. All freight or express charges to San Francisco or to New York must in every case be prepaid by the senders, the maximum weight of boxes to be about twenty pounds. Who will take the initiative in Plainfield to help make some soldier boy happy on Christmas morning by receiving a box from home—dear old America? Almost any person will be willing to chip in for so worthy an object. While some of the churches in this city are doing a laudable thing in trying to help along the cause of the foreign mission they should not forget the brave boys so far from home. This is not an act of charity but simple displaying gratitude for the services of some brave Americans who are strangers in a strange land among a tribe of savages.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

English grammar will be taught in the educational department of the Y. M. C. A. if a sufficient number desire instruction.

References to the advertising columns of this paper will show the attraction at the first entertainment of the Y. M. C. A. Star Course, to be given Oct. 30th.

PILES

"I suffered the tortures of the damned with protruding piles brought on by constipation, which grew worse. I submitted for years. I ran across your CASCARETS in the town of Newell, Ia., and never found anything to equal them. To-day I am entirely free from piles and feel like a new man."
C. H. KEYES, 1411 Jennings St., Sioux City, Ia.

CANDY CATHARTIC
Cascarets
TRADE MARK REGISTERED
REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c.
... CURE CONSTIPATION. ...
Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York. 328

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to cure the Tobacco Habit.

1831 Seventieth Year. 1900
THE
Country Gentleman.
The ONLY Agricultural NEWSpaper,
AND ADMITTEDLY THE
Leading Agricultural Journal of the World.

Every department written by specialists, the highest authorities in their respective lines.

No other paper pretends to compete with it in qualifications of editorial staff.

Gives the agricultural NEWS with a degree of fullness and completeness not even attempted by others.

Best Reviews of Crops.
Best Market Reports.
Best Accounts of Meetings.
Best Everything

Indispensable To
All Country Residents
WHO WISH TO
KEEP UP WITH THE TIMES.

Single Subscription, $2;
Two Subscriptions, $3.50;
Four Subscriptions, $6.

Special Inducements to Raisers of Larger Clubs.

Write for particulars on this point

Club Agents Wanted Everywhere.

Four Months Trial Trip 60 cents.

SPECIMEN COPIES

will be mailed free on request. It will pay anybody interested in any way in country life to send for them. Address the publishers.

LUTHER TUCKER & SON,
10 19 8 ALBANY, N. Y.

CLEARING SALE
OF PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of of good second-hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7	Octave Square	$ 40
7¼	"	70
7¼	" Upright	120
7¼	" "	165
7¼	" Hallett & Davis	190
7¼	" " "	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20. $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

$200 and up, and 5 years' time if you want it. Other makes: Cabinet Grands, all improvements. $220—4% per month.

4 Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,
94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS
500 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.
CONTENTS:
Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.
Same book in better binding 50 cts.
HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York

JAS. M. DUNN,
Dealer in
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS, VEGETABLES,
FRUITS &c
GARDEN SEEDS
fresh and carefully selected.
224 PARK AVENUE
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.

Everything usually found in a first-class grocery.
Goods delivered free of charge.

P. P. VanArsdale,
PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 160, or left at Willett's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 E. Front street, corner Elm street. 9jlyr

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer
Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 132, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. R. CODINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law
Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corne of Park avenue and Second street.

Children cry, Teething
Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POST OFFICE.
NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7:50, 8:40, 11:30 a. m.; 2:50, 5:00, 5:30 p. m.
Close—7:30 a. m.; 12:30, 4:30, 6:30 p. m.

SOMERVILLE and EASTON.

Arrive—8:40 a. m.; 3:00 and 6:15 p. m.
Close—7:30 a. m.; 12:30 and 4:30 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7:50, 8:40, 11:30 a. m.; 2:50 and 6:15 p. m.
Close—7:30 and 9:15 a. m.; 12:30, 5:00 and 7:15 p.m.
Through fast mail for West and South, close 5:00 and 7:15 p. m.

WARRENVILLE.

Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—9:30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m.
Mail closes at 6:15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M.

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Anthracite Coal Used Exclusively, Insuring Cleanliness and Comfort.
Stations in New York, foot of Liberty, and South Ferry Whitehall Streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT OCT. 30th, 1899.

For Somerville at 5:18, 7:14, 9:37, 11:05, 11:39, 7:29, 7:55, 8:00, 8:53, 8:56, 9:27, 9:46, 9:54, 10:00, 10:26, 11:00, 11:29 a. m.; 12:02, 1:45, 3:30, 3:41, 4:02, 4:46, 4:47, 5:00, 5:27, 5:54, 6:04, 6:21, 6:30, 6:47, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:17, 11:28 p. m. Sunday 2:14, 3:27, 5:08, 7:19, 8:32, 10:05, 10:50, 11:39 a. m.; 12:00, 1:45, 3:17, 3:30, 3:41, 4:02, 4:46, 4:47, 5:00, 5:27, 6:08, 8:21 p. m. Sunday night, 12:02, 1:45, 3:30, 3:41, 4:02, 4:46, 4:47, 5:00, 5:27, 5:54, 6:04, 6:09, 6:19, 6:38, 7:12, 7:54, 8:37, 10:26, 11:29 p. m. 12:22 a. m. Sunday night. Sunday, 8:00, 9:55, 10:44 a. m.; 2:03, 3:46, 5:09, 6:25, 8:30, 10:35, 11:16 p. m.

For Easton at 5:18, 8:19, 9:54 a. m.; 1:03, 2:20, 5:27, 6:08, 8:21 p. m. Sunday at 5:45, 9:32 a. m., 12:03, 6:03, 6:08 p. m.

For Lake Hopatcong at 9:54 a. m.; 5:27 p. m. Sunday at 9:32 a. m.

CONNECTIONS.

5:18 a. m.—For Flemington, Lambertville, Easton, Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Upper Lehigh, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

7:29 a. m.—For Flemington and High Bridge, connecting for stations on High Bridge Branch except Chester.

8:39 a. m.—For Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R. Easton, Bangor and Mauch Chunk.

9:54 a. m. to Sun.—For Chester, High Bridge Branch, Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R. Easton, Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Pottsville, Shamokin, Mt. Carmel and Upper Lehigh, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, etc.

1:03 p. m.—Way for Easton, connecting at Junction with D. L. & W. R. R. for Delaware, L. & B. R. R.

2:20 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Williamsport, Reading and Harrisburg.

5:27 p. m.—For Flemington and Easton, Bethlehem, Bangor, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Reading, Harrisburg, connecting at High Bridge for stations on High Bridge Branch.

6:19 p. m.—For Flemington.

6:38 p. m.—For Chester and at Junction for D. L. & W. R. R.

7:54 p. m.—For Easton.

8:45 a. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Williamsport, Reading and Harrisburg.

5:08 p. m. Sundays for Flemington and Easton.

6:08 p. m. Sundays—For German Valley, Flanders, Kenvil, Easton, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Reading, Harrisburg, Sunbury, Williamsport, Reading and Harrisburg.

5:09 p. m. Sundays—For Flemington.

6:25 p. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Reading, Harrisburg.

FOR LONG BRANCH, OCEAN GROVE, ETC.

Leave Plainfield at 9:37, 8:13, 10:27 a. m.; 3:46, 4:17, 6:27 p. m. Sundays, except Ocean Grove, 8:32 a. m.; 3:30 p. m.

For Perth Amboy, 3:27, 5:27, 8:13, 9:27, 9:32, 10:27 a. m.; 1:35, 3:46, 4:17, 5:27, 6:27, 8:05, 11:28 p. m. Sundays 8:32, a. m.; 3:30 p. m.

For Bound Brook, 3:27, 8:13, 10:27 a. m.; 4:17 p. m.

For Freehold, 3:27, 8:13, 10:27 a. m.; 4:17, 6:27, 8:05 p. m.

For Lakewood, Toms River and Barnegat, 3:27, 8:13 a. m.; 1:35, 4:17 p. m. Sundays 8:32 a. m.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

Leave Plainfield for Philadelphia, 3:27, 8:13, 8:44, 9:46, 10:44 a. m.; 12:03, 1:35, 2:36, 3:46, 4:17, 5:27, 6:27, 8:05, 9:27, 9:32, 10:27 p. m.; 1:17 night. Sundays, 8:13, 8:44, 9:46, 10:44 a. m.; 12:03, 2:36, 4:17, 6:27, 8:05, 9:27, 9:32, 10:27 p. m.; 1:17 night.

For Trenton, 3:27, 7:12, 8:13, 8:44, 9:46 a. m.; 1:03, 2:36, 4:17, 5:24, 6:27, 8:05, 9:27, 9:32, 10:27 p. m.; 1:17 night. Sundays, 8:13, 8:44, 9:46, 10:44 a. m.; 12:03, 2:36, 4:17, 6:27, 8:05, 9:27, 9:32, 10:27 p. m.; 1:17 night.

For Baltimore and Washington at 3:27, 8:44, 10:44 a. m.; 2:36, 4:17, 6:27, 9:27 p. m. Sundays, 3:27, 10:44 a. m.; 2:36, 4:17, 6:27, 9:27 p. m.

For Buffalo, Chicago and all points West, week-days at 12:03 a. m.; 4:17, 6:27 p. m. (Pullman passengers by trains marked) change cars at Bound Brook.

Through tickets to all points at lowest rates may be had on application in advance to the City Ticket Agent at Plainfield.

J. H. OLRAUSEN,
General Superintendent.
H. P. BALDWIN,
General Passenger Agent.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect May 21, 1899.
LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N.J.,

6 05 a. m. daily, and 7 25 p. m. daily except Sunday, Easton local.

9 08 a. m. daily, Express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

11 58 a. m., 3 34, 5 32 and 9 26 p. m. daily except Sunday. Local for Bound Brook.

12 58 a. m. daily except Sunday, Express for Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

4 56 p. m. daily except Sunday, express for Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Mauch Chunk, Shenandoah, Ls. & R. Junction and principal intermediate stations.

6 22 p. m. daily except Sunday. 6 28 p. m. Sunday Mauch Chunk local.

7 02 p. m. daily except Sunday, Pottsville express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

9 02 p. m. daily, express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto. Carries sleeping car for passengers only, except between New York and Mauch Chunk, and no baggage east of Sayre.

10 55 p. m. daily except Sunday, for Easton, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Towanda, Sayre, Elmira, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge and Chicago. Day coaches from New York to Chicago.

EASTWARD.

For New York and Brooklyn, local, 6 40, 7 40 and 9 40 a. m. 2 45 and 5 03 p. m. 2 45 p. m. Sunday. Sunday 10 31 a. m., and 4 56 p. m. Express, 12 05, 8 36, 10 29 a. m., 12 22 and 7 11 night. 2 05, 7 11 and 9 25 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday 7 05 and 8 34 a. m., 7 27 and 7 11 p. m. 8 05 p. m. daily, except Sunday.

PERTH AMBOY BRANCH.

For Perth Amboy and intermediate stations 6 05, 10 09 a. m., 3 22 and 5 32 p. m. daily except Sundays. Sundays 10 31 a. m. and 6 10 p. m.

Trains leave Perth Amboy (State street) 7 15, 8 30 a. m., 4 20 and 6 30 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday 7 15 a. m. and 5 42 p. m.

For further information call on or address the Ticket Agent at Plainfield, N. J. Through tickets to all important points south and west may be procured at the South Plainfield office. Telephone 33 P. Call up up without extra charge. The Agent will gladly answer all questions.

COL. ROBT. W. WILLIAMS,
General Superintendent.
26 Cortlandt St., New York.
J. R. WOOD,
General Passenger Agent,
26 Cortlandt St., New York City.

NEW YORK TERMINALS—Foot of Cortlandt, Desbrosses and West 23d Streets.

DEMAND THE OLD RELIABLE
KRAZER
KRAZER
EVERYWHERE WILL WEAR AS LONG AS ANY OTHER
TRY THEM
USE THE BEST
KRAZER KNIVES

Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS.
Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies
141-145 North avenue.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

TROLLEY UP THE NOTCH"

INDICATIONS THAT LINE WILL BE BUILT IN NEAR FUTURE.

Over Sixty Per Cent. of Consents From Property Owners Have Been Secured, and Everyone is Anxious

It looks as though the trolley will at an early date be extended to Washingtonville, and thus bring the people in that section more closely in touch with this city. There have been many attempts to get the trolley extended, but all have failed, simply because there were two factions, one that wanted it to run near the Mountain Park Inn and the other wanted it to follow the main road to the Valley. Overtures are now being made to the Plainfield Street Railway Company to extend its line, and over sixty per cent. of consents of the property owners have been secured.

Last Saturday H. C. VanEmburgh, representing the Plainfield Street Railway Company, met with the Township Committee at Washingtonville and talked the matter over. The property owners are willing to make all reasonable concessions, and the trolley company feel disposed to give the people what they have been wanting for so long a time.

WEDDED WITHOUT ADO.

Jacob Proposed to Annie in the Moonlight and They Hurried to Plainfield to be Married.

The names of the young people from Westfield who were married by Justice Nash late Friday night proves to be Jacob Serr and Miss Annie Erbeck. It appears that Jacob and Miss Annie went for a walk Friday evening and while enjoying the beauties of the moonlight Jacob proposed that they cease living in single blessedness and get married. Annie was agreeable and to Plainfield they came, when Justice Nash made them happy. Mr. Serr is a barber and is in the employ of William Erbeck, father of the young woman he married. He was also a member of Company C, Third Regiment during the Spanish American war.

When Annie, the blushing bride, "broke the news to mother," she expected a scene, but the parents gave them a welcome and said "bless you, my children, bless you!"

FOR CHEAPER FARES.

Westfield Board of Trade to Join With Plainfield in Petition to Central Railroad Company.

The Westfield Board of Trade and Improvement Association, at a meeting held Friday evening, decided to join with the Plainfield Board of Trade in the effort to secure cheaper commutation tickets and rates of fare on the Central Railroad between Plainfield and New York.

A committee, consisting of President Martin Weller, Secretary B. J. Crosby, and the executive committee, composed of Postmaster L. M. Whittaker, James T. Pierson, J. S. Irving, H. L. Fink and W. S. Welch, were appointed to confer with a like committee of the Plainfield Board to devise a plan to be presented to the Central Railroad Company.

Returned Missionary to Speak.

Rev. Francis M. Price, a returned missionary from the Caroline Islands, made an interesting address at the Congregational church Sunday morning. The annual collection for foreign missions was taken. It was expected that Mrs. Price would address the Christian Endeavor Society in the evening but illness prevented her from being present.

Hurt His Knee Cap.

Jacob Gutmeir, aged 40 years, a farmer residing on McDowell street, was taken to the hospital Sunday afternoon suffering with a fractured knee cap. The accident occurred Saturday evening when Mr. Gutmeir fell at his home. The injury is not a serious one, but will detain him at the hospital for sometime.

A Church Bazaar.

A bazaar for the benefit of the German Reform church will be given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the German Reform church in the church from November 5th to 11th.

—Letter-Carrier Robert Loughlin, who drives a horse to a mail gig in making his rounds, has had a large umbrella made to fit the gig, thus he will be able to keep dry in stormy weather.

GIVE THE CHILDREN A DRINK

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee. 15 and 25c.

SCHOONMAKER CUP WON

MISS MAUDE VANBOSKERCK MADE THE BEST SCORE.

Result of the Play on the Hillside Club Links Saturday—Final Play in Joint Club Contest Which Was Tied.

The cool bracing weather of Saturday brought out a large number of players on the course of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club and throughout the day some very good scores were made. In the morning play for the Schoonmaker cup was the event for women. This was the second play for the cup and the contest was exciting, although there were eight players to enter. After a close contest Miss Maude VanBoskerck and Mrs. Charles Freeman tied with a net score of 115 for first honors. The former had a handicap of 10 while Mrs. Freeman's handicap was 26. In the afternoon the tie was played off, when Miss Van Boskerck won handily by 2 up. The next best score for the contest was 120 made from scratch by Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers.

The event of the afternoon was the play off of the tie between H. D. Hibbard, Park's, and Howard Wright, of the home club, for the silver cup offered by the latter club one week ago in joint competion. Both are fine players, and the contest was watched with considerable interest. The result was that Mr. Wright won the cup with a net score of 72. His gross score was 93, and his handicap 21. Mr. Hibbard made a gross score of 105, and his handicap was 25, making his net score 80.

The social features at the club were enjoyed thoroughly and during the afteroon tea was served. In the evening a large dinner party was given by some of the members of the club. The clubhouse was prettily decorated in harmony with the autumn season.

A MISSIONARY SERMON.

Rev. Mr. Heinrich in the Pulpit at the First Baptist Church.

Rev. Mr. Heinrich, of India, preached an eloquent sermon in the First Baptist church Sunday morning in which he described India as the most idolatrous of all nations, the number of gods being more than the number of people. In her degraded condition, robbed by sin and satan, he compared India to the man who went down from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell among thieves. In her wounded and helpless condition, she appeals to the Christian church to act the part of the good Samaritan and restore her to a healthy, moralized physical condition. Mr. Heinrich, with his wife, will return to India in two weeks, and he made a strong appeal for interest in the churches that should amount to sacrifice, if necessary, that the workers on a foreign field should be upheld and sustained without dreading the demand for retrenchment that so often came from the missionary board.

Catarrh Cannot be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.

Sold by druggists, price 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

A CHURCH FOUNDER.

Portrait of St. Lutheran's Patron in the Borough Unveiled.

Special services were held Sunday at St. Peters Lutheran church, on the return of Rev. Mr. Shaffer. At the close of morning worship a large crayon portrait of the founder and first worker in the parish, venerable Dr. E. F. Moldehuke, of New York, was unveiled. Though a surprise to the congregation the assembled members were quick to accept the appropriateness of the act. Resolutions of respect and thanks were unanimously adopted. The picture will in the future grace the walls of the sacristy antechroom.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

FIRE IN A PAINT SHOP.

BROKE OUT AT 1 A. M. AND MADE A LIVELY BLAZE.

Property Owned and Occupied by Jas. Smith—Supposed to Be Work of Incendiary—Embossing Works Scorched.

About 1 o'clock Tuesday a. m. fire broke out in the paint shop located on the property occupied and owned by James Smith, of Elmwood place. The building and contents were almost totally destroyed, entailing a loss of about $500.

The fire was first seen by Miss Hand, who lives next door. She opened a window and screamed fire several times. This awakened the neighbors, and just as a still alarm was being sent into headquarters by telephone, Patrolman Vanderweg, who was a short distance away, sent in an alarm from Box No. 46, corner of Liberty and West Second streets. Inside of a half hour the fire was completely extinguished.

The barn was of medium size and was filled with paints, oils, creosote and many other combustible materials. The building was located on the rear of the lot in close proximity to the Crescent Embossing Works, and if there had been a strong wind no doubt that large structure would have suffered. As it was the paint was scorched. There are other barns and small building close by that were in danger of being consumed.

James Smith, the owner, has been in Orange for several days visiting his daughters, and no one was at home but his son, Wm. M. Smith. He was awakened by the neighbors, but he could do nothing to save the burning building. No effort has been made to determine the cause, but it looks as if it was of incendiary origin.

HIS SECOND HOLD-UP

William French Met With Another Exciting Experience—This Time Near Union Village.

William French, of West Fourth street, who was held up two weeks ago on West Front street and shot in the arm by one of the highwaymen after a de-perate encounter with them, experienced another hold-up Monday night while on his way to his grandfather's home near Union Village. French, who was discharged from the hospital only a few days ago, and still carries his arm in a sling as the result of being shot, was walking along an isolated part of the road when a strange man stepped out from behind the bushes at the side of the road and refused to allow French to pass. French became frightened and started on a run back to "Highland Farm," where he told his story to Richard Rogers. The latter got out his shotgun and taking two dogs started towards the place where French said he had been held-up. They got trace of the stranger and followed him over Wolf hill, but lost sight of him when he disappeared in a thicket.

DEATH OF W. H. MOORE.

Occurred at His Home Monday Night—A Well-Known Citizen.

The death of William Henry Moore, aged 52 years, occurred Monday p. m. at his home, 530 East Second street, after a long illness with Bright's disease. He was one of Plainfield's best known citizens, having lived here for many years. For years he was employed by Schefflin, Schultz & Co., as a cutter. He was a member of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., and the members of that lodge attended the funeral in a body Wednesday afternoon from the late residence. Mr. Moore is survived by a mother, who lives in New Brunswick; a sister, Mrs. Wyckoff, of New Market; two brothers, Fred and Frank, of this city; a wife, son and daughter. Intermert took place at Rahway.

A VETERAN RESIGNS.

Central Ticket Agent Retires After 37 Years' Service.

Mark Osmun, the veteran ticket agent at Finderne, has resigned his position after being in the active service of the Central Railroad Company for 37 years. Mr. Osmun was severely shocked with lightning last summer. The telegraph wires had been disconnected from an instrument in the station and allowed to remain without a lightning arrester. During a shower the electric fluid came in and shocked Mr. Osmun and daughter. He never fully recovered. He will remove to Plainfield, where he will reside in the future.

A Distinguished Guest.

A distinguished guest in Plainfield over Sunday was Mahlon VanHorne, U. S. Consul, Danish West Indies He was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Brown, of Elm place. He is a brother of Mrs. Brown, and the two have not seen each other in several years. Mr. VanHorne's headquarters are at St. Thomas.

In a New York Hospital.

George Serrell, of this city, who has been employed on U. S. Transport Burnside, and who met with a serious accident while at Havana, has been brought to New York, where he is receiving proper treatment at one of the hospitals.

ADDED A TENTH.

Roselle Has to Pay a Claim for Near $6,000 With $600 Added Thereto.

The celebrated Waters contract case against the borough of Roselle, which has been pending in the courts for years past, and which involves over $6,000, has been ordered settled by the Borough Council.

W. H. Waters built the sewer system at that place in 1895. Difficulties arose between the contractor and the Council and the latter refused to pay him all the contract price. Henry Brothers, lawyers of Bayonne, represented Waters in his fight against the borough. Judge E. S. Atwater, of Elizabeth, recently acted as referee in the case, and awarded Waters $6,167 64, or about $400 more than the borough engineer's final estimate. Waters wanted $2,500 additional.

The Mayor and Council ordered Attorney Frank Bergen to settle the case with Waters for $6,180 44, which amount includes the referee's award, referee's fee of $150 costs of court and interest amounting to $7,770, which accumulated during the four years the case was being fought in the courts.

TOOK THEM BY STRATEGY.

Officers Captured Three Italians and a Justice Fines Them $160 for Killing Eight Birds.

Gabriel Marino, aged fifty nine, and Tony Marino, twenty-five years old, both residents of Brooklyn, were lodged in the Union county jail Monday afternoon for violation of the game laws. The prisoners were arrested on the outskirts of Roselle by Game Warden Hawkins and Constable Bonnell, who caught them after they had shot eight brown thrush.

There were three Italians in the party, and they showed fight by pointing their guns at the officers and threatening to kill them. The officers were armed with revolvers, but they concluded to try strategy, and opened a parley with the hunters. When the Italians lowered their guns Hawkins and Bonnell drew their revolvers and, rushing upon them, called on the Italians to surrender, which they did with very bad grace.

After being disarmed the prisoners were marched to Justice Noah Woodruff's office. He fined the men $20 for each bird killed, or $160 in all, with costs. One of the prisoners was released in order that he might go to Brooklyn and raise money enough among friends there to pay the fine. He had about $30 in his pocket which was held as security until he returns.

GRAND OFFICERS CAME.

Royal Arcanumites Enjoyed a Fine Time at Their Meeting Monday Night.

The annual visitation of the grand officers of the Royal Arcanum to Plainfield Council, No. 711, last evening was an important and interesting event in the history of the council.

During the evening one candidate was initiated and the work of the order was exemplified by Grand Regent L. A. Lightfoot. Brief addresses were also made by some of the other grand officers, after which a collation was served.

The following grand officers were present: Grand Regent L. A. Lightfoot, Vice Grand Regent Horace J. Bowen, Past Grand Regent J. D. Otis, Grand Secretary R. H. Alberts, District Deputies Messick and Drummond.

An Interesting Address.

There was an interesting meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church last Monday. The address of Rev. Mr. Rapelje, a returned missionary from China, was listened to by a large number of Endeavorers, who were highly entertained by the speaker. Miss Charlotte Meesresmith's solo was a feature of the meeting much appreciated.

Beauty Is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean your blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads, and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets,—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

Tea for Relief Association.

The ladies of the Plainfield Relief Association have sent out invitations for a tea to be given at their rooms 544 West Front street, Friday, November 3d, from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Paid Employes in Gold Coin.

The Singer Sewing Machine Company Saturday night paid off its 4,500 employe in the Elizabethport works in gold coin. This was a surprise to the operatives, and also to the shopkeepers to whom they afterwards presented the gold in payment for articles purchased.

Wm. Messler, of Woodbridge, who has been visiting his friend, Walter Higgins, of West Front street, has returned home.

Fred Bowden, formerly of this city, but now with the U. S. Army in Cuba, has written to his brother, Charles Bowden, of this city, and states that he is doing well and is enjoying himself very much. He says that the climate is fine and the boys are getting along all right.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB IS NOW ASSURED.

Ulrich Building on East Second Street Secured.

YOUNG MEN AT THE HEAD.

FORMAL OPENING WILL TAKE PLACE NEXT WEEK.

It is Planned to Maintain the Clubhouse the Year Around—A Membership Fee Will be Required That, With Good Support, Will be Sufficient to Maintain the Headquarters.

A Democratic club that will maintain a clubhouse the year around where members may meet for political and social purposes at any time is practically assured for Plainfield. A number of the young men—many of whom have not heretofore been identified with party affairs except as local voters—who have been agitating the project, met Monday and discussed the situation and the club idea.

A committee that had been looking into the details of the matter reported that the Ulrich building, on East Second street, known as the old Crescent League clubhouse, could be secured for the use of the club, and steps were at once taken and perfected towards obtaining the use of the building, which is excellently adapted for club purposes.

Another meeting of those interested will be held this week when plans will be perfected for the formal organization of the club within a few days and arrangements for putting the clubhouse work in full swing before the campaign is very far advanced.

As outlined now the members of the club will be required to pay a yearly fee of membership, the total amount received from such a source being estimated to be sufficient to maintain the establishment in good style twelve months in the year. During the campaign the clubhouse will be made the headquarters of party organization, and all Democrats will be invited to come there and enjoy the Democratic hospitality that will prevail.

Some day next week a formal opening of the clubhouse will probably take place, at which time the candidates nominated by the Democrats at the county convention next Friday, as well as those from Somerset county, will be made guests of honor and will be given a chance to greet the party voters to whom they appeal.

Educate Your Bowels With Cascarets.

Candy Cathartic, cure constipation forever. 10c, 25c. If C. C. C. fail, druggists refund money.

To Aid Relief Association.

Rev. John Brown, D. D., who is to give his lecture on "John Bunyan" in Plainfield, October 31st, is the sixth in succession from Bunyan in the Bunyan church in Bedford. His "Life of Bunyan" is the classic of English biography. He is the author of "The Pilgrim Fathers and Their Puritan Successors." He is one of the most distinguished of English Congregationalists. The fact that he is the Yale lecturer on "The Lyman Beecher Foundation" for the year makes it sure that he is a man whom it is a great privilege to hear. Subscriptions for the lecture to be sold at the nominal price of $1, each subscriber to receive four tickets. Subscriptions will be received by Dr. W. C. Snodgrass or Rev. C. L. Goodrich or Mulford Estil at his bookstore. If there are any profits from the lecture they will go the Relief Association.

Plainfield Representatives.

At the annual meeting of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held at Atlantic City Thursday and Friday of this week, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Madison avenue, chairman of the committee on education, will give a report, and David P. Hall, of Madison avenue, will present a paper on "Property Interests of Married Women in New Jersey." The delegates from the Monday Afternoon Club are Mrs. S. R. Struthers and Miss Emily B. Tracy.

Trust Those Who Have Tried.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind and never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that—Oscar Ostrom, 45 Warren Ave., Chicago, Ill.

I suffered from catarrh; it got so bad I could not work; I used Ely's Cream Balm and am entirely well.—A. C. Clarke, 341 Shawmut Ave., Boston, Mass.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Sold by druggists at 50 cts., or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

Politicians At Dinner.

Monday p. m. after the votes were counted in the First ward and it was known that City Clerk MacMurray had won his fight, the latter, accompanied by a number of his friends, adjourned to McVey's Hotel where for a couple of hours the inner man was looked after. Congratulations were extended and after a few popular songs by the City Judge, the affair terminated just as an alarm of fire was sounded.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

No.	CURE.	PRICE.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera, Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Facache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
18	Ophthalmia, Sore or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Asthma, Difficult Breathing	.25
22	Ear Discharge, Earache	.25
23	Scrofula, Swellings and Ulcers	.25
24	General Debility, Physical Weakness	.25
25	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Disease	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
29	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
31	Painful Periods, with Spasms	.25
32	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitations	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34	Chronic Congestions, Headaches	.25
35	Chronic Consumptions, Headaches	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists or Mailed Free.

Sold by druggists, or sent post-paid on receipt of price. Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

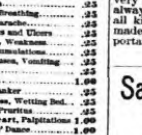
HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL "THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding. Itching Piles, Fissure, Fistula, Bleeding of the Rectum. The relief is immediate—the cure certain.

TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent post-paid on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

Nasal CATARRH

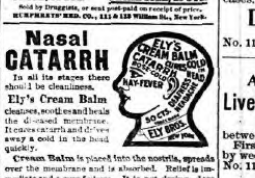


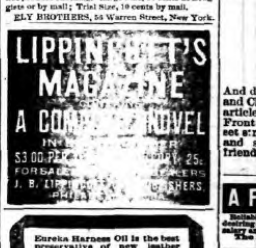
In all its stages there should be cleanliness.

Ely's Cream Balm cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased membrane. It relieves catarrh and drives away a cold in the head quickly.

Cream Balm is placed into the nostrils, spreads over the membrane and is absorbed. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. It is not drying—does not produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.

ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.





Wants and Offers

LOST—Collie Shepherds, brothers; collar on one; ten dollars reward for return or information at 657 E. 6th St. 10 24 1 c 26 2

DIED.

MORAN—In North Plainfield, Friday, October 20, 1899, Catherine, daughter of James and Margaret Moran, aged 3 years, 8 months and 13 days.

DOUGLASS—In this city, on Friday, Oct. 20, 1899, Archibald J., son of John E. and Margaret Douglass, aged 15 years.

MOORE—At his late residence, 530 East Second street, October 23d, 1899, William Henry Moore, in his 53d year.

Gen. Lee and His Fruitful Hen.

It was General Lee's custom to leave his tent door open in the morning for a sprightly hen that had gone into the egg business promptly and thus had saved her head. When she stepped in, General Lee would put aside his work and walk post deferentially upon the outside until her cackle announced the mysteries of egg-laying at an end. She roosted and rode in his wagon, was an eyewitness of the battles of Chancellorville and Gettysburg, and was finally sacrificed upon the altar of hospitality at Orange Court-House, in 1864.—November Ladies' Home Journal.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE,

Between Front and Second streets.

Tinners,

Plumbers

Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,

Brick and Portable Furnaces

Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing.

Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues. First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 261 West Front street, to South side of Somerset street, first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

A Free Trip to Paris!

Reliable persons of a mechanical or inventive mind desiring a trip to the Paris Exposition can hear of something to their advantage by addressing at once, with stamp and references, Box 773, Washington, D. C.

The PATENT RECORD, Washington, D.C.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsoria line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, COPYRIGHTS.

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of Information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public with out cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free.

Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue,

Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale and Exchange Money to Loan on Approved Security

ALIS OUTPLAYED RUTGERS ELEVEN.

Local Football Players Won By Score Of 22 to 0.

DEFEATED RUTGERS SCRUBS

PLAINFIELD SCORED IN FIRST THREE MINUTES OF PLAY.

Superior Team Work and Interference Gave Alis Boys an Easy Victory—Rutgers Team Were on the Defensive all the Time—Last Ball on Fumbles as Soon as They Gained It—Green's Longest Run of Forty Yards

While the Rutgers College 'varsity eleven was being snowed under by the Haverford College boys Saturday afternoon, the scrub team from the little college over at New Brunswick met with a similiar fate on Marine Common at the hands of the Alis eleven, of this city. The Alis boys played all around their collegiate opponents, winning by a score of 22 to 0. The game was witnessed by a large crowd numbering several hundred people.

The Alis team played good, snappy football from the start. The team work was noticeably sharp and the boys did not fumble at critical times as they did a week ago. The Rutgers scrubs lacked organization which they accounted for by the fact that several of their best men were with the 'varsity team at Haverford.

Plainfield had a kick-off and Dumont sent the ball well down the field. Rutgers' attempts to bring it back were unavailing and Plainfield captured the ball on downs. Dumont took the ball on a trick at Rutgers' twenty-yard line and crossed the goal line for the first touchdown in three minutes of play. Dumont failed to kick the goal. Score—Alis, 5; Rutgers, 0.

The ball again traveled right back into Rutgers' territory. End runs and line plays, aided by good interference, carried the ball to Rutgers' thirty-yard line. Then Cuming circled right end for another touchdown. Phillips punted out to Woolston and Dumont failed to secure the goal. Score, Alis, 10; Rutgers, 0.

The Alis boys started to repeat the performance, but after getting well down the field Rutgers held them for three downs, and Phillips punted for twenty-five yards. Stewart caught the ball and was downed in his tracks by Woolston. On the second play Rutgers lost the ball on a fumble. Alis made several gains and then lost the ball on downs at Rutgers' twenty-yard line when time was called.

Stewart kicked off for Rutgers on the second half. Phillips recovered twenty yards before he was downed. Then followed good end runs by Cuming, H. Smith and Green while Phillips and Taylor bucked the line advantageously. A run of six yards by Cuming landed the ball within half a yard of the goal, and Cuming carried it over for a touchdown after eight minutes of play. Phillips kicked the goal. Score, Alis, 16; Rutgers, 0.

The ball was returned into the visitor's territory without delay. Rutgers braced up and Phillips was forced to kick. After two gains, Stewart fumbled and Green picked up the ball, running forty yards for a touch-down. Phillips kicked the goal. Score—Alis, 22; Rutgers, 0

Phillips caught the kick-off and recovered ten yards before he was downed. The advance was continued. Cuming passed all the Rutgers' backs but Stewart on an end play and was downed by Stewart after running fifteen yards. Time was finally called with the ball in the possession of the home team on Rutgers' twenty yard line.

The teams lined up as follows:

RUTGERS SCRUB.		ALIS.
Smith	right end	Woolston
Handel-Roray	right tackle	Radford-Beard
Sagermond	right guard	Cuming
Vroer	centre	G. F. Smith
Hichener	left guard	Long
Brunk, captain	left tackle	Taylor
Morris	left end	H. Smith
Voelker	quarter back	Dumont
Herbert	right half back	Green
Meyer	left half back	Phillips, captain
Stewart	full back	Phillips, captain

Score—Alis, 22; Rutgers, 0. Touchdowns—Dumont, Cumming, Green. Goals on touchdowns—Phillips 2. Time—Halves of 20 and 15 minutes. Referee—John Brooke, of Rutgers. Umpire—Willis West, of Plainfield. Time-keeper—Harold Davis, of Plainfield.

Stony Brook Being Cleaned.

At the meeting of the Borough Board of Health Stony Brook is now being cleaned out and a channel is being made. Heretofore great trouble has been experienced in heavy rains because there was no channel, and in dry weather there were also many disadvantages. The attention of the Board of Health was called to the matter and it is being promptly attended to.

Candidate Bergen in Town.

James J. Bergen, of Somerville, nominee for State Senator on the Democratic ticket, was in Plainfield Saturday afternoon, and to a personal friend remarked that this year his ticket would win.

New Meat Market.

Adam Fritz has leased the store on West Front street, formerly occupied by Willis, the grocer, and is having it fitted up for a meat market to be conducted by his son.

CIGAR LABELS.

They Do Not Indicate the Quality of the Goods.

There is much difference between a "brand" of cigars and a "label." "A good brand" is very often taken to mean "a good quality." Very likely that was the original intention of cigar brands, as it still is of whiskey brands. But by the actual present custom of the trade the name which is burned or branded on the wood of the cigar box—the "brand" properly so called—has no necessary connection with the quality of the cigar, but only accidentally, so far as some particular make, peculiar to one factory, may be for the time exclusively applied to the manufacture of good tobacco. The "brand" tells the cigar seller something about the size and shape of the cigar. As years go on the application of these brands becomes more and more loose and irregular. Until recent years there used to be a regular gradation of size in about this order, the largest being called the largest. (1) Perfecto, (2) Puritano, (3) Concha, and (4) Conchita. Even this arrangement was by no means universal, and "Regalia" was known to the trade as a designation of large size long before anybody ever heard of "Perfecto." Then, again, Clear Havana brand indicative of both size and quality, a brand and a label in one, when the cigar was made in only one Havana factory. And the later result of competition, as well as of Cuban disturbances, are seen in the actually prevailing scale of brands. As brand differs from brand in shape as well as in length, it would take much complicated mathematical research to place the brands in the exact order of the volume of tobacco indicated by each.

Roughly speaking, however, they run, beginning with the largest, as follows: (1) Perfecto, (2) Conchita, (3) Concha Fino, (3) Puritano Fino—a thick cigar; (4) Puritano Extra, (5) Breva—thick end blunt; (6) Breva Chica, (7) Concha Extra, (8) Regalia Especial, (9) Conchita, (10) Reina Fina, (11) Petit Duc, (12) Opera, and (13) Chiquita.

About all this matter of brands nothing is certain, and the whole trade business is in a shifting and revolutionary condition. Thus, the Panetela, not mentioned above, would be placed by some after No. 1 Perfecto, because it is about as long, and by others after the Concha, because it is thinner. It was much easier to maintain a hard and fast rule when the cigar making industry was ostensibly confined to Havana, and all cigars, even if made elsewhere, had to pretend to be of that origin and conform to Havana customs in order to maintain the illusion.

It is curious to note, however, that manufacturers all the world still stick to Spanish words and traditions in branding and labelling their output. If a Rhode Island cigarmaker wishes to call that the best he can do, and really uncommonly fine he marks it "Delicioso." The colors of Spain still rule in the ribbons that tie the bundles of cigars—yellow and red. The latter are rare. When Cuba has become Americanized red, white and blue ribbons may take their places, even in cigar boxes, but that sign of the times has not yet been observed.—N. Y. Tribune.

Canada's Greatest Glory.

The greatest glory of Canada is not its modern progress, but its vast and ancient wilderness. If you weary of the nameless impressiveness of everything you know, go where I went last year, to the upper waters of the Ottawa, where the beaver is the master architect and the moose is king of the woods. See for yourself, as I saw, that the Ottawa and the Gatineau, appearing to come from merely distant regions, have their origin close together and are twins. Behold these two children of the lakes, nourished from the same mountain breast. Then, their courses and see that, though journeying far, in widely different directions, they finally arrive at a common destination.

Nobody knows all about that headwater country around the sources of the Ottawa. It is a prolific game region, for sportsmen rarely go, for the simple reason that they can get all the hunting they want nearer to the railroad. There are plenty of deer close to almost any Canadian Pacific station west of Pembroke, and it is not much trouble to get a chance at a moose in two days from Deux Rivieres, Rockliffe, or Mattawa. Nor many hunting parties start from there either, and I suppose the reason is that for thousands of miles to the west the woods, prairie and mountain are close to the railroad and afford almost limitless opportunities.

The territory inclosed by the Ottawa and the Gatineau has been from immemorial times the home of the Algonquin Indians, and they still regain there, in some measure, the primitive life they receive no annuity from the Dominion Government. In this they are unlike the Indians of the United States or their brother tribes of Canada.—Scribner's.

Decision Against Tugboat Marringes.

Judge Dougherty, of Santa Rosa, Cal., has rendered a decision in the case of Captain Wm. Bonham, recently brought to annul a marriage contracted on board a pleasure schooner outside San Francisco Heads. The Court declares that weddings taking place at sea in contravention of the statutes or by contract, or under any circumstances within the jurisdiction and some form of public solemnization, are illegal and void.

The Court further holds that children resulting from such unions, where consent was given by the parents, when the statutes governing such cases were revised by the Legislature, are without doubt illegitimate. Plaintiff and defendant in the case were married by a sea captain on Aug. 11, 1896, but Bonham having acknowledged the paternity of a child born to him the Court holds that it becomes the plaintiff's legitimate and adopted son.

Sound Under Water.

A scientist recently made some experiments on Lake Geneva to demonstrate the power of sound to travel a long way in water. The test was made to strike under the water, and was heard a distance of 12 miles. In a second experiment the striking of a clock was heard to a distance of 27 miles.

Color Due to Bacteria.

A scientist of Rio de Janeiro states, as a result of protracted and patient investigation, that the color and scent of flowers are due to bacteria, and that these germs are often of a kind that must be harmful to human beings.

TWO WEEKS MORE FOR M'CUTCHEN CUP.

W. J. R. Thiers Was Low Man for Trophy Saturday.

NO CHANGE IN THE LEADERS

THE FABERS DIVIDED SECOND AND THIRD HONORS.

The Competition for McCutchen and Buttfield Cups Will Only Last Two Weeks More—Result of Buttfield Cup Contest is Foregone Conclusion—The Other is Yet an Open Question.

The end of the competitions for the McCutchen and Buttfield Cups on the links of the Park Golf Club is now only two weeks off. The results of the play Saturday made no difference in the position of the leaders for either of the two cups. The result of the competition for the McCutchen trophy is still an open question, but it is a foregone conclusion that Miss Daisy Elsberg will win the other cup.

The sharp, brisk weather of Saturday saw a fair turnout on the links. Nearly a score entered for the McCutchen Cup, but only ten cards were turned in during the afternoon. The high wind of the early afternoon was somewhat of a handicap, while the leaves that covered the turf in places made it difficult to locate the balls.

W. de la R. Anderson was out on the course and appeared a likely candidate. He fell up against some hard luck on the last hole, which he made in ten, running his gross score up to 102. W. J. R. Thiers was playing in great form. His driving and brassie shots were particularly accurate and he played carefully on the green. As a result his gross score was 106, while his handicap was 12, which brought his net score down to 94, which was lowest for the day. The Fabers divided second and third honors with a net score of 99.

The greatest match of the day was between Edwin T. Douglass and Gifford W. Cooley. It was expected that Cooley would win first place but somehow the didn't. Mr. Douglas was modest and did not record his score. George C. Worth played his usual steady game. Morgan T. Townsend was way off his old form.

The scores handed in were as follows:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
W. de la R. Anderson	116	12	104
W. R. Faber	126	26	99
Charles E. Faber	123	24	99
George C. Worth	120	20	100
Samuel Townsend	125	24	101
E. T. Douglass	102	0	102
Gifford W. Cooley	118	9	109
J. H. Russell	127	18	109
M. T. Townsend	118	6	112
George Faber	117	5	112

The official standing of the candidates for the cup follows:

W. de la R. Anderson	13
Gifford W. Cooley	10
Meredith Dreier	10
Charles E. Faber	81
W. J. R. Thiers	7
Charles A. Reed	6
George Faber	6
G. W. Faber	5
E. T. Douglass	4
Samuel Townsend	4
W. R. Faber	4
Morgan T. Townsend	3½
Wm. A. Townsend	3½
E. E. Douglass	3
H. D. Hibbard	3½
J. H. Russell	3
Arthur Peck	2½
Edgar Sportsmen	2
S. S. Squires	2
A. B. Laing	2
Volney F. Green	1½
Fred S. Overton	1½
Clarence B. Reed	1½
Augustus VanDenter	1
W. D. McCutchen	1

Thiers jumped from ninth to fifth place as a result of the day's play, and has a chance of winning the cup if he scores three points in the two succeeding Saturdays that the competition continues. C. E. Faber remains fourth but crawled up a little on the leaders. W. R. Faber advanced from seventeenth to tenth place where he is tie with Samuel Townsend.

Miss Adelaide O. Ball was the only competitor entered for the Buttfield Cup. Her score was 91, which with a handicap of 13, gave her 78 net.

There has been no official announcement of the number of points yet scored for the Buttfield Cup, but an inspection of the past scores shows the following competitors and the points scored by them:

Miss Daisy Elsberg	30
Miss Sallie Rue Bell	15
Miss Adelaide O. Ball	3

Discharged From Bankruptcy.

The friends of Arthur A. Stryker, the well known carpenter and builder, will be pleased to learn that through the efforts of Codington & Swackhamer he has been discharged from bankruptcy. The decree was received Saturday. About ten years ago Mr. Stryker, while in business in Orange, made an assignment, turning his few assets over for the benefit of his creditors.

New Members of the Choir.

The following young gentlemen have recently joined the choir of Holy Cross Episcopal church: Robert Jeffry, Albert Clark, Willard Martin, Charles O. Dunlap, William B. Henry, H. R. Linbarger. There are now about thirty members in the choir.

Bicycle Stolen.

Last Friday Charles Hummer, of Stone street, had his valuable racing bicycle stolen and thus far has not been able to find it. The wheel was stolen from in front of a house where Mr. Hummer was working. Every effort is being made to trace the wheel and to find the person who took it.

FOUND HIS FATHER HANGING IN SHED.

Aged Henry Ludovice Committed Suicide Friday Night.

DISCOVERED THIS MORNING.

GREW DESPONDENT OVER FAMILY TROUBLES AND ILL HEALTH.

Retired at An Early Hour and Then Stole Out Quietly—Fastened Rope to Nail in Rafter and Jumped Off Box With Noose Around His Neck—Was Dead When Found This Morning.

A horrible sight awaited Henry Ludovice, Jr., when he went to the woodshed early Saturday morning. There was the rapidly stiffening corpse of his father dangling by a rope from one of the rafters of the shed. A fit of melancholia had caused the aged man to end his own life.

Henry Ludovice, Sr., was a well-known farmer of Middlesex county. His farm is located in West Dunellen where he has lived for many years. He was over seventy years old. Old age and ill health had compelled him to lead a comparatively inactive life of late. This fact, combined with family troubles, caused him to take a pessimistic view of life and he grew very melancholy at times.

Friday he retired early but the family did not notice anything out of the way with him. After the rest of the family retired, he stole silently out to the wood shed and, in the dark, made preparations to end his own life. He fastened a short length of rope to a nail on one of the beams and slipped the noose over his head. Then he stepped off a box and hung there, his feet just clearing the floor.

Thus his son found him at 5 a. m. Saturday when he went out to the wood shed to perform the early morning chores. He hastily aroused the rest of the family and Ludovice was cut down. Dr. Whitford, of New Market was hurriedly summoned but found that life had been extinct for some time.

MUSIC FROM AN ORGAN.

TALENTED RECITAL GIVEN AT THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Arranged By Organist William B. Miller, Who Was Assisted by Prof. P. Ludwig Conde on the Violin.

A delightful entertainment was provided those interested in music last Thursday at the First Presbyterian church. For nearly an hour and a half Prof. William Henry Miller, the organist of that church, and Prof. P. Ludwig Conde gave classical selections on the organ and violin that proved pleasing to a large and cultured audience.

The entertainment, strictly speaking, was an organ recital, Prof. Conde simply acting as an assistant to Prof. Miller, though the performance of the former gentleman was equally appreciated with the talented organist.

There were thirteen numbers on the programme and the efforts of the performers were highly satisfactory to those who had the pleasure of listening to them. Prof. Miller certainly gave evidence that he is a master hand in the manipulation of a pipe organ. Prof. Conde shows a delicate touch of the violin, whose sweet strains he brought forth in perfect harmony with the rich, full notes of the organ. The recital was as gratifying to those who had the pleasure of listening to it as must have been the flattering and complimentary reception accorded the performers.

LEG CAUGHT IN A WHEEL.

Andrew Boyle Badly Hurt While Riding in a Wagon With a Lot of Other Boys.

Andrew Boyle, aged 9 years, a son of Patrick Boyle, of 525 West Fourth street, was playing about the corner of Plainfield avenue Sunday afternoon when Edward Barry, greenkeeper at the Park Golf Club, drove up with a horse and wagon. The boys wanted to take a load. Mr. Barry allowed the boys to take the rig for a time.

Young Boyle was attempting to get into the wagon when his foot slipped, allowing his leg to get in the spokes. Before he could get his leg out he sustained a fracture of the bone just above the knee. His screams attracted the attention of the other boys who were driving and the vehicle was stopped. The lad suffered terrible pain, and his companions becoming frightened returned to the place where they started.

Roundsman Fredericksen happened along just about that time, and he picked up the injured lad and took him to his home, and from there he was taken to the hospital by his father. The injury was found to be a simple fracture, but the lad will be laid up for some time.

Lawsuit May Follow.

It is the opinion of many that the Church street crossing of the Central Railroad was never closed, and that if an effort is made to close it a lawsuit is likely to follow.

CHRISTIAN BOYS' WORK OUTLINED.

State Conference of Young Men's Christian Association.

CLOSING DAYS OF SESSION.

INTERESTING AND ENTERTAINING SERVICES HELD YESTERDAY.

Timely Talks With the Boys by Prominent Delegates Who Referred to the Splendid Work Being Done by the Association in the Interest of the Young—Views and Description of Camp.

The State conference on boys' work of the Y. M. C. A. was continued at Association Hall Saturday evening at 7:45. Edward D. Romer, of Madison, presided. A feature of this conference was the song service led by the members of the Newark Y. M. C. A. Boys' Orchestra. J. B. Carpenter, of Brooklyn, had charge of the quiet moments, and Harry S. Park, of Paterson, looked after the question box. The most interesting portion of the evening's entertainment, however, was the stereopticon views of the boys' camp at Westfield, on Lake Champlain. The boys enlivened the occasion by singing several verses of a parody "On the Banks of the Wabash," which was composed especially for the camp. The views were nicely explained by Charles T. Kilborne, of Orange.

The preparatory service at the First Methodist church Sunday afternoon was conducted by G. Albert Hall, of Montclair. At this service the boys' orchestra, of Newark, assisted. Their playing was much appreciated. After two or three hymns had been sung and a few moments of silent prayer, Edgar M. Robinson, Boys' Work secretary of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, delivered a brief address, that proved as instructive as it was interesting. Mr. Robinson divided his address into three heads. Under the first he called attention to the necessity for a man burdened with sin to be born again. Every boy must have in him the spirit of Jesus Christ and he will thereby grow up to be a God-fearing man. Under the second head Mr. Robinson referred to the necessity of a boy being lifted up to Jesus Christ if he hoped for eternal life. The only fitness necessary for cleanliness, he said, was for a boy to seek Christ at the earliest opportunity in his life.

The third portion of Mr. Robinson's address had to do with the importance of not delaying in seeking salvation. Jesus Christ stands knocking at your door and all He asks is that you bid Him welcome to enter. By opening your heart to God every boy is born again. The speaker referred to a question that had been asked at Saturday's meeting which was: "What keeps a boy away from Christ?" He said that he believed the principal reason was because boys were afraid that other boys would laugh at them. That was a poor excuse. God never made a coward. If a boy will open his heart Jesus will come in and when he once gets control of that heart no boy need have any fear of shame because one of his companions laugh at him. It will give you strength to withstand the scoffs because you will have been born again.

At the close of the address several of the boys gave interesting testimony. The exercises were closely listened to by a fairly good congregation of adults.

The closing services of the convention were held last Sunday at 7:30 o'clock in the First Presbyterian church. That edifice was crowded to the doors. L. H. Biglow, Jr., of this city, was in charge, and there was a song service led by the members of the Newark Y. M. C. A. Boys' Orchestra, which was a feature.

Donald MacColl, State Secretary, was introduced and he made a few remarks.

Edgar M. Robinson, assistant State Secretary, of Massachusetts, spoke especially of work for boys and its importance.

Then followed an exercise "Kept for the Master's Use," conducted by Charles R. Scott, assisted by members of the Newark Boys' Department. There was testimony by several of the boys and vocal and instrumental music. The hymn "Kept for the Master's Use," was sung by the boys and at the end of each verse a boy was asked to make a few remarks. Selections by the orchestra and vocal solos and duets by the boys made the service one of a great interest.

Before the meeting adjourned resolutions were adopted thanking Plainfield, the Y. M. C. A., the churches, co-laborers from other states, for their kindness during the convention.

The closing part of the convention then took place in the chapel of the church where the delegates assembled by themselves and joined in a season of prayer. This service was for the delegates only and was very affecting and helpful.

Victor Christoffensen, of Newark, spent Sunday with Plainfield friends.

MADE A FORTUNE.

In Speculation on a Small Sum Saved From Business Failure.

Less than a year ago John K. Bucker was conducting a hardware store. He was considered a fairly prosperous country storekeeper, and his holdings, his acquaintances say, probably totaled up $9,000. Last winter, however, he became involved, and about the first of January the Bank of Ephrata, which held judgment against him, closed him out at Sheriff's sale. His downfall, neighbors said, was due to his having tried his luck on the grain market. Be that as it may, his liabilities included bills in favor of firms in Philadelphia, Lebanon, Lancaster and Reading. Some of the concerns made efforts to realize when the Sheriffs sale took place, but the judgments of the bank were barely covered, and the firms believed that their loss was absolute.

When the crash came Mr. Bucker disappeared from his home. His creditors knew nothing of his whereabouts, and if his wife and family did they said nothing. He turned to farm work, it was afterward learned, and when he saw the inevitable he collected about $500 and went to Philadelphia and was lost sight of.

That $500 was Bucker's salvation. He started to deal in stocks, and when American Tobacco made its first big jump he was fortunate in having almost all his little fortune placed on that stock, and when the jump came he sold out at a nice, fat profit. He continued to place small amounts, and again fortune smiled upon him, for when the great Sugar rise came it found Bucker's money backing it. He bought long this time on Sugar at 135, and held on until it reached 1796, when he closed out. Shortly after he took the first strike in number of a large Market street firm was surprised to receive a call from him. He stated that he wished to pay his old bill and told of his fortunate deals on the market. In similar manner he paid all his creditors in Philadelphia, Reading, Lebanon and Lancaster. Just what his profits may be cannot be learned, but his Market street friend avers that he has shown a certified check for $25,000 on one occasion and $15,000 on another, and that the amount realized is over $100,000.

Mr. Bucker is not the kind of a man who would be looked upon as a plunger, but would be very careful and reticent.—Rheinhold (Penn.) Spe. New York Journal.

WILL FIGHT ROBERTS.

Women Will Continue Fighting His Admission to Congress.

Members of the American Female Guardian Society and Home for the Friendless, among whom are prominent women in this city, are disturbed over the prospects of Bringham H. Roberts being seated in Congress at the next session of that body, and they have begun a vigorous crusade against his admission to the national Legislature.

Several womens societies throughout the country have taken a stand against Utah's Representative on account of his polygamous ideas, and they are denouncing polygamy and urging all voters in their districts to bear on their Representatives in Congress to prevent the seating of the man from Utah.

Helen Gould says he very careful and reticent.—Rheinhold (Penn.) Spe. New York Journal.

Mrs. George Watts, president of the Guardian Society, says: "We intend to attack the evil, not from the religious standpoint, which seems unnecessary in the present case, but from the legal. We believe this is the best way to reach the voters and prevail on Congress not to seat Mr. Roberts. We hold that Mr. Roberts is a lawbreaker, and he has failed to keep his word, which he gave when he went to Washington as a member of the commission which sought the admission of Utah into the Union as a State. According to the constitution," adds Mrs. Watts, "one wife can be a voter or hold public office who has more than one wife. We think it is easy enough to prove that Mr. Roberts has two or more. Hence he has no right in Congress. Furthermore, when he went to Washington as commissioner he gave his word of honor that he would do his best to abolish polygamy in Utah, and would not take a second wife while his first was living. We think it can easily be proven that he has broken his word by taking another wife. Now, the question is whether the army of voters and the members of Congress can enforce such a law in Congress. We shall ask all of our husbands, brothers and sons to use their influence with members of Congress to prevent the seating of Mr. Roberts, and we believe that if public opinion is sufficiently aroused our purpose will be accomplished."

(Brigham Roberts.)

"How do you make your paper pay? I never see it anywhere."

"We print pictures of prominent men and they buy it."

"To distribute?"

"Oh, no; to destroy."

"Politics is getting to be men's religion."

"I hadn't noticed it. Seems to me men are as much interested in politics as they ever were."—Detroit Journal.

ACTIVE SEASON FOR PARK CLUB BOWLERS

Bowling Committee Announces The Winter Schedule.

MATCHES FOR MEMBERS.

BENEDICT-BACHELOR CONTESTS TO BE HELD DURING HOLIDAYS.

The Park Club Has Not Yet Entered Into Any Tournament So Far—Matches For Members Arranged for Sunday Nights—Tuesday and Saturday Nights to Be Devoted to the Sport.

The time has come for a resumption of activity among the bowlers of the Park Club. The alleys are now in fine condition, having been repaired and restored to their original condition since the summer. So far, there have been no active steps taken for a team to represent the club in any tournament but the bowling committee has arranged a pleasing programme of events for the winter season. The bowling committee this year consists of F. O. Ball and H. D. Hibbard.

Every evening sees some of the bowling enthusiasts on hand for a little practice. The usual Tuesday and Saturday evenings bowling will continue on these evenings. Interesting inprompu matches may be expected.

The first series of matches among the club members scheduled for the fall is that between the "Longies" and the "Shorties." The names tell for themselves of the composition of the teams. All the members who turn out on the nights of the matches will be divided between the two teams. The number on the teams will be unlimited.

Then there will be one match between the "Kids" and the "Patriarchs" which will also be open to all comers. The youthful contingent of the club believe that the older generation are "easy things" and will make an attempt to demonstrate that fact.

The annual contest between the Benedicts and the Bachelors, ten men on a side, will be held during the Christmas holidays. There will be three games. Later in the season five men teams representing Plainfield and North Plainfield will meet for a series of three games.

The bowling committee has now announced the following schedule for the fall and winter:

Saturday, Oct. 28	Longies vs. Shorties (All Comers.)
Saturday, Nov. 11	Longies vs. Shorties (All Comers.)
Saturday, Nov. 25	Longies vs. Shorties (All Comers.)
Saturday, Dec. 9	Kids vs. Patriarchs (Five Men Teams.)
Saturday, Dec. 23	Bachelors vs. Benedicts (Ten Man Teams.)
Saturday, Dec. 30	Bachelors vs. Benedicts (Ten Men Teams.)
Saturday, Jan. 6	Bachelors vs. Benedicts (Ten Men Teams.)
Saturday, Jan. 20	Plainfield vs. N. Plainfield (Five Men Teams.)
Saturday, Feb. 3	Plainfield vs. N. Plainfield (Five Men Teams.)
Saturday, Feb. 17	Plainfield vs. N. Plainfield (Five Men Teams.)

CITY MILLS LEASED.

An Ohio Man Will Succeed F. P. French—Has Rented the Mills for Five Years.

After being in the milling business for over half a century in Plainfield, P. M. French has decided to retire from active business. He has leased the City Mills, of which he is the owner, to Jacob Snyder, of Ohio, for a term of five years, commencing next Monday. During this week the business incident to the operation of the mills will be adjusted, and a week from today Mr. Snyder will assume the entire control and management of the industry. The new proprietor is a practical miller of many years' experience and comes here with the highest references. He will undoubtedly conduct the business in the same reliable way in which it has been run for years.

Mr. Snyder will move his family here at once and take up his residence in one of Mr. French's houses at the corner of Craig place and Duer street.

SURPRISED MISS AGNES MORSE.

Friends From Plainfield, Westfield and Elizabeth Gathered at Her Home.

An enjoyable surprse party was given to Miss Agnes Morse, of Jackson avenue, Thursday evening by a number of friends from this city, Westfield and Elizabeth. It was arranged by the Misses Porter and Miss Mabel Firstbrook. The evening was very pleasantly spent in dancing and playing games. Supper was served late in the evening.

Those present were the Misses Frances Cone, Marion Porter, Mabel Firstbrook, Ida Ferman, Lizzie Gutick, Nellie Coalman, and Margaret Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Caspar Wagtow, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Walker, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Morse, Harry Northrop, Edward Holder, Arthur McVoy, Rudolph Marsh, of this city; Peter Rudolph, Charles Kimble, Louis Hardingham, George Young, Frank Randolph and S. Smith, of Westfield, and many others.

W. W. Hart, of 30 Duer street, has returned from an extended western trip.

DOUBLE INTEREST IN THIS NUPTIAL EVENT

Also Celebration of the Bride's Parents' Silver Wedding.

WEDDED BY SAME MINISTER.

MISS MATIE T. VANHORN AND CHAS. H. GREER THE COUPLE.

After the Ceremony and Reception Was Over the Young Couple Went Forth to Find Their Carriage Gaily Decorated—Given Rousing Send-off at Station—Guests Who Were Present.

An event of double interest October 18th was the marriage of Miss Matie T. VanHorn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. VanHorn, of 171 Duer street, to Charles H. Greer, also of the borough, and the celebration of the silver wedding anniversary of the bride's parents, which took place at the above address at 8 o'clock. The latter event fell on Sunday last, but it was so arranged that the two celebrations were held at the same time. It was twenty-five years ago that Rev. Dr. W. C. Nelson, now of Summit avenue, married Mr. and Mrs. VanHorn, and last evening he officiated and united in marriage their daughter.

Dr. Nelson, in performing the marriage ceremony, remembered the parents and they came in for a share of the blessing. The ceremony was that of the Episcopal church. The couple was married with a ring, the bride being given away in marriage by her father. The bridge was gowned in a very becoming costume of steel grey, and carried a bouquet of bride roses. She was unattended, as was also the groom. As the party entered the parlor where the marriage took place the wedding march was played on the piano by Miss Edna Schooley, of Elizabeth, cousin of the bride.

The home was prettily decorated for the occasion with autumn foliage, potted plants and flowers.

After congratulations were offered a wedding supper was served. About 9 o'clock the guests began to arrange for the departure of the bride and groom.

Soon afterward the coach that conveyed them to the North Avenue station arrived, and the guests, together with a number of the clerks from Woodhull & Martin's store, where the groom is an employee, began to decorate it. White streamers were tied on and beneath the coach in the centre was suspended a large dinner bell, while from the back could be seen a sign "The Knot Has Just Been Tied." When the couple appeared they were showered with rice, while the blast of tin horns, the ringing of dinner bells, all assisted in giving them a good sendoff. As the coach went rolling down the street the large bell announced the event

At the station the couple tried to elude the crowd, and walked through Park avenue to Fourth street and then was obliged to run for the train which was coming into the station. There again the tin horns and bells were heard, and the couple found a jolly crowd in the train waiting to receive them. The passengers caught on quickly and applauded them as they entered and took seats and they had no time to feel lonesome.

They will be absent from the city until Saturday when they will return and take up their residence in the house at 114 Grove street, which the groom has completely furnished and is ready for occupancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Greer were handsomely remembered with tokens of esteem from their many relatives and friends, who join in wishing them a long life and a successful and happy one.

Those present at the wedding included Mrs. Angle, Mrs. Heller, of Stroudsburg, Pa.; E. B. Schooley, wife and daughters, Mrs. J. Madison Drake, Jr., of Elizabeth; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roll, of Linden; Mr. and Mrs. Smack, of Morristown; Mrs. Goeble, of New York; Mrs. Greer, mother of the groom, and Miss Smack, of Madison; Mrs. Sweitzer, of Somerville; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. VanHorn, parents of the bride, Miss VanHorn, sister of the bride; Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Williams, of the borough.

Success is Assured.

There is no doubt whatever about the success of the rendition of "The Messiah" which is to be given in the First Baptist church during the Christmas holidays. The chorus, which is composed of local talent, has been doing excellent work under the direction of E. J. Fitzhugh. The music is not new to many but those to whom it is have taken up the work with vigor and Mr. Fitzhugh is very much pleased with the progress made.

—The management of the Hotel Kensington expects to have the improvements, now being made, completed in about three weeks. The new addition is enclosed and the work of plastering almost completed.

TROLLEY WILL RUN ALONG PARK AVENUE

Council Decides to Grant the Proposed Ordinance.

NOT TO TOUCH MACADAM.

TRACKS TO BE LAID AT THE SIDE OF PRESENT ROADBED.

Strong Objection Made to the Plan at the Common Council Hearing, But the Council Seemed to Think That it Was the Proper Thing—Ordinance Progressed Towards Being Passed.

There was an adjourned meeting of the Common Council Thursday, and the principal topic of conversation was trolley, especially the proposed extension through Arlington avenue to Randolph road and Park avenue, and thence to Woodland avenue, the cemetery and golf grounds. There were present at the meeting Councilmen Burrows, Homan, Coriell, VanHerwerden, Buckie, Smith and Lisike. Mr. Smith was made president pro tem in the absence of President Andrews.

Mr. Barrows then moved that the regular order of business be suspended and an opportunity be given anyone who desired to speak concerning the trolley through Arlington avenue. Before anyone spoke on the subject communications were received from Rachel Randolph, E. F. Randolph, Lucretia Smith, Charles Randolph, N. H. Randolph, Eliza A. Wooden and other residents of Park avenue, in the vicinity of Randolph road, in which they gave their consents to have the trolley run by their property for a distance of 1,600 feet, according to the proposed map and plans of the trolley company. This was accompanied by an affadavit from Street Commissioner Gavett, testifying to the number of feet of consents, which were found to be correct and true.

The hearing then began, and Charles Opdyke, a former councilman, was given the opportunity to speak. He argued against using Park avenue for the trolley. He said that he was a large taxpayer, and while he did not own land on Park avenue he favored keeping the trolley off the avenue and thus preserving it as an outlet to the nearby towns, and a place where a person with a good horse could take a pleasure drive. He said that he also spoke for J. Wesley Johnson, James Clark and Marion S. Ackerman, who could not be present. He said that Park avenue was laid out and macadamized at a great expense, and it is a question as to whether the city wants the trolley on it and not a few people living in that section. He argued that the street from curb to curb is forty feet wide, and of this the trolley company would use one-third. He did not think it would be safe to drive along there with a horse, and then it would practically close all important outlets from the city. He hoped the Council would at least give the people more time to think over the matter of using Park avenue, and would not rush the thing through.

Charles W. Runyon, manager for the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, talked in favor of the trolley. He said that the people living along that avenue had petitioned for it. They were the ones to be considered, for they had paid the largest amount of money to macadamize that avenue at that point. They had never been able to get good prices for their property and they should be given a chance to realize some benefits from improvements.

Councilman Barrows informed those present that the Council had been considering this trolley extension for three months. He felt sure the people wanted it, and as the trolley will not touch the macadam, and the people in the vicinity had agreed to donate a sufficient amount of land to widen the avenue, he was in favor of it. Previous to the remarks by Mr. Barrows, Charles Randolph, one of the petitioners, argued that the residents along Park avenue were troubled more with fast driving than they could hope to be with the trolley, as there is no sidewalk for some distance and people are obliged to take the road. He urged the adoption of the ordinance. Mr. Barrows used Mr. Randolph's argument, and said that the Police Board had received a number of complaints from people on account of fast driving, and he thought the trolley would have a quieting effect on the horses.

Col. Dietrich was present and added a few words in favor of the trolley. He said that the people were getting tired waiting for the trolley and he hoped the Council would give it to them.

Mr. Buckie believed in the greatest good to the greatest number and favored the trolley. Harry C. Runyon also spoke in favor of the trolley. He said that it was an obligation imposed by the Council on the trolley company that if a franchise was given to go to Scotch Plains they should build on Arlington avenue

The ordinance was then adopted on its first and second readings and ordered engrossed and advertised. It provides that the line be completed and running by July 1st, 1900, that bonds in the sum of $20,000 be deposited for the faithful performance of the work, that cars run not more than 30 minutes apart, and that on days when school is in session the cars shall not run over four miles an hour on Arlington avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets, between the hours of 8 o'clock in the morning and 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

After the adoption of the ordinance Mr. Barrows moved that further public hearing be extended to Monday night, November 6th, at 8 o'clock The trolley discussion then closed for the evening. There were several people in the lobby interested in the subject, but they had nothing to say one way or the other.

WILL DRILL IN DEBATE.

NEW SCHEME OF INSTRUCTION IN PARLIAMENTARY LAW.

Successfully Tried at Plainfield High School Friday Morning — Was Planned By Principal I. W. Travell.

A new scheme of parliamentary drill, which has just been inaugurated in the Plainfield High School, was tried with much success Friday morning. It was arranged by Principal Ira W. Travell to give the pupils in the three highest classes of the High School some of the fundimental principles of parliamentary law.

It is the intention of Principal Travell to devote one period on Friday days every other week to the subject. The previous periods have been devoted to an explanation of the principles under which a meeting is conducted and the principal motions considered. Yesterday, a practical drill was held in which the pupils were given an opportunity to take part.

The drill had been outlined by Mr. Travell, and various steps described on numbered cards which were distributed. The pupils then went through the form of organizing, choosing officers and holding a short debate on some question.

Mr. Travell was chosen as the first chairman. A secretary and illustrator, to preside over the blackboard, were also elected. Then the advantages of the present one-session system as compared with the old two-session method was discussed.

Edward James was elected as chairman at the second organization. This time the discussion was on the advisability of the curfew law. Miss Ruth Maxson was made chairman, when the drill was repeated for the third time. The desirability of girls playing basket ball was the topic of the discussion.

On each trial a different set of pupils took part so that all might have a chance. The plan found much favor with the pupils, and will undoubtedly be found a very satisfactory method of teaching the principles of parliamentary law.

MISS WANN A BRIDE.

Former Borough Girl Becomes the Wife of Rev. Ira D. Sankey's Son.

The following account of the marriage of Miss Frances Wann, published in the New York Tribune, will be of interest to Plainfielders, as the bride is a daughter of Charles Wann, formerly a resident of Washington Park in North Plainfield:

The marriage of Miss Frances Wann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wann, to Ira Allen Sankey, son of Rev. Ira D. Sankey, took place at 8 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's parents, No. 432 West Twentieth street. Rev. Dr. George R. Van De Water, rector of St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal church, Fifth avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street, officiated at the ceremony. The bride, whose gown of white satin was ornamented with rare old lace, was given away by her father. Miss Louise Wann, her sister, was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Fannie P. Simpson and Miss Jean Kenyon. They were attired alike in pretty gowns of yellow silk and mousseline de soie. Frank Cohen, of Brooklyn, was Mr. Sankey's best man. The ushers were Thomas C. Wiswall, Edward G. Kent, of East Orange, Frederick Worth and F. Otto Affeld, Jr., of Brooklyn. A reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Sankey's future home will be in Brooklyn

Money in Tomatoes.

The Hopewell Valley Canning Co. have put up 224,000 cans of tomatoes and if frost had not come so soon 300,000 cans could easily have been obtained as the crop was very fine this year. About 260,000 cans are already sold and there will be no trouble about disposing of the balance, as there reputation is so well established for good, clean goods. There was only a loss of scant five tons of tomatoes (which is considered comparatively nothing) that had to be dumped on account of ripening too fast. They could not be put up as fast as they were brought in from day to day, although the force worked nights.

An Approaching Marriage.

The marriage of Miss Corinna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Young, to Henry G. Auten, will take place Wednesday, November 8th, at 6:30 p. m., at the home of the bride's parents, 136 Central avenue.

BERGEN WAS NOMINATED

Choice Of Somerset County Democratic Convention.

FOR THE STATE SENATE,

E. M. FRENCH WITHDRAWN FROM THE RACE.

Part of North Plainfield Delegates Went Back on Him—Bergen Nominated on First Ballot—DuFour Chosen for Assembly Nomination Only After Much Trouble.

The Democrats of Somerset county Thursday chose Hon. James J. Bergen, of Somerville, to head their ticket as candidate for State Senator in the coming campaign. His nomination was assured early in in morning but the rival candidates put up a lively fight to the last.

The county Democratic convention and the firemen's parade combined to attract a large crowd here Thursday. The politicians were on hand at an early hour and there were numerous button-holings and private little interviews. Hon. James J. Bergen established himself in the park facing the county courthouse and there met the delegates and his friends. Last night it was persistently rumored that Bergen had secured the support of a majority of the delegates, and early in the morning the rumor became a recognized fact. His nomination was practically conceded early in the day, but the various opposition candidates still continued firm.

A whole bunch of North Plainfield Democrats were on hand together with a little delegation from Plainfield, headed by "Farmer Orator" James E. Martine. Former Mayor Wilson, of North Plainfield, was strong in his support of Mr. Bergen.

The members of the North Plainfield delegation were all on hand at an early hour. They were R. H. McCullough and Charles Dressell, of the first district. Lewis Bird and Walter C Linbarger, of second district, William M. Delmer and Theo. Luersen, of third district. At 10 o'clock, the North Plainfield delegates held a conference at the Surrogate's office. Walter C. Linbarger was chosen chairman of the delegation.

The question of the candidate whom the delegates should support was discussed and it came to light that all but three had gone back on Elston M. French and refused to support him for the nomination. This was a general surprise for it was believed that French would have the delegates of his own township behind him.

As soon as Mr. French learned that he did not have the support of his home delegation, he immediately withdrew from the race in the interests of harmony and the advancement of party interests.

While the North Plainfield delegation was busy at its caucus, the convention was called to order in the court house at 10:20 by William J. Logan, chairman of the county executive committee. Dr. S. O. B. Taylor, of Hillsboro, was made temporary chairman and Calvin J. McMurtry, of Somerville, temporary secretary. Word was received from the North Plainfield delegation asking the convention to delay further matters for five minutes so that they might be present. The request was granted and the North Plainfielders filed in shortly and took their seats.

In the appointment of committees that followed, North Plainfield was represented as follows: Organization, Louis Bird; resolutions, William M. Delmer; credentials, Theo. Luersen; rules, R. H. McCollough.

After an adjournment of twenty five minutes, the committees has their reports ready. The temporary organization was made permanent. Charles H. Lyman, of North Plainfield, who had been admitted as an alternate, rose and read a letter from Samuel S. Childs in which the latter declared that he would under no circumstances accept a nomination to the Assembly. David Carney, of North Plainfield, who was in the audience, shouted that Lyman was not a delegate and had no right to be there but no attention was paid to him.

M A Scully, of Somerville, presented the report of the committee on resolutions. The resolutions indorsed the Chicago platform and the candidacy of Bryan, condemned the present National administration and opposed imperialism. The trust laws of New Jersey were condemned together with the State administration.

Nominations for State Senator were then called for. A Bedminister delegate named Hon. James J. Bergen, of Somerville. Samuel S. Childs was presented by Bernards. M. A. Scully declared that Bergen was Bridgewater's candidate and spoke very highly of him.

P. B. Hall, of Hillsboro, presented the name of Dr. S. O. B Taylor, of his township.

Montgomery nominated Nelson Y. Dungan. The vote was then taken as follows:

	Bergen.	Childs.	Taylor.	Dungan
Bedminister	5
Bernards	3	3
Bridgewater	13	7	5	1
Franklin	5
Hillsboro			6
Montgomery				6
N. Plainfield	6	6
Warren	6
	38	11	7	7

Dr Taylor moved that the nomination be made unanimous. Then came the nomination of a candidate for the Assembly. M. A. Scully nominated S. S. Childs, whereat Mr. Lyman was on his feet insisting that Childs would not take the nomination. A committee was sent to interview Childs and learn his decision. Mr. Childs told the committee that he would not accept under any circumstances.

Montgomery then suggested Nelson Y. Dungan, and a committee was sent out to wait on him. While the committee was gone, Mr. Bergen was brought into the room and made a short address. He accepted the nomination, he said, although it was a great personal sacrifice. It had come utterly unsolicited and he felt greatly honored.

Whatever mistakes he had made in the past, and he didn't claim to be infallible, he regretted and he now thoroughly indorsed every portion of the pla form adopted by the convention. If elected, he declared that he would make an earnest effort to represent the Democrats of Somerset county as enunciated in their platform.

The committee came back to say that Mr. Dungan would not accept the nomination. Monte Corle, of Neshanic, was next named, but he was present and refused the nomination absolutely. A delegate from Franklin suggested the name of L. S. DuFour, of South Bound Brook. As Mr. DuFour did not object, the nomination was made.

The convention then considered routine party matters.

WEDDED WITH A RING.

PRETTY AUTUMNAL WEDDING AT HOME OF MICHAEL UHDA..

Miss Carrie Uhdal Maried to Charles Farley, of Elizabeth—Ceremony Witnessed by the Immediate Families.

A pretty autumnal wedding was that of October 18th when Miss Carrie Uhdal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Uhdal, of South avenue, became the wife of Charles Farley, of Elizabeth. The affair was a quiet one, only the immediate families being present to witness the ceremony which was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. John Howell, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Elizabeth.

Autumnal foliage, palms, chrysanthemums and smilax were used in the decorations, and all were arranged in an artistic manner by Stanley, the florist. The bridal party stood beneath a pleasing arrangement of foliage in the parlor, where the marriage took place. The ceremony was performed with a ring.

The bride was gowned in a blue traveling costume, trimmed with white satin and steel passementrie, and she carried bride roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Gertrude Uhdal, who wore a gown of brown cloth, trimmed with turquoise blue and white lace. She carried a bouquet of carnation pinks. The best man was John Farley, of Elizabeth, brother of the groom.

After the ceremony congratulations were offered and supper served. Soon afterward the bride and groom prepared to leave town to enjoy a honeymoon. The guests also arranged to give them a lively send-off. The coach that conveyed them to the North Avenue station was gorgeously decorated and upon its departure there was a shower of rice.

Miss Uhdal is a very popular young woman of this city, and the groom is a valued employe at the Singer Sewing Machine Works, Elizabeth, where he holds a responsible position. They both were handsomely remembered by their friends and a large collection of beautiful presents were received. After they return from their wedding trip they will reside in Elizabeth.

Quietly Married.

The marriage of Miss Elia Wilmenia Gardner and Arthur Eugene Alvin Heath took place October 18th at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Estil Gardner, at West End Park. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of the Trinity Reformed church, in the presence of the relatives and a few friends. Mr. and Mrs. Heath left immediately for New York. They are to make their home in Brooklyn.

RAILROAD WANTS TO CLOSE UP A STREET.

Would Like to Abandon Church Street Grade Crossing.

PETITION TO THE COUNCIL.

APPLICATION OF PEOPLE'S GAS COMPANY FOR FRANCHISE.

Councilman Barrows Hopes That There Will Be a Large Turnout of Citizens at the Hearing Next Week—A Special Telegraph Line Wanted for Use of Superintendent of the Central.

Aside from the trolley discussion that took place Thursday at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, there was other business to be transacted, and the regular order was taken up after the hearing. A communication was received from the New Jersey Central Railroad officials, which stated that the company would like to abolish the grade crossing at Church street. They said that an investigation showed that to all purposes the street was closed twenty years ago, and they would like to have the Council take official action in the matter. The matter was referred to the street and sewer committee.

Superintendent of Telegraph F. L. Morse, of the New Jersey Central Railroad, who lives at the corner of West Front street and Grant avenue, petioned the Council for the privilege of having telegraph wires run from the railroad at Grant avenue to his home, so he can have communication with various points along the road. The matter was referred with power.

E E Brown and others petioned for an electric light on Clinton avenue, and it was referred to the proper committee.

At this time Mr. Barrows spoke concerning the application of the People's Gas Company for a franchise. He said that a committee meeting with the officers of the new company and a representative of the old had been held, and it was the desire of the Council to give a public hearing on the subject, and the Council would like to have a large attendance of citizens at the meeting to be held one week from last evening, when action is to be taken on the application.

Mr. Coriell, chairman of the fire committee, reported on the placing of three new hydrants as follows: One on Arlington place; one at Randolph road and Arlington avenue, and one between Arlington place and Randolph road on Arlington avenue.

This concluded the business and the meeting adjourned.

CLEARED $140 PROFIT.

Successful Birthday Tea at Mrs. Van-Buren's in Aid of the Woman's Exchange.

A delightful affair of Thursday afternoon was a birthday tea given at the home of Mrs. D. T. VanBuren, 810 Central avenue, under the auspices of the board of managers of the Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work. The affair was given for the benefit of the exchange. The house was prettily decorated with autumn leaves, palms and potted plants.

The attendance was very large and those in charge are sure that $140 will be realized for the exchange. Those who presided in the dining room were members of the auxiliary board. Mrs. Edward Vanburen was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Daniel Ginna, Mr. J.E. Erickson, Mrs. J. W. Bartindale, Mrs. Alfred Streuli, Mrs. Wm. Stillman and Mrs. Wm. Albertson. The above were assisted by a number of young men, who acted as waitresses.

A NEW FACTORY.

Manufacturers of Handkerchiefs May Locate Here and Employ 700 Hands.

There is a probability that the industries of Plainfield will soon be increased by the addition of a factory for the manufacture of handkerchiefs of all grades.

Through the efforts of R. L. Pierce, of New Market, negotiations have been entered into with parties living in one of the New England States, to establish a plant in this city. It is understood that those interested in the enterprise have made Charles H. Hand an offer for the rink building on Watchung avenue in which to establish the factory

The new firm expects to employ about 700 hands, 400 of whom will be women and girls.

Will of Late Manning Freeman.

The will of the late Judge Manning Freeman, of Metuchen, has been read. To his son, Dr. Charles Freeman, he leaves his coal and lumber business at Metuchen. The balance of his property, real and personal, is to be held in trust for his widow, and at her death is to be given to his four daughters.

Chiefs of Police to Contest.

Commencing Monday, November 6th, and continuing for a week the Reform Club will hold a fair at their hall. Among the features will be a contest between Chief Grant, of this city, and Chief Marshal Campbell, of the borough, for a gold watch.

THEIR NUPTIALS WERE HERALDED ON A TRUNK

Dunellen Couple's Baggage Will Attract Attention.

FUNNY SAYINGS PROMINENT

BUT FOR ALL THE FUN THE WEDDING WAS A PRETTY ONE.

Mrs Caroline Fisher and Charles H. Mattis the Contracting Couple—Ceremony Performed at the Home of the Bride's Parents — Their Trunk Was Well Placarded With The News.

One of the prettiest weddings that has taken place in Dunellen in many months was the marriage Oct. 18th, of Miss Caroline Fisher, and Charles B. Mattis, of Plainfield. It was celebrated at 5 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Fisher, No. 262 West Front street, Rev. Dr. Jamison, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated.

The happy couple plighted their troth with a ring while standing in the bow-window of the front parlor, which had been transformed into a bower of loveliness. The decorations were of green and white, with palms and potted plants, while ferns and ivy were artistically twined about the rooms.

The bridal party entered the parlor from an upper chamber and passed to their places beneath an arch in the bow-window at the west end of the room. Separating the guests from the bridal party were white satin ribbons.

As the party entered the room Miss Irene Day, of New Market, rendered Lohengrin's wedding march. There were no bridemaids, Miss Carlotta Williams, of Portchester, N. Y., filling the pleasant post of maid-of-honor. The best man was J S. Fisher, a cousin of the bride, of Plainfield. Messrs. Charles English and Albert Apgar, of Dunellen, were the ushers. The bride was gowned in white satin with pearl trimmings, and she carried a boquet of bridal roses. Miss Williams, the maid-of-honor, wore a dress of white organdie over light green.

The ceremony was witnessed by about 125 guests from New York, Plainfield, Easton, Pa., New Market and Dunellen.

After the refreshments Mr. and Mrs. Mattis were driven to the railroad station where they took a train for a short wedding tour, which will include Old Point Comfort and other southern points.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Fisher. For several years she was one of the efficient teachers in the Dunellen public schools, being attached to the Whittier building. She is an estimable young woman, and has many friends who will wish her many of life's choicest blessings.

The groom is a well-known resident of Plainfield and has a lucrative position with the New York Belting and Packing Company, of New York city.

It is possible that when Mr. and Mrs. Mattis have occasion to use the small steamer trunk which they took with them they will be as much surprised at its transformation as the promoters of the fun were amused in preparing it for their inspection.

Upon the top of the trunk in large letters was printed this inscription: "This trunk belongs to Charles and Caroline Mattis. Just married. Now, dear friends, they are young. If you can help or direct them in any way, please do so, by request of the citizens of Dunellen, New Jersey."

Upon the side was posted:

"The past is gone; the future is before us."

"Happy the bride whom the sun shines on—so is Bill. We call him Bill for short, but his name is Charley."

Conspicuous also upon the trunk was: "Two hearts that beat as one." This was in the form of a clever design showing two hearts woven together and pierced by an arrow, while above the design was the figure 2 and below it the figure 1.

Another was "I am searching for a newly-wedded couple."

An Authority on Bunyan.

Arrangements are being made to have Dr. John Brown, of Bedford, England, give his lecture on John Bunyan in Plainfield Oct. 31st. Dr. Brown is giving the lectures on preaching at Yale University. He is the greatest living authority on Bunyan and on Puritanism as well. It is proposed to make the lecture a subscription affair, putting the subscription price at $1 for four tickets.

A Distinguished Guest.

Charles G. Burnet, of Madison avenue, former foreman of the Alert House Company, was a guest of the Somerville fire department Thursday and made a few remarks in his usual entertaining fashion at the banquet that followed the parade.

Coming Home From Abroad.

Ex-Mayor W. I. Saunders and wife will sail for home October 28th. During their stay in Europe they have visited many of the leading places of interest in England, Ireland, France and other continental countries.

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

Recipe of Dr. SAMUEL PITCHER

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and Loss of SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.

At 6 months old
35 DOSES—35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

BATTLED AT "TANKS" FOR ABDUCTED CHILD.

Little Florence Grote Was Enticed Away From Home.

DRESSED IN BOY'S CLOTHES.

LARRY READY RESCUED HER FROM HER CAPTORS MONDAY NIGHT.

Fought "Reddy" McGrail, Leader of Gang, and Ruined His Face—"Reddy" Had a Razor, But Larry's Fists Won—Girl's Brother Went After Her—McGrail and Miss Grote in New Brunswick Jail.

After being used as a tool for a gang of tramps and petty thieves quartered at Greenbrook "tanks," who enticed her away from her home in Elizabeth Saturday, little twelve-year-old Florence Grote was released from her captors Monday night. Release came after a terrible battle between the leader of the tramps, "Reddy" McGrail, and Lawrence Ready, who is in charge of the pumping station of the Jersey Central Railroad. McGrail now lies in jail at New Brunswick with his face mashed beyond recognition while Ready is on duty as usual. The girl is in the Brunswick jail as well, where an effort will be made to send her to the Industrial School at Trenton.

Although only twelve years old, Florence Grote has the reputation in Elizabeth of being incorrigible. She is the daughter of Henry Grote, of Second street and Insley place. Mr. and Mrs. Grote separated sometime ago, and since then Florence has lived with her married brother, Louis Grote, at 445 First avenue. Last Saturday the elder Grote saw his daughter on the street and tried to persuade her to return to her brother's home. That was the last that any of her family saw of her until yesterday.

According to her statement and that made by McGrail, the latter persuaded her to join his gang, enticing her with various promises. She was then dressed up in boy's clothes and had her long hair cut off at Bound Brook. When clean and properly dressed she is a pretty little girl with light curly hair and blue eyes. In short trousers and with her hair cut, it was difficult not to believe her a boy. For the last three days she had been living with McGrail and his friends, sleeping in the sandhouse at the pumping station and spending the day begging and picking up what came to hand.

"Reddy" McGrail is one of Union county's toughest characters. His father, Detective Frank McGrail, of the Elizabeth police force, long ago disowned him. Although a young man he has been a frequent visitor at the county jail and was arrested in Plainfield twice and sent up for long terms.

Monday Florence's older brother, Charles Grote, eighteen years old, learned that his sister had been seen enroute to the "tanks" in a box car with "Reddy" and that the latter had tried to hide her. So young Grote started out to find her, accompanied by Robert Fisher and John Cotter, two young men from Elizabeth.

Reaching the "tanks" late in the afternoon, Grote saw his sister, but she ran away from him. She afterwards came up to Fisher and Cotter, who did not recognize her until she told them who she was. She begged them not to "give her away." Then Danny Cobb, a well-known character from Newark, made his appearance and finally recognized the girl.

It had grown dusk when young Grote tried to get his sister away. McGrail ordered everybody away from the pile. Unnatural violence to any one who went near her.

Here Denny Cobb said that he was going to take Florence Grote back to her home. McGrail objected seriously and drew a razor. Cobb picked up a coupling pin and declared his intention of braining McGrail. Young Grote and his friends sprang upon a passing train and started for Plainfield to notify the police that the girl was there and that the toughs were fighting over her.

McGrail and Cobb were quarrelling over the girl when Ready, who heard the high words, came out of the pumping station. He declared that he would take care of the "little boy" who was too young, he said, to go with such a crowd. McGrath replied with an oath and started for the boss of the pumping station.

Lawrence Ready, usually called Larry, is probably the strongest man in Middlesex county. He lives on the Nelson Giles farm near New Market and is one of New Market's most orderly citizens. He is six feet, three inches tall and weighs nearly 300 pounds. McGrail is a powerful man but does not compare with Ready.

McGrail made a pass at Ready with his razor. The blade cut through Ready's coat and shirt and left a gash in the arm three inches long. Another slash with the razor cut the clothing but did not reach the flesh. Then the tramp went down before a powerful blow from the other's fist. Ready knelt on McGrail's chest and held his arm out demanding that he throw away the razor. The tough refused and then the other began to convince him of the necessity of so doing. Ready says that he guesses he got mad. At any rate, he drove McGrail's head into the cinders so that the back of the head was cut open by them. With his right fist, he soon converted McGrail's face into pulp, smashing his nose and disfiguring him for life. Finally the fallen man threw away the razor and was dragged into the pumping house where he was locked up.

Constable Rinehart was summoned from Dunellen and took McGrail and the girl there at 7 o'clock. Dr. Brakeley dressed the former's wounds and took five stitches in Ready's arm. McGrail was then taken to the New Brunswick jail by the constable, while Florence Grote spent the night in the public hall in Dunellen.

Young Grote and friends came to this city at 7 o'clock and notified the police. Chief Detective John K. Large, of the Central Railroad, was notified and left on the 8:08 train, accompanied by Chief Grant, Sergeant Kiely and Boundsman Fredericksen. They found that Ready had done the work and that the other members of the gang had fled. Young Grote and his friends remained over night in the city jail and were released this morning.

How Are Your Kidneys?
Dr. Hobbs Sparagus Pills cure all kidney ills. Sample free. Add Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or N. Y.

"WE'LL HAVE TO CUT HIM ALL WE CAN"

Chancery Clerk L. A. Thompson Is Not For Harmony.

SITUATION IN SOMERSET

BOTH PARTIES HAVE TROUBLES IN THEIR RANKS.

The Reported Harmony in Republican Ranks In Bridgewater Is Purely Imaginary—Antagonism Was Too Great to Permit a Complete Fusion So Soon—These Troubles Make It Impossible to Tell Outcome.

It is difficult to predict what is going to happen at the approaching county election in Somerset county. Under ordinary circumstances, the county goes Republican by about 500 plurality. Last fall Assemblyman E. E. Cooper was elected by 361 plurality while Congressman Howell received 720 plurality in Somerset. This year both parties are suffering to a greater or less extent from factional differences which makes it quite possible for the unexpected to occur. The natural plurality that the Republicans have is about offset by the extreme bitterness that still exists in the ranks of the G. O. P. That leaves the parties on practically even terms.

The intense rivalry between the two factions in the Republican ranks in Somerset was made very apparent at the recent county convention held at Somerville. The convention resulted in a complete victory for Senator Reed and his friends. After the convention some of the adherents of Mr. Thompson were free in their declarations that when election day came Reed would be buried out of sight. The more moderate ones declared that any Republican, even Senator Reed, was better than a Democrat and that the party ticket should be sustained.

A report, emanating from Somerville, appeared in several of the New York newspapers to the effect that Chancery Clerk L. A. Thompson would support Senator Reed's candidacy. Those who are in touch with the situation in Somerset declare that the report is false and merely given out as a blind.

It requires a considerable stretch of the imagination to think of Thompson supporting Reed for the Senate after all that has so recently happened. Those who saw the extreme bitterness that was very apparent on the day of the convention find it difficult to believe that such discordant elements have been fused together.

Futhermore, Chancery Clerk Thompson has spoken since the convention in such a manner as to leave no doubt regarding his intentions. Only a day after the convention he was in conversation with a Republican worker from Bridgewater and, calling the man by name, he exclaimed.

"We'll have to cut him all we can."

At the time he was conversing on the political situation and that "he" meant was Charles A. Reed.

The defeat of P. V. R. VanDoren, last year, for sheriff, was an exhibition of this same "cutting." VanDoren was Reed's choice and it was Reed who succeeded in having VanDoren defeated. The Republican ticket won in the county, but VanDoren was defeated. The "cutting" was principally done in Bridgewater and Branchburg, Thompson's strongholds. These things have not been forgotten by the factions which makes fusion hardly to be looked for at this day.

The Democrats are not suffering with a split of anything as severe a character but still there ranks are not as solid as they might be. While Former Speaker James J. Bergen is a very popular man personally, his candidacy is admitted by the Democratic leaders as not being as strong as it would but for certain facts.

Then there is an influence in the Democratic ranks that will be felt particularly in Bridgewater, that will now be thrown for Reed and against Bergen. This influence, though shadowy and indistinguishable now, may play an important part in the coming campaign.

With all these modifying causes brought to bear on the ordinary State of affairs in Somerset, it is not possible as yet to say how the compaign will come out. It will be hot and all of the fighting will not be between the Republicans and the Democrats.

BRYAN TO VISIT NEW JERSEY

Representative William D. Daly Say the Democratic Leader Will Tour the State in December.

Representative William D. Daly, of Hoboken, said Monday that William J. Bryan would visit New Jersey some time in December, and would make addresses in the larger cities in the interest of the Chicago platform.

Mr. Daly is chairman of the committee that will receive Mr. Bryan and look after him while he is in the State.

Harry Potter, of this city, has returned from a business trip through Connecticut. He will remain at home for a short time, when he will leave for another extended trip.

THE PLOT OF A GIRL LOVER.

Florence Campbell's Scheme for Getting Rid of a Hated Rival.

POISON SENT IN THE MAIL

She Sends to Heaven of a Package o Arsenic-Laden Fruit.

A Happy Accident Frustrates an Attempt to Fasten the Guilt Upon an Innocent Woman — Most Wicked of Plots — The Result of Her Love.

It is a queer story that comes from San Francisco, where the police have been wrestling with a mysterious poisoning case, in which, fortunately, no one was poisoned. It is the story of a woman's love for a married man, and her attempt to get rid of his wife by having her sent to prison on a false charge of sending a box of arsenic-laden fruit by mail. In many of its details the case is similar to that in which Mrs. Botkin figured, and the disclosures are such as to make some experts doubt the words of the evidence on which the Botkin woman was convicted.

Miss Florence M. Campbell, of San Francisco, was infatuated with John Rathom, a married man. She got the idea into her head that if she could get rid of Mrs. Rathom by bringing about a divorce Rathom would marry her. This was the sole purpose of a plot that would have done credit to Lucrezia Borgia. It is admitted by the girl, and her confession has been sustained by the investigations of detectives. Miss Campbell did not wish to kill the woman who stood in her way. She merely wished to blacken her character with a false charge which would land her in prison and give Rathom an

Mrs. Rathom and Miss Campbell were at one time close friends and had carried on a correspondence. The latter had several of Mrs. Rathom's letters in her possession, and one day a devilish scheme came into her head. She had been reading how Mrs. Botkin had been convicted of sending poisoned candy through the mails to the wife of her lover, and the most conclusive bit of evidence against her being the handwriting on the package. As she studied the Botkin case the love-sick Miss Campbell hurriedly framed out a course of action. She She would mail a box of poisoned fruit to herself, the address on the cover would be apparently written by Mrs. Rathom, and this would afford the desired means of prosecuting the woman into prison. It would be easy to secure conviction, as San Francisco juries are not inclined to be lenient with Borgias, and the proof of Mrs. Rathom's guilt would be conclusive.

(Miss Florence M. Campbell.)

All this, it should be remembered, is not surmise or police theory. It is the story told by Miss Campbell in a moment of remorse when she thought she was dying from the effect of her own carelessness.

What made the plan prepared by Miss Campbell easier was the fact that Mrs. Rathom had discovered the liaison and was threatening a suit for divorce.

Miss Campbell bought some candied cherries and loaded them with arsenic. Then, taking one of Mrs. Rathom's letters addressed to herself, she trimmed down the envelope so as to get rid of the old postmark and pasted it on the box. Her next move was to mail the package. This done she called up by telephone the residence of Mrs. Scheib, where she boarded, and, imitating the voice of Mrs. Rathom as closely as possible, inquired whether Miss Campbell had received a package by mail. This was another move to fasten guilt on Mrs. Rathom, as Mrs. Scheib, when questioned by the police, said it was undoubtedly the letter who had talked over the telephone.

In preparing the box of poisoned fruit Miss Campbell was careful to leave on the top layer of unpoisoned fruit. She did this for the reason that she would have to pass the box around among the members of the Scheib family when she received it, and, as she did not wish to poison anybody, the top layer could be eaten without danger. Later she would make the discovery that the rest of the contents were poisoned, give the affair into the hands of the police and the running down of Mrs. Rathom would be easy.

The trick would have it, after sampling the contents of the box the afternoon it was received Mrs. Scheib complained of feeling ill, and immediately said that she thought the cherries had made her sick. Miss Campbell, her nervous system overwrought by anxiety, at once imagined a horrible condition of affairs. "What," she argued to herself, "if I have made a mistake and put some of the poisoned fruit on top?" The more she thought of it the more nervous and apprehensive she became, and finally she imagined she also felt queer pains in her stomach. Then she was sure both Mrs. and Mrs. Scheib had eaten the poisoned fruit and were going to die. She rushed to the drug store and got an antidote, consisting of mustard and soap, swallowed a lot herself and hastened back home to the relief of Mrs. Scheib.

In the meantime the druggist had informed the police of the poisoning case. Detectives called at the Scheib home and took possession of the box of fruit. Cherries analyzed the box of cherries and said they contained arsenic enough to kill a herd of cows. Experts examined the address, and, prompted by the information given by Miss Campbell, found it was in the handwriting of Mrs. Rathom. Thus far the plot had worked well, with one exception, Mrs. Rathom was implicated all right, but Miss Campbell was afraid that both herself and Mrs. Scheib were going to die. She said things in her terror that the police remembered, and when they ran against a snarl one day that could not unravel they came back to Miss Campbell for explanation.

Neither Miss Campbell nor Mrs. Scheib had partaken of the poisoned fruit. The illness of the latter was caused by some slight bowel trouble, while the girl suffered solely from a guilty conscience and the tortuous tension. They both recovered speedily. For nearly a month the police worked on the mystery. It was soon settled, despite the incriminating address, that Mrs. Rathom could not have sent the package. Detectives ascertained that a young woman answering the description of Miss Campbell had bought the cherries at one place and arsenic at another, and had been noticed by the postal clerks when mailing the package. Then it was intimated to Miss Campbell that she might have sent the box herself. She repelled the charge dignantly. Then the officers asker her to explain some of the odd things which she had said when she thought she was dying. She tried to do so and made a very incoherent job of it. Little by little they tangled her in a web of contradiction, and at last she broke down and told the story virtually as given in this article.

Miss Campbell is an attractive woman of good family. She is the daughter of the Hon. John A. Campbell, of Cumberland, W. Va., and a graduate of Hiram College, Ohio. She went to California with letters of introduction to Senator Perkins and other prominent people, and has been well received in society there.

SHEDS HIS SKIN.

A Man Has Done so Yearly for Forty-Three Years.

A man who sheds his skin in its entirety once a year, and who has done so regularly for the last forty-three years, is one of the curiosities that Butte, Mont., boasts of. The man—J. M. Price, a fairly well educated miner—it at the present time engaged in the curious pastime of skining himself. The methods that he adopts is to first skin his hands and face and then strip it in an immense sheet from his body.

The process of skining his hands and face was completed August 6, and it came from the face like a mask. The skin from the hands resembled a pair of gloves and was exhibited on the streets. The toughness is something remarkable, and two men tried with might and main to tear it. They were not successful, although the skin is not thicker than the leather of a man's street glove. Only in frosty weather does it crack, although he is rather tender about any publication in the newspapers. Many physicians have examined him during the period of the skining, but no one has been able to solve the problem. In speaking of the matter Mr. Price said:

"My mother told me that she first noticed the skin when I was about 6 months old, and regularly every year since then I have shed my skin. It is a phenomenon that no physician has yet satisfactorily explained, although hundreds have made examinations and investigations. The fact is, that I shed my skin and that is all there is to it. Regularly on the twenty-fourth day of July of each year I feel the premonitory symptoms, and on very few occasions is it that I am off by a day or month. The first thing I feel is nausea, and then I know that I am in for it. The skin becomes perfectly dead, and the separation begins. Small scales come through forms in blisters under it, and the whole thing becomes loose. I generally cut a circle around my wrists, and then the skin of the hand will work it off whole for the purpose of preserving it in the shape of a glove. I take it off from my face in the same manner, but am compelled to remove it from my hair like dandruff. I took a long walk this morning for the purpose of getting up a perspiration and, as you see, my whole body is blistered. I will strip it off to-day or to-morrow. It comes off in great strips, as you can see by this photograph, as I have taken last year. There is no particular pain accompanying the operation, although new skin is very soft and sensitive, and for the first week or two days I have to lay off for about two weeks each year to attend to it. My children do not inherit the disease from me, but my wife is one of the victims. I first noticed it when I was about 9 years of age, and there has been nothing of the kind ever noticed with her. Several years ago I was in San Francisco when I shed my skin, and the doctors there preserved it in its entirety and then stuffed it. I am a miner by my work in free mines, and I never let my condition in any way that I can see. My general health is good, even if I do have skin to throw at the birds.

Grander than Niagara.

A correspondent, writing in the London Spectator, says the Gersoppa falls, on the Sharavatti river, in South Kanara, is three times more and more magnificent than Niagara. The water in the river is 250 yards wide; the clear fall is 830 feet. The Gersoppa falls in the rainy season are incomparably finer than Niagara in every respect. The roar of the falling waters is simply terrific; the whole earth shakes, and the spray rises in such clouds that it almost drowns the human voice. When I visited Niagara and told my American friends about Gersoppa they replied, with polite incredulity, "We never heard of Gersoppa." I replied: Make your minds easy; the people at Gersoppa have never heard of Niagara." If Niagara could be Gersoppa she would wrap her head in a mist."

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthropist, and do a benefient deed, no one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of them, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a strong advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion, but I felt that at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended so highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found them very just what my case demanded. I have never consulted a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call, or $5 dollar's worth. Customers for a half century and in existence for 50 years in business. Send a Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 64 pages lithographed in colors, 4 pages steel engravings, 100 pages filled with handsome half-tone illustrations of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Bulbs, etc., elegantly bound in cloth and gold. A marvel in Catalogue making; an authority on all subjects pertaining to the garden, with cost for the same, and a descriptive catalogue of all the novelties of the season. It is not sent out indiscriminately, but we want everyone interested in a good garden to have a copy, therefore we will send the Guide with a 25 cent package of Seeds for 25 cents worth of flower and vegetable seeds

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

It tells how and is given in full amount of purchase to her other goods.

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue
A perfect little gem of a price list. It contains the Cream of Vick's Seeds, fully illustrated, and in handy shape for reference.

Vicks Monthly Magazine,
enlarged, improved, and up to date on all subjects relating to the garden, Horticulture, etc. Regular subscription price 50 cents a year.
Special 1900 Offer: Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 25 cents.

OUR NEW PLAN of selling Vegetable Seeds gives you more for your money than any other seed house in America.

JAMES VICKS SONS,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

SEEDS ...FOR THE... Garden and Farm
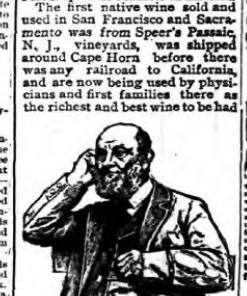
Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the newest and best varieties, quality guaranteed. Send for Catalogue. FREE.
WEEBER & DON, SEED MERCHANTS,
114 Chambers St., New York City.

ALFRED SPEER,

THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had.



The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but purchase a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest,
Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds
and odorless Lawn Dressing.

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,
119 East Front st.

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.
Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superfluity of quantity characterizes its every department.

Specimen pages sent on application to
G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers,
Springfield, Mass.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The International is a wonderfully compact storehouse of accurate information."

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President.
GEO. W. BOCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our cloths. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full directions for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (225-C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER, 2, 1899. NO. 44.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

BY COACH TO THE LEHIGH STATION.

New Service Was Inaugurated Tuesday Afternoon

UPTODATE AND FIRST-CLASS

RAILROAD COMPANY GAVE A DINNER AT THE KENSINGTON.

One Bona Fide Passenger on the First Trip, Which Was Made in Twenty-two Minutes From City Ticket Office to South Plainfield Station—The Regular Trips Commenced Yesterday Morning.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company have at last done the next best thing to locating their road in this city, where Plainfielders could have the benefit of their excellent service, and have established a first-class, up-to-date service between this city and South Plainfield whereby people can conveniently and quickly reach their station and connect with through express trains to the west. A fine omnibus, with a stylish team of horses, have been contracted for by the company and the initial trip was made Tuesday noon from the city ticket office at Frank Rowley's drug store.

The start was made at 12:07, and in twenty-two minutes from that time the omnibus reached the South Plainfield station, where in a few minutes the "Black Diamond Express," considered to be one of the finest trains in the world, came rolling into the station, and after taking on one passenger, who happened to be the first one to ride over from this city, started on its famous run to Buffalo.

Those who were guests on the first ride to South Plainfield included Mayor George W. Rockfellow; B. F. Hardesty, of Roselle, general advertising agent; H. H. Kingston, Jr., traveling passenger agent, and F. E. Hammann, chief clerk of the passenger department of the Lehigh Valley Railroad; Frank Rowley, the city ticket agent; Walter C. Dobbins, of The Daily Press; B. F. Harris, of the firm of TenEyck & Harris, the firm which has the contract for running the stage for the company, and Clayton Slaughter, of the J. E. Linde Paper Company, of New York, who was a passenger going to Easton, Pa.

The dubious weather had no effect on the opening event and everything passed off satisfactorily. Everyone was delighted with the quick trip made and the comfortable riding afforded in the handsome omnibus. As it passed through Front street, Park avenue, Ninth street, Central avenue, Stelle avenue, Plainfield avenue, and thence to the South Plainfield station, there were many eyes on the turnout. On the return trip another passenger was brought over and the trip was made in good time.

Upon reaching this city the party went to the Hotel Kensington, where a fine dinner was served. Those present were the guests of the Lehigh Valley Railroad and the cordiality and good feeling evidenced was a feature. The gathering seemed to bring all in close touch to the company who have thus so generously shown their willingness and desire to serve the people of this city. Everyone voted the opening a grand success and all the success possible was wished the company in their efforts. While there was no speech-making at the dinner there was congratulations on every hand.

Those who were present at the dinner were Mayors George W. Rockfellow and Newton B Smalley, Frank Rowley, B. F. Harris, J. F. TenEyck, B. F. Hardesty, H. H. Kingston, Jr., F. E. Hammann, Dr. Pocock, W. W. St. John and Walter C. Dobbins.

Commencing with yesterday the omnibus began making regular trips according to the schedule already published. Messrs. TenEyck and Harris have purchased a fine team of young horses for the omnibus, and expect to put them into service in about ten days. In the meantime they are using a team of grays. The local ticket office is now opened and tickets can be purchased for all through trains, and baggage checked. For passengers going to Easton or any point this side a charge of 25 cents will be made to ride to South Plainfield. For points beyond no charge will be made.

Cheered Dewey's Brave Boys.

About seventy-five officers and "Jackies" from Admiral Dewey's famous warship, Olympia, passed through Plainfield Monday morning southbound. It was not known exactly where they were going, but it is presumed that they were being transferred to some other ship. They were not many at the station at the time, but the few present gave the jolly sailor boys a welcome.

—A meeting of Unity Lodge, Knights of Pythias, was held last evening.

PRANKS OF SMALL BOYS.

HALLOWE'EN FESTIVITIES WERE IN ORDER TUESDAY NIGHT.

Regular Policemen Were on Duty an Hour Earlier Than Usual, But There Was no Cause for Arrests for Mischief.

Tuesday was Hallow 'een but the steady downpour of rain prevented the usual observance of the occasion by the host of small boys of the city. There was a small crowd out during the evening but the rain was rather dampening to most of the spirits who find Hallow 'een the opportunity for a variety of pran ks.

The police usually prepare for the occasion by adding a number of extra men on the force to preserve order. Last night Chief Grant thought that the rain would serve the purpose better than a whole army of special officers. The regular policemen went on duty at 6 instead of 7 o'clock, however, as most of the pranks are performed in the twilight before 7 o'clock.

There is usually a whole string of complaints from indignant householders whose gates, piazza chairs and other property have been hidden away, but this year Chief Grant never heard of a single case of mischief.

There were a few of the celebrators abroad. A party visited the News office and chalked in great red letters on the doors and windows, "In Bryan We Trust." Other places in the business section of town were similarly decorated. A few other harmless pranks were noted in various sections of the city and borough.

"THE PILGRIM'S PROGRESS."

Bunyon's Mini-terial Successor Delivered an Interesting history of the Great Religious Author.

The severe storm of last Tuesday prevented a large attendance at the Congregational church, where an interesting lecture on John Bunyon was delivered by Bunyon's successor, Rev. John Brown, D. D., of Bedford, England. Previous to the lecture Rev. Dr. Snodgrass, pastor of the First M. E. church, a friend of Dr. Brown, gave his impressions of the lecturer's thorough knowledge of the life work of the celebrated author.

Dr. Brown proved to be a most entertaining speaker and gave the audience to understand that what had been said of him was clearly borne out by his graphic account of the life of the truly great man of whom he spoke. Bunyon, who was born in 1628, he said, was like Dante, Milton and Shakespeare, a man of great genius and was looked upon as one of God's great gifts to the world, and for his having lived in it the world was made the richer.

"The Pilgrim's Progress" was written after he served for three years and a half as a soldier in a garrison and was a description of his own experience.

Dr. Brown then referred to the parentage of Bunyon, which was considered somewhat doubtful, although it is well known that he was of humble origin. He referred also to Bonyan's marriage, which had been entered into without the necessary preparation as regards this world's goods, that is now considered necessary. But love without dishes and spoons, he said, was far better than dishes and spoons without love. He believed that the central hope for the Christian church rested in the Christian family, which can do so much for the church.

Baptist Anniversaries at Newark.

At the New Jersey Baptist Anniversaries in session this week at the Peddie Memorial church, Newark, Rev. J. W. Richardson, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, this city, delivered an address Tuesday afternoon before the Education Society on "The Relation of the Pastor to the Sunday-school and Young People's Work," and Rev. Dr. Yerkes, of the First Baptist church, of this city, took part in the afternoon's discussion. Among the other delegates from this city were Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Knox, Mrs. William White, Mrs. B. J. Shreves, Dr. Harvey Buchanan, Francis E. Marsh, Mr. Runyon and Calvin Boice.

Medals for Volunteers.

Captain F. F. McCarty, of Elizabeth, requests all members of the Third Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, who were in the Spanish-American War, to be present at the Armory in Elizabeth this evening at 8:30 o'clock to receive the medals to be issued to the members of that regiment.

Entertained Their Friends.

In honor of their recent marriage Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Borben, of Greenbrook road, entertained a number of friends at their home last Tuesday. There were many social features and a bountiful supper was served during the evening.

Miss Viola Keeney, of Jersey City, is visiting relatives on Netherwood avenue.

PRESENT SITUATION IN UNION COUNTY.

Republicans Claim That They Will Elect Entire Ticket.

THE DEMOCRATS DIFFER.

THEY EXPECT TO GET CLERK AND ONE ASSEMBLYMAN.

Hope To Elect Others — Plainfield Is Quiet — Renewed Energy By Democratic Association Makes Increased Interest In The Election — Complimentary Votes For Local Candidates.

With the election less than a week away, Plainfield is comparatively quiet. The Republican machine is ready without any hustling to turn out the usual overwhelming Republican majority when the time comes. The Democrats are just on their feet again after several years of lethargy and declare that they will make a strong fight for the coming election and try to reduce that Republican majority somewhat.

Of course, a Democratic victory in Plainfield on a county or state election is not a thing that even the most ardent Democratic workers expect. If they can manage to lower that sizable majority that the Republicans usually roll up, they will be satisfied.

There are practically no special issues to be brought forward in Union county during the campaign. The personality of the candidates and the different party views will decide the vote.

The Republican leaders are confident that the entire ticket will be elected. Some parts of it may fall a little below the average in different parts of the county, but they believe that the general average will be more than sufficient to carry the Republican ticket in its entirety through to victory.

While the Democrats are hoping for the best, they realize that there is a Republican majority of 2,000 to be overcome. The Democratic leaders claim that William M. Oliver, their candidate for County Clerk, will assuredly be elected. They claim one Assemblyman, and state that the chances are good of carrying more of the ticket.

The Democrats say that there will be no trading this year but that the fight will be made for the entire ticket through the county.

In Plainfield it is naturally expected that J. H. Hillman, the Democratic candidate for Senator, will run ahead of his ticket, particularly in the Third and Fourth wards where he has a large number of friends. The Republican local machine is confident of getting out the usual vote for the Republicans while Charles S. Foote, one of the Republican nominees for the Assembly, will have a complimentary vote in the Second and possibly Third wards.

The fact that there is prospect of some organized opposition to the G. O. P. machine leads more than the usual interest to the coming election.

SURPRISED ON HER BIRTHDAY.

Miss Alice Higgins Enters the Last Year of Her Teens.

A surprise birthday party was tendered to Miss Alice Higgins, of West Front street, Monday evening, it being the anniversary of her nineteenth birthday. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Higgins, her mother, and Miss Edith Hulburt. There were about thirty young people present including several from Rahway, Bound Brook, Somerville, Westfield and Plainfield. During the evening there were vocal and instrumental solos by Miss Hulburt, Miss Lou Crosson, and phonograph selections were given under the direction of Miss Pearl Kinsey. Another form of amusement was the playing of games. At midnight refreshments were served after which the guests left for home. Miss Higgins received a great many presents from her friends as tokens of esteem.

A Flexible Auger.

Patrick Kane, the contractor, has purchased one of Wrigley's flexible augers, a contrivance recently invented for the purpose of cleaning waste pipes and sewers. If the auger is found to be practicable it will be used by the city authorities to remove foreign substances from the sewers and will do away with the custom of tearing up the streets when it is necessary to clean a sewer. The auger is an ingenious device, composed of a spiral spring with a cork screw attachment at the end.

Trimmed Hats.

Mrs. L. Adams, the East Front street milliner, has a new line of ladies' and children's trimmed hats for the very low price of $1 and upwards.

CHECKS WERE "N. G."

Young Man Passed Them on Friends Who Placed Implicit Confidence in His Honesty.

The disappearance of Harry Ulrick, of this city, which occurred about the middle of last month, has been an occasion for some uneasiness on the part of some of his friends. He was employed at the store of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, West Front street.

It is stated that he gave out a number of checks for small amounts and received their value before he left. Some of the checks were presented to the City National Bank for payment. There the holders were informed that Mr. Ulrick had no money.

It appears that the holders of the checks were all friends of Mr. Ulrick, who put confidence in him. It is believed, however, that Mr. Ulrick's folks will make good the several amounts so that those holding checks will not be out anything.

It is understood that Mr. Ulrick has gone to California where he will remain.

CHICKEN THIEF SENTENCED.

Fred Myers Will Have to Serve One Year and Nine Months in the State Prison.

Somerville, November 1.—In the Somerset County Court today Frederick Myers, of Franklin township, who was indicted and convicted of stealing chickens, was sentenced to one year and nine months in State Prison This is the heaviest penalty ever imposed in the county on a chicken thief, but as Myers is supposed to have stolen nearly 1,300 fowls before he was arrested and the judge decided that his offense was greater than any other chicken thief ever before arraigned in the court. George Stringer, who stole a bicycle from the Y. M. C. A. in this place, was sentenced to four months in the county jail. The jurors were all released until December 18th, when the trial of Mrs. Catherine Fingerhuth, for the murder of Paul Boenricht, of New York, will be taken up.

At the Bottom of the Bay it Was.

Miss May E. Howlett, of Elwood place, received a letter this morning that was among the mail on the Pennsylvania Railroad ferry-boat "Chicago" that was sunk Tuesday morning in the North river. The letter was minus a postage stamp, and was not sealed. It showed that it had been thoroughly soaked. Inside was a note from Postmaster VanCott, of New York, stating briefly the circumstances in connection with the accident to the ferry-boat.

Popular Young Couple Wedded.

John Baker Peney and Miss Hannah Dayton, two very popular young people of South Plainfield, were united in marriage yesterday by Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, at the parsonage. The bride and groom were unattended, and after the ceremony they returned to South Plainfield, where they will reside.

Wants to Recover $200 Note.

Harry Held, a wholesale liquor dealer of Pearl street, New York, has brought an action in Justice Smalley's court in North Plainfield, to recover the sum of $200 on a note given by Richard O'Conner, a hotel keeper at Bound Brook. The summons is returnable November 9. McClure & Meenan of this city represent the plaintiff.

To Determine Ownership.

The trial of the right of property before Judge Vail and a jury at Elizabeth today was adjourned for a week. Mrs. Ann Gwynette, who claims certain property held under a foreclosure, is represented by Codington and Swackhamer. William Newcorn is the attorney for Monsom & Company, the other party in the suit.

A Hallow'een Party.

A Hallow'een party was given last Tuesday to Miss Katie Beigel, of Netherwood avenue. It was arranged by her sister, Miss Libby Beigel, and was a pleasant affair. A stage-load of friends came from Elizabeth, and there were also guests present from this city, Bound Brook and other nearby places.

Episcopal Rector Resigns.

Rev. R. E. Pendleton, who succeeded Rev. E. H. True as rector of All Saints' Episcopal church in Fanwood, has resigned to accept a call at Middletown, Conn. The Scotch Plains church is therefore without a rector.

A pleasant surprise was tendered Monday evening to Edward Vermeule, of Jackson avenue, by his wife, who invited a number of friends to the house. An evening of sociability was passed and a bountiful supper was a feature.

—During the first week in December a fair will be held in Vincent chapel under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church.

NOTABLE OCCASION FOR THE DEMOCRATS

Friday Night's Reception Will be of Great Interest.

TO BE PURELY INFORMAL.

UNION AND SOMERSET CANDIDATES TO BE THERE.

Many Other Prominent Democrats are Also Expected to be Present—No Set Speeches Will be Arranged for, Although There May be Remarks Made by Some of Those Who are on Hand.

The new Democratic city executive committee realizes that owing to the short period between the time of their organization and the election next Tuesday, it will be impossible to perfect plans for a thorough and aggressive campaign in all essential details of political management, but notwithstanding this handicap the members have undertaken to do as much as it is possible for them to do. Along this line of action the reception to the Democratic candidates of Union county has been arranged for Friday night in the Ulrick building on East Second street. The occasion will be made an informal one, during which all the candidates, with possibly the exception of Jacob Glaser, the nominee for Sheriff, who is sick, will be in the parlors of the Ulrich building to meet all who call during the evening. It is the desire of the city executive committee that not only Democrats but that citizens at large shall call and be made welcome that evening.

There will be no set speeches for the affair, though it is likely that for a few minutes during the evening brief remarks will be made by some of those whose oratorical and argumentative qualifications are good. So far as possible, however, the affair will be carried out so that those who call may stay as long as they want, indulge in the political and social chat that prevails, and leave without feeling that they are causing an interruption by so doing.

In addition to the candidates from Union county, it is intended to have Hon. James J. Bergen, Somerset's Senatorial aspirant, also present, as well as L. S. DuFour, the Somerset Assembly candidate. North Plainfielders will therefore have an interest in the reception and will be made as welcome as those who vote in Union county.

Beside the candidates it is expected that a number of prominent Democrats from various parts of Union and Somerset counties will add interest and prominence to the affair by attending. William B. Gourley, chairman of the Democratic State committee, has been invited and may be there. A good-sized delegation of Elizabeth politicans are coming up, and altogether the occasion will probably be the most notable in local Democratic ranks in sometime.

MRS. CASH DEAD.

Wife of the Patrolman Passed Away Tuesday Night—Funeral is Friday.

Mrs. Margaret Cash, wife of Patrolman Cash, of South avenue, died at her home last Tuesday after a month's illness. Pneumonia was the cause. She had been ill since October 3d and her life was several times despaired of, but she managed to pull through. Yesterday she began to fail rapidly and passed away during the evening.

Mrs. Cash was born in Ireland forty-three years ago. She was married in 1888 to Jeremiah Cash, and has since resided in this city. She leaves one daughter.

The funeral will be held from the home on South avenue Friday morning at 8 o'clock, and from St. Mary's church an hour later.

Oil Stove Was Upset.

Last Monday evening at the home of Charles H. Smith, on Grove street, there occurred a fire which called out the fire department in response to an alarm sent in from Box No. 151, near the Park Clubhouse. The fire was caused by an upset oil stove in Mr. Smith's room. The boys were playing marbles in the room, when a marble rolled under the stove. One of the boys in attempting to get the marble upset the stove and this set fire to the carpet. By the time the department arrived the stove had been thrown out of doors, and two extinguishers put out the flames. The damage will amount to about $50. Mr. Smith was so gratified with the quick response of the firemen and their excellent work that he sent a personal letter to Chief Geo. Fairchild thanking him and his men.

—The Union Gospel meeting, as usual, in the W. C. T. U. rooms every Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING.

EDITH A. RANDOLPH BECOMES THE WIFE OF IRVING W. QUEREAU.

Ceremony Performed at the Bride's Home —Wedding Trip to the South—On Their Return They Will Reside in New York.

Scotch Plains, November 1.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Randolph was the scene yesterday afternoon of one of the prettiest home weddings of the season when their daughter, Edith A., became the bride of Irving W. Quereau, of New York. Only the immediate families and relatives of the happy couple witnessed the solemn vows which were administered by Rev. Floyd Appleton, curate of Grace church, Plainfield. The bride and groom were unattended during the ceremony, walking to their place under a canopy of white and green, erected in the parlor, to the strains of the Lochengren wedding march played by Miss Lillian Nichol, cousin of the bride. The beautiful Episcopal marriage service was used.

About 6 o'clock they left amid a shower of rice for Plainfield where they took the evening express for Washington where they will spend their honeymoon. Upon their homeward trip they will stop off at Philadelphia to the exposition for several days, after which they will begin housekeeping in New York City, where the groom has a lucrative position.

The house decorations, which were arranged by the bride, were white and green in the parlor and music room, while in dining room a pleasant scene of white and pink was effected.

The bride's dress was a beautiful white brocaded silk, while the bridal veil was held back by clusters of orange blossoms.

The bride and groom take with them them through life the best wishes of their many falends, who console themselve with the thought that while the happy groom has gained a loving helpmate, Scotch Plains has lost a most estimable young woman.

BUSY SEASON AT SCOTT'S.

Numerous Printing Machines Put Up In Various Cities About The Country.

This has been a very busy season for the Walter Scott Printing Machine Works, and there is plenty of work on hand. The popularity of the presses made at this establishment is increasing each year, and a large number of machines are being erected in various parts of the country. William Newmiller is in Kansas City erecting two three-tier web machines, and Edward Schierbaltz is in Louisville, Ky., erecting one three-tier web machine. George E. Bedford is erecting two three-tier web machines in Cleveland, O., and A. J. Compton is in Chicago and Joliet erecting five two-revolution presses. In Boston William Fann is putting up a stop cylinder and two-revolution presses. William Patterson is located in New York erecting lithographic presses, while E. W. Swindell is in St. Louis erecting two two-revolution presses.

For the Paris Exposition.

A complete circular, giving prices, etc., of the 1900 tours to the Paris Exposition and other parts of Europe, has been issued by Mr. A. V. D. Honeyman, of 181 North avenue, and may be had by calling for the same, or upon postal card request. There are ten tours specified between May 31 and September, and they cover almost all parts of Europe, extending into Northern Scotland and the interior of Norway, and also into Germany, Switzerland and Italy, all of them, however, including the Exposition. Those of our readers who think of going to Paris should secure a circular. It is stated that there will be no steamer accommodations to Europe for next year, after January 1st.

Visiting His Brother.

Rev. D. J. Edwards, D. D., pastor of the American Congregational church, at Leipsic, Germany, arrived in Plainfield Monday and is visiting at the home of his brother, Maze Edwards, in the Jackson building. Rev. Mr. Edwards is on his way to the Clifton Springs, Sanitarium, N. Y., where he hopes to regain his health, impaired by too close application to his work in the ministry.

Plainfielder at Zeta Psi.

Israel C. Pierson, of Watchung avenue, was one of the guests at the annual fall initiation of the Psi Chapter of the Zeta Psi Fraternity, of New York University, held Monday night at University Heights, N. Y. Mr. Pierson responded to the toast, "The Psi Chapter."

Storm Caused Lights to Go Out.

The storm Tuesday played havoc with electric light wires in the borough and for a time a number of lights were out on the east side of the borough.

BERGEN IS MAKING PERSONAL CANVASS.

Democrats Will Make Biggest Fight for Senator.

CANDIDATE HERE TONIGHT.

WILL SPEND TWO DAYS IN BERNARDS AND BEDMINISTER.

Democrats of Somerset are Hoping That Split in Republican Party Will be Means of Giving Them Victory—DuFour Will be Traded, It is Said, to Gain Votes for the Senatorship.

The coming election in Somerset county promises to be a hard fought one. A Senator and an Assemblyman will be elected. The fight will be for the Senator, which will be a lively contest, but it is practically a foregone conclusion that Assemblyman E. E. Cooper, the Republican nominee, will be elected. The Republican leaders claim that he will poll far more than the usual Republican plurality, while the Democrats admit that he will probably win.

The efforts of the Democratic workers will be devoted toward electing Hon. J. J. Bergen to the Senatorial position. There is some opposition in the party, but the leaders are hoping that Senator Reed's loss in his own party will enable them to elect their candidate by a small plurality. There is a natural Republican plurality to buck against, and the fight is going to be an up-hill one for Bergen and his Democratic adherents.

Mr. Bergen has planned as aggressive a campaign as is possible. Last night he was in North Plainfield and met the borough voters in the old Democratic headquarters on Somerset street. The room is a small one and there was no speaking. It was an informal reception and the voters were invited to meet Mr. Bergen there during the evening.

During the latter part of the week, Mr. Bergen has planned a two day's personal canvass in Bernards and Bedminster townships. He will drive over from Somerville and meet as many of the voters of that district as possible.

In Somerville the Democrats are using every effort to keep alive the bitterness between the two factions of the Republican party. The Republican leaders claim that it has almost entirely disappeared but their opponents are counting on that and Mr. Bergen's large personal acquaintance there to give him a big vote over Senator Reed.

It is probable that L. S. DuFour, the Democratic Assembly candidate, will be traded largely for Reed, as the Democratic fight is for Senator. Where possible, however, they are likely to push the whole ticket.

MISSIONARY RALLY.

Interesting Service by the King's Messengers of the Presbyterian Church.

An interesting service was held Monday afternoon in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church under the "King's Messengers," a mission band of that church. The meeting was in charge of Bertha Engelhardt, president of the band.

The following programme was rendered: Piano solo, "The Chimes of Trinity," Maude Wilcox, of Dunellen; recitation, "Pat Our Baks," Mary Cain; solo, "That Sweet Story of Old," Mrs. Samuel Case; recitation, "A Little Herald," Bertha Townley; piano solo, "Christmas Bells," Eva Kelly; recitation, "A Voice From the Sandwich Islands," Ida Engelhardt.

Mrs. Milliken then gave an address on what had been accomplished in by missionary effort in the Sandwich Islands in the space of eighty years, showing how in that short time, comparatively speaking, a people had been rescued from Heathenism, and are today a living sermon from the text, "What Hath God Wrought?" During the address photographs and curiosities were exhibited, which added greatly to the interest in our recently-acquired territory which the remarks of the speaker had aroused.

Visitors were present from the Presbyterian church, of Dunellen, and the Crescent Avenue church, of this city.

Celebrated Their Wedding Anniversary.

Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert H. VanNess, of the borough, celebrated in a pleasing manning the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, at which time a number of friends and neighbors called and passed an enjoyable evening. The celebrants received a number of gifts, both useful and pretty, and the occasion was one long to remembered.

Miss Brewer, of Brooklyn, has returned after a visit with Plainfield friends.

MILLINERY NOTES.

Flowers and Ornaments For Fall and Winter Hats.

Green reed leaves are much used in millinery, as are also immense black silk poppies with thin, delicate petals. A novelty is produced in the form of begonia leaves of black tulle, the network of the veining being followed by lines of jet or diamond powder or a thread of black chenille.

Small round hats for afternoon wear are smothered in flowers, especially roses, used in a mixture of colors.

A new idea in the decoration of the revived directoire hat is a big black butterfly painted in imitation of nature. It is placed on the brim in front, clear of fine black velvet ribbon surrounding the crown.

PRINCESS COSTUME.

Generally speaking, hats are not high and are so trimmed as to broaden them instead of making them appear tall.

The cut shows a gown having a skirt of violet velvet. Over this is a princess tunic of lighter violet bengaline, bordered with applications of écru guipure. The top and lower edge of the tunic are scolloped and slashed. The sleeves are of bengaline, with guipure applications, and the yoke is of velvet. The hat accompanying the gown is of violet velvet, trimmed with violet ostrich plumes, a jeweled buckle and a group of roses under the brim. The strings, which tie under the chin, are of mauve tulle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

NOTES OF NOVELTIES.

Silk and Satin Tailor Made Gowns Now Seen.

The bolero is seen in many of the costume models for the coming season. It forms an integral part of the gown and is worn indoors as well as out of doors.

Tailor made fashions have encroached upon the domain of silks, and now one sees plain skirts and coats of satin or taffeta finished simply with stitched bands. When the tissue is of good quality and is carefully cut and made, the effect is very smart.

BENGALINE GOWN.

Costumes of lace over white taffeta are attractive.

A novel article of jewelry is a sort of S shaped clasp, which may be obtained in gold, silver or their imitations, and is often set with jewels. It is used to retain the ends of the short boa against the belt.

The illustration shows a costume of pearl gray bengaline. The long skirt is trimmed to simulate two overlapping tunics crossed in front, the decoration consisting of a bias band of gray velvet and a puffing of pearl gray mousseline de soie. The upper tunic is closed at the left side with ornamental buttons. The bodice has a tight back and is gathered at the waist in front, showing a plastron of guipure over pink silk. The plastron is bordered with a band of gray velvet. A pelerine collar of puffed gray mousseline de soie covers the shoulders. The collar is of pink silk, the effect of white lace. The hat of black felt is trimmed with black plumes, a black satin chou and a gold buckle. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Porto Rico Once a Forest.

Porto Rico, say the scientists, was originally an immense forest from the seashore to the mountain summits. It is doubtful if there is a single foot of its land area which was not at one time covered by tree growth, from the diminutive mangrove bushes on the coast to the giant trees of the mountain sides and tops. Although still wooded in the sense that it is dotted by many beautiful trees, the island is now largely deforested from a commercial point of view.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

NEW MILLINERY.

Jeweled and Metallic Effects For Hats and Bonnets.

The glittering effects so much desired for costumes are carried into millinery. A great many hats and bonnets of black spangles are seen, and gold and silver more sparingly. As for ornaments, they are of like character. Imitation wings, made of gauze, spangles and jewels, are in great demand, and newer yet are the immense butterflies of similar materials, with velvet or chenille bodice and slender antennæ. One of these butterflies is almost enough for an ordinary bonnet.

Velvet and silk flowers, more particularly roses, are to be very much worn during the winter. On some of the most attractive millinery models they are largely massed, not necessarily of the natural colors. Often they are arranged to fall next the hair and appear in combinations with fur, which is also a fashionable millinery trimming. Entire hat shapes are covered with short pile fur and are elaborately trimmed for dress wear.

BUTTERFLY HAT.

The hat illustrated today is of heliotrope felt. The round brim is bent sharply down at the right and is edged with a cord of violet velvet. Coques and ends of violet velvet, lined with yellow velvet, form the trimming, in the midst of which is set a huge butterfly of black feathers, the inside of the wings being of white feathers. At the left side are placed three calla lilies, one white, one black and one yellow. JUDIC CHOLLET.

BELTS AND BUCKLES.

Waistbands Newest in Style and Their Clasps.

Much has been said concerning the disappearance of the round waist, but the strongest evidence in favor of its continued use is found in the innumerable belts and clasps and buckles which are produced in expensive qualities for winter wear. The belts are all rather narrow. Some of the newest are of black silk elastic and are two clasps just alike, one at the back and one in front. These clasps are broad and suggest a corselet effect. They are of wrought metal or are jeweled and are often made over fine leather or kid, although not ap- pearing on a kid belt. There are also velvet belts with cut steel buckles and belts of the soft, wrinkled variety, which on a pretty figure are perhaps the most pleasing style. Patent leather belts with leather covered tongued buckle are smart looking and accompany plain tailor made gowns or a flannel shirt waist very appropriately. Belts entirely of metal are becoming out of date.

HEAVY CAPE.

A picture is given of a cape of gray golf cloaking. It is edged with rows of red stitching, and set some distance above the edge is a line of mixed plaid fringe. A wide collar and revers are of plaid edged with fringe, and the strap and high, flaring collar are also of fringe. Pearl buttons ornament the upper part of the cape. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Her Proper Place.

"Foolishest plan I ever saw," exclaimed Mr. Meekton with the air of a man who knows he is going to make a hit. The heroine walks up stately and emphatic and exclaims, 'Where should a wife be except by her husband's side?' "

"Well, what of it?"

"Why, that's the wrong view of the case."

"Don't you think a wife ought to be by her husband's side?"

"Certainly not, Henrietta, certainly not. She ought to be away in front, leading the procession, Henrietta."—Washington Star.

Not Dealing In Futures.

"What do you charge for a bath?" asked a seedy individual as he entered the barber shop.

"Twenty-five cents," replied the tonsorial artist, "but you can have five tickets for $1."

"No; I don't want five," said the s. i. "I might not live that many years."—Chicago News.

FASHION NOTES.

Items of News Concerning the Fashionable Wardrobe.

Short, tight coats and boleros are worn open over fronts of silk or satin.

New trimmings consist of applications of cloth upon satin and of silk upon cloth. The silk applications are often stitched in lozenges, which puff up in the middle as if they were wadded. The applications are often outlined with a cord which sometimes shows an interwisted metallic thread.

GIRL'S COSTUME.

Gowns intended for ceremonious wear have the bodice matching the skirt. The bodice differing from the skirt is still well worn, but is comparatively informal.

Traveling gowns are usually in the tailor made style. They are of wool goods of substantial quality, never of silk. Absolute neatness, correctness and harmony are the requisites of the traveling costume, which should have the same character throughout. Plumes, spangles, lace and furbelows of all kinds are quite out of place and are to be avoided.

Boleros of cloaking, velvet and fur will be worn this winter.

The girl's costume illustrated is of beige wool with brown spots. The skirt is closed at the side and bordered with brown stitched bands. The bodice has a blouse front, and the collar and plastron are of turquoise velvet. The fichu, tied in front, is also of turquoise velvet, as is the belt, which forms long loops and ends at the back. The hat of beige felt is trimmed with bows of turquoise velvet, edged with little ruches, and has also two brown quills. JUDIC CHOLLET.

OUT OF DOOR COSTUMES.

Jackets and Gowns For Cold Weather Wear.

Straight sacks are much used for little girls. There are also short capes, falling no farther than the elbows. They are made without any fullness at all and are sometimes triple. Stitching is the usual finish for them.

The newest finish for jackets is the shawl collar, cut in scallops around the edge and covered with lines of stitching.

There are some very attractive costumes of Scotch plaid among the winter models. They are decorated with their own fringe, the shawl points often forming a tunic.

BOLERO.

Tailor made costumes of velveteen, both plain and fancy, are seen in all colors, from very light to very dark.

Cloth is perhaps the most favored material for applications of itself or cloth of a different shade or the preferred decoration for it. Light and dark are often combined, light gray with dark gray, white with beige, pale blue with deep blue.

Revers and plastrons of white cloth are immensely used with boleros.

The cut shows a bolero of dull blue cloth. It is even with the waist line at the back, but in front is elongated in two points, and the edges and seams are followed by a double line of black cording. The collar and revers are of black velvet, with applications of stitched blue cloth bands, and the revers are bordered with a little black velvet ruffle. The sleeves are trimmed with black cording and have velvet cuffs matching the collar. The cravat is of black satin bordered with lace. The hat of brown felt has a band and chou of black velvet, two black ostrich plumes and a garland of blue flowers. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION'S FANCIES.

Veils, Hairdressing Styles and Hair Ornaments.

White veils with a black dot are always worn. The newest have a mesh so fine as to be almost invisible, while the dots are so widely distributed as to suggest the patches of the eighteenth century. Blue and beige veils are also worn, and indeed veils of all tints are to be had, but black, gray and and white are the only ones which are becoming.

GIRL'S CLOAK.

Hairdressers are striving to revive the old style of coiffure where the hair is coiled or looped at the top of the head, waved smoothly over the brow and allowed to droop over each ear in a little bunch of curls. At the back of the head is an ornamental comb. For the present the hair continues to be waved and kept rather fluffy, but there are indications that this style has not much longer to live. The mass of the hair is kept on the top of the head.

The use of combs as an ornament is becoming more and more marked. Some are large, and some are small. There are jeweled side combs and jeweled bands. Ribbons and bows are beginning to be worn in the hair in the afternoon, and for evening there are many very fanciful devices.

The cut shows an attractive coat for a little girl. It is a long, straight sack, with no seam at the middle of the back, and has a yoke of velvet, with the edge cut in tabs. The cravat of the cloak is caught up to the left shoulder, where it is draped with a steel buckle. Around the edge is a trimming of velvet cut in tabs, and the sleeves are similarly decorated. The accompanying sailor hat of felt is trimmed with tulle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WINTER SKIRTS.

Prevailing Shapes of the Newest Models.

The double skirt has obviously come to stay. The majority of more elaborate winter models show it in one form or another. The long, open polonaise over a skirt much trimmed with ruffles or other decorations is a favorite style. There are also many crossed tunics, and tunics of the plain peplum variety, cut in different forms at the lower edge and falling over an ample circular flounce, which finishes the foot of the lower skirt.

VISITING GOWN.

The general shape of skirts continues the same—that is, they are narrow and tight at the top, flaring at the foot, made very long and their lower amplitude still further enlarged by trimmings. A new style divides just below the hips into four or five panels more or less ornamented around the edges and falling over a plain lower skirt trimmed at the foot. The plain skirt continues in much favor, however, for simple gowns and is indeed seen in more elaborateness, as no skirt so well displays a graceful figure.

The cut shows a costume of royal blue amazon cloth. The skirt is plain save for a tunic effect given by three white cloth cordings. The coat bodice, similarly corded near the edges, has a vest of white cloth, closing with two rows of dull gold buttons. There are double revers, the lower of white cloth, the upper of broche pompadour silk. The tight sleeves have white cording at the wrists. A white linen collar and chemisette are worn, with a tie of royal blue silk. The blue velvet toque has white feathers and a gold buckle.

JUDIC CHOLLE".

MILLINERY NOTES.

New Ideas For Winter Hats and Bonnets.

A novelty brought out for winter wear is the felt hat adorned all over or simply upon the brim with lines of stitching. These are appropriate for wear with stitched tailor made gowns.

Very large hats with high crowns have the brim covered with stitched velvet bands.

All sorts of headdresses, of all epochs, are called upon to satisfy the present fashion. There are antique bandeaux, medieval coronets and diadems for the ballroom, Spanish mantillas for evening use in the carriage, directory felt hats for the street and all sorts of capricious shapes for various occasions.

RIDING HABIT.

Felt, velvet, crape, lace, ostrich and other feathers and flowers, especially of silk and velvet, are the chief millinery materials, with the addition of jet, metal and jeweled effects of all kinds.

The shapes of hats this winter are very odd and striking, especially as regards the crown, which is sometimes small and flat, sometimes immensely tall and narrow, sometimes bell shaped. A felt brim frequently has a velvet crown, or vice versa.

A picture is given which shows the newest riding habit. It is of black cloth and has a comparatively short skirt. The tight coat has short coattails and a man's coat collar and revers, and is cut away in front to show a plain vest of white pique closed by small pearl buttons. Linen cuffs and a linen collar, with turned down corners, are worn and a plastron cravat of white grosgrain. A silk riding hat accompanies the habit.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

MILLINERY NOTES.

Winter Hats and Bonnets and Their Trimmings.

Velvet is strongly to the fore in winter millinery. A novel decoration for a hat is composed of coques of velvet, arranged like the petals of a flower in an enormous chou. In the middle is a jeweled ornament which represents the pistil.

Bigness characterizes most of the objects intended for hat trimmings. Mention has several times been made of the gigantic butterflies, composed of feathers or lace and spangles, which are so fashionable. Immense flowers are also in favor, great roses of velvet or immense poppies, one or two of which are sufficient for the trimming of a hat.

PRINCESS GOWN.

White is worn mourning, so universally used as summer millinery decoration, are now associating themselves with felt and velvet shapes for winter.

White lace veils with application designs remain in the van of fashion.

The picture shows a princess gown of steel gray cloth. It is crossed and draped at the waist under a gold buckle. The curved front of the skirt is edged by a ruffle of black mousseline de soie, and around the foot of the skirt are lines of black braiding. The bodice has a wide plastron with horizontal groups of plaits, and bretelles composed of ruffles of black mousseline de soie frame it and pass around the back, forming a berthe. The tight sleeves have groups of circular plaits. The hat, which is of black velvet, is trimmed with black ostrich feathers and a bow of pale pink velvet secured by a gold and jeweled buckle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WINTER FASHIONS.

New Jackets For Cold Weather—A Handsome Reception Gown.

For cold weather traveling there are long, half fitting jackets of plaid golf cloth. They are edged all around with a scant circular ruffle, over which falls plaid worsted fringe.

Fancy wools, diagonals, serges and fine checks will be worn, but, above all, cloth and cashmere. Gray blues, violets and greens, with neutral and undecided tints, are the favorite colors, but some brilliant and attractive reds are shown which will be well represented among winter costumes.

Blue and purple and blue and green with black and white are fashionable combinations. The two combined colors must be of just the right quality, or the effect is disastrous. If any combination of tints appears hard, it may always be softened by the addition of white adjuncts.

RECEPTION GOWN.

The reception gown illustrated is of silk damask having a pompadour design. It is in the form of a long redingote, the skirt being bordered with two scant circular flounces edged with bands of orange silk. The bone front of white lace falls over orange silk, and the plaited collar is of orange silk. The half length sleeves have triple caps edged with orange and terminate in a lace frill headed by an orange band and bow. The immense cravat is of orange tulle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

TAILOR MADE STYLES.

Finish and Trimmings of Early Winter Costumes.

Tailor made gowns are in great favor and are made in the same general style, varying only in detail. Light cloth or serge is the usual material. The skirt is clinging. The bodice is a jacket of greater or less length or a bolero, the latter being preferred as having a smarter look. The finish is as careful as that of a riding habit, while the decoration may be of simple stitching or of straps and applications of cloth of the same or a different shade. Lines of silk stitching of a contrasting color are now often used, white stitching on cloth being most frequently employed.

VISITING GOWN.

Revers of velvet, white or colored, covered with heavy lines of silk stitching, are a novelty and are sometimes made in harmonize with the gown, sometimes to contrast with it. Orange velvet revers appear on a black and white checkered costume, white or pale blue revers upon dark blue.

The illustration shows a gown of red cloth. The skirt, which is bordered with a stitched bias fold of white silk, opens at the side over a panel covered with three flounces of red plaid silk edged with a white silk fold. The tight red cloth bodice, bordered with white silk, fastens at the right side with dull gold buttons. The collar and revers are of plaid silk bordered with white, and in front is a plastron of guipure over white silk. The sleeves of red cloth have deep plaid cuffs. The hat is of red silk, which forms a large bow in front, fastened with a gold buckle. From this bow springs a curved black feather mottled with white.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

His Improvement.

A colonel in the French army who had a great eye for neatness but not much of an eye for music took occasion one day to compliment his bandmaster on the appearance of his men.

"Their uniforms are neat," said the colonel, "and their instruments are nicely polished and kept in order, but there is one improvement I must insist upon."

"What is it, colonel?"

"You must train your men, when they perform, to lift their fingers all at exactly the same time and at regular intervals on their instruments, so—one, two! one, two!"

HAWAII ANNEXED.

Its Remarkable Advance in Activity and Prosperity.

It is almost incredible to see what a substantial and rapid progress has been made throughout Hawaii since annexation to this country. Before annexation there was complete prostration of every kind. Now all is changed.

Much of the old poetic, picturesque *life remains. The stalwart "Hawaii*anese" goes her stately way clad in the flaming holokus which she becomes her, wreathed and crowned with flowers; the street laborer and the train driver pursue their vocations also decorated with flowers. The sound of the para poles fiddle still sounds through the groves of shadowy algaroba, and the strains of "Hawaii Ponoi" yet delight the heart. But with the old there is a new and virile Hawaii, the natural and inevitable successor of that which has served its time. Honolulu itself has changed astonishingly. Fine business blocks have already supplanted the old buildings and the others are in process of construction; the stores are crowded with the latest fashions in millinery and dry goods; in the fine, well-appointed book stores "David Harum," "The Rough Riders" and "Prisoners of Hope" are placed conspicuously on sale, while the windows are filled with wonderful photographs illustrating the recent overflow of Mauna Loa. In one street gangs of men are laying the track for a new rapid transit line to be operated by electricity; in others the new sewer is being constructed which, when completed, will make Honolulu one of the most sanitary cities in the world.

Real estate that was a drug on the market a year ago can hardly be bought now at any price. In the whole city and its environs there are hardly a dozen lots advertised for sale. Hundreds of houses have been built, many of them spacious and costly villas that are perched upon the lower slopes of the mountains, but still within the corporate limits of Honolulu. With these more ambitious dwellings are hundreds of cottages, not one of which is vacant, while those not yet completed have been bespoken for months. A new suburb, Pacific Heights, on the lower slope of Round Top, commanding a magnificent view of the city, the harbor and the ocean, has sprung up, has been surveyed and plotted, and the streets are being rapidly opened. It will not be three years until this will be completely built up with handsome residences, an abundant supply of water, and all the modern improvements of any metropolitan suburb. The electric light plant for the city itself has been greatly enlarged, so that even the large grounds and driveways, as well as the residences themselves, are brilliantly lighted.

Of course, the leading industry of the islands, sugar planting, has had an enormous stimulus, and people of moderate means have grown rich within the past year buying and selling stocks. New plantations are being started up, new capitalization running up into the millions. On those where irrigation is used the most costly and perfect machinery is employed—pumps that throw a stream of water of incredible height of six hundred feet—a thing hitherto believed to be impossible. This has redeemed the highlands which, when opposed to be unclaimable, and has added to the arable lands throughout the islands.

The yield has become almost doubled in the irrigated lands where cane culture is carried on in the most scientific manner.

Indeed, the sugar industry is hardly past its infancy, and the future of these great Hawaiian plantations can hardly be forecast. It has rather cast coffee growing in the shade, which is rather a pity, since no coffee in the world, not even that which passes for Mocha, can be compared in strength or flavor to the Kona coffee, indigenous to the islands. This, however, will improve, and no doubt, when the same energy and knowledge are brought to bear, coffee plantations will rival the cane fields. One difficulty has been that at least three years must elapse before capital invested in coffee yields any returns.

Furthermore, while the appropriations made by the Hawaiian legislatures two years ago will carry on the Government until January, 1900, should Congress have made no provision as to finances after that date the country will be placed in a very difficult position, for the United States will then be the legal custodian of public moneys and nothing can be paid without its sanction. And Congress should bear in mind when the cession of Hawaii comes up for consideration, that this is not a new possession acquired by the force of arms, but that it is territory that voluntarily sought annexation to the United States; that it voluntarily became a part of the Union, and that it must be ranked in the same category with the Philippines, Cuba or Porto Rico. It cause should have precedence over all the others, and there should be no delay in considering annexation, which exists, at present, only in the name, and makes itself felt, chiefly, through its custom house officials.

At present, there is no place for unskilled labor or for men without capital. There have been pitiable cases and many of them, of men without means or trade who have come out to the islands to become a public charge; who have spent their small savings and who have had to be sent back, destitute and disheartened. Men who have sufficient capital and some calling to wait one or two years, will do well, no doubt, when they finally settle down on the land, either to farm or no chance for any others. It requires no great power of prophecy to forecast the future of this favored land. In twenty years it will be a paradise, crowded with happy homes, every foot of its fertile soil under cultivation, and here at the convergence of a thousand routes from Australia, the Orient, the Nicaraguan Canal and the Pacific coast, will rise a city fair to look upon and great in its extent and in its wealth. All the influences that promise such results have now been set in motion, and the industries from which its wealth is already to become derived are staple necessary commodities, that supply a demand in the ports, not only of our own country, but of all Christendom.

Gumbo soup is okra soup, the Southerners call okra gumbo.

The Narragansett Indians had a dish called m'sickquntash, which we have borrowed and named succotash.

ABOUT SALADS ONLY

FOR THEY ARE FAR BETTER THAN SO MUCH PASTRY.

They Are Cheap, Appetizing and Save Doctor's Bills—How to Make and Serve Them—Potato and Tomato Salads Cost Little.

Why is it that in the rural localities, where salads can be secured easily and at little expense, they are so seldom used?

Banish the pastry and fried cakes and substitute stewed fruits with bread and salads, and doctors' bills may be cut in half or abolished and the family be far healthier, happier and richer. To prepare a salad for dinner should be quite as much a matter of course as to prepare the dinner itself, but too often it is simply left out of the menu, or served only on rare occasions as luxury. This frequently arises from the mistaken idea that the preparation of a salad is difficult and involves a certain amount of trouble, and when time is valuable one is apt to dispense with everything except absolute necessities. The use of herbs and flavors imbibed from the good old days of our grandmothers, the majority of us look upon pastry as a necessity, though it is the cause of much of our American dyspepsia.

The oil, sweet cream or butter used in the salad dressing is particularly wholesome, but of the three the olive oil is to be preferred to either butter or cream, but it must be of the very best, with a sweet, nutty taste that gives not suspicion of rancidity. Lemon juice and lemon juice, however, form the principal components in the ideal salad dressing, as their individual, fresh, acid flavor found in no other combination, and being in a dietetic sense almost, if not quite, perfection. Lemon juice may be used for vinegar.

All ingredients and utensils used in making salads must be very cold, and when made the salad must be kept in a cool place until served, as salads should never be prepared long before serving, but the dressing is better to be made some hours before it is to be used, except when prepared for a lunch that is frequently done nowadays. By the way, this may be made a very charming duty by a graceful woman, but it is one thing under the observation of which should shrink from performing before strangers.

Fruit and vegetable salads are appetizing, nourishing, cooling to the blood, and satisfy the craving for sub-acid foods. The housewife who has to practice economy will find few dishes so inexpensive and wholesome, that will lend such wonderful assistance in giving a delightful and whole-some variety.

As a rule, the salad is served as a separate course for dinner, though this is not always convenient. It is perfectly correct to serve it with the meat course when preferred. It is well where there are many courses to serve it as a course by itself occasionally, that they may become accustomed to a more ceremonious form, and not feel awkward or ill at ease by having to help themselves at a formally served table. Fish and meat salads should never be served at a dinner of ceremony, but for a light dinner, luncheon or supper hen salads are always suitable. These are better if made with the dressing and made some hours before it is served, as the ingredients will then be delicately blended.

Lettuce is an excellent foundation for a salad, and readily incorporates its mild flavor with fish, fowl or vegetables, and is a garnish it is unexcelled. Water cress is superb and may be had for the getting in many running brooks, and in towns one may have it all the year around, but where it is obtainable cabbage and celery make very acceptable substitutes Nothing should be used to garnish salads which cannot be eaten with them. Lettuce should never be cut; when the leaves are too large they should be gently torn apart, but this must not be done at the table. With the assistance of a piece of bread the leaf may sailfully be wrapped around the end of your fork into a small roll, so that it may be daintily eaten. An especially pretty garnish for a salad is the radish. Celery can be cut into many forms and trimmed with the tender leaves. Hard boiled eggs are also useful in garnishing. They may be sliced rather thin, or the whites may be chopped and the yolks powdered. With dinner a green salad is best, and the dressing most suitable for this is a simple one of oil, vinegar and salt. The dressing recipes may be most conveniently prepared in autumn and winter:

Make in the proportion of three tablespoonfuls of oil to one of vinegar, and one subspoonful of salt for plain dressing. Add half the vinegar to the salt, mixing it in a large spoon, then fill the spoon with the oil, stirring constantly and allowing the oil to run over the spoon and fall upon the salad; add alternately the remaining oil and vinegar, beating thoroughly all the time. Turn the salad lightly with a fork until it is all moistened with the dressing.

For nut butter salad dressing, rub two rounded tablespoonfuls of nut butter smooth with two-thirds of cold water, add a half teaspoonful of salt, cook over the fire a minute, then add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar and I I get very nice salad dressing.

For potato salad, chop one quart of boiled potatoes into dice, and while still warm pour over a dressing made as follows: One-fourth of a teaspoonful of dry mustard, one-half of cream and four tablespoonfuls of sharp vinegar; add one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, two heaping teaspoonful of butter, or as much oil as desired, and one tablespoonful of onion juice One pint of celery cut into one-inch pieces, or a little chopped parsley, may be added to the potato, or both may be used together if desired.

A tomato salad is made by peeling the tomatoes, cutting them in slices, as wise and arrange each on a bed of crisp lettuce leaves. The dressing may be made as follows: Whip four tablespoonfuls of sweet cream to a stiff froth and add to it a tablespoonful of sharp vinegar, a small saltspoonful of salt, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt. Put a teaspoonful of this on each tomato. Tomatoes may be served on lettuce leaves, or alone, as they choose. Some of the pulp may be taken out, leaving them cup-shaped and the hollows filled with chopped celery cucumbers or tender cabbage and served with a salad dressing.

BIG INSURANCE.

The Prince of Wales Carries an Enormous Amount.

A big insurance man told me recently in New-York that the Prince of Wales was the heaviest risk of any patron of the insurance business, and that his death would cost English, German French and American companies not less than $10,000,000.

"No other person carries 20 per cent of that insurance," he said, "but comparatively speaking, of it is for the benefit of his family; perhaps not more than $1,000,000.

"It is a curious fact," continued my insurance friend, who spends a good deal of his time in England, "that $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 of insurance, perhaps more, has been kept going sheer on the life of the Prince of Wales as a speculation by persons who do not know him and have never had any relations with him whatever. This would not be possible under the insurance laws of the United States, but it is allowed by the English companies. Over there any man can secure a policy on the life of a neighbor, provided he can persuade the neighbor to submit to examination, and keep up a company which has recently had him examined. Thus when the Prince of Wales undergoes an examination for insurance the Prince will have to apply the same company for policies on his life, or get certified copies of the report of the medical examiner and equip himself with other companies. It is pure speculation. They pay a high premium, a margin, so to speak, or, to put it in another way, they make a wager with the insurance companies that the Prince will die before the total of their premiums exceeds the amount of the policy. Theoretically the insurer could be financially benefited if Albert Edward should drop off suddenly one of these days, but the chances are against the event of this fact. He knows very well what advantages have been taken of his situation, but I do not suppose it makes any difference to his popularity."

"Are kings generally insured?" I asked.

"Yes, most of them, but they are not regarded as a good risk, and companies that carry the policies do not advertise the fact any more than necessary. It figures rather high, for instance, for the late Emperor Frederick, father of the present Kaiser, carried nearly $5,000,000 of insurance, which is about all the money his widow has to live on, aside from a pension from the German Government is small. Frederick was considered a first class risk. He was a man of robust health, splendid stature, with the training and frugal habits of a soldier, and was an athlete; but all at once a cancer appeared in his throat, a disease inherited from his grandmother, beautiful Queen Louisa, and he failed rapidly. The present Kaiser is not considered a good risk, and pays as much because of his constitutional defects as for political considerations, but for obvious reasons no company would declare an application from him for insurance."

"I understand the Queen of Spain is heavily insured?"

"Yes, she is supposed to be the case, although little is known about it, and the prevailing impression is that most of her policies are held by French companies, which have agencies in Madrid. Alfonso XII, her husband, was insured in several French and English companies—some say to the amount of $5,000,000, but I do not know the exact amount."—Chicago Record.

Partly Immune to Electric Shock.

"It is a singular fact," said an electrician of this city, "that the human body is capable of withstanding more shocks inured to shocks from live wires. I suppose the average scientist would scout the idea, but what I say is borne out by every-day experience. Some employees of a big electric light works, for instance, are continually receiving shocks that would disable an ordinary man, but are apparently none the worse for the experience.

"I remember sometime ago a couple of young fellows came in contact accidentally with a live wire at a manufactory here in town, and both received exactly the same current. One of them was a helper around the shop and had met with a heap of that sort before. He was knocked off his feet and momentarily stunned, but was all right in less than two minutes. The other man, who was a stranger, fell over as if struck by lightning, and it was fully half an hour before he showed the least signs of returning consciousness. He was laid up several days, and oddly enough, was much the more powerful, physically, of the pair.

"I have known several cases of practically the same sort. The motormen on the street cars frequently get the current, as they call it, especially in rainy weather when wet wood becomes a conductor. They tell me they don't mind it much after the first few times. It is certain that one can understand how repeated shocks can fortify the system against the mysterious fluid, but the fact is as I state. I'll leave the explanation to somebody else."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Operatic Airs for Station Calls.

Many Schuylkill Valley commuters invent pretexts for taking at night the 10:40 train from Broad street, so as to revel with the trainmen. There is a big, robust and humorous young man has a good baritone voice, and he sings the names of the stations. "I am," he declares, "a descriptive singing Brakeman. I have the field all to myself, but that will not endure. The directors and big chiefs have been pit hard by my lyrics, and it will not be long before all brakemen will be singers. Won't it be better so? Consider the ordinary brakeman. When he says to fifty-odd on street he grunts in a discord: 'Hrump hrump,to-ra-ra-hrump!' The passengers can't understand that, and besides their ears are jarred. Now I sing the station's name clearly, now to the air of 'Lohengrin's swan song,' now to the bird music of 'Siegfried,' and again to the inviting lansknecht motive of 'Tristan and Isolde.' The passengers look at me and smile. Sometimes they clap, stamp and call for more. I'm not a professional, but I am obdurate, having my work to do, and give no encores. I admit that I am proud of the fame I have won by my lyrics. I shall throw them with joy when I overhear young ladies saying, as I pass through the train: 'Look, there goes the Singing Brakeman.'"—Philadelphia Record.

Age of Seventeen.

One fourth of the earth's ... tree before reaching the age of ...

THE COMING STYLES

A SURVEY OF THE LATEST NEW YORK FASHIONS.

Some High Priced Gowns—Dress for a Bride—A Pretty Evening Gown That May Be Made at Home—Hats and Lace—The Fashion in Furs.

(New York Fashion Letter.)

I have just come from a tour of the shops, filled at present with a bewildering array of coming styles.

It is a matter for the psychologist to explain why it is that the most gorgeous creations have always an air suggesting of days gone by, dressed women lingering about them. Not one woman in a hundred could wear the conspicuous things, save a kind fairy godmother to appear on the scene with a needful roll of bills. Is it because each one of us has hidden under the conventional veneer of our clothes the spirit of ancestors? Whatever the reason, the suitable tailor-made gowns are tucked away in a corner and are only sought by those whose purses and frayed bindings force us to replace our old standby with a new one.

The gown which sent me off philosophizing over a resplendant black robe of net so completely covered with glittering spangles that the modest sum of $225 seemed ridiculously low for splendor flashy enough to suit a Choctaw maiden.

Quite unnoticed near was a truly artistic gown of broadcloth. The skirt was in tunic form and trimmed with an applique of white silk edged with silver. Three scant shaped ruffles finished the bottom of the skirt which was, of course, long and clinging. The waist was very simple, the vest of brocaded satin being outlined with the same applique.

Apropos of broadcloth. I wish you could have seen the charming gown a bride will wear at a morning wedding. Over a foundation skirt of white taffeta is hung one of white broadcloth, cut out in a most beautiful design and appliqued to silk net of the same shade. The most striking feature of the whole is in the design which starts in straight lines from the waist and loses itself in curves and scallops and windings, giving the effect of a rare and heavy lace.

But for the sake of a girl who can not secure the services of a high-priced modiste, I will tell you of a pretty evening dress any clever needlewoman can make herself with the aid of a home dressmaker.

Have the most perfectly hanging skirt of taffeta. Over this hang one of net of exactly the same shade and shape. Trim the skirt with three ruffles of the net, headed by a still full one of the chiffon. The drapery consists of a long pointed apron overskirt with a sash tied in a simple bow in back. The apron is shaped with satin ribbon two inches wide, then three rows of very narrow ribbon, then a wide row, so alternating in the amount of $5,000,000, but I do not know the exact amount."—Chicago Record.

Partly Immune to Electric Shock.

"It is a singular fact," said an electrician of this city, "that the human body is capable of withstanding more shocks inured to shocks from live wires. I suppose the average scientist would scout the idea, but what I say is borne out by every-day experience. Some employees of a big electric light works, for instance, are continually receiving shocks that would disable an ordinary man, but are apparently none the worse for the experience.

"I remember sometime ago a couple of young fellows came in contact accidentally with a live wire at a manufactory here in town, and both received exactly the same current. One of them was a helper around the shop and had met with a heap of that sort before. He was knocked off his feet and momentarily stunned, but was all right in less than two minutes. The other man, who was a stranger, fell over as if struck by lightning, and it was fully half an hour before he showed the least signs of returning consciousness. He was laid up several days, and oddly enough, was much the more powerful, physically, of the pair.

"I have known several cases of practically the same sort. The motormen on the street cars frequently get the current, as they call it, especially in rainy weather when wet wood becomes a conductor. They tell me they don't mind it much after the first few times. It is certain that one can understand how repeated shocks can fortify the system against the mysterious fluid, but the fact is as I state. I'll leave the explanation to somebody else."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Operatic Airs for Station Calls.

Many Schuylkill Valley commuters invent pretexts for taking at night the 10:40 train from Broad street, so as to revel with the trainmen. There is a big, robust and humorous young man has a good baritone voice, and he sings the names of the stations. "I am," he declares, "a descriptive singing Brakeman. I have the field all to myself, but that will not endure. The directors and big chiefs have been pit hard by my lyrics, and it will not be long before all brakemen will be singers. Won't it be better so? Consider the ordinary brakeman. When he says to fifty-odd on street he grunts in a discord: 'Hrump hrump,to-ra-ra-hrump!' The passengers can't understand that, and besides their ears are jarred. Now I sing the station's name clearly, now to the air of 'Lohengrin's swan song,' now to the bird music of 'Siegfried,' and again to the inviting lansknecht motive of 'Tristan and Isolde.' The passengers look at me and smile. Sometimes they clap, stamp and call for more. I'm not a professional, but I am obdurate, having my work to do, and give no encores. I admit that I am proud of the fame I have won by my lyrics. I shall throw them with joy when I overhear young ladies saying, as I pass through the train: 'Look, there goes the Singing Brakeman.'"—Philadelphia Record.

Age of Seventeen.

One fourth of the earth's ... tree before reaching the age of ...

ODD IDEA OF EXERCISE

Ameer of Afghanistan Follows His Doctor's Orders Complacently.

The Ameer of Afghanistan has been ordered by his doctors to take exercise, and he has probably discovered the easiest way of taking it that was ever thought of it. The Ameer is getting fat, and has been suffering from indigestion, and that is why he has got to take exercise.

He has ordered from a famous carriage-making firm of Oxford street a peculiar vehicle, for exercising purposes. The carriage has a light body, and is propelled by an arrangement of bicycle wheels from the rear. Two steam launches sit on saddles over these wheels and pedal with all their might to drive the fat king over the terrible roads of Afghanistan. When the Ameer feels inclined to take exercise a little more violent than merely sitting down in the carriage, he does so by pushing two pedals, arranged for the purpose. In this way he can add about half a small boy's power to the efforts of the stalwart Afghans pedalling at the rear. The carriage is a handsome one, and the body is patterned like an old English Georgian phaeton. It is fitted with silk cushions, and is upholstered.

Besides the carriage for his personal use, the Ameer has had another built for the use of members of his harem. The carriage has cost $1,000 each, and are capable of maintaining a speed of twelve miles an hour.

It is well known to everybody at Cabul, the capital of Afghanistan, if the Ameer's health should improve. In his present state of ill-temper he is very free with the bastinado. He is also a great soldier in his day, and is a very capable monarch, but his temper has lately been very uncertain. Some time ago he had a tooth extracted, and the English dentist who accepted an invitation to go to Cabul and pull it out felt very nervous until he had secured the tooth and got out of the country.

Vanilla Bean Growing.

The attention now paid by Americans to the agricultural possibilities of Mexico has brought into prominence many sub-tropical cultivations. Among these is the culture of the vanilla bean. The vanilla plant, which in the last few recent years it was cultivated only by the Mexican Indians in the valleys of Mazantla and Papantla. The blossoms at night give out an exquisite perfume, closely resembling the nectarine, which is found on the leaves in the morning. From each of the blossoms spring small pods, sometimes twenty or thirty in number. As the plant matures many of these pods drop off, and those remaining grow to be long beans, containing the seeds, and are about the size of the fully yellow banana seen in the markets.

The vanilla is strictly a pollen blossom, and the male and female flowers grow on different plants. In former times the Indians gave themselves little anxiety about pollination, depending on the winds of heaven to inter-mingle the pollen and fecundate the male blossoms. In recent years the Italians and French, who have largely displaced the Indians, are seeing more to this in a methodic manner. The plants are set nearer together, so that both insects and stray breezes can be more instrumental in intercrossing the pollen, and the growers themselves take a hand in the pollination.

The two busy seasons of the year are during the pollination months, March, April, and May, and the gathering months, November, December and part of January. The curing method of curing is slow and laborious. The secret is to evaporate the water while retaining the oil, prevent the bean from moulding, and to give it a flavor uninjured. Twenty beans to a vine is a good average. A green bean is worth from 8 to 14 cents in the American market. A fine vine will yield a handsome income.

One interesting peculiarity of the vine is that after three or four years the stem will grow no longer, and must continue to rot three or four feet up the vine, says the Chicago Record, while the upper portion grows and flourishing. In the meantime from above the part that is soon to decay shoot out fine thread-like rootlets, which grow downward to the ground, and these delicate threads running along the trunk of the tree that the vine seems to be living unsupported in air.

Plaged Burglar.

Down in Fountain County, Ind., there was an earthquake a few days ago, and John Welch of Covington thought it was a burglar.

He at once started from the parlor into her darkened bedroom when she heard a glass and silver perfumery flask on her dresser jingle as if it had been hit and almost tipped over. At the instant her feet were tangled in the rug at the threshold, but she fled, frightened and dizzy, and called for help.

When her husband came he turned on the light in the bedroom and then felt the second shock. He plainly saw the bureau

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Union County Nominations.

For Senator,
John H. Hillman.

For Sheriff,
Jacob Glaser.

For County Clerk,
William M. Oliver.

For Assemblyman,
John J. Gardner.
William H. Swain.
George J. Reiss.

For Coroner,
Dr. Walter E. Cladek.

Somerset County Nominations.

For Senator,
James J. Bergen.

For Member of Assembly,
L. M. S. DuFour.

A Local Democrat Heads the Ticket.

The Democratic ticket nominated in the county convention at Elizabeth Friday possesses particular interest to the members of the party in this city owing to the fact that for the first time since James E. Martine ran against Governor Voorhees for Senator six years ago a Plainfielder is on the county ticket. It will probably tend to inspire greater efforts on the part of the local Democracy for the success of the standard bearers in this campaign, and especially since aggressive steps have been taken for a through reorganization of the party in the city.

As the candidate for Senator, John Henry Hillman was prevailed upon to accept the honor without forethought as to such a course. It is a great personal sacrifice for Mr. Hillman to enter the canvass under any circumstances, as his business relations are responsible and pressing at all times, and to a large extent he will have to place the fate of his candidacy in the hands of his friends. But those who prevailed upon him to enter the race against Senator Cross have promised to do all that they can to secure his election, and an aggressive, active canvass will be prosecuted to take advantage of every bit of strength that is at the command of the Democrats in not only Plainfield, but throughout Union county.

But Mr. Hillman is no novice in the game of politics. As a matter of fact there is probably not a man in Union county who has had more practical experience in politics than has the Democratic candidate for Senator. For many years Mr. Hillman was a resident of Brooklyn, and a voter in what was known as the "Fighting Tenth Ward." There he was prominently identified with Democratic politics, and was one of the leaders who participated in the big political battle in that city several years ago.

He has been a resident of Plainfield for four years, living at present on West Seventh street, below Plainfield avenue, in the Third ward. In the efforts to reorganize the party last fall Mr. Hillman's services were called upon and he consented to become the president of the Democratic Association, and again in the present reorganization plans Mr. Hillman's advice and work has been of great benefit to the party. He has been president of the Catholic Club for two years. His business associations are with the great drygoods house of Claflin & Company of New York where he has charge of of several hundred men.

Personally, Mr. Hillman is a bright, cultured gentleman who adds strength to the ticket which he heads. He is about forty years of age.

The County Clerkship.

When the Democrats of Union county nominated William Murray Oliver, of Elizabeth, as their candidate for County Clerk they had the strongest man for that office that can be found in Democratic ranks in this bailiwick.

There is a general feeling that it is high-time that there was a change of incumbents in the County Clerk's office, and the only way to bring about such a result is the election of Mr. Oliver. The Republicans—or rather the machine "gang"—have seen fit to renominate William Howard for this office. It is a recognized fact that Mr. Howard's administration is a decidedly unpopular one—a marked contrast to the long line of predecessors elected by the Democrats Democrats and Republicans alike who appreciate a dignified, courteous, fair and liberal administration of the office of County Clerk—a place in which politics is wholly eliminated by the merely stated duties that are attendant to it—recognize that in Mr. Oliver they have a model candidate.

As the appointee to serve out the term of the late James Gerber, Mr. Oliver served the county so satisfactorily, and won for himself the sincere approbation of every one who knew the circumstances of his whole-souled, generous action towards the widow and fatherless child of his predecessor, that even now, when the Republicans are hard pressed and in peril of losing control of this office, not one disparaging word is heard of the personality of Mr. Oliver.

It is a condition of affairs that speaks volumes for the Democratic candidate. With the united support of Democrats there is not much doubt but that the next County Clerk of Union will be Mr Oliver.

The Shrievalty.

It is extremely unfortunate that Jacob Glaser, who was unanimously named for the office of Sheriff by the Democracy, finds himself handicapped in his canvass by a sudden and serious illness. Mr. Glaser had expected to devote his whole time between the date of the convention and the election to campaigning, but his illness brought on by ante-convention activity puts him at the disadvantage of not being able to personally greet many of the voters throughout the county.

But notwithstanding Mr. Glaser's handicap he is rapidly developing strength against the machine "gang" candidate of the Republicans, for he has a host of personal friends who are hustling in his interests day and night and are rallying up the Democrats to a remarkable degree.

Mr. Glaser is an honest, straightforward and resolute sort of a man who is admirably qualified to fill the important office of Sheriff. The Sheriff has great power imposed upon him, and it is essential for the welfare of the people that a candidate shall be chosen to the office who is untrammeled by political promises and dickers that may crop out in the administration of such a man as has been named by the Republicans. If elected to the office Mr. Glaser will be free to act as law and justice demands, and it is a serious duty which all good citizens owe to themselves to see to it that such a man as Mr. Glaser is elected Sheriff of Union county.

For the Assembly.

In a campaign like this where there are three of the most important offices of the county to be filled, it would not be surprising if the candidates for Assembly should be chosen with a less degree of care than good and representative legislation demands, owing to political consideration being centered in the Senatorial, Shrievalty and County Clerk nominations. But such is not the case with the Democratic ticket. The Assembly nominees—Messrs. Gardiner, Swain and Reiss—are a strong trio. Geographically, the candidates are judiciously distributed so that one section will not be neglected owing to the lack of representation, if they are elected. The office of Assemblyman, as experience has taught in New Jersey, is one in which great good and honor lies, but it is also equally true that it is potent for great harm and discredit if the incumbent chooses to do ill with it. The Democratic candidates are honest and capable, and, if elected, may be depended upon to represent the county with honor and credit in Trenton the coming winter.

The Democracy's Chance.

The Union county Democracy entered the present campaign with cheering omens—a strong ticket, a united party and great disaffection and embitterments among the Republicans over the chicanery and boesism that has become fastened upon the organization that now leads.

While Republicans are back-biting and openly repudiating the ticket put in the field by the powerful and odious political machine that has attained sway by questionable methods, the Democrats of Union county are pulling a long and faithful stroke with a unanimity that shows appreciation of the advantageous political position they are now occupying. The ticket placed in nomination by the county convention last Friday is one that appeals to every Democrat to support earnestly and aggressively till the votes are counted and Union county is once again placed in fine Democratic column.

The political bosses of the Republican party and their camp-followers are striving their hardest to placate the dissatisfied ones in time to pol the party voters who have become disgusted and rebellious at the tactics that prevail in the political machinery of the G. O. P., but if the Democrats rally to the support of their own party standard bearers with the ardor that the personnel of the ticket deserves to there can be but one result—Democratic victory on election day!

Smith and the Elections.

Former Senator James Smith, whose name is frequently heard in politics in New Jersey, but whose presence in party realms has been noted for his absence during the past year, has turned up in gay Paree, where he has submitted to an interview. As a long-distance observation, Mr. Smith is reported as having said:

"I hoped to be back in time to see how things were going politically in my own State, but Carlsbad did not cure me. I don't attach much importance to the fall elections, they will not foreshadow the fortunes of next year. It is an off year.

"With the exception of Ohio the elections will not bring out anything like a full vote. In my own State, New Jersey, for instance, I don't think more than two-thirds of the voters will go to the polls.

"As for me, I will stand by the platform of the party no matter what I think personally. The platform is the condensed wisdom of the party and individual opinion should respect it. To the Chicago platform a few more planks will be added."

John T. Dunn on the Stump.

The redoubtable John T. Dunn, former Congressman from this district, has been regaling Hudson county Democrats with some campaign oratory, which was brought out through his desire to say a few words in behalf of his old friend, James F. Clarke, who is running for Register. Said the ex-Congressman:

"Jim Clarke helped to make me Speaker of the Assembly, and if I had not been elected Speaker I would never have become a lawyer. I believe in the law, but if there was any way I could steal a vote, I would drop it in for Jim Clarke."

After telling all about the Dunn bill, the ex Congressman said:

"Mark Hanna's name is not Marcus It is Mike. He is as much of a 'Mick' as I am, and he is as Irish as Paddy's pig. Unless the Democrats soon regain control of the National affairs this Republic is going to die.

THE REPUBLICAN VIEW.

They Say That Every Candidate But County Clerk Will be Traded by Democrats for Latter.

The Republican view of the situation in Union county is shown by the following article in the New York Tribune Tuesday morning:

Elizabeth, Oct. 30 —The campaign has now fairly begun in Union county. Notwithstanding the boasts of the Democrats that they will capture one or more of the county offices, there is little doubt of a clean Republican sweep.

The Democrats today are without able leadership, while the Republican campaign, which was devised and perfected by Charles E. Codding, the clever chairman of the County executive committee, is unexcelled by that of any other county of the State.

Every conservative Democrat concedes the election of Judge Cross, and also the election of the three Republican Assemblymen and the Republican candidate for Sheriff by majorites nearly as large as will be received by Senator Cross. The Democrats are, however, after the County Clerkship, and the indications are that they will trade every candidate on the ticket to secure votes for William M. Oliver. They assert that they have promises of many disgruntled Republicans in Elizabeth and Plainfield in the fight for the Clerkship, which is the most lucrative office in the county.

The young Democrats at Elizabethport are lukewarm toward the ticket nominated last Friday, and when the returns come in from that Democratic stronghold they will surprise the party leaders.

FUNERAL OF MISS WINKLER.

Held From the Home of Her Uncle, Samuel Pyatt, at Samptown.

The funeral services of Miss Nellie Winkler were held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence of her uncle, Samuel Pyatt, Samptown. Rev. J. A. Cubberly, pastor of the Baptist church, South Plainfield, had charge of the services, and was assisted by Rev. Mr. Jones, former pastor of the Marcomber chapel, and Rev. Mr. Metler, present pastor. Several selections were rendered by a vocal trio, consisting of Mrs. R. B. Manning, Mrs. J. A. Cubberly and Mrs. W. Manning. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Interment took place in Hillside Cemetery, Samptown, and the pallbearers were Harvey Clawson, Harry Manning, Fred Dayton, Charles Blackford.

Beauty Is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean your blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads, and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets,—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

Elders and Deacons Installed

Four of the six recently-elected elders and deacons of Trinity Reformed church were installed into office Sunday morning by the pastor.

The Exchange Editor.

Pile luxury as high as you will, health is better.—Julia Ward Howe.

A horse may stumble with all his might, but never with his mane.—Chicago Record.

Our greatest glory is not in never failing, but in rising every time we fall. —Confucius.

Talk is cheap ordinarily, but it costs like rip over a long-distance telephone. —Houston Post.

Whose combeth his hair with a view to covering a bald spot, is a liar in his heart.—Detroit Journal.

Let friendship creep gently to a height; if it rush to it, it may soon run itself out of breath.—Fuller.

A woman who dresses in a hurry always puts too much powder on the end of her nose.—Atchison Globe.

A man has to be very much in love with a woman to willingly carry her parasol over her.—Feminine Observer.

Some people keep the Sabbath so holily that they don't work any for three days before or three days after.—The Bachelor.

Some people seem to think that the straight and narrow path is a short cut to a good many things that is not. —Puck.

You can't get something out of nothing; but there are a number of people who can get little or nothing out of almost anything.—Puck.

A bachelor's life suffers goes off alone to some lonesome place; it is only man who lets every one know when he is suffering.—Carmen Sylvia.

A reflective mind thinks a man never sees a very young couple billing and cooing that the sight does not suggest souvenir spoons.—Philadelphia Times.

If the good a man does is interred with his bones, some of us will have plenty of room to turn over, narrow as the bed is.—Atlanta Constitution.

The difference between work and play is exemplified by the fact that laborers often are prostrated by the heat, but children, rarely.—Feminine Observer.

It is always a great shock to a woman to hear a preacher express a desire to go to Paris; his longing should be to get that far away from his family.

The belief in God is probably almost as instinctive to a woman as the idea that she can't clean house properly unless she has a sunbonnet on.—The Bachelor.

The truly great politician is one who is able to perform a clear public duty and lay aside all personal enmity or grudge against a political enemy.—Chicago News.

The enthusiasm of inexperience has never been more thoroughly illustrated than in the case of the bachelor who thinks he knows all about women.—Philadelphia Record.

Two women in whom the same man is interested may never be able to decide how much they like him, but they don't have any trouble deciding how much they don't like each other.—New York Press.

The Wiseacre.

In a calm sea every man is a pilot.

A bad workman never finds a good tool.

Praise a fool and you may make him useful

A bird in the cage is worth a hundred at large.

Who hunts two hares, leaves one and loses the other.

Make yourself an ass and every one will lay his sack on you.

One day of a wise man is worth the whole life of a fool.

Make no rash vows or promises, for nobody will help you to perform them.

A great many pair of shoes are worn out before a man does all he says.

Better be organized for success in the long run'd than in the short one.

World philosophers give us a splendid appetite for inspiration

The insolence of cash is illogical, but we have to admit it appear so?

To get a living—easy phrase, but it involves all the practical virtues.

The unselfish is the last in the race for the winner doubtless.

The force of truth is not for time, but for eternity.

A wise man reflects before he speaks; a fool speaks and then reflects on what he has said.

Two thinks indicate a weak mind; to be silent when it is proper to speak, and to speak when it is proper to be silent.

The Alaskan.

One hundred native girls attend the school at Holy Cross Mission.

The Treadwell mine earns from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 in a year in clear profit.

Rich finds of gold have been made near Cape Nome, 150 miles north of St. Michael's.

A large majority of disappointed prospectors are chopping wood for the steamboat companies to earn their passage home.

One of the buildings of the Treadwell mine is as large as was the Manufacturers' Building at the World's Columbian exposition.

From north to south Alaska stretches 1,200 miles or 500 miles further than from the great lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. Its width is greater than from Chicago to London.

Recent surveys of the United States Fish Commission show that Alaska's codfish banks are thousands of square miles greater than all those on the Atlantic coast put together.

All along the Koyukuk River boats are stranded, having been overtaken by ice before reaching the promised land. Complaint is made that the mail contractors do not live up to the provisions of their agreement with the government.

The Objector.

Don't imagine a doctor believes life isn't worth living.

Don't take your watch to a physician because it is run down.

Don't try to pull yourself out of trouble with a corkscrew.

Don't stand in front of bars too much or you may get behind them.

Don't bet on what you feel in your bones—unless it be rheumatism.

Don't judge a poet by his dress; fine feathers don't make fine birds.

Don't neglect to talk sensible at times; it may be difficult, but it's necessary.

Don't stay away from church on account of your clothes. The Lord is too busy to notice the handiwork of tailors and dressmakers after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about 1-as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

DRINK GRAIN-O

WHIPPED THE HORSES.

Then by Frightened Team Still More and Caused Them to Plunge With Disastrous Result.

An accident occurred on West Front street Sunday afternoon about 1 o'clock in front of the Babcock building, when a team of horses attached to a wagonette, owned by D. S. Robsette, became frightened at a trolley car. The driver, Wm. McCready, applied the whip vigorously to the horses and excited them still more. In consequence he was unable to hold them. They made a circle in the street, ran up on the sidewalk and collided with a trolley pole and a fire hydrant at the corner of Madison avenue and Front street, where the top of the hydrant was broken off. The wagon was damaged to the extent of $25. Those who saw the accident thought it miraculous that the driver was not injured.

With the assistance of several Knights Templar who were going to use the rig to go to Springfield to attend the funeral of their late brother, Dr. Jackson, the horses were caught and quieted and further damage thus averted. The horses were taken back to the stables, where Mr. Roberts paid the driver his money and discharged him.

HOSPITAL LOCATION.

Board of Governors Discussed Advisability of Moving the Institution To Another Section.

The board of governors of the Muhlenberg Hospital met last Monday and transacted routine business and incidentally discussed the advisability of moving the hospital buildings to some locality more suited to the purpose than the present one. The close proximity of the railroad and machine shops of Potter's Press works were admittedly not advantageous and the governors talked over the prospects of some dozen other possible sites.

While a majority of the Governors fully realize that the present location is not the best, it is hardly likely that any action toward changing the location will be taken for sometime to come.

How Are Your Kidneys?

Dr. Richter's Sparagus Pillsare all kinds of kidney ills. Sample free. Add. Sparagus Pill Co., Chicago or N. Y.

PROFIT IS $1,000.

Autumnal Festival Held at the Catholic Clubhouse Was a Great Financial Success.

The autumnal festival closed at the Plainfield Catholic clubhouse Saturday evening was in every particular a success. It is believed that $1,000 will be realized as profit. The contest between the Children of Mary and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the A. O. H. for a handsome banner brought in $500, and was won by the Children of Mary. Everything was disposed of before the festival closed and those in charge feel gratified with the success attendant upon their efforts.

TAPE WORMS

"A tape worm eighteen feet long at least came on the scene after my taking two CASCARETS. This I am sure has caused my bad health for the past three years. I am still taking Cascarets, the only cathartic worthy of notice by sensible people."
GEO. W. BOWLES, Baird, Miss.

CANDY CATHARTIC
Cascarets
TRADE MARK REGISTERED
REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c.
CURE CONSTIPATION.
Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York. 310

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

1831 Seventieth Year. 1900
THE Country Gentleman.

The ONLY Agricultural NEWSpaper, AND ADMITTEDLY THE Leading Agricultural Journal of the World.

Every department written by specialists, the highest authorities in their re-pective lines.

No other paper pretends to compete with it in qualifications of editorial staff.

Given to Agriculture, NEWS with a degree of fulness and completeness not even attempted by others.

Best Reviews of the Crops.
Best Market Reports.
Best Accounts of Bottle-ps.
Best Everything

Indispensable To
All Country Residents
WHO WISH TO
KEEP UP WITH THE TIMES.

Single Subscription, $2;
Two Subscriptions, $3 50;
Four Subscriptions, $6.

Special Inducements to Raisers of Larger Clubs.

Write for particulars on this point

Club Agents Wanted Everywhere.

Four Months Trial Trip 50 cents

SPECIMEN COPIES

will be mailed free on request. It will pay anybody interested in any way in country life to send for them. Address the publishers.

LUTHER TUCKER & SON.
ALBANY, N. Y.

CLEARING SALE
OF PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of of good second-hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7	Octave Square	$ 40
7⅓	" Upright	70
7⅓	" "	150
7⅓	" "	165
7⅓	" Hallett & Davis	190
7⅓	" " "	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20. $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

$300 and up, and 3 years' time if you want it Other makes—Cabinet Grands, all improvements. $225—$1 per month.

A Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,
94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS
500 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.
CONTENTS:
Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.
Same book can be had better binding 50 cts.
HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York

JAS. M. DUNN,

Dealer in

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS, VEGETABLES,
FRUITS &c
GARDEN SEEDS
resh and carefully selected.

224 PARK AVENUE

OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.

Everything usually found in a first-class grocery.
Goods delivered free of charge.

P. VanArsdale,
PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 160, or left at Willett's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 E. Front street, corner Elm street. 9jly2

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer
Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 139, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. R. CODINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law
Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery. Notary Public. Offices Corne of Park avenue and Second street.

Children cutting Teething

Mrs. Winslow's has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa.
Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle.
Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POST OFFICE.
NEW YORK MAILS.
Arrive—7:30, 8:40, 11:30 a. m.; 2:30 and 5:00, 5:30 p. m.
Close—7:20, 9:15 a. m.; 12:30, 1:45, 5:00, 7:45 p. m.

SOMERVILLE and EASTON.
Arrive—8:40 a. m.; 3:00 and 7:30 p. m.
Close—7:20 a. m.; 2:30 and 4:30 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.
Arrive—7:30, 8:40, 11:30 a. m.; 2:30 and 6:15 p. m.
Close—7:20 and 9:15 a. m.; 12:30, 5:00 and 7:15 p. m.
Through fast mail for West and South, close 5:00 and 7:15 p. m.

WARRENVILLE.
Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—9:30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.
Office open from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m.
Mail closes at 6:15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M.

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Anthracite Coal Used Exclusively. Insures Cleanliness and Comfort. Handsome stations in New York, foot of Liberty, and South Ferry Whitehall streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT Oct. 16th, 1899.

For New York, 2.45, 3.25, 4.25, 5.25, 6.25, 7.25, 7.55, 8.00, 8.15, 8.30, 8.57, 9.55, 9.58, 10.57, 11.30 a. m., 12.02, 12.15, 12.30, 12.45, 1.15, 1.45, 2.15, 2.30, 3.41, 4.25, 5.12, 5.55, 6.23, 6.30, 7.40, 8.25, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m. Sundays, 2.45, 3.25, 4.25, 5.25, 6.25, 7.25, 7.55, 8.52, 10.05, 11.10 a. m., 12.02, 12.15, 1.45, 3.17, 3.30, 5.41, 6.25, 7.12, 8.52, 9.15, 10.30, 11.30 p. m.

For Red Bank, 2.45, 3.25, 4.25, 5.25, 6.25, 7.25, 8.13, 8.27, 9.43, 9.55, 10.57, 11.10 a. m., 12.02, 12.15, 12.30, 12.45, 1.15, 1.45, 2.15, 2.30, 3.41, 4.25, 5.12, 5.55, 6.23, 6.30, 7.40, 8.25, 9.30, 11.28 p. m. Sunday 7.10, 8.00, 10.10 a. m., 12.02, 12.56, 1.45, 3.17, 5.41, 6.25, 7.12, 10.22 p. m.

For Somerville at 5.18, 7.12, 8.10, 9.05, 11.00, 11.50 a. m., 1.01, 2.03, 2.47, 5.03, 5.27, 5.54, 8.04, 8.59, 9.19, 9.58, 7.12, 7.34, 8.27, 11.20 p. m. Sundays, 9.54 a. m., 1.01, 2.03, 8.06, 9.59, 10.44 a. m.; 2.03, 3.40, 5.08, 6.38, 8.30, 11.14 p. m.

For Easton at 5.18, 8.13, 9.54 a. m., 1.01, 2.30, 5.27, 6.38, 8.21 p. m. Sunday at 9.54 a. m.; 2.03, 6.38 p. m.

For Lake Hopatcong at 9.54 a. m.; 5.27 p. m.

CONNECTIONS.

5.18 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Sunbury, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

7.12 a. m. Sundays—For Flemington, Bridge, connecting for stations on High Bridge Branch except Chester.

8.13 a. m.—For Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R., Easton, Allentown and Mauch Chunk.

9.54 a. m. For stations on High Bridge Branch, Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R., Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Pottsville, Shamokin, Sunbury and Upper Lehigh, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, etc.

1.01 p. m.—For Flemington, Lambertville, Junction or Junction for stations on D. L. & W. R. R.

2.30 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

5.27 p. m.—For Flemington and Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg, connecting at High Bridge for stations on High Bridge Branch.

6.38 p. m.—For Flemington.

8.20 p. m.—For Flemington and at Junction for D. L. & W. R. R.

8.21 p. m.—For Easton.

9.54 a. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Reading, Harrisburg, Lewisburg, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

8.06 a. m. Sundays for Flemington and Easton.

2.03 p. m. Sundays—For German Valley, Flanders, Kenvil, Easton, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Williamsport, Reading and Harrisburg.

6.38 p. m. Sundays—For Flemington.

8.25 p. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Reading, Harrisburg, etc.

FOR LONG BRANCH, OCEAN GROVE, ETC.

Leave Plainfield at 5.27, 8.13, 10.27 a. m., 3.46, 4.17, 8.06 p. m. Sundays, except Ocean Grove, 8.52 a. m.; 3.30 p. m.

For Perth Amboy at 5.27, 8.13, 9.28, 10.27 a. m., 1.26, 3.46, 4.17, 5.27, 8.06, 11.29 p. m. Sundays 8.52 a. m.; 3.30 p. m.

For Atlantic City at 8.13 a. m.; 1.26 p. m.

For Freehold, 3.21, 8.15, 10.21 a. m.; 1.15, 4.12, 5.27 p. m.

For Lakewood, Toms River and Barnegat, 3.21, 8.15 a. m.; 1.15, 4.17 p. m. Sundays 9.12 a. m.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

Leave Plainfield for Philadelphia, 5.27, 8.13, 8.44, 9.46, 10.44 a. m.; 2.26, 4.14, 5.00, *5.30, 6.06, 8.20 p. m. Sundays, 8.13, 8.44, 9.46, 10.44 a. m.; 2.26, 4.14, 5.00, 6.06, 8.20, 11.29 p. m. Sundays 8.52, a. m.; 3.30 p. m.

For Atlantic City, 8.13 a. m.; 1.26 p. m.

For Broad, 3.21, 8.15, 10.21 a. m.; 1.15, 4.12, 5.27 p. m.

For Lakewood, Toms River and Barnegat, 3.21, 8.15 a. m.; 1.15, 4.17 p. m. Sundays 9.12 a. m.

For Long Branch, 8.15 a. m.; 1.26 p. m. Sundays 9.12 a. m.

Through tickets to all points at lowest rates may be had on application in advance to the ticket agent at the station.

J. H. OLMSTEAD,
General Superintendent.
R. P. BALDWIN,
General Passenger Agent.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect May 21, 1899.
LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N.J.

WESTWARD

8.05 a. m. daily, and 7.25 p. m. daily except Sunday. Eastern local.

9.02 a. m. daily, Buffalo express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

11.58 a. m.; 2.34, 8.22 and 9.30 p. m. daily except Sunday, Bound Brook accommodations.

12.51 a. m. daily except Sunday, "Black Diamond Express" for Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

4.06 p. m. daily local for Easton, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

4.06 p. m. daily except Sunday, express for Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Shamokin, L. & B. Junction and principal intermediate stations.

6.21 p. m. daily except Sunday. 6.25 p. m. Sunday Branch Express.

7.02 p. m. daily, solid vestibule express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

9.02 p. m. daily, express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Rochester, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Chicago. Passengers only except between New York and Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Shamokin and Sunbury.

11.32 p. m. daily express for Easton, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Allentown, Reading, Geneva, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge and Chicago. Day coaches from New York to Chicago.

EASTWARD.

For New York and Brooklyn, local, 6.43, 7.05, and 9.06 a. m.; 2.42 and 5.20 p. m. daily, except Sunday. Sunday 10.21 a. m., and 4.42 p. m.

For Bound Brook, 6.43, 9.06 a. m.; 2.42 and 7.11 and 9.30 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday 10.21 and 9.30 a. m. and 4.42 and 7.11 p. m.

For Perth Amboy and intermediate stations 8.05, 10.09 a. m.; 5.22 and 8.10 p. m. daily except Sundays. Sundays 10.21 a. m. and 8.10 p. m.

Trains leave Perth Amboy (State street) 1.15, 8.08 a. m.; 5.15 and 8.03 p. m. daily except Sunday. Sunday 7.13 a. m. and 6.42 p. m.

For tickets, time tables and further address the Ticket Agent, South Plainfield, N. J., Thomas E. Watt, Jr., Superintendent Northern Division, or may be purchased at the South Plainfield office. Telephone 59 F. Call up and without extra charge. The Agent will gladly answer all questions.

DOLL ROLLIN S. WILSON,
General Superintendent,
26 Cortlandt st., New York.
CHAS. S. LEE,
General Passenger Agent,
26 Cortlandt st., N. Y. City.
NEW YORK FERRIES—Foot of Cortlandt, Desbrosses and West 23d Streets.

DEMAND THE OLD RELIABLE
KEEN KUTTER RAZOR
SOLD EVERYWHERE WILL WEAR TWICE AS LONG AS ANY OTHER
USE THE BEST TAKE NO OTHER

Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

WHERE TO GO ON NIGHT OF ELECTION

Daily Press Will Display the Latest Bulletins.

WITH AID OF STEREOPTICON.

PLAINFIELDERS MAY LEARN RESULTS OF ALL STATE ELECTIONS.

The Enterprise of the Daily Press Last Year in Giving the Only Opportunity to Learn the Results Was Much Appreciated by the People—Will be Repeated This Year—Special Service Will be Given.

Republicans and Democrats, Prohibitions and "mugwumps," one and all, are interested to hear the results of the elections through the country and at the earliest opportunity. So it was not surprising that the enterprise shown by The Daily Press last year in keeping the people of the city and borough informed of the progress of the vote through the city, county, State and country, was duly appreciated. All the evening of last election day, huge crowds waited in front of The Daily Press office on North avenue and watched the bulletins thrown on a large screen opposite by a powerful stereopticon. It was the only place in the city to learn about the election and there were many who took advantage of it.

This year the Plainfield public will again be able to learn definitely and at an early hour just how the vote is progressing in Jersey and the neighboring States. From the moment that the first bulletin is received up to an early hour in the morning when the result is definitely known, bulletins will be constantly displayed on a screen that will be hung on the building opposite the Daily Press office. Through an elaborate and impartial service the very latest returns from New York and all the other States where elections are being held will be displayed. The results in the State will be told with accuracy and promptness. Special attention will be given to the vote in the county and the progress will be noted. The vote in the city will also be covered by frequent bulletins.

During the intervals between the bulletins, many humorous and interesting views will be shown. The stereopticon will be in charge of members of the Plainfield Camera Club, who so successfully handled the instrument last year.

Everyone in both city and borough is cordially invited to be on hand election night and learn the result from the bulletins that will be displayed under the auspices of the Daily Press.

BRIDE'S NAME NOT CHANGED.

Biggins-Biggins Nuptials Performed Last Week at Three Bridges.

The marriage of Miss Lizabella Biggins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C Biggins, of Three Bridges, to Howard K. Biggins, of Wertsville, took place at the home of the bride October 25th at 3:45 o'clock.

Rev L. D. Temple, pastor of the Baptist church at Flemington, officiated, assisted by Rev Oscar M. Voorhees, pastor of Reformed church at Three Bridges. The decorations were of evergreens and white chrysanthemums. Miss Beasie Higgins, of Pompton Lakes, being maid of honor, Dr. H. V. Merrill, of Plainfield, best man, J. W. Higgins and J. V. M. Higgins were ushers. Miss Nellie Higgins sister of the bride, presided at the piano The bridal party was preceded by two little girls, Sadie Hyler and Bertha Rowe. The bride's gown was white brocaded Busy at the Hospital.

There are now a large number of patients at the hospital and the nurses are kept very busy. Friends of this institution are reminded that the usual Thanksgiving affair will be celebrated this year, and donations of any kind will be thankfully received.

Funeral of Mrs. Motley.

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen Motley took place Monday a.m. from the residence of her son, John Motley, 511 Plainfield avenue, at 8:30 o'clock and at 9 o'clock from St. Mary's church, where a requiem mass was said. The interment was in St Mary's cemetery.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grain. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week neither I nor my family would go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substitute for coffee. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

GREAT PROGRESS MADE.

IMPROVEMENTS TAKING PLACE ON THE DENTON PROPERTY.

A Splendid Boulevard Being Built to Connect Park and Woodland Avenues—Aggressive Work of Silas D. Drake.

Since the advent of Silas Dewey Drake in Plainfield early last summer there has been more or less said and written about the development of the old Denton property for residential plots, but those who have not personally visited the Denton property probably have but a faint appreciation of the marked improvements that are being made there. A Press reporter was driven over the property a few days ago by Mr. Drake, and was really surprised at the extensive changes and progress that has been made in the work of preparing the property for residential purposes. It was reflective, however, of the aggressive methods prusued by Mr. Drake in the operations he has been engaged in for the past thirty years in this section of New Jersey.

The most conspicuous and notable change about the property is the building of a wide boulevard, to be known as Evergreen avenue, from one end of the property to the other. A great deal of cutting and grading has been done, and the avenue is now nearly ready for madadamizing, which, when finished, will make one of the most beautiful drives leading out of the city.

In connection with the enterprise of Mr. Drake in having this avenue built through the property he controls, James E. Martine has given out the contracts for the continuation of the street from its present terminus at the edge of the Denton property directly through his property to intersect Park avenue a short distance north of the seminary building standing at the corner of Park and Martine avenues. When Mr. Martine completes the work this will make one continuous road from Park to Woodland avenue, and form a driveway that will run through one of the most picturesque and and sightly sections of this city.

When the work on Evergreen avenue is completed, Mr. Drake will immediately proceed with plans for the making of two other important avenues. One will be a continuation of the present Martine avenue and will make a connection with Woodland avenue. The other will be known as Thornton avenue.

Mr. Drake, who has been engaged almost solely in real estate operations for the past thirty years, says that the success he is meeting with in developing the Denton tract has been way beyond his expectations.

MR. HILLMAN ENDORSED.

United Labor Organizations are Opposed to the Re-election of Senator Cross in Union County.

Trenton, October 31.—On the recommendation of the United Labor Organizations of New Jersey, the State executive board, which met in Trenton this morning, endorsed John H. Hillman, Democratic candidate for Senator in Union county, by which action they urge upon all members of trade unions to support him in preference to the Republican candidate, Senator Joseph Cross, of Elizabeth. The opposition of the labor unions to Senator Cross is due to his vote against a labor measure in the Legislature last winter.

RUBBISH ON FIRE.

Department Called to the City Hotel on a Still Alarm.

A still alarm of fire at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday morning brought Fire Chief Doane and the members of No. 2 Hose Company to the rear of the City Hotel, where a quantity of rubbish was found in a blaze. A line of hose was laid and a stream thrown upon the fire. For fully an hour the firemen were busy. Before the flames were extinguished some of the fence near the laundry building was destroyed. The promptness of the firemen prevented a possible serious conflagration.

A Successful Test.

A successful test was made Monday of the non-refilling bottle which has been invented by Charles Overbaugh. Thomas Winter, an expert from New York, made the test. He was unable to force a particle of water into one of the bottles. Mr. Winter gave Mr. Overbaugh a written statement to that effect. There is a possibility that the company will have the bottles made in this city.

Netted $925.

The autumnal festival held at the club house of the Catholic club last week netted $925.

REFEREE WAS NOT FOR ALIS ELEVEN.

His Decisions Robbed Plainfielders Of Game

FINALLY CALLED IT A TIE.

SORRY EXPERIENCE OF ALIS TEAM AGAINST ORIENTS OF NEWARK.

Newark Boys Were Heavier But the Plainfielders Outplayed Them—Green Pushed Over the Line For a Touchdown—Newark Scored Its So-called Touchdown In the Dark While Alis Boys Talked to Referee

The Alis football team played a game in Newark Saturday afternoon but the result of that game still remains rather uncertain. A dispute between the two teams delayed play until it was too dark to see and while the Alis team was talking to the officials, the eleven of the Orient Field Club carried the ball down the field and made a touchdown. The Alis boys had already made one which was disputed.

The Orient team was a strong one and had not been defeated this season. Although heavier than the visiting eleven, the Orients lacked the excellent team work. The first half was very exciting but neither side scored The ball was in the home club's territory most of the time, however.

The ball was gradually forced down the field in the second half and finally a few minutes before time was up, Green was sent over the line for touchdown. After shouting "down," he left the ball on the ground and walked away whereupon a Newark player dropped on it, declaring that Green had failed to make a touchdown. The referee apparently didn't know what to do so he declared it a safety, scoring two for the Alis team.

The Plainfield contingent objected to such ruling and called it robbery. It grew dark very rapidly as the question was argued. Finally Captain Roy Phillips requested the referee to call the game as it was no longer possible to see the players any distance. Then the Newark men got together, kicked off without any opposition from the Alis team and carried the ball down the field for an alleged touchdown. The referee called it a touchdown.

The Plainfielders again objected to the ruling and the trouble ended by Newark's going home, the Plainfielders claiming the game by a score of 5 to 0, while the Orient team declared it 5 to 2, or 5 to 5.

The follow ng is the lineup:

ORIENT FIELD CLUB.	ALIS.
Conlon.....captain, right end.....	Woolston
Cross-Preese.....right tackle.....	Waring-Bedford
Estes-Price.....right guard.....	Kline
Hall.....center.....	G. F. Smith
Young.....left guard.....	Long
Hall.....left tackle.....	Harris
C Bennett-Murray.....left end.....	H. Smith
B. Bennett-Williams.....quarter back.....	Dumont
Jacobus.....right half back.....	Green
Gray.....left half back.....	Cuming
Grau.....full back.....	Phillips

FUNERAL OF SIR KNIGHT

TRINITY COMMANDERY HONORS THE LATE DR. JACKSON.

Services Conducted by the Commandery, Assisted by Royal Arcanum Lodge—There Was a Large Attendance of Friends

There was a large attendance at the funeral of Dr. Thomas Jefferson Jackson, which was held at Springfield Sunday afternoon. The services were conducted at the late home of the deceased. There were so many present to pay their respects to the deceased that the house was not of sufficient size to accommodate all and hundreds stood about on the outside.

The services were in charge of Trinity Commandery, Knights Templar, of this city, and the Royal Arcanum lodge, of Elizabeth, the deceased being a member of both organizations. The Sir Knights from this city drove to Springfield in carriages. There were about 20 in command of Harry Marshall, Captain General. In the absence of Eminent Commander Nelson Y. Dungan, Walter H. Freeman, Generalissimo, officiated at the services, which were conducted in the usual order of the Commandery. After the services of the Sir Knights, the Royal Arcanum lodge took charge of the body and a delegation of that organization escorted it to the railroad station at Elizabeth, where a train was taken for Baltimore county, Md., where the burial took place. The following Sir Knights from Trinity Commandery acted as pall bearers: Asa Collier, Robert A. Meeker, Henry Woodland, W. A. Coddington, D. C. Adams and Clarence Goss. The body was contained in black cloth covered casket upon and around which were many handsome floral pieces from the friends of the family and the organizations.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

The greatest of all American comedy dramas, "Blue Jeans," will be seen at Music Hall Friday night. It is a story of life in a small country town in Indiana, and the quaint manners and customs of the inhabitants are so naturally shown, the story is so absorbing in its development and the threads of comedy and tragedy are so artistically interwoven that the great success of the play is early understood. In its varied phases it appeals to all classes of theatregoers and pleases all alike. It is in the hands of an exceptionally strong company, and an elaborate scenic production is promised.

* * * * *

At Music Hall next Monday night the only original Indian Actress, Go-Won Go-Mohawk, will present her famously picturesque play, "Wep-Ton-No-Mah," The Indian Mail Carrier, written by herself. Miss Mohawk is the only woman today successfully representing a male character. She has no equal. Her remarkable feats of strength and agility, her daring and dashing horsemanship, riding without a saddle at full speed, throwing a man clean over her head, one of the most realistic bowie-knife fights ever seen on the stage, make this woman tower head and shoulders over her entire sex. Her impersonation of the male character is so finished that very often her sex is doubted. In fact, her personality is so strong that when on the stage she dominates everything and everybody in sight.

* * * * *

On Tuesday evening October 24th Julia Arthur presented Emile Bergerat's great imperial spectacle "More Than Queen" for the first time in New York City at the Broadway Theatre, upon which occasion this beautiful playhouse was crowded with over two thousand people anxious to witness this important literary and theatrical premiere. The drama was a tremendous success last season in Paris and this season in Boston and now New York has endorsed the verdict of those two cities and pronounced Julia Arthur's production of the new Napoleonic novelty as well as her own portraiture of Josephine to be an unparalleled and double dramatic triumph. The production is considered to be the costliest and most gorgeous ever seen in the metropolis. "More Than Queen" is now playing to large audiences nightly and theatre-goers of this city should not fail to see this magnificient production during its run at the Broadway Theatre. Matinees are given on Saturdays only but a special matinee will be given on election day November 7th.

THE STAR COURSE.

First Entertainment Given by the Y. M. C. A. Was a Success—Humorist and Singer

Those who were present at the hall of the Y. M. C. A. last Monday and had the pleasure of being entertained by Prof. S. T. Ford, the celebrated humorist and impersonator, and J. J. Fisher, the pleasing baritone, are today congratulating themselves. It was the first one of the Star course of entertainments provided by the Young Men's Christian Association. Nearly every seat in the cozy hall was occupied by 8 o'clock and standing room alone was to be had. Harry Dickinson, superintendent of the public schools, previous to the appearance of the entertainers, made a few remarks with reference to the course and the position the local Y. M. C. A. occupied regarding it.

Prof. Ford then began his part of the entertainment, which was replete with humor of the drollest and cleverest kind and served to keep the audience in excellent spirits, encouraging all to give spontaneous and repeated evidences of their appreciation of his efforts to please them.

While Prof. Ford was securing a breathing spell between his personations Mr. Fisher rendered several baritone selections in excellent voice, and was particularly generous in responding to repeated encores. He has a pleasing voice of much compass, and sings with an ease that leaves a good impression.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of catarrh that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props.,
Toledo, O.

We the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, Ohio.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

MARRIAGE OPPOSED BY BRIDE'S PARENTS.

Elopement Then Followed by the Smitten Couple.

JOSIE VAN NATTA THE GIRL.

WEDDED TO ARTHUR MOORE IN BOUND BROOK MONDAY NIGHT.

Groom is a Roman Catholic, and it Was Because of His Religious Faith That the Bride's Parents Opposed the Nuptial Union—Bride Explained to a Press Reporter How She Came to Elope.

"Mama, won't you forgive me?"

These were the words that Miss Josie VanNatta, pretty and vivacious, spoke to her mother Tuesday a. m, as she returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. N. VanNatta, on LaGrand avenue. But with a broken heart and tears in her eyes, the mother could not make up her mind to forgive.

For some time past the daughter had been keeping company with Arthur Moore, of New Brunswick, and as time went on their love grew stronger and stronger, until last Sunday they decided to get married. It was arranged that they should go to Bound Brook Monday. They did this and were there married by Rev. Mr. Wilson, pastor of the M. E. church. The ceremony was witnessed by Mr. Wilson's family.

Ever since Mr. Moore began paying attention to Miss VanNatta, the parents of the young woman were bitterly opposed to him because he is a Roman Catholic. They did everything possible to persuade their daughter to wait awhile until she was older. To this she would not listen.

Monday afternoon she asked her mother if she could go out and spend the evening with some friends. Her mother consented, but as the daughter failed to come home at a reasonable time, the parents began to worry. Mr. VanNatta came home from New York and asked for his daughter, but was informed that she had gone to spend the evening with Miss Cora Scull. The father jumped on his wheel and hastened to Miss Scull's home, only to find that his daughter was not there. He returned in an anxious mood.

About 11 o'clock the parents received a telegram from their daughter to the effect that she and Mr. Moore were married at Bound Brook, and they asked forgiveness. Tuesday morning their daughter returned home and again asked forgiveness.

A local reporter called at the house just as the bride was preparing to leave home to go to her husband's home on Orchard place, where they will board for the present with Richard VanArsdale. She explained the circumstances and said that she asked her mother if she could get married, and when told no she made up her mind to go contrary to the wish of her parents. The daughter appeared resolute and seemed happy in her choice. The mother informed the reporter that the groom is a Roman Catholic, and she was bitterly opposed to the match.

Announcement.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Cream Balm in liquid form, which will be known as Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cts. Druggists or by mail. The liquid form embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

Educate Your Bowels With Cascarets.

Candy Cathartic, cure constipation forever. 10c, 25c. If C. C. C. fail, druggists refund money.

Looking for a Factory Location.

Charles Overbaugh, the patentee of the non-refilling bottle, an account of which has been given in these columns, is now looking for a suitable place to manufacture his patented article. He has an option on several places, but has not yet selected one. Mr. Overbaugh was assured a few days ago by an expert, Mr. Winter, of New York, that he has the thing perfected and that he can go ahead and put the article on the market.

Butcher Shop Sold.

The butcher shop on Liberty street, owned by Ralph C. Tolles and which has been conducted by John C. Storms, has been sold through McClure & Meehan to Leonard Vetronial for $1,400.

Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk and family, who have been stopping in New York, have returned to their home.

J. Stanley Mosher, of West Fifth street, has accepted a position with G. H. Lyon, a civil engineer at Ormsby, Pa.

Mrs. Henry Angleman, of East Fourth street, has returned from Brooklyn, where she has been visiting her daughter.

Dr. Humphreys'
Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

NO.	CURE.	PRICES.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Gripings, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
18	Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Asthma, Difficult Breathing	.25
22	Ear Discharge, Earache	.25
23	Scrofula, Swellings and Ulcers	.25
24	General Debility, Weakness	.25
25	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Disease	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
29	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
31	Callow Nigness, Chills	.25
32	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitations	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34	Chronic Nasal Catarrh	.25
35	Chronic Congestions, Headaches	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists or Mailed Free.
Sold by druggists, or sent post paid on receipt of price. Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL
"THE PILE OINTMENT."
For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding; Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Bleeding of the Rectum. The relief is immediate—the cure certain.
PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.
Sold by Druggists, or sent post paid on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

It's easy to nerve-killing tobacco habit. Makes weak men strong, blood pure, rich red blood, clear complexion, eyes bright, nerves steel, manhood restored, vigor and vitality. Over 400,000 cured. Don't smoke your life away. You can be cured by using
STOP SMOKING
Don't be influenced by cigarette habit. Don't be influenced by cigarette habit. Don't be influenced by cigarette habit.

DEMOCRATS NOMINATE

County Convention Held In Elizabeth Friday.

NO LACK OF HARMONY.

PLAINFIELDER ON THE TICKET FOR SENATOR.

More Offices to Fill Than There Were Candidates For Them—Oliver and Glaser Named For County Clerk and Sheriff—The Assembly Ticket.

The Democratic county convention held in Turn Hall in Elizabeth last Friday afternoon was one of the largest and most harmonious that has assembled in recent years. Differing from the Republican convention of the day before, there were no factions at odds with each other and there was a plentitude of offices to be nominated for and a remarkable scarcity of men who were available and would accept the honors to be distributed. Outside of the County Clerkship and the Shrievalty nominations all the others went begging for candidates. But notwithstanding this fact, the party leaders insist that the ticket is a strong and formidable one, and that with earnest work by the Democrats to make the most of the disaffection in the Republican party, several, if not all, of the candidates should be elected at the election, ten days away.

The nominations made at the convention were as follows:

State Senator, John Henry Hillman, of Plainfield; County Clerk, William Murray Oliver, of Elizabeth; Sheriff, Jacob Glaser, of Union; Assemblymen, John J. Gardner, of Elizabeth; Wm. H. Swain, of Summit, and Geo. J. Reiss, of Roselle; Coroner, Dr. Walter E. Cladek, of Rahway.

Previous to the convention every one seemed to be at sea as to who the nominees would be outside of the County Clerkship and the Shrievalty—it being generally accepted that Oliver and Glaser would be the team harnessed to those nominations. The friends of Bernard J. Higgins, a young Elizabeth Democrat, however, were energetic in hustling for support for him as a candidate for County Clerk. But as Mr. Higgins is only a few years out of his teens and is unknown except in certain wards in Elizabeth, his candidacy was not taken seriously by the majority of delegates. Up to the time that the convention was called there was not an avowed candidate for the Senate or the Assembly in the field, and the leaders seemed to be at a lost as to who could be named.

The Plainfield delegates held a caucus just previous to the convention being called to order. John H. Hillman was chosen chairman of the delegation. It was decided to support Oliver and Glaser at the outset. Then the subject of securing the nomination of a Plainfielder for either Senator or Assembly was brought up. It was understood that Plainfield could have the Senator and one of the Assemblyman, but after many names had been considered and several had been consulted and urged to allow the use of their names for the Assembly it was found impossible to find a willing and available candidate who could be advocated as a favorite of the Plainfield delegates.

The convention was called to order at 2:30 o'clock by John Crowell, of Rahway, chairman of the county committee. Former Mayor Peter Bonnett, of Elizabeth, was made chairman. Among the vice-president named was James E. Martine, of Plainfield. In the appointment of committees W. W. St. John was named to serve on the committee on resolutions and rules.

The constitution formulated by a special committee of the State committee was presented by Peter Egenoff. It was adopted with a slight amendment. The substance of the proposed constitution has already been printed in The Press. It increases the membership of the county committee from one to two representatives from each ward and township, and provides for a thorough reorganization of the party.

The convention then took a recess of a half hour to allow the committees to perform their duties. When the convention reconvened the platform was presented by City Attorney Conroy, chairman of the committee. It avoided touching on National matters with the exception of renewing the pledges of the party to the principles enunciated by Jefferson in the Declaration of Independence. It demanded that taxation between the people and corporations should be more equalized, urged a thorough investigation into all State institutions, endemned the Republican state administration and pledgedto the people of Union county an honest and careful administration of their affairs.

Peter Egenoff then offered a resolution in reference to the death of Dr. Thomas Jefferson Jackson, recording the appreciation of the delegates of his memory as a citizen and true Democrat, and expressing intense sorrow because of his demise.

The resolution was adopted by a rising vote.

James E. Martine, of Plainfield, then steppped forward and paid an eloquent tribute to the memory of Dr. Jackson. He also submitted an additional resolution, which he had penned, and which was adopted by Plainfield delegates. It described Jackson as a Democract and noble character, worthy of emulation.

These sentiments were also approved by a standing vote.

Mr. Martine then offered a resolution appealing to the Legislature of New Jersey to take some action for preservation of the Palisades of the Hudson. These resolutions were adopted.

The convention then proceeded to the nomination of a Senator. A Rahway delegate jumped up and nominated James E. Martine, of Plainfield. The "Farmer Orator," who occupied a seat in the rear of the chairman on the platform jumped up and waved his hands in pantomime for the delegate to curb his exuberant spirits in favor of him for the Senatorial nomination. The nomination was not regular, anyway, and the calling of the wards and township was commenced. Not a delegate got up to name a Senatorial candidate. The Rahway man was on his feet in a second and again proclaimed the name of the "Farmer Orator." The name was greeted with a round of applause and cries of "Martine" in various parts of the hall. Mr. Martine stepped forward and in a neat and passionate little speech said that he appreciated the honor of having his name mentioned, but he could not and would not accept the nomination. He said that he was willing to do anything he could to aid the Democracy, but he thought he knew his weakness better than many of the delegates and he could not be a candidate. He said that it was not the fear of defeat that made him timid, because he had graduated in political defeat, but it was in the interests of the Democracy that he declined.

The nomination of a Senator was then laid on the table and the County Clerkship taken up. Bernards F. Higgins, a friend of Mr. Oliver and Jacob Sheppard, all of Elizabeth, were named for the nomination. The majority of the delegates were for Oliver, and Higgins, who received thirty-one votes, and Sheppard withdrew. Mr. Oliver was then made the unanimous choice of the convention.

Jacob Glaser, of Elizabeth, was the unanimous choice of the delegates for Sheriff, there being no other candidates.

The nominations for Assembly were then called for.

Jeremiah D. Leary, of the First ward, Elizabeth, nominated John J. Gardner, and City Attorney Connolly, of the Third ward, seconded the nomination in a eulogistic speech.

Major Collins nominated Freeholder Swain, of Summit, and seconded the nomination of Mr. Gardner.

The Rahway delegates, who had been so enthusiastic for Mr. Martine, Oliver and Bernard J. Higgins for the Assembly.

There was an apparent scarcity of candidates, and it was not until Union township was reached that another name was mentioned. The nomination was George J. Reiss.

The secretary cast the ballot for John J. Gardner, of Elizabeth, Wm. H. Swain, of Summit, and George J. Reiss, of Union.

Dr. W. E. Cladek, of Rahway, was nominated for coroner.

A recess was then taken to hunt up a candidate for Senator. Plainfield was appealed to for a candidate, but as the local delegates had canvassed the situation thoroughly before going into the convention they were unable to offer an available man. In the caucus of the delegates, however, the name of Mr. Hillman had been suggested for an Assembly nomination, but he had absolutely declined to consider the idea. He was corraled by several Elizabeth politicians with persuasive tongues during the recess and after some talk finally consented to accept the nomination in order to complete the ticket, although his personal feelings were contrary to such a proceeding. Then the recess was declared off, and Major Collins, of Elizabeth, nomin ted him in a neat little speech, which was supplemented by another speech by Councilman Hetfield, of Plainfield, in behalf of the Plainfield delegates. Mr. Hillman was thereupon made the unanimous choice of the convention for the Senatorial nomination.

In the meantime Peter Egenoff and W. W. St. John had been appointed a committee to find the candidates and escort them to the hall. This duty was performed by the time the Senatorial nomination was made, and then the candidates were introduced to the delegates. Each one made brief remarks.

Cries of "Martine" were heard and the "Farmer Orator" appeared on the platform and delivered one of his characteristically Democratic speeches, in which he paid tribute to the candidates in a pleasant way. His reference to the death of the late James Gerber, whom Mr. Oliver succeeded as County Clerk by appointment of Governor Abbett, was woven into a touching and pathetic eulogy of the present candidate's kind and liberal action towards the widow of his predecessor, and made a deep impression on the convention.

ALL THE CANDIDATES.

LAST CERTIFICATE FILED SATURDAY WITH COUNTY CLERK.

Five Tickets in the Field for Voters to Make Their Choice From—One of the Parties is Without any Name.

All certificates and petitions naming candidates to be voted for by all voters had to be filed with the county clerk, and at noon Saturday the certificates with the acceptances of the candidates of all parties were in the possession of County Clerk Howard.

There will be five tickets for voters to make their selections from—Republican, Democratic, Prohibition and two Socialistic-Labor tickets. The nominees who have signed their acceptances are as follows:

Republican—Senator, Joseph Cross, Elizabeth; sheriff, Robert G. Houston, Elizabeth; county clerk, Wm. Howard, Rahway; assembly, Ellis R. Meeker, Elizabeth; Chester M. Smith, Westfield; Charles S. Foote, Plainfield; coroner, Dr. J. W. Gray, Summit.

Democratic—Senator, John B. Hillman, Plainfield; sheriff, Jacob Glaser, Union; county clerk, Wm. M. Oliver, Elizabeth; assemblymen, John J. Gardner, Elizabeth; William H. Swain, Summit; George J. Reiss, Roselle.

Prohibition—Senator, Edward L. Massett, Westfield; sheriff, Neil McLeod, Elizabeth; county clerk, Walter Irving, Chester M. Smith, assembly, Joseph G. VanCise, Summit; Spencer C Blake, Cranford; Lewis C Long, Elizabeth; coroner, Edward Hall.

There are two Socialistic-Labor certificates filed, the result of a factional fight. The first was filed very early in the campaign, and when the second petition was presented it was accompanied by a protest against the first action using the name, Socialistic-Labor party. County Clerk Howard has filed his determination and has given to the party which presented the first petition the right to use the name Socialistic-Labor. The protesting faction were notified, but they have made no response. It will therefore be Mr. Howard's duty to give to them an official name for their party, and which will be printed on the ballots.

The nominees of the regular Socialistic-Labor party, under this decision, are as follows:

Senator, Charles Burns, Plainfield; sheriff, A. Boerner, Elizabeth; county clerk, Frank Cullen, Plainfield; assembly, John Miles, Plainfield; Joseph Wagoner and Michael McGarry, Elizabeth; coroner, Charles R. Wallander, Plainfield.

The party without a name has placed in nomination only part of a county ticket, as follows:

County Clerk, Charles Boberiz; assembly, Paul Koch, William Oahme, Oscar Roland; coroner, B. Herstien.

All the candidates are residents of Elizabeth, but there is no disaffection reported in the township in consequence.

JERSEY RAILROAD QUARREL

Central Railroad of New Jersey and Rockaway Valley Line at Odds Over an Accident.

There is a clash between the authorities of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey and the Rockaway Valley Railroad, which joins the latter at Whitehouse. This road extends across to Morristown and Mendham, and its only outlet has been over the Central. It carries a large amount of freight, 200,000 baskets of peaches having been shipped over its line this season.

The trouble arose over an accident which recently happened at Whitehouse. The Rockaway Valley passenger trains are backed upon the Central tracks to await the connecting train. Through some carelessness this train was backed up in front of a fast Central express, and several cars were wrecked and one or two persons injured. The Central now refuses to allow the Rockaway to use its tracks, and Superintendent Pidcock, of the Rockaway road, threatens to form a junction with the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western at Peapack and send his freight and passengers over that route.

Entertained at Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Gilbert entertained a number of their friends at dinner at the club house of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club Saturday. It was a continuation of the series of informal dinners that hat have proved such a feature of the social life of the club. Covers were laid for twenty-four.

Although L. M. Dunavan, of the fire department, is unable to do duty, owing to a recent accident, he is able to be at headquarters every day, and assists in every way he can.

IMPERIALISM AN ISSUE IN DEBATE.

Rev. J. B. Cleaver and S. S. Swackhamer Argued Question.

AFFIRMATIVE SIDE WON.

A LARGE AUDIENCE LISTENED TO DEBATE IN REFORM HALL.

The Question Was, "Resolved, That a Policy of Imperialism Should be Pursued by the United States"—Mr. Swackhamer Argued Against It, But the Judges Decided in the Affirmative.

Those who had the good fortune to listen to the joint debate at Reform Hall Thursday between Rev. J. B. Cleaver, of Bound Brook, and Councilman S. S. Swackhamer, of the borough, were as highly interested as they were amused.

A feature of the entertainment was the singing of Mlle. Mira Marisons, who captivated the audience by rendering in a strong but not particularly sweet voice several selections, including an Italian song and the "Suwanee River," "My Old Kentucky Home," etc.

M. Markley was called upon to introduce the speakers and announce the subject to be debated, which was: "Resolved, That a Policy of Imperialism Should be Pursued by the United States." Rev. Mr. Cleaver was the first speaker. He had the affirmative side and spoke from notes, which he kept his eye upon constantly.

He said that since the birth of freedom the policy of the United States had been one of expansion, and history had shown that such a policy was in the nature of events to which this great country was destined to pursue. He referred to the achievements of Dewey and the great prosperity that was sure to follow the great expansion which had been made possible since the acquirement of Alaska and the West Indies.

In a vein of satire he paid his respects to the Hon. Burke Cochran, Carl Schurz and others, whom he characterized as foes to the welfare of the nation's advancement, and concluded by quoting from the words of ex-Gov. Hogg, of Texas, a Democrat, who had given the opinion that the only solution of the Philippine question would be "to shoot hell out of those savages and settle the question of supremacy at once and forever." At this point, amidst prolonged applause, Mr. Markley informed the speaker hat he had already occupied thirty-five minutes and that his time was up, but that he would be given fifteen minutes to sum up at the close of his opponent's speech.

Mr. Swackhamer, who had the negative side, was then introduced.

He said that the gentleman who preceded him had interjected the word still into the question for debate. The question was "should imperialism be pursued in the United States." By doing so he had begged the question. He had not brought forward a single question to prove his argument that the policy of imperialism should be pursued, Mr. Swackhamer referred to the policy pursued by Lincoln and Thomas Jefferson, the latter in his opinion being the greatest political philosopher that ever lived. Expansion he thought might eventually be in the line of events but the country was not ready yet for such a rapid development as the present administration is attempting to force upon the people. In this connection Mr. Swackhamer said: "We all need developing. I perhaps need it more than my learned friend does, but I do not believe in expansion at the expense of others."

This witticism caught the audience which applauded vociferously as they appreciated the difference in the physicalmake up of the speakers. Mr. Cleaver is a heavy weight, while Mr. Swackhamer is tall, angular and thin.

After the audience had been regaled again by M'lle Marisona who had much difficulty in satisfying the demands of the appreciative audience, which insisted in calling her out, Mr. Cleaver began to close his argument, which he did in a flowery speech, and at times he grew eloquent. His passages of oratory were sparkling with satire and witticisms. In closing he stated that he believed the "anti-imperialist would pass into the catalogue of oblivion and go down into history unlettered, unheard of and unsung."

Mr. Swackhamer with good natured satire followed and kept his hearers in a good humor by clever refutation of some of the statements made by his opponent. He admitted that he had hastily prepared himself for the debate and had not anticipated that the affirmative would be armed with notes from which to advocate his polition.

While the judges, General Negley and Col. Mason W. Tyler, were considering the debate, President Smith made a few remarks regarding the Reform Club and the work it was doing in the cause of temperance. He then suggested that as the audience had been well entertained that those present might be willing to chip in if the baskets were passed among them and a collection taken, which was done.

Then M'lle Marisona sang by request "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight." After a vote of thanks had been extended to the speakers and the singer, Col. Tyler briefly announced that the judges had decided that the gentleman representating the affirmative was entitled to the credit of presenting the best argument, although Mr. Swackhamer had advanced many sound and logical statements in support of his convictions.

READY FOR ACTIVE WORK

DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE ORGANIZED.

Members Met Last Night and Were Much Enthused Over the Situation—Officers Elected for the First Year

The second definite step taken by the Democrats to put their party on a organized basis in this city was taken Thursday, when there was a meeting of members elected from the various districts in the ward primaries Wednesday evening. The members of the committee met in the Ulrich building on East Second street, which has been secured as headquarters for the campaign.

With the exception of two members of the committee, who were unavoidably detained, all the members were present and evinced much interest in the work to be undertaken. It was the unanimous opinion of those present that the efforts to reorganize the party in this city was something that had been delayed too long, but that now that it had been undertaken in a business-like way, it should be followed out thoroughly and energetically at once. It was determined that the executive committee should get into working order by the first of next week, so that the present campaign in its closing days could be prosecuted by organized force.

In organizing the executive committee the following officers were chosen to serve for one year: Chairman; Michael R. Flynn; secretary, H. W. Marshall; treasurer, Vincent L. Frazee.

A special sub-committee was appointed to provide by-laws for the government of the committee, and to report at the next meeting of the committee, at which time the complete machinery of the body will be put in running shape.

DEMOCRATS SLOW TO ACT

STATE COMMITTEE CRITICISED FOR NOT PUTTING LIFE IN CAMPAIGN.

Might Win in Four Counties—Chairman Gourley Talks With Robert Davis, Who Offers His Services as a Leader.

Many complaints have been made by Democrats throughout the State about the inactivity of the State committee. Not since the campaign opened has there been a meeting, and the friends of the Democratic candidates feel that it is the duty of the State committee to lend its aid in helping them to achieve success.

Robert Davis, of Jersey City, has been appealed to, and he has endeavored to infuse some life into the campaign. From information received by Mr. Davis he is confident that with a little effort on the part of the State committee the counties of Salem, Gloucester, Somerset and Monmouth could be carried for the Democrats.

State Chairman Gourley was in Jersey City recently. He had a long talk with Mr. Davis, who urged the necessity of the State committee getting together. Chairman Gourley went back to Paterson with a fund of information which it is thought he will put to practical use.

CRANFORD CARRIERS.

People From Other Towns Coming to Try Since Cranford's Candidates All Failed.

Twenty candidates will try the second civil service examinations for letter carriers for Cranford which will be held Monday, November 6th. Applications have been received from Perth Amboy, Rahway, Elizabeth and Lyons Farms, as well as from citizens of that place.

It was expected the free delivery system would begin at this place October 1st, but owing to the failure of of the applicants to pass the necessary examination, delay was the result. It is now sald the system will begin about December 1st provided the applicants pass examinations.

To Have Charge of Music

Prof. W. H. Miller, of Plainfield, will have charge of the musical programme at the reception and musicale to be given in December by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ayer Whipple at their New York studio, in the Sherwood, when a portrait of President McKinley, painted by Artist Charles Ayer Whipple, will be on view for the first. Mr. Whipple has gone to Washington now to spend a short time at the White House to finish the portrait.

City Hotel Not Sold.

A number of reports have been circulated to the effect that the City Hotel has been sold. Investigation proves the report to be untrue and without foundation.

TROLLEY TO CROSS B. & O. ON VIADUCT.

Obstruction at South Cranford to Be Overcome.

IS A DANGEROUS CROSSING.

DURING THE WINTER PASSENGERS WILL BE TRANSFERRED.

B. & O. Officials Opposed the Trolley Going Across Their Tracks on Account of the Danger From Switching Cars—Lehigh Valley Crossing at Aldene to be Gone Over by Trolley at Grade.

After being held-up in their work of completing their trolley line between this city and Elizabeth by the opposition of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company at the latter's crossing at South Cranford, the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company have come to an agreement with the company and arrangements have been made for a satisfactory settlement of the contention. The opposition of the B. & O. was based on the fact that it was proposed to have the trolley road cross their tracks on a grade. At that point the traffic is very heavy, as cars are being switched back and forth constantly. The railroad officials were fearful of accidents when the trolley was put in operation, and were opposed to the grade crossing.

In the negotiations between the officials of the two companies that have taken place recently this view of of the matter has been impressed upon the trolley men, with the suggestion that the crossing should be made on a viaduct. This arrangement was not only advocated for the safety of the passengers using the trolley cars, but as well for quick service, as it was shown that at times the crossing is blocked for several minutes with passing trains, and that at such periods the trolley cars would lose materially on their schedule time. A few days ago H. C. VanEmburgh, civil engineer for the trolley company, drove to the B. and O. crossing with a horse and carriage and it took him twenty minutes to get to the other side of the tracks on account of switching cars.

The trolley officials have therefore decided to accept the suggestion of the B & O. officials and a viaduct will be built over the crossing for the use of the trolley cars. But it is found that this work cannot be done till winter, and as the trolley line will be in operation before snow flies it has been determined that during the winter that trolley cars approaching from each direction will stop at either edge of the crossing and the passengers will be compelled to walk across the tracks in order to transfer from one car to another. It is realized that this arrangement will cause dissatisfaction, but as the B. & O. is resolute in their attitude of not allowing the cars to run directly over their tracks, the trolley officials say that the transfer arrangement is the only way out of the difficulty.

The trouble which the trolley company encountered with the Lehigh Valley crossing at Aldene has also been adjusted and the cars will be allowed to cross at a grade, as the Lehigh switch is not used very much.

BOWLING SEASON OPENED.

First of the Matches Between the "Longies" and "Shorties" of the Park Club

The bowling season at the Park Club opened Saturday night with the first of the matches between the "Longies" and "Shorties" of the club. There were seven on each side and the match was an exciting one. VanBuren distinguished himself with a score of 216 which won the battle for the "Shorties." The scores were as follows:

SHORTIES.		LONGIES.
VanBuren	216	F. H. Ball	126
Johnson	166	VanDeventer	107
Willis	128	Burke	107
Nimmo	124	Wilson	149
Ribal	138	M. T. Townsend	158
Brown	138	Ostrom	126
F. O Ball	111	F. T. Taylor	169
	1056		944

SENT TO HOUSE OF MERCY.

Wayward Florence Grote Again Cared For.

Florence Grote, the 13-year-old girl recently arrested near Dunellen while masquerading in male attire, with hoboes as her companions, was delivered over to representatives of the Woman's Civic Federation, and escorted back to the House of Mercy, from which she recently made good her escape.

The girl, who from report is quite as bad as children of her age can very well be, accompanied the escort with apparent gladness, and it is understood has promised that she will endeavor to do her utmost to reform.

Mrs. Remsen to Talk.

The Young Ladies' Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church will meet Friday afternoon next at 3 o'clock in the Sunday-school room. Mrs. William L. Remsen, of the First Presbyterian church, will talk to the band on Dr. Chamberlain's work in India. No admission will be charged and everybody will be welcome.

ANDERSON IS STILL IN LEAD FOR CUP.

Only One More Week of Play For McCutchen Trophy.

W R. FABER WON SATURDAY.

W. J. R. THIERS WAS SECOND AND STILL HAS A CHANCE.

The Park Golf Club Championship Now Lies Between Anderson, Conley, Dryden and Thiers—Next Saturday Will Decide It—Good Attendance On Park Club Course Saturday — Weather Was Excellent.

The end is only a week off and still the result of the competition for the McCutchen cup on the links of the Park Golf Club remains in doubt. The play of Saturday afternoon only served to make the probable result all the more uncertain. None of the three leaders scored a point while W. J. R. Thiers continued his advance, stepping into fourth place with just a possibility of tieing W. de la R. Anderson for the trophy.

The promised rain for Saturday afternoon didn't come and the day proved a delightful one for the sport. A temperate breeze came out of the south but it wasn't strong enough to make much trouble. There was a good attendance at the course, the ladies being represented by a few. In the club house the informal teas that have proved such a successful part of the social life of the club, were continued, Mrs. W. J. R. Thiers and Miss "Teddy" Scrymser presiding at the table.

There were a score of entries in the competition for the McCutchen Cup, but only eight cards were handed in. Many started too late to complete the necessary two rounds. Much interest was manifested in the result, as it was known that the winner of the cup might be decided by the afternoon's play. Anderson and Fred P. Taylor were both out on the course during the afternoon, and the comparative scores were watched with interest. Neither was at his best, however, and both failed to make the even hundred.

William B Faber, who was second last week, made low score Saturday. His gross score of 118, minus his handicap of 26, left him a net score of 92, which will result in a lowering of his handicap hereafter.

W.J.R. Thiers was the last to finish, but he played good golf despite the darkness that completed the eighteen holes in 109. J. H. Howell captured third honor, making his rounds in company with Samuel Townsend and Morgan T. Townsend. The last was way off his usual good game.

The scores handed in during the afternoon were as follows:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
W. B. Faber	118	26	92
W. J. R. Thiers	109	12	97
J. H. Howell	121	19	102
W. de la R. Anderson	109	6	103
G. Ford W. Cooley	119	9	110
Fred P. Taylor	112	1	111
Samuel Townsend	127	24	113
M. T. Townsend	121	6	115

The official standing of the candidates for the cup follows:

W. de la R. Anderson	13
Clifford W. Conley	11
Meredith Dryden	11
W. J. R. Thiers	10
Fred P. Taylor	9
W. B. Faber	7
Chester L. Ross	6
Geo. T. Rogers	5
Theodore Scrymser	4
G. W. Faber	3
Samuel Townsend	3
Fred P. Townsend	3
J. H. Howell	3
M. T. Townsend	3
F. K. Douglass	2
D. D. Hibard	2
Arthur Peck	2
Fred F. Taylor	1
H. S. Squires	1
S. B. Laing	1
Tolley C. Green	1
Fred S. Overton	1
Augustus VanDeventer	1
E. W. McCutchen	1

Anderson, it will be seen, still leads, with Gifford W. Cooley second, and Meredith Dryden third. Thiers has stepped up from fifth to a close fourth and has a possible chance of tieing Anderson for the cup, if the former finishes first next Saturday, and the latter fails to score. Cooley and Dryden also have a chance of winning, but the other competitors are out of the race as far as the cup is concerned.

It seems likely that Anderson will win the cup. He was fourth Saturday and showed a slight improvement over the week before, although yet far from his usual game. Faber's victory advanced him from tenth place to sixth, where he is only a half a point behind his brother.

There was no play for the Buttfield Cup Saturday, and is not likely to be any more this season. Miss Daisy Elsberg has practically won it already as her lead is too great for any of her opponents to catch up with her. Miss Elsberg has been the only one who has turned out regularly during the summer to compete for the cup.

Surprise for J. Stanley Mosher.

A surprise party was given to J. Stanley Mosher at his home on West Fifth street Saturday evening. Harry Rogers was instrumental in arranging the affair. The guests dropped in one after another giving their host a series of surprises. A very pleasant evening was spent with music and games.

A New Law Student.

Louis A. Clement, formerly with Judge Patterson, of Asbury Park has entered the office of Irving L. Brady to complete his legal studies.

AN ACTIVE CHURCH WORKER A BRIDE.

Miss Emma Frances Gillem Wedded to Leonard S. Smith.

MARRIED IN BRIDE'S HOME

THE HOUSE BEAUTIFULLY DECORATED FOR NUPTIAL EVENT.

Ceremony Performed in the Midst of Beautiful Floral Decorations by Rev. Cornelius Schenck—Those in the Wedding Party—Pleasant Reception Followed—To Reside on Duer Street.

A pretty autumnal wedding was that of last Wednesday when Miss Emma Frances Gillem, daughter of Mrs. Anna M. Gillem, of 113 Duer street, became the wife of Leonard Scott Smith, of 109 Duer street. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the relatives and near friends of the bride and groom. The event took place at the home of bride's mother at 7:30 o'clock.

The home was very tastefully decorated with hardy ivy, palms and pinks. In the double parlors the arrangement was especially attractive. In one corner of the front parlor there was an improvised altar, behind which there was a bank of palms. It was here that the ceremony was performed. The ivy was used with pleasing effect encircling the rooms, and, arranged with here and there a bunch of pinks. It made a pretty combination. In the hallway along the balustrade the ivy and pinks were entwined from one end to the other. The dining room and table decorations were arranged in an artistic manner, while throughout the house palms were used with good effect.

At the hour appointed for the ceremony the Loehengrin wedding march was rendered on the piano by Harold Smalley, of this city, and at the same time the bridal party made its appearance and entering the parlor formed about the altar, where Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of the Trinity Reformed church, performed the ceremony that made the happy couple one. The ceremony was that of the Reformed church and was performed with a ring.

The bride's gown was a beautiful creation of white mousseline de soie over white satin, with a spangled net and was indeed very becoming to the wearer. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The maid-of-honor, Miss Ida M. Mills, of Elizabeth, a cousin of the bride, was gowned in white organdie with lace trimmings over white with pink ribbons. She carried pink roses. The best man was Paul H. Loizeaux, of the borough.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom received the hearty congratulations of those present, all of whom wished them a happy life and a successful one as they journey together. Following congratulations a wedding supper was served, and later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Smith left the city to enjoy a short honeymoon. When they return they will take up their residence at 113 Duer street.

The bride is one of the borough's most estimable young women. She is a member of Trinity Reformed church, a teacher in the Sunday-school and an active member of all the organizations of the church. The groom is a valued employe of Henry W Peabody & Co., exporters, of New York, and the firm remembered him handsomely by presenting him with a check. He is also well-known in this city, where he has a host of friends.

The valuable token of esteem received by the bride and groom gave evidence of the esteem in which they are held. The gifts included those that are useful and ornamental. The groom's gift to the bride was a check for $100.

In making their departure from the house Mr. and Mrs. Smith were given a good send-off. There were showers of rice and they carried with them all the good signs which a popular bride and groom are entitled to

A COMPLETE SURPRISE.

Second Marriage Anniversary of the Marriage of Mr. and Mrs. VanMiddlesworth.

A complete and enjoyable surprise was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Charles VanMiddlesworth, of Somerset street, Friday p. m., the occasion being the second anniversary of their marriage. They were wholly unaware of an intended visit from their friends. There were about thirty relatives and friends present and everyone had a fine time. During the evening several recitations were given by some children. A feature was singing by Miss Mears, a well-known soloist. About midnight supper was served, after which the guests departed leaving their best wishes for continued happiness and success.

No Intention of Building.

The First National Bank who own the property on North avenue where the Thompson building formerly stood, have no intention of building thereon.

UNITY WAS NOT THERE.

Plainfield Delegation Was Badly Split.

AT COUNTY CONVENTION.

PLAINFIELD RECEIVED AN ASSEMBLY NOMINATION.

Lively Times At Union County Republican Convention At Elizabeth Yesterday—Cross—Houston—Howard Slate Was Victorious—Plainfield Divided Against Itself

So great was the uncertainty Oct. 24th at Elizabeth among even the leaders, that there was more than the usual delay in assembling the Union county convention of the Republicans in the Lyceum Theatre on Broad street Oct. 24th afternoon. Nobody knew exactly what was going to happen and there was any amount of hustling in the attempt to bring order out of the chaos that apparently reigned. After the delegates were in their seats, there was further delay until the chairman of the county committee could be corralled. As it was the convention was called to order at 3:25 o'clock.

The Plainfield delegates, which included several alternates, were as follows:

First ward—Charles W. Runyon, Walter Longman, Jr., L. S. Pocock, L. L. Cromm, Joseph Neill, John King, William Jukes.

Second ward—John B. Dumont, S. A. Ginna, Thos. A. Cuming, J. E. Keely, Chas. Davis, J. VanHerwerden, Chas. S. Foote, W. N. Runyon, J. A. Robinson.

Third ward—Roger F. Murray, N. R. Titsworth, F. E. Marsh, Robert Bushmore, Albert J. Littell, Ted. Doane, Jr., John Cose, J. W. Murray, Jr., Geo. W. Rockfellow.

Fourth ward—Andrew McCardell, Neal Head, Daniel Galbraith, A. Leivers, Jacob Kriney, Howard Wootton, George Fielding, James Morrison, William A. Westphal, William Abbott, B. Harvey, W. Jenkins.

The lack of unity in the Plainfield delegation was noticeable at the very start. The Second and Third ward delegations were early in their seats well down in front on the right side. The First and Fourth ward delegations did not leave the headquarters of the Halsey adherents until most of the others were seated. The First ward occupied the front row of seats, while the Fourth ward was compelled to occupy a row in the back of the theatre. There was a large delegation of Plainfielders, aside from the delegations, who occupied the boxes or were seated among the other visitors in the rear of the hall. A few Democrats were scattered among them.

The convention was called to order by Charles N. Codding, of Westfield, chairman of the county committee. He nominated Charles H. Denman, of Westfield, as secretary, and S. Rusling Ryno, of Rahway, as assistant secretary, and they were elected. John B. Dumont, of Plainfield, was then made chairman and escorted to the platform by John E. Barr, of Elizabethport, and George Peak, of Westfield. While he was on the way Mr. Codding announced as the county committee's choice of committees, the following:

Rules—George H. VanVoorhis, of Elizabeth; Frank S. Smith, of Westfield; George Kyte, of Fanwood

Resolutions—Palmer H. Charlock, of Elizabeth; Chas. A. Day, of Summit; H. B Rollinson, of Rahway.

Credentials—James W. Hope, of Roselle; W A. Morrell, of Elizabeth; A. V. Hart, of Cranford

A recess of five minutes gave the committees a chance to prepare their reports. The committee on credentials reported that the delegations were all full and that there were no contests. The resolutions presented indorsed the national and state administrations and platforms and the policy in the state devoting the income from corporations in advancing public institutions. They closed with an invitation to the Democrats who did not favor Bryan and free silver to unite with them.

The rules of the convention were practically the same as the year previous.

Then came the call for nominations for senator. Palmer H. Charlock, of Elizabeth, nominated Hon. Joseph Cross and Rahway seconded the nomination. A motion by John D. Barr, of Elizabeth, that the secretary cast a ballot for Senator Cross, was carried.

Nominations for sheriff were next in order and John D. Barr, chairman of the delegation from the First ward of Elizabeth, named Robert G. Houston in a short speech. Charles W. Runyon, chairman of the First ward delegation of Plainfield, presented the name of B. Frank Coriell. Assemblyman Roger F. Murray, who was chairman of the Third ward delegation of the same city, immediately declared that Coriell was not a candidate as he felt that he should do nothing to hurt the candidacy of Clerk William Howard and so Murray seconded Houston's nomination. After that, there was no love lost between Runyon and Murray. C N. Codding presented Westfield's choice, John F. Dorvall.

The voting showed the expected division in the Elizabeth ranks, Sixth, Eighth, Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth wards supporting Coriell. There was tremendous applause from the Howard Houston men when the Second, Thirth and Fourth wards of Plainfield cast their votes for Houston. Rahway was solid for Houston as was the remainder of the county except Cranford, which cast six votes for Coriell and Mountainside borough's solitary vote for Dorvall. Westfield abandoned Dorvall when the vote showed that Houston already had enough votes to nominate him.

The vote was announced Houston, 129; Coriell, 54; Dorvall, 1. When a motion was made that the vote be made unanimous, objection was made by the First ward of Plainfield.

The First ward of Elizabeth waived its right to name a candidate for the county clerk nomination in favor of Rahway. Leslie Lupton, of Rahway, then presented the name of the present incumbent, William Howard, of Rahway. Ira B. Wheeler, of the Eleventh ward, Elizabeth, named Charles H. Halsey. Sumthing had put up a favorite son, John A. Hicks.

Elizabeth's vote remained the same but the First ward delegation from Plainfield and one delegate from the Second ward gave their support to Halsey. Summit cast nine votes for Hicks while Union split and gave two to Halsey and six to Howard. The vote from Mountainside borough went to Halsey.

The result showed that Howard was nominated on the first ballot with 105 votes. Halsey received 70 and Hicks nine. There were 184 delegates in the convention and 93 were necessary for a choice

The motion to make the nomination unanimous was again defeated through the opposition of Charles W Runyon and the rest of the Plainfield First ward delegation.

There was the greatest amount of uncertainty regarding the Assembly nominations. Nine names were presented from which were to be chosen three candidates to the State Assembly. Those named were George A. Squier, Frederick Miller. Isaac M. Littell, Ellis R. Meeker, and Charles N. Trimbull of Elizabeth, Charles S. Foote and William Newcorn, of Plainfield, George Kyte, of Fanwood, and Chester M. Smith, of Westfield. Foote was nominated by Stephen A. Ginna, chairman of the Second ward delegation and Newcorn by Andrew McCardell, chairman of the Fourth ward delegation.

There hadn't been any combinations agreed upon and the various delegations were at a loss who to support. An attempt to hold a recess was defeated. Then they tried to vote, the convention deciding to elect the Assembly candidates one after another. The result was a ballot that only added to the confusion, Meeker being the highest with only 46 votes. Then it was decided to reconsider the last proceedings and elect the three Assembly candidates in a bunch. This time the chairman said that the secretaries would not be ready for a few moments and suggested a recess. The recess was held and there was the greatest lot of button-holing and interviewing. Roger F. Murray and John E. Keely, of Plainfield, were particularly active in favor of Foote while McCardell was prominent in the interest of Newcorn.

When the recess was over and the delegates resumed their seats, the vote was taken. Rahway went solidly for Meeker. Foote and Smith while most of the other delegations were very generally divided. The Second and Third wards and two delegates from the First ward of Plainfield supported Foote, while the Fourth ward solidly and the rest of the First stood by Newcorn. The effort to secure favor Foote and the uptown Elizabeth wards Newcorn. Rahway was solid for Foote, Summit gave Foote five and Newcorn four. Union turned eight votes to Foote while Westfield divided its ten delegates between the two.

The result showed Foote and Smith elected on the first ballot as follows: Smith, 119; Foote, 103; Meeker, 91; Newcorn, 84; Miller, 83; Kyte, 33; Squier, 26; Littell, 7; Trimbull, 6.

According to the record kept at the press table, Meeker had 92 instead of 91, giving him the required 93 votes while Trimbull only had one instead of six. The secretaries decided otherwise and another ballot was taken which resulted in the nomination of Ellis R. Meeker, of Elizabeth, by a vote of 97, Miller 83; Squier 3; Trimbull, 1.

It was then nearly 6 o'clock and the remainder of the business was rushed through. Dr. J. W. Gray, of Summit, was nominated for coroner by a unanimous vote. The chairman of the county executive committee and four others chosen by himself were empowered to fill all vacancies in the ticket. A committee composed of C. N. Codding, Roger F. Murray and John D. Barr was appointed to escort the candidates to the stage.

Many of the out of town delegates left and departed for the station while the others remained to hear the brief speeches that were made by the different candidates. The contention then adjourned.

DRUNKARDS OF UNION COUNTY.

The Grand Jury Suggests Legislation for Their Control.

A CUMULATIVE PENALTY.

MRS WILLIAMSON BRINGS MATTER TO GRAND JURY'S ATTENTION.

She Respectfully Asked to Have the Ever-Recurring Commitment of the "Roundsers" to the County Jail Looked Into—She Instanced Some of the Cases for the Grand Jury's Benefit.

The Grand Jury of Union County brought in a presentment against itself, the county and the State at large before Judge Vail Thursday morning. The presentment was, in substance:

"We find that certain persons are almost habitually in the county jail on the one charge of 'drunk and disorderly,' and in most cases are scarcely ever at liberty more than twenty-four hours when they are recommitted for a similar offense. We are of the opinion that if there was a law enacted that would put such cases under a habitual criminal act, or what is known as a cumulative penalty, while it would not relieve the Commonwealth of the expense of keeping the particular offenders, we do believe that it would, act as a deterrent by causing others to halt in their downward career. We recommend that the representatives of this county be urged to secure some such legislation in the interest of humanity and the taxpayers."

The Grand Jury took up the matter, it is understood, at the instance of Mrs. Emily Williamson, secretary of the State Charities' Aid Association, and on receipt of a communication from Herbert Pierson,

The records of the police court and county jail show that one Anne Ford, aged 64 years and the mother of thirteen children, has been committed to the county jail sixty-seven times, with an average sentence of seventy days, and always for being drunk and disorderly. The full time which she has served, for she never gets in the good behavior class, is 4,690 days, or just fifty days less than thirty years. It has cost the county $1,278 20 to keep her and $199 50 to arrest and commit her. Next to her comes Julia Lea, aged 44, committed fifty-seven times; Andrew Boyle, forty nine times; Mary Sullivan, forty-one times; Thomas Flannery, aged 39, committed thirty-nine times. Besides these there are thirty-three others who have been committed from twelve to thirty five times each.

"The matter has frequently cropped out before, but it has never been given such serious attention as now," Prosecutor English said. "I will do all in my power to have the matter brought before the Legislature." As for that there is scarcely a voter in the county who would not vote for such a measure as the Grand Jury advocated, and an organized step will be taken this winter to have the matter properly brought to the attention of the Legislature.

HOME FROM PHILLIPINES

BILLY EGBERT WOULDN'T STAY IN THE ARMY ANY LONGER.

Disgusted With the Tactics of General Otis, Whom He Calls an "Old Woman"—Egbert Now in California.

A Plainfielder has just received a letter from William H. Ezbert, formerly of Plainfield, and lately one of Uncle Sam's men fighting in the Phillipines. Mr. Ezbert is now in California, having left the army and given up fighting. He was in the Phillipines almost a year, and expresses the greatest pleasure in being once more, as he says, "In God's country." He was sick for three weeks on the return journey, but is now feeling better. He will soon return to Spokane, Wash., for the winter.

He says: "I could not see my way clear to remain there in the present unsettled state of affairs unless I had re-enlisted in the regular army, but that I would not do, though I could have had a commission with the 11th U. S. Vol. Cavalry. Things will never be right there until they fire that Old Woman—Otis. If they would turn Lawton and Wheeler loose they would soon settle things. The volunteers had it done once, but he (Otis) would never let us follow up an advantage."

The City Taxes.

City taxes will be past due after November 20th. They come due one month earlier this year according to an ordinance passed by the Council.

FIGHT FOR A DEAD BODY

TWO WIDOWS CLAIM REMAINS OF HERMAN VOGEL, SUICIDE.

Divorced Wife Had Them Buried in New Brunswick, But Woman Who He Tried to Kill Wants to Get Them.

When Herman Vogel, proprietor of Fisher's Hotel in Bound Brook, attempted to murder his second wife and her stepmother at the corner of George and Albany streets in New Brunswick a week ago, and then committed suicide himself, his dead body was in a way over to his divorced wife, who claimed it immediately. She had the remains interred in New Brunswick, but ever since then the wife with whom he had been living with for the past year, and whom he tried to kill, has been making efforts to secure control of the remains and have them disposed of according to her wishes.

She has engaged Former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, to represent her and it is understood that an action will be brought in the courts to have the remains of the attempted murderer and suicide replevined to her. If the action is successful she will have them disinterred, put in another casket in another suit of clothes and re-interred in Bound Brook.

Wife No. 1 will oppose any such efforts, and though definite steps have been taken it is anticipated that there will be a bitter contest between the two over who shall finally obtain control of the remains of the husband who had played both false.

DEATH OF DR. JACKSON

PASSED AWAY UNEXPECTEDLY AT HIS SPRINGFIELD HOME.

Had Been Seriously Ill, but was Thought to Have Recovered—A Prominent Democrat and a Member of the Masons.

Dr. Thomas Jefferson Jackson, of Morris avenue, Springfield, died at his home Thursday night after an illness of three days. Death was due to neuralgia of the heart, superinduced by pneumonia. He was 50 years old.

Last winter Dr. Jackson had a severe attack of pneumonia, and since then he has been susceptible to colds Monday he complained of feeling ill, but the next morning he started out to attend some patients. He was compelled to return before he made his rounds, and Dr. Cooper, of Westfield, was summoned. Thursday morning a change for the worse took place, and the patient sank rapidly until 6:30 o'clock the same evening, when he died.

Dr. Jackson was born in Baltimore county, Md. Ten years ago he went to Springfield. He was well known throughout Union county in political and medical circles. He was a Democrat and served a term as a member of the Springfield Board of Education.

Dr. Jackson was a Free Mason, and was a Knight Templar in the order. He belonged to the Baltimore Commandery, of Baltimore, and was associated with Trinity Commandery of Plainfield. He was a member of the Union County Medical Society, the Colombo Council, No. 1492, Royal Arcanum, of Springfield, and the Fraternal Union of Summit. He is survived by his widow, two sons and one daughter, the latter being Mrs. O. H. Leber, of Springfield. No funeral arrangements have as yet been made.

Dr. Jackson was recently elected a delegate to the Democratic convention at Elizabeth yesterday. The news of his death cast something of a gloom over the delegates, some of whom were in favor of giving him a place on the Assembly ticket.

A QUIET MARRIAGE.

Miss May DeNise and Erwin Y. Neighbor Married Last Night.

The marriage of Miss May E. DeNise, a daughter of Mrs. Mary DeNise, of West Front street, and Erwin Y. Neighbor, of East Second street, was celebrated October 25th at 6 o'clock. Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, performed the ceremony at his home on West Seventh street. The affair was a very quiet one, no one being present but the interested parties. For the present Mr. and Mrs. Neighbor will board, but in the first of the year they will go to housekeeping. The bride is a popular young woman, and has a host of friends. The groom is associated in business with Thomas Timbo on North avenue. They have best wishes from their many friends for a happy and successful journey through life.

Realty Changes.

The following real estate transfers have been recorded from North Plainfield during the past week:

Charles E Steiner et al., to Mary Steiner, 1 lot Scotch Plains; sheriff, to C. W. McCutchen, $8,560; Carrie M. Ireland and husband to Carrie A. Warburton, $3,500; Ch s. L. Moffett et ux., to Charles W. Hardin, $1,600; Edward F. Thorn to Jane E. Vosseller, $45; Jane E. Vosseller and husband to Hulda M. Vail, $1,000; Jeremiah Manning et ux., to Irving L. Brydr, $15; Reuben T. Barton et ux., to Wm. Reid, $15; Wm Fries et ux., to George Hummer, $1

The foundation for the new house of John Lloyd at Dunellen and Lincoln avenues has been built and the framework raised

TOWNSEND MASON IS MAJOR COMMANDING.

Chosen as Highest Officer of High School Battalion.

OTHERS TO BE ELECTED.

PLANS FOR MILITARY ORGANIZATION AT PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL.

There Will Be Ninety Boys to Be Divided in Three Companies—Drill Every Friday—How Officers Will Be Chosen—Arms Furnished By the State—Special Attention to "Setting Up" Drill.

Townsend Mason was chosen Friday afternoon by the boys of the Plainfield High School to be major of the school battalion that is to be organized at once. Plainfield will then be the first city in New Jersey to have a battalion of three companies connected with its High School. The battalion is to be organized on the same plan as those which have been in existence for a number of years in the Massachusetts schools.

There are now ninety boys in the High School and High School preparatory grades which occupy the Stillman building. They will be organized in three companies of thirty each. Once a week, probably Fridays, from 12 to 1 o'clock, the companies will march to one of the local halls and spend an hour in military evolutions under the direction of Albert B. Meredith, science instructor of the High School. Mr. Meredith is perfectly competent to act as military instructor, having been prominently connected with the school cadet regiments in Massachusetts, and having served at the New York Military Academy at Sing Sing. He will take the rank of major, given him by the organizations of Lowell, Mass.

At the start, it is necessary to select all the officers, commissioned and non-commissioned, from the ranks, but hereafter it is intended that each year shall see the regular promotions from the lower ranks to the higher. Mason has already been elected major. In a few days three captains and three lieutenants will be chosen. It is intended that these commissioned officers shall be chosen from the two upper classes in the High School.

Mason is a Junior and the other six officers will be taken from the Senior and Junior classes. Owing to the fact that there are but three boys in the Senior class this year, most of the officers will naturally have to be chosen from among the Juniors.

The captain of each company will have the appointment of four sergeants and two corporals from among members of the two lower classes of the High School. These appointments will, of course, be subject to the approval of the faculty. After the battalion is fairly under way, it is intended that promotions shall be made according to efficiency in military tactics, length of service and high standing in studies. The latter will be a minor consideration but the highest honors in the battalion will naturally not fall to those who are noticeably behind in their regular school work.

The major will have the appointment of his own staff, adjutant and quartermaster, who will rank as first lieutenants. He will also appoint his own non-commissioned staff of quartermaster-sergeant and a sergeant-major.

The officers will hold their position until they leave school, are promoted or are reduced to the ranks for some specific offence. After the battalion is a regular feature of the school the major will probably be elected from the Senior class and thus will be able to hold office for only one year.

The major is to command the battalion, while Mr. Meredith will act as instructor. Special attention will be paid to the "setting up" drill, a very important part of proper military training.

Drill will be compulsory among the boys of the High School but the purchase of a uniform will be left to their own choice. It is probable that the boys will all get uniforms. They can be had very cheaply and many of the boys have, in the past, found them preferable for regular wear. Many will purchase the uniform caps and coats and then wear white duck trousers for the exhibition and competitive drill in the spring.

This exhibition and competitive drill will be made a specially important feature. The companies will drill for a prize or banner and then there will be an individual competive drill in the manual of arms and the school of the soldier. It will be held shortly before the commencement season.

A New Physician.

J. Herbert Keenan, M. D., of Elizabeth, a bright young physician, has established an office in this city corner of East Seventh street and Crescent avenue, in the Demarest house. He is a specialist in the treatment of chronic diseases, and uses extensively and with good success Robert's Lymph.

—Hanan & Son's shoes for ladies is something new in Plainfield. Still if you go to Willett & Son, around the corner you will find the new fall styles.

WED AS OCTOBER DAYS WERE WANING.

VanWinkle-Gillies Nuptials Performed October 25th.

WAS A CHURCH CEREMONY.

LEFT THE CHURCH AT ONCE ON THEIR WEDDING TRIP.

Rev. W. E. Richards Tied the Nuptial Knot—Maid-of-Honor Was Miss Anna Teal, of Newark—A Trick Was Played on the Couple by Sending Their Baggage Away Pinearded With Notices.

The Crescent Avenue church was Wednesday, Oct. 25 the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Miss Mabel Alice Gillies, daughter of Mrs. Mary B. Gillies, of 310 Central avenue, was united in marriage to Nelson Van Winkle, of 107 Central avenue, in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends. The happy event was celebrated at 5:30 o'clock, and Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony.

The decorations were beautiful. They consisted chiefly of palms, and were arranged about the altar.

William E. MacClymont, organist of Holy Trinity church, New York, presided at the organ, and his rendition of pleasing selections preceded that of the Loehengrin wedding march, the first notes of which announced the arrival of the bridal party. First appeared two ushers, Joseph M. Hawkins and Frank VanWinkle, a brother of the groom. Then followed the maid-of-honor, Miss Anna Teal, of Newark, a cousin of the bride. She was gowned in blue cloth, trimmed with mousseline de soie, and wore a hat to match. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Then appeared the bride, escorted by Edward B. Ryder, her brother-in-law, who gave her away in marriage. She looked charming in a handsome gown of Bengaline cloth of a steel color. It was trimmed with passementrie and lace, and a hat of velvet to match was also worn. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses.

Following the bride were the other two ushers, T. O Doane, Jr., and J. Alba Runyon. At the altar the party was met by the groom and his best man, Thomas A. Cuming, and the officiating clergyman. A semi-circle was formed and the contracting parties were then made one. The responses during the service were very distinct and could be heard audibly in any part of the church. The ceremony throughout was very pretty and impressive.

As the bridal party was leaving the church the familiar wedding march from Mendelssohn was played. The bride and groom preceded, and then followed the others of the party. Upon their return they will reside at 310 Central avenue, which house they have rented for the winter. They were handsomely remembered by a host of friends and relatives, and the elegant and costly selection of presents received show unmistakably the esteem in which they are held.

The bride was until recently a valued employe at the house of Woodhull & Martin, and the groom is a machinist and holds and excellent position in the Pond Machine Tool Works. They have the best wishes of all for a prosperous and happy life.

Guests were present at the wedding from Brooklyn, New York, Bergen Point, Elizabeth, Philadelphia and this city.

In the afternoon prior to the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. VanWinkle, one of the relatives played a neat little trick on the bride and groom. Their dress suit case was packed and ready for the honeymoon trip to Philadelphia, when suddenly it was missed. Later it appeared at the North Avenue Station decorated in true fashion. It was tied with white satin ribbon, and on one side was a sign which read "Just Married," Tied to the handle of the case case was a pair of small shoes, and at each corner corner there was a small quantity of rice which had been fastened with mucilage. The case was checked on the 4:14 Philadelphia train, and the most amusing part of all is that we have been told the bride and groom called for it at the railroad station in the Quaker City.

Owing to the fact that the bridal couple was late in arriving at the church, they were unable to take the train intended and it was 8:20 o'clock when they left the city. At the North Avenue station their relatives and friends gave them a royal send-off. About six pounds of rice was used and after the couple took their seats in the train, some of the guests walked into the car and introduced the bride and groom to the passengers, saying that they hoped they would treat them well and also see that they got off the train in Philadelphia.

County Board of Registry.

The county board is now required only to sit for the purpose of adding names to the registry lists from 8 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the afternoon of the Thursday and Saturday preceding the day of election.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signatnre of Chas. H. Fletcher. and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

G. O. P IN SOMERSET SURE OF VICTORY.

Republican Leaders Confident That They Will Win.

EXPECT TO ELECT ALL.

DECLARE THAT THOMPSON FACTION IS NOW IN LINE.

There Will Be Some Cutting But Republican Leaders Expect Opposition To Bergen In Democratic Ranks Will More Than Make Up for It—Today Is The Last Opportunity To Register.

From a Republican point of view, the situation in Somerset county today has greatly improved. Republican leaders throughout the county now declare that there is no doubt whatever but that the regular Republican ticket will be elected in its entirety. Senator Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, is now confident of re election to the higher branch of the State Legislature.

It will be long before all the bitterness in the Republican ranks will be healed but the keen edge of it has been off since the convention and many of the minor leaders through the county have come out during the last few days in support of the ticket. After consideration, they have decided that a Republican should be elected anyhow and have laid aside their factional differences and gone into the campaign.

In Somerville, where the feeling in the Republican ranks was the strongest against Senator Reed and where Hon. J. J. Bergen lives, the normal Republican majority is not expected to be as large as usual. But, as one prominent Republican worker puts it, the defeat of Senator Reed would reflect the strongest on Mr. Thompson and so the latter and his friends are now supporting the ticket, Reed and all.

"Yes," said Senator Reed, in conversation with a Press reporter yesterday afternoon, "I expect to be elected. I do not see how it can be otherwise. The Republican workers throughout the county are supporting me and I have no fault to find with any of them. There are a few individual cases where certain Republicans feel sore toward me but they do not represent nor control any faction.

"I shall probably be cut somewhat throughout the county but I expect that Mr. Bergen will be cut twice to where I am cut once. I have conversed with Democrats all over the county and many of them feel very strongly against Mr. Bergen for coming out for the gold standard and thus renouncing it for Bryan and free silver. He will loose many votes by that."

The Republican campaign is now being conducted with much vigor. It is hardly likely that there will be any public meetings held throughout the county. All the candidates are too well-known to the people at large in the county to need any introduction. Consequently the campaign work will not make much noise, but a great deal of quiet personal work is being done and will continue to be done up to the time of the closing of the polls.

Today is the last opportunity for registry in the county, and it is expected that there will be an unusual number registered all through the county on account of the particular interest in the result of the election.

There is much interest in the probable vote in the borough of North Plainfield. The Republican leaders claim that the borough will stand by its candidate and give him the normal majority. There will undoubtedly be some cutting, but the leaders claim that it will be no more than off set by the Democrats who will refuse to vote for Bergen.

FUMBLED TOO MUCH.

WHY DUNELLEN WAS DEFEATED BY BATTIN HIGH SCHOOL.

Exciting Football Game Played at Elizabeth Saturday—Battin High School Won by a Score of 11 to 0.

The Dunellen football team met defeat Saturday afternoon at the hands of the eleven from the Battin High School of Elizabeth. The game was played at Elizabeth, the home team winning by a score of 11 to 0.

The game was well played and furnished a large number of spectators with plenty of excitement. The ball was in Dunellen's territory most of the first half. The Dunellen backs fumbled every time they had a chance to make a gain and so were forced on the defensive most of the time. The Elizabeth backs could make no gains around the ends but they kept hammering the tackles and forced their way down the field with small gains until they were under the shadow of the goal posts. The Dunellenites braced up and carried the ball out of danger only to loose it again. The ball finally returned to Dunellen's five yard line when time was called.

It proved that there was still a minute to play and the Elizabeth boys got into line in a moment. The visitors were scattered about the field and did not get back to their places in time to offer much resistance to the next play that carried the ball over the line for a touchdown by Battin High School. The goal was kicked.

The second half was a repetition of the first. Dunellen made a stubborn defence, but gradually yielding before the constant battering of the tackles. The ball was finally pushed over for a second touchdown. Powlison blocked the kick. Elizabeth was unable to score again.

Dunellen lined up as follows: Right end, Powlison; right tackle, VanNess; right guard, F. Mason; centre, Brandon; left guard, Brown; left tackle, T. Mason; left end, Maltby; quarter back, Churchill; right half back, Peters; left half back, I. Hardingham; full back, Carroll.

A Plainfield Groom.

Mr and Mrs H Willson, of Valley Brook avenue, Lyndhurst, have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth C Howard, and William Birchard, of this city. The happy event will take place Wednesday evening, November 25th, at the home of the bride.

Closing of the Hunterston.

Plans are now about completed for the closing of the Hotel Hunterston Friday next. There is still a goodly number of guests at the house who will regret that the popular resort is to close.

DEMOCRATS ARRANGE TO HOLD RECEPTION

An Occasion for the Introduction of Candidates.

TO BE HELD FRIDAY NIGHT.

THE CITY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE PERMANENTLY ORGANIZED.

Four Members Appointed From the City at Large, Making Thirteen in All on the Committee—M. S. Flynn Chosen President of the Committee and By-laws Adopted for Its Government.

Another meeting of the new Democratic city executive committee was held Monday for the purpose of perfecting a permanent organization and the adoption of by-laws for the governmen of the committee.

A special sub committee was appointed at the meeting last week to prepare the by-laws, and at the meeting Monday the report of this committee was presented. The principal features of the proposed by laws are that the membership of the committee shall consist of one member from each election district in the city, to be chosen at the primaries for the election of delegates to the Assembly convention, and to serve for two years; that the president of the committee shall appoint four members at large, one from each ward, to serve for one year; that stated meetings of the committee shall be held the first Monday in each month, and as much oftener as thought necessary; that the officers shall be a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer; that the several committees incident to political organization shall be appointed and maintained, and that the committee shall be empowered to act for the party at any and all times of the year outside of the primaries regularly called by them.

After the by-laws had been adopted section by section, and then adopted as a whole, the work of electing permanent officers was taken up. The following were unanimously chosen: President, Michael R. Flynn; vice-president, P. J. Beville; secretary, H. W. Marshall; treasurer, Vincent L. Frazee.

President Flynn then appointed the following members at large: First ward, Andrew Nolan; Second ward, Isaac Brown, Jr.; Third ward, Charles L. Moffett; Fourth ward, W. W. St. John.

The appointment of the committees necessary to immediate work in the present campaign was then made by Mr. Flynn, and at a later date the full set of committeemen will be named.

After some informal discussion with reference to party plans and needs in Plainfield, the subject of arranging a meeting where the Union county Democratic candidates might have an opportunity of meeting the voters of Plainfield before election was brought up. As no great State or National issues are involved in this campaign and as political oratory is not essential to the occasion, it was decided that the best plan would be not to hold a public mass-meeting of the usual character, but to arrange an informal reception to be held in the Ulrich building, known as the old Crescent League clubhouse, at which the candidates could attend.

It was decided that Friday night would be the best time for holding the reception. A committee was appointed to make all arrangements for the success of the function. The affair will be principally for the introduction of the Democratic candidates to the voters of the city, and members of every party will be welcomed to the headquarters that evening.

All the Democratic candidates in Union county, with possibly the exception of Jacob Glaser, candidate for Sheriff, who is seriously ill at his home in Union township, will be present. It is expected that the Somerset Democratic candidates will also be present. A number of prominent Democrats in Elizabeth, as well as other parts of the county, will probably be there.

There will be a few very brief speeches, as extended speeches will be tabooed for the night.

Funeral of Mrs. Parmenter.

The funeral services of Mrs. Sarah J. Parmenter, wife of Charles K. Kellaway, who died suddenly while visiting relatives at Nutley, on Thursday last, were held from her late home on Terrill road, Fanwood Township, Monday p. m., and were largely attended by friends and relatives. The remains reposed in a casket covered with grey cloth on which were quantities of beautiful flowers. The Episcopal burial service was fecelingly read and prayers offered by Rev. R. E. Pendleton, pastor of All Saints' church, Scotch Plains. Interment was made in the family plot at Madison, Morris county.

Entertain Their Friends.

Monday evening, November 13th, the U. O. of I. O. L., will give a literary and musical entertainment in Sons of Temperance Hall.

To Cure Constipation Forever.

Take Cascarets Candy Cathartic. 10c or 25c. If C. C. C. fail to cure, druggists refund money.

HOW SHE MET KIPLING

A Chicago Girl Tells How She Did Some Work For Him in London.

LUNCHEON AT HIS HOME

Employed as a Stenographer She Is Treated as a Guest and Tells All About It.

Miss Alice R. Beardsley Describes Her Visit to the Kipling Cottage at Rottendean — She Also Tells What Left a Bad Taste in Her Mouth.

Miss Alice R. Beardsley, of Kankakee, Ill., has established a typewriting office in London, an establishment like the one Harold Frederic describes in "Glora Mundi." The enterprise has been a success from the start, and Miss Beardsley now employs ten girls. In a recent letter to some friends she tells how she did some work for Rudyard Kipling, as follows:

"I executed a literary trick last week acquired through association with novelists, when I wrote that I was going to Kipling and then left you in suspense as to whether or no I had recovered from the honor. Suffice is to say, I have had a week so full of work and pleasure that I have scarcely had time to breath a natural breath. I got up at 6:30 o'clock one morning and took the 7:30 o'clock train to Brighton. It was an hour and a half ride through a lovely country, and when I reached Brighton there was the sea. The city itself is quite high above the sea, and the drive from there out to Rottendean lies all along the cliffs, with the sea always at your right, and to the left rolling poppies. The driver of the carriage I had engaged began to talk the minute we left the station—said he knew I was an American, and inquired where I came from. When I told him I had lived in Chicago he said he used to drive horses in Chicago for a real estate man, and became quite chummy. Presently he remarked with some pride that Rudyard Kipling lived at Rottendean. I replied that I knew it, and that was where I was going, and immediately he addressed me with more reverence.

"It is more than four miles from Brighton to Rottendean, and when we reached the sleepy little village by the sea it was about 11 o'clock. The Kipling place, 'The Elms,' is very modest—an old place rejuvenated, I imagine, although not rejuvenated enough to hurt it, and a yard full of great elms and the most beauteous rose garden in the back. The gate in the wall which surrounds the yard has a peep hole in it and the man servant told me later on that curious tourists often applied their eyes to that hole in the hopes of seeing Mr. Kipling. The drawing-room was little more than a pleasant apartment. The floor was of boards painted a light tan, with good rugs, several beautiful pieces of old furniture and a tiny writing desk.

"Mrs. Kipling soon came in, a pleasant, smart-appearing woman, with a delightfully low voice. She dictated letters for almost an hour. Then Mr. Kipling came down. He seemed a trifle embarrassed, because, I suppose, in mortal terror of reporters. He dictated like lightning for about fifteen minutes, and then Mrs. Kipling leaned back with a sigh of comfort and said to his wife, 'I say, Carrie, isn't this fine?' Then resumed his dictation.

"Mr. Kipling does not as a rule dictate his work, and I imagine that Mrs. Kipling attends to most of his correspondence, but as he had such a mass of correspondence on hand he gave me some to help him out. After he had finished he went out, and I thought that I had seen the last of him, but Mrs. Kipling asked me to stay to dinner, and then I should not have to hurry to catch the 1:30 o'clock train. This I did, and while waiting I wandered about the garden, quite forgetting that right across the road was the old church, with its graveyard, where Burne Jones and William Black are buried, or I might have gone over there instead. While I was among the roses Kipling came out, took out his knife, cut off three immense roses and handed them to me, with, 'Would you care for these?' When I took them he returned to the house.

"Then at lunch, luncheon. Mr. and Mrs. Doubleday, of the Doubleday and McClure Company, Mr. Kipling's publishers in America were there, and such nice, cultured American people as they were. It was a very jolly lunch. Messrs. Kipling and Doubleday were as funny as could be, and said so many bright things which I hoped to remember, but which have gone from me. Anyway, it was all so pleasant that I felt I really ought not to charge anything for my services. After lunch the nursery governess, the two little Kiplings and the maid drove me to Brighton. Even the driver and the maid were more than courteous, and the children were perfect dears, so healthy and happy. It was a dreadful thing, their losing their oldest little girl, Josephine, as I have heard she was the brightest of the three.

"One morning a funny little German woman came in and asked if I would go to her room for dictation. She was a delegate from Germany to the International Congress of Women, and wanted to dictate her speech for that night. I went up, found her in the mansions, where she was stopping, and found a short-haired, tea-gowned little woman whose English was somewhat peculiar. She was very nervous and fidgety, and took four hours for work that should have been accomplished in half an hour. When lunch time came she had lunch sent up to the sitting room and left me working in the bedroom while she refreshed herself. After she was through she called me in, and there was such a nice lunch but of course stone cold, and she had even poured my tea when she had poured her own, and there it was, dank and cold. I did think it was such a horrid way for a woman who was supposed to be interested in women to treat another. Yet I think she meant to be kind; her only trouble was she couldn't forget I was her servant for the time being.

It amused me in spite of my mad, for I thought it rather a joke on myself. As the next day was my Kipling day, when I was treated as if I were an honored guest, the bad taste soon left my mouth.

"I have since done other work for Frau Sedenke, and she always wastes my time, but everything is grist that comes to my mill, so I don't mind. Then she asked my advice as to what she should wear at the meeting, and that salved my injured vanity."

THE BIG BASS.

And Tom Fitz's Story to the Kentucky Campaigners.

There is a legend to the effect that Hon. Thomas Y. Fitzpatrick, known particularly as "the gumdrop" as "Tom Fitz," made his first canvass for election to the Congress of the United States on foot. Tom has never denied it. On the other hand, he has never affirmed it. The closest he ever came to either affirming or denying it was when he said that a fellow could stop and go fishing a good deal more conveniently when he was afoot than when he was in a wagon or even horseback. This, of course, is merely an argument in favor of walking afoot; it does not bear directly upon the point of making a congressional canvass afoot. However, if it is true that Congressman Fitzpatrick made his first canvass afoot, it is certain that is the only way to make a canvass in the Kentucky mountains. If ever there was a Congressman who had a church on his constituency, Tom Fitz is that Congressman. His name is an open sesame from the head of Beaver to the mouth of Sandy.

It was Tom Fitz who escorted the Goebel party through the principal parts of their mountain tour. He indeed that he had driven all over the road before, and he proceeded to prove it by driving over them again in advance of the party. Most of the upgrades were like the front steps of the Capital Hotel at Frankfort, and most of the down grades were like the tailend of straw rick, but that did'nt matter to Congressman Fitz. As all the members of the party are all alive and unhurt there is nothing more to say of the matter, except that most of them don't believe the story of the big bass which Tom Fitz told at the second of Salt Lick while the party were waiting until the wrecked wagon could be put into condition to be wrecked once more.

("He ketched sight o' me.")

"This is a big fish story," said Tom Fitz. "The man who told it to me wouldn't deviate a hair's breath from the truth if his life depended on it, and this is the way he told it to me: 'He was th' fittnest fish I ever seen,' said he. Then he went on and told me how he played him and fought with him two-quarters of an hour. After this incident of the struggle he said, 'He was th' fittnest fish I ever seen?' He said that the bass finally got so mad that he jumped clear of the water at least six feet. 'He shook hisself a-trying to shake that hook out o' his mouth,' said he until the scales rattled like a trace chain. Then he ketched sight o' me, and he swore at me three times loud enough fur you to hear it way over there. At the sound that I dropped the pole an' he got away. He was the fittnest fish I ever seen."

LEFT BY FRANKLIN.

Bequest Which Boston Will Spend in Building a Public Hall.

The Franklin fund, which now amounts to about $40,000, and which represents, with interest, the result of a bequest of £1,000 which was left to the city of Boston by Benjamin Franklin in 1791, is to be expended. The full vote of the Aldermen is needed as yet, but a plan has been broached and accepted by the subcommittee to use one half of the sum for the erection of a public building which shall have a hall to be used as a public forum. The other half of the fund is to be spent for the erection of Mayor Quincy's bath and gymnasium schemes.

The public building is to be known as the Franklin building, and will be built in the south end. It is planned to have various meeting rooms in it, and to carry on courses of lectures on trade subjects. The original idea of the fund as left by Dr. Franklin was for the erection of a trade school. When this proposition was advanced by the committee two years ago all the labor bodies protested, and the Aldermen were forced to retreat, having gone so far as to secure a plot of land for the building. The trades union ran objected to boys receiving instruction at trades unless under their direct tuition, as apprentices.—Exchange.

Used His Brains.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company a few days ago sent a brakeman, as a gift, a check for $50, "for using his brains," as one of the officials expressed it. The freight train while coming down the grade between Cranberry Summit and Rowlesburg stopped very suddenly, making a horrible racket. The brakeman, who was on the front of the train, went investigating the trouble he rushed ahead and flagged No. 7. Had he gone back to investigate it would have been too late and No. 7 would have dashed into four or five derailed cars and tumbled over into the river. For his good judgment the company made him a present of $50, and has posted a bulletin so that those "who run may read."

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription for Sick to the Seats of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS. RIPANS ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I was ill, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $3 a call.

A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview Ripans Tabules were on hand to represent two dozen members who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should appear in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There are her other grandchildren, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case is a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles." And she

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER, 9, 1899. NO. 45.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

CLEAN SWEEP FOR G. O. P.

REPUBLICANS ELECTED ENTIRE TICKET IN UNION, MIDDLESEX AND SOMERSET COUNTIES.

G. O. P. Carried Everything Before It In Union County, Winning With Nearly 2,500 Plurality—Plainfield Only Place Where Republican Plurality Was Decreased—Senator Reed Carried Somerset County With Over 800 Plurality —Other Election Returns.

The elections of Tuesday resulted in a wholesale victory for the Republicans. In Union county the entire ticket was elected by nearly 2,500 plurality. Plainfield was the only place where Republican gains were not made. Senator Chas. A. Reed was elected in Somerset county with the rest of the Republican ticket by a plurality of over 800. The Republican ticket in Middlesex county was also victorious by varying majorities.

VOTE WAS LIGHT.

But the Republicans Swept Union County With Very Heavy Majorities

The Republicans of Union county won a signal victory in the election Tuesday. Their ticket was elected in its entirety with pluralities ranging from 2435 to 1244. The overwhelming pluralities for the Republican candidates were a surprise to both parties. The Republicans expected to win but 1500 plurality was the greatest anticipated. All over the county, except in Plainfield, the Democrats were fairly "snowed under." In Plainfield the Republican plurality was lowered by 200.

Although a better day for election could not have been asked, the vote was comparatively light through the county. There was considerable cutting but not as much as was generally predicted. The count was completed before midnight, and nearly two hours before that time it was plainly apparent to the leaders of both parties that the Republicans were going to have everything their own way. Elizabeth, in particular, came out very strong for the G. O. P. ticket and where the Democrats usually count on a small plurality, the Republicans won by several hundred votes. The result in county seat caused great rejoicing at Republican headquarters.

The returns from the wards in lower Elizabeth were among the first to reach the Republican headquarters in the Dix building, Elizabeth, where Charles N. Caddington, chairman of the county committee, was on duty. United States Senator John Kean, Congressman Fowler and the other principal Republicans of Elizabeth were present while Governor Voorhees at his home kept in close touch with the party through the aid of his telephone. The first of the returns showed surprising gains for the Republicans.

The First Ward of the county seat showed a Republican gain of 100. In the Third Ward, the Republicans were victorious by a small plurality. That Ward is usually Democratic by nearly 100. The other Elizabeth wards reported Republican gains varying from 10 to 100.

Oliver made the best run of any of the Democratic candidates and was the only one on that ticket to carry Elizabeth. According to the figures given out by the Republican county committee, Cross' plurality in Elizabeth was 349, Houston's was 500, Oliver's was 437, Meeker's 409, Smith's 366 and Foote's 172.

Rahway gave Howard a big complimentary vote, while Smith held his own but did not run ahead of his ticket in Westfield. Of the candidates for the Assembly Foote was scratched the most throughout the county. Reiss made the best showing of the Democratic candidates for the Assembly.

Dr. Cladek did not file his acceptance of the Democratic nomination for Coroner and so his name was not on the ticket. He received a few scattered votes nevertheless.

In another part of this issue will be found a table of the vote in the county as reported last evening. Some of the returns were not reported so the vote still lacks figures from New Providence and two wards of Rahway. They will make little difference in the result. Basing their calculations on the returns received, the Republican county committee announced the following pluralities for the county at a late hour last evening: Cross, 2,425; Houston, 2,354; Howard, 1,234; the Assembly candidates, 2,175. Owing to the few returns still missing it is impossible to give the total vote of any of the candidates.

THE CITY RESULTS.

Democratic Activity and Republican Dissatisfaction Kept Down the G. O. P. Majority.

The election in Plainfield passed off very quietly. The voting was light but the Democrats with the aid of their new organization and certain troubles in the Republican ranks succeeded in reducing the Republican plurality to a little more than 700, as against 902, the plurality given to Governor Voorhees at last year's election.

The fact that a number of prominent workers in the First and Fourt wards were conspicuously absent attracted special attention to the results in those wards. The smaller polling districts in the city finished their count at an early hour and the first district of the Third ward, where the Roger Murray tally system was in use, was also completed early in the evening.

There were two local candidates in the field, Foote on the Republican ticket and Hillman on the Democratic ticket. It was expected that Foote would receive a complimentary vote in his own ward at least, but he did not. The second district of the Second ward gave him two more than the other candidates for the Assembly on the Republican ticket. In the first district of that ward he simply ran even with the ticket. In the rest of the city he polled the smallest vote of any of the Republican Assemblymen.

Hillman did not get any complimentary vote in the city. In fact, Glaser and Oliver both polled a bigger vote in the city than he did. The Democrats made their strongest fight over the county clerkship and Oliver ran some 90 votes ahead of his ticket in Plainfield.

A comparison of the division of the Republican plurality among the wards with that of last year shows that the Democrats made their greatest gain in the Fourth ward. In the First, where it was expected that the Democrats would be able to considerably reduce the Republican plurality owing to the trouble between the factions in the G. O. P., the Republicans increased their lead.

In the First ward, the Republican plurality was 177, as against 154 last last year. In the Second ward, there was a slight decrease in the Republican lead from 259 last year to 223, this year's figures. In the Third ward, the Republican plurality remained the same, 272. In the Fourth, it dropped from 187 to 54

SENATOR REED WINS BY 1,021 MAJORITY.

Cooper's Vote Will Be 1,200 Over DuFour For Assembly.

BOROUGH'S STRONG VOTE.

REED'S OWN TOWN GAVE HIM 387 MAJORITY.

Somerville was Counted on as the Stronghold of Bergen, But Several of the Districts Were Carried by the Present Senator—Cooper Ran Ahead of Reed and Will Get a Very Large Majority.

Senator Charles A. Reed has won his great fight. As a result of the election held in Somerset county Tuesday, he was re-elected to the State Senate by a plurality that will amount to 1,021. This overwhelming victory for Mr. Reed was a big surprise to his opponents. Assemblyman E. E. Cooper was re-elected to the Assembly by a plurality that will figure over 1,200.

The returns from all over the county that came in last evening told that the Senator had won. It has not been possible, however, to obtain the authentic and complete results from the county as yet.

In North Plainfield township the vote was particularly close, Bergen receiving 67 and Reed 64. Cooper received 88 and DuFour 43.

Somerville was counted on as the stronghold for the followers of J. J. Bergen. In the first district of Bridgewater Bergen's plurality was 44, in the second 7, in the third 59. Reed won in the fifth with a plurality of 46. Cooper's plurality was 117. Bound Brook gave Reed 82 plurality and Cooper 85. Raritan was for Reed with a lead of 171.

In North Branch Reed's plurality was 40 and Cooper's 44. Neshanic gave Reed 68 plurality and Cooper 48. They all appeared to take more interest in the humorous pictures than they did in the figures of the returns.

Later returns from Somerset county show that Senator Reed's plurality will be even larger than was first expected. It is now placed at 1,021. The pluralities in the townships and boroughs of the county are as follows:

	Reed's Plural'ty	Bergen's Plural'ty
Bedminister,		75
Berkards, first dist,	3
second dist		26
Branchburg, first dist,	40
second dist.	58
Bridgewater, first dist,		44
second dist,		7
third dist,	59
fourth dist,	49
fifth dist,	112
sixth dist,		13
Bound Brook, borough	82
Franklin, first dist,	61
second dist,	68
third dist,	58
Hillsboro, first dist	56
second dist,	45
Millstone, borough	25
Montgomery	101
N. Plainfield township		3
N. Plainfield borough	387
Warren		6
	1,192	172

Reed's plurality in the county, 1,021.

BOROUGH GIVES REED 387.

Big Majority for the Senator in the Community in Which He Lives.

The Republicans made a clean sweep in the borough and a large vote was polled. There were 661 Republican votes cast, while the Democrats cast 282 votes. The Prohibition ticket brought out 31 votes. Reed for Senator had a majority of 387 over Bergen, while Cooper, for Assembly, had a majority of 422 over DuFour. Fisher for Coroner secured a majority of 376 over Anderson. There were two rejected ballots in each district. In each district the count was completed before 10 o'clock. Below is the vote in detail:

Senator.	Reed.	Bergen.	Lunger.
1st Dist.....	367	127	14
2d Dist.....	289	142	18
Assembly.	Cooper.	DuFour.	Quick.
1st Dist.....	363	132	15
2d Dist.....	316	125	16
Coroner.	Fisher.	Anderson.	Vactor.
1st Dist.....	359	140	15
2d Dist.....	299	142	16

MIDDLESEX REPUBLICAN.

Democrats Are Defeated After Making a Hard Fight in the Campaign.

The result in Middlesex county is without doubt strongly Republican. A large vote was polled and the entire county ticket is elected by good majorities. John H. Conger, Republican candidate for County Clerk, ran ahead of his ticket, defeating William C. Jaques, the Democratic candidate, by nearly 1,500. Lyon, Groves and Montgomery, for Assembly, were also elected by good majorities.

DUNELLEN REPUBLICAN.

Joe Field Defeated by 11 Votes for Sheriff in That Town.

The vote was as follows in Dunellen: Republican: For Sheriff, Isaiah D. Barclay, 142; for County Clerk, John H. Conger, 154; for members of General Assembly, Adrian Lyon, 142; H. Raymond Groves, 141; John E. Montgomery, 141; for Coroners, Arthur L. Smith, 145; John C. Albright.

Democrat: For Sheriff, Joseph V. D. Field, 131; for County Clerk, William C. Jaques, 116; for members of General Assembly, James Dougherty, 123; Daniel W. Clayton, 125; Charles S. Farrell, 125; for Coroners, William H. Quackenbose, 125; John F. Dooley, 124.

No satisfactory returns have been received from Piscataway township but there is good indication to believe that it is elightly Democratic. The total vote cast 523. Joseph D. Field, the Democratic candidate for Sheriff, has a majority of 31 over Isaiah D. Barkley with a possibility that these figures may be somewhat increased.

Kicked by a Mustang.

Hackman Kennedy is suffering with several bruises and cuts about the face, the result of being kicked by his mustang. The animal is somewhat new and only recently was he broken in. While Mr. Kennedy was driving him a few days ago the horse raised his hind feet and planted them on the driver's face. The blow was terrific and almost resulted fatally. The best of treatment was secured and Mr. Kennedy is now able to attend to business once more.

Rev. George Angleman, of Junction, who has been visiting Plainfield relatives, has returned home.

RIOT ON TROLLEY CAR.

Gang of Young Men Made Trouble for Conductor Hatfield—Complaint to City Judge.

Conductor Jesse Hatfield, of the Plainfield Street Railway, made complaint to City Judge Runyon Wednesday that a number of young men had created a disturbance on his car Tuesday about 9:30 p. m., while enroute to Dunellen. They unfastened the incandescent lights and destroyed them and committed other depredations. They were accompanied by a number of young women.

Some of the young men are known and the names of the others will be ascertained today when all will be cited before Judge Runyon to explain their conduct.

Sold a Valuable Property.

Fred S. Cutler, executor of his mother's estate, Tuesday closed a cash sale of the homestead property on West Front street, opposite the First Baptist Church, to John O. Campbell, for about $10,000. The property is a valuable one, having a frontage of 74 feet on Front street, and a depth of 320 feet, on which there is a large frame dwelling house and a fine brick barn. The deal also includes an adjoining lot on New street, 65x90 feet.

Pictures of a Burning Building.

Rev. George H. Whitney, D. D., of this city, formerly president of Hackettstown Institute, is the possessor of several fine photographs of the Institute, three of which were taken while the building was burning. The other photographs show the ruins after the fire. They have been seen by a number of people and all pronounce them a fine piece of work.

Reed Congratulated by Sewell.

Senator-elect Charles A. Reed established headquarters for himself and friends last Tuesday at Collector Geo. F. Brown's office, where he received the full returns not only from Somerset county, but various parts of the State and country. During the evening Senator Sewell telephoned his congratulations to the successful candidate.

—Next Friday evening the members of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., will go to Stirling and visit the new lodge of Odd Fellows at that place.

THE VOTE BY DISTRICTS IN PLAINFIELD.

	1st Ward.		2nd Ward		3rd Ward		4th Ward			TOTAL VOTE	PLURALITY
	1st Dist	2nd Dist	1st Dist	2nd Dist	1st Dist	2nd Dist	1st Dist	2nd Dist	3rd Dist
FOR SENATOR
Cross, R	274	91	273	89	310	93	172	102	83	1547	756
Hillman, D	133	55	101	38	96	25	137	143	63	791
Massett, P	5	2	7	1	6	3	10	8	8	50
Burns, S. L	4	4	2	1	4	1	4	10	25	55
FOR SHERIFF
Houston, R	266	89	269	84	310	92	166	165	82	1523	713
Glaser, D	138	55	106	43	97	25	139	143	64	810
McLeod, P	5	2	7	1	6	3	10	9	8	48
Koerner, S. L	5	4	2	1	4	1	5	11	25	58
FOR COUNTY CLERK
Howard, R	253	80	261	84	304	85	165	164	77	1463	585
Oliver, D	153	64	112	43	105	33	155	143	70	878
Irving, P	5	2	8	1	8	3	9	6	7	46
Cullen, S. L	5	4	2	1	4	1	4	12	24	57
Roberts, I. L
FOR MEMBER OF ASSEMBLY
Meeker, R	261	88	268	89	313	92	172	165	81	1538	721
Smith, R	268	88	272	88	315	93	173	166	82	1545	728
Foote, R	262	89	272	91	305	85	162	161	79	1506	689
Gardner, D	134	55	104	35	94	24	136	142	65	780
Swain, D	138	54	106	36	104	33	140	143	64	817
Reiss, D	141	55	101	36	93	26	138	142	78	809
Van Cise, P	5	2	7	1	6	3	10	6	8	48
Long, P	5	2	7	1	5	3	10	6	8	47
Blake, P	6	2	7	1	5	3	11	6	8	49
Miles, S. L	4	4	2	1	4	1	5	11	25	57
Wagner, S. L	4	4	2	1	4	1	4	11	25	56
McGarry, S. L	4	4	2	1	4	1	4	11	25	56
Koch, I. L
Oehme, I. L
Robland, I. L
FOR CORONER
Gray, R	272	90	271	89	313	93	171	163	83	1545	1487
Cladek, D			1		1					2
Hall, P	5	2	7	1	5	3	11	6	8	48
Wallander, S. L	5	4	2	1	4	1	5	11	25	58
Herstein, I. L

THE VOTE IN UNION COUNTY.

	Senator		Sheriff		County Clerk			Assembly				Coroner
	CROSS R	HILLMAN D	HOUSTON R	GLASER D	HOWARD R	OLIVER D	MEEKER R	SMITH R	FOOTE R	GARDNER D	SWAIN D	REISS D	GRAY R	CLADEK D
CLARK, T	45	31	42	33	50	26	45	45	45	31	31	31	45
CRANFORD T	270	97	270	96	260	104	268	270	266	102	97	99	266
ELIZABETH.—First Ward	167	473	200	432	161	471	158	101	161	472	466	477	179
Second Ward	219	276	224	267	211	282	217	210	202	261	283	293	273
Third Ward	340	334	384	304	339	333	334	336	329	332	349	354	344
Fourth Ward	296	230	236	207	278	260	292	241	295	241	240	253	296
Fifth Ward	358	266	369	256	342	280	348	349	350	269	268	375	359
Sixth Ward	270	274	259	279	225	302	260	263	262	279	274	277	269
Seventh Ward	245	284	269	262	235	292	239	246	235	278	280	297	250
Eighth Ward	631	485	631	468	513	601	627	621	595	474	462	571	627
Ninth Ward	331	355	341	358	314	373	317	327	318	346	354	327	330
Tenth Ward	320	107	307	117	252	175	299	306	306	114	116	128	309
Eleventh Ward	448	162	417	196	348	266	466	447	451	148	158	168	452
Twelfth Ward	362	169	367	161	298	233	344	357	356	170	177	179
FANWOOD T	138	96	130	104	138	95	140	140	138	98	96	94
FANWOOD B	52	19	55	16	52	19	52	52	52	19	19	19
LINDEN T	62	11	64	38	55	46	60	60	60	41	41	41
LINDEN B	43	25	41	26	51	17	44	41	42	24	28	24	44
MOUNTAINSIDE	48	26	35	34	41	29	42	44	43	27	27	28
NEW PROVIDENCE
PLAINFIELD—First Ward	365	188	355	193	333	217	358	356	351	189	192	196	362
Second Ward	362	139	353	149	345	155	357	360	363	139	141	137	360
Third Ward	402	121	402	122	389	138	405	408	390	118	137	118	406
Fourth Ward	417	343	413	346	390	368	418	421	402	343	347	358	417
RAHWAY—First Ward
Second Ward	190	196	182	202	206	187	190	192	189	195	198	190	190
Third Ward	243	167	239	169	260	149	242	243	243	165	166	170	234
Fourth Ward	168	101	165	104	178	90	169	169	169	99	100	100
Fifth Ward
ROSELLE B	235	63	236	60	226	72	225	230	231	63	62	75	236
SPRINGFIELD T	97	48	98	48	96	48	96	93	95	48	50	47
SUMMIT	396	317	387	323	377	334	350	345	359	315	375	323	402
UNION	345	226	329	246	322	253	323	344	342	226	230	260	345
WESTFIELD	456	212	459	206	444	221	457	452	449	224	191	215
TOTAL VOTE
PLURALITY	2425		2354		1244		2175

TRAP DOOR SPIDERS

NEST CONSISTS OF AN EXCAVATED TUBE SIX INCHES DEEP.

Wonderful Intelligence Displayed by These Remarkable Insects—A Common Garden Spider Attaches Wood to Its Nest to Act as a Drag Anchor

A curious species of insect is the trap-door spider, whose nest consists of a tube excavated in the earth to the depth of six inches or more. The door always lined with silk and it is closed with an ingeniously constructed door. One sort of door closes into the nest like a cork in a bottle; another is as thin as a piece of paper.

In all cases the door opens outward, and when the nest is closed, as it usually is, on a sloping bank, it opens upward, so that there is no fear of its gaping. The object of the trap-door is to conceal the nest, and consequently it is after much labor to stumble on the general surface of the ground. Sometimes, however, an enemy attempts to open the door; and then the inmate braces its legs against the sides of the nest and holds it as fast as possible.

Still other spiders have inner doors besides ones, so that if the first line of defense be carried, they may have another behind which to retreat. More curious still is the ingenuity of the branch trap-door spider, that is to say a door that opens from the main tunnel of the nest into a side branch, which the spider knows, of course, but which no stranger or could discover, since there is nothing to distinguish it from any other part of the main nest. So, then, if an enemy gains a first entrance, the lawful occupant of the nest can quietly slip into the side branch, close the door and there remain in security while the intruder wonders what has become of her.

If all these wonderful things are done by instinct, have we any proof whatever of anything like intelligence among spiders? Most assuredly. If we remember that intelligence is proved whenever we observe a manifest application of means appropriate to the accomplishment of particular ends, it is hardly possible to deny that there is some evidence of the intelligence of spiders. Many instances have occurred more or less like the following:

"One of my friends was accustomed to grant shelter to a number of garden spiders under a vacant veranda, and to watch their habits. One day a sharp storm broke out, and the wind raged so fiercely that some of the guests that the spiders suffered damage from it, although sheltered by the veranda. The mainyards of one of these webs, as the sailors would call them, were broken so that the web was blown hither and thither, like a slack sail in a storm.

"The spider, no more than a garden, but tried to help itself in another way. It let itself down to the ground by a thread, and crawled to a place where lay an unplastered lath of a wooden fence, thrown down by a storm. It fastened a thread to one of the bits of wood, turned back with it and hung it with a strong thread to the lower part of its nest, about five feet from the ground. The performance was a wonderful one, for the weight of the wood sufficed to keep the nest tolerably firm, while it was yet light enough to yield to the wind, and so prevent further injury. The piece of wood was about two and one-half inches long, and as thick as a goose-quill.

"On the following day a careless servant kicked the head against the wood and it fell down. But in the course of a few hours the spider mended her web, broke the supporting thread in two, and let the wood fall to the ground."

A Persistent Collector.

A man did a little work about the premises of a Cleveland doctor and as the latter was not at home when the job was finished the man said he would come back for his pay. He came in the evening, and the doctor was away on a professional call. The man waited around for some time and finally said to the housekeeper:

"I come again pretty soon."

"Better come early in the morning," said the housekeeper,

The man nodded.

"Yes, I come," he said.

At just 3 o'clock next morning there came a violent ringing at the front door bell. Somebody in the household hastily answered the call and then came back to report to the doctor.

"It's that man, doctor, who did some work about the garden, and he says he wants his money."

"Wait!" roared the doctor. "Go back and ask him what he means by coming around here in the middle of the night."

So the maid went back and asked the man why he came so early.

"I come here yest'day afternoon, an' I come again last night," said the man, "Doctor no at home. I say I call again. Voodman say, 'Come tomorrow morning early, you be sure to catch him.'

"The doctor is here," said the maid, "but he doesn't want to get up unless he has to."

"Well," said the man resignedly, "I will vait me here. So long I catch I don't care." And he sat down on the doorstep.

The maid went back and reported to the doctor and the latter thought of the silent figure out on the doorstep, and finally got up and paid him for what the fellow had done, and paid him.

A Hard Hit.

A citizen whose home is up town has a great liking for working in his garden, as he calls his back yard. He gets up early in the morning, dons an old coat and hat and goes out with a hoe. On his head he usually wears a shocking old cap that has been kicking about the premises for years.

The other morning he wore this cap to his place of business. Of course he did it by mistake and was greatly chagrined when he found it on his head. He fancied everybody was looking at him on the car and he felt quite sure the conductor grinned at his head covering as soon as he came within sight of it.

He didn't have time to go back for his derby, and so he snuck it out. He would have got through it pretty well, he says, if it hadn't been for the aggravating remark of a street urchin who saw him slight from the car. Turning to a ragged companion he pointed at the cap and said:

"Say, Pete, dere's anudder of dem dude golfers!"

JOKE MANUFACTURE.

AN ARTFUL CER GIVES AWAY A FEW SECRETS O- HIS CRAFT.

Writers Consider the Garb in Which to Dress Their Antiques—Served Up With Sauce Southern, Northern, Eastern or Western.

"I have come to regard an idea as purely a matter of merchandise," said a local newspaper man, who augments his salary by supplying pearls of thought to the Northern periodicals. "When I invent a joke, for instance, immediately consider the garb in which it will bring the best price, and you would be surprised at the extent of my literary costume shop. To illustrate the point, I had a small inspiration this morning that I have not yet decided how to use. The simplest form would be a bit of dialogue to accompany a picture in one of the comic weeklies, in which case it would run about like this:—

"'Dear Mr. Skaggs (severely)—I trust, sir, that you haven't contracted any new debts.'

"'Young Moneybags (with engaging frankness)—Not a cent; but I have succeeded in expanding a number of old ones.'

"I would label this 'Expansion Policy Up to Date,' and if accepted, I would receive a check for the magnificent sum of $1.

"But I have a good paper on my staff," continued the industrious young man, "that is fond of little anecdotes of the brand once popular in Harper's Drawer, and is essentially partial to dialect stories. I send my jokelet there I shall dress it about as follows:—

"One of the small tenants on the plantation owned by Colonel L. was a good natured, shiftless old negro, who answered to the name of Mose. Although Mose left no cultivated field of land that was cultivated with fair success by his numerous progeny, he was always hopelessly entangled in debt, and Colonel L. took frequent occasion to lecture him on his improvidence. One day the old darky hobbled past the manor house, sunk, apparently in deep meditation. 'Hello, Mose,' called the Colonel from the porch. 'What are you looking so glum about?' 'I'se mightily 'stressed, Kunnel,' replied the tenant, mournfully. 'Well, I suppose you've been contracting a lot of new debts,' said the planter. 'No, sah!' replied the negro, decisively. 'No, Kurnel; there ain't been no new debts 'tracted, but they's been er pyful 'spansion of sommer th' old ones.'

"Now that is an 'innocent little anecdote, not calculated to bring a blush to the cheek of any reader and illustrating the correct southern idea of negard as the native wit of the colored brother. Such jeux d'esprit sell at three for $5.

"But I must continue these lightning changes indefinitely," the speaker went on, "but I think I've covered my point. However, if I was running a series of sketches for character sketches I wouldn't use such a joke separately at all, but would store it away to work into the general drift of the book. Merely as an illustration, suppose I was the hero of Mr. Dooley, which I wish to the Lord I was, I'd start off about like this:—

"'They'se no denyin' Hinnessy, that th' immigrint's sons has taken a firm hould on th' imagination of th' tollin' masses,' said Mr. Dooley. 'They've got th' lad on th' farm, pinin' to go to th' city to acquire exper-rience an' gould bricks. At present ivrything's for ixpansion. Was at Hogan's last night an' young Tim, ye know he's a wild divvle, struck th' ould man for fifty. "What for?" says Hogan, "an' is it now ye've been consthructin' a stame-yacht, says he. "No, father," says Tim, "it's ould wans," says he. "I've been ixpandin'," says he. "Tis no wonder, Hinnessy, that—'

"But you see how it is. With a little care and ingenuity I can serve up any diminutive idea in almost as many different forms as Local at the Waldorf-Astoria can serve eggs, which I believe is 916. Sometimes I start to indite a two line text for a cartoon and expand the theme into a 3,000 word storiette. It's one of the tricks of the trade, me boy, without which I should be a starving man. Meals in a considerably cheaper hashery."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Verdant, But Obedient.

"We see lots of strange things," said the talkative hotel clerk, "but one of the strangest that ever happened along this way came in one day last March—a cold day, with an carpet bag and an old umbrella who wanted to know if this was a tavern. I assured him it was, and he said he guessed he would stop with us a while if we didn't mind. He looked so green and innocent that I congratulated myself that the house used electricity for lighting purposes and that there was no gas for him to blow out.

"I handed him over to a bellboy with instructions to see him safely to his room and to explain some of the mysteries of a modern hotel. It wasn't two hours before a chambermaid sent down word that the old man was gathering his clothes up in the curtains and burning them up in the grate in his room.

"I charged up to his room to find out what he meant by such conduct. I found him in his room calmly smashing up the buckets by bringing his No. 14 cowhide boots upon them. The buckets were some that are hung by the side of halls a number of years ago to be used in case of fire. But as we had lately given up the hydrants for them, and filled with reels of hose at every point, we had allowed the buckets to go into disuse.

"'See here!' I yelled as I took in the situation. 'What in the name of heaven do you mean by burning up those buckets?'

"'Why,' answered the innocent old codger, as he picked up one of the buckets, 'dreamt it say right here on them, "To be used for fire only."'

"I'll say this for him, he did as he was told. They were not worth much, anyway and I was afraid if I didn't allow him to go ahead that he might break out at some other spot that would cost us more."

Ethel: "They say it costs Percy Von Noodle £2,000 a year to live."

Penelope: "What for?" Then why does he do it for?"—Tit-Bits.

LORD MAYOR TALLON

DUBLIN'S CHIEF EXECUTIVE AND HIS VIEWS.

He Thinks Ireland Is Getting Nearer Home Rule Every Day—He Declares That the Irishman Is Cleverer and More Lovable Than Anybody Else.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin crossed his legs and filled his briar-wood pipe. He was on a comfortable settee in the Hoffman House, New York, and he felt comfortable himself.

"Do you know," said he to a New York World reporter, pressing the tobacco firmly down into the bowl and striking a match, "we are going to get home rule in Ireland eventually? It may take some time, to be sure, but I believe we will win. We have gone a long way already. It is bound to come."

The Lord Mayor of Dublin speaks beautiful English, but it is beautiful Irish, too. His English is pure and undefiled. Written, it would compare with any English. Spoken, it has the softest brogue. It is Irish all through, but never a tone is violated, never a cause. The grammar is all there, and the rhetoric. The brogue is all in the manner it is dropped from the lips of the most august citizen of Ireland's capital—Daniel Tallon, Esquire, Lord Mayor of Dublin.

"The late extension of the franchise," he said, taking a few meditative puffs of the stubby pipe, "is doing everything for Ireland. It has given to Ireland within a few months, but it has already worked wonders.

Managing Local Affairs.

"We now have the management o local affairs in our own hands. Here tofore they have been in the hands of Grand Juries, composed of the landlord class, whom we look upon as the garrison in Ireland to hold us in.

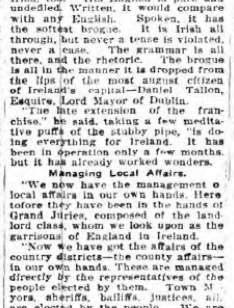
"Now we have got the affairs of the country districts—the county affairs—in our own hands. These are managed by Councils, composed entirely of the people elected by them. Town Myors, sheriffs, bailiffs, justices, all are elected by the people. We are, in fact, working out Gladstone's ideas, when we will elect all our officers. If the people choose to elect the landlords, why, all right. Let the majority rule.

"We, of course, would like to see a Parliament sitting in Dublin to govern Ireland. We would like to see such a Parliament having the power of imposing taxes on Ireland, which we now feel are unjust and excessive. We pay £15,000,000 and it is now taxed £2,250,000 more than she should pay, or nearly $14,000,000. These are not our figures; these are the figures of the Royal Commission of 1894 financial relations between Ireland and Great Britain. This in excess of the amount we should pay under the treaty of the Act of Union.

The Lord Mayor had dropped his jolly mood now, and was getting serious. He was talking of things he had laid down the law with emphatic gestures. He uncrossed his legs and leaned forward.

"These Royal Commissioners," he continued, "were men of great ability in questions of finance. They knew all about Ireland's wealth, and are is on matters of taxation. There were Englishmen, Irishmen, and Scotchmen on the Commission. All were of the highest standing. They were Englishmen I may state all were masters of finance.

"The seventh article of the Treaty of Union provided that out of every £100 raised by taxation in the United Kingdom, Great Britain should pay £88 and Ireland £12. These proportions were explicitly stated by Pitt and Lord Castlereagh to be based upon the taxable capacities of the two kingdoms. If this bargain had been kept Ireland would be taxed nearly £3,000,000 less than she is to-day.



(Enjoying his pipe).

Since 1819 the imperial taxation of Great Britain has been decreased by nearly two-thirds, while that of poor Ireland has been doubled.

"While the springs of English manufacturing have been let loose, the two chief manufactures of Ireland, linen and tobacco making. The cultivation of tobacco up to 1820 was a valuable industry. It is almost dead now. The average income of the Irishman is £15 per annum; that of the average Englishman £42. Yet while the English taxes are reduced, the Irishman's have been trebled."

Getting Nearer Home Rule.

The Lord Mayor had all the statistics at his fingers' ends, and he quoted them impetuously. Figures flowed from his mouth with every puff of tobacco.

"And so I think we are getting nearer home rule every day. Ireland already has her fair share of representation in Parliament. She has 103 members, all told. We don't want to be separated from England. We don't mind the levying of soldiers on us. We have given our best to declare peace or war, and we don't ask a hand in colonial affairs. All we want is to have something to say about the expenditure of the money collected from us. We consider ourselves better able to manage our own affairs than outsiders.

"To-day home rule is stationary. It is not advancing, neither is it retrograding. The split in the Irish party is to blame for this. This prevents us having the influence in Parliament that we ought to have. When we were a solid party and all voting together we were occasionally in a position to turn out a Minister. This caused them to legislate more quickly than they otherwise might. Then, too, it had a great moral effect. And I am free to say that I see indications that the party is coming together again.

"All England is now looking at the effects of the Local Government act. It has been in operation only a few months and yet it is succeeding well. It gives us a larger measure of freedom and allows us to manage our own roads, drainage and the like, and to elect our own county officers. But we haven't the power to refuse a tax imposed upon us by England, but it is coming some day. Redmond, John Dillon and Healy are working together for Home Rule, and we will win yet."

The Lord Mayor thinks New York is a great place. He admits frankly that he thought it couldn't hold a candle to London, but now says London isn't anything in comparison. He uses a green silk handkerchief. He thinks he is a very useful one.

"An Irishman," said he, "is quick impulsive, generous. He is more intelligent than an Englishman and quick to understand. A thing enters an Irishman's head as quick as lightning and leaves it as quick. But it takes a long time to get anything into the head of an Englishman; once there it sticks forever."

His Lordship was getting enthusiastic now. He declared that the Irishman is cleverer, quicker witter, more lovable than anybody else in the world.

"Are the Irish a handsome people?" asked the reporter.

"Ah," whispered His Lordship, "you ought to go to the Horse Fair in Dublin if you want to see fine specimens of the human race."

(Ireland will get home rule eventually.)

The Lord Mayor is a man of perhaps fifty. He is rather short and stout. When not in state dress he wears his Lord Mayor's gold chain inside his waistcoat. He smokes a pipe constantly and knows what good tobacco is. He is the most popular man in Dublin and is serving his fourth term, though no Lord Mayor has ever before served more than two terms. The poor reverence him; the rich respect him. He takes a middle ground, seeking neither to antagonize capital nor to grieve over the wrongs which he believes Ireland has suffered.

THE DANGEROUS AGE.

Time at Which Men and Women Get Entangled in Matrimony.

The most dangerous age for a bachelor is under 26½, to be accurate, 26.35, and for a spinster under 24, and it is on statistical return just issued, says the St. Louis Republic. The most joyous and delightful age for a woman is undoubtedly over 24—24.64. That is to say, that it was at those precise ages that the average bachelor of last year and the average maid became one.

The bachelor, however, becomes more wary year by year. He was older in 1898 than in 1897, when he fell in to the toils at 26.30 years of age, quite .05 less. The girl, too, has to wait longer and longer. She was over .05 of a year younger in 1897 when she became a wife than in 1898. As for the people who marry as minors, they are rapidly becoming a vanishing number, among men, at least; eighty-four out of every 1,000 husbands in 1874 were married under the age of 21, and so were 227 out of every 1,000 wives. The boy husband has come down to fifty-one per 1,000; the girl wives have dropped to 151 per 1,000. The boy has been so few boy and girl marriages at any time since 1851.

Of the total marriages in 1898, 42,751 persons of legal age, 21 years, there were 2 girls 14 years; 10, 15; 158, 16, five boys, 16; 664 boys, 17; 1,196 girls, 17, and 3,303 boys and 6,398 girls, 18 years. The latter figure runs up to tens of thousands, and actually nearly 15,000 youths of 20 were married.

There has been a decided slump in widowers and widows of late. In 1871 138 husbands and 100 wives in every 1,000 were widow and widower respectively. Things have changed since then; there were but 98 widowers and 69 widows in every 1,000 in 1898. The widower is the more dangerous to the susceptible heart of the opposite sex than the widow. It is to be noted, however, that when the widow does take a dollar as her husband she takes a man nearly two years her junior; when she chooses a widower her husband is nearly five years older than herself.

No Runaways in Russia.

Runaway horses are unknown in Russia. No one drives without a horse holder, who stands with a slip noose around the neck of the animal. When an animal bolts the cord is pulled and the horse stops as soon as he feels the pressure on the windpipe.

Sexes Politically Equal.

In Iceland men and women are in every respect political equals. The nation, which numbers about 70,000 people, is governed by representatives elected by men and women together.

O brare old world take heart!
Each day, each wrong is cursed;
And the Evil look nakance
For who shall bravely speak
The word deflect just.
Man loves his fellow man.
—Carroll Austin.

A Chicago paper having kept a record of crime for ten years, declares that the saloon business of the United States is directly chargeable with a total of 53,436 murders during that time.

TYPES OF THE BOERS

A TRIP THROUGH THE TRANSVAAL COUNTRY DISTRICTS.

Homes and Characteristics of a Peculiar People—Fertile Soil, But Lack of Cultivation—The Average Boer Goes to Bed With His Clothes On.

Let me introduce you to a Dutch farmhouse in the Transvaal as I saw it one fine afternoon not long ago. It was situated some miles from any town or village, as the real Boer does not desire any near neighbors. The way to it lay over the high veldt, along vast plains, with here and there a range of hills presenting the appearance of huge puddling molds turned upside down, only slightly more rugged of surface but scarcely less bare. The road (by courtesy so called) led over small heaps of stone and reddish sand, varied by deep ruts and sluices, the beds of dried-up rivers and now and then gliding gradually into the burnt-up pasture land, over tufts of straggling, unwholesome-looking grass. There were no hedges, no fences, no walls. Our vehicles was a kind of buggy, a hybrid between a Cape cart and an old-fashioned gig.

Without arousing the ire of one or the big pudding basins we came upon a little valley, in which two or three green trees of the willow species showed the presence of water, and soon afterward arrived at the house. It was a low building of stone, with a corrugated iron roof, along the front ran the stoep, which is a raised causeway or veranda built always of stone laid one upon another, and covered with earth and sometimes sand.

The Lounging Place.

This is a place whereon the Boer loves to lounge, smoking his eternal pipe, and ruminating, when he is not laying down the law with the rest of the Rooineks (Englishmen) or Outlanders generally. At the back were two little paddocks inclosed by stone walls loosely piled, and known as the carré kraal, also of stone, but partly thatched. Two mules were standing in the afternoon sun, while their long ears in futile attempts to scare the flies which were exploring every portion of their lean bodies. A yoke of oxen browsing at some distance completed the prominent features of the landscape, until, at the sound of wheels, a couple of dogs of the lurcher kind appeared and barked at us with furious barks. Two black boys, called "Sunday" and "Shilling," came to take charge of our horses and conveyance, and we were ushered up to the back entrance through the kitchen.

The distinguishing feature of this particular farm, or the average farm of the whole, was a stout cord stretched across one end, with strips of meat hanging over and tied to it; this was the preserved part of a sheep, which I afterwards understood was killed the day before. The practice is to cut it into strips without any appreciation to joints, in various shapes and sizes, and to hang it in the air, or often in the sun, to dry; this constitutes the biltong which they use on their journeys, or in war time, and which is the most nourishing and sustaining food.

We passed on into the inner room which was breakfast room, dining room and drawing room combined; it was rather long and narrow, with a deal table, some deal chairs, and a few wooden chairs. Against one wall was a wooden box, which, with two or three cushions on it, posed as a couch. A small harmonium stood at one end, and in two corners were little cupboards or whatknots, draped with crotonia colored print. The floor was composed of hard-beaten clay and cow dung baten down hard and firm. I was informed that this kind of floor is considered very good for health. I was introduced to my bedroom leading out of the dining room, and found it simply, but a little more comfortably, furnished, mainly certain to have a window, but no blinds. As I stood on the stoep later there came to me a fair vision of farmhouse at home, with their firm, modern lawns, vegetable and flower gardens, and I thought, oh, for a little industry and enterprise in this desert, which could be made to blossom as a rose.

A WEARY TRAVELER.

Neglect Their Opportunities.

The soil is so fertile that it is commonly said if you throw a plant at the ground it will grow, and so with grain. Here all around it was little better than a wilderness; a pool lay at the bottom of the bare patch which should have been a garden, and a few dead stood among the reeds, or disported themselves on the water. No green members of the fig tribe seems to soft, sweet air. The Boer does not seem to believe in cultivation save for a little ground roughly scratched over for mealies, or Indian corn, here called mealies, of which, when finely ground and sifted, they make their bread; very good it is when quite fresh, but after a day or two it becomes hard and sour.

Through all the years in which the Boers have held the Transvaal it seems never to have occurred to them that, with some labor and care, they should have made this country both profitable and fruitful. Water, which is to be found generally at a depth of 30 feet; certainly locusts and drought are formidable foes, but in Natal, where these evils are well known, and the climate much hotter, considerable land is under cultivation. It is not that the Boer bestows much time on general attainments or the study of books, on aesthetic culture or care of personal appearance; his only book, usually, is the Bible, his letters are never written, his toilet accessories are of the most primitive kind, and those not often used.

The average Boer does not undress when he retires to rest, consequently his whole attire is of the frowsiest; he is unshorn, unwashed, unbrushed, his shirt, hair and clothing are all of the same hue, close affinity existing in color of the ground—thence, we may conclude, arises their favorite appellation, "Veldt Schoen."

Famous Boer Coffee.

Morning at length came, and with it our breakfast; the strips of meat had seen on the string in the kitchen the day before now appeared on the table, cooked, evidently, in a frying pan; this, with Boer bread and butter, tea and coffee, furnished our frugal meal. I chose coffee, but immediately afterward fervently wished I had asked for tea; both were sufficiently bad, but Boer coffee is simply execrable—compounded of various ingredients in which ground mealies bear a large proportion, and some coffee, which is often roasted at home. This concoction is both meat and drink, and it is said to be in consequence of their drinking it so many times a day that the Boer has attained such gigantic proportions as they frequently do in middle life, and sometimes in youth, also.

TRANSVAAL VIGNETTE.

Several male relatives of the household came into breakfast, and displayed very good appetites. One peculiarity of the men's clothes is that they appear to be both tied and buttoned, or fit (I am speaking now, of course, of the low-class Boer); there is too much ankle, often stockingless, shown and too much wrist to agree with the modern idea of fitness. It was a brilliant morning, and the sun soon dried up the evening dew which was the previous night. Presently three members of the family offered to accompany me on a ramble. We walked some distance, and came to where the ruins of another farmhouse—a few stones left upon another and the same bitter aspect of desolation—but no trees, no trace of garden or orchard. On returning to the house coffee was served, but I did not take any.

Poultry Made Comfortable.

Now came a surprise, and I ceased to wonder at the dilapidation. In still hours of the night before when I discovered that in two corners of the dining room, opposite to each other, arrangements of shelves of whatnots, were two hens sitting on eggs. Moreover, the other hens and young chicken wandered in and out from the open door their own sweet will. In this particular household it seemed the rule to begin to think of preparing dinner when breakfast was cleared away, and we did not dine before 2:30 o'clock.

They are very inquisitive, but it is always fair to say that they are usually kind and hospitable to such strangers as can converse with them in the taal, which is Low Dutch, and the same language as that which His Honor the Staat-President preaches in the little Dopper Church near to his residence at Pretoria.

Among the women you see young girls, fresh-looking and rather pretty, but they grow terribly fat or miserably thin with increasing age. I have seen some of the most decrepit parts of the world, but beyond doubt, for utter and hopeless ugliness, the aged Boer vrouw carries off the palm. Some of these old women are more bitter against the rooineks and roibatjes (I. e., English soldiers) that have been sent to fight for the English simply because they are English and more refined than themselves. So the evening again passed away, and I retired to bed, and started on my way to Johannesburg.—Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.

We Cannot Escape Contagion.

Dr. Lionel Beale says, and his opinion is shared by other eminent physicians, "I believe that if the organisms be in a proper state, almost all diseases are capable of being spread with it, or entering it, will certainly die, instead of growing and multiplying. Many of the poisons of disease seem to spread about us—in the food we eat, in the water we drink. The foot of a fly will carry enough poisonous matter to infect a whole city, and it is impossible to be always seeking to annihilate contagion, which you can only destroy to a limited and almost useless extent; on the other hand, it seems exceedingly reasonable, and especially on the part of nurses and ourselves, who must be continually exposed to the assaults of disease, to do all that is possible to promote and improve the resisting power of the body."

A Tall Duchess.

It may not be generally known that the Duchess of Portland is the tallest woman in England. She married the duke in 1879. She was then Miss Dallas Yorke. The duke is the lord of £300,000 a year, and owns half a dozen castles, among them being the incomparable Welbeck, where Lady Peggy Primrose spent her honeymoon. The duchess spends most of her time in the furtherance of temperance work.

Savings of School Children.

The Chicago Penny Savings Society, operating through the public school teachers, last year received from the school children of that city over $70,000. This means that at least 14,000 children are becoming capitalists at the rate of 5 cents a day.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING.

Some Notes of Interest Concerning the Unquiet Sex.

Miss Mary Yoemans of California has made a snug little fortune in the collection and sale of butterflies. A few years ago Miss Yoemans and her two brothers came to this country from England to make their fortunes on the Pacific slope. The abundance, great variety and beauty of the butterflies of the locality attracted her attention. She knew that scientists and collectors were willing to pay generously for rare specimens, so she began the work of collecting them. Some fine specimens were sent to London, and for some of these she received $20 each. She continued catching butterflies, selling them to private collectors, museums and scientific schools, and as a result she now owns a ranch in California worth $50,000.

Mrs. Adelia Octavia Coulston, who is the author of several books the motif of which is the prevention of cruelty to animals, manages a zoological garden at her summer home, The Cedars, at Rochelle Park, N. J.

A house of refuge for "homeless and defenseless" dogs is the somewhat peculiar institution established in Paris by the Baroness d'Harpent. Many stray canines and other dumb animals found in the streets of the French capital are cared for at this institution.

While women physicians are quite common and are attaining well merited prominence in the profession, the position of president of a medical college has not heretofore been held by a woman. This distinction has lately been conferred upon Dr. Julia Holmes Smith, who is now president of the National Medical college of Chicago.

Miss Anna Klumpke, the artist to whom Rosa Bonheur left her large fortune, is a native of California, having been born in San Francisco in 1860. Miss Klumpke was educated in Paris and some years ago became an intimate associate and friend of Miss Bonheur. One of the best portraits extant of the great animal painter is the work of Miss Klumpke.

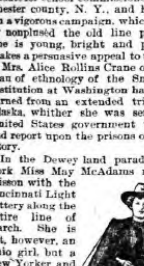
The Companions of the Forest, a secret benevolent society, has for its supreme chief a woman, Mrs. Sarah Storey of Philadelphia.

The acting assistant of Surgeon General Sternberg of the United States army is Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee. She gets a captain's pay and may if she desires adorn herself with the shoulder straps of a captain.

Miss Bertha E. H. Herbert is a candidate for school commissioner in Westchester county, N. Y., and has carried on a vigorous campaign, which has fairly nonplused the old line politicians. She is young, bright and pretty and makes a persuasive appeal to the voters.

Mrs. Alice Rollins Crane of the bureau of ethnology of the Smithsonian institution at Washington has just returned from an extended trip through Alaska, whither she was sent by the United States government to inspect and report upon the prisons of that territory.

In the Dewey land parade in New York Miss May McAdams rode on a caisson with the Cincinnati Light battery along the entire route of march. She is not, however, an Ohio girl, but a New Yorker and the "little sister" of the Sixty-ninth regiment of New York. She is an extremely patriotic young woman, and on the day of the Dewey parade insisted on appearing in the line with her regiment, but her comrades thought the march would be too long and tiresome for a girl, and she was prevailed upon to ride on the caisson of the Cincinnati battery.



Another American girl has captivated a foreign nobleman. The engagement is announced in London of Miss Pauline Joran, a prima donna, and Baron de Bush, an Englishman with a German title of nobility and a considerable estate. Miss Joran is a native of Chicago.

Mrs. Charles W. Rhodes of Chicago is lecturing before women's clubs on "Paris and the Exposition of 1900."

At the recent marriage of Miss Grace Darling and Mr. John Ringold McKay in New York the bride wore a wedding gift from the sultan of Turkey. It was a decoration of the Order of Chefekat, the bestowal of which is regarded as a great distinction in the Ottoman empire. Mrs. McKay formerly lived with her parents in Constantinople.

The first female graduate of Bozen, Germany, has a detachment of women life rescuers, who go through practically the same drill as the men and are not in*ferior to their male colleagues in cour*age and agility.

A unique club and one which is interesting women all over the country is the American Cat club, which was started some time ago in Chicago, but which now has members and branch organizations in nearly all the principal cities.

JEANETTE DEVOE.

NEVER DRINK WATER.

Horses and Cattle That Stake Their Thirst on a Peculiar Grass.

The proverbial horse which can be led to water, but which cannot be made to drink, exists in great numbers in the Hawaiian islands. Among the cattle he has thousands of cousins of the same proclivities.

It is a surprising statement to make, and yet one that is literally true, and no commonplace that no one there thinks anything about it, for there are hundreds of horses and thousands of cattle which never take a drink of water throughout the whole course of their lives.

On all the islands the upper altitudes of the mountains are given up to cattle ranges. The cattle run wild from the time they are born until they are rounded up to be sent to the slaughterhouse. Except during possibly the three months of the rainy season, there are no streams or pools of water in any part where the cattle range.

But everywhere there grows a recumbent, jointed grass, known by the native name of maninia. This is both food and drink. Horses and cattle grazing on it neither require water, nor will they drink it when offered.

Our first experience with this fact was on a trip to Hilo. As each man was mounted on horses which has just been brought in from the range. The journey they made was fourteen miles, in which distance they ascended about 9,000 feet.

The party started in the afternoon, and about sunset halted for supper. They then left it strange that the horses should leave a feed of grain to nibble the scanty grass which grew near the trail, but willing to trust their instinct in the matter.

However, before starting, they insisted that they be given water. The native guide demurred at this, saying they didn't need it, but with the good-natured complaisance of his race, yielded to requests, and led a detour of about a mile to the nearest house, the horses would not drink.

They took it as another case of instinct, and assumed that the water, for some reason, was not good, and so refrained from drinking themselves. It was not until the return the second day, to Kawaapae, that the travelers learned the reason for the wonderful maninia grass.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

What Sailors Have Survived.

The record landing at this port of a half-dead sailor from the Norwegian bark Drot by the German steamship Catania, which picked him up off the Florida coast where he had floated on a roughly constructed raft for five days without food or water illustrated forcibly the powers of endurance of peasant people. Some years ago Mate Brooks, of the American ship Belle O'Brien, which was burned off the Irish coast, was picked up lying unconscious among a boatload of dead and dying men by Capt. Dunn, of the Lord Line steamer Lord Erne, and brought to Baltimore. He had been six days with little or no food or water. Robert Scotney, second mate of the English brig Thomas, was found by an East Indiaman outward bound in a boat in the Indian ocean. He had subsisted 76 days from the time the brig was lost on four pounds of meat, four pounds of flour, six pounds of bread, a scant supply of canned goods and a keg of water.—Baltimore News.

Index Making.

A young woman in London has for some years carried on the business of index making. During that period she has trained in her office forty women index makers, and she has indexed such works as Nansen's "Farthest North," "Science of International Law," 485 volumes of history, and numerous papers and periodicals. According to this enterprising woman, indexing affords a field for women workers that is as yet unoccupied. It *is her belief that the feminine intelli*gence is particularly successful in this line and that she has found her pupils patient enduring accurate and conscientious. Moreover, women's well-known tendency to jump to conclusions here become a legitimate exercise as the quick intuition has a great value in successful index-making.—Ex. change.

A Scientific Rascal.

Scientific knowledge has been perverted to the uses of criminality by a medical student of Grantz, Austria, who endeavored to obtain 10,000 florins from a rich old lady for threatening to open a bottle of assorted deadly bacilli in her room if she refused to "pay up." When arrested bottles stolen from a bacteriological laboratory and containing microbes of several diseases were found in his possession.

Prone to Suicide.

Statistics show that the medical profession is more prone to suicide than any other. During the last three years the number of suicides occurring among physicians has been respectively forty-five, forty-nine and forty-seven per annum, an average of nearly one to every 1,000 of death rate among the physicians is about twenty-five to 1,000, nearly one-fiftieth of all the deaths in the profession have been suicides.

A Simple Camera.

A Houlton (Me.) man recently took a very good photograph with a simple home-made camera. The lens of his camera was cut in the box over which was pasted a piece of black paper in which a small hole was made with the point of a pin. The box was then taken to a dark room and plate securely fastened inside. The plate was exposed for one minute and a half and the result was very satisfactory.

Gambling In France.

Gambling in France is said to have reached such proportions that the Government has begun to study the question seriously. It is estimated that half of the suicides in Paris are due to losses at the races.

Women Workers.

Women employed on Japanese tea farms work 12 hours and are paid 15 cents a day.

FOR LOCKJAW.

Remarkable Results of Trials of Dr. Wood's Discovery.

While soever medical science achieves a triumph over disease the world stops to awhile to admire and wonder at it. Just now the discovery of a remedy for tetanus, commonly called lockjaw, made by Dr. D. Pierce Woods, the widely known physician of Philadelphia, is attracting unusual attention among leading physicians. In a recent article, which apeared in the Medical Journal, Dr. Woods made the following statement:

"I have had many cases of this dreadful nervous disorder treated in many different ways in hospitals and private practice. I cite this case and its treatment as the only one I have ever seen recover."

As lockjaw has generally been regarded as incurable, the treatment used by Dr. Woods has been tried in a number of cases since with astonishing results. The original case cured by Dr. Woods, he says, was that of a year-old boy in Philadelphia. The lad was in such a serious condition that his mother would not permit his going to the hospital, preferring, as she said, that he remain and "die at home."

The following is what Dr. Woods tells of the treatment he used, after stating that the lad's foot had been injured:

"The place of injury was freely opened and a dark, tarry substance taken out, and the wound cleaned. The foot was then soaked in a weak solution of carbolic acid and warm water about half an hour. As it was impossible for him to swallow, a dose of a 10 per cent. solution of carbolic acid was used hypodermically; 15 minutes after the first dose, another was injected; 15 minutes after the second, 30 minims were used. Thirty minims were continued throughout the day every half hour, and a half a grain of cannabis indica; at night the cannabis indica was discontinued, the pupils of his eyes at that time being very contracted. The carbolic acid solution was administered through the night.

"On the afternoon of the third day he slept soundly, awoke refreshed and said he felt better. From this time he continued to improve, but the rigidity did not leave him for three or four days, when it left.

"From this case I learn that carbolic acid in tetanus is effective only in large and heroic doses. Under these circumstances there is no surprise how much the system will bear. I believe that carbolic acid acts as an antitoxin, and in more severe cases I would try any serum which I have seen tried. If given boldly as early as possible, so that the system may be quickly and completely saturated, its antiseptic influence will be manifest on the blood, and I believe that there is great hope of this agent becoming a great boon to humanity in the cure of this distressing and alarming malady. Shortly after convalescence of this boy, I learned through Capt. Wolcott, U. S. Engineer of the United States Navy at League Island, of a case of tetanus in one of their horses cured by the use of carbolic acid on my suggestion of that treatment."

It has been learned that the carbolic acid treatment has been used often in Philadelphia and some western cities with very great success. Army surgeons have taken it up as the first known remedy to cure lockjaw among horses.

Young Alfred Vanderbilt.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, the new head of the house of Vanderbilts has just attained his majority. He graduated from Yale University last June, and is the second living son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt. The eldest son died while an undergraduate at Yale.

Physically Mr. Vanderbilt is about five feet eight inches tall and weighs about 150 pounds. He is well built. His complexion is dark and rather pale. His eyes are strongly resemble those of his father, and he possesses points of resemblance in expression to his mother, who was Miss Gwynne, of Cincinnati.

While in college Mr. Vanderbilt had, it is said, formed an attachment which society leaders at one time feared for a marriage. Miss Elsie French, daughter of the late Francis Ormande French, president of the Manhattan Trust company, is the young lady whom everybody believes will be Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt. She has a fortune in her own right of more than $5,000,000. She is also very pretty.

A Photographic Feat.

Probably the longest solar spectrum achieved at a single operation is one taken by Sir Norman Lockyer, showing the lock spectrum of iron, with a comparison spectrum of the sun thirty inches long. This was taken with the large concave Rowland grating which Sir Norman now uses for solar spectroscopic photographs; but, owing to the focal plane of this grating being considerably curved it is impossible to get a sharp photograph of the entire spectrum on a glass plate. The only about eighteen or twenty inches of the spectrum can be brought into focus on the same plane.

Black Diamonds.

The only place where "black diamonds" are found is in the Brazilian Province of Bahia, in the gold mines, found in river beds and brought up by divers. Others are obtained by tunneling mountains. The largest specimen ever found was worth $20,000.

How to Tell a Lady—in Boston.

Hicks—No gentleman will swear in the presence of a lady.

Wicks—No; but if a lady happens to make her appearance when a man is in the midst of a swearing fit, she is no lady if she expects him to leave off at once.—Boston Transcript.

The Memory.

Scientists have discovered that the memory is stronger in summer than in winter. Among the worst foes of the memory are too much food, too much physical exercise and, strange by enough, too much education.

A Load of Fans.

It is no unusual thing for a vessel plying between Japan and London to carry 1,000,000 fans as a single item of its cargo.

AS FIGHTERS

TINY WARRIORS WHOM LARGE ANIMALS DARE NOT MEET IN COMBAT.

Six American Miners Were Routed From Their Camp in Venezuela by an Ant Army—The Insects Drive a Coolie Crazy.

"I was one of the six American miners who were routed from their camp by a Venezuelan ant army," said a mining expert who lately arrived in New York from Venezuela. "We retreated before the invasion without making a fight, and for two good reasons. In the first place we would have gotten the worst of the encounter, and, secondly, we knew that if we let them alone they would do us a good service.

"Shortly after dawn one Sunday, while we were still snoozing away in our hammocks, our native cook burst in upon us with the news that we were about to be attacked by an army of ants. We had heard enough about these pests to know what to do. We arose hastily, and every ounce of provisions that was not sealed in cans or in jars was hurriedly piled on a table, the four legs of which were immersed in as many basins of water. Every manoeuvre that is known to the armies of civilized humans we had safely expert from an ant army, but the little black warriors have never learned to swim. Our provisions thus protected, we sat down to supper and went out to reconnoitre for the invaders and to watch their assault from a distance. The army was in full view from the top of a patch of black ten feet wide and double as long was swarming steadily toward our camp. They did not diminish in any way disturbed by our presence it was possible to approach its lines closely. There must have been millions upon millions of them, and they marching hip to hip. At the head marched the leader. On went the army, up the posts that supported the camp and then within. The patter of their countless little feet was audible like the rustling of grass in a light breeze.

"Once within the camp they spread itself in all directions, forming hundreds of little attacking parties. The camp was an old palm-thatched affair and so infested with lizards, centipedes and spiders that we had been on the point of destroying it. Now, however, the ants had come and would clean house for us. And therefore they were welcome. The ants swarmed up the joists and the dry leafy walls, and wherever they found a spider or a bug there was a brief tussle and a dead foe. But there was bigger game in store for the invaders.

"The coolie cook was with an immense centipede, one of the bluish-gray kind, about seven inches long, which he had found around our middle finger. He had cut open a hole like a blue streak, evidently trusting to his speed and superior strength to run through the ranks of the ants. But he didn't go three feet before he was stopped. Ants literally covered him. He turned on himself and swept them from his body, before he had gone another three feet he was buried beneath another swarm of his plucky assailants. And then began a fight to the death. Again and again he swept his tormentors from his back while from all sides hurried streams of ants to take their places. Fallen comrades. The wriggling of the big fellow became less violent as the fight progressed, and finally, after an effort, which I well believe was a desperate last one, he remained quiet while what little life was left in him was bitten out of him.

"The ant army had retreated and when we had swept the centipedes and scorpions and lizards and a tarantula which the ant army had vanquished, we put the hero of the star battle under a quart magnifying glass. The bodies of the dead ants still clung to their foe. From his back, from his legs, from wherever there was a chance for a hold the bodies of ants dangled, holding on, I suppose, in death.

"Perhaps you wonder what would happen to a man who would undertake to fight an army of ants, assuming of course that the man relies on his natural means of defence—his hands and feet. I can best illustrate that by the rare story of an unfortunate who was brought to the hospital in Caracas shortly before my return home. The man was a coolie who had worked on a cocoa plantation in a creek not far from Caracas. Following a habit of some of his countrymen, the coolie, owing to the heat, had left his camp and, instead of sleeping on the ground to sleep outdoors. Exactly what followed no one can say with certainty. Presumably he was surrounded and covered by an army of ants before he awakened. At dawn the shrieks and cries of a man in agony aroused the inmates of his camp, who ran out to learn the cause.

"The man was gesticulating wildly and calling for help, while he squirmed and writhed and slapped his face and neck and chest and legs in a mad effort to slap himself all over at once. He was standing in the midst of an army of ants and he was attacked with pain to run away. Then he did exactly what a panther or a leopard does when he is being overcome. The man threw himself to the ground and to roll his tormentor to death. A single active white man could have borne the poor wretch, but the stupefied barefooted coolies, dazed and in a mad effort to slap himself all over at once. He was standing in the midst of an army of ants and he was attacked with pain to run away. Then he did

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

The Election in Union County.

There was no note of uncertainity sounded in the election of yesterday in Union county. It was a complete victory for the Republicans who swept the county by larger pluralities than they have rolled up since the last National election. The Democrats based their hopes on William Oliver, their candidate for County Clerk, but although he carried his home city of election he was defeated in the county by fully 1200. The entire Republican ticket was elected by big pluralities.

There was very little excitement in Plainfield over the election. With only county offices to be filled, this is what is commonly known in political parlance as an "off" year. The vote was light.

The two facts that excited much interest in the results of the city vote was that the Democrats were to give their new organization its first test, and that certain Republican leaders, heretofore very active, would take no part in the campaign. These causes had their effect on the Republican majority in Plainfield, reducing it by some 150 to 200 votes. Plainfield was the only place in the county where the Democrats were able to make any gains.

As a result of the election Joseph Cross, of Elizabeth, is the State Senator and William Howard, of Rahway, will be back at the old stand in the County Clerk's office for the next five years. Robert G. Houston, of Elizabeth, will succeed William T. Kirk of this city, in handling the reins of the Sheriff's office. Houston is the first workingman to be placed in such an office in Union county.

There will be an entire new trio to represent Union county in the Assembly this fall. They will be Ellis B. Meeker, of Elizabeth; Chester M. Smith, of Westfield, and Charles S. Foote, of Plainfield, who succeeds George A. Squier and Robert G. Houston, of Elizabeth, and Roger F. Murray, of this city.

Senator Reed's Victory.

There is no question now as to the leader of the Republican party in Somerset county. Senator Charles A. Reed met the forces of his opponent for party honors in the county convention and defeated them. He was nominated. It was then said that Senator Reed would never be elected. After one of the hottest campaigns that Somerset has witnessed, Senator Reed has been re-elected to the higher branch of the New Jersey Legislature by a convincing majority. It is a significant victory for the Senator, particularly as it comes backed by a majority of over 800 votes.

It may never be known just exactly what the Thompson faction of the Republican party did to secure the defeat of Senator Reed. All sorts of conflicting rumors were abroad, some claiming that L. A. Thompson and his friends were working actively for the others and that they had retired to the back ground and were going to allow the other faction to do the work. It was hinted about that much quiet work was being done against Mr. Reed. However that may be, the Senator is elected and the borough of North Plainfield turned out and gave its favored son a strong majority to aid him in the county.

Riparian Rights.

In course of time the State of New Jersey has given away to corporations and private individuals riparian rights of inestimable value for practically no beneficial returns, but in this day we are able to appreciate to some extent the short-sightedness of such a policy. In this respect there has been a great deal of agitation during recent years against action whereby riparian rights of any kind should be granted in perpetuity. Such a policy is in line with the spirit of this age when it is realized that it is a great wrong to grant facilities, designed and intended for the benefit of the public, to private individuals or corporations without a time-limit as to when such valuable privileges should revert to the State

In line with this idea the New Jersey State Board of Riparian Commissioners proposed to establish a rule to the effect of which would be to refuse absolute grants and to issue leases for twenty years only. The proposed action was referred Attorney General Grey, and now that distinguished State official comes along and puts the official stamp of disapproval upon such procedure. He advised that the Board had no right to establish the twenty year plan, and as a consequence the proposed action had to be abandoned.

Attorney-General Grey says, however, that the power to fix and determin the amount of rent or the price to be paid for a grant of land under water is vested in the commission as the agents of the State and that in making leases the interests of the State would seem to require that the term be long enough to induce the lessee to make improvements and not so long but that the State would have an opportunity in a reasonable time to avail itself of the increased value of its lands resulting from the improvements of its tenants, and thus increase its income.

If the Riparian Commissioners are prevented from establi-hing the twenty-year lease plan by a strict construction of the law, there should be a vigorous attempt made in the next Legislature to amend the law so that that action might be carried out before any more valuable riparian rights are disposed of Some Tax Figures.

Secretary Irvin W. Maguire, of the State Board of Assessors, has filed with the State Comptroller the assessment of railroad and canal property in the State of New Jersey for 1899. The aggregate assessed valuation of this class of property in the State is $224,284,792, as against $222,417,748 in 1898. The increase in the assessed valuation is $1,867,044, but as the assessments for this year are subject to review the net increase, it is expected, will be quite small. Last year there was an increase of more than $16,000,000.

The total tax for State uses for this year is $1,121,423.96, as against $1,112,088 75 last year, being an increase of $9,335 21. Of this sum, however, $214,600 will be returned to the various municipalities, that being the sum collected by the State on second-class railroad property and paid over to the various municipalities under the preliminary Equal Taxation law of 1897. In addition to this, the amount of tax levied for local uses is $423,019 91, as against $403 335 last year, an increase of $19,663 98. Of course, a large percentage of this money levied as taxes for local uses, as well as that paid back by the State, goes to Hudson and Essex counties.

The total tax on the various railway systems is as follows: Pennsylvania Railroad, $415,536 27; Central Railroad of New Jersey, $33,363 58; Philadelphia and Reading, $53,920.33; Erie Railroad, $163,840 51; Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, $276,963 27; New York, Susquehanna and Western, $46,823 13; Lehigh Valley, $133 815 63; railroads not classified, $140,191 85.

Result of One Gas War.

After vainly struggling for the right to furnish gas at a maximum price of $1 per thousand cubic feet, the new lighting company of Passaic has given up the battle and will retire and leave the field to the established company that has had a monopoly of it for years.

Harry Myers, who is at the head of the proposed new company, says he is ready "to throw up his hands." He adds in explanation: "We don't mind competing with the old company, and taking our chances as to getting a franchise, but we were astounded at the public sentiment in favor of municipal ownership manifested at the mass-meeting last night, and in view of this we don't want to go ahead."

It is to be hoped that Plainfield's project for cheaper gas will materialize more than has been the case in Passaic, although that city can count itself considerably better because of the agitation and prospective competion. The possibility of a new company in the field made the old corporation come down to much lower rates than had prevailed for a long time.

TRIED TO KILL HER BABY.

Margaret Jackson Fought the Police Who Arrested Her.

Margaret Jackson, aged 32 years, of Union, who is held in the county jail charged with having attempted to murder her child Monday afternoon, is believed to be insane. She was discovered by Everett Brickhouse kneeling in a field in the rear of Senator Kean's homestead, on Morris avenue, near Lake Ursino. Brickhouse was walking along the road with two friends when he saw her hugging her 2 months-old baby to her breast. As he approached her she deliberately drew the blade of a large knife over the throat of the baby.

The men yelled to her and she arose and fled towards the woods. The men chased her, but she disappeared in the woods. The police were called from Elizabeth and the woman was found hiding behind a tree, still clutching her child. She fought the police, but they finally got her in a wagon and took her to police headquarters, where she acknowledged that she tried to kill her baby, but they would not let her.

GIVE THE CHILDREN A DRINK

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by a grocer and liked by all who have used it, because when properly prepared it taste like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee 15 and 25c.

REDUCED RATES FOR CHILDREN OF CLERGY

Matter Was Discussed by Board of Education.

NO ACTION WAS TAKEN THEN

WOULD GIVE OUT-OF-TOWN CLERGYMEN LOWER RATES OF TUITION.

Question Was Brought Up By Letter From J. A. Cubberly, of South Plainfield—Board Approved Re-organization of High School Cadets and Gave Mr. Maxson Power to Secure a Drill Hall For Them.

The advisability of offering reduced rates of tuition to clergymen living outside of the city limits was the only question of importance to come up in the open session of the Plainfield Board of Education last Monday. And that subject was laid over until another meeting to allow the members to consider it.

The report of the Tax Collector showed that school taxes to the amount of $4,963 33 and $28 25 interest, making a total of $4,933 58 had been collected. The secretary reported that $339 had been received for tuition.

Superintendent H. M. Maxson made an interesting report concerning the condition of the schools. Regarding the High School, he said, that the attendance this year was larger than ever before, there being now 180 enrolled, more than 40 more than last year. All the seats in the study hall were filled and the new pupils had to be seated in the recitation rooms. The school year had opened with a very satisfactory spirit. He attributed this as a result of opening school a week later in September so that the pupils entered the school more promptly. There was general improvement all along the line and parents were much gratified at the methods used.

He reported that Henry Pierce, a graduate of the High School, had won the prize at Union College for passing the highest entrance examication. He was the third graduate who had won such an honor. He told of the holding of a parents' meeting during the month that had been very satisfactory in bringing teachers and parents in closer touch with each other and enabling them to become acquainted.

A letter was read from Rev. J. A. Cubberly, of South Plainfield, asking if the Board of Education made a reduction in its tuition rates as was customary in many schools. Mr. Lounsbury expressed himself against it, believing taht it would be illegal, as the tuition should be the same to all non-resident pupils. Dr. Probasco and Mr. Abbott favored the granting of the lower rate. Mr. Lovell feared it might be a dangerous precedent. The matter was laid over until another meeting and the Board went into executive session.

In the executive session, the Board heard Superintendent Maxson's plan for reorganizing the High School cadets and approved it. The also empowered him to secure a suitable place for the school battalion to drill.

CONTRACTOR COOK'S CASE.

Suing Cranford for Crushed Stone Furnished

At the Circuit Court, Elizabeth, Monday morning, presided over by Judge B. A. Vail, the case of Contractor John G. Cook, against the township of Cranford, was called and proceeded with, County Attorney Codington appearing for the plaintiff and Paul Q Oliver for the defendant.

The case was brought by Cook, the plaintiff, to recover money, which he alleged was due him by the township for crushed stone furnished by him for roads in Cranford township during the spring of 1898, he furnishing the stone in accordance with a bid presented by him and accepted by the township committee.

During the cross-examination the memory of the witness as to amount of stone furnished, time, date and locality appeared very defective, so much so that at one time the court felt obliged to inform him that unless his memory served him better, and he was able to answer more positively some of the questions asked him, it would be difficult for him to prove his case.

Heard Fine Singing.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Ross entertained a few of their friends at their home on Covington avenue Saturday evening by giving a delightful musicale at which Mlle. Mira Marsona, a grand opera singer, of New York, and a friend of the hostess, delighted all with her charming voice. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. G. VanWinkle, Mrs. Waldron, Mrs. Albert C. Wyckoff, Miss Lillian B. Thorne, G. Thorne and Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor.

To Cure Constipation Forever.

Take Cascarets. Candy Cathartic. 10c or 25c. If C. C. C. fail to cure, druggists refund money.

Burglar May Be Caught.

It is reported that the two men who attempted to break into Charles Taynor's store, corner of Watchung avenue and Chatham street, last Sunday morning, are known, and that arrests will soon follow.

RECEIVER ALLOWED $1,500.

Cashier Maguire Paid for One Month's Work at Perth Amboy.

James A. Maguire, of Elizabeth, was Monday formally discharged by Vice-Chancellor Emory as temporary receiver of the Middlesex County Bank of Perth Amboy, which was wrecked by Cashier Valentine. The Vice-Chancellor allowed Mr. Maguire $1,500 for his services.

Mr. Maguire acted as receiver immediately after the bank was wrecked and he labored for one month on an inventory of the bank's assets and other matters. He was required to continue as permanent receiver, but his bank duties in Elizabeth would not permit this, and Edward A. Campbell, of Newark, was named as permanent receiver.

The Best Christmas Gift of All.

By choosing a Christmas gift for a friend what can afford more present or lasting pleasure than a subscription to The Youth's Companion? The delight with which it is welcomed on Christmas morning is renewed every week in the year. The charm of it is disclosed little by little as the months run their course. There is no household in which it will not prove an inspiration. Those who wish to present a year's subscription to a friend may send their name and $1.75 for the Companion Calender for 1900 sent with it. This Calendar is a reproduction in twelve color printings of three exquisite designs by a celebrated American artist, a member of the American Water-Color Society. In addition to this all the issues of The Companion for the remaining weeks of 1899 are sent free from the time subscription is received for the new volume. Illustrated Announcement Number containing a full prospectus of the volume for 1900 sent free to any address. The Youth's Companion, 203 Columbus avenue, Boston, Mass.

Promotes Sale of American Machinery.

O. J Stone, of London, Eng., made a flying visit to Plainfield yesterday and spent some time at the Scott Printing Machine Works. Mr. Stone is the founder of what has become known to be as the largest agency in the world for the sale of American machinery. Henry D. Morrison, a former Plainfielder, secured an interest in the business, and they are now joint managing directors of the company they have organized, known as "The Printing Machine Company." The company has branches all over the world. Mr. Stone returns to Europe tomorrow.

Mrs. Pond's Purchase.

Mrs. A. B. S. Pond, of Watchung avenue, has purchased a valuable piece of property on Evergreen avenue, Woodland Park, which has an elevation of one hundred feet above Plainfield proper. Plans are now out for a handsome residence to be erected thereon. During the past few months Mrs. Pond has been very successful in real estate and other operations.

To Clean the Brook.

An effort will soon be made to have Green brook cleaned out in that part which lies in the heart of the city. The health boards of both city and borough have the matter under consideration.

PIMPLES

"My wife had pimples on her face, but she has been taking CASCARETS and they have all disappeared. I had been troubled with constipation for some time, but after taking the Cascarets I have had no trouble with this ailment. We cannot speak too highly of Cascarets." FRED W. ELTMAN, 5709 Germantown Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.

CANDY CATHARTIC

Cascarets

TRADE MARK REGISTERED

REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c. ... Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York. 314

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

Nasal CATARRH

In all its stages there should be cleansing. Ely's Cream Balm cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased membrane. It cures where all else fails. It does not dry—causes no pain. Sold by druggists or by mail. Trial Size, 10 cents by mail. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

ELY'S CREAM BALM CATARRH HAY FEVER SNUFF SOOTHES HEALS REMOVES ELY BROS. 56 WARREN ST. NEW YORK

Cream Balm is placed into the nostrils, spreads over the membrane and is absorbed. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. It is not drying—does not produce sneezing. 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

500 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.

CONTENTS:

Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.
Same book in better binding 50 cts.
HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE

-:- In 1900 -:-

NOVELTY IN LITERARY AND ART FEATURES

PRINTING IN COLOR.

THE BEST ILLUSTRATIONS, with Cole's Engravings and Castaigne's Drawings.

A New and Superbly Illustrated

LIFE OF CROMWELL

By the Right Hon. John Morley, M. P.

THE conductors of THE CENTURY take especial pleasure in announcing this as the enduring historical work of the magazine in the twentieth century. No more competent than John Morley, who was selected by Mr. Gladstone's family to write the biography of Gladstone, to treat of Cromwell in the spirit of the best historical writing of the century.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS will be remarkable. Besides original drawings, there will be valuable unpublished portraits and by Her Majesty the Queen, and by the owners of the greatest Cromwell collections. Other features include:

Ernest Seton-Thompson's

"Biography of a Grizzly," delightfully illustrated by the artist-author,—the longest and most important literary work of the author of "Wild Animals I Have Known."

Paris, Illustrated By Castaigne.

A series of papers for the Exposition year, by Richard Whiteing, author of "No. 5 John Street," splendidly illustrated with more than 100 pictures by the famous artist Castaigne, including views of the Paris Exposition.

London, Illustrated by Phil May.

A series of papers on the East End of London by Sir Walter Besant, with pictures by Phil May and Joseph Pennell.

Sailing Alone Around the World.

The record of a voyage of 46,000 miles undertaken single-handed and alone in a 36-foot boat. A most delightful biography of the sea.

The Author of "Hugh Wynne."

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, will furnish a short story, "The Autobiography of a Quack," and there will be short stories by all the leading writers.

A Chapter from Mark Twain's Abandoned Autobiography.

Literary Reminiscences.

Familiar accounts of Tennyson, Browning, Lowell, Emerson, Bryant, Whittier and Holmes.

Important Papers.

By Governor Theodore Roosevelt, President Eliot, of Harvard University, Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Woodrow Wilson, John Burroughs, and others.

American Secret History.

A series of papers of commanding interest.

The Art Work of the Century.

It is everywhere conceded that THE CENTURY has led in illustration. Timothy Cole's unique and beautiful wood blocks will continue to be a feature, with the work of many other engravers who have made the American school famous. The fine half-tone plates which have won for THE CENTURY which the magazine is distinguished, will appear with new methods of printing and illustrating.

Begin new subscriptions with November; 75 cents a year. Subscribe through dealers or remit to the publishers.

THE CENTURY CO., UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK.

The best of all Children's Magazines.—London Spectator.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR YOUNG FOLKS.

A Monthly Magazine Edited by MARY MAPES DODGE.

For 1900 A Splendid Program of Art, Literature and Fun.

TEN LONG STORIES, by Ruth McEnery Stuart, Mary Mapes Dodge, Elizabeth B. Custer and other writers. Each complete in one number.

A SERIAL STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "MASTER SKYLARK," a tale of Old New York.

A SERIAL STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "JENKINS AND NED TOODLES," a capital story for girls.

A SERIAL STORY OF ATHLETICS.

A SERIES OF STORY PUBLIC CHILDRENS STORIES OF RAILROAD LIFE.

AN IMPORTANT HISTORICAL SERIAL of Colonial Life in America by Elbridge S. Brooks, author of "The Century Book of the American Revolution," etc.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, Governor of New York and Colonel of the "Rough Riders," furnishes a paper on "What America Expects of Her Boys."

IAN MACLAREN, JOHN BURROUGHS, and many other well-known writers will contribute.

NATURE AND SCIENCE FOR YOUNG FOLKS will soon be begun as a new department.

ST. NICHOLAS LEAGUE. Badge and Membership free. Send for instruction leaflet.

FUN AND FROLIC, both in rhyme, stories, pictures and puzzles, will be as always, a striking characteristic of St. Nicholas.

Everything Illustrated,

A Free Sample Copy on Request.

November begins the new volume. Price $3.00. All dealers and agents take subscriptions, but immediate may be made direct to the publishers.

THE CENTURY CO., Union Square, New York.

JAS. M. DUNN,

Dealer in

GROCERIES, PROVISIONS, VEGETABLES, FRUITS &c

GARDEN SEEDS

fresh and carefully selected.

224 PARK AVENUE

OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.

Everything usually found in a first-class grocery.

Goods delivered free of charge.

Mrs. Ira Gramley, of Kanenville, Kane county, Illinois, is visiting Plainfield relatives and friends for a few weeks.

CLEARING SALE OF PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of of good second-hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7	Octave Square	$ 40
7¼	" "	70
7⅓	Upright	150
7¾	"	165
7½	Hallett & Davis	190
7¾	" "	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20. $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallett & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS,

$300 and up, and 2 years' time if you want it. Other makes—Cabinet Grands, all improvements. $225—$7 per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,

94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

1831 Seventieth Year. THE 1900

Country Gentleman.

The ONLY Agricultural NEWSpaper, AND ADMITTEDLY THE Leading Agricultural Journal of the World.

Every department written by specialists, the highest authorities in their respective lines.

No other paper pretends to compete with it in qualifications of editorial staff.

Gives the agricultural NEWS with a degree of fulness and completeness, latness not even attempted by others.

Best Reviews of the Crops.
Best Market Reports.
Best Accounts of Meetings.
Best Everything

Indispensable To All Country Residents WHO WISH TO KEEP UP WITH THE TIMES.

Single Subscription, $2;
Two Subscriptions, $3 50;
Four Subscriptions, $6.

Special Inducements to Raisers of Larger Clubs.

Write for particulars on this point

Club Agents Wanted Everywhere.

Four Months Trial Trip 50 cents.

SPECIMEN COPIES

will be mailed free on request. It will pay anybody interested in any way in country life to send for them. Address the publishers:

LUTHER TUCKER & SON.
10 19 8 ALBANY, N. Y.

P. P. VanArsdale, PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 160, or left at Willett's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 E. Front street, corner Elm street. pjly2

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 132, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable,

W. R. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corne of Park avenue and Second street.

Children cutting Teething

Mrs. Winslow's has been used for over Fifty Years with Soothing Syrup millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa.

Sold by Druggists in every part of the world.

Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POST OFFICE.
NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7:30, 8:40, 11:30 a. m.; 2:30, 5:00, 8:30 p. m.
Close—7:20, 9:15 a. m.; 12:00, 1:45, 5:00, 7:30 p. m.

SOMERVILLE AND RARITAN.

Arrive—8:40 a. m.; 3:00 and 6:15 p. m.
Close—7:20 a. m.; 2:30 and 4:30 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7:30, 8:40, 11:30 a. m.; 2:30 and 8:15 p. m.
Close—7:20 and 9:15 a. m.; 12:00, 5:00 and 7:30 p. m.
Through fast mail for West and South, close 5:00 and 7:15 p. m.

WARINANVILLE.

Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—9:30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m.
Mail closes at 6:15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M.

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Anthracite Coal Used Exclusively, Insuring Cleanliness and Comfort.

Stations in New York, foot of Liberty, and South Ferry Whitehall Stations.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT OCT. 29th, 1899.

For New York 2:14, 3:37, 5:27, 6:29, 6:55, 7:25, 7:55, 8:05, 8:15, 8:45, 9:15, 9:45, 10:15, 10:35, 11:05 a. m.; 12:09, 12:44, 1:25, 2:12, 2:44, 3:05, 3:44, 4:05, 4:35, 5:05, 5:35, 6:05, 6:35, 7:05, 7:35, 8:00, 10:17, 11:28 p. m.; Sunday 2:14, 3:37, 5:27, 6:29, 7:55, 8:05, 8:15, 8:45, 9:15, 9:45, 10:15, 10:35, 11:05 a. m.; 12:09, 12:44, 1:25, 2:12, 2:44, 3:05, 3:44, 4:05, 4:35, 5:05, 5:35, 6:05, 6:35, 7:05, 7:35, 8:00, 10:17, 11:28 p. m.

For Newark at 2:37, 6:39, 8:05, 7:39, 8:10, 8:37, 9:43, 10:37, 11:40 a. m.; 12:43, 1:28, 2:43, 3:12, 3:46, 4:17, 4:55, 5:37, 6:21, 6:43, 7:43, 8:40, 9:40, 10:40, 11:59 p. m. Sunday 2:37, 6:39, 8:05, 7:39, 8:10, 8:37, 9:43, 10:37, 11:40 a. m.; 12:43, 1:28, 2:43, 3:12, 3:46, 4:17, 4:55, 5:37, 6:21, 6:43, 7:43, 8:40, 9:40, 10:40, 11:59 p. m.

For Elizabeth, 2:37, 6:39, 8:05, 7:39, 8:10, 8:37, 9:43, 10:37, 11:40 a. m.; 12:43, 1:28, 2:43, 3:12, 3:46, 4:17, 4:55, 5:37, 6:21, 6:43, 7:43, 8:40, 9:40, 10:40, 11:59 p. m. Sunday 2:37, 6:39, 8:05, 7:39, 8:10, 8:37, 9:43, 10:37, 11:40 a. m.; 12:43, 1:28, 2:43, 3:12, 3:46, 4:17, 4:55, 5:37, 6:21, 6:43, 7:43, 8:40, 9:40, 10:40, 11:59 p. m.

For Somerville at 5:18, 7:12, 8:19, 9:05, 9:50, 11:09 a. m.; 1:03, 2:06, 2:20, 3:29, 4:03, 5:27, 5:54, 6:04, 8:05, 8:35, 9:30, 10:25, 11:29 p. m.; 12:44 night. Sunday at 9:05, 10:04, 11:09 a. m.; 1:03, 2:06, 3:29, 4:03, 5:27, 6:04, 8:05, 8:35, 9:30, 10:25, 11:29 p. m.; 12:44 night.

For Bound Brook at 5:18, 8:19, 9:54 a. m.; 1:03, 2:20, 5:27, 6:39, 8:21 p. m. Sunday at 9:54, 1:03, 5:27, 6:39, 8:21 p. m.

For Lake Hopatcong at 9:54 a. m.; 5:27 p. m.

WESTWARD CONNECTIONS.

5:18 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Upper Lehigh, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

7:12 a. m.—For stations to High Bridge Branch, Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R. Easton, Bangor and Mauch Chunk.

9:54 a. m.—For Flemington and Easton, except Chester.

1:03 p. m.—For Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R. Easton, Bangor and Mauch Chunk.

2:06 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

3:29 p. m.—For Flemington and Easton, except Chester.

4:03 p. m.—For Flemington and Easton, Bethlehem, Bangor, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, connecting for High Bridge for stations on High Bridge Branch.

5:27 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

6:04 p. m.—For Flemington and Easton, except Chester.

8:05 p. m.—For Flemington and Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Williamsport, Reading and Harrisburg.

8:35 p. m.—For Flemington and Easton.

9:30 p. m. Sundays—For Flemington and Easton.

10:25 p. m. Sundays—For German Valley, Flanders, South Kenvil, Easton, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Williamsport, Reading and Harrisburg.

5:09 p. m. Sundays—For Flemington.

11:29 p. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Reading, Harrisburg, etc.

FOR LONG BRANCH, OCEAN GROVE, ETC.

Leave Plainfield at 3:37, 8:13, 10:37 a. m.; 2:46, 4:17, 6:21 p. m.; Sundays, except 8:13 a. m., 4:17 p. m.

For Perth Amboy, 3:37, 5:27, 8:13, 8:37, 9:28, 10:37 a. m., 12:18, 2:46, 4:17, 5:27, 6:21, 8:37, 11:28 p. m. Sundays 8:05, a. m.; 2:29 p. m.

For Atlantic City, 8:37 a. m.; 1:28 p. m.

For Cape May, 8:37 a. m.; 1:28 p. m.

For Ocean Grove, 3:37, 8:13, 10:37 a. m., 2:46, 4:17 p. m. Sundays 8:13 a. m.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

Leave Plainfield for Philadelphia, 5:27, 8:13, 9:44, 9:58, 10:44 a. m.; 12:18, 2:46, 4:17, 5:27, 6:21, 8:37 p. m.; 11:7 night. Sundays, 8:13, 9:58, 10:44 a. m.; 2:46, 4:55, 9:03, 9:58, 9:47 p. m.; 11:7 night.

For Trenton, 5:27, 7:32, 8:14, 9:44 a. m.; 12:18, 1:18, 4:55, 9:03, 9:58, 9:47 p. m.; 12:07 night. Sundays, 5:27, 5:45, 9:03, 10:44 a. m.; 2:46, 4:55, 9:03, 9:58, 9:47 p. m.; 12:07 night.

For Baltimore and Washington at 3:37, 8:44, 10:44 a. m.; 2:46, 4:55, 9:03, 9:58, 9:47 p. m.; 12:07 night. Sundays, 5:27, 10:44 a. m.; 2:46, 4:55, 9:03, 9:58, 9:47 p. m.; 12:07 night.

(Plainfield passengers by trains marked ") change cars at Bound Brook.

Tickets to Europe for all points at lowest rates may be had on application in advance to the ticket agent at the station.

J. H. OLHAUSEN,
General Superintendent.
H. P. BALDWIN,
General Passenger Agent.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect May 21, 1899.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N.J.

Time given for Plainfield is leaving time of stage from City Ticket Office, 124 West Front Street, which is in close connection with trains at South Plainfield.

Leave Plainfield 8:35 a. m.
Leave South Plainfield 8:45 a. m.

Daily express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

Leave Plainfield 12:10 p. m.
Leave South Plainfield 12:20 p. m.

Daily except Sunday, Black Diamond Express for Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

Leave Plainfield 6:20 p. m.
Leave South Plainfield 7:02 p. m.

Daily, Solid Vestibule train for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and Principal intermediate stations.

Leave Plainfield 8:15 p. m.
Leave South Plainfield 8:24 p. m.

Daily, Fast Line for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto. Parlor, sleeping car passengers only, accepted between New York and Mauch Chunk.

Leave Plainfield 12:45 p. m.
Leave South Plainfield 1:28 p. m.

Daily, Night Express for Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Chicago.

The stage will also meet Eastbound trains 6, 8, 12, 4, 10.

For time of local trains see pocket time-tables, or Folder Telephone No. 125-B.

ROLLIN H. WILBUR,
General Superintendent.
ALEX. S. THAYER,
General Passenger Agent.

28 Cortlandt St., New York.
FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent,
124 West Front St., Plainfield, N. J.

Hands with you whether you continue the use of tobacco or quit. NO-TO-BAC removes the desire for tobacco, makes quitting easy. Over 400,000 cured. Don't you want to be cured? Don't you want to be made strong, healthy, magnetic, full of new life and vigor? Don't you want to be made well, satisfied, permanently cured? If so, NO-TO-BAC will do it. Don't forget that. NO-TO-BAC will, positively, permanently cure you. Don't forget that. Don't buy a substitute that may contain cocaine, opium, morphine or other deadly drug. Don't forget that. Don't be persuaded to smoke, or use cigarettes. Don't forget that. NO-TO-BAC will cure you. Don't forget that. Don't forget that. Don't forget that

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

NOTHING FOR HARGRAVES

ONE JUDGEMENT ALLOWED TO OFFSET ANOTHER.

The End of a Somewhat Infamous Case —Judge Van Syckel Decided in Favor of Brokaw's Claim Made by His Lawyer.

Immediately after judgment was rendered in the Union County Circuit Court in the case of Fred W. Hargraves against Wesley R. Brokaw, for the alleged alienation of the affections of the plaintiff's wife, giving the plaintiff $25 of $10 000 which he sued for, Lawyer Brady moved before Justice Van Syckel, at Elizabeth, to offset the Hargraves judgment with another judgment which he had recovered against Hargraves at the suit of Brokaw, for rental of piano, the removal of which for non-payment of rent had precipitated the suit.

On account of several complex legal questions which arose because the judgments were in different courts and were founded on different kinds of injuries, and the further fact that Hargraves had made a general assignment of his entire property to Lawyer Angleman, Hargraves' counsel, Lawyer Moy, having objected to the allowance of the offset, the Court ordered counsel to submit briefs.

After considering the arguments and authorities presented by the lawyers for the respective parties, Judge VanSyckel yesterday rendered his decision, completely sustaining Attorney Brady's interpretation of the law on each of the points referred to and ordering the allowance of the offset, which is slightly in excess of the $25 judgment. Evidently this litigation has not been very profitable for Hargraves.

A MONSTROSITY.

Calf Born With Three Eyes and Two Mouths—Mother Cow of Holstein Breed.

The barn of Mrs. Julia M. Van-Buren on Central avenue was an attractive place all of Sunday. The neighbors suddenly appeared to have reached a degree of curiosity that had not been experienced in many a day. It was all over the birth of a calf that was something of a curiosity as well as monstrosity. The aforesaid calf was born with three eyes and two mouths. Two of the eyes are in their natural place, but the third is to be found just back of the left ear. The additional mouth is alongside the one usually found. The rumor that the calf had two heads and six legs proves not to be true. At last accounts the calf was alive and it bids fair to survive the curiosity which its birth has excited in the neighborhood. The mother of the calf is of the ordinary breed of Holstein cattle.

THE DEMOCRATIC CLUB.

Board of Governors Organized By Electing Judge Coddington President

The board of governors elected by the new Democratic Club met Thursnight to organize and get in working shape. The organization was made by electing the following officers: President, W. A. Coddington; vice-president, John H. Hillman; secretary, W. W. St. John; treasurer, H.W. Marshall.

The matter of a constitution and by-laws for the government of the club was discussed informally, but at the next meeting of the governors they will be adopted.

It is probable that within two weeks the club will be thoroughly organized, and that it will be established by the end of this month.

FINANCIAL NEEDS OF RUTGERS.

Rev. James Demarest, D. D., Appealed to Trinity Reformed Church for Help

Rev. James Demarest, D. D., of Brooklyn, who occupied Trinity Reformed church pulpit Sunday proved himself to be a very entertaining and scholarly speaker. At the morning service he presented the financial needs of Rutgers Seminary, to a large congregation, in a very interesting and instructive address, that no doubt will cause the people of Trinity church to respond liberally to so worthy a cause. In the evening he delivered a grand sermon on the slaying, in battle, of King Ahab, as chronicled in twenty-second chapter of First Kings, taking as his text the first half of the thirty-fourth verse of the chapter named.

GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF

to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally indulge in and almost as universally injurious, are you trying Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee up sets the stomach, ruins the digestion, effects the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O brings up the tone, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

ROAD ACROSS THE STATE.

PLANNED TO RUN FROM CAPE MAY TO JERSEY CITY.

The Pet Project of State Road Commissioner Budd—Connection Unmet in Middlesex County Over It.

Although threatened with the loss of State aid for building macadam roads, the Board of Freeholders of Middlesex county seem determined to build such macadam roads as they desire, even if those roads are not approved by State Road Commissioner Henry I Budd

It is Mr. Budd's pet project to have a trunk macadam road running from Cape May to Hudson county. Much of such a road has been constructed. In Middlesex county there is one link missing, about ten miles, from Black Horse Tavern to Cranbury Village. Mr. Budd insisted that the road be the first to be improved this year by the Middlesex county Board, under the State road act.

The Board of Freeholders desired to build a macadam road from New Brunswick to Old Bridge, from Dunellen to Bound Brook, and from Carteret to the Union county line. All these plans were approved by the road commissioner and the same time as he approved of the plans for the Cranbury road, but he specified that the Cranbury road should be built first. Bids were invited, but when they were opened it was found that to build all four roads would cost nearly $120 000. Under the State act the whole sum which the Board could spend this year is only about $60,000.

The contract for the Old Bridge macadam road was let to J. R. Shanley, of Newark, for $36,000, leaving only about $24,000 for all other roads.

In deference to Mr. Budd's pleas, however, the Board divided the remaining $24,000 at its disposal, allotting $14 000 to the Cranbury road, $4 000 to the Carteret road and $6,000 to the Dunellen road.

Commissioner Budd has been so earnestly in his advocacy of the Cranberry road that he has even threatened to deprive the county of its share of the State road appropriations unless roads were built in accordance with his wishes.

BURGLAR CUT HIS HAND.

Broke Window in Taynor's Store Early Sunday Morning When Marshal Winn Chased Intruder.

An attempt was made to rob the little store belonging to C. Taynor, corner Watchung avenue and Chatham street, at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. The burglars broke the glass in the window. The work was evidently that of a novice for the burglar cut his hand in the attempt.

Louis Apgar, who lives in the neighborhood, heard them and notified Marshal Winn. When the officers arrived there, the would be burglars fled. The officer pursued them as far as the brook. They succeeded in taking a little tobacco, candy and several articles of small value.

FUNERAL OF LATE W. H. BROWER.

Services Held in the Congregational Church Monday Afternoon.

The funeral of the late William Hulse Brower was held from his late residence, 431 West Sixth street, Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The service was conducted by Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church. There was a large attendance A delegation from the Excelsior Engine Company of Scotch Plains was present.

The bearers were Mayor George W Roekfellow, Randolph Stelle, James E. Martine, E. M. Laing, Frank Miller and W. K. McClure. The floral decorations of the casket were very handsome. Rev. C. L. Goodrich made a short address filled with words of comfort and hope.

WHERE IS YOUNG OLSON?

He Has Left His New Brunswick Home, and is Missing a Week.

The police of New Brunswick were yesterday asked by Mrs. Annie Olson, of New street, to assist in finding her fifteen-year-old son Albert who has been missing since Thursday. The boy was employed in one of the local factories.

Mrs. Olson thinks her stepbrother Charles, aged seventeen, with whom she has had considerable trouble, has enticed her son to leave home. Both boys have disappeared.

Succeeding in His Factorate.

Rev. Mr. Schaffr, pastor of the German Lutheran church on Grove street, is getting along satisfactorily with his work. Although he but recently came to Plainfield, he is rapidly becoming acquainted and is making new friends every day.

THE LIBRARY WANTS BALANCE OF $600

Did Not Draw All of the $3,800 Appropriated.

CITY OFFICERS' REPORT.

MORE SIDEWALKS TO BE LAID BY THE CITY.

President Andrews Not in the Chair and Councilman Smith Acted as the Presiding Officer—Only Ten Applicants For Aid to Overseer of Poor During the Month—Other Business Done.

Outside of the public hearing regarding the extension of the trolley through Arlington avenue, and that regarding the application of the People's Gas Company for a franchise, there was not a great deal of business considered at the regular November meeting of the Common Council Monday. President F. H. Andrews owed away and his place was filled by Councilman Smith. City Clerk MacMurray's place was filled by George B. Wean. The rest of the members were present except Mr. Mellick.

A communication was received from Nelson and Wm. N. Runyon, counsel for a Mrs. Skillman, in which they asked to have certain assessments on her property in the city rightly adjusted. The property was affected by the Martin Act and they asked that certain amounts be corrected and assessed properly. W. R. Mosher and others asked for an electric light on New street, between Fourth and Fifth streets. A communication was received from the Plainfield Electric Light Company stating that lights ordered by the Council had been located. S. R Struthers, for the Home Building and Loan Association, stated in a communication that the assessment on the property at 407 Plainfield avenue, had been paid twice, and he asked to have the same adjusted. This was referred to the proper committee.

J. B. Dumont, for the directors of the Plainfield Public Library, stated that in 1898 the library directors only received the sum of $3,200, while they were entitled to $3,800. Since that time there had been a deficit and it had been impossible to carry on the work as heretofore. He asked that the Council draw a warrant for the balance due according to law. The matter was referred to the finance committee. Residents in the vicinity of West Fifth street between Grant avenue and Lee place, asked for a electric light in that locality.

Building Inspector Doane reported the granting of twenty one permits, and Street Commissioner Gavett reported that eleven sewer permits had been granted. The city physician reported that medical aid and medicine had been furnished to the city poor, and Overseer of the Poor Hansen stated in his report that during the past month there were ten applications for aid, of which number six were granted, and five were for temporary aid. There was one death At present there are twenty-four beneficiaries Street Commissioner Gavett stated that application had been received from Major Coleman, of the Park Avenue Hotel, asking for permission to run water into the sewer on Eighth street. This water it was proposed to use to run an elevator in the hotel. There would be about 10 000 gallons a day, and he desired to ask the Council for instructions in the matter. The proper committee will consider it and report later.

Mr. VanHerwerden offered a resolution borrowing $1 200 on account of the poor fund. He offered another resolution providing for the issuing of five notes of $1,530.94 each payable in one year, for the purpose of taking care of sewer obligations according to an ordinance adopted at the last meeting of the Council.

Mr. Barrows offered a resolution providing for the laying of sidewalks where property-owners have failed to comply with the law. He stated that when such action had been taken heretofore the property-owners in most cases had laid the walks, thus relieving the city of the expense, and he believed that such would be the result in this case. This concluded the business and Barrows moved that when Council adjourned it be to meet next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Council then adjourned.

Nasal Catarrh quickly yields to treatment by Ely's Cream Balm, which is agreeable and aromatic. It is received through the nostrils, cleanses and heals the whole surface over which it diffuses itself. A remedy for Nasal Catarrh which is drying or exciting to the diseased membrane should not be used Cream Balm is recognized as a specific Price 50 cents at druggists or by mail. A cold in the head immediately disappears when Cream Balm is used. Ely Brother, 56 Warren Street New York.

Educate Your Bowels With Cascarets.

Candy Cathartic, cure constipation forever. 10c, 25c. If C. C. C. fail, druggists refund money.

—Order your seafood at Rogers, for your Friday's dinner.

GOOD GOLF WAS PLAYED

PRELIMINARY ROUND FOR THE CHAPMAN CUP SATURDAY.

Most Expert of Hillside Club Were Out—Tie for Eighth Position—Exciting Competition for Election Day.

Despite the rather cool weather of Saturday last there was a large crowd of golf enthusiasts at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. Aside from the event of the day, the preliminary round for the Chapman cup, a large number arranged individual matches. The preliminary round for the cup brought out a goodly number of contestants, all anxious to be among the first eight to qualify for the first round play which takes place election day. The contest was very close through out and good scores were made. Play was from scratch and this fact had a tendency to bring out the best players in the club.

One interesting feature of the play was the tie between T. R VanBuskerek and D H Rowland for eighth position. Both scored 104, and they will have to play off the tie before tomorrow's play, so as to determine which one shall take part in the first round to be played tomorrow. Those who contested and their scores in Saturday's play is as follows: C. W. Fisk, 90; J. W. Baker, 94; W. L Glenney, 94; A. R Fisk, 96; F. L. Schoonmaker, 96; P. W. Mason, 97; Oscar Fleming, 101; T. R. VanBuskerek, 104; D. H. Rowland, 104; H R. Stockton, 106; B. M. Shepard, 106; D. H. Taylor, 116

Tomorrow the first and semi-final play for the Chapman Cup will be played, and there will be one hot golf feature that will no doubt bring out a large number of golfers. There will also be social features at the clubhouse.

CHURCH CONSECRATED.

St. Patrick's at Elizabethport, Solemnly Dedicated by Bishop Wigger.

The crowning work of Father Martin Gessner's lifetime was the consecration Sunday at Elizabethport of St. Patrick's church, after twelve years and six months of hard work. Seated in a front pew were Governor Voorhees, United States Senator Kean and Mayor Mack. The consecration services began at 6 o'clock in the morning, and were not ended until 9:30 The consecration was performed by Bishop Wigger, assisted by many priests. The celebrant of the solemn pontifical mass afterward was Archbishop Corrigan, of New York, and the sermon was preached by Bishop McQuade, of Rochester.

The new church cost $600 000 and is built of Maine granite. The cornerstone was laid in May, 1897 The three floors in the church cost $48,000 and the organ $10 000, while the statuary and the forty four stained glass windows, imported from Europe, cost many thousands of dollars.

CHAMBER CONCERT.

Prof. Ward Stevens Arranging for His Second Annual Affair.

Plainfield music lovers are looking forward with great pleasure to the second chamber music concert to be given under the direction of Mr. Ward Stephens at the Y. M. C. A. Hall Tuesday evening, November 14th. Mr Stephens' first of chamber music concert, given in Plainfield last May, was a brilliant artistic success and there is every reason to believe that this one will be also. The following artists will appear:

The Richard Arnold String Quartette, Miss Adele Baxter, soprano; Francis Carrier, baritone; Leo Tanesalg, 'cellist; Ward Stephens, pianist.

THIRTEEN NEW MEMBERS.

Grace M. E. Church Forces Increased Considerably Sunday.

Thirteen persons were added to the membership of Grace M. E. church Sunday morning, two on probation, nine from probation into full membership, and two by letter. The attendance at the communion service was large as was also the evening congregation.

Rev. Thomas Houston, the "blind evangelist," will assist the pastor in a series of evangelistic meetings beginning with Wednesday evening, Nov. 15th and continuing until Nov. 25th.

Credit for Mr. Brown.

At the meeting of the Borough Council Friday evening proper credit was not given to Collector George F Brown for his good work in collecting taxes. For the first time in the history of the borough in many years the Council expended over $12 000 and not a penny was borrowed. This is partly due to the collector. Proper credit should be given to the taxpayers for responding so promptly

A Success.

The sale of home-made cakes by the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church, at the home of Miss Woodruff, East Second street, Saturday afternoon, was a very gratifying success.

Open Cars in a Storm.

Last week when it was storming the very hardest open trolley cars were run on the Netherwood line, much to the discomfort and inconvenience of people who were obliged to ride.

VIKINGS OUTPLAYED BY ALIS ELEVEN

Local Team Won By a Score Of 22 to 0.

ON THE MARTINE COMMON.

IT WAS SUPERIOR TEAM PLAY THAT DID THE WORK.

Score Would Have Been Larger But Game Was Cut Short to Allow Visitors to Catch the Train—Green's Great Run of Half the Length of the Field—Taylor Made Big Gains—Visitors Were On Defensive.

Victory was an easy thing for the Alls football team in the game with the Vikings of the Bayonne A. C. on Martine Common Saturday afternoon. Superior team play gave the Alls boys the game by a score of 22 to 0. But for the fact that the second half was cut short so that the visitors might catch their train, the local players might have rolled up even a larger score.

The Vikings were really the second team of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club and included some excellent material. They outweighed the Alls boys and did some excellent tackling and blocking. Their offensive work was decidedly weak, however, and the Alls team managed to keep the ball most of the time. The game was an interesting one and was witnessed by several hundred people who were very enthusiastic over the hard and fast playing of the Alls combination.

The Vikings took the western goal while Alls kicked off. The ball was steadily carried back to the centre of the field and gradually worked up against the wind to the Viking goal. It was then evident that the team play of the local team was going to win without much trouble. The visitors tackled brilliantly when they got a chance but the interference carried the rumor for a substantial gain on almost every play. With one or two stops the ball was carried on it the Viking territory was reached and then Taylor went through the line for a touchdown for the Alls team. Phillips kicked the goal. Score—Alls 6; Viking, 0.

It took five minutes to make the first goal and as much more to carry the ball down the field again and push Taylor over the line for a second touchdown. Phillips failed to kick the goal. Score—Alls, 11, Vikings, 0.

For the remaining ten minutes of play the visitors braced up slightly and tried to hold the Alls boys back. Taylor did some great work in bucking the line, while Green made several pretty plays. Cuming did not show up for the first half and Woolston went back to fill his place at half. Beard playing end. Time was called with the ball in Alls' possession on Vikings twenty-yard line.

The Vikings kicked off in the second half and George Smith picked up the ball and ran with it after fumbling it He collided with a Viking runner and both were stunned. After the first three plays, Cuming took his old place behind the line and Woolston returned to end. Cuming was fresh and made good gains. The Alls boys played harder and took the ball right down the field. Green circled left and behind good interference and made 50 yards before Jacobson could pull him down. It would be a touchdown but for the fact that Jacobson made a clever tackle. Dumont, on a trick, covered the remaining fifteen yards for a touchdown, the kick failing. Score—Alls, 16; Vikings, 0.

The visitors tried punting once and a good gale resulted. Had the Viking boys kicked more in the first half, they might have prevented such an easy victory. Taylor continued to distinguish himself by his fine work in line-bucking. He made a good share of the gains for the Alls. Again the ball travelled right down the field and Cuming went around the end for ten yards and a touchdown. Phillips kicked the goal. Score—Alls, 22; Vikings, 0.

The game was called after ten minutes of play so that the visitors might catch a train. It was so dark that the men found difficulty in keeping watch on the entire teams.

They lined up as follows:—

	VIKINGS.
Woolston Beard	right end	Goodwin
Waring	right guard	O. Jacobson
G. Smith	centre	Tuttle
Green	left guard	Delaplaine
Taylor	left tackle	Taft
F. Smith	left end	Howe II
Dumont	quarter back	Nott
Cuming	right half back	Knight
Cuming-Woolston
	left half back	Jennings
Phillips	full back	H. Jacobson

Score—Alls, 22; Vikings, 0. Touchdowns—Taylor (2), Dumont and Cuming. Goal on touchdowns—Phillips (2). Referee—John Glass, of Westfield. Umpire—Arthur H. Bergell, of Plainfield. Timekeeper—A. Wills West, of Plainfield.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

NO.	CURES.	PRICES.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Gripings, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
19	Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping Cough	.25
21	Asthma, Difficult Breathing	.25
22	Ear Discharges, Earache	.25
23	Scrofula, Swellings and Ulcers	.25
24	General Debility, Weakness, Nervousness	.25
25	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Disease	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
29	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
30	Urine Wetting Bed	.25
31	Painful Menses, Pruritus	.25
32	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitations	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34	Scarlet Fever, Scarlatina, Diphtheria	.25
35	Chronic Congestions, Headaches	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at Your Druggists or Mailed Free.

Sold by druggists, or sent on receipt of price. Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL "THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding. Itching or Blind, Itching or Bleeding of the Rectum. The relief is immediate—the cure certain.

PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent postpaid on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

Preserves

—fruits, jellies, pickles or catsup are not worth making unless they keep healthfully—sealed with Refined Paraffine Wax. Insure against mold or fermentation. Dozens of other uses will be found for it.

Refined Paraffine Wax

In every household. It is clean, economical and convenient to use. To avoid waste, cut a pound cake of it with a hot knife. Sold by grocers and druggists. Made by STANDARD OIL CO.

DIED.

CASH—In this city, Oct. 31, 1899, at her late residence, 125 South avenue, Mrs. Margaret Cash, aged 84 years.

EBERLEY—In this city, Nov. 1, 1899, David, son of Jacob and Christine Eberley, aged 8 months, 22 days.

BROWER—In this city, Friday, Nov. 3, 1899, William H. Brower, aged 58 years.

WANTS AND OFFERS.

LOST—On 17th, black and tan Shepherd dogs, brothers, bushy tails; ten dollars reward return or information at 637 East Sixth street, Plainfield. 10 31 2 c11 2

MASONIC HOME INVESTIGATED.

Charges Made by Inmates Considered Trivial.

The epidemic of investigations in New Jersey has reached the Masonic Home, just outside of Burlington. The home committee of the grand lodge of New Jersey made a secret investigation.

The charges that are made are all of a trifling character, but there are enough of them to indicate that the officers of the home are not working together in harmony. Those residing in the home charge favoritism. One man complained that he was discriminated against because, he alleges, he was always forced to eat dark meat of the chicken and never got any white meat.

Another found fault with the way his roast beef was cut. He preferred it thin and well done. Somebody sent to the home some bottled ginger ale of a rival brand. It did not suit one of the users.

Another man complained that his room was so located that he could not get sun on all days.

Several complained that they were so restricted in their actions that they were as badly confined as convicts in the State penitentiary.

A member of the home committee said, "The faultfinders are getting too numerous in the home. We gave the home a snake up, and there will be no more faultfinding."

A Chain, but No Watch.

Chief Marshal Campbell, of the borough, is now wearing a very handsome watch chain, but he refuses to tell how he got it. The supposition is that it was presented to him as a token of esteem in honor of his birthday anniversary. The officer is contesting for a gold watch, and he hopes to be able to wear the watch and chain together.

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE.

Between Front and Second streets.

Tinners,

Plumbers

Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,

Brick and Portable Furnace

Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,

Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in all cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues. First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 361 West Front street, to South side of Somerset street, first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

A Free Trip to Paris!

Suitable persons of a mechanical or inventive mind may secure a free trip to the Paris Exposition of 1900, with good salary and expenses all included. Write for particulars to THE PARIS EXPOSITION BUREAU, Baltimore, Md.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS COPYRIGHTS &c.

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of Information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public with out cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free.

Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue,

Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale or Exchange Money to loan on Approved Security

STORY OF OOM PAUL.

SKETCH OF A WONDERFUL PUBLIC CHARACTER.

He Is a Hunter, a Philosopher, a Preacher and a Statesman—Has Great Wealth Although He Lives in a Modest Little Cottage.

Stephanus Johnnes Paulus Kruger, President of the Transvaal, is the most interesting public character of the day. Upon being introduced you first conclude that he has been greatly over-estimated. He seems nothing more than a shrewd old hunter, who, by constant contact with wild animals and savage Kaffirs, has developed a wariness that makes him suspicious of everything and everybody. He does not have the "penetrating eye" usually ascribed to great men. On the contrary, a puff of flesh underneath his eyes, as a rule, permits one to see but a narrow gleam giving one the expression of shiftiness.

Kruger has more short and slender that you wonder how they bear the weight of a heavy, thick and solid body. His head is big, with nose and ears to match and his neck, concealed by beard, hair and coat collar, so that you cannot determine whether or not he indulges in neck wear. At home he is usually puffing a short briar pipe and as he handles this you notice that the thumb of his left and is missing. There is a story in connection with this that his Honor will tell you between puffs if he is in the mood. It gives an idea of the spirit which is a characteristic of the old Boers.

Mr. Kruger, when a young man, was out hunting one day with a rifle which had not been used for a long time. While tinkering with a charge the gun exploded, tearing his left thumb in shreds. Kruger's companions wanted him to fire up the hunt and hurry to the nearest surgeon, but the intrepid young Boer refused. Taking out his hunting knife he placed the lacerated thumb on the edge of a table and amputated it himself. By tying about the stump a piece of rawhide he stopped the flow of blood, and, winding around it a red handkerchief, he continued the sport.

[President Kruger.]

All through his life Kruger has had narrow escapes from death, and his career, if detailed fully, would be thrilling. When only fourteen years old he and his little sister strayed away from the laager down in Cape Colony, where the elder Kruger had settled on emigrating from Germany, and while playing were suddenly attacked by a leopard. Young Kruger's only weapon was a jackknife, and shielding his sister with one arm, he met the vicious spring of the leopard with the other, and after a bloody struggle succeeded in stabbing it to death.

His first duty, he believes, is to God, and his second to Rhodes, whom he detests like a poisonous reptile. But for Rhodes, Mr. Kruger says, all would be peace and quietness in the Transvaal so long as this man is in South Africa there is no rest for the Boers, and their secret service reports have him found on every street in Johannesburg, on the lookout for Uitlander conspirators.

Kruger, in addition to his other accomplishments, is by far the best preacher in the Transvaal, and the Dutch Reformed Church boasts of some capable men there. He occupies the pulpit in a modern brick edifice across the street from his home about once a month, and always talks to standing room only. He uses no notes, but speaks off-hand from a text, and does not hesitate to sprinkle a little humor in the discourse. In his speeches before the Raad he quotes scriptures generously, and even more so in conversation.

As for his private life, that seems to be exemplary. After riding he prays for a long time in his room, and, "talks over with the Lord" the questions of the day. When he develops a conviction in this way he proceeds to act upon it. Kruger's piety once nearly cost him his life. A good many years ago he suddenly disappeared, and when he failed to show up a searching party was made up to hunt for him. At the end of three days they found the future President, who was then a field cornet, lying face down on the open veldt. He had been praying three days and nights steadily, without food or water, and was nearly dead.

Mr. Kruger is now 76 years old, and has been elected to the Presidency four times. His salary is $35,000, with $1,500 for "extras." This he drinks black, and so hot that the burghers say it will scald the hair off a dog. His life has certainly been a remarkable one, and a different one from that has been a farmer, herdsman, hunter, soldier, clergyman, ambassador, trimvir, financier, head of the army, and is now serving his fourth term as President.

Mrs. Kruger has been Mr. Kruger's constant helpmate through all the years of his life, and the high reputation for each other seems to have grown with each succeeding year. She is Mr. Kruger's second wife. Kruger's first wife was a cousin named Miss Du Plessis, and bore him one son, who died. Sixteen children were the fruit of this second marriage, and of those seven are living. The girls are comfortably married to burghers in and about Pretoria, and the boys take an active interest in the army. One son-in-law, Eloff, has made himself famous by building the most expensive mansion in South Africa. He has accrued a fortune in real estate operations, and is supposed to be worth $2,000,000. One of Kruger's sons acts as his secretary and another is captain of an infantry company. Mr. and Mrs. Kruger live in a little two-story cottage, painted white and covered in front with morning glory vines.

NEVER TO BE FORGOTTEN.

Terrible Discomforts of Post Cart Traveling in South Africa.

In the old days, while in South Africa, the traveler had to trust himself to the tender mercies of the post contractor, and we did so, as a rule, in fear and trembling. There were, as in all else, degrees in the various services, but the man who could have found pleasure in a trip even on the best roads must have indeed possessed a disposition of which Mark Tapley might have been proud. In some of the services on the principal routes from the Cape Colony and Natal the carts were well horsed, the drivers were thoroughly up to their work and the conditions were made as desirable as was possible under the circumstances. But the carts had been built to suit the roads, the space was strictly limited, and the mails would absorb a considerable quantity of this space, and the unfortunate passenger, jammed in between the mails and the conditions were made as desirable as was possible under the circumstances. But the carts had been built to suit the roads, the space was strictly limited, and the mails would absorb a considerable quantity of this space, and the unfortunate passenger, jammed in between the mails and the other unfortunates, his knees compressed against a pile of bags and his back sore from constant friction against the send, would sit in the silent agony until his destination was reached.

The start from the town was always of the same nature. Four or six horses would stand pawing the ground while a couple of Hottentots would hang on to their heads, the driver would gather the reins and call for the whip, the boys would spring to one side, and the equipage would disappear in a cloud of dust in the distance. Sometimes lines broke and a short "jambok" and prepare for business. Tender-hearted travelers would at first sympathize with the mules; later on the sympathy would be transferred to the wretched boy who had to urge them on, by jumping down from the cart every few minutes, and running alongside the animals and belaboring them.

After a time the traveler's sympathy for both would have vanished, and he would mentally consign both to the nether world. Like the Irish farvey, the post cart driver firmly believed in "saving a trot for the awnse," and by the time he arrived into the village in a blaze of glory, the driver awakening the echoes with a shrill blast from his bugle.

The village would turn out to see "the cart come in," and the postmaster would pull himself together and assume a severe judicial expression as of one who had weighty business on his hands. Then the cart would pull up at the post office and disgorge the mail, and would then make for the hotel, and the traveler would alight to be welcomed by the host at the hospitable portals. The village would by this time be at the post office clamoring for their letters, and the pleasant remarks as to the dilatoriness of the postmaster, heedless of the storm within, would be wafted like a galley slave inside. The little window would at length be thrown open and the public would receive their mail. The postmaster would draw a breath of relief and retire into the innermost recesses of his dwelling, and peaceful night would once more settle down on the village.—South African Ex.

NUTRITIOUS FOODS.

Beef and Eggs Must Step Down From Their High Place.

Professor Atwater, who has devoted himself to the study for a number of years, declares that there is no single perfect food, the nearest approach to it being milk. No food, however, contains the essential constituents in right proportions, and thus we have to get what we want by combining our foods.

It will be a great shock to many thrifty housewives to learn that beef and eggs are among the greatest of all economical mistakes. A single dollar spend in wheat-flour will yield as much nutrition as $20 spent on sirloin of beef. Sugar ranks next to wheat-flour as an economical food, for a dollar's worth of sugar contains as much nutriment as $10 worth of milk, $12 worth of eggs, or $40 worth of oysters. In proportion to their cost oysters are almost the least nutritious of all foods. Potatoes, on the other hand, run a close race for the third place among valuable and cheap foods, and the fourth place is shared between fat, salt pork and cheese made from skimmed milk.

Wasted Energy.

Do you know a man who twiddles his thumbs all the time he talks to you or hits his desk, or possibly the watch chain which he wears? Perhaps he does not do any of these things, he does something equally annoying.

It may be that you yourself, when you sit thinking what you will say next to your shorthand clerk, beat time with the tips of your finger nails while she taps her keys.

All these little idosyncrasies the neurologist classes as physical autonomisms and regards as energy wasters.

Probably you will find yourself avoiding or stepping on cracks, or counting the number of bricks or the posts flying past the windows, grouping uniformly recurring shapes in wall paper or bisecting lines and rows of figures. The great Napoleon counted windows as he walked abroad, and if he happened to lose count his temper was completely upset for the rest of his walk. Everybody knows the story of poor old Dr. Johnson, who counted posts, and many sad, insane men are doing the same to-day. One should avoid as much as possible this tendency of mind and body to dissipate valuable energy.

Pie That "Ate" Well.

Ted's friend treated him to a piece of pie. It was so good that he wanted another, but thought that it would not be polite to ask for it. So he sidled up to her and said: "Miss Tirk, that pie eats well."

EXPERT TO INSPECT BOROUGH ACCOUNTS.

The Council Appropriates $100 For the Purpose.

TALK ABOUT SIDEWALKS

DIFFERENCE OF OPINIONS ABOUT SENDING OUT NOTICES.

It Is Said That the Present Ordinance Is Invalid and It Was Decided to Have a New One Drawn Up and Passed—Report of Collector Brown—Two New Ordinances Were Adopted

For a time it looked as though the meeting of the Borough Council would not be held last Friday on account of the severe storm. It was nearing the hour of meeting, and those present included only Mayor Smalley, Councilman Coddington and Clerk Rowley. Just before 8 o'clock in came all of the other members of the Council, with the exception of Mr. Rogers, and he failed to attend.

Soon after the session was called and Clerk Rowley presented the report of Collector Geo. F. Brown as follows: Taxes and interest, $7,600.71; Board of Health, $94.41; special school, $3,154.72; Watchung avenue, $638.32; rent of borough property, $50; bills payable in notes, $580; clerk, for stone and labor on streets, $27.44; fines, $2; total, $12,067.60; balance on hand October 1st, $2,603.23; disbursements, $4,039.68; cash on hand November 1st, $10,571.75; borough fund, $10,384.03; Watchung avenue fund, $187.72; received from Recorder as fines for October, $4.

Mayor Smalley appointed James Black, the janitor of Watchung School, as special marshal, and the same was confirmed. The report of the street committee was then called for and Mr. Clark presented it. It showed that during October $110.45 was expended for street work and $21.55 was spent for crushed stone. The total expenditures for the month amounted to $132.35, and there is a balance in the street committee fund of $711.90.

At this time two new ordinances were adopted on the third reading, and another ordinance repealing one relating to peace, morals and good order of the borough, were put through the first reading, to take the place of the one repealed, and the other provides for people guilty of vagrancy, prostitution, etc.

Mr. Valiant called from the table a resolution providing for the expenditure of $150 for the purpose of having the books of the collector and clerk audited. He then stated that he knew of an expert who had volunteered his services for this work, and that the expense would be very slight. He at first thought it would be well to let the auditing committee have the benefit of the $150 although he was sure the expenses would not be as much as that. He claimed that the amount expended would establish the precedent and not the amount appropriated.

Mr. Clark spoke on the subject and stated that not long ago an up-to-date system of bookkeeping was introduced which simplifies matters, and he hardly thought it necessary to employ an expert. At the same time he would concur with Mr. Valiant provided the services of an expert would lessen the burdens of the auditing committee and would not run into any necessary expense. On Mr. Clark's amendment to the original motion the sum of $100 was appropriated for this work.

The Council discussed briefly the question of a crosswalk on Brook avenue at the corner of Westervelt avenue, but nothing was done in the matter. Mr. Clark stated that walks were being laid on Duer street, Manning avenue, Jackson avenue and other streets.

This discussion led Mr. Valiant to say that he thought the Council was retrograding in regard to the laying of crosswalks and sidewalks, and he believed that steps should be taken to prosecute this work.

Regarding this Mr. Clark stated his side as chairman of the street committee. He said that Borough Council Reed informed him that the procedure last year in compelling people to lay walks was invalid. It was recently learned by the street committee that notices had been sent out from the office of the Borough Council compelling people to lay walks. Inquiry was made about the matter and Mr. Reed denied that the notices had been sent out. Further inquiry revealed the fact that they were sent out from that office. Mr. Clark said that Mr. Reed had knowledge of this matter, but has not imparted that knowledge to the Council. It lays with Mr. Reed to draw up a suitable ordinance compelling the laying of walks and when he does the street committee stands ready to proceed with the work.

These remarks were concurred in by the Mayor and other members, and it was finally agreed that Mr. Clark should see that a suitable ordinance is drafted by the Borough Council.

After the Council voted an appropriation of $15 for repairs on a Manning avenue house which is being rented by the borough, the Council adjourned. The $15 will be charged against the property.

MANIAC HUNTED DOWN.

Farmer Surrounded by an Armed Posse and Brought to Somerville, Thence to Scotch Plains.

Nathaniel Watt, a raving maniac, who has been confined in a padded cell in the Somerset county jail, was heavily ironed and taken to the insane asylum at Trenton Thursday by Assistant Chief of Police Koch and Detective Totten, of Somerville.

Watt is over 60 years old and is of powerful build. He was formerly foreman in the Bound Brook Woolen Mills. Recently he has lived a retired life on a small farm in the Watchung Mountains, near Chimney Rock, as he was subject to epilepsy. He was cared for in their little home by his aged wife. He became suddenly insane and attempted to kill her with a chair. She escaped to the woods unharmed and concealed herself, while the madman roamed the mountains in search of her.

He was quickly pursued by a posse of farmers headed by Constable Sebring, of Bound Brook. When he was surrounded in the rocks it took the combined efforts of the posse to capture and subdue him.

He was chained in a farm wagon and brought across the country to Somerville

STOCKHOLDERS LOSE.

The Bank Receiver Hoped to Realize Something on Pidcock's Paper, but Evidently Cannot.

The stockholders of the defunct Somerset County Bank, of Somerville, have given up all hope of realizing on the $50,000 worth of former Congressman J. Nelson Pidcock's paper which the receiver for that institution has held for three years.

Mr. Pidcock recently filed an insolvency petition in the United States District Court at Trenton, in which he stated that he owes upwards of $350 000 and has absolutely nothing with which to meet the claims.

The late William Johnston, of Trenton, who was appointed receiver of the bank, investigated Pidcock's affairs and informed the stockholders that it was his belief that they would ultimately realize on the ex Congressman's paper. Pidcock's latest action blights the hopes of a number of people who had their savings invested in the bank stock.

QUITS THE ATTRACTION.

Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W., Combined Business With Pleasure.

The disagreeable weather Friday did not prevent a good attendance at Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W. After the business meeting, at which one application was received, some of the members indulged in the usual game of quoits. Messrs. Laing and Nash, who were pitted against Messrs. Forrestell and Compton, won by a score of 17 to 21. The contest between Laing and Compton against Woodruff and Forrestell, resulted in a victory for the latter team by a score of 20 to 21. Kenney and Woodruff then outpointed Laing and Forrestell by a score of 21 to 17. Single matches were played between Messrs. Nash, Compton and Forrestell, the former winning by scores of 20 to 21 and 21 and 19. Eugene M. Laing won the assessment prize.

TO SAVE NEW BRUNSWICK.

Revival of That Army Which Tries To Frighten The Devil Away.

Captain Thomas Herdmen and wife, of Trenton, have revived the Salvation Army in New Brunswick. This organization, once an important factor here, became disrupted by the secession of the American Volunteers, and for a year the barracks of both organizations have been closed.

Captain Herdmen was detached from the Army in Trenton to try to stir up things in New Brunswick. Captain Her men's record shows him to be a man of determination, the Trenton police having arrested him a number of times for holding open air meetings in violation of a city ordinance.

Work in the Y. M. C. A.

At Thursday's monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. written reports were received from the committee on religious, educational, and boy's work; also on membership and rooms. A partial report was made on the recent anniversary. A vote of thanks was tendered to Rev. Mr. Atkinson of St. John's church, Elizabeth, and to Frank Smith, army and navy secretary of the Y. M. C. A., for their interesting addresses at the recent anniversary.

May Lay Their Mains.

At a meeting of the Board of Freeholders Thursday afternoon, Director Hubbard in the chair, the entire board present, the Short Hills Water Company petitioned for the right to lay and maintain castiron water mains on Morris avenue, Springfield township. On motion of Mr. Roll the petition was granted, with the proviso that the work be done under the supervision of the county engineer and county road inspector.

VETERAN FLORIST HAS PASSED AWAY.

William H. Brower Died in This City Friday Night.

ONE OF OLDEST COMMUTERS

RESIDED IN PLAINFIELD FOR QUARTER OF CENTURY.

Was Born in New York and was First a Builder and Contractor—Started as a Florist in New York in 1853—Came to Scotch Plains Shortly After the War and Then Moved to Plainfield.

After an active career of more than the allotted three score and ten years William Hulse Brower, a resident of Plainfield for a quarter of a century, passed quietly away Friday evening at 431 West Sixth street, where he had been boarding for the past year. At the time of his death Mr. Brower was the oldest living florist in New York city, and one of the oldest commuters on the Jersey Central Railroad. He leaves a host of friends to mourn his loss.

Mr. Brower was born in New York city August 4, 1826. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Brower. When he was a young lad the family went to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where he spent his boyhood days and afterwards became a carpenter and builder there.

In 1849, he was married to Miss Hearst at Poughkeepsie by Rev. Dr. J. Hyatt Smith. They continued to reside there until a few years later, Mr. Brower went out of business and went to New York where he entered into partnership with several New York business men and established a florist store. The business grew and finally Mr. Brower became sole owner. The location of the store was changed several times. Finally it was moved in 1862 from the St. Nicholas Hotel to its present site in the narrow block between Fifth avenue and Broadway, ust below Twenty-third street, and is now doing a successful business under the name of W. H. Brower & Sons. As they grew old enough Mr. Brower took his three sons into partnership with him.

When he first went into business in New York Mr. Brower made his home in that city but, at the close of the Civil War, he moved to Scotch Plains, commuting over the Central road daily.

While in Scotch Plains he was prominent in affairs of the town. He was one of the organizers of the fire company there and was made foreman of the company. A staunch Republican, he played an important part in local politics. He was very popular in the county and was nominated by the Republicans as candidate for County Clerk. The campaign was a hot one and he was only defeated by a small majority.

In 1875, Mr. Brower and his family moved to this city where he has made his home ever since. Mr. and Mrs. Brower have always boarded since they came to Plainfield.

Mr Brower was a very enthusiastic sportsman and was particularly fond of fishing. His vacations were usually spent near the haunts of the trout and bass, and he was a frequent visitor at the preserves of the Mountain Fish and Game Club in Maine. He was exceedingly popular with the members of that organization. He retained his love for the sport to the last.

He was a Freemason. He was a regular attendant at the Congregational church, this city, as long as his health permitted and was at one time a member of the board of trustees. He was in good health until four years ago when he was suddenly stricken down and it was feared that he would not recover. He gradually improved but has never recovered fully since. Of late his health would not permit his regular attendance at business. A month ago he began to grow worse and the last few days was confined to his bed. Yesterday afternoon he sank rapidly and the end came at 7 o'clock. Brights disease was the immediate cause.

Mr. Brower had a host of friends all over the country. He was very popular in all circles and was particularly well known in this city by the older residents. He leaves three sons, John L. Brower, of Westwood, N. J., William I Brower, of New York City, and Lorenzo D. Brower, of Bayside, L. I. There was a daughter, the first child, who died when she was only a child.

A few months ago Mr. and Mrs Brower celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at the home of their son at Bayside, L. I.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the late residence.

Told of His Trip to Manila.

Captain Morrison delivered an interesting lecture at the North Plainfield High School Thursday morning, telling something of his trip to Manila. He spoke on the condition of the islands, described the people there and had considerable to say about Admiral Dewey. He presented the school with a fragment of one of the vessels of the Spanish fleet destroyed by Dewey.

A DOUBLE CHIN.

If It Should Offend Thee, Have a Surgeon Cut It Off.

It is no longer necessary for women to suffer annoyance or chagrin from the double chin that so often accompanies good living and advancing age. Simpler and more effective than massage, diet and other prescribed treatments is the surgical operation which removes the superfluous flesh, and leaves no blight. A scar that in a short time it disappears entirely. A New York woman who underwent the operation says: "I went to an eminent surgeon. He examined my neck, and said, 'Bosh! That is nothing.' Then he listened to my heart, and declared that I could take anaesthetics with perfect safety. My double chin had been the bane of my existence for years. I dreaded the operation, but I made up my mind to submit to heroic measures rather than to endure continuous mortification. So to the hospital I went. The surgeon and his assistants were polite and considerate, yet the whole thing seemed terribly formidable. I had thought of backing out even then, but the surgeon gave me an encouraging word, and I marched to the operating table like a lamb to the slaughter.

After that I knew nothing until I awoke in my room with my head swathed in stuff, that made me look like a mummy. The bandages that went around my chin and over my head were so constricting that I stiffened after they were in place and held my head as if it were in a plaster cast. Outside of that came yards and yards of something like gauze. I felt a little sick from the ether, but otherwise I had no pain. But I dreaded the day when the bandages should be removed. I thought that would kill me. To my surprise, the doctor unwound and unwound the bandage until my throat was bare, and not a bit of sticking had there been. The vaseline, or something like it, which had been applied on the first layer of cloth had prohibited that. Then I was bandaged up afresh, but not so rigidly as at first. In ten days I was able to leave the hospital, and in a fortnight more no one would have known that anything had happened to me, except that I had lost my double chin, a result that causes general comment upon my improved appearance and untold satisfaction to myself. If I should begin to lay on flesh there again I would think no more of going to the hospital to have it removed than of going to the chiropodist, or the manicurist.

CROKER'S CIGARS.

How a Senator Prevented the Discovery of The Real Donor.

At the Hoffman House they are talking of a scandal in Richard Croker's district which is said to have started shortly after the elevation of one of the jurists of Tammany Hall to a seat in one of the minor Courts this gentleman decided it would be a kind and delicate thing to do to supply Richard Croker a sufficient number of cigars for his daily consumption. Therefore, whenever an opportunity offered, he slipped a handful of perfectos into the pocket of the Democratic leader and thought no more of it. Croker, of course, was very much surprised when he put his hand in his pocket to find a lot of cigars, but the story runs that he was never able to catch the man who put them there. When Mr. Croker became a daily visitor at the Democratic club, and it was the custom for all of his overcoat and hang it on a certain peg every night, he found a pocket of the coat fairly filled with cigars to put it on.

According to the story, an eminent State Senator discovered this strange custom. So one evening, while awaiting the last call for the club, he noticed on which hook the coat was hung. He took it off, hung it on another hook, and substituted his own coat, on the pocket of which the jurist was fooled and the Senator got the cigars. But that would not have been so bad had it not happened on this particular night that a Democratic chieftain was anxious to discover who it was who kept him supplied with so fine a brand of cigars. For the purpose of ascertaining, some of his friends made note of the absentees each night. Of course, if a man was not there he could not have put the cigars in the coat.

By this process of elimination on this particular night but two members were left under suspicion. One of these was the eminent jurist, and on that evening the Democratic leader found no cigars in his pocket, thus relieving the jurist of suspicion. The other member under suspicion was not there at all, so it was decided that he must be it.—New York Correspondent Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Isolation for the Church Mutineer.

"Perhaps the most effectual system with the mutineer in the church," writes Ian Maclaren in the November Ladies' Home Journal, "is not scolding and storming, but a policy of isolation. As nature makes a cyst and incloses any strange material so that it does not penetrate the whole body, let this man be imprisoned in a place by himself. If he should offer any remarks to you, though he will never answer on the state of the weather; and if he criticises a sermon, say that you are sorry to hear it, but you cannot talk about it to speak at a church meeting, let the silence be such as will be felt, and after he has spoken let the chairman call for the next business, as though he had never existed. If he has ever to be spoken to, the best plan is to treat him as an absurdity, and play around him with ridicule. Nothing will punish him innocent amusement to other people, and it is the particular attack which he cannot stand. Between loneliness and laughter he will depart to another church."

Small for His Age.

"Grandfather," said a saucy little boy the other day, "how old are you?"

The old gentleman, who was much under the average size, took the child between his knees and said: "My dear boy, I am 85 years old, but why do you ask?"

The little fellow replied: "Well, it seems to me you are very small for your age."

At meetings of the British Cabinet no official record is kept of the proceedings

THE HABITS OF FISH

WAYS OF THE SALMON, THE COD AND THE BLUEFISH.

Some Are Romantic, But Others Are Practical—The Cod Is Actually Ridiculous—Clams Are Silly, of Course—Bluefish Are Warlike.

It is not too much to say that in some ways the love of salmon passes that of women. To reach the object of their affection they perform feats and undergo hardships greater than any man could do or bear, and to mature it they fight with a courage and fury which might make many soldiers envious.

The salmon trials begin when they first leave the sea on their long upriver journey to meet their sweethearts. Presently, perhaps, they meet a high waterfall. Then the salmon backs away as far as possible, makes a locomotive-like rush and leaps for the top. He sometimes misses the mark, and his tail is moving like lightning, his scales shine like silver enamel. Perhaps he fails to reach the top by a foot, but his curved body is only suspended for a moment, and then with miraculous strength forces his way up and reaches the quiet water beyond.

Perhaps the next waterfall is five feet higher, and the salmon leaps in vain. Then, finding the feat impossible, he actually climbs the sides, jumping up from ledge to ledge and resting in little pools until the water shows no more falls. Then he starts, pushing through rapids and floundering over shallows until the spawning ground is reached. In many of the larger rivers the salmon undergo a common is no beauty when he reaches his journey's end. His scales, perhaps, are torn off, his fins torn and his body a mass of bruises. But nevertheless he woes his ladylove boldly, caresses her tenderly, fights his rivals fiercely and wins his bride like a soldier.

But all fish are not so romantic. The codfish, for instance, is unsentimental and actually ridiculous He is a great, gray, ugly fish, and his name itself is absurd. If there was such a thing as submarine humor one would figure in it as the goat does in our comics. The codfish has, in fact, an appetite which makes the goat look like a dude. And the fishermen cut the fish open they assert that they often find such things as scissors, suspender buckles, horseshoes, potato parings, oil cans, doorknobs, marlin spikes, corn cobs and India rubber shoes.

Another startling story told by fishermen is that in heavy weather codfish at once go to the bottom there, as it is more likely that these rocks are taken in while attached to sea anemones, of which the codfish is very fond. It may be inferred that codfish do not object to nibble the fingers or hands of human beings, because the wedding ring of Mrs. Lancaster was once found in a cod's stomach, and the finder got £50 reward for its return.

Oysters and clams in the shell are very popular with the codfish, and there are vast heaps of dead shells in the ocean, "nested" together like strawberry boxes, which are the result of the once feasts in the stomachs of codfish. The appetites of these fish are insatiable. They will fill their stomachs to the very lipsts and then their mouths with food and still try to get more.

If people knew more about the fish they eat it is possible that a slice of boiled cod would not be eaten at all, with shuddering horror, for the bluefish is perhaps the most terrible and bloodthirsty thing in all nature. Pound for pound, it is more lawless, instinct on which he took the coat was hung. He took it off, hung it on another hook, and substituted his own coat, on the pocket of which the jurist was fooled and the Senator got the cigars. But that would not have been so bad had it not happened on this particular night that a Democratic chieftain was anxious to discover who it was who kept him supplied with so fine a brand of cigars. For the purpose of ascertaining, some of his friends made note of the absentees each night. Of course, if a man was not there he could not have put the cigars in the coat.

By this process of elimination on this particular night but two members were left under suspicion. One of these was the eminent jurist, and on that evening the Democratic leader found no cigars in his pocket, thus relieving the jurist of suspicion. The other member under suspicion was not there at all, so it was decided that he must be it.—New York Correspondent Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Isolation for the Church Mutineer.

"Perhaps the most effectual system with the mutineer in the church," writes Ian Maclaren in the November Ladies' Home Journal, "is not scolding and storming, but a policy of isolation. As nature makes a cyst and incloses any strange material so that it does not penetrate the whole body, let this man be imprisoned in a place by himself. If he should offer any remarks to you, though he will never answer on the state of the weather; and if he criticises a sermon, say that you are sorry to hear it, but you cannot talk about it to speak at a church meeting, let the silence be such as will be felt, and after he has spoken let the chairman call for the next business, as though he had never existed. If he has ever to be spoken to, the best plan is to treat him as an absurdity, and play around him with ridicule. Nothing will punish him innocent amusement to other people, and it is the particular attack which he cannot stand. Between loneliness and laughter he will depart to another church."

Small for His Age.

"Grandfather," said a saucy little boy the other day, "how old are you?"

The old gentleman, who was much under the average size, took the child between his knees and said: "My dear boy, I am 85 years old, but why do you ask?"

The little fellow replied: "Well, it seems to me you are very small for your age."

At meetings of the British Cabinet no official record is kept of the proceedings

Bank Notes Destroyed.

The Bank of England destroys about 250,000 of its notes every week, to replace them with freshly printed ones. One evening in each week is set apart for the making of this expensive bonfire.

Drink in France.

Since the sale of alcoholic liquors in France has been restricted, the number of drinking places have increased, until now there is one saloon for 85 inhabitants.

A scientist has calculated that the eyelids of the average man open and shut no fewer than 4,000,000 times in the course of a single year of his existence.

A GOOD DOCTOR, THEY SAY, BUT BORN ROGUE.

Dr. Bondy's Victims Ascribe Hypnotic Powers to Him.

POLICE ARE AFTER HIM.

USED SWINDLING AS A SIDE LINE TO HIS PROFESSION.

Now That He Has Disappeared Under a Cloud From Somerville the Police of Several Places are Looking For Him—While There He Was Visited by a Blonde Woman From Plainfield.

Is Dr. E. S. Bondy a hypnotist? A hundred of his victims in Somerville believe he exercised some occult power over them to obtain their money.

Dr. Bondy is a short, thick-set man, who walks with a limp, which he says is the result of a gun-shot wound in the right leg, which he received while serving in a foreign army. He is dark-visaged, with luminous eyes and a smile that captivates. He says he is a Bohemian, but he speaks five languages fluently, and his foreign friends have never been able to determine his nativity.

He is reputed by the druggists to have a superior knowledge of medicine. His success as a physician won for him in five months a lucrative practice in Somerville such as other physicians of the place have failed to gain in as many years.

Dr. Bondy might have gained a livelihood by legitimate means, but he is a born rogue, and has used swindling as a side line to his profession in the several towns in which he has operated along the line of the New Jersey Central Railroad during the past year. Since his escape from Detective McCann, of Somerville, last Friday night, the authorities of Bayonne, Plainfield, New Brunswick and other nearby towns, have been anxiously inquiring of the police department of his capture. The police of Bayonne report that his swindling operations there were extensive, and that he is wanted for jumping bail.

During Dr. Bondy's five months residence in Somerville he lived alone in his office at Raritan, but he was frequently visited by a blonde woman of remarkable beauty. This woman Bondy said was his wife, who lived on his farm near Plainfield.

Dr. Bondy has a string of bondsmen who are anxious about his capture. Among them is Lewis Klein, of Somerville, who bailed him for an offense committed in Newark.

MEN WERE IN CHARGE.

The Arranged a Pleasant Sociable at Methodist Church.

The men of the First Methodist church had their turn Thursday. At the request of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church they took charge and arranged a very enjoyable social that was held in Vincent chapel.

Rogers' orchestra was present during the evening and rendered a number of classical and popular selections.

George B. Cornwell, of New York, formerly one of the leading men of the congregation, was present and held an informal reception, for there were many who wished to see him and shake hands. Later in the evening the committee served ice cream and cake to their guests.

The general committee consisted of Henry A. McGee, chairman; G. M. Bittenhouse, N. A. Miller, J. E. Joy, Arthur Crone, Harry Gee, D.E. Davis, George A. Burgess and J.W. Jackson. A number of sub committees assisted in arranging the affair.

GUILD WAS IN CHARGE.

Entertainment Given in Y. M. C. A. Hall for Benefit of St. Stephen's Church.

A good-sized audience assembled at the Y. M. C. A. Hall last Thursday and enjoyed an entertainment given under the auspices of St Stephen's Guild. The programme included instrumental selections on the piano, Prof. Linder; ancient and modern magic, Yarrick; soprano solos, Miss Mabel E Jamison accompanied by her sister, Miss Ethel Jamison; original monologue and violin selection, Wm. "Josh" Daly; piano selection, Miss Helen A. Hasbrouck; dramatic recitals, B Russell Throckmorton, and illustrated songs, G. W. Johnstone, assisted by F W. Norris. The programme concluded with a number of slides depicting scenes in the recent Spanish-American War.

MURDERED MAN ONCE LIVED HERE.

Lived For Several Years in House on Belvidere Avenue.

Henry C. Hardy, grandfather of Frederick Hardy, Jr., who was murdered at Fort Hamilton October 22d, was a former resident of Plainfield. He lived for several years in the house on Belvidere avenue lately occupied by Constantine P Ruth. He was then a broker in Wall street. He moved away from Plainfield ten years ago.

Young Hardy was expecting to board at Metuchen while he continued the study of art in New York. The delay in learning of his disappearance was due to the fact that it was supposed that he had gone to Metuchen.

ORIGIN OF MOVABLE TYPE

The Honor is Now Ascribed to the Coreans, in the Fifteenth Century.

Even Corea can boast of her share of the great inventions of the world, though, singularly enough, neither the world at large nor she herself, except in one case, has benefited permanently by the inventions.

Corea was the first of all peoples to originate movable metal type. For hundreds of years the country and the King had been under the domination of the Buddhist priesthood, and the land was suffering the extremes of sacerdotalism. Every third son must by law become a monk—in other words, an unproductive member of society; the killing of a cow was a greater crime than the killing of a man. The people's houses were being seized for the erection of worse than useless monasteries.

At last the General Yi Ta-jo, whom a dotard King had sent upon the insane mission of invading China, turned to his soldiers and said: "Let us return to the capital and apply ourselves to the cleansing of the unspeakable corruption of our country!" He was applauded to the echo, and, like Julius Cæsar, but with better purpose, he recrossed the Yalu, Corea's Rubicon, and marched into the capital, and seized the death warrant of sacerdotalism.

No sooner had the new dynasty been founded in 1392 and order restored than it entered a new impetus through the revival of Confucianism and the study of the ancient classics. The monasteries, which had become the repositories of the scholarship of the land, were filled with the unintelligible jargon of Buddhism, and literature was almost wholly confined to the clergy. But as soon as schools were being established, books were being demanded, and students were calling impatiently for the time-honored classics.

Thus it was that in the reign of King Taijong a font of metal type was cast, but the world had not yet learned the art of Xylography had existed for centuries, and clay type had also been used in Japan, but Corea was the first to discover the value of stone for permanent and durable form of metal type; and so well did she carry out her discovery that the type then cast has come down to the present day practically unimpaired.

Each type was built on the principle of the arch, being cylindrically concave on the under side. The purpose of this was to secure a firmer hold upon the bed of beeswax which constituted the "chase," or frame, so called. A thin, low tray was filled with wax, and the type, after being firmly imbedded in it, were "planed" in the ordinary manner.

The printer, sitting cross-legged before it, applied liquid ink to the face of a soft brush, after which a sheet of paper was lightly laid upon the form. A rubber roller was then passed across the porous paper with the right hand, and the left removed the printed page, in this way it was possible to strike off some 1,500 impressions in a day.—Harper's Magazine.

Hat Tricks by M. P.'s.

That members of parliament should be allowed to keep their hats on in the house has often surprised foreign visitors to the historic chamber.

It is lucky for a great many members that the rules of etiquette, while demanding the wearing of a hat, make no provisions as to the character the headgear shall take. The obvious result is that the variety of parliamentary hats is wonderful and vast.

But it is not so much the character of parliamentary hats as the manner in which they are worn that is of interest. Some truly marvelous balancing feats are performed with hats during every session.

Mr. Balfour and the Duke of Devonshire can balance their hats in the bridge of their noses as if they had been weaned practicing the feat. The Speaker himself can do it equally clever in this way, and it is very difficult to say whether he is not doing peacefully behind the ample brim tilted over his nose.

It has been said that the leader of the house of commons deliberately sets a trap for his adversaries by pretending to sleep in his chair with his hat on, so they may fall into error and he can pounce upon them.

Another wonderful trick is that performed by Mr. Lowther, who balances the front brim of his hat upon the bridge of his pincenez in a way few men could accomplish the task. It is one of the unmistakable signs that trouble is brewing in the immediate neighborhood of Mr. Healy's seat. It practically amounts to an ultimatum to the government, one which party whips must not ignore.—London Mail.

Saved From Bear by Soap Powder.

Carl Livernole, a German peddler, had a lively encounter with a small brown bear in the woods south of Brackney, Pa., a few days ago, in what is for the first time in history, a man's life was saved by the use of soap powder. Last winter bear tracks were seen in the woods, but hunters failed to discover bruin's whereabouts. Livernole was going along the dug road when there was a crashing in the bushes beside the path, and a large bear plunged through the brush and rearing on his hind legs stared at the peddler.

Flight was his first thought, but his legs are stiffened with rheumatism, and he realized he would take second money in a foot race with a bear. The animal bounded savagely and advanced slowly. Quickly unstrapping his pack Livernole took out several packages of soap powder, and opening them dashed the contents into bruin's face. For a moment the act surprised his bearship. Then he let out a howl of rage and began shaking the air and rubbing his eyes. Taking advantage of this occupation Livernole deft his pack and plunged into the brush and escaped. Later he returned in a wagon and drove to the scene, recovering his goods. He could see where the animal had rolled on the ground in agony, but did not attempt to track him to his den.

Cheaper to Let It Go.

Client—This bill of yours is exorbitant. There are several items in it that I don't understand at all.

Lawyer—I am perfectly willing to explain it, but the explanation will cost you $10.—New York Journal

"SHIRLEY DARE" SENT TO THE COUNTY JAIL.

She is a Famous Newspaper Woman and Author.

SON MADE THE COMPLAINT.

REMARKABLE FAMILY QUARREL WAS AIRED.

The Prisoner Accused of Being Disorderly a A. F. Power, Whom She Says is Her Son, but He Denies That There is Blood Relation — Judge Runyon Sorry He Had to Act as He Did.

The most remarkable case that has appeared in the police court in this city for several years was heard there Friday afternoon by City Judge Runyon. The principals were Mrs Arthur Dunning Power, a well known newspaper woman and novelist who writes over the non de plume of "Shirley Dare," and A. F. Power, whom she claims as her own son. The latter insists that he is no blood relation of the woman, but that she is his stepmother.

Mr. Powers is secretary of the Exporters Association at 11 Broadway. A month ago he moved his family to this city and took up his residence at 518 Belvidere avenue. Ten days ago "Shirley Dare" came to his home to take up her residence temporarily. Powers says that she has become impoverished to some extent on account of her inability to maintain amiable relations with the publishing houses and newspapers that have given her employment, and that he had opened up his home to her, though on frequent occasions before, when she has been with his family, she has been a disturbing factor.

After being here for a few days, the quarrels between "Shirley Dare" and Mr. and Mrs. Powers broke out anew, and finally became so intense that Friday Powers says that his wife was threatened with hysteria. He requested the visiting relative to remain in her room when she was in the house, but the latter refused to do so, and it is alleged, began screeching and crying about the house, inside and outside.

Roundsman Frederickson was sent for, and later Powers started for City Judge Runyon's office to make a complaint against the woman. The latter followed him, and the two met in the City Judge's presence. The Judge acted the part of peacemaker and finally got a promise from the woman to leave town and go to New York. Powers offering to supply her with the necessary funds. It was agreed that she should go on the 1:34 p. m. train.

Accompanied by Roundsman Frederickson, "Shirley Dare" left for Powers house to pack up her things so as to be ready to leave at 1:34 o'clock. She claimed to be in fear of bodily harm and wanted the policeman to go along with her for protection from anticipated assault. When he woman got her things ready Powers and his wife agreed to accompany her to the depot and see her aboard the train. Roundsman Frederickson followed at a respectable distance.

When the train rolled into the Netherwood depot Powers assisted his step-mother on to the train, but instead of going into the car she jumped off the other side and ran towards some bushes. Powers followed her insisted that she get on the train. She defied his efforts, however, and the train pulled out leaving her behind. Then she rain across the tracks to where Mrs. Powers was standing, and commenced to berate her, and created a scene. Roundsman Frederickson then placed her under arrest, and brought her to the police station. Powers preferred of a complaint against her for being disorderly and disturbing the peace of his home.

City Judge Runyon was then called, and for two hours and a half he heard both sides of the case. The woman claimed that Powers is of her own flesh and blood, but he flatly denied this to her face. Then she accused him of getting hold of her property and money and refusing to give it to her. For over two hours the matter was argued between the two principals and the judge. The latter tried to convince the woman that she would leave town and not bother the Powers family again, but she declined to commit her future actions in this respect.

The outcome of the matter was that Judge Runyon sentenced the woman to the county jail for ten days, and an hour after that she was taken there by Chief Grant and locked up in the woman's ward.

In speaking of the case Saturday Judge Runyon said to a local reporter: "There was the most disagreeable that I have had before me since I have been Judge, and while I disliked to send the woman to the county jail, I felt that I was perfectly justified in doing so. From everything I could gather, and from the general tenor of the woman's actions and her dispositions, it looked as though she was positive and set in her purpose to make the family of Mr. Powers all the trouble that she could. She refused to agree to leave town or to leave the Powers household to its own seclusion. I did not impose a fine because I knew it would be paid at once and that probably the woman would immediately raise another disturbance. I am sorry that she had to go to jail, but in disposing of the complaint made by Powers I would not allow my sympathy to overcome my duty in the matter."

AID FOR THE DESERVING

NEW DEPARTMENT OF THE RELIEF ASSOCIATION.

A System for Furnishing Help to Transient Applicants That Will Keep Out the Habitual Hobo From the City, Its Organized Aid Association would call attention to the new department of the Plainfield Relief Association, which department consists of a system of furnishing aid to transient applicants for relief. The design of the Organized Aid and Relief Associations in establishing the system is to prevent aid being given to unworthy applicants (or tramps), while no worthy applicant need go unaided.

Tickets entitling the holder to such aid have been placed on sale at certain of the drug stores and at the Relief Association's rooms; which tickets may be purchased by anyone desiring to furnish aid to such applicants. The holder of these tickets may give one or more, dated and signed by him to the applicants who will take them to a central bureau indicated on the ticket, where if on investigation the applicant proves to be worthy, the ticket is to be countersigned, and the applicant referred to the Plainfield Relief Association for the necessary aid.

It has been found that the aid that each applicant must furnish a required amount of labor to compensate for the aid given.

CHEAPER TELEPHONE RATE.

Chandler W. Riker Says They Will Come Through. New Combines Which He Company Will Join.

Chandler W. Riker, counsel for the Newark Telephone Company, and vice president of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, says that negotiations are pending for the transfer of the company to the big telephone combination recently organized, and which is capitalized at $10,000,000.

Mr. Riker said all the independent companies were going into the big concern, which has, after a hard struggle, succeeded in getting permission to run its wires into New York city in competition with the Bell Telephone Company and the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company. The new combination will make a reduction of 40 per cent. in telephone rates to all customers, whether regular or transient.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

Thirty to Be Held in the State This Winter.

The New Jersey State Board of Agriculture has issued its Farmers' Institute Bulletin for the winter of 1899-1900. Arrangements have been made by order of the executive committee for about 30 such meetings throughout the State.

The following speakers have been secured to address the farmers at the different institutes: James E. Rice, one of the institute conductors of New York State; Alva Alger, of Ohio, a prominent institute speaker and conductor; F. H. Valentine, of the Poultry Monthly; Herbert W. Collingwood, editor of the Rural New Yorker; Mrs. F. H. Valentine, an accepted writer and speaker on poultry matters; Miss Anna Barrows, of Boston, editor of the Kitchen Magazine.

The twenty-seventh annual meeting of the State Board of Agriculture will be held at the State House, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, January 17, 18 and 19, 1900. The executive committee is planning to make this meeting of exceptional value. All farmers and others interested in the process of agriculture are invited to attend both the institutes and the annual meeting.

Railway Property Sold Cheap.

The cheap price paid for Union Hall building at Thursday's Sheriff sale in Elizabeth was a surprise to the people of Rahway who heard of the disposal of the property. The building is of brick, three stories high, and besides the hall and Brown's drugstore, the postoffice, together with the plant of the Rahway Advocate, are located in the place. The postoffice is about to be removed, however, to a new location on Irving street, where A. Edward Woodruff is to put up a substantial building for the use not only of the United States Government, but also as a location for the Adams Express office and the central station of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company in Rahway.

Approaching Nuptials.

Invitations have been issued for the approaching marriage of Mrs. Sophie Dickinson Baldwin to Frederick Shaw Robley, Wednesday afternoon, November 15th, at Plymouth church, Brooklyn. Mrs. Baldwin was formerly a resident of Plainfield.

BUILDING BOOM BIDS FAIR TO CONTINUE.

Twenty-one Permits Issued for Month of October.

ELEVEN FOR NEW HOUSES.

MOST PRETENTIOUS IS RESIDENCE FOR COL. MASON W. TYLER.

Will be Occupied by His Son—Besides Eleven New Dwellings, Work Has Been Started on a Factory, a Barn, a Passenger Station and a Conservatory—Repairs Made on Six Houses

Even the approach of the cold weather does not seem to show any decrease in the strength of the building boom that has been so noticeable during the summer and fall months. During the month of October, twenty-one permits were granted by Building Inspector T. O. Doane, of which eleven were for new dwellings of various sizes, six for additions to houses, one for a brick factory, one for a barn, one for a passenger station and one for a conservatory.

The most elaborate structure planned and started during the month is the handsome brick and stone residence built for Col. Mason W. Tyler on West Eighth street in the rear of his present residence on West Seventh street, which is destined to be occupied by Col. Tyler's son. The architect was Evarts Tracy, of this city. The contract for the work has been given to Wm. H. Pangborn, and for the carpenter work to John Abbott.

Mrs Catherine Lynch is the owner of a neat little cottage going up on West Fourth street, near Spooner avenue. J. A McNally is the architect, Peter Galbraith the mason, and McNally & Hoffman the carpenters. Another is being erected on the same street, near Lee place, by David Arthur, Jr. Henry Wilson was the architect, J. H. Snyder doing the mason work and David Arthur the carpenter work.

Cuming & LaRue are building a comfortable dwelling on Belvidere avenue. The plans were drawn by Fred L. Lancaster, Cormick Caufield has the contract for the mason work and David Arthur, Jr., for the carpenter work. Mrs. Wm. H. Brokaw is the owner of a new frame dwelling on West Fifth street, designed by Wm. H. Clum. W. Thompson is the mason and W. H. Brokaw the carpenter. Another cottage on West Fourth street, near Spooner avenue, has been started by Mrs. Catherine Rouse, Peter Galbraith is the mason and McNally and Hoffman the carpenters.

Patrolman James E. Totten is the owner of a comfortable little home at 918 West Fifth street. W. Mundy has the mason work under contract and Titus & Pope the carpenter work. W. K. Barnes is building one on Fifth street, near Lee place. Townley Brothers and W. H. Bohl hold the contracts for the building.

Mrs. Middlefell is the owner of a frame cottage on West Sixth street near Central avenue. The architect is W. H. Clum, W. C. Smith is the mason and C. L. Hedemark, the carpenter.

Williams Madison has a cottage underway on East Second street near Byran place which was designed by Fred L. Lancaster. Mr. Wyckoff is the mason and George Hummer the carpenter. Mrs. Laura Lewis is building a frame cottage at the corner of Richmond and East Second street. J. A. Oakley & Son were the architects, Frank and A. Smalley are in charge of the mason and carpenter work respectively.

Adolph Kahrman is building a conservatory in the rear of the premises at 314 Jackson avenue, Adams and Sorenson are doing the work. J. V. Raymond is the owner of a brick factory in the course of erection at 404 East Second street. William Tallamy has the mason work and Wyman & Haberle the carpenter work.

John Ammon, builder, has contracted to frame here for E. W. Brokaw on Columbia avenue. McNally and Hoffman erected the passenger station at the Dunellen terminus of the West Front street trolley for Woodhull & Martin.

WEDDED AT MT. HOREB.

Ticket Agent at Skillman Won His Bride and Married Her.

Wednesday afternoon Nov. 1st at the home of the bride's father, Aaron Spencer, Mt. Horeb, occurred the marriage of his daughter, Miss Lucetta Spencer, to Mr. Skillman, of Skillman, N. J. The wedding was a quiet affair and was attended only by the relatives and intimate friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. D. Harris, pastor of the Mt. Horeb M. E. church, and the bride and groom were unattended.

After the wedding supper Mr. and Mrs. Skillman left for a wedding trip to Washington. Upon their return they will reside at Skillman, where the groom is the ticket agent at the P & R. R. station. The bride was formerly a school teacher, and is very popular in a large circle of friends. They both received a great many handsome presents from their friends.

ENNUI AND ITS CAUSES.

The Great Spirit of Unrest Lurks Everywhere.

Ennui is the great axle of life around which everything revolves. Agnes Repplier, that easiest and most artistic rippler of essays, has spun out long, delightful pages with this delicate subject as theme, faultlessly, in her own quaint style, wording over the subtle pivot of action, but in the end she does not "arrive," as the French would put it. The reader has been entertained for an hour with the charms of a string of pearls, yet lays aside the book murmuring to the world, as did the King of Prussia, "Vien laissez nous encuyer ensemble."

This fine malady of boredom is a common disease which people have without knowing it. In the cottage it is expressed every morning in the query of, "Well, what we got ter do ter-day?" It may be scrubbing, it may be house-cleaning, assorting scraps, running next door for a bit of gossip, but it will be something.

The great spirit of unrest lurks about the dish pan as well as the queen's lace handkerchief.

In the mansion the daily question is, "What's on the tapis? and what's going on for to-day?" The very children come with the eternal cry of "Mamma, what shall we do to amuse ourselves?" And it is this pitiful plaint that drives the clever woman of the world down town to rant the dusty streets simply because the hour was empty and they could not fill it from their own resources.

It is the whip of boredom that forces the men to nightly haunt the clubs, the cardrooms, the glare of Bohemian places of rendezvous—anything—everything rather than stay at home and draw happiness from the cultivation of their own minds. It is the great clique maker of society, the great fad maker and club organizer, to all of which men and women may fly in desperation, simply for the sake of the Kick of France. It is this subtle unrest that fills the world's beautiful temples of fine endeavors with busy fools, whose mingled bells would drown the music of the masters. Or, ennui, under thy spur, what dinners prance and gallop around those miserable coliseum; what precious hours, like jewels, are cast to the wind!

Caught empty-handed in an idle hour with only self as companion, the first impulse is to get out of the house and run away, to be up and on the go and leave the leaden ghosts behind. When there is no other way of pastime in view, the streets are the last resort. Look at the dozens of men loafing around the crowded shopping corners. The dozens of women walking aimlessly from one store to another. What do they do it for? Because their brains are empty, they cannot fill the vacant golden hours, time from the store of their own resources, but must go out on the highways and park and form their pleasure from the quick, tinsel, trash excitement of the streets.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Old Pennsylvania Woodsmen

One of the most interesting and picturesque relics left to backwoods life, the old-time lumberman and woodchopper of the Alleghanies, is now almost a thing of the past. At the present day the number of men engaged in that healthful but arduous occupation is small compared with the thousands that labored in the dark forests of a quarter of a century ago. The fine forests of Pennsylvania are themselves only a memory.

The genuine old-time woodsman of the Alleghany spread of waters cannot be mistaken. He will be seen in midwinter always wearing a fur cap, which is, in fact, often some long, preserved trophy of his own rifle or trap. He wears no coat or waistcoat, his body and chest being covered by a heavy flannel shirt—often two—not the gorgeously colored garments of the later day lumbermen, but good, old-fashioned stuff, such as his father used to wear. Instead of these warm woolen goods cover his legs. The new order of woodsmen wear their trousers tucked inside long pairs of stockings. These stockings are often as gorgeous in varied color as the shirt or jacket he affects, and their tops are drawn tightly over the trousers' leg during the ends of the string sometimes ending in fancy tassels. They wear "gum" shoes. The old-time woodsman's father wore moccasins, but dressed with tallow and with no stockings between their leather and his feet; so his sons, or the most of them, wear cowhide boots, greased with tallow, and no stockings, and declare that thus clad their feet are kept warmer than by the bundling of heavy stockings. The oldtimer will defy you to remember an instance of any one's feet ever having been frosted when dressed on the newfangled style of doing things. These fast disappearing specimens of the days "when lumberin' was lumberin' and not playin' circus" also scorn suspenders, or "galluses," as they call them.

"A feller can't have his shoulders all clawed up if he wants to swing an axe or pull a raft oar," is the rule of these first citizens of the woods.

Clad thus the woodsman is ready for a shooting match, a dogfight, a bear hunt, a log chopping, or a mourner meeting. The latter is the meeting in the backwoods revival, conducted usually by some strapping, lusty-lunged preacher, and generally at the district schoolhouse. The body within the circuit of five or six miles attends the mourner meetings, and frequently a converted young man will join the mourners before the revival is over. But the steadfastness of the backwoods convert is evidently not to be depended upon, for numbers of one winter are to a great extent the mourners of the next. This doesn't seem to be looked upon as anything to be unfavorably commented upon, but the mourners seem regard it as a very commendable action, as witness the boast of one old-time woodsman:

"I stand high in this here deestrict and I ought to. I been a mourner ev'ry winter at the mourner meetin's fer better'n forty years."

As a rule these untutored woodsmen are honest and generous, although always boisterous, and it is to be regretted that they are being replaced by an element so dinerent in all respects, for to their sturdy and aggressive character is due, more than to any one thing, the place which western Pennsylvania enjoys in the estimation of the entire country.

A NEW POSTOFFICE AND NEW TOWN NAME.

Washingtonville Will Hereafter be Known as "Watchung."

FIRST POSTMASTER NAMED.

FREDERICK W. WOHLFERT HAS BEEN APPOINTED TO THE POSITION.

New Postoffice Established Through the Efforts of Mr. Wohlfert and Congressman Howell—Office Will be in Operation in a Few Weeks—Location Not Yet Selected—Locality Will Now Grow.

Through the efforts of Frederick W. Wohlfert of Washingtonville, backed by the influence of Congressman B. F. Howell of New Brunswick, who represents the third Congressional district, the citizens of the former place are soon to have the benefit of a postoffice. Thursday afternoon Mr. Wohlfert received a letter from Congressman Howell notifying him that the postmaster general had decided to establish a postoffice at Washingtonville, which will hereafter be known as "Watchung," and that Mr. Wohlfert had been appointed to the position of postmaster.

The new postoffice will be classified as a fourth class office, and the salary will be paid according to the amount of the cancellation of the stamps.

Mr. Wolfert told a local reporter Friday morning that he had not yet decided where the office will be located. It will probably be established and in full operation inside of a month or six weeks. The mail will be sent via this city and taken to the Watchung postoffice by the stage that now carries the mail to Warrenville. There will be two mails each day for the present.

The establishment of the postoffice will be heartily welcomed by the citizens of Washingtonville, who for a long time have been anxious for this convenience. To Mr. Wolfert particular credit must be given for bringing to a successful consummation this new departure. It was much desired and will prove to be a stepping stone toward a business boom to this delightful locality. With the proposed trolley line built there is every reason to believe that the day is not far distant when Watchung will assume the dignity of a borough of considerable importance.

GOWNED THE NEW WOMAN.

Pleasant Time at Surprise Party at Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wyckoff.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wyckoff, of Watchung avenue and Race street, were given a surprise last week, which proved one of the pleasant social functions of the autumnal season. About thirty of their most intimate friends, armed with an abundance of good things to eat, dropped in upon them and enjoyed a delightful evening.

The fact leaked out that it was Mr. Wyckoff's birthday and his many friends decided to let his realize that he was not forgotten. The evening was passed in playing games, music, etc. The most amusing feature of the festivities was the "New Woman" game, which was played with a vim and heartily enjoyed by the participants. Mrs. Isaac P. Burson captured the first prize, a decorated piece of china, for coming the nearest to properly dressing the inanimate creature. Furman Long had all the men for the second place of honor, and for his cleverness was awarded a moustache cup of pretty design. Lawyer J. P. D. Kirch, whose knowledge of how the up-to-date woman should be dressed is yet quite crude, had to be content with the boxy prize, a miniature bicycle made from good American tin. During the evening the guests regaled themselves with the refreshments which they had brought along.

MUST RESELL ESTATE.

Judge McCormick's Property to Be Put on Block Again.

The estate of Judge Thomas F. McCormick, of Elizabeth, which was recently sold at public action, will have to be resold, because of a misunderstanding of the terms of the recent sale.

The purchasers thought they were buying the tracts free and clear of the widow's dower right, but now it is found that she was entitled to have another sale. It will be four or five weeks before another sale can take place.

It is said those who bid before will do so again. The price which will be realized by the new sale is likely to exceed the former figures.

Entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Vail.

The members of the club which Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Vail, of Somerset place, are members, were entertained last Thursday by them at their home. The usual number of games were played and suitable prizes were given to the winners. Later in the evening refreshments were served by the host and hostess.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

VOTED, THEN PLAYED.

ELECTION DAY EVENTS ON THE PARK CLUB GROUNDS.

Qualifying Rounds of the Men's Handicap—Twenty-four Entries—The Mixed Foursome Were Won by Two Ladies.

Election Day furnished the golfers of the Park Golf Club with ideal weather for the ancient game. The day was a busy one on the course, and the two events scheduled for the day passed off very successfully, furnishing several lively contests. The course was in excellent condition.

The event of the morning was the qualifying round in the men's handicap competition, eighteen holes, medal play. There were twenty-four who entered, but several did not complete the eighteen holes and fifteen cards were turned in at noon. First honors for the morning went to H. D. Hibbard with 92 net, and Aubrey C. Crowe, with 100 net, was second. They qualified for the finals in the afternoon.

The scores handed in during the morning were:

	Gross.	Hand.	Net.
H. D. Hibbard	117	18	99
Aubrey C. Crowe	105	5	100
W. W. Beekman	132	30	102
Samuel Down	127	25	102
R. M. Shepard	113	7	106
Meredith Dryden	118	12	106
W. de la R. Anderson	130	0	130
Gifford W. Cooley	130	0	130
W. J. Myers	137	27	110
W. J. Tolers	130	0	111
J. H. Howell	125	14	111
Morgan T. Townsend	117	5	112
George C. Martin	128	15	113
R. St. John McCutchen	122	14	122
Robert Merrill	137	15	122

W. de la R. Anderson and Gifford W. Cooley played together and the result of their rounds was to count as final for the play-off in the tie for the McCutchen cup. It resulted in another tie, however, both scoring 110 net. The tie will be played off later.

The final round in the men's handicap was played in the afternoon, match play, between Hibbard and Crowe. After an exciting contest Hibbard won, 2 up and 1 to go.

The other event of the afternoon was the mixed foursome, which was won by Miss Edith Hyde and R. M. Shepard.

The scores handed in were as follows:

R. M. Shepard. } Miss Edith Hyde. }	123
W. de la R. Anderson. } Miss Howell. }	127
Meredith Dryden. } Mrs. Meredith Dryden. }	127
Morgan T. Townsend. } Miss Davis. }	157

MAY SECURE AN INJUNCTION.

Opposition to Arlington Avenue Trolley May Assert Itself.

It is confidently expected that the opposition to the Arlington avenue trolley will appear at the proper time and secure an injunction from the courts restraining the company from putting the road down. They recognized the fact that there was little use in objecting at the Council chamber, where the members had made up their mind to grant the franchise, but they hope to do something in the courts and if possible defeat the efforts of the company.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker, that makes weak men strong. 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

HOT FOOTBALL GAME.

ALIS TEAM DEFEATED THE MARION FIELD CLUB.

It Was a Return Game, the Visitors Having Previously Defeated the Alis Boys—Big Attendance—The Score 6 to 0.

The hottest game on a local gridiron was played on Marine Common yesterday afternoon when the Alis football team succeeded in defeating the eleven from the Marion Field Club, of Jersey City, by a score of 6 to 0. Five hundred people witnessed the game from the sidelines.

The Marion boys won the game in Jersey City by a score of 6 to 0, and the game yesterday was the return game. The Marion boys had the advantage of weight and made their gains through the line. The team work of the home club was the better, and was directly responsible for the victory.

Marion had the choice of goals and took the eastern. Alis kicked off. The fight soon began in the centre of the field and every gain was bitterly contested. Fronde lost the ball for Marion on a fumble and then Alis carried the ball steadily down the field, the end and tackle plays proving the most successful. With the ball on Marion's twelve yard line, Dumont took the ball from Phillips on a double pass and circled left end for a touchdown after twelve minutes of play. Phillips punted out to Woolston and then kicked the goal. Score—Alis, 6; Marion, 0.

The game went on and Marion braced up. Several times the Alis boys were held for three downs and Phillips or Dumont punted. Time was called with the ball on the Marion 35 yard line in Alis' possession.

The second half showed an advantage for the visitors. They kept hammering the Alis line with a revolving tackle play that netted good gains every time. They were unable to gain at all around the ends.

Alis lost ten yards for off-side play by Cuming and Waring and that encouraged the Marions. They began to force the ball toward Alis' goal. Alis could not seem to hold the fierce attacks in the line. Two fumbles after Alis finally gained the ball gave it back again to their opponents. Time was finally called with Marion in possession of the ball on Alis forty yard line.

The teams lined up as follows:

ALIS.		MARION F. C.
Woolston	right end	Taylor
Waring	right tackle	Walton
Kline	right guard	Simmons
Smith, G		Gorss
Long	center	Weidemeyer
Lee	left guard	E. Smith
Appo	left tackle	Wright
Smith, H	left end	Hahns
Dumont	quarterback	Brown
Greene	right halfback	Chapman
Cuming	left halfback	Stone
Phillips	fullback	Fronde

Score—Alis, 6; Marion, 0. Touchdown—Dumont. Goal from touchdown—Phillips. Referee—Lewis Waring, Univ. of T. Umpire—Cuming, Tiemer—A. White, West Hoboken. Linesmen—J. B. Bohinger, of New York, and L. M. Hillman, of Plainfield.

An Approaching Marriage.

Cards have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wagoner, of 109 West Fourth street, for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ada Louise, to S. Barron Brewster, of Woodbridge. The event will take place Wednesday evening, November 22d, at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents.

How Are Your Kidneys?

Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Pillscure all kidney ills. Sample free. Add. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or N. Y.

MORE TROLLEY, BUT NO CHEAPER GAS AS YET

Result of Two Hearings Held by the Council.

FEW PEOPLE WERE HEARD.

NO ONE FOR OR AGAINST TROLLEY AND FRANCHISE GRANTED.

A Few Heard in the Interest of the People's Gas Company, but the Council Decided That no Representative Voice Had Been Secured and Another Hearing Would Be Held.

The Common Council at its regular November meeting Monday evening adopted the ordinance on the third reading which gives the Plainfield Street Railway a franchise to locate and operate a trolley road through Arlington avenue. The Council gave those present an opportunity to speak for or against the proposed action, but not a person had a single word to say, although there were a number present who are interested on both sides. The lobby was filled with people who have shown great interest in this trolley extension, but no expression of opinion was given either way. The Council therefore very properly adopted the ordinance.

Following the trolley hearing, the Council granted another hearing regarding the application of the People's Gas Company to furnish $1 gas in the city. Several officials of the new company were present, but it seemed difficult at first to get anyone to talk. H. E. Hatfield made a few remarks urging the Council to grant a franchise to the company.

A communication was then received from H. G. Runkle, of the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company, which rehearsed at great length a number of objections to granting another franchise. His objections were chiefly those cited by Frank Bergen, at a recent committee meeting.

Mr. Hatfield thought that is so important a matter, there should be more interest. He would gladly vote to give the new company a franchise if he could be assured that the people will get dollar gas. He was in favor of giving the people the most for the least, but thought that there should be absolute assurances that the new company means business, that the streets will be restored to the best of condition after the pipes are laid, that the company will not sell out and that the dollar gas will be a reality after the franchise is given.

Mr. Buckle was in doubt as to whether dollar gas could be furnished in Plainfield. He stood willing to vote for it as soon as proper assurances are given. He thought Plainfield should have cheaper gas.

These remarks had an effect and W. A. Coddington, of the People's Gas Company, made a few remarks setting forth clearly the purpose of his company. He said that there is no possible way of organizing a company and forever keeping stock away from other people. The application, he thought, states clearing what the company will do. It agrees to put up a bond for $10,000 to put the streets in their former condition and to the satisfaction of the street commissioner. If the new company fails to furnish dollar gas, that will be their funeral and not one for the old gas company. Mr. Codington assured the Council that the new company means business, that it has the necessary capital to establish a plant to supply gas to this city and the borough for a dollar and the price can never be raised.

He contended that the question of consolidation or selling out is not one to be considered at present. If the people do not want dollar gas why are they not here to object to it, said Mr. Coddington. He had not heard of a single objection to it. He said that the new company was organized to kill monopoly and intends to do it.

Other members expressed willingness to vote for the franchise if there are ample assurances that the people will get what is promised.

James Bell, of the West End, favored the city owning a plant and selling gas without a profit. F. E. Kinsman thought the franchise should give the city dollar gas or provide for the city owning the plant and selling its own gas at a low figure.

Mr. Barrows in conclusion stated that the Council had not taken any definite action regarding the application, and that a further hearing would be granted the people in the near future. The hearing then closed.

Beauty Is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean your blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets,—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

Death Rate Has Been Low.

According to the best of authority the death rate in this city during the past two months has been the lowest known in the history of the city for the same period of time.

MARS AT CLOSE RANGE

Easy to Study His Face When Only 35,000,000 Miles Away.

All the monster glasses with which the late rapid advance has been made in knowledge of our celestial neighbors have come into being since the civil war, says Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd in the St. Nicholas. Until then, in this country, the Harvard telescope of fifteen inches was the largest.

About 1860 one of eighteen and a half inches was ordered for the University of Mississippi, but with the breaking out of the war the telescope had to wait, and these lenses are now at the Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. It is only since 1870 that really huge instruments have multiplied and are nightly turned upon the starry skies to ask the questions which seem to our impatience so slowly answered.

But many answers have come, after all, and some things are clear which before could only be surmised. For instance, we feel quite sure now that Mars has an atmosphere, though not more than half as dense as our own; but far better than none, as we can tell by looking at our bright though dead and desolate moon, from which air and water has long since disappeared.

And if Mars has air, the polar caps alone would seem to show that he has also ice and snow; and there appear to be, as well, areas of water or marsh, though in extent less than the land. The northern hemisphere looks brighter through the telescope, even showing tints of red and yellow, which astronomers are inclined to think are chiefly dry land, probably desert, while the southern is dark, the "seas" brown or dull gray, quite as water might appear. These spots were first called seas, like the smooth regions of the moon, and the name continues in both, whatever they may be.

In 1877 Mars was at his nearest to us; near, that is, from an astronomer's point of view, though really at the enormous distance of 35,000,000 miles. Yet a great deal was learned about this neighbor in the sky—among other things, that he is attended by two tiny satellites, or moons, never seen before. And the same year an Italian astronomer, Signor Schiaparelli (pronounced skeea-pa-rel-ly) made careful studies of a number of the strange markings on Mars, completing, with the fine telescope at Milan, a series of elaborate sketches afterward combined into an accurate detail map.

Again, in 1892 and 1894, the earth and Mars came near each other in their flight through space, though somewhat farther than during the year 1877.

The Fatal Boiling Habit.

"Apropos of the hardships of our boys in Cuba," said a recruiting officer who saw a good deal of duty on the island, "I'll tell you a bit of a story. Shortly after our regiment went on duty near Santiago at the beginning of Wood's administration as governor, we began to be able to take a little better care of ourselves than we had done throughout the campaign. One of our captains—I won't mention his name, for he's sore about this affair—was a great crank on the subject of microbes, and took extraordinary pains to avoid their society. He had picked up a raw Cuban cook, and gave him the most explicit orders to boil all the water used in the mess, no matter where he got it. 'Boil everything we drink,' he said, 'or I'll kick your backbone through the top of your head.'

"The Cuban promised faithfully, and obeyed the orders to the letter. A week or so afterward the captain, while foraging about, was presented with a quart bottle of champagne from one of the ships. He was overjoyed, and, securing a small lump of ice, he thought he'd have a cool one and reward his prizes to the cook. 'I want you to get up something extra good today,' he said, 'for I'm going to ask a few friends to dine with me and drink this wine.' At the appointed hour the party assembled, and, after serving a repast of stewed beef and sweet potatoes, the cook stalked in, carrying a steaming saucepan half full of a muddy yellow liquid. What in thunder is that?' asked the captain, as the cook set it down. He replied the Cuban gravely. 'I boil 'im good deal, an' 'e most' all go 'way.' The guests roared with laughter, and the captain was so disconcerted he couldn't say a word. He subsequently recovered himself sufficiently to grab a cleaning rod and chase the Cuban nearly half a mile. After that all anybody had to do to get a fight was to say boiled champagne. When I left the wound still rankled."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Remembered Him

"There's no use of your saying a word!" exclaimed the woman of the house, as soon as she had opened the door and glanced at the man standing outside. "I know you."

"But ma'am——"

"I recognized you as soon as I saw you. You can't——"

"Ma'am——"

"You're the man who sold me a washing machine six months ago for $6.50 that wasn't worth shucks. It wouldn't——"

"All I wanted to tell you, ma'am, is——"

"It wouldn't wash anything. The longer you used it the dirtier the clothes got. You couldn't sell me anything now if you was to pay me for taking it. When a man fools me once he won't ever have the chance to do it again. I can't tell you that. I'll sell that washing machine back to you for fifty cents. It doesn't make any difference what you've got the matter. I wouldn't touch it with a ten-foot pole, and you can talk till you are gray. It won't do you any good."

"Madam," replied the man, who had been dancing about impatiently, "your kitchen roof is blazing where that iron stovepipe runs up and through it. That's what I stopped to——"

"Good land, why didn't you say so? What did you want so stand there talking for when the house is burning up? Run over to that grocery store on the corner and turn in an alarm! Fire! Fire!"—Chicago Tribune.

Resented at Once.

"I would die for my country!" he exclaimed dramatically.

"Well," she replied quietly, "I've no doubt your country would appreciate it."

Then he got mad.—Yonkers Statesman.

IRISH MOHAMMEDAN.

HENRY MOORE, ARRESTED AS A VAGRANT, TELLS A QUEER STORY.

Became a Dervish and Traveled for Years Through India, Persia and Afghanistan—Exalted to the Position of Mualum Makahsus.

There is a living curiosity at the City Prison in the person of Henry Moore, a self-styled Irish Mohammedan, who tells a story of his adventures in Oriental lands scarcely less wonderful than any "Arabian Nights" tale. Moore was arrested Sunday night on Montgomery street for begging, and appeared yesterday in Police Judge Mogan's court to answer to a charge of vagrancy. He is 74 years of age and wears overalls, a frayed and faded coat of broadcloth and a silk hat, also much the worse for wear.

In 1862, according to his narrative, Moore left County Clare, Ireland, and settled with his parents in Maine. He migrated to this State in 1849, cleaned up some dust, and three years later took ship for Australia, where he minded in the Forest Creek diggings, eighty miles out of Melbourne. After a stay of three and a half years there set out for a trip around the world, going by way of Ceylon to India. He had $25,000 to his credit then.

Before reaching Bombay, Moore says, a spirit of adventure prompted him to join the Mohammedan faith and become a dervish. In this guise he wandered for nearly a year in Tehran, on adventures as wild as good fortune were fairly poured upon the Celtic follower of Mohammed.

Being the only European Jervish ever seen in the kingdom of the Shah, Moore's fame soon reached the royal palace. He was sent for by the favorite wife of the Persian ruler, who talked with him and then recommended to the Shah that he be engaged as Mualum Makahsus, or chief tutor to the royal family. This exalted job, Henry Moore says, he held for a period of five years. He was also given the title of Bardi, or Colonel, in the Persian army, and other favors were heaped upon him by the Shah.

One day, upon finding that the young Prince could read and write English, the Shah gave Bergdi Moore an order on his Minister, instructing that officer to confer upon the white man an estate and a pension for life. The Minister refused to give him either estate or pension, and Moore told one of his royal pupils about his deception, whereupon the young Prince told his father. The haughty Minister, Moore declares, was packed off at once to a remote part of Persia under sealed orders to drink hemlock when he reached his destination.

Enemies then sprang up about Moore, seeking his life, he says. He obtained permission to go on a pilgrimage to Mecca as a substitute for the Shah, and having converted his wealth into 238,000 worth of diamonds, set out on the trip, intending never to return to Teheran. From Mecca he made his way back to the United States in 1882, and soon lost most of his money in Montana mining. Then he tried Australia again, met with more bad luck, and turned up here a year ago, old and with but little cash. He has been now. Moore seems to believe his own story.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

How to Wear Whiskers.

"The first thing a young man should do in starting out in life," said an old timer, oracularly, "is to decide how he wants to wear his whiskers. Then he should choose his occupation accordingly. The matter may be reduced to an exact science," he continued, "taking the mustache as a basis. A mustache is usually symptomatic and convival, and is important to any calling in which good fellowship cuts a figure. If very heavy and drooping it lends an air of sagacity to the owner. I knew a railroad manager whose mustache draws $20,000 a year; he never does anything himself, and an idea would kill him dead.

"The addition of side whiskers tempers the mustache with a solid suggestion of dignity. Whiskers alone are rare and well kept proclaim their wearer an old-school gentleman whose palate may be trusted on the question of vintages. A mustache and imperial are signs of determination and are valuable for lawyers and doctors. They inspire confidence. Up to middle age small whiskers or the mutton-chop and whisker are chiefly useful as indicating seriousness of purpose.

"When they begin to whiten they are indispensable to financial magnates of the first class—symbols, so to speak, of austerity and haughty reserve. The theory might be expanded indefinitely, but I am sure you catch its drift. I ought to add, by the way, that long chin whiskers are an excellent stimulant to thought. A friend of mine has an immaculate goatee. Without it his whole bearing would be as helpless as a babe.

"Ordinarily his brain is in a state of complete repose, and when asked a question he responds with a fishy stare. Then his hand steals slowly up to his goatee and he gives it a long pull. That tug releases some sort of a catch in his mental machinery, and it proceeds to grind out one think, whereupon it immediately gives you an intelligent answer. If his chin whiskers were shaved off he would be reduced to a condition approaching coma."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

An Extreme Limit.

Two shop girls were overheard talking together several days ago.

"Say, did you know Mame was settlin' up for a new outfit?" inquired the girl with the long feather in her sailor hat.

"Is she?" queried the other girl. "She looks well enough."

"That's what I think. And she sleeps well, too."

"Can she eat?"

"Eat!" cried the other girl. "I should say she could eat! Why, at lunch today she got away with 24 cents worth."

And then their voices died away.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five cent carton and asked:

"Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constantly increasing, especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think these specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particular case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained better results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in a New York paper, I concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month and I would not be without them now for a dollar." At the time of the interview there were two dozen cartons which specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial while Ripans Tabules were in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I can do no harm in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the talking about my case in the papers effects some other person as it has mine, I shall be as greatly benefited as I have been. I see no objection." The daughters, hovering figures of the background, think about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style package containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a vest pocket tin case, is now for sale by druggists generally—TEN FOR FIVE CENTS. This low priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical, who will not buy the high priced kind. The 60 cent packages (the kind you have been buying) can still be had at all druggists. Or the 5 cent case will be sent to the RIPANS CHEMICAL CO., No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single sample will be sent for one cent. Ripans Tabules are sold by druggists, or by mail if the price is sent to the RIPANS CHEMICAL CO. Druggists, general agents, and all some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

ALFRED SPEER,

THE ORIGINAL

Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

VICK SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands of satisfied Customers for a half century. Let us add you to the list. Write for your free copy of Vick's Illustrated Floral Guide, or for Vick's Floral Guide and Book of Bulbs, Plants and Seeds, bound in Boards, and issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 64 pages lithographed in colors, a pages souvenir, and nearly 200 pages filled with handsome half-tone illustrations of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Bulbs, Etc., Etc., all described in English and German. A marvel in Catalogue making; an authority on all subjects pertaining to the garden, with over 300 pages for the name, and a descriptive catalogue of all that is worth growing in flowers and vegetables, sent free to all who write for it. Don't write a postal card, but write intelligently, but we want everyone interested in a good garden to have a copy, therefore we will send the Guide with a DUE BILL, for 25 cents worth of flower and vegetable seeds 15cts

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

It could not be given for a less amount of purchase to buy other goods.

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue

A perfect little gem of a price list. It is just the thing to enclose in your letters. Printed in English and German, and in handy shape for reference. FREE enlarged, improved, and up to date on all subjects relating to flowers, gardening, etc. Regular subscription price 50 cents a year.

Vicks Monthly Magazine,

Special cash offer—Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 25 cents.

OUR NEW PLAN of selling Vegetable Seeds gives you more variety for your money than any other seed house in America.

JAMES VICKS SONS,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

SEEDS ... FOR THE ... Garden—Farm

Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the newest and best varieties. Catalogue free. Illustrated Catalogue, 25 cents. Catalogue FREE.

WEEBER & DON, Seed Growers
114 Chambers St., New York City.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest,
Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds
and odorless Lawn Dressing.

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,

119 East Front st.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The International is a wonderfully correct storehouse of accurate information."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superficiality or quantity characterizes every department.

Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President.
GEO. W. ROCKEFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the 1st.

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our cloths. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full directions for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (225 C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1899. NO. 46.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

JONES AND JOHNSON QUICKLY AGREED ON

Organization of the Legislature Practically Settled Upon.

JONES WILL BE SPEAKER.

IT IS GENERALLY AGREED THAT HE WILL BE CHOSEN.

Promises Received Indicates That There Is No Question About His Carrying Off the Plum if His Home Colleagues Support Him—Wakelee Withdraws From the Race and Wants to be the Leader.

For the first time since the Republicans secured control of the State Legislature the formal organization of both houses, so far as the presiding officers are concerned, has been agreed upon on the first "Governor's Day" following election.

The candidates named, and very little doubt of their selection appears to exist, are Senator Johnson, of Bergen, for president of the Senate, and Assemblyman Jones, of Essex, for Speaker of the House.

The Essex men present Tuesday were as a unit in favor of Jones, and the unanimity with which the members from other counties indorsed the claim of Essex and pledged their allegiance to its candidate was the most interesting feature of the day.

No conference was held, but the several holdover Senators and Assemblymen-elect, met one another and discussed the general situation just as thoroughly as if there had been a conference.

The fact that Middlesex, Monmouth and Salem, which had no representation last year, were in the field at this time, caused some uneasiness until the Essex delegation announced that it stood ready to abandon any claim it might possess to such offices as it held last year, provided its candidate for Speaker was indorsed.

The action had the desired effect and even veteran leaders like William Bettis, will take a more or less active part in the organization, said there was no doubt of Essex securing the Speakership, if its delegation maintained that stand.

All the Senators present said there was no doubt whatever of the selection of Senator Johnson for President of the Senate, and very little was said about the distribution of the other offices. A reason for this was found in the new law abolishing the engrossing department of both Houses and creating the office of Supervisor of Bills. Three men were formerly employed at this work in each House, and now it will be attended to by the Supervisor, who is appointed by the Governor, and one assistant selected by each House.

The position is regarded as a very important one, and Governor Voorhees said that it was his intention to appoint some one who is familiar with the duties and can be relied upon to do the work properly. This was regarded as an indication that the place might go to Edgar Williams, of Essex, who has filled the position of Engrossing Clerk in both Houses. He is opposed, however, by Senator-elect McCarter, of Essex, who is in favor of the appointment of Jesse R. Salmon. Other candidates for the position are Charles F. Folwell, Engrossing Clerk of the last House, and D. Hartis Smith, of Salem, who is backed by Senator Miller. Governor Voorhees said he would make the appointment about December 1st, and make it only for a three-year term, instead of five, as provided by the statutes.

The longer period he considers injudicious, and says he will make no selection unless the appointee is willing to accept the shorter term. The reason for making the appointment in advance of the opening of the Legislative session is to give the appointee an opportunity to study the system as practised in other States where it is in vogue.

It was intimated that the contest between Williams and Salmon might be adjusted by appointing the latter to a position in the office of the Clerk of the Supreme Court, now held by Howard Lindall. The latter has incurred the displeasure of several State officials by attacking Senator Stokes through the columns of a New York paper, which he represents, and this said he may be removed or asked to resign.

The only Democratic representative at the State House yesterday was Congressman Daly, of Hudson. He was on hand principally to attend a case in court, and incidentally to renew old acquaintances and pay his respects to Governor Voorhees. The Congressman said that he was going to Chicago Saturday to meet William J. Bryan, and endeavor to induce the latter to attend a meeting of Chicago Platform Democrats, which is scheduled to be held in Trenton some time during December.

NEW ROAD WORK ORDERED.

Thoroughfare Between New Brunswick and Millstone to be Macadamized at Cost of $32,000.

Somerville, Nov. 15—At the regular meeting of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders held here yesterday it was decided to macadamize the road from New Brunswick to Millstone. This road is six miles long and has for years been one of the worst in this section.

The plan for macadamizing it was started by Freeholder Cornelius Van-Cleef, of Millstone, and he worked very hard to have it go through. The contract for the work was awarded to Richard Brow, of this place, and the price to be paid is $32,000. The work will be started at once and completed at the earliest possible date.

The Board decided to pay all election bills Friday of this week. There was no other business of importance considered by the members.

WEARING G. A. R. BADGE

MEN WHO ARE NOT MEMBERS HAVE PUT ON THE EMBLEM.

Winfield Scott Post to Prosecute Those Who Hereafter are Found Wearing the Badges and are Not Entitled to Do so.

At the meeting of Winfield Scott Post, No.73, G.A.R., held Tuesday evening preparations were made for the annual inspection that will occur at the next regular meeting. They also mustered one comrade. At the meeting to be held Tuesday evening, December 12th, there will be installation of officers.

An important matter considered last evening was the complaints that have been received by the members of the Post regarding persons not members of the G. A. R., who have been wearing the badge or button of the order. It was by a unanimous vote of the members resolved that a committee of three comrades be appointed with full power to prosecute all persons who persist in wearing the badge or button of the order who are not members in good standing. Under the laws of the State this misdemeanor is punishable by imprisonment or fine, or both, for wearing the badge or button of the order by any person not a member in good standing in some Post of the G. A. R.

This action has been taken because a number of persons have been found using the badge as a means to secure money and help, and in two or three cases badges have been taken off of such persons not members of the order.

GIVE UP THE THEATRE.

Projectors Could Not Float the Scheme Among the Financiers of New Brunswick.

New Brunswick, Nov. 15th—Jacob Weldy, of this city, and J. E. Hillpot, of Bound Brook, have given up their project of building a theatre in this city. The scheme has fallen through, because it was impossible to raise $12 000 here for such a purpose. Mr. Weldy had guaranteed to put up $5,000 cash and Hillpot and a friend had $3,000, making a total of $8,000. Twenty thousand was needed to start on the idea being to borrow enough at four or five per cent. to complete the building. Every man who was approsed to favor such a deal had been visited, but subscriptions were not forthcoming.

Finally Messrs. Weldy and Hillpot gave up in disgust.

Candidates Take Oath of Office.

John H. Conger, re-elected County Clerk, and Isaiah D. Barclay, elected Sheriff of Middlesex county, took their oaths of office Tuesday. Howard Weener, who was Deputy Sheriff for the past ten years, resigned at the request of Mr. Barclay, who appointed William H. Carman, of Metuchen, to the place. This closes a fight that has been going on since Tuesday, when Mr. Barclay was elected.

Yearly Meeting of Seventh Day Baptists.

The yearly meeting of the New York city and the New Jersey Seventh Day Baptist churches will be held at the New Market church beginning Friday evening and continuing Saturday and Sunday. Services will be held all day Saturday and Sunday.

Big Real Estate Deal

Silas D. Drake has completed a deal with Joseph L Street, of Newark, who represents a number of capitalists in that city, for a thousand lots in Lincoln, belonging to the New Jersey Mutual Realty Company. The lots will be put on the market at retail.

Tea in Honor of Miss VanBoskerck.

Cards have been issued by Mr. William G. Wright, of 516 West Eighth street, for a tea to be given in honor of Miss Ethel VanBoskerck, of West Seventh street, Saturday, November 18th from 4 until 6 o'clock.

James S... Richmond place, is visiting his daughters in Orange.

FACTIONAL FIGHTS IN PARTY PRIMARIES.

Republican Leaders Want to Settle Troubles There.

THEN ABIDE BY RESULT.

FIRST WARD WILL SEE THE HOTTEST FIGHT.

May Be Opposition to Nomination of Councilman VanHerwerden in Second Ward—Councilman Barrows Likely to Be Returned By Third Ward—Fourth Ward Candidate is Not Yet Chosen.

With the possibility of contests at most of the Republican primaries next Tuesday night, there is plenty of interest taken in the coming campaign of the G. O. P. preceding the municipal election. Will these factional fights in the Republican party work out in the primaries or will they continue down to the time of election and enable the Democrats to elect a portion of their ticket? That is the question that is puzzling the knowing ones at present.

The Republican leaders are very positive in their wish to see all the dissatisfied Republicans at the primaries.

"The primaries," exclaimed one well-known Republican worker of the city, "are the places to settle all party troubles. The present leaders of the party would gladly step down and out if their fellow Republicans were to express a desire that they should. The only place that that can be done is at the primaries. If the discontented ones would make their fight in the primaries and then abide by the result, the Republican party would have no trouble in maintaining its control in Plainfield.

There is every likelihood of a brisk encounter in the First ward. Neither faction is satisfied over the result of the primary in November, preceding the county election, and both the MacMurray and the MacDonald factions are preparing to meet again. Many Republicans hoped that the trouble might be patched up before the municipal campaign. It was thought that the city committee, at the meeting Monday night, might withdraw the letter sent to City Clerk MacMurray and which resulted in his lack of activity at the polls last month. No action was taken by the city committee, however, and unless the great powers in the party intervene there will be a continuation of the fight at the primary.

At the present time, Councilman van Herwerden is the probable nominee in the Second ward. There is some opposition against him which may present a united front at the primary and fight his candidacy. Otherwise, the Second ward will have a quiet time.

A fight in the Third ward primary seems likely. The contest at the last primary will be continued. Councilman E T. Barrows has strong backing for a renomination. The name of Robert Rushmore has been mentioned, but it is stated by one of his most intimate friends that he will not consider the nomination. There will probably be two tickets for the delegates to the city convention and for the city executive committee.

The Fourth Ward hasn't any trouble in sight as yet. The primary will probably be a very quiet one there. Several names have been mentioned for the Councilmanic honors, but the leaders have not yet settled on the one they want.

To Open School in a Church.

Hackettstown, Nov. 15.—Arrangements have been made to reopen school for the students of the Hackettstown Institute within a few days in one of the local churches. Notices will be sent to the students by the faculty notifying them when everything is ready. The faculty recognizes the fact that the students are anxious to continue their studies so that they may not get behind, and are making every effort possible to provide for the continuing of studies.

Gold and the Gospel.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association met at the home of Rev. C. L Goodrich, of West Seventh street, Monday afternoon. They were very pleasantly entertained A paper was read by Rev. E M. Rodman on "Gold and the Gospel," and an interesting discussion followed.

Groceries Higher in Price.

Recently there has been a great advance in all kinds of groceries, and the local grocers say that before the winter is over the prices will be still higher The only things that have not been advanced are coffee and sugar, which is due to great competition.

—Headquarters for glace fruits, Stephensons, 146 North avenue.

HE TRIED TO MURDER WIFE

Then Carl Bohm Fatally Shot Himself.

WIFE ESCAPED UNHARMED

QUARRELED OVER DOMESTIC AFFAIRS.

Bohm is a Truck Farmer Living on the Henry Clay Randolph Farm on the Rahway Road—Fired Two Shots at His Wife.

After seven years of married life, two of which were happy and five of which have been otherwise, Carlos Bohm, a German aged 28 years, residing on the Henry Clay Randolph property, Rahway road, attempted to kill his wife and then mortally shot himself. He fired a revolver twice at his wife and missed his aim both times. Immediately afterward he shot himself in the head, and the injury is such that he cannot live. He was taken to the hospital in the ambulance a short time after the deed was committed.

The circumstances leading up to the deed are somewhat of a mystery, and when a Local representative called at the house yesterday and saw Mrs. Bohm, it was with great reluctance that she would talk. That there had been domestic trouble, she admitted, that it had covered a period of five years. During that time she said it had been very hard to please her husband, because he was high tempered and of a peculiar disposition. Apart from what Mrs. Bohm said that her husband was not willing that she should go anywhere and have a good time, but that he wanted her to stay home and work continually. But that this was the real cause for the deed she would not say.

Tuesday morning Mr. Bohm drove to Perth Amboy with a load of produce raised on the farm. After disposing of it he returned home about 1 o'clock in the afternoon. His wife noticed at once that he was out of humor and that he appeared angry. He would not talk to her, and instead of going to the house to eat his dinner he went to the barnyard, where he remained for sometime. In a little while Mrs. Bohm sent her children to the barnyard to call the husband to dinner. He did not go immediately.

It was about 2 o'clock when Bohm went to the house. Then followed some words, a continuation of previous troubles. He seemed to be very angry, and after a quarrel and heated discussion, he drew a revolver from his pocket and discharged it twice, both times aiming it at his wife. The aim was wide. This seemed to incense the husband, and he turned the revolver at himself. The firearm was pointed at his head, and when it went off the bullet entered a vital part.

This occurred in the dining room of the house, and after the deed was committed Bohm ran out of the house and about the yard calling to his eldest daughter. He was frantic and apparently did not know what he was doing. After becoming exhausted in running about he went to the rear of the house where he seated himself on a stone. He appeared to have lost his reason.

By this time Mr. Guest, a man who works about the place, happened near the house and his attention was attracted by the noise and disturbance. He found Bohm sitting down and took him to one of the outbuildings, and kept him there until the ambulance and the service of a physician could be secured. The deed was committed about 2:30 o'clock and it was soon after 3 when he was removed to the hospital. The man was unconscious at the time and he has not recovered. The bullet entered the head over the ear on the right side of the head, and as yet it has not been extracted. The physicians say that there is no hope for Bohm's recovery.

Bohm and his wife were married at Dover, Morris county, seven year ago, and for five years have been living on Randolph road. He comes from a highly respected family. His father is now living in Germany. He has an uncle at Rahway, with whom he and his wife lived for a short time. They could not get along well there and they then came to Plainfield. Mrs. Bohm's home was formerly at Staten Island, but for sometime she lived

[CONTINUED ON PAGE 5.]

POILLON WOULD BACK OUT OF AGREEMENT.

Does Not Want to Pay Wife What He Promised Her.

WELL-KNOWN IN PLAINFIELD

POILLON DECLARES COMPACT IS AGAINST PUBLIC POLICY.

Family Formerly Lived in Style in Plainfield, Where Poilon Still Owns Considerable Property—The Case was Called Before Justice McAdam in Supreme Court, New York, Yesterday.

Yesterday's New York Sun contained the following story of the domestic troubles between J. H Poilon and his wife, who formerly resided in this city, where they lived in style. Poilon still owns valuable property in Plainfield:

Frederica M. Poilion and her husband, John J. Poilion, signed articles of separation on May 1, 1898, by the terms of which she was to occupy his house on West End avenue and Eighty seventh street, and have $3 000 a year for the support of herself and their two daughters, Rachel and Louise. Last April Poilion wanted to sell some of his property, and he had to pay his wife $24 000 to get her to sign off her dower interest. After that he declined to pay the alimony and she brought suit in the Supreme Court to enforce payment under the articles of separation. Poilion contended that the agreement was against public policy because it provided for the separation of husband and wife. The agreement said:

"The said John J. H. Poilion hereby convenants and agrees to and with his said wife that it shall be lawful for her at all times to hereafter live separate from him and that he shall and will allow and permit her and their two children, Rachael and Louise, to be in such places and in such family or families and with such relatives, friends and other proper persons as she may from time to time choose, unmolested and undisturbed by him, and that he shall not and will not at any time sue, molest, disturb or trouble any person whosoever for receiving, entertaining or harboring her or either of them, and that he shall not at any time in the future, without her consent, visit her, or send her any letter or message, that he may believe might be objectionable or disagreeable to her."

The case came up before Justice McAdam, of the Supreme Court, yesterday. Plaintiff's counsel said that the answer was interposed for delay, and asked for a speedy trial. An affidavit made in behalf of defendant stated that his daughter Louise had come of age since the agreement was made and that he does not want to provide for her because she has "openly and defiantly disobeyed her father and disregarded his wishes, and has been the principal cause of his present domestic troubles, and he is not willing to contribute to her support, at least as long as she continues her defiance and disobedience and disregard of his wishes."

Justice McAdam set the case for trial the last week of this month.

CURTAIN WAS ABLAZE.

Excitement Caused by It at The Reform Club Fair.

Some little excitement was caused Tuesday at Reformed Club hall. During the performance of the Gypsie Queen a small curtain used upon the stage was blown against one of the footlights and was formed into a blaze Arthur Smith, with commendable presence of mind, grasped the burning cloth and quickly extinguished the fire before any serious damage was done.

Accepted a Position as a Principal.

W. E. VanWirt, who was principal of the Gregg School of Shorthand which has since consolidated with the Plainfield Business College, has accepted a position as principal of a shorthand school in New York. He will begin his duties the first of December but will continue to make his home in Plainfield.

New Locomotive on Trial Trip.

Engine 582, of the new compound type, recently ordered by the Jersey Central Railroad, made its appearance Tuesday on a trial trip. Everything worked satisfactory and it is expected that the engine will now be run regularly on one of the fast trains.

Mrs. VanCleef, Somerville, has been visiting friends in this city for a short time.

Miss Hattie Garretson, of the West End, is entertaining company from Somerville.

Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough, has about recovered from recent severe illness.

COUNTY ENDEAVORERS.

Met in Baptist Church in Westfield Last Night—Parliament Led by Miss Hawkins.

The Union County Union Conference in connection with the Westfield local Union of the Christian Endeavor had an open parliamentary meeting in the Baptist church at Westfield Tuesday night. The storm did not prevent a good attendance, many Endeavorers from this city, Dunellen, Roselle, Elizabeth and nearby points being present.

The parliament was led by Miss Florence G. Hawkins. The subject discussed was: "How can we make Christian Endeavor work what God intended it to be?" The responses were: First by consecration; second by personal responsibility to God, and third by the responsibility as officers and chairmen of committees.

The question box led by Arthur N Pierson, of Westfield, was an interesting feature of the meeting. After the meeting the delegates were regaled with refreshments.

TOOK OATHS OF OFFICE.

SHERIFF HOUSTON AND COUNTY CLERK HOWARD SWORN IN.

Oaths Administered by Judge Vail in the County Clerk's Office—They Have no Changes to Announce in Office Forces.

Tuesday County Clerk-elect Will Ham Howard and Robert G. Houston, sheriff elect, were sworn in and entered upon the duties of their respective offices.

The oath of office was administered in the office of the county clerk by Judge B A. Vail, in the presence of bondsmen and others.

The oath of office was first administered to the county clerk. His bondsmen were County Collector E. M Wood and Edward T. Woodruff. The bonds demanded is $5,000.

Sheriff-elect Houston was sworn in without delay. His bondsmen, in the sum of $20 000, are John W. Whelan, Richard Potts, Mayor W. A. M. Mack, Louis Quien, Frederick Bender, John Kean and E. M. Wood.

Both Mr. Howard and Mr. Houston were warmly congratulated, among the first to tender his congratulations to Mr. Houston being the retiring sheriff, Mr. Kirk.

Among those present were County Collector E. M. Wood, ex-Sheriff George Kyte, John W. Whelan, M. K. Halsey, Edward T. Woodruff, Councilman R. L. Paterson, Surrogate Geo. Parrot, S. Rusling Ryno, Assemblyman Murray and Meeker, Freeholder E. K. Adams, Frederick Bender, ex-Sheriff Kirk, J. Frank Hubbard, Clerk of the District Court Calvert, Assistant County Clerk Coriell, ex-Sheriff Crowley, members of the press and others.

Both Mr. Howard and Sheriff Houston said they had no announcement to make of any changes in their offices.

RIKERS AT ROSELLE.

Buy Out One of the Obstructing Property-Owners and Now Go To Elizabeth City Council.

The Rikers have settled with Henry Lass, one of the three holding up the widening of Second avenue, in Roselle, from sixty to eighty-one feet, by paying for twenty-one feet of his land and moving his building to the rear of its present location. The Rikers also give Lass a bonus of $500. There now remains but two property-owners to be settled with. They are Daniel Schwartz, who owns the building on opposite corner from Lass, and Henry Berry.

Borough Counsel Frank Bergen applied to the court at Trenton today for commissioners to condemn the lands of these two objecting property-owners.

The Rikers have completed the work of laying rails from Plainfield to Elizabeth city line, and now await the action of the Elizabeth City Council, which will meet this evening.

If a franchise is granted the rails from Roselle to the connection with the North Jersey Traction Company line on West Jersey street at Elizabeth will be quickly laid, and it is expected cars will be running between Elizabeth and Plainfield by Thanksgiving Day.

A Disgraceful Sight.

A disgraceful sight was witnessed in the borough Tuesday, when a woman was seen staggering through Somerset street under the influence of liquor. The woman was hardly able to walk, only managing to get along by the aid of the fences.

Doing Nothing.

A great many people have been wondering what the Councilmanic committee on municipal ownership of water works is doing. It is understood, however, that it is impossible to get the committee together.

CLASSICAL MUSIC BY TALENTED ARTISTS.

Ward Stephens' Chamber Music Concert Was a Success.

STORM KEPT MANY AWAY.

BUT THOSE WHO ATTENDED WERE GREATLY PLEASED.

Mr. Stephens Was Assisted by the Arnold White String Quartette, Miss Adele Rafter, Soprano; Francis Carrier, Baritone; Leo Taussig, 'Cellist, and Clarence Reynolds, Accompanist—At Y. M. C. A.

Ward Stephens stands high in popular favor. He has proved himself to be a pianist of exceptional ability and again Tuesday won fresh honors through the success of the second chamber music concert, held at the Y. M. C. A. Hall. The first snow storm of the season kept many of Plainfield's music lovers at home and so the hall was only fairly filled. Those who did attend were more than pleased by the uniform excellence of the programme.

Mr. Stephens' selection of the artists to assist him was a most happy one. There was the Arnold White string quartette, of New York, Miss Adele Rafter, soprano; Francis Carrier, baritone; Leo Taussig, 'cellist, and Clarence Raynolds, accompanist.

The programme opened with a quintette by Jadassohn, rendered by the string quartette and Mr Stephens. There was a unity and a feeling in the work of the quartette that was eminently satisfactory. Mr. Stephens played with a delicacy and feeling that pleased all. In that selection as well as in those which he rendered later in the programme, he showed a technique that was highly commended. All his selections were given with an ease that showed thorough acquaintance with his subjects.

Miss Rafter possesses a sweet voice that was heard at its best in her choice of selections. Her distinct enunciation and her charming personality made her a favorite at once. Her selections included those in both Italian and English and she appeared thoroughly at her ease in both. She was encored at each appearance.

Mr. Carrier was a new comer to Plainfield. He sang with feeling and showed a remarkable range for a baritone. His songs were well chosen. Under the guiding hand of Mr. Stephens the 'cello gave out many rich harmonies. The difficult portions were given without the slightest hesitancy and Mr. Taussig showed himself to be an accomplished musician.

The uniform excellence of all the numbers on the programme makes it difficult to point out any one particularly worthy of commendation. The audience was enthusiastic in its reception of all the artists, and there was much praise for Mr. Stevens in providing the Plainfield public with such an opportunity for listening to the rendition of the works of the greatest masters by artists of talent.

DIDN'T GO FAR.

Trolley Work Resumed Beyond the Elizabeth City Line, But Very Promptly Stopped.

There was some surprise expressed Tuesday morning after the explanations made by the officials of the Elizabeth City Railway Company when a gang of workmen under direction of Contractor Quien began to lay tracks beyond Bayonne and up Westfield avenue in the direction of El Mora.

Saturday and Sunday the company very hurriedly put down one track from Orchard street to Bayway, and it was explained it was done under authority of the city ordinance, and to come within the time limit.

The avenue has been ploughed up beyond the city line to a short distance beyond the city line of the El Mora station, and nearly up the hill to the Springfield road. Yesterday morning rails for one track were laid about half this distance, and one rail still further on. Then the work was suddenly stopped by order of a messenger sent from the company's office.

Secretary Whelan said the work on the avenue was continued through an error, the contractor believing the Elizabeth city line extended to the Bronson property.

The officials of the company insist that they have not exceeded any of the rights their franchise has given them.

—Sparklets—bac eb dah rof eerht stnec. Wm. W. Moore, 310 Park avenue.

—Sparklets—erup, paebc elpmis, Keing. Wm. W. Moore, 310 Park avenue.

—The Union Gospel meeting is held as usual in the W. C. T. U. room tonight at 8 o'clock.

FOOT WEAR.

The Prevailing Mode In Shoes and Slippers.

New shoes for house wear this winter have high heels and narrow toes. There is a large, pointed tongue which covers the instep, across which the shoe is fastened with a large bow of white or colored ribbon, fastened by a jeweled or gold buckle of medium size. Tan shoes with white ties are seen, black with blue, green or red.

The fashionable bedroom slipper, with or without a heel piece, is of soft, bright red morocco, very much embroidered or cut in openwork.

Slippers for evening wear are very pointed and have small buckles of rhinestones.

Bare hands, so long tabooed, are not infrequently seen now—not that gloves are ever omitted for the street or out of doors, but at the theater and for the less ceremonious class of social functions the gloves are removed. This is to be accounted for by the fact that the present elongated sleeves cover the hands as far as the fingers and that it is fashionable to wear a large number of rings.

GIRL'S COSTUME.

The picture shows a girl's dress of red poplin. The skirt is laid in box plaits, which increase in size toward the foot. From the waist to about half way down the skirt bands of black satin ending in a loop are applied over the divisions of the plaits. The blouse bodice is made and decorated in the same manner. The close sleeves have three tucks at the top. The collar and belt are of black satin, the hat of black velvet faced with red plaited velvet. A band of red velvet encircles the crown, and in front are a bow of red ribbon and a cluster of black ostrich tips.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

EARLY WINTER.

What Is to Be Worn by Well Dressed Women.

The poloanises of lace which were worn during the summer are still holding their own, but with some changes. They are now lined with thin cloth and have coming from beneath the edge a little circular ruffle or a bias band of white or yellowish cloth matching the tint of the lace.

The straight sacks, which have been accepted to a degree in their plain and serviceable form, are now being pushed by modistes and appear in rich and fanciful materials. Their inherent aspect of dishabille, which cannot be done away with by any amount of decoration, will probably prevent them from obtaining much success. An example of the new designs is of heavy black guipure embroidered with black chenille and made over red cloth. The points are rounded, and a circular ruffle of plain red cloth follows the edges. The large collar, which is almost a pelerine, is of guipure over cloth. This sack accompanies a skirt of red cloth embroidered with black and having a circular flounce.

CAPE.

The cape illustrated is of black drap de soie and is entirely covered with a design embroidered with jet spangles. Around the edge is a circular ruffle trimmed with serpentine gimp and headed by a roche of black mousseline de soie. The revers and the valois collar are faced with puffed mousseline de soie and edged with ruches. The lining of the cape is of white satin. The hat of black chenille braid is trimmed with black tulle and bunches of violets. JUDIC CHOLLET.

TRIMMINGS.

Fringe of All Varieties Takes a Foremost Place.

Fringe has been already mentioned as a trimming which is rapidly pushing its way to the very front and is to be a prominent feature in winter costumes. Many varieties are now seen, the more elaborate kinds being deeply knotted in points or scallops, these irregularities being frequently followed by the ends of the fringe also. This wide fringe is usually so arranged as to fall over wide flounces or plaitings, although sometimes it is sewed flat upon the goods.

There are also very narrow "Tom Thumb" fringes, something like those which used to be used for edging Christmas cards. These are employed to border ruffles, yokes and scarfs, and a plastron or skirt panel is sometimes entirely covered with them, set so closely that the heading does not show.

PRINCESS TOILET.

The role played by trimmings this winter is extremely important. The form of the gown is unchanged, and as it has been reduced to the simplest denomination it is only by a variety of decorations that diversity of effect can be secured; hence there has seldom been a season when devices for ornamentation were so plentiful.

The princess costume depicted is of pearl gray satin cloth. At the middle of the skirt is a wide, pointed band of emerald green velvet, bordered by flat folds of pearl gray satin. The short bolero of emerald velvet is bordered with gray satin folds and is closed at the side by three velvet buttons. The velvet sleeves have cuffs of gray satin folds, and the plaited collar is of velvet. The hat of emerald velvet is trimmed with spangled ornaments and black feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

HOUSEHOLD FASHIONS.

Attractive Decorations For the Dining Table.

The newest way of decorating the dining table is to place in front of each guest a little basket, made of silver, crystal or china, filled with flowers. The middle of the table is furnished by a mirror with delicate silver trimmings, and plates of bonbons encircled by garlands of flowers are arranged on the mirror. This method of decoration does not obstruct the communication of the guests, as does any tall or clumsy system of ornamentation.

Fruits and flowers are now frequently mingled in table decorations. In select ing flowers for the table care should be taken to avoid all those having a strong scent, like the narcissus, tuberose, jasmine and hyacinth, as many persons are made ill by such odors. Scentless flowers, like the camellia, tulip, crocus or jonquil, are preferable, although roses and violets enhance everyone's enjoyance. The smell of the chrysanthemum is usually quite inoffensive, and it is an extremely decorative flower. Ornamental foliage, green and colored, may also be used alone with excellent effect.

MORNING JACKET.

The cut shows a breakfast jacket of printed cashmere. It is loose in front and closes at the side with choux of velvet held by a jeweled button. At the back it is shirred in at the waist. The wide collar and revers are of plain silk, and the entire garment is edged with double ruffles of lace bordered by narrowest velvet and headed also by bands of the same decoration.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SILK PETTICOATS.

The Latest Developments With Regard to Them.

The brightest and lightest shades of glace silk are employed for petticoats, and for trimming there are flounces and applications of costly lace and choux composed of immaterielle beige, baby ribbon in silk, satin or velvet. The petticoat is, however, losing a great deal of its importance now that gowns are so clinging, for it is becoming more and more the custom to dispense with the petticoat altogether. Its place is taken by a deep flounce of silk which is sewed against the inside of the dress skirt at about the height of the knee. This sustains the flare of the foot of the gown, while it does not add to the bulk of the figure.

Bons consisting of large ruches of spangled tulle are a novelty. Scarfs of crape, gauze, net or liberty silk are, however, newer than boas and are worn by many elegant women. They give a charming finish to a light costume.

AUTUMN GOWN.

The cut shows a costume having a skirt of almond green satin cloth, finished around the foot by a puff of mousseline de soie of the same shade. The top of the skirt is first by means of fine stitched plaits. The bolero is of dark green velvet, covered with guipure de venise, the sleeves being of cloth like the skirt. The collar and revers are of white plaited silk. The chemisette of pink silk is plaited horizontally, and the belt of dark green velvet is fastened by an ornamental buckle. The accompanying hat of green felt is trimmed with black plumes and a jeweled ornament.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

PLAID CAPES.

Wraps of Golf Cloth For General Use.

Capes of plaid wool are seen in great variety, not merely of color, but of style. They almost all have a hood of one kind or another, a feature which is really practicable and may be drawn over the head in case of necessity. As for the decoration, that takes all sorts of odd forms, and, while the shape of capes is, generally speaking, the same—that is, they all cling about the shoulders and flare more or less toward the edge—the finish differs greatly in different garments. One will have a circular flounce around the curved edge, another will have revers with fringe and large buttons, while a third, newer than the others, will be cut so that it slopes to a shawl point at the back, while around the shoulders are other fringed points sewed on. The plaids employed are often very bright and are mulined, the reverse, which is plain, serving for trimming.

CLOTH JACKET.

The illustration given today shows a coat of gray satin cloth. It has a plain basque of medium length, with rounded fronts, and is bordered by a band of cream satin, above which is a line of black embroidery. The wide collar and the high, flaring collar are of dark gray velvet, bordered with cream satin. The sleeves have fine embroidery at the wrists and a ruche of white satin. The chemisette and cravat are of plaited white mousseline de soie.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Fixing Up the Room.

In small rooms it is a mistake to have cupboards in the little recesses so often found on each side of the fireplace. If shelves are put in and carried there, have them by all means, but cover them with a pretty curtain. This should be hung from a rod, and be so arranged as to take as little space as possible from the room. The effect of a pretty piece of drapery will be decidedly pleasant to the eye, and on cleaning days the contents of the shelves may be protected by having a cotton dusting sheet fastened over them, so that even then the cupboard doors will not be missed. Of course on these special occasions the curtain should be taken down and thoroughly shaken.—Home Notes.

FASHION HINTS.

Varieties In Underwear to Accompany Clinging Gowns.

Large china buttons are employed upon elegant gowns for indoor wear. The buttons are of course finely painted.

In order to avoid all fullness of underwear various devices are resorted to. Some women wear combination underwear of webbing, with additional tights for extra warmth, and abandon muslin underclothing altogether. Others wear the muslin combination and eschew the petticoat, substituting a deep flounce of silk on the inside of the gown skirt. Still others wear the silk petticoat, but have it made in one piece with the corset cover, like a low necked, sleeveless princess gown. It need hardly be said that women inclined to stoutness will do well to wear the closest possible undergarments, but should not follow the fashion of extremely clinging gowns, as utter absence of folds in the attire makes superfluous flesh more evident.

DINNER GOWN.

Willow green, automobile red (a sort of magenta), violet, silver gray, blue gray and beige are fashionable for elegant and even ceremonious toilets.

The princess gown illustrated is of violet silk embroidered with silver spangles and black. The skirt opens in front over a tablier of lighter violet plaited mousseline de soie, and the edges of the opening are bordered with a plaited mousseline ruffle. A band of black galloon embroidered with silver spangles follows the outlines of the tablier. The bodice is opened in a point over a crossed fichu of plaited mousseline de soie, and there are epaulets of mousseline over the sleeves of embroidered silk. JUDIC CHOLLET.

WINTER MODES.

Silk and Satin Folds—New Patterns in Moires.

A decoration which is destined to great success during the winter consists of bias bands of satin or taffeta applied to cloth or velvet. The satin or taffeta must be of the best quality, as the folds require frequent brushing and are usually exposed to considerable wear. The folds are stitched down in place with silk and follow simple straight lines or are arranged in a design the pattern of which has been previously marked out on the goods. The stitching must be done before the lining of that part of the garment is put in, but in case of very soft cloths an interlining of stiffening may be basted to the back of the goods, and the folds may be stitched to the two together. The folds must be even and laid on with precision if they are to be effective.

RECEPTION GOWN.

Moire fabrics are to be much worn, not the ordinary moires, but new designs in which the watermarks show great variety, forming peacock eyes, arabesques and waved lines. These are seen in evening shades and will compose very elegant costumes.

The gown illustrated has a tunic of nile green taffeta cut in points and embroidered with silk. It falls over a plaited lower skirt of nile green silk. The bodice of moss green velvet has a draped front fastened at the side with bows of moss green satin and by rhinestone buckles. The guimpe and sleeves are of puffed nile green mousseline de soie. Epaulets of white lace continue across the back to form a berthe. Ruffles of moss green velvet finish the wrists. The collar is of nile green mousseline de soie.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

The inhabitants of Winton, England, believe that with the close of the century the world will come to an end.

SKIRTS.

They May Be Long or Short, as Occasion Demands.

The short skirt is doing its best to maintain ground against the trailing skirt for the street, and certainly it is much neater and more healthful. Many expensive tailor made gowns have skirts which do not trail at all, and when the long skirt is adopted for walking it is held up in the hand. For house wear, however, the train is universally seen and is long or short, according to the class of costume.

HOUSE COSTUME

All skirts are long in front and cover the feet, except those special skirts meant for athletic sports or wet weather.

Tailor made gowns of cloth of most distinguished style are very plain, without extraneous trimming or complicated colored revers. Such gowns rely on perfection of cut for their charms, and the decoration is simple, consisting of lines of stitching of white or colored silk—blue, orange or red, for example—and small but fine buttons having a jeweled effect. Sapphires, turquoises, rubies, amethysts, crystals and emeralds are all used, and the stone is selected to harmonize with the stitching.

The indoor costume illustrated is of mohair. The lower skirt is tobacco brown, while the tunic is a lighter shade and is scalloped and stitched around the edge. The brown bodice has a front drape y of the lighter shade, with scalloped edges, the drapery being fastened by a steel buckle. The brown sleeves have lighter, scalloped caps. The belt is of brown velvet, with a steel buckle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WINTER GOODS.

Fashionable Materials For Cold Weather Costumes.

Cloth and velvet, alone and in combination, are to be much worn. The new cloths are seen in great variety and are as glossy as satin. They may be had in both light and heavy weight and will compose very elegant gowns. As for velvet, its reign promises to be royal. It forms entire costumes and is still more extensively used for trimming, stitched velvet collars, cuffs and revers being the latest finish for jackets. Velvet in combination with plaid wools is a favorite for children's wear, and velvet hats, plainly covered or draped, are a feature of winter millinery, the velvet sailor hat rivaling that of felt.

CLOTH BODICE.

Fancy velvets less formal and serious than the plain kinds are to be much worn as costumes for young girls. There are also velveteens and corduroys of fine quality, intended for children's use, which are so attractively colored and woven as to look almost like silk, and as they are much less expensive and are very durable their suitability for little people is obvious. White velveteen, which is said by the manufacturers to wash as well as a pocket handkerchief, is largely employed for frocks for very little children.

The bodice shown in the cut is of plum colored cloth. The bolero reaches the waist line at the back, while in front it is cut away, meeting over the breast, where it fastens with two ornamental buttons. The revers are of plum colored silk, and the bolero is finished with lines of white stitching. The vest and high collar are of mauve and white plaid silk and have tiny crystal buttons set in two rows. The cravat is of plum colored silk.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

OUT OF DOOR STYLES.

New Ideas For Boas, Skirts and Capes.

The fashion of boas still continues. The boas now worn are short and come half way down the front of the bodice or to the belt. Those of plumage are as much liked as ever, and there are also many varieties composed of ribbon, chiffon, net, etc. The newest method of wearing the boa is to let it hang a little loose at the back, instead of bringing it up to the nape of the neck. The ends are then carried over the shoulders and fastened to the bodice at each side, the tips hanging loose. The pins used for fastening the boa to the bodice are a sort of long, ornamental safety pin, often jeweled, and a boa thus secured never slips out of position.

So many women wear a short skirt on wet days that it no longer attracts any attention. The conscious superiority of the short skirted woman over the long skirted woman in a pouring rain is striking as she trips along with neat garments and free hands and observes the dripping petticoats, caught up absurdly high at one side and draggling in the puddles at the other, which mark the intensely conservative school of femininity. The best method of keeping a long skirt from getting wet is to pin it up with a large safety pin, placed just below the waist at the left side, so that only the right side need be held up by the hand.

MARQUISE CAPE.

The little marquise cape illustrated is a new design. It is of black satin with bias ends and has a seam in the middle of the back which is shaped in to the figure. The yoke and rippled collar are heavily embroidered, and the latter is lined with white mousseline de soie. A double jabot of black lace falls down the front, and a double flounce of black lace surrounds the cape. Choux of black satin are fastened in front and at the back with steel ornaments.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION'S FANCIES.

Modes For Little Children—Winter Novelties.

Very little babies, those who have not yet begun to walk, are no longer dressed in very long clothes. The skirt is seldom more than three-quarters of a yard long, the cloak being a little longer. If the gown is white, as it almost invariably is, it is worn over an undergown of flannel, and in France it is the custom to have this flannel gown, which shows through the nainsook, pink or blue, according to the sex of the child, blue being used for a boy, pink for a girl.

Babies' cloaks are less bulky than they formerly were and are now made of beige galline or cashmere, white, pink, blue or pale gray. They are warmly lined and have a short pelerine, the trimming being a frill of lace around the pelerine or, which is newer, lace incrusted on a circular ruffle.

VELVET CAPOTE.

Chenille network is a novelty introduced for the decoration of winter gowns. It is usually black and is used for cuffs and boleros over colored cloth or velvet.

Black faille is fashionable, but it is used in new ways. For example, a polonaise is entirely made of superimposed bias folds of the faille, and a tunic is composed of two folds of faille, each panel forming a point at the foot and being tucked in such a way that the tucks form points in the middle of the panel.

The cut shows a directoire bonnet covered with stretched black velvet. The brim is faced with alternate folds of black velvet and black satin. In front are two black ostrich plumes and a black silk butterfly with painted wings. The strings are of black velvet.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

MADE A WAGER.

Little Willie's Lesson on City And Country Rabbit Hunting.

Little Willie's lesson was this:—

Once upon a time two men made a wager.

"I will wager you," said one, "that I will go out hunting to-morrow with a gun and a belt full of shells and bring in more rabbits than you."

He was a city sportsman, with a nickel-plated shooter and a hunting suit that cost $63.

The man he addressed was just as over-grown boy about nineteen who looked as though he had never seen the cars and would likely shy at them if he should.

"Whattel yer bet?" he said, when the other had finished speaking.

"I'll bet you $10."

"I'll tuk ye." The over-grown boy who had been raised on a farm and didn't wear a celluloid button with a picture on it, ran around the barn and raised ten off the hired man, which he put up with the chore boy.

The next morning the two hunters started in opposite directions.

The city hunter carried a gun and his suit. The farm boy carried a bag and a stick of wood.

The day passed on.

Night came on.

Toward eight o'clock the city youth returned to the old homestead and poured out upon the kitchen floor from his game bag four rabbits that he had shot.

"There," he said, "how's that?"

The farmer looked at the dead animals.

"That's putty good," he replied.

"Has Reuben come in yet?" asked the city youth, with a cheerful smile.

Heavy footfalls were heard upon the floor of the porch, and the next instant Reuben entered the kitchen. In his two hands he held by their legs twelve rabbits, and from the sack he had carried with him on the hunt he poured twenty-five. Out of each capacious pocket he drew from two to four, and unloaded himself generally.

The city young man leaned back against the table. The chore boy handed $20 over to the Reuben and the Reuben took his ferret out in the shed and thrust him into his cage.

The city youth was carried home the next day suffering from brain fever.

The lesson little Willie learned from this is:—"Never go up against a sure thing unless you know yours is sure."—Detroit Free Press.

Statistical.

"I see that the Star puts the population of the globe at twenty-five hundred million! Why, the idea!" cried the lovely unstatistical creature, with the lovely unstatistical husband beside his chair—he gazed abstractedly at the fire.

"A mistaken idea," he grunted; "the correct figures are twelve hundred and fifty millions and one."

"Good gracious!" she exclaimed, with a highly deprecatory glance at her favorite writer. "I should have thought that the Star could be so far out of the way! Which is the more wonderful, such a blunder or your accuracy, so minute and so—so spontaneous?"

"The Star has excuses for such blunders, which I could not have. 'Tis this way Nelly. The population of the globe comprises twelve hundred and fifty million men—and just one girl!"—and she is the wretch turned up as expectant face.

She bent down and kissed him.—Washington Star.

Unhandsome.

"For an experienced rider like you, Mr. Gordon," casually observed Miss Quickstep, as they wheeled through the park, "I suppose it is an easy matter to ride with hands off?"

"It's no trick at all," replied the young man.

"Perhaps, then," she rejoined, "you wouldn't mind taking your hand off my shoulder."—Chicago Tribune.

This Takes Courage.

"I tell you, Burkhart is a man who has nerve."

"How has he ever proved it? He has never gone to war or rescued anybody from drowning, has he?"

"No, I guess not, but he isn't afraid to say right in the office and face his wife when she reads the news from the summer resorts in the Sunday papers."—Chicago Times-Herald.

How He Could Afford It.

Father (to son from whom he has just accepted a cigar). Excellent! How much did you pay?

Son. They're three for a quarter.

"Great Scott! And I content myself with two for a nickel!"

"That's a different matter. If I had as large a family as you to support I shouldn't smoke at all."—Life.

Unmistakable.

"You ought to be sure about it, child, before you allow yourself to believe Freddy Youngspote loves you."

"Sure about it, mamma? When he called the other day, after return from the seaside, he told me he was gladder to see me than if he had caught a 6-pound trout!"—Chicago Tribune.

The Dilemma.

"Aren't you afraid of us?" asked the Englishman severely.

"Yes," answered the Transvaal citizen, "I guess we are more or less afraid of you. The difficulty is that we're just as much afraid of you when you talk diplomacy as when you talk fight."—Washington Star.

Prima Facie Evidence.

"So the lady engaged you at once when you said you had served with me?"

"Yes, she said that any girl who could stand you three months must be an angel."—What-to-Eat.

A Ready Retort.

The Vulture. It's hardly polite to read your paper at table, Mr. Hallroom.

The Victim. I know, Mrs. Skinner, but it takes my mind off what I'm eating.—What-to-Eat.

A Wise Precaution.

Lulu. You should get him to sign the pledge before you marry him.

Baba. Why, he doesn't drink.

Lulu. No, but he may be tempted to do so later.—What-to-Eat.

MECCA OF MILLIONS.

SOME AUTHENTIC MARVELS OF THE PARIS EXHIBITION.

Features Both Novel and Striking. The Castle of Waters—Objects of Interest for the Frivolous, the Scientific and the Studious.

There has been so much wild speculation as to the features of attraction at the forthcoming Paris Exhibition, that it is a relief to know from authentic sources that many novelties will be disclosed to us in May of next year. As might have been anticipated, all the wild, hair-brained schemes of which the papers have been so full are doomed to end, as they began, in the clouds; but the exhibition will not lack many features, both novel and striking.

One charming centre of attraction will be the "Castle of Waters," which is now being erected in front of the "Palace of Electricity." From the summit of the castle, which is in reality a huge grotto, a miniature Niagara of water will fall in a series of imposing cascades from one basin to another, until it forms a lake in which mighty geysers will rise. At night these tiers of cascades will flash forth in all the colors of the rainbow, projected electrically from inside, and will form one of the most brilliant spectacles on which the eye of man has ever gazed.

In another part of the exhibition grounds the Paris of the Middle Ages will live again in all the old buildings and narrow, tortuous streets, which will carry one back five centuries. Here the mediæval student will quaff his wine and be fleeced by the astute tavern housewives will barter and haggle with shopkeepers of the days of Louis XI., minstrels will sing old-time ballads, and, in short, Paris of the fifteenth century will be transplanted with all its quaint costumes, characters and modes of life into the Paris of the end of the nineteenth century.

On the Seine will be moored boats smothered in beautiful decoration of flowers, where the Londoner or Parisian can sip his tea to the singing and dancing of Geishas, and fancy himself transiated to sunny Japan. In another part of the ground the visitor can wander into an Egyptian village, and witness a performance in an Egyptian theatre, and a few steps more will take him to Morocco and the many-colored life of Algiers.

French India, too, will be transported to the exhibition grounds, with all the quaint natives and costumes of the East; and the visitor can explore at his leisure the famous pagodas of Vishnu, with it mysterious priests and its sacred dancing girls.

No exhibition nowadays is complete without its water-chute; but the chute that is now prepared on the Champ de Mars is the longest, steepest and most tortuous ever designed, and is warranted to crowd more sensations and risks into a few minutes than will satisfy the most adventurous. There will also be a large wheel, in comparison with which existing wheels will be pigmies, and a pygmy Tower will look on all its pristine glories, with new paint and decorations.

At the Champ de Mars the studiously inclined can revel in all the commercial marvels of mines and metallurgy, chemical industries and civil engineering, food-stuffs and electricity, textiles and sciences; and at the Invalides there will be palaces devoted to industries, French and foreign.

For the frivolous, there will be operatic cafes chantants, booths and kiosks; and everywhere delightful cool corners, rich in flowers and foliage, and illuminated at night by garlands and festoons of many-colored electric lights.

The Trocadero will be there to revive memories of past exhibitions; and in the beautiful gardens that surround it, and slope gently to the river, will be buildings and villages to represent all the colonies of the world.

A novel feature, which it will be both costly and difficult to realize, will be a large lake of sea water, with a sloping and sandy beach, on which thousands of visitors can enjoy all the delights of the seaside. The lake will be excavated at Longchamps, and the water will be pumped from the channel, 125 miles away, through a series of three pipes.

Although the exhibition, which will open on May 1st, contains no features remarkable in novelty or sensation, it promises to be at least as full of attractions and delights as any of its predecessors, and will, no doubt, be the "Mecca" of millions next year.

A Mechanical Stoker.

The first application of the mechanical stoker to a locomotive has been made on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad. The coal is put into a hopper by the fireman, from where it feeds down into a six-inch cylinder, and a piston operated by steam throws a small charge of coal—from four to six pounds—through an opening in the fire-box door. This coal can be given force enough to go clear to the flue sheet or drop at any part of the distance, even close to the door. At the same time coal is spread out evenly over the surface of the grates from side to side. The supply of steam and coal can be regulated for light or heavy work by the crew.

If it can be perfected so as to work on a locomotive, the smokeless firing broad citizen from Indiana, and while ders of the fireman, for small charges of coal scattered evenly over the fire at short intervals is the ideal smoke preventive. Mechanical stokers are nothing new, but so far their field has been limited to the burning of pulverized coal, of them handle fine coal only; this one can handle moderate-sized lumps.

Tea and Coffee.

Here are a few statistics, given by an expert, concerning the relative merits and expense of tea and coffee:

"Tea is cheaper than any water bottled. It costs 1 cent per thousand cups of tea can be made from every pound of black tea, which, at the rate of 50 cents a pound, would give six cups for one cent. In Scotland tea is reported, which can be purchased at $1 a pound, would cost the consumer one cent for three cups. Coffee at its lowest low price is much dearer than tea, as only few cups can be made from one pound.

Hominy is a corruption of an unmixed the Indian name for parched corn.

BRIDGE THE PACIFIC

Nature, in Time, Will Construct a Bridge From Alaska to Russia.

"There will be a bridge connecting this country with Asia at no very distant day," said Prof. W. J. McGee, the Government scientist.

"If you look at any map of the world you will find the bridge I speak of indicated by the line of the Aleutian chain, which extends from southwestern Alaska westward in a curve bearing somewhat southward to the Asiatic islands, which, physiographically speaking, form part of the same system, is the southern boundary of Bering sea. The line of islands extends clear across from Alaska to the Asiatic side, with many gaps between, which, as I have stated, people yet to be filled in before the bridge is finished."

"But how do you know that they will be filled in?"

"I see four possible reasons exist for knowing that they must be filled in, and that the land bridge between our territory and Asia will be made complete. It is a fact, as many people beyond dispute, that the islands of the Aleutian chain are steadily rising. In fact, a geological uplifting of that part of the earth's crust is taking place, and the line of the fold is represented by the Aleutian islands and the Russian islands. The mountain system across the Kamchatka. The territorial expansion of the United States is progressing by a natural, as well as through political, means. It is progressing in a northwesterly direction, owing to geologic causes, the dry land of Western Alaska gaining steadily on the sea. In other words, the western part of Uncle Sam's arctic province is advancing toward the Asiatic shore.

"The Yukon river is constantly bringing down to the coast enormous quantities of detritus and depositing it at shore. The detritus does exactly what is necessary to form a bridge. The refuse dumps eventually form great areas of new ground for the extension of the shore and the foundations of houses. In a word, it is a landmaker, and in the way I describe it has added thousands of square miles to the Alaskan territory. It has built the whole of the immense Yukon delta, and has made the waters off shore so shallow that even small vessels can hardly get within sight of land. Necessarily before very many years have elapsed these shallows will be converted in their turn into dry land by the continuous outpour of material from the river."

Fun in Laundry Checks.

"Most people suppose," and an ex-Californian, "that the vertical row of hieroglyphics on a Chinese laundry check is there merely so many numerals. As a matter of fact, they are nothing of the kind, but constitute a brief and spicy description of the individual who left the garment. If you will take the trouble to notice it, you will see that the laundryman always goes through exactly the same programme. He takes the check, and, with a quick, swift, comprehensive glance, and then proceeds to decorate a slip of rice paper with from two to five inches of chicken tracks. What he has really written is probably something like this:

"'Fat foreign devil who resembles a pig; squinty eyes, and wart on the left side of his nose.'

"You carry around this flattering pen portrait, constantly imagining that it reads, 'No. 4-11-44,' and when you call for your wash you will find the Chinaman who receives the ticket will invariably look you over, making mental comparison, before he reaches for the bundle. A Mongolian friend of mine told in Frisco, where he was educated, and I took the trouble to ascertain whether he was telling me the truth. I got a laundry slip, copied it with microscopic fidelity, and submitted it to several native expert translators. They all agreed that it ran something like this:

"'Ridiculous old man, very pompous, bald head, like a speckled egg.'

"You will observe that my hair gloss rather flatters me, and that I have a few freckles, although nothing to justify such an insulting description. However, it proved the point. The next ticket I got called me a 'fool,' and 'gentleman, resembling Yun-Tai, the wind god,' which pleased me immensely until I persuaded a native curio dealer to show me the picture of the god. Then I wanted to murder the laundryman. The Chinese are a deep people, boys. They are not content as a guide as pigs, but all the while they are quickly sizing us up and having a big laugh in their sleeves."

A Song Merchant's Business.

There has lately died in Paris a M. Lucien Delormel, who was generally known as the song merchant. He was able to purchase a number of music hall ditties, and in a very few years he had left a fortune of about £20,000, principally made by furnishing cafe-concert artistes with topical songs. M. Delormel, who was only fifty years of age, tried his hand at dramatic authorship, taking Sardou as his model, but money does not come in quickly enough. He started on the patriotic song business after the war, and in connection with a well-known comedian named Villemer founded later on a firm which guaranteed to provide cafe-concert managers and vocalists with both comic songs and sentimental. The firm prospered, but, like Erckmann and Chatrian, the partners disagreed, and Delormel conducted the business alone. He composed the song, but signed those composed for him by budding Berangers living in garrets and other humbler dens.

Some of the most successful songs or ballads like those of Yvette Guilbert, for instance, who was supplied by the firm with the whole of her répertoire, composed and sung independently of Delormel's assistance or interference, but he generally directed his young men to produce a good imitation of whatever had taken the town by storm. He is credited with the production of the song, "En Revenant de la Revue," and also with "Pers la Victoire." It is affirmed that he made £8,000 by "En Revenant de la Revue" alone, and he also touched, it is said, £4,000 for the rights in his other compositions to a remarkable extent.

"My boy Johnny has such a cheerful disposition,"

"Oh, yes. When I make him wash his neck, instead of grumbling, he just says he is glad he is not a giraffe."—Indianapolis Journal.

CHINESE RAILROADS.

DIFFICULTIES AND HUMORS INCIDENT TO RECENT RIOTS.

Life of a Foreign Guard on a Train Not a Happy One—Mandarin's Servants Without Tickets Take Possession of a First-Class Carriage.

Mr. Cox, who was recently assaulted near Peking, has had many similar experiences during the dozen years he has been railroad building in the Chihli province, and has only excited himself by defending the Celestials when bullied. He has practically for years carried his life in his hand.

Several years ago, for instance, during the floods, Mr. Cox, by the address of Lutai, a military camp near Tientsin, cut the railway embankment and destroyed seven miles of line, their officers encouraging the mob, and the frightened Viceroy Li Hung Chang, in his yamen, a few miles off, "layin' low and sayin' nuffin." The cause of the cutting had been unbearable, for the flood water from running off, which as there were frequent outlets, was at last, owing to the rising of that part of the earth's crust in taking place, and the line of the fold is represented by the Aleutian islands and the Russian islands. In other words, the western part of Uncle Sam's arctic province is advancing toward the Asiatic shore.

"The Yukon river is constantly bringing down to the coast enormous quantities of detritus and depositing it at shore. The detritus does exactly what is necessary to form a bridge. The refuse dumps eventually form great areas of new ground for the extension of the shore and the foundations of houses. In a word, it is a landmaker, and in the way I describe it has added thousands of square miles to the Alaskan territory. It has built the whole of the immense Yukon delta, and has made the waters off shore so shallow that even small vessels can hardly get within sight of land. Necessarily before very many years have elapsed these shallows will be converted in their turn into dry land by the continuous outpour of material from the river."

Fun in Laundry Checks.

"Most people suppose," and an ex-Californian, "that the vertical row of hieroglyphics on a Chinese laundry check is there merely so many numerals. As a matter of fact, they are nothing of the kind, but constitute a brief and spicy description of the individual who left the garment. If you will take the trouble to notice it, you will see that the laundryman always goes through exactly the same programme. He takes the check, and, with a quick, swift, comprehensive glance, and then proceeds to decorate a slip of rice paper with from two to five inches of chicken tracks. What he has really written is probably something like this:

"'Fat foreign devil who resembles a pig; squinty eyes, and wart on the left side of his nose.'

"You carry around this flattering pen portrait, constantly imagining that it reads, 'No. 4-11-44,' and when you call for your wash you will find the Chinaman who receives the ticket will invariably look you over, making mental comparison, before he reaches for the bundle. A Mongolian friend of mine told in Frisco, where he was educated, and I took the trouble to ascertain whether he was telling me the truth. I got a laundry slip, copied it with microscopic fidelity, and submitted it to several native expert translators. They all agreed that it ran something like this:

"'Ridiculous old man, very pompous, bald head, like a speckled egg.'

"You will observe that my hair gloss rather flatters me, and that I have a few freckles, although nothing to justify such an insulting description. However, it proved the point. The next ticket I got called me a 'fool,' and 'gentleman, resembling Yun-Tai, the wind god,' which pleased me immensely until I persuaded a native curio dealer to show me the picture of the god. Then I wanted to murder the laundryman. The Chinese are a deep people, boys. They are not content as a guide as pigs, but all the while they are quickly sizing us up and having a big laugh in their sleeves."

A Song Merchant's Business.

There has lately died in Paris a M. Lucien Delormel, who was generally known as the song merchant. He was able to purchase a number of music hall ditties, and in a very few years he had left a fortune of about £20,000, principally made by furnishing cafe-concert artistes with topical songs. M. Delormel, who was only fifty years of age, tried his hand at dramatic authorship, taking Sardou as his model, but money does not come in quickly enough. He started on the patriotic song business after the war, and in connection with a well-known comedian named Villemer founded later on a firm which guaranteed to provide cafe-concert managers and vocalists with both comic songs and sentimental. The firm prospered, but, like Erckmann and Chatrian, the partners disagreed, and Delormel conducted the business alone. He composed the song, but signed those composed for him by budding Berangers living in garrets and other humbler dens.

Some of the most successful songs or ballads like those of Yvette Guilbert, for instance, who was supplied by the firm with the whole of her répertoire, composed and sung independently of Delormel's assistance or interference, but he generally directed his young men to produce a good imitation of whatever had taken the town by storm. He is credited with the production of the song, "En Revenant de la Revue," and also with "Pers la Victoire." It is affirmed that he made £8,000 by "En Revenant de la Revue" alone, and he also touched, it is said, £4,000 for the rights in his other compositions to a remarkable extent.

"My boy Johnny has such a cheerful disposition,"

"Oh, yes. When I make him wash his neck, instead of grumbling, he just says he is glad he is not a giraffe."—Indianapolis Journal.

KELLY AT MANILA.

No Hero, But Just Did His Duty as Others Have Done.

Laying a submarine cable in a driving rain, using field ware wrapped in tape and covered with a rubber cement for insulation is one of the feats of Edward E. Kelley, second lieutenant in the volunteer signal corps of the United States army. This feat alone stamps "Big Ked" as his friends are fond of calling him, as a man of more than ordinary mold. Yet this is but one of dozens of incidents in which he participated in the war in the Philippines. Mr. Kelley won his spurs in action, practically on a man-eating crocodile-infested log, with a Gatling gun, dashed over Filipino trenches with the first flag raised in Luzon and otherwise distinguished himself in the field. He commanded the advance detachment of the signal troops in establishing lines between the firing line and the rear at Manila.

Mr. Kelley is a singular personality. He is as big as the pet name indicates, for he stands something over 6 feet 2, has enormous breadth of shoulders, is dark of hair, has a smiling face, clear, cool blue eyes and scant hair when a time of sunset in it. With all his bulk he has a voice as mild and soft as that of a gentleman.

Mr. Kelley is a career behind him [illegible] seven years as a telegraph [illegible] in Chicago. He is 33 years [illegible] has acquired a fine education by his own exertions, and has kept his ultimate purpose steadily in view at Washington, where he is on a night trick he put in his leisure time at the Chicago College of Law.

Mr. Kelley finished his law studies and went to North Dakota and began the practice. He succeeded at once, and when the war broke out was enjoying a comfortable practice in his new home. But when the Maine went up in flame and smoke and the poor boys fell to death "Big Ed" was aroused. With his usual modesty he asked for nothing but a soldier's pay. He enlisted in the First North Dakota infantry, and when his regiment was assigned to General Merritt's army went away across the sea to handle a rifle on the firing line. But his skill in telegraphy became known and on the transport he was transferred to the signal corps in the first company really organized on shipboard.

Kelley signalized his activity in the vicinity of Manila bay by an act simple in itself, but of vast importance. He was sent ashore with a detail and established communications with the Newport by waving an old red shirt. It was all he had, but he wigwagged with it to such good purpose that General Merritt was enabled to find suitable landings in the surf for his field pieces, and in coming ashore Kelley to his surroundings made him a very useful man. His wigwagging with an improvised signal flag added another chevron to his sleeve. He was sergeant before a shot had been fired, but he was the good fellow as before.

Then Kelley showed the stuff he was made of. Dewey had cut the cable to Hong-Kong. The camp named for the great admiral was ten miles from Cavite, without communication except by launch. It was essential that the two camps be connected and Kelley suggested the laying of a cable across the bay. He was told to go ahead if he could find the materials needed. He found these in the same cool, unconcerned manner which had actuated him in using an abandoned red shirt as a flag. There was plenty of field wire properly insulated for field lines, but in coming ashore it would not do for submarine cable duty, as the salt water would destroy the insulation and as Sergeant Kelley remarked "let the messages run abroad on the bottom of the sea."

Sergeant Kelley was still sergeant when the battle of Manila was fought. He led the detachment of the signal company over the Spanish trenches in the gallant fight which won the city from the don. He ran up lines under a galling fire, held his men together, raised the first American flag from the walls of Manila's trenches and was one of the first men to enter the city. He was busy all the time establishing lines to connect the various brigades and divisions with General Merritt's headquarters. By the time the battle was over Kelley had direct communication established with every organization in the army. He had never been under fire before, but was as cool as a veteran as he went calmly about his work. The result was a fine sergeant, and Kelley became Lieutenant Kelley before the fighting around Manila broke out.

Mr. Kelley has laid aside his sword and gone back to North Dakota and his law books. He is no hero as he understands it; just one of the soldiers who did a few daring things.

RIGHT LIVING HINTS

HOW TO BE HEALTHY, HAPPY AND HANDSOME.

Rules for Making Graceful Curves Take the Place of Sharp Angles—Diet and Sleep—Care of Hands and Feet—Simple Remedies.

You cannot make fat and produce the adorable curves so beautiful in a woman's form if you fret and allow your strength, both mental and physical, to be exhausted in fussing and worrying. There's a wise old saw that says a sweet temper and a busy woman never dwell under the same roof.

Rest all you can—get long hours of refreshing sleep. Keep in the open, but don't exercise violently; don't do anything exhausting. Ten hour's sleep out of every twenty-four is not too much.

The very reverse of the rules for fat people are suited best for the emaciated woman who wishes to coax flesh upon her attenuated figure. Given a woman without an organic ailment and a free digestion, no underlying trouble, the road for making curves is a path of flowers compared to the hard lines laid down for obesity patients.

Eat a little at a time, but often, and as much as possible avoid the food especially advised for fat people.

Surround up fatty, but good for thin people are: Absolute freedom from care and anxiety. At least ten hours' sleep out of the twenty-four. In addition to this, naps during the day if possible. This sleep must always be normal. Nothing is good for the appearance and general health as sleep induced by anodynes or narcotics in any form. The diet should be liberal and should consist largely of food containing starch and sugar; potatoes, fresh sweet butter, milk, cream, fruits cooked and served with sugar, all vegetables containing starch and sugar, such as corn, sweet potatoes, beans, peas, foods of the macaroni and spaghetti kind; fish and oysters, ice cream, desserts without pastry; plenty of outdoor life and a moderate amount of exercise. Sleep in a well-ventilated room. No one can gain flesh if there is an internal disease certainly not if there is any tendency to dyspepsia or liver trouble. When gain flesh is the part of the body and lacking in another, a gymnastic course is advised. There is nothing better than moderate bicycling, unless it may be a regular gymnastic course, which is not advisable in the sun, nor where much exercise is needed. For the upper part of the body, swimming is also an excellent exercise. Walking is always wholesome.

Exercise is recommended for both reducing and gaining flesh.

The care of the nails is what few women seem to understand. We have a lot of silver scissors and polishers that are fit for ornament only, as a rule. They torture the cuticle, cut and tear it with dull implements. It should not be touched, except to be pushed down gently with a soft orange stick.

To soften the cuticle, hold the fingers in a bowl of hot water and soap suds in which a few drops of almond oil have been poured. Then file the nails round or oval, never pointed. Sandpaper the edges. After this is done push back the cuticle as far as is possible of the half moon at the bottom shows. The gentlemen who selected beauties of the harem in ancient Persia relieved all who did not have this half moon well defined.

Then apply the red salve, dust with powder, and be sure to use a good one that is not gritty and will not scar the nail. Apply more salve, as this gives a high polish. Then dust with powder and polish again. Then wash the hands in warm water and wipe the nails by pushing back the cuticle with a towel. This will take off all the salve and powder.

Then polish with a polisher that has not been dipped in powder. Three polishers should be used. A vaseline or cold cream rubbed on the nails at night is beneficial and absolutely necessary if one dabbles in disinfectants such as trained nurses must use, or the chemicals of photography.

A tablespoonful of common salt added to the water in which the feet are bathed will sometimes do away with the disagreeable odor entirely. A teacupful of strong vinegar is effective in many cases. Where the vinegar or salt is used, the use of soap should be dispensed with. In very obstinate cases of excessive perspiration try this remedy: Betanaphthol, 1 dram; distilled witch hazel, 8 ounces. This may be used as well for excessive and odorous perspiration in other parts of the body.

A well known physician is responsible for the statement that women ruin their hair by excessive washing. He claims that only an occasional shampoo is necessary. The hair should be brushed regularly and at least, an hour a day. This will remove dust and dandruff, make the hair glossy and soft, while washing renders the hair brittle and lifeless, and eventually destroys the hair. Brushing is essential to a healthy condition.

Accidents With Lamps.

Any table on which lamps are placed should be of firm construction, large top, and of sufficient weight at the base not to tip easily or jar when touched. Too many lamps should be avoided, as many accidents with lamps are caused by placing them on light, rickety tabl s.

Maud Gonne, the beautiful Irish patriot, is reported as wanting to go to the Transvaal, in spite of the end of the Irish troops. They say she is actuated not so much by sympathy with the Boers as hatred for the English

SHE WIELDS A CLEAVER.

Miss Daisy Stevenson One of the Few Lady Butchers of the Country.

Rochester has been referred to by some envious persons as a "hack indeed," but she can boast of being a leader with but a single exception in one respect—that of a female butcher. The name of this fair knight of the saw and cleaver is Miss Daisy Stevenson, and she disposes of her wares at an up-to-date little market in the corner of Plymouth avenue and Grieg street. The proprietor is a modest, unassuming little woman, 28 years of age, who is liked by everybody for her kind and fair. She is a brilliant conversationalist and possesses exceptional executive abilities. Miss Stevenson has not been meeting meat for a living for two years and three months, having first undertaken the task when her father, who had become sick and unable to work, died. She considered to take a rest for a few weeks. Miss Stevenson was at that time keeping the books for the concern. Rather than see the business go into the business, Miss Stevenson opened the market and continued the business just as though nothing had happened. Under her management the trade was steadily increased, until now it is established upon a firm basis.

A reporter asked her how she found the work she replied: "It is not through choice that I do the work, but because it is a means of support for the family. It was thought at first that it would not seem harder than home work. I am my own boss, which means a great deal. I open the market at 6:30 in the morning and close at 6. I find it difficult to get good help; any one can sell cut goods, but it is the odds and ends that I have to look after the profit and which must be disposed of as well. I seldom lose any thing from bad accounts, as my customers are prompt. If I find a customer owes me and returns, I immediately drop those people from my roll and refuse to trust them again."

The work can be learned there is but one other woman in the United States who is at present pursuing this business as a means of livelihood, and that one is in Chicago. Learning the rest returns, I immediately drop these people thing which attracted his attention was the evident satisfaction with which the patrons received goods. There was not the usual fault-finding as to weight and quality of the meat; there was no need so far as to say that it was an exceptionally good cut. Miss Stevenson went about her work in a manner which denoted the utmost confidence.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

SEEDING RAISINS.

Machines Will do it at the Rate of Ten Tons Daily.

Unlike the eastern imitation, the California seeded raisin is subjected to a dry temperature of 140 degrees Fahrenheit, and then to the hot bath after which the fruit is submitted to a chilling process, and while in this reduced condition of temperature is seeded. The invention of the "brushing" machines, which remove every particle of dust and capstems, thus making it a pure and wholesome article, is then taken automatically by elevators to a room where spread upon wire trays, it is exposed to a temperature of 120 degrees Fahrenheit, which brings the fruit back to its normal condition, and in this "processing" the berry is converted into perfection, the pulpy jelly which gives to fruit its best flavor.

The raisins having been prepared through this alternate heating and chilling to the exact point of scientific climatic influence are passed through seeding machines, each of which has a capacity of from ten to twelve tons daily. The raisins are pressed between rubber or similar surfaced rollers, which at first flatten the berry and release the seed. At this place, when an impaling roller catches the seeds between its needles, or teeth, affixed to its periphery deftly removes the seed, leaving the fruit in the latter passes on, minus its seeds, but possessing every particle of its flesh. The seeds are discharged from the roller by a "flicking" or whisking device, and are sent along to the seed receptacle, finally ending their journey in the engine room, where they are burned as fuel.

Four hundred and fifty carloads of ten tons each, or 9,000,000 pounds of seeded raisins were produced in the Fresno district last year, and a very much larger tonnage will be turned out this year.

Some estimate can be formed of the possibilities of the Fresno seeded raisin plants when it is stated that their aggregate capacity for the season will approximate from 1,700 to 2,000 carloads, while it is probable that 1,400 cars will be the output. Each seeding plant has from five to twelve machines of ten tons daily capacity per machine. Some of the packing houses cover a ground space 150 by 225 feet, and are three stories high.—California Vineyard.

Snagboat Cook's Lemon Pies.

"Good cooks are born like poets," said Colonel Craighill, "and the first time I bought a lot of turnips for a government snagboat on one of the interior waterways, and, visiting it not long afterward, was surprised to find lemon pie being served out to all hands for dinner. I ate a piece of it which was handed me, but I thought I felt it my duty to call down the steward for squandering government funds.

"Where did you get the lemons for these pies?' I asked him.

"'You sent them up with the others, sah,' he replied, grinning.

"Why, I didn't send anything except turnips,' I said in surprise.

"'Well, that's what them pies is made of,' he admitted reluctantly. The men don't like turnips no other way, sah, so I made 'em up into lemon pies.'

"It was strictly true, and, beyond the fact that I had to add a small piece of chemical to secure the flavor, I was never able to ascertain how he did it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Family Pride.

The Husband—"But we can't afford to keep a carriage."

The Wife—"I know that we can't, but I want to show that stuck-up Mrs. Brown that we can have things we can't afford just as well as they can."—New York Journal.

NATION'S DEFENSE.

THE UNITED STATES USING THE PITH OF CORNSTALKS.

Cellulose Made From the Once Useless Cornstalk Placed In the Steel Walls of American Cruisers—Does Not Stop Shot But Excludes Water.

The use of cornstalk pith as a part of the defensive equipment of the modern battleship promises much to the Western farmer. The manufacture of cellulose is no longer an experiment, but is gradually coming into extensive use.

The Marsden Company of Philadelphia was the first to use cellulose. It is made from the pure pith of the cornstalk and is used to give protection along the water-line and to protect the entrance of water if the ship's side should be pierced by a shot.

After a ship has been launched and the armor bolted on, the three feet of space between the ribs known as the cofferdam is filled with cellulose. Should a shot pierce the side at the waterline the damage would be lessened by the cellulose. The cellulose is fireproof; water could not enter. Wetting causes the cellulose to swell and close the hole, but does not stop the projectile, but allows it to pass clean through, while the holes made close up much as if the projectile had passed through a sponge.

The new battleships Illinois, Kentucky, Alabama, Kearsarge, Wisconsin, and all later ships will use it. It is of cellulose, three feet thick, twelve feet high, six feet above the water-line, and six feet below the water-line, extending around the ship. It takes fifty tons of cellulose for each ship. On an average of fifteen tons of stalks to a ton of cellulose, some idea can be gained of the quantity used.

Cellulose is manufactured by first cutting out the joints of the stalks to prevent the pith from clogging. They are run through rollers that crack the outer casing and allow the pith to be extracted. The tubes of pure pith are then cut up into bits. After testing the result taken out by a fanning process the pith is subjected to fire-proofing, then pressed into blocks six inches square.

The blocks when ready for use are placed in pasteboard boxes and packed in cases holding 138 cubes, each weighing sixty ounces. Owing to its lightness, but these tons can be loaded on a car. One company is now working on a 1,000-ton order for the home Government, and a 500-ton order for the Russian Government.

In addition to cellulose, celluloid goods are made from the pith by another process. The pith is treated with a metal lacquer known as pyroxolin, used in covering metal exposed to the weather. The Dupont smokeless powder factory is also experimenting with the use of fine ground cellulose with a view of using it as a base for smokeless powder, which is now known to be made to secure a quality free from foreign matter.

The factory at Owensboro, Ky., has been paying $3 per ton to farmers for stalks. The experiment at the Rockford, Ill., paid $4 per ton. The large amount of stock fed near Rockford made the stalks of more value to the Illinois feeder than to the Kentucky farmer. During the six months that the Rockford station was in operation, the company paid over $12,000 for stalks. Land which will grow fifty bushels of corn to the acre will produce two tons of stalks. If the corn can be marketed at fifty cents per bushel and the stalks for $3 per ton, allowing $1 for cutting, it means $20 an acre for the farmer.

The practical use of cellulose in battleships will create an enormous demand for stalks. Should England place an order sufficiently large to equip a part of her navy, it will mean the expenditure of thousands of dollars for that which has heretofore been considered of small value. The foreign countries recognize the necessity of equipping their navies with this new protection, no country in the world can grow the stalks in such quantity as the great corn-growing states of the West.

Fined the Man Who Shot the Dog.

Squire Graeme Grelle, of Baltimore, Pa., does not like lawyers. He believes that they stir up too much trouble by dragging musty old books into his office and quoting from them the precedents they dig from them. He has the full approval of his constituents. His justice is the sort that is equitable to the rich and the poor, and not that misnamed stuff that depends on the technicalities of law books for a standing.

One of Squire Grelle's early cases was brought against a friend of his, who was accused of cruelty to animals. The man had been bothered by a stray dog, and he shot at it. The bullet cut a piece off its tail, but did no other harm. The trial attracted a large crowd. There was conflicting evidence as to the dog. Some of the witnesses said it was a gentle animal, and others declared that it ought to be killed.

"I will resert my decision until next week," said the Squire after he had heard the testimony.

He was undecided as to the dog, and while he had the case under consideration he made some inquiries in the neighborhood. He learned that the dog was a valuable one, and that it by depriving it of part of its tail was undoubtedly a cruel act, and he did not know how he could get over that, even to favor his friend.

When the day came for him to give his decision, says the Pittsburg Times, it was evident to the crowd that had assembled that he often had had made up his mind. He called the defendant up.

"You admit shooting this dog?" he asked.

"Yes, I do, 'Squire; but the dog is—"

"Dot will do. Sid down." And he called the owner of the dog forward.

"Your dog is a bad dog," he said to him.

"No, he isn't, 'Squire," said the man; he's as gentle as—"

"Dot will do. Sid down. I haf my mind made up. I fine the defendant $1, and costs for shooting dot dog."

Then he was appointed by the side of the room on which the friends of the dog were gathered.

"Order!" he commanded the Squire. "I haf not vinished. I vill fine the defendant $1 and costs for shooting dot dog, but I vill gif him one more shot at the dog."

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Public Ownership.

Probably the greatest progress in this country in the matter of municipal ownership of public utilities is that made in Logansport, Ind. The city's first acquisition was the water service, then followed the electric light service, both street lighting and commercial, to which was added later a municipal natural gas service. The burning of the street railroad property, when existing franchises expire, is strongly advocated.

Just at present, under direction of the Common Council, a committee of that body and the city attorney are investigating the advisability of adding a telephone service to the city's plants. The opportunity to do this comes about through the efforts of the Bell Telephone Company to crush an independent rival by cutting rates. Fears of the success of the crushing process and of a return then to the high rates prevailing before the advent of the independent company, led to the proposition for city ownership.

"There is considerable opposition to the plan," a correspondent of the Chicago Record reports, "but the successful operation of the other plants which have been acquired and the great lowering of prices in all lines, until the city now has the lowest electric light rate in this country, and possibly in the world, have given all practical citizens confidence that not only can the rates be greatly lowered in this service, but the service itself can be greatly improved and at the same time turn a revenue to the city, which will lessen the rate of taxation for city purposes. It is claimed that by the addition of this service and the acquisition of the railway system, there would be no need, as soon as they were paid for, to levy one cent taxation for city purposes."

In explanation of the unusual success with municipal ownership in Logansport, it is said that "from the first there has been a disposition to keep all public works out of politics by placing them in the hands of non-partisan boards. The result is that they have been managed on a business basis. As far as practical all of the works are housed under one roof, so there is a great saving in heat, light, labor and power."

Blames the State Committee.

Though Congressman Daly, of Hudson county, has been holding office for a good many years, and has been a conspicuous figure in the Democratic party for New Jersey, he is not a good politician. He talks too much. The trouble with Congressman Daly's talk at the present time, from a practical political standpoint, is that it is not directed at "the other fellow," but it is aimed at his own party organization.

The result of the election Tuesday has put Mr. Daly in a loquacious mood, and he slam bangs around in a terrifying manner for Democrats. His charges are of incompetent organization with a total lack of energy and aggressiveness, and charges up the Republican victory in this State to Chairman Gourley and his associates on the State committee.

To be explicit he says: "The Democracy of this State will now probably realize the truth of what I have heretofore said about the inefficiency of the present State Committee to manage the party's affairs, and that something must be done to restore harmony in the ranks. New material must be selected—men in whom the Democrats of the State have confidence—to manage the party's affairs. Otherwise defeat will always stare us in the face."

Congressman Daly is rapidly resolving himself, as a Democrat, into a chronic kicker.

Reed's Majority 1,157.

The exact vote in Somerset county, as nearly as it can be determined without the official canvass, shows that Senator Reed's plurality will be 1,157. Assemblyman Cooper's plurality is 1,592.

The two districts in North Plainfield borough gave Senator Reed his heaviest vote. Bound Brook came next in the size of the vote and the fourth district of Bridgewater was fourth in the line. Rocky Hill borough and Millstone borough each gave Senator Reed forty-two votes, the smallest that he received in any district or town in the county.

Mr. Bergen's heaviest support was in the first and fourth districts in Bridgewater township. His smallest vote was in Millstone borough where he received only 17 ballots.

Lunger, the Prohibition candidate for Senator, received 229 votes.

An Important Decision.

The decision of the Supreme court Monday in action of the State against former Secretary of State Henry C. Keisey for the return of fees collected by him as register of the Prerogative Court, rendered in favor of the State, is an important one, as it establishes a rule for the conduct of the office that will probably not be violated in the future.

The act of 1891, under which the claim of the State was made, provided for the recording of papers by the Secretary of the State, and fixed duties that were somewhat doubtful. It provided for the recording of some papers that had previously been recorded by the Surrogates, and the collection of fees similar to those that had been collected by the Surrogates. The question was whether these fees should go to the State or to the Secretary.

The Court holds that Mr. Kelsey did not receive these fees for himself, but for the benefit of the State. It therefore finds for the State for the amount admitted in the statement of facts, together with the interest.

The decision of the Chief Justice is another step towards putting the officers of the State on a fair business basis when it comes to compensation for the incumbents. Until within a few years nearly all the big officers of New Jersey secured an income from their official positions that was far in excess of the service that they gave the State, simply because the fees went into their pockets instead of a just proportion of them being diverted to the public treasury.

A Matter for Municipal Control.

In referring to the action of the Plainfield Board of Health in investigating the complaints made about the ill-effects of the practice of burning leaves in the autumn months, the Newark News comments: "The Plainfield Board of Health is considering the propriety of forbidding the burning of leaves in the streets of that city. It has received many complaints from citizens, and at a recent meeting of the Board a prominent physician testified that the smoke and floating particles frequently caused irritation of the eyes and also throat and lung troubles. The practice of burning leaves prevails in the residential section of this city as well as in Plainfield, and it is possible that herein lies the secret of the many cases of sore throat which have been noted by physicians in the past few weeks. Tonsilitis and ulcerated sore throats have been common, and while most cases have yielded readily to treatment, in not a few diphtheric symptoms of a mild type have followed. It seems as though it might be worth while for the local Board of Health to give this matter attention."

City Election at Wrong Time.

The fact that the city election is just at hand—the date being Dec. 5th—prompts the query: Is it wise that a municipal election should follow so close on the heels of a National or State contest? Does the result give a true reflex of public sentiment?

The defeated party in November is ordinarily so crushed that they take little or no interest, while the victors are so elated that they are liable to be rash, resulting sometimes in unfit nominations in the desire to reward party workers.

A true reflex of public sentiment can only be had when the public mind has cooled down and passions have abated. It would be far better that the city election should be held in April.

Some Record Votes.

The Jersey City Journal observes that the vote in New Jersey has undergone some remarkable changes in recent years.

In 1889 Leon Abbett, Democrat, was elected governor over E. Burd Grubb, Republican, by 14,253 plurality.

In 1892 George T. Werts, Democrat, was elected governor over John Kean, Jr., by 7,625 plurality. Grover Cleveland carried New Jersey at the same time by 14,965 plurality.

In 1893 the tide began to set in strongly in favor of the Republicans, and they captured both branches of the Legislature for the first time since 1887. The Republican majority in the State in 1893 was about 23,000.

In 1895 the Republicans swept the State by 44,000.

In 1895 John W. Griggs, Republican, was elected governor over Alexander T. McGill, Democrat, by 26,900 plurality.

In 1896 President McKinley carried New Jersey against William J. Bryan by 87,092 plurality. This beats all Republican records in New Jersey.

In 1898 Foster M. Voorhees, Republican, was elected governor over Elvin W. Crane by 5,499 plurality.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company continues to impose upon the patrons of its road by running open cars on the Somerset street line and also cars that are not heated. This is in violation of the city ordinance and of the franchise under which the company is operating. The attention of the authorities is respectfully directed to this violation.

The Fact Dispenser.

The number of Buddhists is reckoned to be 155,000,000.

In Italy 400,000 people find employment in rail-ing silkworms.

A lifeboat costs about $6,50 a week to maintain.

There is one horse for every twenty persons in England.

Parchment used in the best bandos is made from wood pulp.

It is estimated that one crow will destroy 700,000 insects every year.

About one German woman in every twenty-seven works in a factory.

There is not a city in the world that consumes as many frog legs as New York.

There are only 140,000 Britishers in India—one to every 2,000 of the population.

At a meeting of the British cabinet no official record of any kind is kept of the proceedings.

The newest billiard balls are made of cast steel. They are the same weight as ivory and cost $5 each.

In Berlin the pawnshop is a royal and philanthropic institution. Any profit that is made is spent on charity.

For more than five years there has been a scarcity of rain in Arabia.

In London there is nearly an hour less daylight at midsummer than in Glasgow.

In Belgium a new fuel has been invented, called "vesuve," made of peat and resin.

The number of Spanish now in the Philippines is less than at any time during the last fifty years.

Women have, as a rule, according to Sir Erasmus Wilson, much coarser hair than men.

It is the popular belief that a holly bush planted near a dwelling protects the house from lightning.

The black jaguar of Central America will attack a man by night or day whom he finds lying down.

Queen Victoria pays over $1 a pound for her tea, which is bought at a small shop in the West End of London.

Paymasters and commissaries officials of the Italian army receive special training in examining the quality of food supplied to the army.

The copper production of the United States in the current year was the largest ever recorded in a single year.

The wool on the back of a sheep is a shepherd's barometer. The curlier it is the finer the fleece will be the weather.

Japanese workmen are obliged to wear on their caps and backs an inscription stating their business and their employer's name.

One worm has turned. An invention has been completed by which the long-suffering drug store directory can only be consulted by dropping a penny in a slot.

Freedom, a paper published in the Philippines, has an editorial calling for the purchase of Sec-retaries."

The Chicago University had a total enrollment last year of 2,939 students, and its enrollment for the regular session of three months was 1,600.

The wild horse of Arabia will not admit a tame horse among them, while the wild horses of South America endeavor to drive domesticated horses from their masters and seem eager to welcome them.

Since the beginning of this century no fewer than fifty-two volcanic islands have arisen out of the sea. Nineteen have disappeared and ten are now inhabited.

Mustaches among women are commoner at the present time than they used to be. In Constantinople and Madrid one woman out of every ten has a distinct mustache.

A French scientist has made some plants "artificially Alpine" by keeping them in an ice box all night and exposing them to the full action of the sun during the day.

It is stated on German authority that 2,000,000 glass eyes are made every year in Germany, Austria and Switzerland, while one French house manufactures 300,000 annually.

It is difficult to purchase a wildcat skin worth stuffing in Newfoundland, as the hunter cuts off the snout in order to prove his claim to the bounty offered for the destruction of these pests.

One million and a half of men work in the coal mines of the world. Of these Great Britain has 525,000, United States 300,000, Germany 285,000, Belgium 100,000, Russia 44,000. The world's miners of metal number 4,000,000.

A smokeless coal is promised very shortly. It is made of 93 per cent. of coal dust and 7 per cent. of tar and caustic lime. The latter mixture forms a bright-burning gas, and thus prevents the generation of smoke.

The latest thing in company promoting comes from Paris, where a dog's cemetery has been floated with a capital of £14,000. The promoters are ladies.

The results of recent drilling in Borneo have caused many persons to think that Borneo will prove to be the richest petroleum field in the world.

Napoleon III.'s last dwelling place and the scene of his death, Camden House, Chiselhurst, has been dest oyed, and will be added to the artificial grounds, is to serve as a golf links.

Gambling in France is said to have reached such proportions that the government has begun to study the question seriously. It is estimated that half of the suicides in Paris are due to losses at the races.

In proportion to its population, North Berwick is said to be the wealthiest town in Scotland. It has an annual value of real property per inhabitant of £1 and 10s.

A new way of blasting rock is to place a cartridge of water in a shot hole and convert it into steam instantly by electricity. The method is especially applicable in coal mines.

Among the political workers who secured the election of Senator Lucius Baker, of Kansas, was his daughter, Miss Lucia Baker, the Senator graduate, who was an active supporter of her father.

The Filipinos copy after the Spanish and English in the matter of dress, as far as their climate permits. They must procure for them the desired coat and trousers, while shoes and hats will be of the native style.

A Bath (England) gardener, fifty-three years old, was found by the coroner to have swallowed twenty small bottles of medicine whole, rubber corks and all. They were beyond his power of digestion and peristaltic set in.

A favorite dish with the Eskimo is an ice cream made of seal oil, into the same people.

DEATH OF E. A. CRUIKSHANK

Father of S. A. Cruik-hank, of This City, Who Was Called to the Death Bed Sunday.

Word was received in Plainfield Monday of the death of E. A. Cruikshank, of Belvidere avenue. Mr. Cruikshank was an aged man and his death was not unexpected, as he was quite feeble. He lived at Montclair, where he died. He was for many years a prominent banker, doing business at 142 Broadway, New York. His son is also engaged in the same business in New York. The latter was called to Montclair Sunday on account of his father's serious illness, and was at his bedside when he died.

Mrs. Cruikshank was summoned to New York Sunday on account of the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Moore, who they did not think could live very long. As yet no word has been received concerning the condition of Mrs. Moore.

RAN BANNER UP TO STAY.

G. A. R. Vets Say Students Will Have to Unstep Topmast.

College spirit broke loose in New Brunswick Thursday night, and the freshmen of Rutgers College hung college banners, bearing their class numerals in a number of inaccessible places. They ran the banners to the top of the big Grand Army flag pole on Monument Square, and then cut the halyards.

The students showed considerable ingenuity in getting the flag where it could not be reached, and it will be impossible to reef the halyards again without unstepping the topmast. The veterans have served notice on the freshmen class that the students will be given forty-eight hours in which to repair the damage.

The students regret the extreme to which their class rivalry led them, and will doubtless bear the expense of replacing the halyards.

SUPPER AND SALE.

Given to Aid the Fund for the Benefit of Proposed Drinking Fountain.

Saturday afternoon and evening a supper and sale was given in the W. C. T. U. rooms under the auspices of the Loyal Temperance Legion for the benefit of the drinking fountain fund. The affair was largely attended and was very successful. Those in charge believe that at least $25 will be realized as profit for the fund. Mrs. Honeyman assisted by Mrs. R. K. Case were in charge, and they were assisted by other members of the W. C. T. U. Nearly everything for sale in the way of cake, ice cream, and candy was disposed of, and a large number of people called and got their supper.

DEATH OF MISS MANNING

Had Been Ill for a Long Time—Well-known in This Vicinity.

The death of Miss Betsey S. Manning, aged 73, daughter of the late Richard and Sarah Manning, occurred Sunday after a long illness. Miss Manning has been living for some time on East Front street, near Church street. She was well-known in this vicinity. When her parents were living the family resided on West Front street near the Cadmus property. Mr. Manning was a well known farmer for many years. The funeral services of Miss Manning will be private.

DIED AT THE HOSPITAL.

Italian Hurt at Cook's Stone Quarry Unable to Survive Injuries.

John Fantino, an Italian, who was seriously injured a few weeks ago while at Cook's stone quarry, Scotch Plains, died at the hospital Monday at 11 o'clock. The man had been failing rapidly of late and recovery was deemed an impossibility. As yet no relatives of the dead man have appeared to claim the remains, and just what will be done with them has not yet been decided.

The Nevius Estate.

A. V. D. Polhemus and Matthew Suydam, the executors of the estate of the late John S. Nevius, have filed their first accounting in the Middlesex Orphans' Court. The accounting showed the inventory to be $64,800 44; the amount of bonds, stocks, notes and mortgages to be $4,770 32. The total amount of the estate is $69,628 52.

Butterfly Sociable.

Is the name given for a unique sociable in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church Friday evening of this week, under the auspices of the Ladies' Work Society of the church. It promises to be a very enjoyable affair, as the committee of ladies having charge of it know just how to make it a success.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

500 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.

CONTENTS:

Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.

Same book in better binding 50 cts.
HUMPHREYS' REM. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York

BAD BREATH

"I have been using CASCARETS and as a solid and effective laxative they are simply wonderful. My daughter and I were bothered with sick stomach and our breath was very bad. After taking a few CASCARETS we have improved wonderfully. They are a great help in the family."
WILHELMINA A. BAUER,
127 Rittenhouse St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

CANDY CATHARTIC
Cascarets
TRADE MARK REGISTERED
REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped CCC. Guaranteed to cure. Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York. 329

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE
In 1900

NOVELTY IN LITERARY AND ART FEATURES
PRINTING IN COLOR.

THE BEST ILLUSTRATIONS, with Cole's Engravings and Castaigne's Drawings.

A New and Superbly Illustrated
LIFE OF CROMWELL
By the Right Hon. JOHN MORLEY, M. P.

THE conductors of THE CENTURY take especial pleasure in announcing this as the most timely historical serial of the magazine in 1900. No man is more competent than John Morley, who was selected by Mr. Gladstone to write the official biography of Gladstone, to treat Cromwell in the spirit of the closing years of the nineteenth century.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS

will be remarkable. Besides original drawings, there will be valuable unpublished portraits lent by Her Majesty the Queen, and by the owners of the greatest Cromwell collections in England, including

Ernest Seton-Thompson's

"Biography of a Grizzly," delightfully illustrated by the artist-author,—the longest and most important piece of work of the author of "Wild Animals I have known."

Paris, Illustrated by Castaigne.

A series of papers for the Exposition year, by Richard Harding Davis, Lieut. Gen. S. John Street, splendidly illustrated with more than sixty pictures by the famous artist, Castaigne, including views of the Paris Exposition.

London, Illustrated by Phil May.

A series of papers on the East End of London by Sir Walter Besant, with pictures by Phil May and other artists.

Sailing Alone Around the World.

The record of a voyage of 46,000 miles undertaken single-handed and alone in a 40-foot boat. A most delightful biography of the sea.

The Author of "Hugh Wynne."

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, will furnish a short novel of remarkable and dramatic interest, "The Autobiography of a Quack," and will be short stories by all the leading writers.

A Chapter from Mark Twain's Abandoned Autobiography.

Literary Reminiscences.

Familiar accounts of Tennyson, Browning, Lowell, Emerson, Bryant, Whittier and Holmes.

Important Papers.

By Governor Theodore Roosevelt, President Eliot, Andrew D. White, Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Woodrow Wilson, John Burroughs, and others.

American Secret History.

A series of papers of commanding interest.

The Art Work of the Century.

It is everywhere conceded that THE CENTURY has led the world in art. Timothy Cole's unique and beautiful wood blocks will continue to be a feature, with the work of many other engravers, the best in America, the American school famous. The fine half-tone plates—rearranged by wood engravers—for which THE CENTURY has established a will appear with new methods of printing and illustrating.

Begin now subscriptions with November. Price $4.00 a year. Subscribe through dealers or remit to the publishers.

THE CENTURY CO,
UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK.

The best of all Children's Magazines.—London Spectator.

ST. NICHOLAS
FOR YOUNG FOLKS.
A Monthly Magazine Edited by MARY MAPES DODGE.

For 1900 A Splendid Program of Art, Literature and Fun.

TEN LONG STORIES, by Ruth McEnery Stuart, Harvard's Captain Kidderdix, Elbridge T. Gerry and other writers. Each complete in one number.

A SERIAL STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "MASTER SKYLARK," a tale of Old New York.

A SERIAL STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "HALDANE OF THE BURNED THORNLESS," a capital story for girls.

A SERIAL STORY OF ATHLETICS.

A SERIAL STORY OF BOYS AND THE CHILDREN

STORIES OF RAILROAD LIFE.

AN IMPORTANT HISTORICAL SERIAL of Colonial Days in America, by Elbridge S. Brooks, author of "The Century Book of the American Revolution," etc.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, Governor of New York and Colonel of the "Rough Riders," promises to contribute a paper on "What American Boys and Girls Can Do."

IAN MACLAREN, JOHN BURROUGHS, and many other well-known writers will contribute.

NATURE AND SCIENCE FOR YOUNG FOLKS, will continue on the same lively lines.

ST. NICHOLAS LEAGUE. Badge and Membership Free. Send for instruction leaflet.

FUN AND FROLIC, both in rhyme, stories, pictures and page after page, as always, a striking characteristic of St. Nicholas.

Everything Illustrated.

A Free Sample Copy on Request.

November begins the new volume. Price $3.00. All dealers and agents take subscriptions, or remittance may be made direct to the publishers.

THE CENTURY CO.,
Union Square, New York.

CLEARING SALE
OF PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of of good second-hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7	Octave Square	$ 40
7¼	"	70
7¾	" Upright	150
7¾	"	165
7¾	" Hallett & Davis	190
7¾	" "	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20. $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallett & Davis
UPRIGHT PIANOS.

$300 and up, and 3 years' time if you want it. Other makes—Cabinet Grands, all improvements, $225—$7 per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,
94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

1831 Seventieth Year. 1900
THE
Country Gentleman.

The ONLY Agricultural NEWSpaper, AND ADMITTEDLY THE Leading Agricultural Journal of the World.

Every department is written by specialists, the highest authorities in their respective lines.

No other paper pretends to compete with it in qualifications of editorial staff.

Gives the agricultural NEWS with a degree of fullness and promptness not even attempted by others.

Best Reviews of the Crops.
Best Market Reports.
Best Accounts of Meetings.
Best Everything

Indispensable To
All Country Residents
WHO WISH TO
KEEP UP WITH THE TIMES.

Single Subscription, $2;
Two Subscriptions, $3 50;
Four Subscriptions, $6.

Special Inducements to Raisers of Larger Clubs.

Write for particulars on this point
Club Agents Wanted Everywhere.

Four Months Trial Trip 50 cents.

SPECIMEN COPIES
will be mailed free on request. It will pay anybody interested in any way in country life to send for them. Address the publishers:

LUTHER TUCKER & SON.
10 19 8 ALBANY, N. Y.

P. P. VanArsdale,
PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 160, or left at Willett's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 E. Front street, corner Elm street. 9|1y|

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 132, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. B. CODINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

Children Cutting Teething

Mrs. Winslow's has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. 25 cents a bottle.
Soothing Syrup
Sold by druggists in every part of the world.
Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POST OFFICE.

NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7:30, 8:40, 11:30 a. m.; 2:30, 5:00, 6:30 p. m.
Close—7:30, 9:15 a. m.; 12:30, 5:00 and 7:15 p. m.

SOMERVILLE and EASTON.

Arrive—9:40 a. m. 3:00 and 6:15 p. m.
Close—9:30 a. m.; 2:30 and 6:15 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7:30, 8:40, 11:30 a. m.; 2:30 and 8:15 p. m.
Close—7:30 and 9:15 a. m.; 12:30, 5:00 and 7:15 p. m.
Through fast mail for West and South, close 5:00 and 7:15 p. m.

WARRENVILLE.

Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—9:30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m.
Mail closes at 6:15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine and doctors order it, because it is health to invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about 1/4 as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food and drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Anthracite Coal Used Exclusively. Insuring Cleanliness and Comfort.

Stations in New York, foot of Liberty, and South Ferry Whitehall streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT OCT. 30th, 1899.

For New York 2 34, 3 37, 5 37, 6 29, 6 55, 7 29, 7 56, 8 06, 8 35, 9 30, 9 37, 10 00, 10 37, 11 00 a. m., 12 00, 12 44, 1 35, 2 37, 3 37, 3 56, 4 17, 4 55, 5 37, 5 51, 6 21, 6 30, 6 45, 7 05, 7 37, 8 10, 9 10, 10 37, 11 30 p. m. Sunday 2 34, 3 37, 5 37, 6 29, 7 56, 8 06, 8 35, 9 30, 9 37, 10 00, 10 37, 11 00 a. m., 12 00, 12 44, 1 35, 2 37, 3 37, 3 56, 4 17, 4 55, 5 37, 5 51, 6 21, 6 30, 6 45, 7 05, 7 37, 8 10, 9 10, 10 37, 11 30 p. m.

For Elizabeth, 5 18, 7 05, 8 20, 9 48, 11 03 a. m., 12 00, 1 05, 2 05, 3 20, 4 48, 5 05, 5 27, 5 34, 6 04, 6 08, 6 39, 6 58, 7 18, 7 34, 8 05, 8 37, 9 55, 11 27 p. m. Sunday 12 44 (night), 8 06, 9 55, 10 44 a. m., 2 03, 3 40, 5 00, 6 25, 8 30, 10 11 p. m.

For Easton at 5 18, 8 19, 9 54 a. m., 2 03, 3 40, 5 27, 6 58, 8 21 p. m. Sunday at 5 45, 9 05 a. m., 2 03, 6 58 p. m.

For Lake Hopatcong at 9 54 a. m., 5 27 p. m.

WESTWARD FROM NEW YORK.

5 18 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Upper Lehigh, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

7 17 a. m.—For Flemington to Lake Hopatcong, connecting for stations on High Bridge Branch and Chester.

8 19 a. m.—For Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R. Easton, Bangor and Mauch Chunk.

9 54 a. m. For stations on High Bridge Branch, Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R. Easton, Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Pottsville, Shamokin, Nanticoke and Upper Lehigh, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, etc.

1 05 p. m.—For Flemington, connecting at Junction for stations on D. L. & W. R. R.

2 30 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

5 27 p. m.—For Flemington and Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Reading, Harrisburg, connecting at High Bridge for stations on High Bridge Branch.

6 19 p. m.—For Flemington.

8 35 p. m.—For Flemington and at Junction for D. L. & W. R. R.

9 21 p. m.—For Easton.

5 45 a. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

8 00 a. m. Sundays for Flemington and Easton.

9 00 a. m. Sundays—For Gramercy Valley, Flanders, Kenvil, Easton, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Williamsport, Reading and Harrisburg.

5 00 p. m. Sundays—For Flemington.

6 35 p. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Reading, Harrisburg, connecting at High Bridge for stations on High Bridge Branch.

FOR LONG BRANCH, OCEAN GROVE, ETC.

Leave Plainfield at 3 37, 8 13, 10 37 a. m.; 2 16, 4 34, 5 05, 7 36, 9 25, 11 25 p. m. Sundays 3 37, 8 13, 10 37 a. m.; 2 16, 4 34, 5 05, 9 25, 11 25 p. m. Express 8 32 a. m.; 3 30 p. m.

For Atlantic City at 8 13 a. m. and 5 05 p. m.

For Freehold, 3 37, 8 13, 10 37 a. m.; 1 38, 4 17, 5 37 p. m.

For Lakewood, Toms River and Barnegat, 3 37, 8 13 a. m.; 1 38, 4 17 p. m. Sundays 8 13 a. m.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

Leave Plainfield at 3 37, 8 13, 10 37 a. m.; 2 16, 4 34, 5 05, 7 36, 9 25, 11 25 p. m. Sundays 3 37, 8 13, 10 37 a. m.; 2 16, 4 34, 5 05, 9 25, 11 25 p. m. Express 8 32 a. m.; 3 30 p. m.

For Atlantic City at 8 13 a. m. and 5 05 p. m.

For Freehold, 3 37, 8 13, 10 37 a. m.; 1 38, 4 17, 5 37 p. m.

For Lakewood, Toms River and Barnegat, 3 37, 8 13 a. m.; 1 38, 4 17 p. m. Sundays 8 13 a. m.

Leave Plainfield at 12 30 p. m. Sundays 12 01 p. m.

For Bound Brook, Somerville, Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

Leave Plainfield 12 30 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 12 51 p. m.

Daily except Sunday, Black Diamond Express for Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

Leave Plainfield 6 59 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 7 22 p. m.

Daily, Solid Vestibule train for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and Principal intermediate stations.

Leave Plainfield 8 15 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 8 32 p. m.

Daily, Past Line for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto. Carries sleeping car passengers (only) for Chicago between New York and Mauch Chunk.

Leave Plainfield 10 45 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 11 02 p. m.

Daily, Night Express for Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Wilkesbarre, Geneva, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Chicago.

The stage will also meet Eastbound trains at Bound Brook.

For time of local trains see pocket timetables.

Telephone No. 115-B.

ROLLIN H. WILBUR,
General Superintendent.

CHAS. S. LEE,
General Passenger Agent.

36 Cortlandt St., New York.

FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent,
218 West Front St., Plainfield, N. J.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect May 21, 1899.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N.J.

Time given for Plainfield is leaving time of station on Park avenue, corner East Front street, which makes connection with same at South Plainfield.

Leave Plainfield 8:15 a. m.

Leave South Plainfield 8:26 a. m.

Daily except Sunday, for Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

Leave Plainfield 12:30 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 12:51 p. m.

Daily except Sunday, Black Diamond Express for Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

Leave Plainfield 6:59 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 7:22 p. m.

Daily, Solid Vestibule train for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and Principal intermediate stations.

Leave Plainfield 8:15 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 8:32 p. m.

Daily, Past Line for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto. Carries sleeping car passengers (only) for Chicago between New York and Mauch Chunk.

Leave Plainfield 10:45 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 11:02 p. m.

Daily, Night Express for Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Wilkesbarre, Geneva, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Chicago.

The stage will also meet Eastbound trains at Bound Brook.

For time of local trains see pocket timetables. Telephone No. 115-B.

ROLLIN H. WILBUR,
General Superintendent.

CHAS. S. LEE,
General Passenger Agent.

36 Cortlandt St., New York.

FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent,
218 West Front St., Plainfield, N. J.

If trouble with your watch, you would like to have it repaired by a watchmaker who has had 20 years' experience, who will use only such parts as are genuine, and who will guarantee his work for one year, you will please call at the store of

Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies
141-145 North avenue.

REMAND THE OLD RELIABLE
FRAZER
AXLE GREASE
SOLD EVERYWHERE
WILL WEAR LONGER
AS ANY OTHER
TRY IT!
LEHIGH

STOP SMOKING

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

POLICE ENDED PARTY.

HOSTESS CLAIMED HER GUESTS DRANK TOO MUCH.

Trouble at Home of Mrs. Isadore Pollander, of 803 North Avenue—Intoxicated Guests Wouldn't Leave When Asked.

They were invited in to spend the evening and have a good time. They went out in the grasp of a policeman. Such was the story that Ernest Colutch and Ernest Capparelle told in the City Court Monday a m, when they were arraigned before City Judge Runyon charged by Mrs. Isadore Pollander, their erstwhile hostess, with using insulting language and threatening to kill her.

It was rather difficult to unravel the mass of contradictory evidence about the happenings of Saturday evening at the Pollander home. William G. DeMeza appeared for the two Italians, while Francis J. Blatz, of the legal firm of Murphy & Blatz, represented the prosecution.

Capparelle is from New York. He is a brother-in-law of Patsy Christmas and was visiting in Plainfield. Colutch has lived here for many years and is acquainted with Mrs. Pollander. During the afternoon the two Italians passed the Pollander home at 803 North avenue and were invited to come round early in the evening and have a social time. They went at 6:30 o'clock, taking a supply of beer with them. More beer was sent for later in the evening. Besides Mrs. Pollander, her friend, Miss Mamie August, was there to assist in entertaining the guests.

Shortly after 3 o'clock Sunday morning Patrolman Myers was summoned to arrest the men who were asleep together on a lounge in the front room of the Pollander establishment. They were both locked up. They were not noticeably intoxicated.

The woman claimed that the men drank too freely of the beer and chased them out of the house, threatening to shoot them and assaulting the girl. The men alleged that there had been no trouble at all but that Mrs. Pollander had been in a hurry to get them out of the house before her husband returned from work and had used that means. In the trial it came out that both men had carried revolvers.

Judge Runyon did not think the evidence sufficient to hold the men on the first charge but found them both guilty of carrying concealed weapons, fining them $3 each.

Educate Your Bowels With Cascarets.
Candy Cathartic, cure constipation forever. 10c, 25c. If C. C. C. fail, druggists refund money.

OPERATION PROVED FATAL.

J. A. Linbarger Died at the Muhlenberg Hospital Early Monday Morning.

The death of J. A. Linbarger, of Somerset street, occurred at 1:50 o'clock Monday a. m. at Muhlenberg Hospital, where he was taken Saturday to undergo an operation for a disease of the ear of long standing. During the past two months Mr. Linbarger was constantly failing and he agreed to an operation. Sunday he seemed to recover well from the operation, but toward night he grew worse and it was soon learned that he could could not survive. Mr. Linbarger was 47 years of age, and has been a resident of the borough for nearly twenty years. He was born in Bound Brook, and was the son of the late J. R. Linbarger. He is survived by a wife and four children.

Entertained Foreign Guests.

Friday afternoon and evening there was a meeting of foreign guests at the home of Rev and Mrs. H. C. Eyme, 78 Duer street, who gave a dinner in honor of Senores A. Wagner, de Chapean Rouge, Sr. Eckermann, from Mexico City, and Senor Gustavus Avahl, from Columbia, S. A. Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Strauss and Miss Eda Strauss, friends from New York, were also present.

A Temperance Address.

Sunday evening in the Presbyterian church, Dunellen, Miss Ella Kierney, a celebrated temprance worker in the W. C. T. U., made an excellent address before a large audience. There were a number of women from the Plainfield Union present, and thoroughly enjoyed the talk.

Church Grounds for Cemetery.

The old church grounds of the Reformed church, at Whitehouse, Hunterdon county, have been deeded to the Rural Hill Cemetery Association, whose land adjoins. It will be used to improve the present Rural Hill Cemetery.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?
If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grain. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes—it helps digestion. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening kind—none of the coffee grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

SHORTIES WIN ONCE MORE

EXCITING BOWLING MATCH AT PARK CLUB ALLEYS.

"Shorties" Defeated "Longies" in Second Match 1003 to 980—F. O. Ball Made the Highest Score of 183.

The "Shorties" of the Park Club are jubilant. They have twice succeeded in defeating their lengthy rivals of the club at bowling. The second match between the "Shorties" and the "Longies" was witnessed by a number of the members and their families on the club alleys Saturday night. The game was exciting throughout but the "shorties" were too much for their opponents and won by the small margin of 23.

F. O. Ball, who captained the shorter contingent, carried off the honors for the night by rolling 183. It was expected that Former Councilman J. O. Peck would put up some of his famous scores but it was too early in the season for that.

The third match of the series will be rolled in two weeks and the "Shorties" will make an attempt to get all three. The scores of Saturday night's match were as follows:

SHORTIES.		LONGIES.
VanBuren	162	P. H. Fail	163
Cook	127	Wilson	109
Stelzer	165	M. J. Fail	161
F. O. Ball	183	A Murphy	132
J. O. Peck	112	Sybils	171
Orff Bl	149	J. Brown	156
F. D. Ball	183	Hubbard	158
	1003		980

TRIED TO MURDER WIFE

[CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.]

with an aunt at Dover. She has four children. To a Press representative she said that her husband has no one but himself to blame. He was inclined to drink, and she would remonstrate with him and urge him to stop. This seemed to anger him, and would not talk to her for sometime. After the first two years of married life Mrs. Bohm says that her husband was entirely another man and did not act at all like himself.

OFFICIAL VOTE.

Election Board Compiles the Canvass and Declares the Pluralities in Union County.

The county election board Saturday completed the canvass of the election returns.

The total number of votes received by the various candidates and the pluralities of those are as follows:

For Senator—Crose, R., 8,704; Hillman, D., 6,237; Massett, P., 326; Borns, S. I., 321. Crose' plurality, 2,471.

For Sheriff—Houston, R., 8 750; Glaser, D., 6 156; McLeod, P., 304. Kerner S. L, 303 Huston's plurality, 2 594

For County Clerk—Howard, R., 8 158 Oliver D., 6 794; Irving, P., 304; Cullen S. L., 318. Howard's plurality, 1 364

For Assembly—Meeker, R., 8 522 Smith, R., 8 590; Foote, R., 8 482; Gardner, D., 6 116; Siwan, D., 6 395; Bliss, D., 6 447; Van Cise, P., 3 2; Long, P., 3.0; Blake, P., 320; Miles, S. L., 323; Wagner, S. L., 312; McGarry, S. L., 312; Wallander, S. L., 326.

For Coroner—Gray, R., 8 659; Hall, P., 322; Wallander, 326.

SUING A SUMMIT CHURCH.

The Agent for the Maxim Arms Company Claims Breach of Contract.

Thomas F. Lane, of Summit, editor of the Record, and the agent for the Maxim Arms Company of England, has instituted a suit before Vice Chancellor Stevens, at Newark last Friday, against the official board of Calvary Episcopal church, at Summit, to compel the board to carry out an alleged agreement to sell to him a tract of land in Summit on which the old church building stood before it was destroyed by fire three years ago.

Mr. Lane alleged that last spring he made an offer through another party of $15,000 for the property, and his agent secured a letter from J. L. Truslow, Jr., chairman of the finance committee of the church, saying that the offer was accepted. Subsequently the church officers refused to convey the property. The church officers in their defence allege that Lane failed to carry out the conditions of the contract signed by his agent. This was that Lane should pay a portion of the sewer assessment. The property was sold to Norman Shultz, who paid $2,000 more than Lane had offered.

In all stages of Nasal Catarrh there should be cleanliness. As experience proves, Ely's Cream Balm is a cleanser, soother and healer of the diseased membrane. It is not drying or irritating, and does not produce sneezing. Price 50 cents at druggists or it will be mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York. Upon being placed into the nostrils it spreads over the membrane and relief is immediate. It is an agreeable cure.

DOLLAR GAS IS IN SIGHT.

Further Hearing Given By The Common Council.

CONTRACT TO BE DRAWN.

SEVERAL HEARD IN FAVOR OF NEW COMPANY.

James E. Martine Says That The People's Company Has Started In Good Faith and Will Do All That It Agrees to—The Old Company Attacked.

Prior to the transaction of the regular business at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last Monday, there was a hearing on the question of dollar gas offered by the People's Gas Company. There was a goodly number of people present to speak in favor of it. There were several officers of the new company present, while there were also representatives of the old company on hand to watch the proceedings. As a result of the hearing dollar gas looks more like a probability, for the Council referred the matter to the committee on lights and trees with instructions to draw up a suitable contract between the company and city and submit the same. The remarks made in favor of dollar gas were interesting and showed conclusively that the people want it.

James E. Martine was the first speaker in favor of granting the franchise. He said the People's Gas Company is acting in good faith, and will do as it agrees. He was sure that gas can be made for one dollar at a profit. He answered the remarks of the opposition company, which had inferred that they might gobble up the new company, by saying that things might be reversed. He thought it impossible to live in a progressive city and not have the streets torn up, but the new company stands willing to put up a bond of sufficient amount to put the streets back in satisfactory condition. Mr. Martine asked the Council what security it had from the old company to do as much. He favored municipal ownership of a gas plant, but this is an utter impossibility under the present State laws. He said that practically two people control the water and lighting of the city, and this ought not to be.

The speaker quoted Prof. Beemis, and gave facts and figures to show that gas is made in Wheelin, W. Va., for 75 cents a thousand, and in Hamilton, O., for 50 cents. In order to show how near to starvation the old gas company is, he said that one ton of coal (2 000 pounds) would make 13,000 feet of gas, and they are getting nearly $2 a thousand feet. He quoted J. A. Haynes, freight agent, to show how little coal is used by the old company.

L B Bromfield was the next speaker, and he produced his gas bills to show how the price was raised on him from $1.20 in January, 1894, for two lamps to $1 36 the present year. This year he made a kick and got a reduction. He favored $1 gas by all means.

F. E. Kinsman produced figures from an expert gas maker, showing that gas of a standard grade can be made for about 35 or 40 cents a thousand feet. He said he would like to use gas to heat with and cook if it could be furnished at a reasonable rate. He also stated that he understood that the old company is making contracts for gas through West Fourth street at $1.75, which does not look like a reduction.

Joseph W. Yates was another speaker in favor of dollar gas. He said it is a question whether the people want dollar gas or not, and a question of having the streets torn up. Regarding the first question he felt sure the people want dollar gas, and regarding the second question he was equally sure that the Council would secure the best terms and make the best contract for the people possible, so that there could be no failure so far as the city is concerned. He expressed unbounded faith in the Council and was sure that all objectionable or uncertain features could be obviated through the careful work of the Council and Corporation Counsel. He thought that all things being equal the Council is duty bound to grant a franchise to the new company. He felt kindly disposed to the old company and would like to see them reduce the price of gas to a dollar.

At this time the Council took a recess for a half-hour, after which Mr. Barrows moved that the application of the People's Gas Company be referred to the committee on lights and trees, they to see that a suitable contract is drawn up. This motion was adopted, and this disposes of the matter for the present.

BONDS FOR $12,000 TO PAY FOR GOOD ROADS

But They Will be Redeemed When the Owners Pay up.

IT IS NOT EXTRA EXPENSE.

A FARMER WANTS THE RIGHT TO DISPOSE OF LEAVES.

Says That He Will Furnish Bags in Which They Can be Carted Away Without Burning—Corporation Counsel Reports on City Cases in Court—Water for Elevator Power Can Not be Run Into Sewer.

An adjourned meeting of the Common Council was held last Monday with all the members present excepting Mr. Tolles. There were several important matters brought up for consideration and they were acted upon.

The most important matter was the introducing of an ordinance by Mr. Barrows which provides for the issuance of temporary bonds to pay for the work of macadamizing West Third and Fourth streets. Mr. Barrows was very explicit in explaining this ordinance and said that he did not want anyone to believe that the Council is doing anything unusual. The action was taken simply for the purpose of providing the necessary means to carry on the work until the property owners pay their several assessments. These bonds will run for three years and call for $12 000, which also includes the work of macadamizing East Ninth street and Franklin place. As an accommodation the City National Bank has agreed to take the bonds, and they will be paid off as the assessments are received. The city pays for one third of the work, and the street railway and property owners pay the balance. When the work is done the courts will be asked to appoint commissioners and then they will make a just and equal assessment on the property owners.

The Board of Health asked the Council for the sum of $318 45, which is the balance due on the $1,000 appropriated to them the first of the year. The request was granted. A petition for a fire hydrant at the corner of Leland and Berkley avenues was received and granted. Residents in the vicinity of John street asked for two electric lights and they were granted.

A communication was received from T. H. Underhill, of Fairview Farm, in which he agreed to take care of all the leaves in the city. He said he would distribute suitable bags to every house, and when they were filled with leaves he would take them away promptly, providing the Council would give him the privilege. On a motion offered by Mr. Barrows the matter was laid on the table for the next Council. He made this motion for the reason that the leaves for this year are about disposed of.

Corporation Counsel Marsh submitted his semi annual report. He reported on three cases. The first was that of Mrs. Milliken against the city, regarding the sewer beds, which he said was argued Friday last. He said that a decision would probably not be given by the Supreme Court before the December term. He next reported on the case of the city against Gibson, and stated that judgment had been given in favor of the plaintiff. Regarding the case of Carbone against the city, he said that nothing had been done, and if the case remains in its present state at the next term of court the city can move to have the same dismissed.

Mr. Barrows reported on the petition of the proprietor of the Park Avenue Hotel, asking for the privilege of using the sewer to empty 10,000 gallons of pure water a day used in connection with the running of an elevator at the hotel. He reported adversely on the petition for two reasons. One was that the sewer beds would not at present take that extra amount of water, and secondly for the reason that the city would be liable in using the beds for other than sewer purposes. For these reasons the petition was denied. This finished up the business of the evening and the Council adjourned.

The Porto Rican Report.

Commissioner H. K. Carroll, of Westervelt avenue, has received the proofs from the government printer of his Porto Rican report, and has been busily engaged in revising them preparatory to their being printed and submitted to President McKinley.

City Clerk MacMurray Home.

City Clerk James T. MacMurray has returned from a western business trip He was in Cleveland, O., on Election Day, and he says that he never saw such a demonstration as was given that evening when it was learned that the Republican ticket had won.

A Timely Subject.

The literary committee of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church has arranged an entertaining programme for the literary and social evening Friday. It will be called "An Evening in Boerland." There will be a series of papers on the subject by members of the league.

G. O. P. CALLS PRIMARIES.

Will Choose Candidates For Municipal Election.

TO BE HELD NEXT TUESDAY

REPUBLICAN CITY CONVENTION TWO NIGHTS LATER.

Meeting of Republican City Executive Committee Held Last Evening—Was Very Harmonious—Decided Not To Make Changes to Primary Rules Yet.

Next week Tuesday night the Republicans of Plainfield will hold their primaries to select the ward candidates and the delegates to the city convention. Thursday evening, Nov. 22, two nights later, the Republican city convention will be held to nominate the city ticket for the comirg municipal election. The dates for the primaries and the convention were fixed at a meeting of the city executive committee of the G. O. P. held Tuesday evening.

The session of the city committee Monday was an important one, as the details for the coming city campaign were arranged. There were also some important amendments to the local primary rules to be acted upon. Then there was the possibility of a contest between the two factions in the local machine.

The meeting turned out to be a very harmonious one, however. The committee which was appointed to revise and improve the rules for the government of the primaries made its report but expressed a belief that it was too late to make the changes recommended this year. The committee consisted of Former Councilman J. B. Dumont, Assemblyman Roger F. Murray and Former Assemblyman W. A. Codington. The recommendations were that nominating primaries be held before the regular electing primaries and that an enrollment be made of Republican voters in the wards to prevent a recurrence of the deplorable state of affairs at the last primaries when a number of Democrats voted at the Republican primaries.

With the primaries only a week away it was clearly impossible to make a successful enrollment before that time and so the whole matter was laid over until next year. There was one amendment made to the present primary rules. Heretofore, it has been permissable for the voters at the primaries to cast their ballots for any Republican voter of that ward, whether he was nominated or not. Under the new ruling ballots will only be counted for those candidates named and presented to the ward clerk three days before the primary.

The primaries were called for next Tuesday evening at the usual hours, from 5 to 9 o'clock. Nominations must therefore be filed with the ward clerks on or before Saturday night. They will then be published in the papers Monday. This will prevent any ticket being sprung on the voters at the last moment.

The amendment will save the "machine" a lot of worry, for hitherto the "machine" workers have been unable to tell up to the time the primaries began whether or not they had to meet any opposition in the ward.

The city convention was called for the evening of Thursday, November 22d, at Republican headquarters. The basis of representation will be one delegate for every fifty Republican ballots, and a fraction thereof over twenty five cast at the last city election. As no record of this vote has been kept outside of the tally sheets filed at the city clerk's office, it is impossible to say as yet just what representation the different wards will have. Judging from the average vote of the candidates at the last city election the city convention will be composed about as follows: First ward, 7; Second ward, 7; Third ward, 7 or 8; Fourth ward, 10.

Prizes at Horse Show.

Charles W. McCutchen, of Rock view avenue, won two prizes at the Orange Horse Show last week with his saddle horse. On Wednesday, he was awarded the red ribbon, second prize, in the general saddle horse class. Saturday, he took the blue ribbon, first prize, among the long tailed saddle horses.

In Aid of Baptist Publications.

Next Sunday morning at the First Baptist church a collection will be taken for the American Baptist Publication Society, and Dr. Morgan, of New York, will be present and tell something of the work among the Baptists in Cuba and Porto Rico.

To Cure Constipation Forever.
Take Cascarets Candy Cathartic. 10c or 25c. If C. C. C. fail to cure, druggists refund money.

Dr. Humphreys'
Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

NO.	CURES.	PRICES.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Gripings, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Eryspelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
18	Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Asthma, Difficult Breathing	.25
22	Ear Discharge, Earache	.25
23	Scrofula, Swellings and Ulcers	.25
24	General Debility, Weakness	.25
25	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Diseases	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
29	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
31	Painful Menses, Pruritus	.25
32	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitations	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34	Sore Throat, Quinsy, Diphtheria	.25
35	Chronic Congestions, Headaches	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists or Mailed Free.
Sold by druggists, or sent on receipt of price.
Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL
"THE PILE OINTMENT."
For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding; Fistula in Ano; Itching or Bleeding of the Rectum. The relief is immediate—the cure certain.
PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.
Sold by druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price.
HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

LIPPINCOTT'S
A DOLLAR MONTHLY
$3.00 A YEAR
FOR 25c.
J. B. LIPPINCOTT CO., PUBLISHERS.
PHILADELPHIA

MICA AXLE GREASE
lightens the load—shortens the road.
helps the team. Saves wear and expense. Sold everywhere.
MADE BY STANDARD OIL CO.

LOCAL and CLIMATIC
Nothing but a local remedy and a change of climate will cure
CATARRH
The Specific is
Ely's Cream Balm
It is quickly Absorbed. Gives Relief at once. Opens and Cleanses the Nasal Passages. Allays Inflammation. Heals and Protects the Membrane. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Large Size, 50 cents. Family Size $1.00. At Druggists or by mail.
ELY BROTHERS 56 Warren Street New York.
CATARRH
ELY'S CREAM BALM
CATARRH
HAYFEVER
COLD IN HEAD

MARRIED.

PRAY-STUTZMAN—Thursday evening, Nov. 8th, 1899, at the residence of the bride, 218 East 8th St., Plainfield, N. J., by Rev. Geo A. Francis, of Westfield, N. J., James S. Pray, of New York, to Mrs. Anna Louise Stutzman, nee Brown.

DIED.

LINBARGER—In this city, Monday, Nov. 13, 1899, John A. Linbarger, aged 47 years, 9 months and 2 days.

ULRICH—In this city, Wednesday, Nov. 8, 1899, Lorenz Ulrich, aged 62 years.

ONDERDONK—In North Plainfield, Saturday, Nov. 11, 1899, Peter Onderdonk, aged 80 years, 4 months and 17 days.

FIELD—Suddenly, Nov. 9th, Peter Wortman Field, of Plainfield, New Jersey.

MANNING—At Plainfield, N. J., on Sunday, Nov 12, 1899, Betsey S., daughter of the late Richard and Sarah Manning, aged 73 years.

RUNYON—At New Market, N. J., November 14, 1899, Nelson Runyon, age 76 years.

Makes the Clicks Clear.

There is now in use at the Western Union Telegraph office, North Avenue station, a small instrument mounted inside of a stand at the top of which is a hood, which serves the purpose of a sounding board. The size is convenient and can be placed near the ear of the operator when there is an unusual noise about. Thus he is able to catch every tick of the instrument quickly and clearly.

Miss Lizzie Gill has removed from Watchung av nue to 817 First place.

Mrs. William N. Tier, of Bank place, is visiting relatives in New York state.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

CARNEY BROS.,
MADISON AVENUE,
Between Front and Second streets.
Tinners,
Plumbers
Gas Fitters,
Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,
Brick and Portable Furnace
Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing.
Etc., Etc., Etc.
I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.
Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in cases.
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN
Livery & Boarding Stables
FOURTH ST.,
between Watchung and Parkavenues.
First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS.
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 201 West Front street, to South side of Somerset street, first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

A Free Trip to Paris!
Reliable persons of a mechanical or inventive mind desiring a trip to the Paris Exposition, with all expenses paid, can hear of a PATENT RECORD by addressing, Baltimore, Md.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook of Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!
My new barber shop at
143 NORTH AVE.
is now open ready for business.
All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.
EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS
COPYRIGHTS &c.
CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.
Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free.
Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts.
MUNN & Co., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

Wm. A. Woodruff,
Fire and Life
INSURANCE AGENT,
OFFICE,
corner Front St. and Park Avenue,
Plainfield, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale or Exchange
Money to loan on Approved Security

NEW JERSEY READS REPORT WITH HORROR

Appalling State of Affairs in the County Almshouse.

TO PROBE THE SCANDAL.

LEGISLATURE WILL BE EXPECTED TO TAKE PROMPT ACTION.

Ignorance, Drunkenness, and Immorality Prevail in the Public Institutions—Members of Senate and Assembly Surprised at the Report—Thorough Investigation to be Made and Dismissals May Follow.

All New Jersey has been shocked by the report of the State Board of Children's Guardians, revealing the startling and almost unbelievable conditions existing in the almshouses of the commonwealth.

Not only are the evils existing in a flagrant form at the present time, but they have existed for several years. Scores of children have been born in these almshouses, and in some of the institutions the records are so carelessly kept that it is impossible to learn how many births have occurred there.

Members of the Senate and of the Assembly were much surprised at the report. Some of them had heard similar rumors, but no one had apparently realized the full extent of the corruption.

From present indications the scandal will certainly be investigated by a competent legislative committee, and it is believed that the sensational features of the scandal have only just begun to come to the surface. Should such an investigation be honestly and fearlessly conducted, many dismissals are certain to follow, and there would undoubtedly be a grand shake up of the almshouse wardens and matrons.

Mrs. Williamson, who is largely responsible for the report, admits herself that many facts have not been laid bare. "I knew our report would be spread broadcast," she said yesterday, "and I did not wish the public to be deluged with such reading matter. We have plenty of facts for the Legislature."

"The members of the board," added Mrs. Williamson, "were astonished beyond measure by the revelations. They were appalling, and revealed a state of affairs little dreamed of. The conditions existing in Burlington county's almshouse were so dreadful that the details are not given in our annual report, but are reserved for the appendix, which is to be furnished to the Legislature. The facts were not fit to print.

"The records of the almhouses in several cases are not kept with any degree of accuracy. Warden Gaskell, instead of keeping them himself, engaged a man to live eight miles away to do the work. This man calls occasionally for the facts. The records are in a large measure valueless.

"The method of segregation which is used in the Hudson County Almshouse is about as nearly as perfect as it can be. The only trouble with the Hudson County Almshouse is that it is overcrowded."

NEW BICYCLE MOTOR POWER

Two Levers Attached to Lower Frame Takes the Place of Crankr, Sprocket Wheels and Chains.

A bicycle with an entire new method of applying the necessary power has been placed on the market and has just been introduced into Plainfield by its agents, W. W. Moore and Maurice A. Audsley. The bicycle is the Wilford-Hall.

The Wilford-Hall has no crank, sprocket wheels and chain. Instead there are two levers attached to the lower rod of the frame, running from the rear wheel axle to the joint where the crank axle in the usual style of safety is located. These levers are connected with the rear wheel by ropeobains that run up over pulleys at the angle of the frame just beneath the saddle. A ball-bearing clutch transfers the power to the rear wheel. An ordinary pedal is attached to the ends of the levers and the power is applied vertically, allowing a long or short stroke as the rider pleases. These strokes can be made at any interval to suit the rider. Much is claimed for the wheel for easy riding and as a remarkable hillclimber.

CADETS FIRST DRILL.

Boys Were Shown Rudimentary Work --A. B. Meredith Was in Charge of Battalion.

The cadet battalion of the Plainfield High School held its first drill Friday afternoon, from 12 o'clock to 1. Washington hall. A. B. Meredith was in charge. The boys were shown the rudimentary work and officers and privates were lined up together for a setting-up drill and practice in the facings and school of the soldier.

Washington Hall has been engaged for the drill and the cadets will meet there every Friday afternoon. At first all officers will remain in the ranks until they have acquired a good idea of the fundamental movements after which they will receive special instruction in the more complicated evolutions.

STRAWBERRY BEAR.

JACK GILPATRICK NOW FLAVORING A BEAR WITH VANILLA, ALSO.

A Maine Man Who Makes a Modest Fortune Each Year (In His Mind) by Preparing Bears for the Metropolitan Markets.

As soon as a Maine man finds out that he can produce something which city people want and are willing to pay for, he becomes so devoted to his specialty that he overdoes the business. For two years the New York Sun has made a casual mention of Jack Gilpatrick's efforts to add checkerberry and vanilla flavoring to bear meat by feeding the live bears on an exclusive diet of berries. In 1897 he sold a checkerberry bear for $65, which elated him so that he resolved to form a checkerberry bear trust to control the world's markets. Last year, checkerberry flavoring not being in demand, he modified his output, selling one pure strawberry bear for $40 and another that was about half-and-half, for $25. This year he has made a specialty of pure strawberry bears, and is now raising them under contract for delivery in Boston.

As for strawberries get ripe in Maine before June 20, Gilpatrick fretted because the season was cold and backward, giving him only a short time in which to put on the finishing touches. One day when he was standing outside his log cabin feeding his bears on strawberry jam and wondering if he could afford such a luxury, George Coleman, who drives a soft drinks cart from Bangor to supply the country soda fountains, hauled up in his yard and asked him if anything liquid doesn't run a hotel, but when he looked at the long, flat cart and saw the iridescent array of tin-capped bottles he reached up his hand out and provide a dinner that would compel Coleman to call again. He was nearly an hour in cooking and dishing up the delicacies, but Coleman kept on eating and praising the food Gilpatrick slipped out the back way and calling his pet bears to the rear end of the cart gave them a bottle apiece of whatever they could drink. On his way back the next day Coleman stopped again and complained about the boys of Amherst and Aurora, who, he said, had been stealing his soft drinks.

"If they'd take ginger ale or birch beer," said he, "I wouldn't have felt so bad, but they had to go and guzzle down my best strawberry extract, which is worth 30 cents a bottle."

While blaming the boys for his losses the three bears came from the woods lolling out their tongues and making frantic efforts to get at the jam in the cart. As the cart went into the camp the bears helped themselves to whatever they liked on the cart, uncapping the bottles with their claws and lapping up the delicious strawberry and vanilla flavoring. They opened several bottles of beer and ginger ale, but did not seem to relish either.

The cart made one or two trips two days later, when the bears levied on it for toll from the woods, and continued to complain about the bad boys, threatening to bring a detective from Bangor. Gilpatrick was so sorry over the matter that he furnished two dinners without charge, whereupon Coleman, not to be outdone in generosity, presented to the hunter six bottles of his "fizzy drinks," all of which went to the bears as soon as the cart was out of sight.

Gilpatrick quit waiting on the side of the road to see the rise in the price of strawberries were getting along. Whatever time he had to spare from his duties as bear tender he put in writing postal cards to his patrons. One card which he had lately mailed reads as follows:

Dear Sir: One bar is ripe enuf to pick and speels just like a strawberry shortcake, being seasoned clean thro.

P. S.—Do you want ennything of a vernilla bar? I hev one that has got more vernilla inter him than a soda fountain. You can hev him this week for 45 dolls. The price is going up rite erlong. Aus. JACK.

Curious Features in Life.

Bishop Moret and four French priests were passengers on a recent steamship from Europe. Passing through the thousand perils of a missionary's life in the wild hill lands of the interior of China, they were destined to find the most thrilling moments of their existence near the little hamlet of Banff, on the line of the Canadian Pacific railway.

Towering over the town is a huge glacier, the wonder and admiration of world-trotters. Recently the railway company has employed mountain guides for the safety of venturesome tourists who insist upon scaling the slippery ascent. It is courting death to make the trip unaccompanied by guides, but Bishop Moret and his companions determined to go and go alone. They started in the early morning, refusing to heed the advice of the experts.

Not taking their seats at the dining table, the manager of the Banff Hotel became alarmed, and at 8 o'clock the Alpine guides were sent to search for them. All night they searched the hundreds of crevices by the light of torches and returned next morning for food, continuing the thrilling all the following day. At nightfall shouting and cries were heard, mingled with strange chants. As the party drew nearer the guides could hear the prayers of the priests and their Bishop exhorting them to place their trust in God.

Not one of the guides got directly over the half-crazed Frenchmen found they make their voices reach them, but they were found at last huddled together in a crevice some thirty feet deep with perpendicular walls and glare ice on both sides.

The Unlucky Opal.

"We are so happy!" she whispered "Yes, my darling!" he answers.

A sigh flutters her gentle bosom. "Do you know," she falters, "our great happiness frightens me? It almost makes me think the opal in my engagement ring is paste!"

In the evening of the next day, the air holds the material of clouds, which at the first chill breath gather and overcast the sun.—Detroit Journal.

"Long before I met you I had heard of your family," said the Count.

"Yes," replied the beautiful girl coldly. "I believe papa is quoted in Bradstreet's."—Chicago Post.

SPORTING NOTES.

Wheelman's Advice to Wheelmen.

Be moderate. Don't try to make a century run every day, and end up in the undertaker's quad.

Temper your zeal with judgment. If the tires of your life-wheels are pumped up too tight, you will find you have a rough road to travel and will get shaken up tremendously; if they are flabby you will make poor headway and spoil your tires.

Keep your bearings well lubricated with the oil of diligence and perseverance and see that every nut is screwed home by the wrench of determination.

Always keep to the right and so avoid collision with the wrongdoer and the evil-disposed, and keep your eyes open to see danger and avoid it.

Ring you bell vigorously when the Prince of Darkness appears before you, that he may flee from before you and leave you a clear road to a correct living.

Keep yourself erect, that men may see that you possess the full stature of a man, and can attack through temptations, with your back in the air and your eyes between your feet, or you will surely be lost.

Keep Your Mouth Shut.

The bicycle thirst is admitted by all wheelmen to have experienced it to be the most intense longing for liquid refreshment that they have ever known. Wheelmen, and especially wheelwomen, are the best customers of country drug stores and roadside inns where "soft" drinks are obtainable.

The principal cause of the bicycle thirst is the fact that nearly all riders keep their mouth open or partially open when on the wheel. This is, of course, in violation of the rule laid down by athletic trainers that while undergoing exercise a man must breathe only through his nostrils. The experienced wheelman does this, but nine riders in ten breathe through the mouth. The result is that road dust enters, clogs up the throat, giving it the sensation of dryness and oftentimes of soreness and inflammation.

A Legless Baseball Pitcher.

A man without legs pitched seven innings in a baseball game at Standard Park in Fairview, N. J., recently, and as often as his turn came around took a position in the box. This baseball wonder was Van Cleef, formerly captain of the Trenton baseball team, who two years ago lost both his legs in a railroad accident. The game was between the Electrics of Englewood and the Standard Athletic club's nine. Van Cleef pitched for the Electrics.

To get about the field the legless man used a wheeled chair. It was designed to be propelled by himself, but there were a dozen small boys who were ready to push him when he chose to ride him. Others found a lesser degree of glory in holding his red sweater while he was pitching.

And it was a good game of ball that Van Cleef pitched. He has retained all of his old curves and speed, and the batters found it extremely difficult to hit him. He was continually on the alert, and three times caught men napping on bases and put them out. While a small boy braced the wheels of his chair Van Cleef put a fly into right field and sent the runner home. Two batting men home from second and third. He seems as handy with the bat as if he were standing on his legs.

The Smallest League Player.

Casey, of the Washingtons, is one of the smallest men that ever wore a League uniform. He is about the size of little Nicol or Yale Murphy. His size, however, does not interfere with his ball playing. He is quick as a flash, throws like a phenom and can use the stick effectively from either side of the plate.

To Preserve the Enamel.

Vaseline smeared on the framework of a machine, especially the underside of the bottom main tube, will be found useful, as the caked mud will wipe off most readily without scratching the enamel.

Come Into the Garden Maud.

"Come into the garden, Maud,
For the wintry days have flown;
Come into the garden, Maud,
And see how things have grown.
I have planted pansies and sweet peas
And morning-glories there—
Come into the garden, Maud,
And see how my seedlings fare."
He took her little hand in his,
And they sauntered out to see.
But not a pansy had come up,
Nor a solitary pea;
He took one look around, and then
His wildly tore his hair—
His next door neighbor's chickens had Preceded Maudie there.

Crushed.

"If you were in my place," he said,
"Pray tell me would you go
To fight your country's battles and Help lay the Spaniards low?"

She looked at him a little while,
She slowly shook her head,
She viewed him o'er from head to foot,
And finally she said:

"Nay; were I in your place, indeed,
I'd crush forth to the battle—
But I would ask my mother for
A rubber ring and rattle."

Firing from the Rear.

There was a man in our town
And he was wondrous wise;
He knew just how the Spaniards might
Be taken by surprise.

But when it was suggested that
He ought to haste away
And carry out his lovely plan
He had no more to say.

MUNICIPAL CAMPAIGN IS NOW ON HAND.

Fight Will be Between Republicans and Democrats.

TO BE NO CITIZENS' TICKET.

SEVEN MEMBERS OF THE COUNCIL ARE TO BE CHOSEN.

Also Member of Board of Education and Two Chosen Freeholders—Republicans Will Support the Present Administration—Neither Side Has as Yet Definitely Outlined its Local Platform.

The municipal election in Plainfield is now less than four weeks away. It has every appearance of being a decidedly important one. For the first time in three years the Democratic party will place a ticket in the field and make an organized fight to secure its election. Seven out of the eleven members of the Common Council are to be chosen which will make it possible to change the political complexion of the legislative body of the city.

There are seven Councilmen whose terms expire this year, four ward Councilmen, one from each ward, and three at large. Then there will be a member of the Board of Education to be elected at large and also two Chosen Freeholders.

Two years ago the Citizens' ticket put up its strongest fight and elected representatives to the Council from the First, Second and Fourth Wards and one at large. Their terms now expire. The four Councilmen who hold over are all Republicans and were elected on the regular ticket. The ward Councilmen, whose terms expire this year are Walter L. Hetfield, a Democrat elected on the Citizens' Ticket, John Van Herwerden, a Republican elected on the Citizens' ticket, Elliot T. Barrows, a Republican elected on his party ticket, Henry Liefke, a Democrat elected on the Citizens' ticket. The Councilmen at large are J. F. Buckle, Republican, from the First Ward; Frederick H. Andrews, Republican, from the Third Ward, and James P Homan, Citizen, from the Third Ward.

The term of Dr. J. B. Probasco, president of the Board of Education, expires this year. He is a Republican. The two members of the County Board of Chosen Freeholders complete their term of office this year. They are J. Frank Hubbard and J. H. Tier, Sr. Both are Republicans.

There is little chance that there will be a Citizens' ticket in the field this year. The Democrats are promising to take a hand in the campaign and make things lively for the Republican party now in office. Naturally, the biggest fight will be for the control of the Council. The Republicans feel that they are positively certain of a majority in the Council but there is a good chance that the Democrats may succeed and have several representatives there.

There is always bound to be some dissatisfaction with the regime in power and the Democrats are counting that strict party lines will be forgotten in the municipal campaign and that local issues and the personality of the candidates will influence the voters. It is too early as yet to say who the various candidates will be. It is also too soon to state the exact lines on which the battle will be fought. Neither side has announced its platform nor the issues that it will support.

It is natural to suppose, however, that the Republicans will support the present municipal administration and its methods. The present system in vogue in the enforcement of the streets as set by Councilman Barrows will be supported. The present method of conducting police and fire departments will be sustained.

The Democratic campaign will naturally become an "anti" campaign, being aimed to change the present methods and try others that the Democrats claim will be better for the welfare of the city and its residents and property-owners.

There are troubles in the ranks of the Republican "machine" at present that will have to be patched up without delay if the Republicans expect to make a good showing. The city elections are always far closer than those for county or State candidates and the serious slump in the city at the last election would, if continued at the city election, mean a probable defeat for one or more of the Republican candidates. The Republican city executive committee will hold a meeting Monday evening when the primaries for the city election will be called and the soreness in the party healed if possible.

In the Bowery.

R. M. Honeyman, of Somerville, has accepted the position of secretary of the Bowery branch of the New York Y. M. C. A. This is the leading section of the association in the city, and is located in a $100,000 building at 153 Bowery. The work has increased at such a rate that the structure is to be enlarged, and a number of other men added to the twelve already employed.

HOW PEOPLE LAUGH

NAPOLEON MADE HIS SOLDIERS RAISE A LAUGH THAT WON A BATTLE.

It is Said That Laughter Was First Used When Adam, on Awakening, Saw Eve By His Side.

Since the days of Adam, who said to have invented laughter when he awoke and saw Eve by his side, no two people have laughed alike. The laugh is as distinct as the voice. Women laugh differently from men, children from women; indeed, even the laugh of a person's first half-hour is different from that which he laughs when he has shaved.

The Abbe Damascent thought he had discovered in the various enunciations of laughter a sure guide to the temperaments of the laughers. Thus he said: "Ha! Ha! Ha!" belonged to a choleric person; "He! He! He!" to a phlegmatic one, and "Ho! Ho! Ho!" to the sanguine. And it is a scientific fact that while men commonly laugh Ha! Ha! Ha! O, women usually laugh He! He! He!

Those who practice laughing to any extent have been divided wittily into dimplers—and the rest of us. Which they can be, one has only to go back to Charles Reade's "Simpleton with a Dimple"—smilers, grinners, horselaughers and chuckles. It is easy to lay down a science of laughing, for which there might have been need had our generals in the late war taken up the idea of old Bulow, who proposed to form troops, in face of the enemy, in line of battle, and order them to advance with their arms at a shoulder and salute the foe with ringing bursts of laughter.

"Be sure," said Bulow, "that your opponents, surprised and dismayed at this astounding attitude, would turn about and run off."

Perhaps this scheme would not work now, while the present long range arms would have a little to say in the matter. It is related that the Mamelukes once turned tail from an assault upon the French in Egypt on hearing the roar of laughter with which French veterans greeted the command: "Form in squares, asses and men of science in the centre."

Great men often have fancied it a part of greatness to refrain from hilarity. Philip IV. of Spain is said to have laughed only twice in his life. That was when his bride, Anne of Austria, wept at hearing that the Queens of Spain had no feet. She took with Gallic vivacity the old Greek fable of Spanish courtesy. As she was journeying toward Spain some German nuns met her, and desired to present some stockings which they had knit for her. The worthy Princess was about to accept the gift when a Spanish grandee of her suite interfered with the remark that it is against etiquette for the Queens of Spain were not supposed to have any use for stockings, whereat the Princess began to weep, understanding the poor woman's rivalry as rival in Spain her feet would be cut off.

Lord Chesterfield said: "Nobody has seen me laugh since I have come to my reason," and Congreve makes his Lord Froth in the "Double Dealer" remark: "I laugh at nothing but fools alone." Young people and fools laugh easily, says an old proverb, which often has proved true.

Grimaldi, the famous clown, singer Robert gave lessons in laughter in Paris and in London in 1805, and, so far at least as filling his own purse went, with considerable success. He said that men could not laugh "decently and systematically" without proper training, and said that a person who could laugh well was one to be desired as a friend, one who could say only oui and non; but that a trained laughter should express many things.

It is a curious fact that it is only among the French and among the ancients that we read of people laughing themselves to death. We, in our day, must have either more jokes or a duller appreciation of wit. Zeuxis is said to have died of laughing at a painting of an old woman, and the ruler Saint Philemon expired laughing at a donkey who ate so contentedly the philosopher's figs that with his last articulate breath, he sent more than a glass of wine to the beast, who drank it with equal enjoyment, and thus proved himself, it would seem, not such a donkey after all.

It remains true, however, that laughter is good for the health. "Laugh and grow fat" is the old proverb. Sydenham declared that the sight of a clown in a village was as wholesome as that of twenty donkeys laden with drugs. Cleland, a famous French physician, cured consumption and liver complaints by causing his patients to laugh, and Erasmus, through immoderate laughter at the ruder Latin of Hutten's "Letters of Obscure Men," broke an internal abscess which had long plagued him.

Even a man smiles, and much more when he laughs, it adds something to his fragment of life," said Sterne, who wished laughter enumerated in the materia medica as a cordial as a curative of the same kind as coughing, sneezing, and perhaps vomiting, only much pleasanter than any of these."

Bit Bluecoat and Died.

Policeman Albert W. Owens, of the Flushing station in Queens Borough, was strolling up Erasmus street when a big Newfoundland dog with an antipathy for policemen jumped over the fence of a house and bit a piece out of him. Before the brute was driven off the policeman's hand was badly lacerated.

Owens did not wait to ask questions, but hurried to a physician's office and had the wound cauterized, then he went back to look up the dog and settle accounts.

"Where's that dog what bit me?" asked the officer, holding up his bandaged hand as proof of the accusation.

"He's dead," said the owner.

"Dead!" said Owens, incredulously. "What did he die of?"

"I am sure I don't know. He died about ten minutes after you went away. He was a little sick, I think," said the owner, wiping his eyes and sobbing bitterly.

Policeman Owens returned to the station-house, but he has been doing a pile of thinking ever since.

Greene—How did Jones come to marry that red-headed girl?

White—Poor Jones didn't notice it; he is color blind.—Harlem Life.

KNEW DEWEY YEARS AGO

JOHN J. WILLIS WAS WITH THE ADMIRAL ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

Former New Lives Between Westfield and Cranford, and He Tells an Interesting Story to a Daily Press Reporter.

The marriage of Admiral Dewey to Mrs Hazen in Washington, again brings the name of the famous warrior to the fore in public affairs. In this connection there are probably few people in this vicinity who know that they have in their midst one who is not only a personal friend of Admiral Dewey, but who ate, slept and fought with the present Admiral when he was a young man winning his spurs, yet such is the case. John J. Willis, who lives in a handsome residence at Oakland, a small settlement between Westfield and Cranford, being the man.

When a young man Mr. Willis was made clerk to Capt. McLanethon Smith, commanding officer of the Mississippi, of which vessel Lieut George Dewey was the executive officer, and Mr. Willis stood by the side of Lieut. Dewey on the bridge house of the ship during the first great battle that the present Admiral was in, when Admiral Farragut with his fleet of gun boats ran up past the Fort Hudson batteries.

Mr. Willis is 62 years of age and he says that Admiral Dewey is the same age. In an interview with The Press representative Mr. Willis said that he did not go to New York at the time of the celebration in September as he would rather wait until a little later, when he expected the Admiral to visit him and then they could talk over old times without being bothered by a lot of politicians. Mr. Willis exhibited to the writer a little blank book which he said he had carried through the terrible battle, when more men were killed on the ship that Dewey commanded than died in the fleet at the battle of Manila Bay, and pointed out dark spots on the pages, which he explained was the blood of brave men who had been wounded during the engagement.

It was Mr. Willis' duty to take down all the items in regard to the battle, as he was compelled to report the battle to the Admiral of the fleet.

Mr. Willis has nothing but words of praise for the present Admiral. In telling of the battle of Fort Hudson, he says that when the ship went aground right under the largest of the enemy's guns, Dewey stood on the wheel house, while the enemy was sending a cross fire of heavy shot at the ship, and ordered the wounded off first and then the sailors and soldiers, and when they were safely ashore he ordered Ensign O. H. Batchelor, who is now captain of the Concord, to set fire to the ship. Then as the vessel blazed he, with Mr. Willis and Captain Smith, left the bark and drifted in a small boat down the river, to be picked up by one of the other gun boats. At this time there were two other ensigns on board the Mississippi, A. S. Barker, now captain of the Oregon, which played such a prominent part in the late war with Spain, and Ensign Sheppard, since captain in charge of the lighthouse service.

Mr. Willis says that everybody liked Dewey, he being a brave little fellow, a strict disciplinarian and "no kid gloves," although he always liked to look nice. Mr. Willis and the admiral were together a great deal at New Orleans during the time that the fleet lay there, and they often dined at the home of Admiral Farragut. Mr. Willis lost his hearing at the battle of Fort Hudson and shortly afterward left the navy, but he and Dewey kept up their friendship.

SEPARATE DEPARTMENT.

Plan to Keep Intermediate Classes in Congregational Sunday-School Away From Rest of Scholars.

The quarterly meeting of officers and teachers of the Sunday-school of the Congregational church was held last Friday at the home of Alex. Miller, of Madison avenue. The question of separating the intermediate department from the rest of the school was discussed and referred to a committee, of which Robert Suffren was chairman, for consideration. The same committee will also consider the advisability of holding weekly teachers' meetings for the study of the Sunday-school lesson.

A committee, of which A. C. Le-Boyteaux was chairman, was appointed to draw up a new constitution.

Then followed an informal programme, consisting of a piano solo by Miss Mary Whiting, a vocal duet by Miss M. G. Morse and Miss Julia M. Belknap, and a vocal solo by Stacy Raynolds. Refreshments were served, Miss Annie E. Ellis and Miss Mary Whiton presiding at the table.

Failure of David Eastman.

David 'Eastman, of Crescent avenue, this city, has made application before Judge Kirkpatrick, in the United States District Court at Trenton, for permission to go into bankruptcy. He places his liabilities at $10 000 with no assets. Mr. Eastman has recently been engaged in the real estate business.

MENACE TO HEALTH, AND A NUISANCE.

This Opinion Was Expressed By Dr. T. H. Tomlinson.

BEFORE BOARD OF HEALTH.

HEARING HAD ABOUT BURNING OF LEAVES IN THE STREETS.

Not One Citizen Present to Protest Against the Nefarious Practice, Though Many Complaints Have Been Made to Board and Police Authorities — Smoke Liable to Cause a Blaze.

So many complaints having been received by the Board of Health regarding the practice of citizens burning leaves in the streets, that the Board decided to give a public hearing on the question before taking definite action on the matter. The hearing was set down for Friday afternoon previous to the regular monthly meeting of the Board. Strange to relate, although the newspapers have given the matter wide publicity, but one citizen was present to give an expression. That was Dr. T. H. Tomlinson. Mr. Dunn was chosen temporary chairman of the meeting in the absence of Henry B Newhall, the president, who was detained out-of-town. The other members present were William H. Murray, the secretary, and B. Van D. Hedges. When Mr. Dunn asked if there were any citizens present who wished to speak upon the question of prohibiting the burning of leaves in the streets of this city and whether the practice was considered of sufficient nuisance to cause the Board of Health to take steps to put a stop to it, Dr. Tomlinson said:

"The burning of leaves in the streets is in my opinion a detriment to health, comfort and the happiness of the citizens. The smoke that comes from burning leaves and the floating particles which fill the atmosphere are a source of irritation to very many people whose eyes become inflamed, and in some instances I have known that it was the cause of throat and lung troubles. In some cases individuals are subject to irritation, conditions which often lead to infectious diseases, such as an epidemic of la grippe or bronchial troubles. I believe the atmosphere as it should be kept as pure and unadulterated as God gives to us.

"The authorities condemn milk and water when they are polluted. If the air that we breathe had to be paid for there would be a hue and a cry against the burning of leaves. These beautiful autumnal days are conducive to health and our women and children ought to be out breathing the fresh air so that it may assist them to preserve their health to stand the rigors of the winter and spring months. If the air becomes polluted by the burning of leaves it certainly is a nuisance."

The doctor said he thought the newspapers ought to advocate the abatement of the burning of leaves that the autumnal days should not be polluted by smoke and smudge. He would favor having the leaves gathered up and utilized as silo instead of burning them.

Secretary Murray asked the doctor if he thought that the practice of burning leaves ought to be considered a nuisance if only a sufficient large number of people to make it wise for the Board of Health to take action in the premises.

Dr. Tomlinson said that he could not say as to that. There was no doubt but that the smoke caused irritation and produced throat and bronchial troubles. It was impossible to tell in some months, but it was wise to take precaution. He thought it the mission of the Board of Health to prevent what many considered an annoyance, a discomfort and a menace to health. Many ladies, he said, had appealed to him to have him see that the nuisance was stopped.

There being no other citizen present to discuss the question the Board closed the hearing. A decision will be rendered at a future meeting. The Board then went into executive session.

Left Behind Two Many Debts.

Mr. Schapiro, proprietor of the dry and fancy goods store on Park avenue, near Second street, is mourning the loss of his assistant, a Mr. Zimmerman, who was associated with him since he opened in this city. About four weeks ago he left the city, leaving behind a number of unpaid bills. A few days ago the proprietor received a letter from his friend who assured him that he would make everything all right.

Mr. O'Sullivan Has Recovered.

Sylvester J. O'Sullivan, of New York, who was injured some time ago at the Netherwood station of the Jersey Central Railroad, has entirely recovered and is now one of the guests at the Park Avenue Hotel.

Road to be Macadamized.

The Middlesex county Board of Freeholders have awarded to J. E. Hilpot the contract to macadamize the road between Bound Brook and Dunellen. The price is $6,058.

FEWER DELEGATES TO COUNTY CONVENTION.

Effect of Reduction in City Republican Vote.

CITY WILL LOSE SEVEN.

RESULT IN TROUBLES IN G. O. P. RANKS.

Leaders in First and Fourth Wards Were Conspicuous by Their Absence—First Ward Voters Turned Out and Kept up Normal Plurality But Big Slump in Fourth—Will be Felt at Convention.

The Republicans will have something with which to remember the election of November 7th when the county convention comes round next fall. The absence of the Republican voters at the polls will be felt in the delegation that goes down to Elizabeth to represent Plainfield. Instead of thirty-seven as the delegation numbered at the last county convention, there will only be thirty next year. The Democrats suffered in a similar way but their delegation will only be one less than at the last convention.

At the last convention of the G O P. it will be remembered that there was a decided split in the local delegation and that the delegations from the First and Fourth Wards were on the defeated side. This factional strife continued right up to the time of the election to a certain extent, and, as a result, two of the prominent leaders in those wards made no effort Tuesday to get out the Republican vote.

City Clerk J. T. MacMurray has been very prominent in First Ward politics for many years. Since the fight over the postmastership, there have been two factions in that ward, commonly called the MacMurray and the McDonald factions. Just before this election Mr. MacMurray received a letter from the executive committee, couched in polite language, but taking away from MacMurray the appointment of the ward workers. MacMurray took the letter as an invitation that he was not needed and so, a business trip to the west, coming at this time, he took advantage of it and was not in Plainfield over Election Day.

In the Fourth Ward the executive committee carefully forgot Andrew W. Mardelli, who is the head of the "machine" in that ward and a particular friend of Mr. MacMurray's, when it came to the appointment of the workers there. Mr. McCardell, who is superintendent of the foundry at the Pond Tool works, went to his duties Tuesday as usual. He voted, but took no other part in the election.

When it was generally known that the two "Mac's" were not working and that supposedly their friends were following the same course, much interest was shown in the result. The result in the First ward was rather surprising. The Republican vote turned out and the plurality over the Democratic ticket was slightly increased over that of the previous year when Voorhees was elected Governor. In the Fourth ward the Republican plurality fell way down. The Democrats had their best organization there of any ward in the city, and it proved quite a factor compared with other years. While Mr. McCardell was conspicuous by his absence, Former Justice Wm. Newcorn, who had been the Fourth ward candidate for the Assembly nomination and had been defeated in the convention by S. C. Foote, was on hand early and took a prominent part in getting out the Republican vote But for him and a few of his friends there would have been an even greater slump among Republicans of the Fourth.

The lack of interest in the Second and Third wards is the only way to account for the small votes in those wards. Both polled a smaller vote, the loss in the Second being the larger of the two.

The representation in the county convention of the Republicans is determined by the vote for coroner at the last county election. Each township, borough or ward receives one delegate for every fifty or fraction thereof over twenty-five cast for coroner at the last election.

The First ward had seven delegates at the convention last month and there will be no change this year. The Second ward will lose two delegates, for the next convention will find it entitled to only seven instead of nine. The Third ward delegation is reduced from nine to eight. The greatest loss is in the Fourth ward where there will be put eight delegates instead of twelve.

The Democrats base their representation in a similar manner, only the vote of the leading Assemblyman in the district instead of the Coroner, is selected to decide the representation. Next year, at the Democratic convention, the Plainfield delegation will be one less than at present. The First ward will be four, the Second three, the Third three and the Fourth seven. The decrease is in the Fourth, where there was eight delegates heretofore. The Democrats account for this by the fact that it is an "off" year in politics and there was very little interest shown. The fact that there was not the same falling off all over the city that there was among the Republicans, they consider a gain.

WEDDED IN BRIDE'S HOME

MISS CORRINE YOUNG BECOMES THE WIFE OF HENRY AUTEN.

Ceremony Performed by Rev. Cornelius Schenck—House Prettily Decorated—The Couple Will Reside in Perth Amboy.

A pretty wedding of November 8th was that of Miss Corrine Young, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Young, of 136 Central avenue, and Harry Auten, of Perth Amboy, which took place at 6:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of about seventy-five relatives and friends.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church, in the parlor which was tastefully decorated with smilax, palms and chrysanthemums. The wedding march from Loehengrin was played by Clifford Braider, of the borough, as the bridal party entered the room. There was no best man, but the bride was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Nettie Young, sister of the bride, and Miss Helen Auten, of Roycefield, sister of the groom. There were also two flower girls, Miss Mable Kline, niece of the bride, of Reaville, and Miss May Auten, sister of the groom, of Roycefield. They preceded the party and were gowned in white swiss and carried baskets of flowers The bride's gown was white mull over white taffeta. She carried bride roses. The bridesmaids wore gowns of white dotted swiss over green, and carried pink roses.

After the ceremony congratulations were offered. Then followed the wedding supper, after which Mr. and Mrs. Auten departed from the city on a honeymoon trip. Upon their return they will reside at Perth Amboy, where the groom has an excellent position with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Both he and his bride are popular young people, the latter being a member and attendant at Trinity Reformed church, where she has a host of friends. A large collection of useful and handsome gifts were received by them from relatives and friends.

Those who acted as ushers at the wedding were Charles D. Smith, of Weston, and W. K. Crater, of Somerville. There were guests present from New York, Brooklyn, Long Island, Flemington, Somerville, Bingoes, Bound Brook and this city.

COMMISSIONERS OF APPEAL

They Allowed $37,960 Deduction From the Assessed Valuations in This City.

The following is a synopsis of the work done by the Commissioners of Appeal in this city:

	Total No. of applications.	Amount deducted.	Tax remitted.
Applications to reduce real estate valuations— Granted ....69 Refused 91	160	$29,610	$758.01
Applications to correct errors involving deductions— Granted	4	2,025	64.30
Applications to correct errors involving no deductions— Granted	6
Application for exemption of charitable society— Granted ....1 Refused 1	2	800	12.80
Applications to reduce personal estate valuations— Granted .... 9 Refused 4	13	4,900	125.44
Applications to remit dog taxes— Granted ....12 Refused 7	19		24.00
Applications to remit poll taxes— Granted	8		8.00
Application for exemption to soldiers and firemen— Granted Real estate..2 $250 Personal ..2 $ 75	325		21.12
Polls.....6 10	11
Refused.....1
Total number of applications..... Granted....119 Refused....104	223
Total am'nt deducted from assessed valuation	$37,960
Total amount deducted from taxes			$1,009.77

RAINBOW CLUB'S CONCERT.

The Affair Resulted in Putting $60 Into Treasury of Fillmore Baptists.

Last Thursday evening at Washington Hall a Dewey concert was given by the Rainbow Club of the Fillmore Baptist church. The attendance was unusually large and the concert a great success socially and financially. There was vocal and instrumental music, recitations, rag-time dancing, vocal duets, etc. The receipts were about $100, and about $60 was cleared for the church. The committee wish to thank all who took part, and especially Madame Harper and Miss Murphy, of Jersey City; R E. Randolph and Miss Riddick, of this city, for their music. R. C. Randolph was musical director, A. White, pianist, and Israel Jones, cornetist

Stock Company To Sell Coal.

A number of citizens of Basking Ridge and Lyons have organized a stock company to sell coal, lumber and building materials. The yards are to be situated near Lyons station, which is a mile from Basking Ridge.

WARNING MR. B.

His Wife Wife Refused to Entertain a Certain Guest at Dinner.

The absolute serenity with which some people, women especially, shout private affairs through telephones is to me quite remarkable. While waiting for a prescription to be filled in a North Side drug store the other day a woman came in. She glanced impatiently at a man who was using the telephone, then moved restlessly from the cigar case to the directory stand, over to the perfumes and back to the cigars again. The man, says the Chicago Times-Herald, finally finished sending his message and she darted at the instrument and rang the bell. There were three others besides myself in the store, but she apparently saw nothing of us.

Such and such a number, "Express," she called as the bell rang, beating a tattoo on the floor every minute. "Is Mr. B—— there?" Then we all grew interested, and some of us began to worry for fear she wouldn't. "You're finally come, have you?" was the first greeting he received. "I simply tell you I can't have that man to dinner, and I won't. That is the last sentence Mr. B—— evidently began to plead for his intended guest. "I simply say I won't have him, and I insisted in still more decided tones. Then she continued: "I've been polite to him just as often as I ever shall be. He has been up to dinner at least four times, and what return has he made? Not even a flower—(this scornfully)—or a box of candy or a theatre ticket or anything else to show his appreciation. His conduct was apparently cut short by a question from Mr. B—— as to where she was telephoning from. "I am in S——'s drug store," she said, "and I don't care who hears me. I didn't answer by messenger because I just knew you wouldn't pay attention to a word I wrote."

By this time she certainly had no reason to complain of her audience at least on that score. We were all grins and smiles. There was a second's pause, during which she stood with the receiver pressed close to her pompadour. "Well, then, Brick, bring him home if you want to, but I warn you you'll entertain him with the cold roast left from last night and the hash and turnips. I am on my way to Margaret's now and won't be back until 10 o'clock to-night."

It was useless for us to look unconcerned, for she never noticed us, but flounced out the door and into the car as it stopped on the corner. I wondered if the befuddled guest was a Chicago bachelor.

Banking for School Children.

Economic education is claiming each year the more careful attention of learned and philanthropic people. School banking, the simplest way of inculcating self-denial and thrift, has full approval wherever instituted, and as the news goes abroad, its sphere is broadening. Societies of the pupils in some of the public schools of the United States have just been printed, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, by Mr. J. H. Thiry, who founded the system. They show that the school children's savings deposited in savings institutions through this system amounted to $530,219.58. These savings are in 349 schools, and the depositors number 41,862. There are half as many more schools using this system, of which we have no statistical report, and many others using the Penny Provident and stamp plan of saving.

All systems and methods of the systematic saving of money for the self-responsible development of the child and to apply to uses apart from frivolous waste are of value, as it is the principle involved rather than specific method we aim to instill, the independence, individuality and equality of means that will make thrift general. But the simple system of school savings, where we credit the pennies direct, and not stamps, is more educative and helpful, because it follows boys and our girls regular banking business habits, and they carry their accounts right over into manhood and womanhood. If every boy and girl who has graduated or come out of our public schools for the past ten years had left school with one or two hundred dollars of a bank account to his or her credit, as do our girls and boys to-day where they have school savings banks, we would be much nearer the equality, the sobriety and the single standard of morality for which we labor than we are. We need to understand how to handle and appreciate money.

Disqualified

"While I was over in Springfield the other week," said the Boston grocer, "I was casually introduced to a farmer from Vermont. As he was peddling butter, cheese and eggs to the market in large quantities, I thought it might be a good thing to do business with him. He was willing, and we were getting figures down to our satisfaction, when he suddenly inquired:

"John L. Sullivan, the prize-fighter, lives in Boston, don't he?"

"Yes, I believe so."

"What street does he live on?"

"I can't say."

"Haven't you ever met him?"

"No."

"Don't even know him by sight, eh?"

"No."

"Well, that's funny! You may live in Boston all right enough, and maybe everything would be all right if I shipped stuff to you, but I guess we'll call it off."

"Because I don't know John L. Sullivan?" I queried.

"Mostly," he soberly replied. "I rode 200 miles to see him once, and if you don't care to even go a mile to shake hands with him, I'm afraid we might not just hit it off in business."—Utica Observer.

Canucks Ride Yankee Bicycles.

According to the manufacturers' own returns, the total number of bicycles sold in Canada last year was 50,000. Of these 27,308 were imported from the United States complete. In addition, the record of parts imported from this country represented at least 12,000 complete wheels, making the proportion of American-made bicycles sold in Canada last year about 80 per cent.

It was intended as a gentle hint.

"Our rule here," he said, "is to pay as you go."

"Quite right," replied the other pleasantly, "but I am not going yet."—Chicago Post.

TRUE STORY OF "WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES."

He Was Married For Two Years Before Friends Knew It.

CAUSED A GREAT SURPRISE.

THE NUPTIALS WERE GUARDED WITH GREAT SECRECY.

Frank L. Jones, President of the Monarch Printing Company, the Groom, and Miss Kate A. Reed, of Blairstown, Pa., the Bride — They Will Soon Go To Housekeeping in This City.

Frank L. Jones, president of the recently organized Monarch Printing Company, sprung a surprise upon his many friends in this city Nov 7th by announcing his marriage. Although it was well known that Mr. Jones has been paying attention to a young lady who has been making her home in this city for some time, his friends or those of the lady had no idea that they were married. The fact leaked out a few days ago. When asked about it Mr. Jones admitted the truth of the report.

Mr. Jones bride is Miss Kate A. Reed, of Blairstown, Pa For some time she has been making her home with Mrs. Mary Richards on East Fifth street and has been assisting that lady in her duties as a dressmaker Mr. Jones married his wife nearly two years ago. For reasons best known to themselves Mr. and Mrs. Jones decided to keep their marriage a profound secret for a time. The fact that they have guarded their secret so zealously for many months has caused their friends to marvel.

However, the cat's out of the bag and they are making the most of the situation by receiving the congratulations of their friends. Mr and Mrs Jones have made arrangements to at once go to housekeeping at 441 West Sixth street.

Tuesday evening the members of "The Club" on Front street, hearing of Mr. Jones' marriage, sent a committee out to gather in the newly married man and usher him before the other members of the club to have him show cause why he should not explain himself. Mr. Jones was willingly complied with the request and he was present to do the honors, which he did in a graceful manner. For several hours the boys enjoyed at Mr. Jones' expense an old fashioned symposium at the headquarters of "The Club."

At present Mrs. Jones is visiting her relatives at her old home at Blairstown.

BURGLARS VISIT DUNELLEN AGAIN.

Several Business Places Were Broken Into Friday Night.

NO POLICE PROTECTION.

FORMER MAYOR BRAKELEY'S STORE ONE OF THE PLACES V SITED.

A Small Amount of Change Stolen From the Drug Store—Carman's Meat Market Next Broken Into, But No Cash Secured—Frightened Away From Taylor's Hotel — Probably Thieving Tramps

The borough of Dunellen has certainly become a mecca for hoboes, tramps, housebreakers and lawless characters of various descriptions. Friday night the "midnight mechanic" paid another visit to this locality where police protection is conspicuous by its absence. The drug store of Dr. Brakeley was broken into and the thieves helped themselves to about $2 in change. They then visited the meat market of William H. Carman but were unable to find any cash They had to satisfy themselves with taking a few links of sausage and some meat.

On their way out of town the hoboes made an attempt to enter Taylor's Hotel, but were frightened away by Mr. Taylor, who fortunately was awake at 2:30 o'clock in the morning.

There is no clue to the perpetrators, but it is the opinion of many people that the burglaries are the work of tramps, who from time to time are prowling about the borough and New Market. It is quite easy for these characters to drop off from freight trains at the "tanks" and make their way to Dunellen and New Market, where no police protection is afforded the citizens, who are therefore at the mercy of these desperadoes.

Twenty-five Jersey Inventions.

In this week's issue of patents granted to American inventors twenty-five were granted to residents of our own State. To subscribers of this paper a description and drawing of any patent will be furnished free by Louis Bagger & Co., patent attorneys, Washington, D C., if a printed heading cut from this paper, is enclosed with the order.

CHORUS GIRLS.

Little Inducement Held Out to Those Who Want to Reform.

The Chicago woman who has come to New York with the idea of reforming the chorus girls seems to have made a mistake in her estimate of the price at which they would be willing to exchange their present employment for work of the kind she offers. From $12 to $14 a week is the pay of the average chorus girl, and to remove them from the demoralizing influences of stage life she volunteers to find places for them in mercantile employment at one quarter that sum. There is not likely to be much demand for reformation at this figure, in view of the great demand for their services at the higher figure. Chorus girls who are beautiful enough and have voice enough and other qualifications are not easy to find. The demand for them is far greater than the supply, and one New York manager has recently advertised in many of the cities of the country for young women who are anxious to enter the profession in this way. The deficiency in the supply is less noticeable in New York than it is with those cities that are to travel through the country.

Only a short time ago a manager about to send one of his companies on the road found that three-quarters of the young women he expected to take along with the company were so much that they were compelled to refuse, but could not think of undertaking the hardships of a season's travel. Most of them had their homes here or other cities to which bound them to New York, and leave them they could not. The veterans who have served their time in the business and appreciate the value of a salary wherever received are the only recruits that can be induced to go on the road at any time; but they are usually deficient in other qualities looked for in the most popular type of chorus girl. At a revival last spring of a play given first 15 years ago one of the original chorus singers was in the cast. She still finds a demand for her services, but not in New York. Here she would not be wanted even in the back row. Only youth and beauty are wanted here, and they are so much desired that the reformer who is offering $4 a week in more conventional employments will probably make little progress.—N. Y. Sun.

A KING'S DONATION.

Siam's Ruler Gives a Hotel Site in Bangkok to an American.

Wallace J. Palmer, a former resident of this city, has been assisted in a hotel enterprise by the King of Siam. Mr. Palmer, after a seven years' absence, is visiting his old home here, and will leave in three weeks to carry out the plans he has made with the King of Bangkok. Mr. Palmer has been an extensive traveler in the Far East, and a few years ago he visited in Siam. The country attracted him, and he decided to stay there.

Mr. Palmer at one time conducted a large hotel in Honolulu and thought Siam would be a good place for one here. He opened one on a small scale. The American patronage was very large, and he prospered. Among visitors to his hotel was the King, who grew to like the place so well that he made Mr. Palmer his chief caterer. The friendship existing between Mr. Palmer and the King finally developed into a big business enterprise.

The King has given to Mr. Palmer a large plot of land in the heart of Bangkok on which to erect a large hotel. Mr. Palmer, on his return to Siam, will commence work on the structure, which is to cost $200,000. Land is very expensive in Bangkok, and the ruler says the King has made a very generous gift in the site for the hotel.—New Haven Special to N. Y. Times.

(Filipino Warriors).

Filipino Fighters.

The American forces, which are beginning to penetrate deeper into the interior of the Philippine Islands, will soon run across the as yet uncivilized natives, who have never been under the control of the Spaniards or anybody else. In fact, as reports of some of the earlier battles showed Aguinaldo has already succeeded in rallying to his support some of the native tribes armed as are those of the latter, with bows and arrows. Some of these natives, who can, of course, know nothing about the causes of the present war, are cannibals and are absolutely fearless in battle. They use poisoned arrows, and live on fruit, roots, and what they can shoot.

American Bass in Paris

A shipment of American black bass was made to France and they have flourished so marvelously that to-day they are common articles of diet in the hotels and restaurants. When the bass were introduced the French streams were practically deserted.

Denver a Cycling Town.

Denver (Col.) has more bicycles in proportion than any other city in the country.

SCOTCH PLAINS WEDDING

VANDYKE-NICHOLSON NUPTIALS WERE PERFORMED LAST NIGHT.

Solemnized at the Home of the Bride's Parents Which Had Been Decorated in an Elaborate Form With Flowers.

The leading social event and marriage of the season was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Nichol Scotch Plains, N.J., when their daughter, Avis Lillian, was joined in wedlock to Robert L. VanDyke, of Brooklyn. The home of the bride's parents had been transformed into a veritable Elen spot in honor of the happy event. Promptly at 8 o'clock the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march were heard by the guests, and shortly after the bride and bridegroom appeared.

The bride was attended by her three sisters, Miss Edna Marion and Miss Mary Florence as bridesmaids, and her youngest sister, Miss Louise Townsend, as maid of honor.

The couple took up their places under a pretty bower of white and green, when the Rev. Charles Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, of Plainfield, spoke the words that made them man and wife.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held, Mr. and Mrs. Van Dyke standing in the parlor and receiving the congratulations of those present. The bride was doubly congratulated in honor of not only her wedding day, but her natal day as well. Mr. and Mrs. VanDyke received the with the merry guests until 10:30 o'clock, when they left amid a shower of rice and best wishes to catch the Southern express, which was to stop at Fanwood by special orders to take the happy couple aboard.

The bride's dress was a rich and beautiful creation of white silk trimmed with pearl. She wore a bridal veil of white tulle and carried a large bunch of lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids wore white organdie trimmed with pink and carried pink chrysanthemums, while the maid of honor was very pretty in a handsome dress of pink, the bride's favorite color.

The parlor decorations were white and green.

Guests were present from New York, Brooklyn, Elizabeth, Plainfield, Fanwood and Scotch Plains.

Mr. and Mrs. VanDyke, after a two weeks' trip visiting the points of interest through the south as far as Georgia, will return and take up their residence in Brooklyn where they will board during the winter.

ERROR IN THE RETURNS

UNION COUNTY CANVASSERS HAMFERED IN THEIR WORK.

The Returns Made by Some of the Election Boards Were Defective — Senator Reed's Official Majority is 1,671.

At noon Friday the Union county board of election met at the court house for the purpose of canvassing the returns of the votes cast at Tuesday's election.

County Clerk Howard, who is supposed to officiate as secretary of the board, was by his own request excused from that duty today, owing to the fact that he was one of the interested nominees.

On motion of Mr. Crowell, Zerman Norman was chosen as secretary and was promptly sworn in as such by P. J. Ryan.

Mr. Norman informed the board that it was hardly probable that it would be able to complete its duties yesterday owing to the fact that certain omissions had been made in the reports from election district returns, such as failure to record the total number of votes polled, etc.

Owing to the returns being defective from the Township of Springfield, the Borough of Fanwood, and the Fifth ward of Elizabeth, the Board adjourned until Saturday.

The Board of Canvassers of Middlesex county met at New Brunswick yesterday to canvass the vote of the county. The following is the official vote: For Sheriff — Barclay, Rep., 7 631; Field, Dem., 6,498; Barclay's plurality, 1,133. For County Clerk — Conger, Rep., 7,380; Jaques, Dem., 6 217; Conger's plurality, 1,613. For Assemblymen — Lyons, Rep., 7 640; Farrell, Dem., 6 295; Groves, Rep., 7 610; Dougherty, Dem., 6 384; Montgomery, Rep., 7,625; Clayton, Dem., 6,538.

The Somerset County Board of Canvassers met yesterday. The official pluralities are given as follows: Chas A. Reed, for Senator, 1,607; Edward Hooper, for member of Assembly 1,429.

Wedded at St. Mary's Rectory.

Miss Marie Agnes Gordon, of Brooklyn, and Patrick J. Fahy, a conductor on the local trolley, were married Nov. 8, at the rectory of St. Mary's R. C. church, by Rev. Father Smyth. Miss Smith and Daniel Galbraith, intimate friends of the contracting parties, were witnesses to the marriage The bride and groom have gone to housekeeping on West Second street, in a home already furnished.

COULD NOT CARRY OUT THEIR NUPTIAL PLANS

It Was Arranged to Have Double Wedding at St Mary's.

ELIZABETH PRIEST SAID NO.

FATHER GESSLER OBJECTED TO HIS PARISHIONERS GOING AWAY.

Insisted That the Elizabethport Couple be Married in Their Own Parish—They Acquiesced, but Then Came to Plainfield to See the Other Couple Joined in Wedlock by Father Smyth.

Two interesting events of Nov 8th, were the marriages of John Clark and his sister, Miss Kate Clark, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Clark, of West Third street. It was arranged that there should be a double wedding at St. Mary's R. C. church, this city, but Father Gessler, of St. Patrick's church, Elizabethport, in whose parish Mr. Clark and his bride, Miss Mary Darcy, are members, objected to the couple going out of the parish to get married, and at the last minute there was a change in the plans, all of which is deeply regretted by the interested parties.

Unless Father Gessler consented to the proposed plan, Father Smyth, of St. Mary's church, would not officiate at the double wedding, hence the change. The change did not, however, stop the marriages and they took place as intended.

At 2 o'clock Nov. 8th, afternoon Mr. Clark and Miss Darcy were married at St. Patrick's church, Elizabethport, by Father Gessler. They were attended by Martin Darcy, brother of the bride, and Miss Anna Ford, both of Elizabethport. The wedding was largely attended and was a very pretty one. After the ceremony the bridal party and a large number of the guests came to this city where they witnessed the marriage at St. Mary's church of Miss Kate Clark and Michael J. Divine, of Brooklyn. The ceremony took place at 5 o'clock and was very largely attended. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Smyth, pastor of the church.

The bride was gowned in steel grey cloth trimmed with point lace and spangled net. She carried bridal roses, as did also the bridesmaid, Miss Mary Clark, sister of the bride, who was gowned in steel grey cloth, trimmed with pale green silk. Both wore opera capes and hats to match their costumes. The best man was Frank Clark, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Clark, West Third street, where a reception was held. There was a large number of guests present from New York, Elizabeth, Plainfield and other places. The wedding gifts were elegant, costly and numerous. During the the hours of the reception an elaborate wedding supper was served and both couples were given a good send off.

Mr. Clark, one of the grooms, is a wholesale liquor dealer at Elizabethport, and he and his wife will reside at that place. Mr. Divine, the other groom, is also a liquor dealer at 94 Kent avenue Brooklyn, and he and his wife will take up their residence there.

NEW GOLF CLUB MEMBERS.

Hillside Club Adds Several New Names to Its Roll.

The Hillside Tennis and Golf Club has elected the following members: Active members—Miss Helen S. Martin, John Bushnell, Francis A. Clark, Frederick W. Yates, Henry S. McGee, Miss Joanna H. Shepard, George W. Endicott, Andrew N. Selter, Charles A. King, Walter M. McGee and John H. Husey.

Associate members—Miss Elsie C. Martin, Miss Margaret G. Yates, Mrs. Francis A. Clark and Mrs. John Bushnell.

Junior associate members—Miss Eleanor K. Sidmson, Miss Marjorie Fleming, Miss Elisabeth Goddard and Miss Ada G. Marsh.

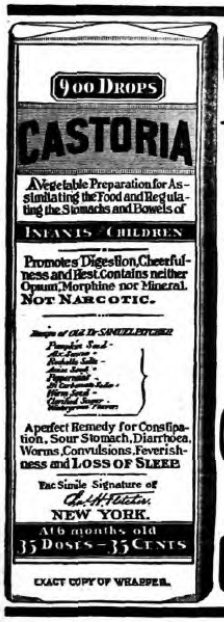
Non-resident member—E Clinton Hall, Fanwood. The club has now 354 members.

Filled With the Spirit of Missions.

The address of Mrs. W. L. Remsen, of the First Presbyterian church, before the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church last Friday, was greatly enjoyed by the band and their friends. Mrs. Remsen is well posted and thoroughly in earnest regarding mission work, especially the foreign field, and her very earnest address regarding God's work in India, through the efforts of one consecrated man, Dr. Chamberlin, was listened to very intently and at the close of the meeting a hearty vote of thanks was extended to her by the band.

Electric Lighting Sale Now.

The electric lighting system in Music Hall has been condemned as dangerous by Chief Doane. Maze Edwards, manager of the theatre, promptly employed an electrician and had the connections and wiring made absolutely safe.



CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

MANY EYES GAZE ON THE PLUM TREE.

State Offices to be Filled During the Coming Winter.

HAVE MANY ASPIRANTS.

LEGISLATIVE SESSIONS PROMISES TO BE NOTABLE FOR DULLNESS.

First Appointment Governor Will Make Will be the Supervisor of Bills, Which is a $1,500 Berth for Five Years—Johnson to be President of the Senate, But Sprakership of House is Anybody's Race.

With the Legislature so overwhelmingly Republican, the coming session of the law makers is likely to be notable for its dullness.

Because of the fact that the Presidential campaign is so close at hand the Republicans are apt to make the session as short as possible and also productive of the fewest laws possible. There will be a scramble for the offices that are to be filled by the Governor and also a lively tussle for the few legislative plums.

The first appointment that the Governor will make will be a Supervisor of Bills, to take the place of the old Engrossing Clerks. The appointment is entirely within the power of the Governor, no confirmation by the Senate being necessary. The berth pays $1,500 a year and the team is five years. The duties will not be at all arduous, as an assistant is to be named in each House, at a salary of $6.0 a year, and they will be expected to do the bulk of the work. As the Legislature is rarely in session more than ten or twelve weeks in each year the supervisorship will be quite a snug berth. The Governor some weeks ago announced his intention to name the supervisor shortly after election, so that the plum is likely to drop at a very early date, Editor Chas. H. Fotwell, of the Mt. Holly Mirror, seems to have the inside track for the berth.

The places that the Governor will have filled during the session are: Supreme Court Justice to succeed Judge Lippincott, who is very likely to be reappointed; Circuit Court Judges to succeed Judges Francis and Child; State Prison Supervisor; State Banking Commissioner; two members of the State Board of Assessors; County Judges in Mercer, Monmouth, Somerset and Essex counties; Prosecutors in Bergen, Burlington, Camden, Salem and Somerset; six Commissioners of Pilotage; three managers of the New Jersey Home for Feeble Minded, and three members of the State Board of Medical Examiners.

Edward J. Anderson will no doubt be reappointed Prison Supervisor and William Bettle will be renamed as Banking Commissioner. Both are personal representatives of General Sewell.

Senator William M. Johnson, of Bergen, is likely to be President of the upper branch of the Legislature. When Senator Johnson was defeated last year there was a sort of tacit understanding that he should have the chair this year.

The Speakership of the House is still anybody's race, with five candidates in the field. Edward W. Makelee wants it, but he is handicapped by Senator Johnson's ambition to be President of the Senate. Both hail from Bergen county. The handsome Mr. Jones, of Essex, also aspires to the Speaker's rostrum, but he, too, is handicapped by the greed of placehunters in Essex for minor positions in the House. This will no doubt nip the handsome statesman's ambition in the bud. William L. Boardley claims to have the prior right to the Speakership, but he never exhibited much force to date. Vivian W. Lewis, of Passaic, is making a quiet play for the gavel, and Ira W. Wood, of Mercer, would also like very much to be chosen as the presiding officer.

As to the other officers in both Houses, the books are still open, excepting as to the Senate Secretaryship, which will surely go to Augustus W Barber, of Woodbury, for a second time. There will be a new Sergeant-at-Arms in each House and a new Clerk of the House of Assembly.

At the coming session a State Treasurer and a State Comproller will be chosen to succeed George W. Swain and Edward Williams S. Hancock, of Trenton, respectively. Everything now points to the re-election of the present officials. They have been very active in the State campaigns for years and each has been very successful in the political arena. Mr. Swain's county of Essex will have twelve Republican votes on joint ballot and Mr. Hancock's county will have four votes. Both officials are held in high regard by their party, and the only thing to prevent their retention will be a declination to accept. Such a course is not likely to be followed by either of the gentlemen.

Beauty Is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean your blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads, and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets,—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

THEIR PURPOSE IS TO AID THE WORTHY.

Annual Meeting of the Citizens' Organized Aid Association.

FINANCES IN GOOD SHAPE.

AN ADDRESS DELIVERED BY MRS. E. E. WILLIAMSON.

She Spoke on the Subject "The Benefits of Co-operation Between the State and Its Citizens in Works of Charity and Correction"—State Association is an Unofficial Body — Influence With Legislature.

The annual meeting of the Citizens' Organized Aid Association was held Monday in the lecture room of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, a large number of the members and friends of the organization being in attendance.

The meeting was called to order by Charles W. McCutchen, a member of the executive board. The president, Colonel Mason W. Tyler, was unable to be present, on account of the death of a relative, and several other officers were also unavoidably detained. Mr. McCutchen stated that Colonel Tyler had expected to give a report of the work of the Association during the past year, and that the report would be prepared and probably published at a later date. In view of the absence of so many of the officers, no formal business was transacted, it being suggested that such business be left over until an adjourned meeting could be called by the president. Mr. McCutchen said, however, that he would call for the report of the treasurer, for the sake of encouraging the members and well-wishers of the organization. J. Kirtland Myers, the treasurer, then read a very brief report, closing with the cheering information that the balance now in the treasury exceeded $350.

The chairman then introduced the speaker of the evening, Mrs. E. E. Williamson, General Secretary of the State Charities' Aid Association, whose subject had been announced as "The Benefits of Co-operation Between the State and Its Citizens in Works of Charity and Correction."

Mrs. Williamson began her address by telling something of the origin and work of the State Charities' Aid Association. This organization, she said, has the oversight of all institutions supported by taxpayers. They are an official body, in that they appoint their own board of managers. They have an appropriation of $600 from the State, made them by the Legislature, and each year they render a full report of their investigations to the Legislature. Of themselves they have no power to remedy any evils they can discover, but they can bring the knowledge of these evils before the people of the State and the lawmakers. They have greatly influenced legislation in this State.

The work of the organization in New Jersey is broader than in many other States, in that it includes work in the penal institutions. Much has been done along this line. Mrs. Williamson stated that when the association began work, there was scarcely a jail in the State that was in good condition. Now nearly all are improved. The minors have been separated from the others, and the sexes have been given different quarters. The almshouses, too, have seen a great change. They have become, in most cases, really comfortable spots for the old. Mrs. Williamson spoke with much appreciation of Plainfield's plan of calling her institution of this kind an "industrial home," the name seeming to exert an influence toward making such a place a little higher in grade than the ordinary almshouse.

Mrs. Williamson had much to say of the work of the State Board of Children's Guardians, to which a large part of her efforts have been directed. Through her endeavors the Legislature has put into the hands of the State Board the care of all the dependent children of the State. Dependent children in this case are those who have become the public charge. Mrs. Williamson has found many children in almshouses, where they do not belong, and has seen to a better disposal of them. One point in which she regarded Plainfield as lacking was in the care of the children. She spoke of knowing of many Plainfield children being sent to the Elizabeth jail, and she held the opinion that prevention was far better than cure in matters of crime. Many children, now in happy homes, who were found by Mrs. Williamson in almshouses, can thank her for their new and brightened lives.

In closing, the speaker emphasized the need of individual endeavor in such matters as in this city are looked after by the C. O. A. A. Without such assistance the organization she represented would be almost powerless. She spoke of the tremendous influence for good wielded by such associations, and said that in Plainfield its efficiency was greatly increased by the co-operation of the Relief Association.

Mrs. Williamson spoke entirely without notes and was evidently full of her subject and an enthusiast in her work. At the close of her address the chairman suggested that a vote of thanks be given her for her interesting and instructive talk, and this was enthusiastically done.

WON OPENING GAME

Y. M. C. A. BASKET BALL TEAM OPENED ITS SEASON.

Defeated the Hudsons From the 57th Street Branch of the New York Y. M. C. A. By Score of 10 to 3.

The local basket ball season opened Monday with a victory for the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team over the Hudsons, the crack team from the Fifty-seventh street branch of the New York Y. M. C. A. by a score of 10 to 3. Several hundred people thronged the visitor's gallery to overflowing. The play was hard and fast and rougher than usual.

It was the first appearance of the local team this season and there were several important changers in the personel of the team. The policy of the local association is to give the places on the team to those who attended class drill regularly in preference to those who do not, even if the latter happen to be the better players. As a result, Walter L. Long, last year's captain, and George Proctor Smith have not been chosen although they are two of the best basket ball players in the city. Carroll has played before and put up a good game. Sidney Perrin was new on the first team and his game was not up to that of the others.

Plainfield scored soon after play began but the fight was hot from the first and the Plainfielders were only able to score three points in the first half to their opponent's one. Both teams played a remarkably fast game that was naturally rougher than usual. In the second half, the home team showed better team work and rolled up seven points while the New York boys made two on their only goal from the field. E. Moraller and Egan did the scoring for Plainfield.

The teams lined up as follows:

PLAINFIELD.		HUDSONS.
Carroll	right forward	Beeten
E. Moraller	left forward	Pelham
Perrin	centre	Mott
M. Moraller	right guard	Sendrad
Davis	left guard	Bowers

Score—Plainfield, 10; Hudsons, 3. Goals from the floor—E. Moraller, 2; Egan, 2; Mott, 1. Foals—Plainfield, 1; Hudsons, 1. Referee—C. E. Empirse. Umpires—R. Duncan and L. I. VanAlstyne. Scorer—Frank Marsley. Timer—John B. Dunn.

DAMAGES FOR SIX CENTS.

Result of the Action Brought by Mrs. Kate Tietz Against Constable Robert Mattox.

A judgment for six cents and costs has been rendered in the district court at Elizabeth in favor of the plaintiff in the action of Mrs. Kate Tietz vs. Constable William R. Mattox, of this city. It will be remembered that Ernest Krieb secured a judgment against Mrs. Tietz for $200. An execution was issued and constable Mattox made a levy on some horses and cattle belonging to Mrs. Tietz. The woman resisted the levy and there was quite a row. The case was carried to the district court, McClure & Meehan representing the plaintiff and W. S. Angleman the defendant.

THE CRADLE ROLL.

A Unique Department That Has Been Started in First Baptist Church.

One of the most interesting and unique departments in Sunday-school work is that called the cradle roll. This department has been started at the First Baptist church Sunday-school under the direction of the superintendent, Mrs. J. A. Johnson, and several members are enrolled. The roll is made up many months before the little folks are old enough to attend Sunday school, and yet they are considered members. When the children become old enough they are taken into the department. In this way children are kept track of and the parents are also kept interested in the work.

Admitted to the Bar.

Carlos C. Gallup, of West Front street, very successfully passed his entrance examinations to the New Jersey Bar at Trenton Monday. In his oral examination he was personally complimented by Justice Collins for the excellence of his answers. Mr. Gallup has been studying law in the offices of Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh.

Went to the Council on Crutches.

Councilman G. F. Mellick, who has been detained at home for some time with an injured leg, succeeded in getting to the adjourned meeting of the Council Monday with the aid of crutches. He is gradually recovering from the effects of the severe injury.

Local Storehouse For Liquors.

In a short time work will be started on the erection of a local depot for Ballentine & Co., as a storehouse for their liquors. The building will be located at the corner of West Second street and Central avenue.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit it takes easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No To-Bac, the wonder worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I prescribed them if one wished to become a confirmed hypochondriac, and do a benevolent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

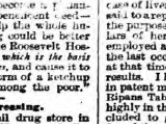
Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked:

"Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."



An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm admirer of Ripans Tabules in any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on this occasion as I had for cases of that kind obtained me beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a month. A Dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were a dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two dozen others who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should use her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers will help some other person similarly afflicted to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, finding how earnest she was about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing five tubes for ten cents, each tube containing six Ripans Tabules, has just been placed on the market. These packets are for the purpose of placing the Tabules within the reach of all who desire to buy a remedy of merit at a low price. Ripans Tabules may be had of druggists, or by sending the price (five cents) to the Ripans Chemical Company, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single tube will be sent for the price, five cents. Ripans Tabules may be had of druggists, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while the grape in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

VICK SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands of satisfied Customers for a half century and to celebrate the 50th year of business we have issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 64 pages lithographed in colors, a pages souvenir, and nearly 200 pages filled with handsome half-tone illustrations of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Fruits, etc., elegantly bound in silk and gold cloth. A marvel in Catalogue making; an authority on all subjects pertaining to the garden, with cost for the same, and a descriptive catalogue of all that is desirable. It is no expense to give away absolutely, but we want everyone interested in a garden to have it, therefore the price will not the Guide with a DUE BILL, for 25 cents worth of flower and vegetable seeds 15 cts

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

It sells for 25 cents, and is given the full amount of purchase to buy other goods.

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue

A perfect little gem of a price list. It is in the Guide catalogue. Finely illustrated, FREE and in handy shape for reference.

Vicks Monthly Magazine,

enlarged, improved, and up to date on all subjects relating to Gardening. Handsomely illustrated. Regular subscription price 50 cents a year, Special 1909 edition of Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 25 cents.

OUR NEW PLAN of selling Vegetable and Flower Seeds by mail direct to planter ... gives you more for your money than any other seed house in America.

JAMES VICK SONS,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

SEEDS ... FOR THE ... Garden and Farm

Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the newest and best varieties—quality unsurpassed. Catalogue FREE.

WEEBER & DON, Seed Merchants
114 Chambers St., New York City.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest,
Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds
and odorless Lawn Dressing.

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,
119 East Front st.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The International is a wonderfully compact storehouse of accurate information."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superfluity of quantity characterizes its every department.

Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President.
GEO. W. ROBERTSON, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our cloths. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full direction for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (225 C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept.

ANDERSON WINS M'CUTCHEN CUP

Defeated Cooley in the Deciding Match.

PLAYED SATURDAY LAST.

HAD TIED TWICE FOR THE PARK CLUB TROPHY.

W. de la R. Anderson Defeated Gifford W. Cooley By a Score of 109 to 122 Net—Cooley Met With Hard Luck on Second Hole and Never Recovered—Good Play in First Round.

The competition for the McCutchen Cup and incidentally the championship of the Park Golf Club has been decided at last. After tieing twice with Gifford W. Cooley, W. de la R. Anderson retained his title of club champion and won the cup Saturday afternoon by easily defeating Cooley in the concluding match. It will be remembered that at the close of the competition a week ago Anderson and Cooley had both scored fourteen points. A deciding round was played election day morning, but it ended in a tie, 110 to 110 net. Anderson played from scratch and Cooley with nine strokes handicap.

The match showed every prospect of being a very close one but Cooley unfortunately drove into a tree on the second hole and was playing seven before he reached the fair green again. He was never able to make up the loss. There was plenty of good golf for the first round but Cooley lost heart in the second and Anderson did not play with the care he exhibited at first. Both men were capable of better scores than they finally turned in, 109 to 122 net. William B. Mitchell, the club professional, and Meredith Dryden, secretary of the club, acted as referee and scorers.

When the match began at 2:24 o'clock, both contestants were slightly nervous. Cooley made the better drive, but his approach to the first green was weak and fell short. Anderson approached too far. An accurate approach landed him dead to the hole, enabling him to hole out in four. Cooley made it in five.

Anderson topped his drive from the second tee just escaping the ditch. Cooley made a better one but pulled it slightly and the ball struck the tree to the left of the course falling on the edge of the ditch. It was a hanging lie and he played into the water. The ball was carried out and Cooley fooled his mashie shot, the ball falling into high grass. He was playing seven before he reached the fair green again. Both approached weakly but Cooley ended with a good putt, making the hole in eleven. Anderson's score was seven.

At the third hole, Cooley recovered one stroke by a fine cleek shot for his second. He also did well on the green, winning the hole five to six. Anderson topped his drive on the fourth hole, a tree spoiled a pretty brassey shot but he halved the hole by a clean approach and accurate putting.

Anderson won the fifth hole by one through good work with the brassey and Cooley's poor putting. He was then five strokes ahead. "Desperation" showed par golf by both players. But for a feeble putt, Cooley would have taken it in four. In the next, Cooley's second shot brought up in the woods and he dropped two to get out. Anderson played close to par golf, winning in six, which increased his lead to eight.

Both drove down the hill for 175 yards and approached strong. Cooley halved his puts and lost the hole by one. Anderson tied the Bogey score, four. There was trouble for Cooley on the last hole of the first round. He sclaffed his drive into the woods. He cleared the first ditch but rolled into water in the second hazard and lost one getting out. He sliced his approach and finally took twelve in all to hole out. Anderson gained four strokes on that hole.

The first round ended with the scores 51 to 64 in Anderson's favor. Cooley realized that only phenomenal playing on his part or a collapse for his opponent could change the final result.

Anderson opened the second round by pulling his drive clear round to the edge of the woods on the left of the course. Cooley cleared 180 yards on his drive, the best of the match. A fine brassey shot and a magnificent approach by Anderson laid him in good position on the green, while Cooley foozled his approach twice. A clean putt by Anderson gave him the hole in par four, Cooley taking six.

The eleventh hole was halved in seven. In the twelfth Anderson's drive was sclaffed, but he lofted the ball over the trees with his brassey and won out in seven, Cooley taking two more.

"Butternut" they halved in six. Cooley won the next by a clever approach from the edge of the ditch landing almost dead to the hole. Both drove well on "Desperation," but got into trouble on the second shots. Anderson holed out in six, one better than Cooley who lost by a weak approach. Cooley wandered about in the woods on the sixteenth and played carelessly for a twelve. "Edgwood" was halved in five, Cooley losing an opportunity through his careless approaches.

On the last Anderson was over both hazards in two and Cooley in three. Anderson's third landed him on the edge of the green, but, foozling his approach, lost a chance to do better than bogey. Cooley sliced his cleek shot and fooled his approach, holing out in eight.

The second round was played in 58 and 67 gross. Anderson's total gross score was 109 and Cooley's 131. Cooley's handicap reduced his net score to 122.

The score by holes was as follows:

W. de la R. Anderson.	Gross.	Hand.	Net
Out	4 7 5 6 5 4 4 8—51
In	5 7 5 6 5 4 5 6—58	10	109
Gifford W. Cooley.
Out	5 11 5 5 7 5 8 12—64
In	6 7 6 6 7 6 5 10—67	13	122

How Are Your Kidneys?

Dr. Hobbs Strawgate Pills cure all kidney ills. Sample free. Add: Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or N. Y.

Change of Date for Harvest Home.

The Woman's Auxiliary to the board of governors of the hospital have changed the date for the harvest home from Thursday, November 23d, to Friday, November 24th, and it is hoped by them that there will be a liberal response from all friends of the hospital.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1899. NO. 47.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

WARDS NAME THEIR G O P. CANDIDATES.

Republican City Primaries Held Tuesday Night.

CONTESTS IN THREE WARDS.

FIGHT WAS HOTTEST IN FIRST WHERE M'MURRAY WON.

Very Heavy Vote Polled in First Exceeding Republican Vote by Sixty—Much Excitement. There—Harmony in Second Ward—Clifton Won Easily in Third—Fisher's Ticket Overwhelmed.

The ward tickets of the Republican party in Plainfield were chosen at the primaries Tuesday evening. Contests of varying degrees of excitement marked the primaries in the First, Third and Fourth wards. Peace and harmony reigned supreme in the Second ward where only one ticket was in the field. The fight was hottest in the First ward where the primary took on all the hustling and interest usually attendant on an election.

In every ward the "regular" ticket was victorious electing all the candidates named. The Third ward showed an easy vitory for Charles B. Clifton and his ticket, the withdrawl of F. E. Marsh at the last moment knocking out a prominent element from taking any active part. The "machine" of the Fourth ward buried the opposition far beneath it.

The First ward saw the "machine" divided against itself, City Clerk J. T. MacMurray bucking the old members of the city executive committee. The MacMurray faction won after the hottest primary ever held in Plainfield, some sixty ballots more than the Republican vote of the ward being cast. For the first time in twenty-two years, J. B. Coward is no longer a member of the city executive committee of the G. O. P., and that committee has lost its secretary after more than a score years of service.

FIRST WARD.

The First ward Republican primary last Tuesday was one of the most exciting in the history of the ward. From the time the polls opened at 5 o'clock until after midnight when the result was announced, there was a large and interested crowd of people. The fight for supremacy and leadership in the ward was between City Clerk MacMurray and J. Fred MacDonald, and each one had his corps of workers on the jump. The vote was close and what was known as the "Regular Republican ticket," championed by Mr. MacMurray, won against what was known as the "Official ticket," fostered by Mr. MacDonald. From the start there was trouble in challenging various people as they attempted to vote. There were many Democrats in line, and it was said that some of them swore in their vote.

Several times during the evening there were heated discussions. Mr. MacMurray attempted to vote a man named Michael Harrington, of East Front street, but the latter insisted that he was a Democrat, but voted the Republican ticket at the last election. This had no influence with the Board of Election, and as the man would not be received.

Before the polls closed a primary meeting was called and W. R. Codington was the chairman, R. I. Tolles acted as secretary, H. C. VanEmburg and Chas. Lister acted as judge and inspector. The only business considered was that empowering the delegates to fill their own vacancies.

In all 453 votes were cast. Three were rejected. The regular ticket received 258, while its opponent received 192. The result in detail is as follows:

MacDonald ticket—For delegates to city convention—Charles Slocum, 190; Amos Adrews, 193; Thomas U. Smith, 185; Benjamin F. LaVere, 190; H. C. McVoy, 188; William Moorehouse, 193; William J Douglass, 186. For member of Common Council—Samuel P. T. Wilbur, 202. For Justice of the Peace—Bethuel T. Barnes, 209. For Constable—Stephen R. Hope, 449. For members of the city executive committee—Joseph B. Coward, 186; William R. Codington, 194; Harry B. MacDonald, 203. MacMurray ticket—For delegates to the City Convention—Joseph T. Case, 260; Dr. L. S. Pocock, 257; Walter Longman, Jr., 263; Herbert D. Templin, 258; William Jukes, 255, H. S. Taylor, 260; Charles C Lister, 255. For member of the Common Council—William L. Gloak, 241. For City Committee—Dr. O. L. Jenkins, 262; Horace G. Adams, 241; James F. Buckle, 254. For Justice of the Peace—Dennis Carney, 234. For Constable, Stevenson R. Hope, 452.

SECOND WARD.

With only one ticket in the field

[CONTINUED ON PAGE 4.]

CADETS DRILLING WELL.

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL BATALLION MET YESTERDAY.

Samples Of New Uniforms Have Arrived—Will Be Similar To The Old One's Except For Monogram Buttons

There was marked improvement in the drill of the cadet battalion of the Plainfield High School, which was held in Washington hall yesterday a. m. The drill was held yesterday as there will be no school Friday, the usual day for drill, and because the noon period tomorrow will be otherwise occupied. A. B. Meredith, who has charge of the instruction of the batallion, will hold a meeting one afternoon this week to give the officers of the batallion special instruction in the tactics.

The samples for the new uniforms have arrived and are very satisfactory. Quartermaster Charles Fountain is quite busy looking after the orders. The new suits, including caps, will cost from $7 to $10.50, according to the quality of the material. The uniform will be the same as was adopted last year, dark blue fatigue blouse with turn-down collar, and cadet blue trousers. On the cap will be the initials, "H. S. B." representing High School batallion. The buttons on the cap and coat will bear the same letters in monogram.

The uniform of the officers will be somewhat different and slightly more expensive. The will have a stand-up collar and will be trimmed with braid. It is expected that the cadets will wear white duck trousers at the exhibition drills in the summer.

A number of the High School boys already have uniforms from last year's company. They are similar in design, the only difference being in the buttons, so they will be worn by those who have them.

YOUNG MEN WILL DEBATE.

Interesting Discussion at Meeting of Y. M. C. A. Literary Society Monday Evening.

The subject to be debated at the literary society of the Y. M. C. A. next Monday evening will be: "Resolved, That the United States should interfere in the affairs of foreign nations." The affirmative side will be handled by T. A. Cuming and Paul S. Whitall, and the negative by C. M. Dolliver and Carl E. Drange. O. S. Rogers will be the critic. C. H. Belknap will give a reading. Irving L. Brady will deliver an essay and T. A. Cuming will render a vocal solo.

INSISTING ON A FIVE-CENT FARE.

Declare They Will Not Grant a Franchise Unless This Concession is Made.

There will probably be quite a contest at the next meeting of the Elizabeth City Council over the application of the Hire-Biker syndicate for a franchise to connect its line from Plainfield with the line of the North Jersey Traction Company in Elizabeth. The hitch is over the question of fares, the new trolley company wanting to exact a fare of seven cents from Elizabethport to Roselle, while the sentiment of a majority of the City Council is that a five cent fare is sufficient. Eight out of the thirteen councilmen want a five cent fare, and declare that the ordinance granting the franchise will not be passed on its third reading until this concession is made.

The question of granting transfers to school children who ride for a three-cent fare will also prove another troublesome matter to settle, as the company is adverse to granting transfers, but thinks an extra fare should be paid.

The people feel that now is the time to get concessions, before the ordinance is passed.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY QUITS.

State Association Finds It Can No Longer Conduct Fairs With Success.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the New Jersey State Agricultural Society, in Newark, Monday, it was practically decided to wind up its affairs by reducing its stock from $90,000 to $22,500. The reason for this is that the society's grounds at Waverly have recently been sold to the Park Commission, and the last two fairs given by the association have been financial failures.

When You Cannot Read

your evening paper, when you cannot thread your needle without difficulty or annoyance, call on our specialist, and we will tell you without charge whether glasses will correct the trouble. Leech, Stiles & Co., at 107 East Front street, every Thursday. Hours: 10:30 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Grocers to Be Sociable.

This evening the members of the Grocers' Protective Association will meet in their rooms and enjoy an evening of sociability and entertainment.

VOTED A DEMOCRAT'S NAME.

George K. Wyckoff Strongly Objected to His Name Being Used in a Republican Primary.

Last Tuesday at the First ward primary some person voted the name of George K. Wyckoff, who is a Democrat. Mr. Wyckoff was about town at the time, and did not hear of it until sometime afterward. As soon as he was informed of the matter he went to the polls and explained matters to the election board. He told them he was a Democrat, and that he had no intention or desire to vote in the Republican primary. The man who did the trick could not be found.

Another peculiar incident at the above primary was the attempt of one man to vote twice. The second time he persisted that he had not cast his vote, and tried to argue the question. Sergeant Kiely took care of him, and ejected him from the primary.

COUNTY TEACHERS' MEETING

Dr White of Columbus To Lecture in the Evening.

The meeting of the Union County Teachers' Association will be held in school No. 2 in Elizabeth, Friday of this week. In accordance with the state law all the schools of the city and county will be closed.

Dr E. E. White, of Columbus, O., will lecture in the St. James M. E. church in the evening. Dr. White's lecture last year was considered to be one of the finest ever delivered in Elizabeth, and none who heard him then will want to miss hearing him Friday.

The subject of his lecture this year will be "Character." As Dr. White is paid by the state, there will be no charge for admittance. Music will be furnished by the Battin High School orchestra and glee club. All are invited.

OUR NEW POSSESSIONS.

Captain H. E. W. Campbell Will Deliver Lecture in Vincent Chapel.

With a National campaign less than a year away in which the policy of "Imperialism" is to play such an important part, there is more than the usual interest taken in anything that relates to the new possessions of the United States in the far east. Captain H. E. W. Campbell, of San Francisco, has traveled through the Philippine Islands and is well qualified to talk on the subject. He will deliver a lecture on that topic in Vincent chapel this evening under the auspices of the Epworth League. The lecture will be illustrated by a hundred handsomely colored stereopticon views.

A JUNIOR RALLY.

Young Endeavorers Will Meet Together Friday, December 1st.

As Friday, Dec. 1st is a holiday for the boys and girls, there is to be a rally of all the Junior Endeavor and Epworth League Societies of Plainfield, Dunellen, New Market, South Plainfield, Scotch Plains and Washingtonville. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon in the First Baptist church, Rev. E. P. Bennett, the State Junior Christian Endeavor Superintendent will give an illustrated talk. All interested in Junior work are cordially invited.

For Trolley Building

George Cornwell, of Park avenue, has just received a contract from McCartney, McElroy & Co., trolley contractors of New York, to prepare for shipment a large number of tools and necessary machinery for the building of trolleys. The above firm is doing a great deal of trolley work in Glasgow, Scotland, and these tools, etc., are to be sent there. They are being prepared for shipment at Bound Brook, where many of them were made.

Excellent Work of Teachers.

Excellent work is now being done by the teachers of the borough schools, as the accommodations appear to be about equal to the number of scholars attending. The trouble heretofore in being obliged to overcrowd is gradually being overcome.

Parents' Day.

The teachers and pupils of the Franklin School will receive their friends Thursday, Nov. 23d. The usual daily programme will be carried out. Chapel exercises, at which time new music will be sung, will begin at 9 o'clock promptly.

Think of the Hospital

It is hoped that every Plainfielder will think of the hospital Friday and remember that worthy institution in a substantial way. The annual harvest home will be observed and there are many things needed at that place.

Engagment Announced.

The engagement is announced of Miss A Laura Townsend, of 429 Kensington avenue, to Walter Hunt Howe, of Brooklyn. The marriage will take place in January.

COLLEGE CORNERS AT JAPANESE TEA.

Novel Feature at Entertainment in First Baptist Church.

THERE WAS A DOLL SHOW.

YOUNG WOMEN MADE A GREAT SUCCESS OF IT.

Young Ladies' Missionary Society of First Baptist Church Gave a Doll Show and Japanese Tea in the Sunday-school Room Tuesday Afternoon and Evening—Affair Was Well Planned.

Tuesday afternoon and evening a doll show and Japanese tea was given in the Sunday-school room of the First Baptist church under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the church for the benefit of mission work that is carried on by the society. This organization has recently been changed to some extent, and is now composed chiefly of young women as the name of the society implies. The senior members have withdrawn and joined one of the missionary societies for older people.

The young ladies' society, of which Miss Hattie Shreves is the president, had been planning for the affair of yesterday for a long time, and the success attending it was gratifying indeed to all. The rooms were decorated in a manner to please the eye. The most attractive room was the one where tea was served. This was arranged in Oriental style, and through the use of rugs, Japanese lanterns, etc., the best effect was produced, especially in the evening. Mrs. William O. Chapman was in charge and those who assisted in receiving with her were Mrs. G. H. Batchelor, Mrs. DeWitt Brokaw, Mrs. Harold Serrell and Miss Ida Yerkes. In addition there were the Misses May Serrell, Ella Serrell, May Batchelor, May Clawson and May Stelle. They were costumed in Japanese fashion, and made the patrons comfortable by serving them with delicious tea.

Another attraction were the "College corners," representing Smith, Wellesley, Vassar and Byrn Mawr, the four largest colleges for women in this country. In each corner the college was represented by colors, pictures literature. Miss Edith Cairns was in charge of the one representing Wellesley; Mrs. Elston Woodland looked after the corner representing Vassar, while in the Smith corner Miss VanHerwerden was in charge. Miss Bertha Thorn looked after the interests of the corner assigned to Byrn Mawr. Each one of the young women were gowned in colors representing the colleges. From these corners ice cream was served, and those who acted as waitresses were the Misses Bessie Wilson, Bertha Miles, Minnie Serrell, Ethel King, Pauline Denton, Ursula Keowen, Elsie Drake and Velma Oakley.

One of the most interesting attractions was the doll show for which one large room was devoted. These dolls were numerous and were of all ages from one day to 61 years. They represented all nationalities. One doll was 43 years of age, another 50 years and still another that is 61 years. They were made of all sorts of things, large and small, pretty and otherwise. In this same room was a small house that was used years ago by children to play with. This room was in charge of Miss May Shreve, Miss Grace Yerkes, Miss Grace Scribner, Miss Madeline Evans and Miss Fountain. One other feature of this room was the exhibition of a small ship that has been around the world twice and has been in a shipwreck. This is owned now by Edward Oakley.

In the large room there was the candy table, where all people with a sweet tooth congregated. Home-made candy was sold and very quickly too. Miss Sue Woodland was in charge and was assisted by Miss French, Miss Elsie Brokaw, Mrs. W. B. Vail, Miss Bertha Needham, Miss Grace TenEyck, Miss May Mulford, Miss Carrie Drake.

One other feature was the cake table, where home made cakes of all kinds were sold. Mrs. R. W. Barnes was in charge, assisted by Miss Milne, Miss Edna Smith, Mrs. Elvaine VanName and Miss Edith Miles.

Throughout the afternoon and evening the attendance was large and the receipts were gratifying to those in charge. Howard Case was on the door and looked after the money as it came in.

Those in charge believe that at least $50 will be realized as profit, and this is considered very good.

Draped in Mourning.

Out of respect to the memory of the late Vice-President, Garrett A. Hobart, the post office is draped in mourning.

S. OF V.'S INSPECTION

John Hand Camp Visited by Assistant Inspector Walter Vanderhoef, of Somerville, Tuesday Night.

The annual inspection of John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, took place last Tuesday, and was conducted by Assistant Inspector Walter Vanderhoef, of Somerville. He found affairs to be in a satisfactory condition and commended the members on their excellent showing, and the performance of their work. Following the inspection there was nomination of officers. Almost every member was nominated for some office. The election will take place next month, and there will be another opportunity to nominate again before the election. At the conclusion of the meeting the members adjourned to McVey's Hotel, where they enjoyed an excellent dinner.

UNION COUNTY CORPORATIONS.

One Will Make Tools and the Other Hektographs.

The Whitman Manufacturing Company filed articles of incorporation Tuesday with the Clerk of Union county. The plant will be located at Garwood, in Union county, and the business will be the manufacture of machinery, tools, goods, wares and merchandise. The company's capital is $52,000, and shares are $100 each. The incorporators are Frederick W. Grelle, Edward W. Robinson, Frank H. Ball, Isaac A Whitman, Allen E. Whitman, Bert C. Ball and William H. Corbett.

The Hektograph Company, of Plainfield, also filed articles of incorporation yesterday. The company's plant will be located in this city, and its capital is $20,000, with which it will commence business. The incorporators are Jacob J. Nichols, 42 Murray street, New York; Charles H. Green, 42 Murray street, New York; Frank M. Bacon, Plainfield. The company will make and sell hektographs, and also carry on a general stationery and printing and lithographing business.

HER LOVE GROWN COLD.

The Alleged Mrs. Vogel Sued To Have Another Lover.

It is not probable that Mrs. Caldwell-Vogel will contest the right of Mrs. Jane Edward Vogphoi, the lawful wife of Henry Vogel, the suicide, whose attempt at double murder and destruction of himself created a tragedy in New Brunswick several weeks ago. She is said to have another lover and her old love has grown cold.

It will be remembered how Mrs. Caldwell-Vogel made a great time when her alleged husband ended his life. How she made arrangements for his burial and expected to have the funeral from the hotel residence, at Bound Brook, when her plans were suddenly changed by the appearance of Mrs. Vogphoi from Connecticut. She proved her relationship to the dead man and took means to secure the property. The alleged wife for some time thereafter appeared in deep mourning as a mark of respect for the suicide.

Drops While on a Visit.

Basking Ridge, Nov. 23—Benjamin White, aged 65 years, died suddenly Monday while a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Cross, on Cedar Hill, Basking Ridge. Mr. White was in the War of the Rebellion and for the past year had been an inmate of the Soldiers' Home at Kearney. A few days ago he came from the Home to visit friends at his place. Sunday he spent with H. D. Cross and he appeared to be in good health. Upon retiring he made no complaint of feeling ill. Monday morning he was found dead in bed. Dr. F. O Jones said that death was caused by heart disease.

Return of Favors.

One faction of the Republican party operating in the First ward last Tuesday was augmented by a delegation of Republican workers from the borough, who were present showing their appreciation for past favors. It is needless to say that their friends won.

Senator Kean's Family Go To Washington.

Elizabeth, November 22. — The family of Senator John Kean, consisting of his mother and sisters, started for Washington yesterday to take possession of the house there which the Senator will occupy during his official term.

Purchased a Drug Store

J. P. Hutchinson, a former employe of J. H. Leggett, the well known druggist in the Y. M. C. A. building, has bought the opera house drug store at Cranford, where he has been employed since leaving Plainfield.

—The Union Gospel meeting as usual in the rooms of the W. C. T. U., this evening at 8 o'clock.

—N. K. Barnes grocer, 645 West Front street has a special sale for ten days' will give three dollars worth of trading stamps with each $1 order.

CROMWELL A PURITAN.

DR. RICHARDS SUMS UP THE CAREER OF THE GREAT ENGLISHMAN.

Lecture Delivered Before an Attentive Audience in the Y. M. C. A. Hall Tuesday Night—His Good Qualities Dwelt On.

Notwithstanding the fact that Rev. Dr. W. H Richards had already delivered his lecture on Oliver Cromwell before the Monday Afternoon Club, an intelligent and attentive audience welcomed him at the Y. M. C. A. Hall last Tuesday. This lecture, one of a series of studies, was given for the benefit of the association and was particularly interesting to the American people.

The speaker dwelt upon Cromwell's passion for honest real Puritanism. Reared in an age of Priest craft and mummery and similar delusions, his nature revolted. Being a member of parliament, he allowed his convictions to pervade his speeches. He was called by those near him a dissembler. "Too sincere to be consistent, but not a dissembler—a genuine Puritan," says Carlisle.

In the army he was a volunteer, not a professional soldier, and with Ironsides, courageous Puritans, he was victorious. He was a noble Puritan statesman, having an earnest desire for real Christianity, and during his career in Parliament was regarded with deference. In late years when urged by Parliament, now disgusted with the rule they had endured, to accept the crown, he declined, preferring to remain quiet with the laurels he had won, and to move among his soldiers with a freedom of conscience, and to worship and live as a noble, true, real Puritan.

CHURCH WAS CROWDED.

"Blind Evangelist" Attracted Many to Grace M. E. Church Tuesday Evening.

The "Blind Evangelist" drew a crowded house to the Gospel service in Grace M. E. church last night. He preached with eloquence and power upon the joy in heaven over the repentance of the sinner. The soulful singing was an inspiration. Two seekers bowed at the altar, desiring the prayers of the people of God. This afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a meeting for Christian women who have unsaved friends whom they desire to see brought to Christ. These services will be continued until and including Monday evening next, with the possible exception of Saturday evening. All are invited to attend.

Sheriff Houston's First Official Trip.

Elizabeth, November 22.—Robert Houston, Union county's new Sheriff, made his first trip to the Trenton State Prison Monday with Peter Yocus and Stanislaus Rosalsky, the New York safe robbers, who were convicted here last week and sentenced to five years each. As the men are desperate criminals Constable Shoppe accompanied the Sheriff on the trip.

Two Fingers Crushed.

A young man employed by James E. Brown, the slate dealer, was slightly injured Tuesday morning at the Richmond street freight house. The young man was in a car handling slate when a switch locomotive was backed down, striking the car throwing the young man down. Two fingers were crushed and he was slightly bruised about the body.

Judgment For Plaintiff.

Yesterday before Justice Abbott there was tried the case of Meurer Brothers' Company against E. D. Barrett on a promissory note and book account. Reed & Coddington representing the defendant. Judgment was given the plaintiff for $52 19 which includes costs and interests.

An Interesting Lecturer.

A. W. Tyler, formerly librarian of the Plainfield Library, has been engaged by the Y. M. C. A. to give two illustrated lectures. The first will be given Tuesday evening, Nov. 28th, when "Central Europe" will be the subject. Thursday evening, Dec. 7th, the subject will be "Rome and Italy."

Next Star Course Entertainment.

The next entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course will be given Thanksgiving Day night, when the Blanche Frederici Concert Company will delight the patrons of the course by their musical selections, which are of a high order.

Harvest Home at Hospital.

Friday afternoon the members of the Woman's Auxiliary Board of the hospital will receive at the Harvest Home to be given that day. Already donations are arriving in goodly numbers.

—Mrs. L. J. Denton, of West Front street, will furnish and have charge of the floral decorations of the Tyler-VanBoskerck wedding this evening at the house and church.

SOMETHING ABOUT G. O. P. CANDIDATES.

Men Chosen to Stand for Ward Councilmen.

SHORT SKETCH OF THEM.

COUNCILMAN VAN HERWERDEN IS THE BEST KNOWN.

W. L. Gloak, of the First, Is a Machinist From Scott's—John VanHerwerden is in a New York Bank—C. B. Clifton is a Wholesale Produce Dealer—E. L. Lee is a Stenographer.

Three of the four Councilmen nominated by the Republicans last Tuesday are practically newcomers in the local political arena. Councilman John VanHerwerden, who was renominated in the Second ward, has served one term in the Common Council and has thus become more generally known than the other nominees.

William L. Gloak, of 526 East Second street, is the Republican nominee in the First ward. He is a resident of the Second district and is employed as an expert machinist in the Scott Press Works. He has resided in Plainfield for many years. Formerly he was allied with the Democratic party, was nominated by them for the Council six years ago and was defeated. In 1897 and 1898 he was a member of the election board in the Second district of the First ward, receiving his appointment from the Democrats. During the factious differences in the First ward, he has been allied with the MacMurray faction and was nominated by them.

John VanHerwerden, the nominee in the Second ward, resides with his father at 1202 South avenue. He is a valued employe at the Mechanic's National Bank, Wall street, New York. Two years ago he was nominated for the Council on the Citizens' ticket and was defeated, defeating Councilman George Frost by a small majority. He carried the second district by an overwhelming vote. Since he has been in the Council, he has been a member of the street committee and chairman of the finance committee. He is a member of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club.

Charles B. Clifton, who has been nominated in the Third ward, has been a Plainfield business man for over twenty-five years. He now has a handsome home at 628 West Seventh street, called "Rose Lawn." Mr. Clifton is in the wholesale produce business and is also interested in the Clifton House at Patchogue, L. I. Although he has always been a good Republican, Mr. Clifton has never taken any active part in politics. He has a large circle of friends in the city.

The nominee in the Fourth ward is Robert L. Lee, of 822 West Fourth street. Mr. Lee is an expert stenographer and typewriter and is secretary to the president of the Central New England Railway, the "Poughkeepsie Bridge Route," in the office in New York. He is a prominent member of the Plainfield Cameta Club and also a member of the initiating team of the Perseverence Lodge, Knights of Pythias. He has been in Plainfield for some six years and has always been a strong Republican. He has attended the party primaries and has been a delegate to various conventions.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS CLOSE FRIDAY.

To Allow All Teachers To Attend County Teachers' Institute at Elizabeth.

All of the public schools in this city as well as in the rest of Union county will be closed Friday to allow the teachers to attend the annual teachers' institute of the county, to be held at Elizabeth Friday and Saturday. It has been a regular custom to hold the institute in the week preceding Thanksgiving. This gives the pupils one extra holiday this week and two next week as the schools will be closed Thursday and Friday for the usual Thanksgiving Day holiday.

Assault Case Discontinued.

The case of Frank Chapot, arrested upon complaint of Abram Friedman, who charged him with assault, has been discontinued. Walter L. Hetfield is for the plaintiff and S. S. Swackhamer for the defendant. The case occupied the attention of Justice Mosher a good share of yesterday afternoon. It was adjourned to this morning when a settlement was effected.

Colored Man a Pupil.

There is now in attendance at the North Plainfield Public High School a colored man who is pursuing some of the high branches, preparatory to taking a course in medicine. He comes from North Carolina, and expects to return there later on.

FASHION NOTES.

Details of the Costume of the Period. A Stylish Jacket.

A great deal of heavy embroidery and brilliant passementerie will be employed on winter bodices, but the general style of bodice will be tight, the blouse effects being abandoned.

Plain flat belts are not the only variety worn. The other extreme promises to be equally well accepted this winter, long, soft scarf belts being seen on some of the most elegant models of new gowns. These scarfs are of mousseline de soie or of crepe de chine, with embroidered or fringed ends, and are adapted in a variety of ways to the decoration of the costume.

JACKET.

The favor of buttons continues and is becoming accentuated. All varieties are worn, those of fine goldsmiths' and jewelers' work, those of pearl, those which are painted, and, in addition, tiny buttons of steel or ivory or covered with cloth, velvet or goods like the gown. These are used by the hundred for trimming purposes.

Rings are now worn on all the fingers, but they must be brilliant rings of great price to be effective. The overworked hand is fashionable at present.

The directoire jacket illustrated is of mastic cloth and has a half length rounded basque. In front it opens over a tight vest of the same goods, fastened with small gold buttons. There are double revers, the first of cloth, the second faced with brown velvet. The valois collar is also faced with velvet. The close sleeves have velvet cuffs. The hat of brown felt is trimmed with choux of brown velvet, a steel motif and brown ostrich plumes.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

TRAVELING COSTUMES.

They Are Very Simple, but of the Best Quality and Cut.

The traveling gown, although simple, should always be of the greatest elegance, but the elegance should be that of perfect suitability. A perfect cut and finish are the essentials of the costume, which should be entirely devoid of furbelows and fragile trimming. Cheviots in iron gray or dark blue are appropriate goods, and cloth is also employed. The skirt may touch the ground, but should not trail. The most convenient bodice is a jacket or bolero lined with silk, which may be worn over a tailor made vest of a flannel, silk or pique shirt waist. As extra wraps a cape or a loose sack of golf cloth, plain or plaid, will be found convenient.

TAILOR MADE GOWN

A pretty novelty is the toque composed of draped white tulle, over which is drawn black tulle embroidered with jet beads. Lace or ostrich tips form the additional trimming.

Parisian brides have for some time abandoned the practice of carrying a bouquet.

Although colors are so much used, black costumes are fashionably worn, especially with white trimmings.

The tailor made gown shown in the cut is of beige amazon cloth. The skirt is plain, with three stitched straps of nile green silk around the foot. The fitted jacket bodice has a round basque, and the front forms a scallop. There are a coat collar and revers, and the bodice closes with brandebourgs and spherical buttons. Stitched straps of nile green silk follow all the contours of the jacket and are arranged on the front, back and sleeves. The hat of nile green velvet is trimmed with white feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE NEW COAT.

It Is Long, Slim, Trim and Very Much Beatticked.

I like those soft felt hats they are showing now. They are like a well worn alpine as to softness and the ability to be punched and bent in every direction and look all the more stylish for it. The color is the pearly gray so fashionable, and the garniture is a band of black velvet and two or three quills, none over 10 or 12 inches long. Some of them have the quills at the side, others starting from the front and curled over the crown.

There was one I noticed with the quill just laid along the outside of the band as if it had fallen there and stuck fast. Indeed there are many ways of putting the quills on and of denting in crowns. These hats and the golfing capes go together and are seen oftener on Broadway and Fifth avenue than on the golf links.

These same golfing capes are among the handiest and prettiest garments for the young for runabouts. One does not always like to wear one's best tailor gown in the street, so a dark woolly stuff, a crepon or a plaid skirt, one of the soft and comfortable shirt waists of colored flannel and a golf cape make a girl stylish, pretty and right up to date. One of these hats is the crowning point. The whole business has such a delightfully daring and unconventional air about it that the girls like it better and better.

The new jackets and wraps for real cold weather are now out. Collars could not be made higher without hiding the wearer's head completely. Where they are of melton, doeskin or cloth the collars and lapels are stitched in as many rows as they will hold. This makes them very stiff and stylish.

Eton jackets are stitched in fanciful designs around the waist and sleeves, and the revers and flat collar are faced with handsome fur of close pile. This collar and revers arrangement can be turned upward and then becomes a storm collar.

The pretty little short jackets are seen with and without tailor suits and will be until the cold weather makes heavier garments necessary. Over them now there are worn three-quarter box coats for automobile riding. These are more comfortable than beautiful.

THE EMPIRE LONG COAT.

One of black kersey was made double breasted and had large bone buttons. Three clusters of three lines of close stitching formed the only ornament.

There is another style of coat, a long box shape, called empire. I don't know for what unless it is because it looks like nothing worn during the "first empire" at all. But it is considered good form by the swell set, and that means success for it. So success to it.

It is made of fine coachman's cloth, melton, kersey and sometimes covert and even tweed, but it goes without saying that it must be in one color only and that from ivory white to drab, biscuit, mode and light tan are also suitable.

It must be long, slim, trim and stitched with black twist in bold stitches. At the sides it is open up quite half way to the waist. The collar, lapels, cuffs, pockets and side and back seams are all heavily stitched. It is lined with fancy satin. The collar is bordered with soft fur with long pile to match the color as closely as possible. A muff of the same kind of fur is in order for cold days. The illustration shows the coat. It must hang straight and smooth.

But if elegant simplicity prevails it, these coats one can see enough of bewildering extravagance in the opera and ball wraps and visiting capes Solomon in all his glory wore no such things as they are—crepe de chine in delicate tints, edged with full affair fal of rich lace, these headed by bands of seal, beaver or sable and the whole smothered around the neck with fur lace and ribbon.

And don't think that there isn't a sumptuous lining of silk flounced and flounced again with chiffon. I would be afraid to ask the price of these, as I fear my weak heart would not stand the shock.

Certainly there are cheaper and, to my mind, far dainter things than these in the way of wraps, but we rather like to hear about these, after all.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

METALLIC EFFECTS.

Continued and Increased Favor of Brilliant Trimmings.

For the past two or three years spangles of all colors and metallic embroideries have been in great demand, but it appears that the past is as nothing compared with what is to be expected during the coming winter. The latest importations show not merely braid and narrow bands of metals and beading with passementerie and detached motifs, not merely yokes, boleros and revers heavy with glittering embroidery, but entire gown shapes which are a mass of spangles and jewels. These are in princess form, with or without sleeves, the foundation being plain net. They are to be worn over silk underdresses, of course, and their brilliancy is indescribable. Then there is material coming by the yard which is of generous width and is most elaborately embroidered. In fact, it is all embroidery and so intricately constructed that it is difficult to tell whether net, mousseline de soie or lace, all of which appear in it, is the actual groundwork upon which the metal and jeweled effects are founded.

SILK WAIST.

A waist is shown which is made of changeable taffeta. The back is plain, and the front is full and is opened over a guimpe and plastron of taffeta horizontally pleated. The waist is trimmed with bands of narrow black velvet and has three bows of silk trimmed with velvet. The high collar and the top of the sleeves are pleated, and at the wrists are velvet bands and silk bows. The belt is of black velvet.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION HINTS.

Great Variety In the Details of Costume.

Fashion is in many ways eclectic this season. Anything that is new and attractive is acceptable, provided it does not run counter to the main lines of the mode. The general tendency is, however, to return toward the period of the empire and the directory. The softness of materials, clinging methods of design and molding of the figure by the gown, with the floating tunics which do not conceal the form, all show the influence of that time.

Valenciennes lace, wide or narrow; English point and point d'Alencon are greatly employed upon elegant costumes, and evening wraps also display the favoritism which lace has so long enjoyed and which shows no signs of abating. In many cases the lace is combined with magnificent incrustations of embroidery in which metallic and jeweled effects appear.

DINNER GOWN.

The sketch shows a dinner gown. The redingote skirt has a train and is of black velvet, opening over a front of cream satin covered with point de venise and terminated by a flounce of mousseline de soie. The black velvet bodice is laced with velvet bands over a plastron matching the skirt front. The elbow sleeves are of black point de net work, with velvet bands, and are finished with a frill of lace. The belt is entirely of filigree and jewels. White kid gloves are worn.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Nice, Easy Going Trains.

A gentleman who has been traveling in Java thus writes about the Dutch colonial railways. He says: "Trains are used in Java not on account of their speed, but on account of the long distances one has to cover. If you are in a hurry and you haven't more than five miles to go, walk. You may find some difficulty in keeping up to the train if it is going down a stiff gradient, but you will more than make this up on the flat, and you'll romp past it on coming to the slightest ascent.

"It is a solemn fact," he continues, "that once in the course of a mile walk along a highway running parallel with the railway I caught up to and passed a 'snail' 'express train.' Toward the end of the walk I entered a shop to purchase some cigars, and only after I had been in the shop ten minutes did the train again pass me."

Pygmy Camels of Persia.

The western part of Persia is inhabited by a species of camel which is the pygmy of its kind. They are snow white and are on that account almost worshiped by the people.

SILK ATTIRE.

Petticoats to Accompany Different Costumes.

With the simple and correct tailor made gown it is now the fancy to wear a petticoat of silk of the same color as the gown, but lighter in tone. The petticoat must be trimmed with scalloped or pointed ruffles, the edges of which are outlined with narrow velvet or ornamented with little velvet motifs.

For use with silk gowns the petticoat is more elaborate. A deep flounce of net, draped and decorated with little choux of fine satin ribbon, is a new trimming. There are also petticoats of changeable silk, with full silk ruffles and a flounce of black net striped with narrow ribbons interwoven in the meshes.

FANCY BODICE.

Still another style is of white silk with narrow stripes of several bright colors. The trimming consists of four ruffles of silk muslin, each ruffle being of the color of a stripe. Knots of ribbon to match add to the decoration.

Motifs, or bands of insertion of white or black lace, upon taffeta ruffles are not new, but are still in full favor because of their attractive daintiness.

The bodice illustrated is of plaited silk, with sleeves and yoke of guipure. A bolero effect is obtained by a drapery of silk which is bordered with velvet and embroidered. It is caught up on the left side by a bow and buckle, and the velvet belt is also fastened by a buckle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

LACES.

How to Employ the Heavy Varieties Now Used.

Embroidery and thick, heavy laces are occupying a prominent position among fashionable fabrics. Entire wraps, sleeves, tunics and bodices are made of them, and when they are intended for such use they usually are sold by the yard, in wide widths, like dress goods. If the lace is cut and sewed up in seams in the ordinary way, the effect will be inelegant. To obtain a proper result the different portions, after being carefully cut in the proper form, should be joined together by lace stitches, so that the joining is not visible. Certain establishments make a specialty of doing this work, or a patient amateur can do it at home if she wishes.

VELVET COAT.

The best method is to cut and fit a lining, and over this apply the lace, which may often be stretched and pulled so that it may be fitted by means of fewer joinings than ordinary goods. Where the joinings are to occur very slight extra material is allowed and the figures of the design are cut around instead of being cut through. The two pieces being basted together, the invisible joining is simply a question of time and patience.

The illustration shows a coat of brown velvet, with a tailor made man's coat and a vest of white cloth trimmed with tabs of brown velvet and fastened with small dull gold buttons. The large shawl collar and revers of white cloth are faced with brown and white plaid silk.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Worse and Worse.

The excited caller dropped into a chair. "You're a lawyer, ain't you?" he asked. "Yes, sir."

"I want you to sue a feller for me."

"What for?"

"Damages. I want to stick him for $5,000."

"What has he done?"

"Called me a 'shyster.'"

"What did he do that for?"

"I don't know. That's what I want to find out. I'm going to make him prove it."

"And he called you a shyster, did he? Have you any witnesses to testify to that?"

"More'n a dozen."

"Hum! Do you know what a shyster is?"

"No. I haven't the least idee."

"A shyster is a cheap lawyer."

"Gosh! Sue him for $10,000!"—Chicago Tribune.

WINTER STYLES.

Coats and Bodices of Different Varieties.

One variety of winter coat is so long, smooth and tight that it resembles a princess tunic rather than a wrap. These coats require a very fine figure to be becoming.

Boleros of red cloth, adorned with black passementerie, are effective. They are worn with a black skirt.

Black and white continues to be a fashionable combination. It is seen in plaids, checks, stripes and designs of all kinds. Black garments are trimmed with white and vice versa. There are black laces embroidered with white motifs, white silks incrusted with black lace. Novel hosiery is shown, having wide, alternate stripes of black and white running lengthwise. Some of the newest and costliest models of separate bodices are of white taffeta, veiled with black lace or black mousseline de soie.

CLOTH COSTUME.

The illustration shows an attractive costume of chamois cloth. The seamless skirt closes at the side and is bordered all around by a band of moss green velvet, above which is a band of black braiding. The bodice, which is fitted at the back and gathered at the waist in front, closes at the side and has a yoke of guipure de venise over moss green silk. Bands of trimming like those on the skirt border the bodice and the sleeve caps. The tight sleeves are horizontally plaited between the elbow and shoulder, the waists being trimmed like the caps. The belt of green velvet is fastened by a gold buckle. The hat of chamois felt is trimmed with green velvet draperies, a gold motif and two spotted feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

PETTICOATS.

They Are Brilliant in Color and Much Trim.

All colors are employed for petticoats, but blue, violet, red, light pink, plum, moss green and lavender are the favorites. The light tints are used for evening, darker ones being worn in the day.

White lawn and nainsook petticoats are worn with white evening gowns. They are a mass of ruffles and valenciennes lace and insertion.

The fancy for having the petticoat and corset match still continues. As this necessitates four or five of each, to suit different styles of costume, only the most wealthy women can afford to indulge in the caprice.

SHORT COAT.

The present aim being to do away with all bulk in the underwear in order to keep the outline of the gown smooth and slender, women who are afraid of looking fat are abandoning muslin undergarments and adopting union suits of silk webbing. The petticoats being replaced by a deep silk flounce sewed to the inside of the gown skirt and the thinnest of short, bolero corset covers being worn, there is absolutely no unnecessary fullness to be apprehended.

The picture shows a short coat of diagonal. It is tight fitting, the fronts forming two long tabs below the waist and opening over a vest of white cloth with crystal buttons. The coat has double revers and collars and may be fastened with two rows of buttons or left inclosed. Rows of stitching form the finish.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING.

Some Notes of Interest Concerning the Unquiet Sex.

With the volunteer troops which Canada recently sent to South Africa to help in the war against the Boers went Miss Georgina Pope, who will act as chief nurse for the regiment. Miss Pope is a sister of the undersecretary of state for Canada. She is a nurse of wide experience, having been engaged in the work for 12 years. She was graduated from Bellevue hospital, New York, where recently she took a postgraduate course. All Canada is ringing with her praise.

Mrs. Roy Waldensford Kersey is known in California as the "Lady of the Daffodils." She is perhaps the most extensive grower of daffodils in the country, the sale of cut flowers and bulbs yielding a handsome income. She has a charming country place at Haywards, overlooking San Francisco bay, where her gardens and conservatories are located.

Another writer from the ranks of society will soon demand recognition from the literary world. Miss Hay, the daughter, of Secretary Hay, is engaged in writing a novel which will deal with the social life of Washington. Miss Hay, who made her debut in society at the national capital a year ago, is an attractive young woman and is said to have inherited not a little of her father's literary genius.

Two young women, both college graduates, successfully conduct a market gardening and poultry farm at Compton, R. I., from which they supply the Newport epicures dainties and for which they get fancy prices.

Two nieces of the president, Miss Grace McKinley and Miss Ida Barber, will enliven the White House with their presence during the coming winter, which promises to be an unusually gay season in Washington society.

The Princess of Wales, who, by virtue of her position, is the head of English society, is reported as saying: "Of all the American girls that I have seen presented in the course of my life the most beautiful is Miss Louise Grace. Her beauty, her charm of manner and her carriage are alike exceptional." Miss Grace is the youngest daughter of ex-Mayor William R. Grace of New York.

The Association of Collegiate Alumnae has recently been in session in Chicago. The association has a membership of over 2,000 women, which includes graduates from 19 colleges and universities. It was organized for the purpose of advancing the educational interests of its members and for broadening the opportunities for women to receive the benefits of collegiate training.

Mrs. Mary Grinnell Mears, who was recently re-elected president of the New York Assembly of Mothers, a branch of the National Congress of Mothers, combines personal charm with executive ability, and it is largely through her efforts that the assembly has reached its present prominence.

A Milwaukee young woman has received a commission to paint a miniature of the dowager empress of Russia. She is Miss Emma Sibont, the daughter of Erich Sibont, a noted Danish pianist who in former years had been the music master of the dowager empress.

Mrs. Mary Lowe Dickinson has been appointed by the United States government as a special agent to the Paris exposition. Her specific work is confined to social economy.

Miss Isabel McCall, a pianist of some note, has started in New York what she terms a "school of accompanying," which is declared to be the only one of exactly its kind in the world.

Mrs. Clio Hinton Hunecker, who has just returned to America after three years of study in Europe, has attained high rank among sculptors and is accumulating a snug little fortune by her clever work. She is the modeler of those dainty bronze figures that have of late become the fashion in ornament.

Amateur gardening by women is one of the latest fads in Europe.

In India, where shoes and stockings are not considered necessary in native society, the ladies have gone further in the matter of jewelry than their more civilized sisters. They wear rings on their toes, with the dazzling effect may be seen from the picture.

Friends of the late Miss Winnie Davis are actively pushing a movement for the establishment of a Winnie Davis School of History at Gaffney, S. C., to be a branch of the educational work of Limestone college.

Miss Cecilia Beaux of Philadelphia has been appointed one of the jury to select pictures for the exhibition of fine arts of the United States at the Paris expostition.

ANNETTE CRAWFORD.

FAMOUS MEN ROBBED

THOSE WHO HAVE HAD THEIR POCKETS PICKED.

Harrison and Depew Had Their Pockets Picked—And Even Russell Sage Has Suffered—A Pickpocket to H. R. H., the Prince of Wales.

Until the circumstance was recalled by a brief dispatch from Indianapolis the other day, nearly every one had forgotten the theft of Benjamin Harrison's diamond-studded watch, worth more than $1,000, and given to him by the Senate on the expiration of his term as a member of that body. The timepiece was stolen about five years ago, but just how and by whom does not appear to have been made public as yet, though a crook named Wilson, under arrest at Knoxville, Tenn., on the charge of burglary, has been trying to arrange for its return to the owner.

Should he recover the watch, the loss of which was a real grief to him, the former President will be luckier than have some other eminent personages from whom valuables have been stolen. Chauncey M. Depew's pocket was rifled of his watch one day away back in the '60s, and he never got it back. Depew was done up by a regularly organized pocket-picking "mob." He had been invited to join a yachting party at Philadelphia and was standing on the platform of a horse car on his way to the Cortlandt street ferry. As he once told the story, he was thinking a good deal more about the pretty girls who were to be members of the yachting party than of his immediate surroundings, when there was a commotion among the passengers just as the car was passing Union Square. The rumpus was made by two or three men, who suddenly seemed moved to get out of the car in great haste. As they passed Depew they jostled him and hustled him so much that he thought them real rude. Desiring to know the time soon after they had got out of the car he felt his watch. Then he understood the haste and rudeness of the men, for his pocket was empty.

Thomas Packett Read was despoiled of a fine watch, said to be worth $250 or more, a few years ago by a pickpocket at a political meeting addressed by the great man from Maine. The story goes that this meeting was held in Cooper Union, in New York City, but that's only a detail. Anyway, the audience was large and enthusiastic, and Mr. Reed, who was the chief speaker of the evening, covered himself with glory, as he always does when he has a chance. After the speechmaking was finished and most of the audience had gone home a few remained, ostensibly to shake hands with the star of the evening, and Mr. Reed shook hands with several. Naturally his feelings toward mankind were of the friendliest when he went away from the hall, but they underwent a severe revulsion an hour later when he discovered the loss of his watch. It is said that he then declared he would never enter the hall again, and that he has kept his word.

The most wholesale jilting of watches from men of some prominence in New York was managed a few years ago at a meeting of the New York archdeaconry of the Protestant Episcopal Church. They were skillful, too, for though half a score of "clocks" were taken from the eminent clergymen present, and as many "leathers"—by which the pickpocket means pocketbooks—nothing amiss was discovered till after the dismissal of the audience, then it was too late to do anything.

From the other side of the water comes the story of how the Prince of Wales was robbed by the most successful, most famous French pickpocket whose name was never written down in the books of the Paris police. Nobody has denied that Russell Sage's pocket ever was picked, and it probably never was, for he doesn't look like a man who would carry enough money in his clothes to make it worth while. Mrs. Sage was robbed in the street once, however, though her pocket wasn't picked. Like many women, she habitually carries her pocketbook in her hand when out walking, and the thief who robbed her had only to grasp the book to get it. She was luckier than either Mr. Harrison or Mr. Depew. She cried out at once, there was a long chase, the man was caught and the pocketbook was recovered. What was better from Mrs. Sage's viewpoint, he was tried and sent to prison. Another man who got behind the bars for stealing from the Sages. He entered the Sage house while dinner was being served and stole a lot of clothing, including one of Mr. Sage's celebrated suits, strange to say.

Haitian Conservatism.

The Haitian is a fine example of conservatism. What was, must be right. A few years ago the town of Port de Paix, owning to an unexpected prosperous spell on the part of the Government, constructed some fine water works. The town was well piped, with hydrants at short distances on all streets. Decorative fountains were placed in the squares, drinking places for man and beast, everywhere. Behold the result. Not one bit the slightest interest in this important and necessary undertaking. At last, when completed, in accordance with the custom of the country, the water system was opened with a series of fetes. The whole section of the country had a hilarious holiday—balls, processions, cockfights, &c. When these were all over the natives came to the conclusion that the water works must have been built in order to amuse them, and the water works were no longer of any service, so they promptly smashed the whole system, and returned to carting the city's water from the distant river by ox teams. Now they tie their animals to the hydrants, fall over the fragments of the pipes scattered round the streets, and are happy.—Harper's Magazine.

By a London woman's will an allowance of £12 a year is made for the maintenance of each of her five pet cats.

Twelve black cats were put in a New York cold storage warehouse. At the end of six months their hair had turned white.

PROMISE TO MARRY.

Its Legal Value Established by a Court Decision.

Bessie Larkin, when asked in April, 1895, John Reilly, then 18 years old, to marry him at a future time, agreed to do so if he would transfer to her a fund he had on deposit in the Kings County Trust Company of New York. Reilly consented, and a contract to marry was entered into between them. On the 2d of April, 1898, Reilly having then become of age, he, in fulfillment of the agreement, assigned the fund to Miss Larkin.

During the three years of their engagement Reilly had incurred obligations to Emelie S. De Hieropolis, Richard E. Carpenter and others. The former, after securing judgment against Reilly, which was returned unsatisfied, sued him to set aside the assignment to Bessie Larkin, on the ground that it was made with intent to hinder and defraud creditors and that she was privy to such intention. Carpenter, who had obtained an attachment, which was attempted to be levied on the fund, was made a party defendant.

Bessie Larkin claimed she did not know of these obligations on the part of Reilly when she accepted the assignment. The court decided upon the trial that she was entitled to hold the fund "as against the whole world." The First Appellate Division has affirmed the judgment. Justice Patterson, who gave the decision, holding that whatever may have been the intention of Reilly in making the assignment, if Bessie Larkin was ignorant of the intention, and gave her promise to marry in good faith, conditioned upon the assignment of the fund, and it was assigned in pursuance of the agreement, she became a purchaser in good faith for a valuable consideration.

As to the claim on the part of the plaintiff that the agreement not being in writing was within the statute of frauds, the Court said the statute could not be availed of to set aside a completed transaction.

AN IMP OF MISCHIEF.

Stuck His Head Up Between Ties and Stopped Elevated Trains.

It is no wonder the engineer of an elevated train on the Bowery, in New York city, shows his throttle quickly and pushes his brakes down hard the other night, when he saw a small boy's head poking up between the ties in the full glare of his headlight. The train was stopped before the engine reached the boy, but that was not the end of the trouble. The youngster, a ten year old imp of mischief, was standing in the iron "drip pan," the receptacle that catches water, oil and other liquids that would otherwise drip to the roadway below, and he poked his head between the ties in a spirit of downright fiendishness.

The trainmen tried to get him out, but the place where the boy stood is so situated that it is impossible to get at anybody there unless he is disposed to surrender. This Italian youth was content to stay where he was, and leer horribly at his pursuers, while a long line of elevated trains was stopped, and the engineers and firemen of the line in a hurry to get home, was frantic. The youngster kept up his fun for a quarter of an hour or so, and then gracefully emerged from his "drip pan," and gave himself up to the authorities. Now he will have to remember on the solemn promise of his father that he would administer corporal punishment to the adventurous young man.

A Unique Personality.

That the mayor of Toledo and the recent candidate for governor of Ohio has been called "Golden Rule Jones" is no reflection upon his character or ability. His heart beats for the common people, and he is likely to be heard from again in the political life of the country.

Preferred Jail to a Hotel.

The police officials at the Fulton Street Station in Brooklyn almost got a shock the other night, when a man, who said he was Richard J. Kennedy, of No. 122 Seventh street, Washington, staggered in, and, although he had $50,000 worth of United States bonds and $700 in bills in his pockets, asked to be put in a cell for the night. While admitting that he was drunk, he said he had sense enough left to realize that he would be safer than in a hotel. His pile was depleted to the extent of $2 by Magistrate Brenner.—New York Cor. Chicago Inter-Ocean.

"I wish I were a book," remarked the neglected wife of the professor; "then, perhaps you would pay some attention to me."

"Ah!" exclaimed the professor, "if you were only an almanac, then I could exchange you every year."—Chicago News.

A CURIOUS PANIC.

A Hotel Kitchen Upset by Electrically Charged Cooking Utensils.

The kitchen and pantry of the cafe in the Hurst Hotel Junior, at Sixth street and Lucas avenue, St. Louis, was turned into a gigantic electric battery recently, and the wild panic among the employes ensued. Everything they touched was like a live wire. So great was the excitement for a quarter of an hour that a large crowd collected to watch the squirming, screaming employes knocking over tables and breaking dishes. The cause of the trouble was a large water main, which had become heavily charged with electricity, and communicated the current to faucets, stove nails in the floor, forks, knives, cups, and, in fact, everything metallic. The first intimation that something was wrong came when Mary, the head cook, took hold of the faucet for the purpose of drawing water. She had barely placed her hand upon the instrument when she gave vent to a howl of pain which brought all the waiters and attendants in the establishment to the spot, believing murder was being done. They found Mary hopping about, unable to release her hold upon the handle of the faucet, and screaming lustily. One of the scullions grabbed her wrist to pull her free. Instead of accomplishing his philanthropic design he became another victim, and joined in the dance and vociferation.

By this time the floor, which was damp, had become a veritable storage battery, and every time a pot struck a spark could be seen dancing about it. This sight caused every one quickly to vacate the apartment, and leave the cook and scullion to their fate. These two, on seeing themselves detected, made a desperate break free from the faucet, and, in about two jumps gained the pantry.

At this juncture the playful current entered the pantry, and one of the waiters who had been loudest in his mirth at the misfortune of the cook pot which was lying peacefully on the sink. He gave one howl and hopped into the street, followed by the laughter of his associates. Their glee was short-lived, however, as the current soon worked through their shoes and sent them out in a lively manner.

Henry Horchler, proprietor of the cafe arrived about this time. He said it was all foolishness, and strode boldly into the kitchen. He did not stay long, though, for the voltage was amazing and every piece of metal in the place giving forth little blue sparks. The effect produced would have caused envy in the hearts of theatrical electricians. The pots and pans hopped about as if they had been alive, while the stove, on which the viands were cooking, looked as if it might have been taken from a hazard house.

WOMEN POLICEMEN.

Queer Occupation of a Crowd of Widowed Dames in London.

London has many queer things in the huge extent of its area, but none queerer than its women guardians of the streets, for London, unknown to most of its inhabitants, has a police force the like of which does not exist in any other city on earth.

In order to see it work you must get up very early on Friday morning and visit Covent Garden Market. There you will see such a traffic and such a crowd of angry and unreasonable drivers that you will not be surprised at the Metropolitan police giving up the duty of keeping order as an impossible job. But scarcely will find that things come right in the end, and on looking to find how this is brought about you will probably be shocked at discovering that Covent Garden has a police force all to itself in the shape of one hundred or six women. They dart in and out among the cars, order the drivers to stop, or back their horses, or move on. They shout and swear and shake their fists and catch the horses' heads, and, if necessary, lay hands on the drivers at the drivers. But they always succeed in having their own way. But for these women it is believed that it would be necessary to read the riot act every Saturday morning in Covent Garden. As it is the women police make a comfortable living out of their profession, the drivers giving them tally tips, while the proprietors pay them a fair salary.

A CONVICT CAUGHT.

But He Had Enjoyed Freedom for Twenty-nine Years.

It was 29 years ago that Harry Walters, successfully executing a bold and ingenious plan of escape, left Sing Sing Prison. Recently he was returned to Sing Sing to serve the unexpired three years of his five years' term for forgery. He was brought to New York from Pennsylvania. He had been in prison there for another crime, and when the time of his release came he would have gone free had not an old photograph and his left record thrown him into the hands of the police. Then he confessed that he was the escaped convict of 29 years ago, and Captain McClusky's detectives took him to New York. He slept at headquarters and looked at his old photograph with a grimace.

Boy Awarded $21,000.

A fortune of $21,000 was awarded Otto Schwartz, 8 years old, by a jury in Chicago, recently, for the loss of both limbs in a street car accident two years ago, but it did not keep the little fellow from his playmates. In front of his home, 442 Jefferson street, the boy was playing marbles in the midst of a shouting crowd of youngsters. His artificial limbs did not seem to handicap him very much in his romping.

ODD INCIDENTS.

What the Tourists See in a Trip Through Europe.

"You see many a strange thing and funny incident," remarked Horace Ellison, of Chicago, at the Waldorf-Astoria, "when traveling abroad, but I suppose nothing will take the wild panic among the employes ensued. Everything they touched was like a live wire. So great was the excitement for a quarter of an hour that a large crowd collected to watch the squirming, screaming employes knocking over tables and breaking dishes. The cause of the trouble was a large water main, which had become heavily charged with electricity, and communicated the current to faucets, stove nails in the floor, forks, knives, cups, and, in fact, everything metallic. The first intimation that something was wrong came when Mary, the head cook, took hold of the faucet for the purpose of drawing water. She had barely placed her hand upon the instrument when she gave vent to a howl of pain which brought all the waiters and attendants in the establishment to the spot, believing murder was being done. They found Mary hopping about, unable to release her hold upon the handle of the faucet, and screaming lustily. One of the scullions grabbed her wrist to pull her free. Instead of accomplishing his philanthropic design he became another victim, and joined in the dance and vociferation.

By this time the floor, which was damp, had become a veritable storage battery, and every time a pot struck a spark could be seen dancing about it. This sight caused every one quickly to vacate the apartment, and leave the cook and scullion to their fate. These two, on seeing themselves detected, made a desperate break free from the faucet, and, in about two jumps gained the pantry.

At this juncture the playful current entered the pantry, and one of the waiters who had been loudest in his mirth at the misfortune of the cook pot which was lying peacefully on the sink. He gave one howl and hopped into the street, followed by the laughter of his associates. Their glee was short-lived, however, as the current soon worked through their shoes and sent them out in a lively manner.

Henry Horchler, proprietor of the cafe arrived about this time. He said it was all foolishness, and strode boldly into the kitchen. He did not stay long, though, for the voltage was amazing and every piece of metal in the place giving forth little blue sparks. The effect produced would have caused envy in the hearts of theatrical electricians. The pots and pans hopped about as if they had been alive, while the stove, on which the viands were cooking, looked as if it might have been taken from a hazard house.

The Blood Red Banner.

Royal and national colors vary with nation and time. Since the days when slew Abel, blood red has been the sign of revolt. In the earliest revolt known to history, when the Egyptians rose against their kings 4,000 years ago, they were led by a blood-red banner, and during the riots which took place in the streets of Paris the red caps worn in the blood-red caps were followed by the mob.

A blood-red flag waved over Bunker Hill when the Americans fought us for liberty, and it was the emblem of the German peasants in their great uprising in 1525, and in 1848 blood-red was the color of the Trade Union flags during the middle ages, and it formed the background of the emblem of the Jacobin Republic in 1815.

Through the whole of French and every other national history, those striking in their own ways for liberty have worn the blood-red cap and hailed the blood-red banner as their leader.

It is a curious fact that never has a monarch chosen it as his color. It has been left sacred to revolutionists.—Answers.

A Liberal Education.

"That man, I think, has had a liberal education who has been so trained in youth that his body is the ready servant of his will, and does with ease and pleasure all work that, as a mechanism, it is capable of; whose intellect is a clear, cold, logic engine, with all its powers of equal strength and in smooth working order, ready, like a steam engine, to be turned to any kind of work, and spin the gossamer webs of philosophy from the stores of the mind; whose mind is stored with a knowledge of the great and fundamental laws of nature and of the laws of her operations, and is not a stunted ascetic, is full of life and fire, but whose passions are trained to obey the will, which, like a strong but skilful servant of a tender conscience, who has learned to love all beauty, whether of nature or of art, to hate all vileness, and to reverence all that is like itself."—From Huxley's Lectures, "A Liberal Education and Where to Find It," Address to South London Working Men's College.

May Have an Egret Farm.

The egret crest, so much prized, may not be so valuable, if the scheme of an enterprising Arizona man proves feasible. According to the Yuma Sentinel, a citizen of that borough proposes to establish an egret farm. He thinks he can domesticate the egrets by clipping their wings, and intends to install a colony of them on a big stretch of marshy land along the river bottom near Yuma. Egrets, which are tropical birds of the heron family, have been found in great abundance near the mouth of the Colorado River, but there is some danger of their extinction, as great numbers are killed each year for their feathers. The feathers of the egret's crest sell for $32 an ounce. The Yuma man figures that ten birds will yield an ounce a year.

Sold His Wife Cheap.

Thomas Johnston, Stockport, has been married twice. Both wives are still alive. He placed a ridiculously low value on the first wife, as the bigamy proceedings recently went to show. He had not, it appeared, which his first wife for thirty years before he married the second, and he thought the former had no claim upon him, especially as he had sold her for 1s. 6d. to a chimney sweeper at New Mills, Derbyshire. He was committed for trial.—London Globe.

Our Saviour Rode.

Commenting on the fact that the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon walked three miles in Detroit on Sunday, rather than take a street car, because he thought this would have been Christ's method, George Martin says: "But Sheldon forgets that on the first Palm Sunday Jesus borrowed an ass on which to ride into Jerusalem."—Kansas City Journal.

Francois—Parbleau! Why do Hamlet and Laertes fight a duel in the play?

Pierre—To determine if Hamlet be fat or lean! Mon dieu!—Detroit Journal.

RUSSIA'S GREAT CANAL.

A Long Ditch To Connect the Baltic And Black Seas.

European papers and scientific magazines are occupying themselves pretty generally at the present moment with criticisms concerning the great ship canal which is destined to connect the Baltic with the Black Sea, work on which was begun last year by the Russian government, and is being pushed forward with the greatest zeal, and at the same time with a quietness amounting almost to secrecy. When finished the work, on account of its immensity and the almost insuperable difficulty to be overcome, will be worthy of a place beside such modern wonders as the St. Gothhard tunnel, the Suez Canal, the tunnels of Frejus and the Simplon.

The projects offered for the construction of this really herculean labor were many and various, but the choice finally rested between two schemes—one to connect the Dvina with the river Dnieper, which flows into the Black Sea, with the Dwina, which empties its waters into the Baltic at Riga; the other to connect the Dniester, west of Odessa, with the river Vistula, which has its mouth at Dantica on the Baltic.

The latter of these projects met with the special favor of Alexander III., and is the one which has been adopted for the carrying out of the great work of uniting the seas. The route starts at Riga, following the course of the Duna River as far as Duneberg, where it leaves the river, passing by means of an immense course cut right through the country. The Beresina and the Dnieper are then used to complete the navigation. The other project, remember, cost five drahmue. For it I tendered a ten-drachma note in payment. And together to make change the storekeeper tore it neatly in two and returned one-half to me. Convenient, wasn't it?—N. Y. Tribune.

Royal and national colors vary with nation and time. Since the days when slew Abel, blood red has been the sign of revolt. In the earliest revolt known to history, when the Egyptians rose against their kings 4,000 years ago, they were led by a blood-red banner, and during the riots which took place in the streets of Paris the red caps worn in the blood-red caps were followed by the mob.

A blood-red flag waved over Bunker Hill when the Americans fought us for liberty, and it was the emblem of the German peasants in their great uprising in 1525, and in 1848 blood-red was the color of the Trade Union flags during the middle ages, and it formed the background of the emblem of the Jacobin Republic in 1815.

Through the whole of French and every other national history, those striking in their own ways for liberty have worn the blood-red cap and hailed the blood-red banner as their leader.

It is a curious fact that never has a monarch chosen it as his color. It has been left sacred to revolutionists.—Answers.

A Liberal Education.

"That man, I think, has had a liberal education who has been so trained in youth that his body is the ready servant of his will, and does with ease and pleasure all work that, as a mechanism, it is capable of; whose intellect is a clear, cold, logic engine, with all its powers of equal strength and in smooth working order, ready, like a steam engine, to be turned to any kind of work, and spin the gossamer webs of philosophy from the stores of the mind; whose mind is stored with a knowledge of the great and fundamental laws of nature and of the laws of her operations, and is not a stunted ascetic, is full of life and fire, but whose passions are trained to obey the will, which, like a strong but skilful servant of a tender conscience, who has learned to love all beauty, whether of nature or of art, to hate all vileness, and to reverence all that is like itself."—From Huxley's Lectures, "A Liberal Education and Where to Find It," Address to South London Working Men's College.

May Have an Egret Farm.

The egret crest, so much prized, may not be so valuable, if the scheme of an enterprising Arizona man proves feasible. According to the Yuma Sentinel, a citizen of that borough proposes to establish an egret farm. He thinks he can domesticate the egrets by clipping their wings, and intends to install a colony of them on a big stretch of marshy land along the river bottom near Yuma. Egrets, which are tropical birds of the heron family, have been found in great abundance near the mouth of the Colorado River, but there is some danger of their extinction, as great numbers are killed each year for their feathers. The feathers of the egret's crest sell for $32 an ounce. The Yuma man figures that ten birds will yield an ounce a year.

Sold His Wife Cheap.

Thomas Johnston, Stockport, has been married twice. Both wives are still alive. He placed a ridiculously low value on the first wife, as the bigamy proceedings recently went to show. He had not, it appeared, which his first wife for thirty years before he married the second, and he thought the former had no claim upon him, especially as he had sold her for 1s. 6d. to a chimney sweeper at New Mills, Derbyshire. He was committed for trial.—London Globe.

Our Saviour Rode.

Commenting on the fact that the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon walked three miles in Detroit on Sunday, rather than take a street car, because he thought this would have been Christ's method, George Martin says: "But Sheldon forgets that on the first Palm Sunday Jesus borrowed an ass on which to ride into Jerusalem."—Kansas City Journal.

Francois—Parbleau! Why do Hamlet and Laertes fight a duel in the play?

Pierre—To determine if Hamlet be fat or lean! Mon dieu!—Detroit Journal.

A GREAT PROJECT.

Europe Interested in Making Chicago a Deep-Sea Port.

Advocates of the plan to make Chicago a deep-sea harbor say that great interest has been created in Europe over the project. Many of the prominent continental journals have published illustrated articles showing the plans and canal system, and a large amount of capital is said to be waiting to be invested in establishing direct steamship lines to Chicago from European ports as soon as steamers of sufficient tonnage to make the freight profitable can pass through the canals.

Wilhelm Weimann, the Danish Vice Consul at Chicago, and a member of Denmark's foreign diplomatic corps, said yesterday:

"Any amount of capital stands ready to be invested in steamship lines to Chicago. The Copenhagen merchants are deeply interested in deep-water center for one of the largest shipping organizations in Europe, the United Steamship Company, which has several hundred steamers running to almost every part of the globe. The managers of the new free port, one of the largest in Europe, would certainly be the first to establish a direct steamship line to Chicago, and this may take place next year, when the Canadian system of canals is expected to be completed, permitting the passage of steel vessels with a cargo of 2,000 tons.

"The idea would be to establish a line of fast steamers, as the express business would be an important aid in making the line profitable."

The first general interest in the subject abroad is said to have been manifested when G. Tuck & Co., exporters and importers of this city, brought a little steamer through the canals to the lakes, it having actually crossed the ocean with a cargo. The experiment was reported to have been a success, and while the difficulties and obstructions to such a through traffic rendered further attempts unprofitable, owing to some slight reduction in the rates of through transportation, and to the fact that improvements were conducted without loss is said to have been considered abroad an argument of the strongest kind in favor of deeper canals.—Chicago Record.

HIS WIFE CONSENTED.

And a Hungarian Nobleman Visits His First Love, Now a Nun.

Count A. Dessewny, a distinguished looking nobleman from Hungary, arrived in New York recently, on the steamer Lucania, and was later seen to take a train to Philadelphia. His mission and errand are a strange one and is a remarkable example of love and devotion. He leaves wife and children to visit the love of his youth, who is a nun in this country. Whether or not the nun is single is another West, the count will not say. And the strangest feature connected with his visit to this love of long ago is that it is with his wife's entire consent, and that he has paid these visits annually for the past 10 years. The Count was not communicative to his fellow passengers on the Lucania, but to a few of them he told a little of his mission and history. There are lines of care in his face and although he is in his fifties his hair is touched with silver. Married to a beautiful woman, father of bright children, still he loves the girl he met in his youth and his heart constantly yearns for its first love.

While chamois hunting in the mountains Count Dessewny met his wife. It was at a simple country dance that he first saw the woman who has been a part of his life ever since. She was Maria Teresa Kisfaludy, the beautiful daughter of a professor at the University of Munich. It was a case of love at first sight on the part of both. Her reply to his offer of marriage was at first somewhat vague, but when he left her she clearly loved him, but in the same breath she said she could never marry him. The young woman had, in a moment of religious enthusiasm, pledged her life to relieving suffering and had taken the vows of celibacy. Nothing could change her.

The Count left the mountains, and Maria Kisfaludy came to America. The Count soon afterward married a lady of noble birth, whom he says is like as refined, just as beautiful, as the little Magyar girl who had won his heart.

His wife and family know of his infatuation, which still holds him. With full knowledge and consent he comes to America each year to visit her. She is in some large American city, which one the Count refused to say. But the fact that he took the train for Philadelphia lends credence to the belief that in this city the convent of the two has taken place.—Phil. Times.

A SAUERKRAUT FAMINE.

Shortage of Cabbages Threatens St. Louis's Favorite Dish.

A sauerkraut famine is threatened in St. Louis. What such a famine means is not understood by those who are not aware that sauerkraut is the great popular dish of St. Louis, and occupies the place taken by beans in Boston. It is estimated that more sauerkraut is consumed here than in Chicago, which has twice the population of this city. Missouri soil is said to be specially adapted to cabbage growing, and as there are many German people in the city the consumption of sauerkraut follows naturally. The Germans have popularized sauerkraut among their American friends until a St. Louis house without sauerkraut is like home without a mother.

Horseshoes in Japan are simply clogs of twisted straw, and during a journey many have to be carried to replenish those which are worn out.

MISS RUSSELL ON DIVORCE.

She Ought to Be an Authority, Bu She Makes No Such Claims.

Lillian Russell has been an operatic favorite before the American public since the day when at sixteen she graduated from a music hall to the comic opera stage and began creating leading roles in Audran and Offenbach. She has been married to Harry Braham, to Teddy Solomon to Signor Perugini. The following article on divorce was written by her for the New York Sunday World:

"Divorce eases more useless suffering, breaks more irksome bondage than than any other institution in existence. Take away divorce and there will be more unholy alliances lived out by weary heartsick men and women than can be chronicled.

"I am not putting myself up as an authority, for I know that anything I may say will possibly bring forth jibes and sneers from many who frown upon divorce. I am not making this a personal question. I am speaking in the abstract. If women find their husbands have vices which they cannot tolerate, or brutal tendencies that are obnoxious to refined womanhood, do you think they ought to be forced to drag out a loveless existence by the side of these men? Where two people have not one thought in common, do you think that life's journey holds for them any happiness? I tell you no, and that marriage of that kind is unholy and should be dissolved.

"But you ask do I not think these things ought to be considered before the leap is made into matrimony? Most certainly I do, as far as possible. But there is no judging a man or woman before your marriage. It takes the little frets and jars of daily life to bring out the true traits of character. Before marriage the curl papers are taken down carefully and the hair arranged in a soft crinkly coiffure. After marriage the curl papers are as often as not left up, and the greater details of life are treated in the same ratio. It takes some people longer than others to find out whether or not they have made a mistake, but when they do make the discovery I think they ought to rectify it at once.

"I do not think that I should cry quits at the first quarrel, but after time to gather a full realization of the hopelessness of trying to get along together. People come to me and ask me how I have preserved my good looks. One would not think to look at Modjeska (blush to hear some of them). I will tell you the secret; it was no hygienic feats performed by beauty experts. I got a divorce; that's what has kept me free from worry, wrinkles and crow's-feet. Well, just think of those I would have had if I had not been divorced. The woman who continues to live with a man simply for the looks of the thing, and to be supported by him, is a coward. If she allows herself to be subjected to ill treatment or humiliation or hardships through the fault of a man she is not deserving of sympathy and lowers the standard of womanhood. It is not the part to play before public opinion, but life is a fight of one kind or another. And divorce is far better than wrinkles and crow's-feet."

Ladies' Four Gored Skirt.

The accompanying design illustrates the new four-gored skirt, its odd feature being the wedge-shaped back, which is shaped in a decided point at the waist line and spreads out toward the floor in long graceful folds.

Oxford gray cheviot is here trimmed with bias machine stitched bands of the same material. The front and side gores fit closely, the wedge gore attaching to no reason on the center back. Bias bands of the material outline each seam, producing a strictly tailor-made effect. The skirt opens invisibly at the left side of the front.

This skirt is particularly practical for cloth materials, such as poplin, camel's hair, Venetian, tweed and serge. Line with silk or percaline and finish around with cording. "Pond na" skirt facing which is a great protection to the foot of a skirt.

To make this skirt in the medium size will require four and one-half yards of material forty-four inches wide.

MAY MANTON.

Looking Ahead.

Women journalists must avoid Japan. The new press laws for the Empire of the Mikado prohibit women from becoming publishers or editors, as the "discharge of such work by females is neither becoming nor desirable." The framers of the law are certainly looking very far ahead, for as yet Japanese women have given no sign of emulating their Western sisters in newspaper work.

To Remove Rust Spots.

Mix in a glass potassium oxalate, 2 grams; lemon juice, 5 grams; and salt, 5 grams, with water to 50 grams. Of the liquid obtained put a little on the spots, then hold them to a tin vessel filled with hot water and heated thereby. The respective places are afterward washed with soap water.

THE AUTOMOBILE.

A Self-Propelling Bicycle Invented by a Michigan Man.

The rapid strides that automobilism is making may be illustrated by a vehicle which has been brought out here.

The new machine is called the "mobike," and, as its name implies, is a self-propelled bicycle, run by a very small and light motor—a sort of gasoline turbine—which, despite of its diminutive size, possesses such astounding power that the capacities for high speed and hill climbing abilities of the new machine put to shame any type of foot-power bicycle far in the shade.

The inventor is Prof. A. M. Herring, whose recent experiments in aerodromics have created widespread interest. The experiments of the professor and Mr. Chanuts, with the gliding machines at Dune Park, Ind., will be remembered by many readers, some of whom will also recall the last year the professor produced a new flying machine, the first to carry an operator successfully aloft. This machine, technically known as an aerocurve, or aerodrome, was merely an experimental one, constructed to demonstrate air engines, but its flights were nevertheless successful enough to remove all apprehension of failure in a flying machine driven by a gasoline motor of equal power. The new engines for the perfected flying machine were practically completed when the Prof. Herring-Chanuts disaster occurred, which destroyed the professor's quarters and work, along with everything else in the main building. The only machine which escaped destruction was the half-completed "mobike" tandem, which he was building for his own use.

The machine is simple and power enough for two people; it plows through the sand of rough roads and up ordinary grades with such a load with the greatest ease, and when it runs along the smoothest street. All of the machinery is fully automatic, as merely pushing the mobike along sets in motion a small gasoline motor, which the rider has simply to mount by the step and steer, controlling the speed the while by an almost imperceptible movement of the foot which rests upon an engine governor at the rear of the turbine head. The batteries which fire the ignitors, the source of trouble with all gasoline engines, are dispensed with, and even the adjustment of the gasoline and air valve, which in other machines requires hard constant attention in the newest type of automobile, is automatically effected by the machine itself. The machine is guaranteed to run which already aggregate 600 miles, and apparently never needs attention or repairs.—St. Joseph (Mich.) Corr. Chicago Record.

ANOTHER MEAN MAN.

Is a Bachelor and Gets Sewing Machine Agents to Do His Mending.

"He's the meanest man I ever had anything to do with," said the sewing machine agent. "I received a note from him the other day saying that he desired to look at the latest sewing machines with the view of purchasing if found to be satisfactory. In these piping days of competition it is a novelty for a sewing machine agent to be invited to call and show goods so when I had recovered from my surprise, I promptly loaded a machine in my cart and started for the address the man had given.

"An old man met me at the door and invited me to bring the machine inside as he wished to see more clearly how it. I did so, setting the machine up in the sitting room and calling his attentions to its fine points. He was an interesting old man, and I talked with the confidence of a man who considered a sale certain. Finally, having explained all I was authorized to do, and to see a practical test of the capabilities of the machine. I agreed, and asked him to bring me something upstairs for me to work on. He went out, returning a few minutes later, his arms filled with damaged linen.

"I sat down at the machine and showed him how the rents in the seams could be mended, making the garments as good as new and saving in a short time the price of the machine. The linen was then taken and repaired, and kept handing me garment after garment that needed attention. I worked for two solid hours mending the old man's wardrobe, and at last, having nothing else that needed attention, he commenced to find fault with the machine. I thought the last he guessed he wouldn't buy a machine right away.

"I was so mad that I didn't dare trust myself to speak, but I was glad afterward that I didn't, for when I learned the whole truth I realized my total inability to do the subject justice. The old man's wife, who happened to be a bachelor, had brought me up there simply to do his mending. He has worked the same game on other agents."—N. Y. Sun.

Rustic Ignorance.

Those who know the French peasantry will not be particularly surprised at the news that the gatewoman at the railway crossing at Rennes had never heard of Dreyfus. And, of course, the story can be matched in this country. Some of the old folks of Wellington's death a parson sauntered into his garden after breakfast, newspaper in hand, mentioned the news to his old gardener, who replied, "Lor, sur, and 'oo was 'e?"

Again, the story runs that Mr. Kipling, while on a visit to Mr. Hardy, read to the latter the first chapter of "Life's Little Ironies" thought would suit him, and that when Mr. Kipling moved out of earshot Mr. Hardy observed to his companion, by way of mention to you that this gentleman is no other than Mr. Rudyard Kipling." "Is that so?" she replied, "never heard the name before." Presently Mr. Kipling, in turn, found himself alone with the lady, and remarked, "Possibly you may not be aware that the gentleman who brought me here to-day is Mr. Hardy, the eminent author." "Oh, indeed," was her reply, "I don't know his name."—London Chronicle.

Thought It Was a Dinner Plate.

Mrs. Benham—"The report of the baseball game says that one of the players died at the plate."

Benham—"Well, what of it?"

Mrs. Benham—"I suppose it was overeating that killed him."—Judge.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Legal Value of a Life.

The Supreme Court has for the third time set aside the verdict of a Hudson county jury giving a parent heavy damages for the loss of a child by its being killed by a trolley car This latest decision is made by Justice Magie and like the one that Justice Gummere rendered a year ago—which subjected him to a running fire of abuse and unholy imprecations for several weeks on the part of laymen and newspapers—it is in accordance with a strict interpretator of the law, in arriving at which phase of a question the sole duty of the judiciary is concerned.

The fault for the condition of affairs which permits of what appears to be totally inadequate damages for the loss of a child's life seems therefore to rest with the Legislature, which has the power to alter the law so that more than pecuniary damages may be secured in such cases.

An effort was made last year to have the law changed in this respect, but nothing came of it Now that Justice Magie's decision has again brought the case into prominence, it is likely that an effort will be made to have the law amended so as to be compatible with the popular idea—that is, the declaring of more than pecuniary damages in favor of a parent or relative the life of whose close kin has been lost through the negligent and criminal conduct of a trolley company.

Notwithstanding that such an amendment is undoubtedly needed and demanded, it is by no means certain that it it will be enacted by the Legislature. Recent Legislatures have not displayed great zeal in matters that were opposed by trolley companies and like corporations, and a cursory view of the present situation does not indicate that there will be any particular repulsion of corporation influences at Trenton the coming winter. It is a fact that the corporate influences will be against the enactment of a law making it possible for the loss of life by neglectful corporations to be followed by such aggregations being heavily mulcted, financially, and it is therefore reasonable to assume that unless a very great hue and cry, that amounts to an unusual popular clamor, asserts itself in favor of an amendent to the present statute, that none will be made.

Taxation of Franchises.

The ninth annual report of the State Board of Taxation has been handed to the Governor for transmission to the Legislature. The report is as large as that of last year, and, in addition to the usual matter, contains a codification of the laws of the State relating to the collection of taxes.

The feature of the report is the chapter on the taxation of corporations, which was prepared by Charles C. Black, a member of the State Board, and a recognized authority in New Jersey on questions of taxation.

Mr. Black points out that street railway, electric light, telegraph and telephone, gas and water companies, and the like, have privileges more or less monopolistic in their character, and that these companies stand in a different position from ordinary corporations. On the question whether street railway, electric light, gas, and other companies enjoying special privileges should be assessed on their franchises, he says the State Board of Assessors do not assume it to be their province to advise the Legislature, but makes this comment:

In New Jersey the public streets, highways and other public property cannot be used by individuals or corporations for other than public purposes, except by the consent of the municipalities. It is not a distortion of consent is given upon condition of the payment of fees for the use of such local districts, but th e does not seem to meet the requirements of public opinion in the matter. In some cases the payments are grossly inadequate to the privileges granted and to the damage done in the operation of such franchises That it is as practical to tax such public franchises as it is to tax any other class of property can hardly be denied. It is and has been done for some years in many of the States with satisfaction or resistance. The taxation of the railroad franchises in this State under the act of 1884 is a case in point. This question was passed upon by the affirmative by the United States Supreme Court in the case of Taxler vs. Sec (99 U. S., 323) That some of these companies operate in one or more taxing districts would not be a valid objection to such a system of taxation, as the amount equitably to be paid to each district could be determined by the State Board of Taxation without additional legislation.

Coming from such an authority and under such circumstances, the report and the comments on the franchise taxation question ought to do much towards hurrying the time when corporations will be obliged to pay a fair and just tax for the inestimably valuable privileges they hold.

Vice-President Hobart's Death.

As in the case of all truly great Americans, Vice-President Garret A. Hobart, whose death occurred Tuesday morning—the sadness of which was mitigated somewhat because of its being expected at almost any moment for several weeks—sprung from obscure American parentage. The death of such men, whose success, influences and prominence were of their own making, strikes a tender chord in the minds of their countrymen.

The passing of Vice-President Hobart is a cause for profound and deep sorrow on the part of all citizens of New Jersey; in fact, the death of another Jerseyman at this time would probably not plunge the Common wealth into such deep mourning as the sad news from Carroll Hall in Paterson Tuesday morning.

Born of humble parents in New New Jersey, Mr. Hobart won his way to the prominent place he finally occupied in this country by a force of character and natural ability that was confined almost entirely to the confines of this State. This fact marks the man as a remarkable one in the category of American statesmen, for in truth his selection to the second highest place in the gift of the American people quickly developed him into a figure of broad and commanding intellect and influence that took high rank in the Nation's councils in Washington, notwithstanding that up to three years ago he was but little known outside of his own State.

Mr. Hobart had a winning way about him. He had a peculiar tact of making friends in public life who made friends easier and more frequently than enemies—a condition that is usually ascertainable the reverse in most cases. This quality, combined with business sagacity and intuitiveness, probably won for him the command. ing position he occupied. Though positive in his convictions—a notable example of which was when he came out unqualifiedly for the gold standard in the 1896 campaign when other political leaders were hemming and hawing over the dividing of the ways on the green money issue—he was never offensive, but always aggressive. He generally struck out from the shoulder, but he did it in such a manner that his opposition was generally of a cordial nature.

Mr. Hobart was the first Vice-President in many years who carried any considerable influence with the administration of which he was a part. He was the known confident of President McKinley, a fact in itself of sufficient importance to make him a remarkable official in comparison to the records of his predecessors in this respect.

As a citizen of this State, who never turned his back upon the Commonwealth for a moment during his years of life, in spite of the fact that for many years he combated overwhelming political opposition—a thing that would pique less persevering and philosophical minds; as a man whose business judgment was regarded as the best and which had always been used to the profit of those with whom he was associated; as one whose family associations and personal friendships typified the highest manhood; in fact, as a man among men, admired and respected, Garret A. Hobart's death will be mourned by all Jerseymen

It is said that in a short time the acts under which exemptions from from taxation to the extent of $500 are allowed to veterans of the Civil War, active firemen and members of the National Guard will come before the courts for judicial test. The State Board of Taxation, in its report just made to the Governor, expresses the opinion that the acts under which the exemptions are allowed would not stand the scrutiny of the courts. The report says that "it has never been held by the courts that the owners of property could be classified under the Constitution for the purpose of taxation, one class being exempt while another was not."

The Vineland Borough Council has adopted a resolution providing for the purchase of the local water works, the price agreed upon being $60,000. The proposition will be submitted to a vote of the people. The special election to be held for that purpose promises to be hotly contested, owing to the fact that a large element believes that the water company's price is exorbitant.

Passaic is going to investigate the fifty cent gas project in a thorough manner, and to that end the Common Council has decided to send a committee to San Francisco to look over the plant in operation there. The investigation will cost about $300, but Passaic solons think the money will be well spent

Congressman Suizer, of New York, expresses the opinion that his selection as Democratic leader in the House of Representatives would help the Democracy carry New Jersey in next year's election. The Newark News comments: "It is to be feared that Mr. Sulzer flatters himself."

"The People Be Dashed."

In the correspondence that has passed between the Board of Health and an official of the Plainfield Street Railway Company concerning the use of open summer cars up to the present time, which has endangered the health of every patron who has ridden on them, the trolley official does not show that the company has made an effort to obviate this condition of affairs by any active and extraordinary work in coping with the emergency that has presented itself.

Instead of having evidenced a desire to run cars not only as often as possible but as well to furnish an agreeable and satisfactory vehicle for the conveyance of their passengers, they seem to have rested content in the thought that Plainfielders will put up with any old thing till the new cars can be secured, and now when an outraged public protests through the Board of Health against such conduct, the trolley officials serenely barricade themselves behind technicalities in the franchise which the people have granted them, and say, referring to the evident demand for closed cars at once, "if your Board insists we will do so sooner on a reduced headway" That sounds a good deal like the late lamented William K. Vanderbilt when he said "The public be dashed," or words to that effect.

The officials of the Street Railway Company must have known sometime ago that they would be unable to secure their new cars in time for use before cold weather set in. Knowing such a fact, it would be but natural to think that they would have made provision in some way so that the regular schedule could be kept up with cars that are fit for even cattle to ride in during such weather as has prevailed for several weeks. But they did not—instead keeping in service open summer cars that have obtained the very apt sobriquet of "pneumonia express."

The Street Railway Company seem, by this action, to be supremely indifferent to the requirements of the public, and what makes it seem more the pity is the fact that the system is operated under a franchise that permits them to do just about as they want to, irrespective of the universal sentiment of the people.

WARDS NAME THEIR G. O. P. CANDIDATES.

[CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.]

there was no hustling and no excitement at the Second ward primary held in the Bryant School Tuesday p. m. Only sixty-three votes were cast, of which a fair number was a delegation of Netherwood people, who a tended to signify their approval of the choice of the party. There was no one voted for except the candidates on the regular ticket. Jan van Herwerden, the candidate for Councilman, was scratched by three voters. Otherwise the tickets were voted straight.

At the business meeting Joseph A Robinson was chosen chairman and Charles H. Force secretary. The additions to the city convention was empowered to fill its own vacancies, and the ward members of the city executive committee were empowered to fill any vacancies that might occur in the ticket.

The officers of election were J. Hervey Dane, judge; Armstrong Mulford, inspector; Wm. P. Spangenberg, clerk.

The result of the vote was as follows: For Councilman, Jan van Herwerden, 60; delegates to the city convention, John B. Dumont, 63; Stephen A Ginna, 63; Willard M. Miner 63; Josiah Browne, 63; Charles C Davis, 61; H C Darar, 63; Wm. N Runyon, 63; for justice of the peace, Thos. Hanna, 63; for constable, J. W. Drayton, 63; for members of city executive committee, J. B. Dumont, 63; S. A Ginna, 63; J. E. Keely, 63.

THIRD WARD

The general air of uncertainty that preceded the primary in the Third ward led many to believe that there might be some unexpected developments. But there weren't. The "regular" ticket went through and won by a fat majority. The faction that has opposed Roger F. Murray in the ward had no candidate but the interested purchase of the local water works, the price agreed upon being $60,000. The proposition will be submitted to a vote of the people. The special election to be held for that purpose promises to be hotly contested, owing to the fact that a large element believes that the water company's price is exorbitant.

Passaic is going to investigate the fifty cent gas project in a thorough manner, and to that end the Common Council has decided to send a committee to San Francisco to look over the plant in operation there. The investigation will cost about $300, but Passaic solons think the money will be well spent

Congressman Suizer, of New York, expresses the opinion that his selection as Democratic leader in the House of Representatives would help the Democracy carry New Jersey in next year's election. The Newark News comments: "It is to be feared that Mr. Sulzer flatters himself."

It costs you whether you continue the nerve-killing tobacco habit, or let Notobac remove the desire for tobacco, with entire success and no inconvenience. Notobac purifies the blood, regulates the stomach, tones and invigorates the whole system. Notobac is sold under a guarantee to cure, or we refund money. Sold by druggists everywhere. Booklet and sample free. Address The Notobac Co., Chicago, Montreal, New York.

STOP SMOKING!

NO-TO-BAC

sold 400,000 boxes last year. Cures 50,000 cases reported. Book free. Sold by druggists everywhere. Address The Notobac Co., Chicago, Montreal, New York.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

If you haven't a regular, healthy movement of the bowels every day, you're not well. Keep your bowels open, and be well. Force in the shape of violent physic or pill poison is dangerous. The smoothest, easiest, most perfect way of keeping the bowels clean and clear is to take

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets TRADE MARK REGISTERED

REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c. Write for free sample and booklet on health. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York. 370

KEEP YOUR BLOOD CLEAN

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE

In 1900

NOVELTY IN LITERARY AND ART FEATURES

PRINTING IN COLOR.

THE BEST ILLUSTRATIONS, with Cole's Engravings and Castaigne's Drawings

A New and Superbly Illustrated

LIFE OF CROMWELL

By the Right Hon. John Morley, M. P.

THE conductors of THE CENTURY take especial pleasure in announcing that as the leading historical series of the magazine for 1900, Mr. Morley will write the life of that foremost Englishman of the nineteenth century, Oliver Cromwell, the author of "William Ewart Gladstone, Late a Study in Conscience," "Edmund Burke, a Historical Study," "Voltaire," "Rousseau," "The Life of Richard Cobden," "The Life of Walpole," "The Life of Richard Cobden," "The Life of Walpole," "The Life of Richard Cobden," "The Life of Walpole

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

CITY RECEIVED $40,700.

BIGGEST DAY IN THE HISTORY OF CITY COLLECTOR'S OFFICE.

Collector Martin Worked From 7 a. m. to 12 Midnight Receiving Payments From a Number of Property Owners.

Monday was the largest day in the history of city tax office as regards the receiving of tax money. It exceeded the last day of last year's collections by a very large amount. Last year the last day netted about $33 000. Yesterday the receipts were $40 700. Thus far, for October and November, Collector Martin has received about $140 000, which amount is far ahead of last year's collection.

Collector Martin was in his office yesterday from 7 a. m. to 12 o'clock last night without an opportunity of getting out. At midnight the collections were taken to the City National Bank by the collector, who was accompanied by a policeman as protection.

The collector has been assisted by Miss Nevius and Andrew Love, Jr., but even then the strain on his nerves has been great. Many taxpayers subjected him to all sorts of trouble. They would either come without their bills and require him to make out a new one, or else stop to argue why their taxes were so high, and why they could not have the amount reduced. All of these things proved very annoying to the collector, but owing to his executive ability he was able to dispatch the business in good order. Many taxpayers were obliged to wait an hour for their turn, so great was the crowd that assembled. Some could not get a chance and they were obliged to come around this morning and pay.

MRS. BOHM WAS TRUE.

Would Not Admit That Her Husband, Who Committed Suicide, Tried to Kill Her First.

The funeral of Carl Bohm, the young German who committed suicide last last week at his home on Rahway road, was held Saturday afternoon from the New Dover M. E. church. Rev. Mr Kane, pastor, officiated. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Interment took place in the cemetery adjoining the church property.

Mrs. Bohm was true to her husband up to the last and would not admit that he tried to kill her. She told friends that her husband had been good to her, although his temper sometimes got the best of him.

Saturday afternoon a middle aged woman from Brooklyn, who claimed relationship to the Bohm family, came to Plainfield to attend the funeral services, but she was unable to learn the time of place, and returned after dark, without having accomplished her purpose.

"THE BLIND EVANGELIST."

Attracted a Large Crowd to Grace M. E. Church Monday Night.

Standing room was at a premium and fully 200 were unable to gain admittance to Grace M. E. church last Sunday to hear the "blind evangelist." Even the cushions around the platform railing and the steps leading to the pulpit were utilized by those eager to listen to the story as unfolded by this sightless messenger of the cross. He spoke upon "The Great Invitation," based upon Luke 14:16 "Come, for all things are now ready." The soul-stirring words of the evangelist thrilled all hearts and a hush, like the stillness of death, pervaded the large congregation. Four persons responded to the invitation to indicate their desire for salvation by standing. Thus far fifteen decided to lead a Christian life.

Bethel Chapel $145.46 Richer.

The officers of the Circle of Earnest Workers of Bethel chapel now have the comple returns from the fair held at the chapel last week and the net profits amount to $145 56. This money will be placed in the treasury for the benefit of the chapel. Those who took part in the fair are gratified with the results, and wish to thank all who helped them to make it a success.

Temperance Sunday Among Episcopalians.

Sunday was observed as temperance Sunday in the Episcopal churches in this city. At Holy Cross, St. Stephen's and Grace churches, special sermons appropriate to the day were delivered by the various rectors.

GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF

to the coffee-sick. C Cee drinking is a habit that I universally indulge in and all about as quick as I take it. I saw you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. C Ree up its finest taste, while the digestive effect the best and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

NEED GOSPEL OF CHRIST.

Dr. Morgan Addressed First Baptist Church Congregation on Cuba and Porto Rican Conditions.

Sunday morning at the First Baptist church Rev. Dr. Morgan, of the American Baptist Publication Society, gave a very interesting address on the work of missionaries in Porto Rico and Cuba, and he urged greater support of these at home in sending these workers. He stated fields. He said that the people in Porto Rico and Cuba need civilizing influence of the Gospel of Christ as much as anything else and after they received it they would make better citizens, and other improvements would follow. He stated that the Roman Catholic church is not well established at these places as supposed by many, but that it is in a disorganized state. He pointed out the the great needs for work and of the necessity of raising money for it. At the close a liberal collection was given for the work.

NEGATIVE SIDE WON.

Borough High School Students Heard an Interesting Debate Tuesday.

An event of unusual interest that has occupied the attention of the members of the High School of the Borough Public School for some time past took place Tuesday at the school. It was a debate and it was one of a high order of merit. The question was "Resolved, That Cromwell was a greater man than Napoleon."

Frank Bach was the leader for the affirmative side, while Miss Kathryne Dwight led the side for the negative. The debate occupied about one hour and a half, and the points made throughout were exceptionally good.

At the conclusion the judges, A. V. D. Heyman, Miss Hart and Miss Phillips, decided the question in favor of the negative. The decision was given purely on a basis of the points made. It was accepted cordially by all those present and the winners were applauded.

CONDUCTORS LOOK NATTY.

Central Ticket Punchers Appeared in New Uniforms Monday Morning.

Some of the conductors on the Central Railroad appeared in new uniforms Monday. The coats are made shorter and more in the style of a cutaway, while the vests are single instead of double-breasted. The caps are also of blue cloth with two rows of gilt braid extending around the centre. The uniforms are very handsome and give the wearers a natty appearance.

Big Help to the Hospital.

At the last meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders, Clerk Ryno read a communication from the officers of the Muhlenberg Hospital in this city acknowledging the receipt of a check for $1,580, the same being the annual contribution of the county to this excellent institution. The letter said the money came at an opportune time as the hospital had been urgently in need of funds at the time of the receipt. The letter was ordered filed.

Death of Mrs. Mahoney.

Mrs. James Strappe, of Madison avenue, received word Sunday of the death of her brother's wife, Mrs. Mahoney, of New York City. Mrs. Mahoney has visited Plainfield often and there are many friends who will be pained to learn of her death. She leaves a husband and five children to mourn her loss. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 p. m. from her late residence, 105 Madison street. Interment in Flatbush.

Picture of Little Horsewoman.

Friday's issue of the New York Herald contained a picture of Miss Helen Cruikshank and her pony Daisy, the maid and horse having attracted much attention at the New York Horse Show. Miss Cruikshank is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Cruikshank, of Belvidere avenue. Mrs. S. A. Cruikshank won the third prize for her registered Shetland pony, Nimrod.

Harvest Home Service.

The services at Holy Cross church next Sunday will be of a "Harvest Home" tendency. Special music will be rendered by the choir, and Rev. Mr. Downey will preach a sermon in accordance with the spirit of the day. The church will be decorated with fruits, vegetables and flowers.

Returned Into Elsewhere.

The colored men who were recently discharged from the foundry at the Pond Tool Works have all secured places elsewhere and are reported to be doing well.

Address by Dr. Richardson.

Rev. J. W. Richardson, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, delivered an address to the Sunday-school of the Baptist church, New Market, Sunday afternoon.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT OF SECOND STREET

Macadamized From Curb to Curb by Trolley Company.

UNDER CITY SUPERVISION

WAS ONE OF CONDITIONS OF GRANTING TROLLEY FRANCHISE.

East Second Street From Richmond Street to the Eastern End Is No Longer a Disgrace to the City, But Is Fine Condition—Work Was Done by Contractor Patsy Christmas—A Wonderful Change.

Those who have had occasion to visit East Second street, east of Richmond street, during the past few weeks have found a wonderful change in the condition of that thoroughfare. Instead of a dirt road, becoming a slough in wet weather and rutty and full of mudholes in dry seasons so as to be impassable for bicycles and decidedly unpleasant for vehicles, East Second street has now been macadamized from curb to curb and is excellent condition as far east as the street continues.

The pleasantest part of it, as far as the taxpayers of the city of Plainfield are concerned, is that this wonderful improvement did not cost the city a cent but was done at the expense of the Plainfield Street Railway Company as one of the returns for the franchise granted by the Common Council for the Second street extension of the company's lines. The work was done by Contractor Patsy Christmas who demonstrated the fact that he can build good roads as well as anybody else.

East Second street, from Park avenue to Richmond street, was macadamized a number of years ago by the city. Between Watchung avenue and Richmond street, it was in very poor condition this summer and has since been repaired by the city. East of Richmond street to a point a hundred yards east of Netherwood avenue where the street ends, Second street has heretofore been in wretched condition. Nobody drove or rode there that was not absolutely compelled to, while property along that line felt the effect of such a poor roadway.

One of the conditions secured by the Council, in granting the franchise to the street railway company, was that the company should macadamize Second street from curb to curb. The work was done by Patsy Christmas under the supervision of Street Commissioner Gavett. There is six inches of stone in the centre of the road and four inches on the side. The road is now smooth and except at the extreme eastern part, the fine stone has been knitted into a solid surface by rains and traffic. The fine stone still shows at the eastern end but that will soon be rolled into a solid surface.

This improvement, combined with the introduction of the trolley, has developed the section of the First ward in a great measure. Second street is now in a better condition than East Front street and many drivers prefer the former for reaching that portion of the city.

TEA FOR BRIDE-ELECT.

Mrs. W. G. Wright Entertained in Honor of Miss Ethel VanBoskerck.

A very delightful tea was given Saturday afternoon by Mrs. William G. Wright, of West Eighth street in honor of Miss Ethel VanBoskerck, whose marriage with William S. Tyler of this city next Wednesday will be one of the most interesting social events of the season. The house was prettily decorated throughout with pink and white chrysanthemums, the same colors prevailing in the dining room and table decorations.

Mrs. Wright and Miss VanBoskerck were assisted in receiving by Mrs. German, a sister of Mrs. Wright. Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Daniel Ginna presided at the table, assisted by Mrs. Eugene Moore, the Misses Maude and Edith VanBoskerck, Miss Shroeder and Miss Reinhart.

Death of Mrs. Giddis.

The death of Mrs. Phoebe Giddis, of Greenbrook road, occurred Monday after a lingering illness. She was 59 years of age, and was well known in this vicinity. A husband and several children survive her. The funeral services will be held Thursday noon next at 12 o'clock from the house 29 Greenbrook road, and at 2:30 o'clock from the Baptist church at Mt. Bethel. Rev. Geo. Bowers will officiate.

Funeral of Thomas Cokley.

The funeral services of Thomas Cokley, aged seventy years, of Mt. Bethel, who died last Friday at the hospital, were held Sunday afternoon from the Baptist church at Mt. Bethel. Rev. Mr. Gibb, pastor, officiated, assisted by Rev. George Bowers. Interment took place in the church cemetery close by the church.

Thanksgiving Ev Dance.

An informal dance will be given at the Park Club Thanksgiving Eve, at which time the members and their friends will have an opportunity to enjoy the usual good time given at this place.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

It is a pleasure to announce that we are to have "The Little Minister" once again. The play has achieved the success of the century. It will be presented by Charles Frohman's company at Music Hall next Tuesday evening, 28th inst. The remarkable success it has met with is well known in this city, and there has been a great many inquiries as to whether it would be seen here this season. The novel has been very widely read and the dramatization has been made by the author, Mr. Barrie, who has, it is said, made a beautiful play, retaining all of the peculiar characters and types of the beautiful Scotch story. Reserved seat tickets are now on sale at the box office.

* * * * *

Cissie Loftus has made such a tremendous hit in her unique idea of doubling her matchless performance at both the Proctor theatres, that she retained for her inimitable specialty this week at both Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre and the Pleasure Palace, Fifty-eighth street and Third avenue. She will be seen twice a day in each theatre, afternoon and evening, and although the task would appear irksome to some, the energetic Cissie does not find it in any way annoying. In her peculiar specialty, there is no better impersonator than Cissie Loftus and her imitations are marvels of reproductions in their fidelity to the mannerisms of the originals. She will appear in vaudeville only at Mr. Proctor's two theatres.

HUNTED PEANUTS.

An Enjoyable Sociable Held at Hope Chapel Monday Night.

A sociable was held in Hope chapel last Monday under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the chapel. An enjoyable evening was spent. A peanut hunt was the feature of the evening's entertainment, in which Miss Konzert was the most successful. Other games followed and the serving of refreshments brought the social to a close.

The committee in charge consisted of Miss Laura Hazzlitter, Miss Bella Slorah, Miss Carrie Konzert, Frank Marsh and John Evans.

Borough Marshal Got the Watch.

Chief Marshal Campbell, of the borough, who contested for a gold watch offered by the Reform Club officers in connection with their fair held last week, succeeded in getting the watch. He collected and turned in $178, while his opponent only turned over $12 30.

Not a Contestant.

In justice to Chief Grant, who was announced as one of the contestants for the gold watch offered by the managers of the Reform Club fair, it should be stated that owing to his position as a city official he could not contest, hence he made no effort to collect money.

Barrel of Flour for Pastor.

A number of the members of the Calvary Baptist church called on their pastor, Rev. Scott Wallace, East Third street, and presented him with a barrel of flour. It was gracefully received. The evening was then spent in a social way.

Fourth Ward Republican Club.

After the election the Fourth ward Republicans will organize a club, the object being to take steps to awaken renewed interest in politics affairs and better prepare for the Presidential campaign.

Net Profits of Church Fair.

The net profits of the German Lutheran church fair held last week will be about $170. Thus far it has reached $160 and the returns from all tickets are not yet in.

Educate Your Bowels With Cascarets.

Candy Cathartic, cure constipation forever. 10c, 25c. If C. C. C. fail, druggists refund money.

A Lake Sale.

A cake sale will be held by the Women's Guild of Holy Cross church next Saturday morning from 10 to 12 o'clock, in the guild room of the church.

Rev. John Reid, Jr., of Great Falls, Mont., recommended Ely's Cream Balm to me. I can emphasize his statement, "It is a positive cure for catarrh if used as directed."—Rev. Francis W. Poole, Pastor Central Pres. Church, Helena, Mont.

After using Ely's Cream Balm six weeks I believe myself cured of catarrh. Joseph Stewart, Grand Ave., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Sold by druggists at 50 cts., or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

J. B. Smith, of West Front street, is visiting at Rockville Centre, L. I.

Miss Laura Badin, of North avenue, is visiting relatives in New York.

Mrs. G. R. VanDerhoef, of West Front street, has been visiting friends at Orange.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

PROSPECT OF GAS AT FIFTY CENTS.

Mayor Invites Promoter to Appear Before Common Council.

THE DR. CHISHOLM SYSTEM.

IT IS IN PRACTICAL USE IN SEVERAL CITIES NOW.

San Francisco Has the System in Use and Gets First-class Gas for 65 Cents—Now Being Promoted in Passaic—McLean Will Appear Before the Common Council Here Next Monday Evening.

Now that the question of cheaper gas has become so prominent an issue in Plainfield, the city has promises of several rival concerns who will arrive to secure a franchise to become competitors of the old gas company which has had a monopoly of supplying the commodity for many years.

During the past two weeks considerable correspondence has passed between Mayor Rockfellow and Andrew McLean, who is at present located in Passaic promoting a company that desires to establish a plant there that will supply gas for 50 cents per thousand cubic feet. The system under which it is proposed to furnish this cheap gas is the invention of Dr. Chisholm. Mr. McLean's enterprises suponded the company that wanted to furnish $1 gas in Passaic, and the latest project seems in a fair way of materializing.

McLean is anxious to introduce the system in Plainfield, and it has been in this connection that he has been corresponding with Mayor Rockfellow. The Chisholm system is in practical use in several cities in the country—notably San Francisco, where it gives perfect satisfaction, the rate charged there being 65 cents per thousand feet.

Monday Mayor Rockfellow sent word to Mr. McLean to come to Plainfield next Monday night to appear before the Common Council and explain his ideas. Whether or not McLean will try to unsurp the field for cheaper gas opened up by the formation of the Peoples' Gas Company by local capitalists, remains to be seen. If he does there probably will be a fight between the two enterprises, both of which want to furnish the commodity at cheap rates. It is known, however, that the Peoples' Company officials have been conferring with representatives of the Dr. Chisholm system, with a view of adopting it themselves.

In addition to the Chisholm process there is still another company that has been corresponding with the Mayor. That is a company which claims to have a perfect system of making gas out of refuse and garbage, thus not only acting as a disposal of such things for the municipality but giving them a great profit. They may be heard from later.

FUNERAL OF PATRICK T. KEELY.

Services at St. Mary's Church Monday Morning Well Largely Attended.

The funeral of the late Patrick T. Keely was held from his home on LaGrande avenue, Monday, at 8:30 o'clock, and from St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Father Westman conducted the requiem mass.

The church was crowded with the many friends of the late Mr. Keely, while floral offerings of unusual number and beauty were arranged about the casket. The interment at St. Mary's cemetery followed.

The pall-bearers were Michael Hughes, Patrick Kisly, Jr., John Kane and William Madden, of this city, Wm. Nolan and M. Ginvochia, of South Orange.

To Enlarge Meat Market.

Fred Endress, the West Front street butcher, has completed plans to enlarge his shop, and in a short time the work of adding to it will be commenced. It is his intention to build an addition in the rear and then move his ice boxes further back, thus giving the much desired additional room in front.

Rahway Licenses to Date Jan. 1st.

The Board of Excise Commissioners of Rahway have sent out notices to all saloonkeepers that it will be necessary to take out new licenses if they wish to con inue business after Jan. 1st, 1900. They propose to have all licenses granted at the same time. The saloonkeepers will have rebates for unexpired licenses.

Light From Underground Wires.

The Plainfield Electric Light Company is now preparing to light the business part of the city by the underground system. The finishing touches are being put on in the shape of a top piece for the poles, which curve outward the necessary distance. From these pieces the light apparatus will be suspended.

Harvest Home for Hospital.

Next Friday at Muhlenberg Hospital there will be a Home celebration, and everyone is reminded that there are many things needed at this institution. Already donations are arriving and there is promise of an abundance of good things.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

No.	Cures	Prices.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Gripings, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Facache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
18	Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Asthma, Difficult Breathing	.25
22	Ear Discharges	.25
23	Scrofula, Swellings and Ulcers	.25
24	General Debility, Weakness	.25
26	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Diseases	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
29	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
31	Painful Periods, with Spasms	.25
32	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitation	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
35	Chronic Congestions, Headaches	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists or Mailed Free.

Sold by druggists, or sent post on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL

"THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding. Itching or Protruding. Also for Burns or Bruises. The relief is immediate—the cure certain. PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent post on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

Eureka Harness Oil is the best preservative of new leather and the best renovator of old leather. It adds years to harness and protects. Use on your best harness, your old harness, your every-day harness, and they will not only look better but wear longer. Sold everywhere in cans—all sizes from half pints to five gallons. Made by STANDARD OIL CO.

Eureka Harness Oil

Nasal CATARRH

In all its stages there should be cleanliness.

Ely's Cream Balm

Cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased membrane. It cures catarrh and drives away a cold in the head quickly.

Cream Balm is placed into the nostrils, spreads over the membrane and is absorbed. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. It is not drying—does not produce sneezing. Large size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.

ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

DIED.

BORNMANN—At Scotch Plains, Nov. 15, 1899, Rhenora H. C., widow of the late Jacob Bornmann, in her 68th year.

KEELY—Suddenly in this city, November 20, 1899, at his late residence, 289 LaGrande avenue, Patrick T. Keely, age 35 years.

KING—At Newark, N. J., on Nov. 16th, 1899, Rebecca Wyckoff, wife of George M. King, and mother of Mrs. C. F. Nesley.

WANTS AND OFFERS.

LADY stenographer, experienced, desires position outside N. Y.; excellent references. Address P. A. S., 501 W. 142nd St., N. Y. 11 29 22 25 c

Machinist's Leg Injured.

On Saturday Arthur Moore, a machinist, employed at the Walter Scott Printing Machine Works, met with an accident which will detain him from work for a short time. A heavy piece of machinery accidentally fell on his leg, injuring it severely.

How Are Your Kidneys?

Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Pills cure all kidney ills. Sample free. Address Dr. Hobbs Medicine Co., Chicago or N. Y.

BARNETT A SUICIDE.

Investigation Dispels the Stories About a Murder.

County Physician Westcott viewed, in Rahway, Monday, the body of Horace C. Barnett, who was found dead near the ravine known as "Job's Hollow," in Clark township. He investigated the case, but called no witnesses. He gave his decision that Barnett came to his death by a wound back of his right ear by his own hand. This dispels the murder mystery.

Barnett was left considerable money some years ago. His health was bad and he went to California, where he spent fifteen years on an apparently profitable small fruit farm. He returned three years ago and lived with an aged aunt.

Miss Thorn, of East Second street, has taken a position as saleswoman in a local store.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE,

Between Front and Second streets.

Tinners,

Plumbers

Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,

Brick and Portable Furnace

Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,

Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues, First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 261 West Front street, to South side of Somerset street, first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

A Free Trip to Paris!

Reliable person of good address wanted in every county to travel, advertise, and distribute circulars, etc., for a large manufacturing house. Salary $75 per month and expenses. Position permanent. Address, MANAGER, 324 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

The PATENT RECORD, Baltimore, Md.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE

A COMPLETE NOVEL IN EACH NUMBER

$3.00 PER YEAR 25c. PER COPY

FOR SALE BY ALL NEWSDEALERS

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, PUBLISHERS PHILADELPHIA

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

a new open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the toncorial line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue,

Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale or Exchange Money to loan on Approved Security

U. S. CONSUL PREACHED

REV. WALTER GRIFFEN IN TRIN TY REFORMED CHURCH PULPIT.

Formerly a Pastor in Brooklyn, but U. S. Consul at Lamoges, at France—Believed in Preventing Sin Before it is Started.

A good sized audience assembled at Trinity Reformed church last Sunday to listen to Rev. Walter Griffen, formerly pastor of a Reformed church, Brooklyn, but now U. S. Consul to Lamoges, France. He is for the present stopping with his family on LaGrande avenue, and kindly consented to preach last evening. He is a highly interesting speaker. His text was taken from the Gospel of John and that part which refers to Phillip not knowing Christ just before the crucifixion. The speaker pointed out the sadness contained in the story, how Christ had been with the dicipies so long, and yet, at the very last hour Phillip did not know him.

Mr. Griffen dwelt upon the importance of one having a knowledge of Christ and walking closely with Him. He admired the efforts made to rescue lost souls, after they started on the downward road, but admired a thousand times more the salvation of a soul before that down ward course was started. He believed thoroughly in preventing a life of sin before it was commenced, in putting all effort at the source, and then it would not be so difficult to rescue the lost soul later on, after it was thoroughly steeped in sin.

During the sermon the speaker referred to the brotherly feeling exercised between the British and Boers when not actually fighting. He believed that the recent Spanish-American war and the South African war was opening fields for greater Christian usefulness, when Christ will be brought to those who know Him not, and he believed that there will be a grand transformation scene when Christ is received by these people as their Saviour.

FIRE DESTROYS A HOUSE.

Louis Sprigg's Home Burned While the Family Were Away Early Saturday Evening.

Last Saturday evening about 5:45 o'clock Godfrey Herold, an engineer employed at the Smalley Bros' stone crusher in the mountain, discovered a fire at the home of Louis Sprigg, on Howard street. When the fire was seen the house was enveloped in flames and there was little chance of saving anything, owing to the fact that there was no one home. Herold, who was at his home not far from Greenbrook road, telephoned to box No. 143, corner of Somerset street and Grandview avenue, and sent in an alarm from that box. Soon afterward, an alarm was sent in from box 145, Hudson Lane and Somerset street, which was the proper box.

The fire department was quick to arrive at the scene of the fire, and they soon afterward had plenty of water on the the seething mass of flames, but the firemen at once saw that there was no chance of saving the house and contents, as the fire had such a start. They then confined their efforts to saving adjoining property.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. Mrs. Sprigg was down town shopping when the fire broke out, and she knew nothing of it until she was on her way home and was informed of the fact by Chief Campbell.

The house and contents are a total loss. It is understood that everything was covered by a sufficient amount of insurance. The fire department did excellent work, although they were unable to save the house or contents. It was fully an hour's work for them before the fire was extinguished.

The insurance on the house is $500, while the contents are insured for $416, which fully covers the loss.

WHEEL PASSED OVER HIS LEG.

Dr. Herbert Fell While Trying to Jump on Fire Apparatus.

Last Saturday evening when the alarm of fire was sent in for the fire which destroyed John Stewart's barn on West Fourth street, Dr. Herbert met with a very severe accident. He happened to be at fire headquarters and when the truck rolled out of the house he tried to jump on. In doing so he slipped and fell and a rear wheel of the heavy apparatus passed over his right foot and left leg, crippling him. Some of his friends were nearby and he was taken at once to Dr. Long's office, where he was properly treated for his injuries. Although he is able to be out, he can scarcely hobble about. His leg and foot are swollen to unusual size and it will be a long time before he will recover from the effects of the accident.

Fined $5 for Indecent Language.

The trial of Montania Arrowsmith, charged by Mrs. Myra Harlow, of South Plainfield, with using indecent and threatening language toward her, was heard before Justice Storms at New Market on Saturday morning. The testimony showed that the defendant was guilty and she was fined $5. W. S. Anglemon appeared for the plaintiff and William Newcorn for the defendant.

STORIES OF SANTIAGO

TWO MARKSMEN WHO SILENCED A SPANISH GUNBOAT.

Lieut. Muir and Gun Sling Jack Who Picked Off Spanish Gunners so Rapidly That the Enemy's Soldier's Gave Up Attempting to Fire It.

The Second Infantry, stationed in "the Angle," were much bothered by an old muzzle-loader, which the Spaniards had been firing from the nearest corner of Santiago. Every now and then a ball from it would be dropped close to the trenches of the Second, and the men who had to dodge didn't like it. Through their glasses they could see the spaniards, who were standing around and evidently chuckling over their work. So they sent to the left of the regimental line with a request that Lieut. Muir and "Gun Sling Jack" be sent to pick off the Spaniards from the gun that was worrying them.

"The Angle" was a sharp bend in the trenches, the nearest point in the lines of the Second to the big black guns across the plain. Lieut. Muir and Jack came up. Just as they reached the corner a solid shot burled itself in the hill-side two feet back of the line. The Lieutenant regarded dubiously the hole made by the Spanish ball.

"I was thinking of lying right about there for a sighting shot or two. However, lightning never strikes twice in the same place; come on, Jack," he said.

Lieut. Muir holds army records for shooting, so does Gun Sling Jack; the two of combined would be a match. What that name may be, few of us could say without a look at the First Sergeant's rollbook. For one man that Jack's real name, the next minute, there were a dozen at Santiago who knew him only by his popular nickname. The officer and the enlisted man lay down together on their backs. Then securing their Krags between their crossed feet, they threw the left hand under the muzzle and sighted. Then, resting in this way holding their rifles firmly in place. This is called the Texas grip and is invariably used in the long range shooting. There was a preliminary squinting and two or three tentative shots the Lieutenant asked,

"What do you make it, Jack?"

"Eleven hundred yards, sir."

"That's about it. Let it go at that."

One shot which came while they were sighting and three flew over the pair almost disturbed their equanimity, but they soon paid the enemy well for that. As a Spanish soldier was getting ready to roll another big ball in at the black muzzle pointing their way, the American marksmen cut loose. The Spaniard over the way wavered for a time, let slip the shot, as if reluctant to part with it, and then toppled over.

"Dead, I guess. I don't know which of us got him, but he's landed all right," said the Lieutenant.

Quickly another man lifted the shot to roll it in, but he, too, went at quickly dropped. Six others tried to load the gun from time to time. They were picked off as fast as they stepped up. In the next hour the American gunt it was like target shooting.

"Eleven hundred yards, a Texas grip and a fixed target—this is easy," observed the officer pleasantly.

But the next man never came. Eight good-men lost, and the certainty that more would go the same way completely discouraging for the Spanish gunts. That night, after a long, lone deliberation, the Spanish Captain of the big gun retired to a side room in a cafe in Santiago and blew out his brains. He could see no other way out of it. The Lieutenant and Jack hovered over the Angle all the next day to see that the big muzzle-loader was not again brought into the game. Then, getting no action from across the way the pair marched back to the left of the regimental line and went about their usual duties.

The gun was never again used by the Spaniards. It is now in possession of the United States, among those which are to be made into bronze medals, they say, for the Santiago veterans. While they are stamping them out they might mill out a couple of good-sized ones for Lieut. Muir and Gun Sling Jack. This would be approved by the men of the Second, at least.

"Flying Squadrones."

Such people are so far out of touch with modern life that they surprise and disgust those who, without intimate acquaintance, try to give them assistance, says William Goodell Frost. A friend in a breezy mountain top, and a young hunter, whose woodcraft had won my admiration. Delicately I touched upon the question of education.

"Can you write numbers?"

"Reckon I can write some numbers."

Then on a piece of bark I drew the nine digits in their usual order. Next came the combination of figures, and I included the date 1897.

"I don't guess I can tell that that."

"Do you know what 1897 means?"

"Hit's the year, hain't it?"

"But why is this year called 1897? It is 1897 years since what?"

"I never heard tell."

Another instance came to light through the distribution of reading matter. When I was in the Kentucky mountains I distributed a barrel of copies of the New York Independent, and got much satisfaction in observing the eagerness with which they were taken. A little later I discovered that these simple folk could not comprehend the fact that I discussed in that excellent periodical, and that their eagerness was only to secure paper for the walls of their cabins! Yet in many places a newspaper printed paper will be cherished. More than once one of our extension lecturers has been interested in attempting to throw into the fire the paper which had been wrapped around some article.

"Don't burn that, stranger, hit moughtn't have some news in hit."

So, too, it is pitiful to see how helpless these people are in estimating the things of the outside world. The story is quite credible of the mountaineer in Georgia who inquired why the folks of the country town were not more "forrerd up" over the Spanish war. "If have been giv out in our settlement," said he, "thet them Spanish has flyin' squadrones, and we'low that if one of them things should fight in our parts they would be as hard on us as the reb."

HOLY CROSS PEOPLE MET

RECEPTION HELD FRIDAY BY THE WOMEN'S GUILD.

Affair Took Place in the Parish House—Rector and Mrs. Downey Receive—Entertaining Programme Was Rendered.

Friday p. m. in the parish house of the Church of the Holy Cross there was a home coming of a reunited church family. The affair was arranged by the social and sales committee of the Woman's Guild of the church, and they made every effort to have the reception all that it should be. They decorated the large room with plenty of red, white and blue bunting and chrysanthemums, while in the pretty alcove there was arranged a place where Rector Downey and his wife received the people and made them feel perfectly welcome.

As the members of the parish arrived they were met at the door by the Women's Guild who gave them a cordial greeting, after which they were introduced to the pastor and his wife. Then followed the social features, interspersed by a well arranged programme of music and recitations. The programme opened with the rendition of "The Crusaders," by Pinsuti, by the choir, under the direction of Choirmaster George Hosking. Then Mr. Hosking sang effectively "The Three Maids of Lea," after which Maurice Audley gave a violin selection. This was followed with a recitation by Miss Rita Pond. The next number was a cornet solo. "The Lost Chord," by Oxen Smith, and then the closing number, "With Horse and Hound," by A. J. Caldticott, was given by the choir. Every number on the programme was greatly enjoyed by all and each one taking part received an encore.

After the rendition of the programme the women served refreshments to all, and then there was a continuation of the social features. There were nearly three hundred persons present. A little later in the winter another reception similar to that of last Friday will be held.

NOT WANTED HERE.

Reading, Pa., Police Captured a Pickpocket Who They Thought Might be Wanted Here.

A few days ago Chief Grant received a letter from the chief of police of Reading, Pa., inquiring about a man named W. W. Troy, who had been arrested in that city, having in his possession certain papers which led the police to believe that he was wanted here. The papers were dated Plainfield and showed that he was collecting money for a colored church The man was arrested in a saloon trying to pick pockets, and when asked for his name said it was Jackson. Later when the papers were found and the name of Troy appeared on them, he admitted that that was his name.

Chief Grant replied to the inquiry by stating that the man was not wanted in this city. He was arrested here once, but the character of the woman who made the charge was such that the City Judge would not entertain the complaint.

DR. BUNDY AGAIN.

This Time He is a Defendant in a Suit for Damages on Account of a Dog Bite.

The suit for damages brought by William Miller against Dr. Bundy, before Justice Clark of Scotch Plains, was tried yesterday. Francis J. Blatz, of the law firm of Murphy & Blatz, appeared for Miller and John Frecht, of Somerville, for Dr. Bundy. The case has been adjourned several times. The damages were for injuries received by Miller from a dog owned by the doctor. He was bitten on the arm in trying to deliver a message at the house. Frecht asked for a nonsuit for his client but the request was not granted and the case was tried. No defence was made. The Judge reserved his decision for a week.

Death of a Former Plainfielder.

Thursday at her home in Newark occurred the death of Mrs. Rebecca W. Laing King, wife of George M. King. Mrs. King's death was due to Bright's disease, of which the deceased had been a great sufferer for several months. She was the daughter of the late Edward Laing, and was formerly a resident of Plainfield, living on East Second street, near Washington street. A husband and three daughters survive her. George M. King, her husband, is a son of John S. King, of 226 West Second street, Plainfield. The funeral services were held Sunday, November 10th, at 2 p. m., from her late residence, 573 Bergen street, and were largely attended. Rev. Mr. Dyatt, pastor of the Hill Street M. E. church, officiated, and spoke tender words of comfort to the bereaved house. hold and a quartette sang two favorite hymns of the departed one. The floral display, of relatives and friends, was very beautiful, and as the deceased lay in an open oak casket, she looked as though she were only asleep. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery, between Elizabeth and Newark.

Dr. Frank French, recently a graduate of the New York Dental College, has opened an office on Craig place.

COUNTRY CLUB WILL ENDS ITS CAREER.

Liabilities Greatly Exceed the Amount of Assets.

A MEETING HELD FRIDAY.

DIRECTORS CONSIDERED QUESTION OF WINDING UP OF CLUB.

No Attempt Will be Made to Reorganize the Club—A New Organization Possible—Club House May Be Taken by Hillside Tennis and Golf Club—Nearly All the Creditors Are Members of the Club.

The Union County Country Club is practically a thing of the past. Friday night the directors of that defunct organization held a meeting in the club house on West Seventh street to talk over the situation. No action was taken, but the directors learned some interesting facts.

For years since the club was organized it was run at a loss, and the deficit every year was made up by several of the members who put their hands in their pockets and quietly put the club on its feet again. After this went on for several years they tired of constantly boosting the club financially, and so the organization was allowed to die.

The clubhouse is owned by Charles J. Fisk, Pliny Fisk and H. G. Runkle, all members of the club. The furniture and general equipment of the club house, however, is the property of club. It costs in the neighborhood of $15,000 to properly equip the place but a forced sale of the goods would hardly bring a tenth of that amount.

The interested parties will not make public the full amount of the assets and liabilities of the club but admit that the latter are greatly in excess of the assets. The indebtedness of the club is all to members or former members of the club as all bills in this city were settled before the organization collapsed.

There is practically no chance that the Union County Country Club will make any attempt to reorganize and infuse any young blood in its veins. The directors have decided that the best plan will be to close out the affairs of the club and divide the assets among the creditors as evenly as possible.

The club house, not being the property of the club, will still remain and nothing has yet been decided as to what is to become of it. The Casino is very well equipped for dances and is the chosen place for all the society affairs. It is also a favorite place for holding concerts and entertainments and it would be sorely missed. The club house proper is well fitted for the demands of a gentlemen's club. It is possible that an attempt may be made to form a new organization which will try to run the club house more successfully than the old one did.

It has been suggested that the club house be taken by the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club and run as a town club house of that popular organization. The old tennis courts in the rear could then be utilized. The club house at the links is so far from the centre of town that the winter will find comparatively few who will care to venture there. This club house, practically in the centre of the city, would be a very convenient gathering place for the members and would greatly increase the social element of the club. No action has been taken on this plan, however.

NEW COMPOUND ENGINES.

Being Tested by the Central Between Roselle and Jersey City.

The Jersey Central Railroad has received two new compound engines from the Baldwin Locomotive Works, in Philadelphia, which are now being tested between Roselle and Jersey City. These engines are numbered 582 and 583 and are much heavier than those now in use on the fast lines. After a fair test if they prove to be all right they are to be assigned to run the Lakewood express trains. The company have an order placed at the same works for several new compound engines, but the prospects of getting them very soon is slim owing to a great rush on hand. These new engines when delivered will be used on the fast trains on the main line.

ATTENTION TO FOURTH WARD.

More Street Improvements Have Been Made This Year Than Previously.

During the past year more street work has been accomplished in the Fourth ward than during previous years. The Council has seemed to realize that the ward pays a large percentage of the city tax and its residents are entitled to some consideration for it. People living in the vicinity of Hope chapel have also been considered, and the laying of substantial stone walks, repairing of gutters, etc., have added not a little to their comfort. The people now hope that the good work will continue, and that they will receive as much attention as other wards.

William Pangborn, of Princeton, spent Sunday in Plainfield with relatives.

FOR THEATRICAL TASTES

GOOD ATTRACTIONS THAT WILL SOON APPEAR IN MUSIC HALL.

Several Shows Engaged That Have Metropolitan Records—"The Little Minister" Will be Here November 28 h.

Manager Maze Edwards, of Music Hall, has secured a splendid list of dramatic entertainments for the coming three weeks and that our readers may be informed of the many good things prepared for them in the amusement line, we take pleasure in publishing the same, with dates of their presentation — Friday, November 24th, "The Bowery After Dark," a first-class melo-drama, showing actual life in New York's famed resort and thoroughfare. To add to the reality of the scenes, the management have specially engaged the celebrated "Chuck Conners," the acknowledged "King of the Bowery," who personates one of the principal characters of the drama.

On Tuesday, November 28th, "The Little Minister" will be given with the same splendid Frohman company that appeared here last season, and on Wednesday, the 29th inst. "Mile Fid," the famous French play, will be seen. These two important performances will undoubtedly attract much attention. In the French play, Miss Marie Wainwright and Miss Alice Judson, two of the handsomest women on the stage, appear in principal roles and Aubrey Boucicault, son of the famous actor and author, portrays the leading character.

For Thanksgiving Day, Lincoln J Carter's greatest and best play "Under The Dome" is the offering for both matinee and night. It will be well worth seeing.

Saturday, 3 December 24, "The Dazzler," which at one time was considered the premier of all money making nonsensicalities, will be seen in new form, Monday, December 4th, the Diamond Bros., Minstrels hold forth. Thursday, December 7th, J. K. Emmett and Lottie Gilson appear in "Fritz" and on Saturday, December 9th, "Peck's Bad Boy" comes in new attire, new everything except the name and there will also be a special matinee for ladies and children on that day.

Manager Edwards will be pleased to receive and fill orders for any of the performances here announced, and reserved seat tickets can be had on application at box office. Those desiring choice locations for Thanksgiving or either of the two important performances of following week would do well to make application without delay.

ENDEAVORERS' WORK.

Local Union Leaders Met Thursday and Planned Work for the Holiday Season.

The executive committee of the local union of the Christian Endeavor Society met at the home of A. D. Lake on Dunellen Thursday. There was a good attendance and much interest was manifested in the meeting. Arrangements were perfected for the union to attend the meetings to be held on Bible week, commencing December 10th, when Rev. W. O. Shelton will conduct the conference.

Arrangements were also made for a young people's meeting in this city on Thanksgiving, immediately preceding the regular services on that day, like unto it, and it is planned through the United States can testify to its intensity and spontaneity. The cause which has produced it is not far to seek. A community and friendship has been apparent for two or three years. Even the excitement about the Venezuelan complications failed to disturb it; and when it looked as if Continental Europe was disposed to enter the contest between the United States and Spain, not an iota of sympathy for Spanish interests as with a view of humiliating the United States, there appeared a genuine sympathetic interest which extended from the humble in the street to the Cabinet Minister at Whitehall. We pitied the fall of Spain, but we could not help feeling that our kinsmen were taking up the cause from which this country in the past has spent so much and made such gigantic sacrifices. As became a neutral, we were unmoved spectators of events, until that whisper arose which stirred us all to our depths.

When it became evident that an Anglo-Saxon foot on the throw a Latin alliance into arms against the United States, the voice of Great Britain was unmistakably heard, and we showed plainly that in the main in the event Great Britain must be reckoned with, and any attempt to wrest from our kinsmen the gains won by her sons ashore and afloat must be combated. Continental Europe, would have to meet the whole Anglo-Saxon race in armed alliance. The storm passed, but that little proof of kinship did more than a torrent of words to establish cordial relations between the United States and Great Britain. Our kinsmen stood for us in the first time, what we have never doubted over here, that, differ as we may between ourselves, neither of us would ever see the flag of Anglo-Saxon freedom dipped on either side of the Atlantic to an overwhelming combination of Continental Europe.—Lord Charles Beresford in Pall Mall Magazine.

Another Depew.

Mr. Stubb—Maria, what that tramp after that was preaching so loud out in the yard?

Mrs. Stubb—He was after dinner.

Mr. Stubb—Him! one of those after-dinner speakers, I suppose.—Chicago News.

A POLICE STORY:

REALISTIC INCIDENTS ATTACHED TO ONE OF NEW YORK'S CHARITIES.

How the Idea of the "Night Refuge For Friendless Women" in New York Was Born in the Heart of Woman.

Go into any station of a busy police precinct of New York and on the wall, by the side of the sergeant's desk, is a big placard announcing in fat black letters that the Night Refuge for Friendless Women is to be found at No. 144 West Fifteenth street. The placard is the first object that strikes the eye of the homeless creature as she opens the door of the station, says Leslie's Weekly, and she reads these words: "Open all night for the reception of those who need succor. No questions asked, no cards or letters necessary to secure shelter and food."

"On a winter night we'll sometimes have more than a dozen women come here for that purpose. At last point that placard, and they read it and go right out, and we know that they'll find a bed. There was one woman, I remember, came to the house during the bitter storm, no coat, boots worn in holes, nothing but a thin cotton dress and a battered old hat; face all blue from cold as if she hadn't eaten anything in days; starved with the cold, weak for want of food—just the usual sort. She was going to sit down somewhere when she caught sight of that pasteboard. She clutched hold of the rail and, brushing away the hair where it had fallen over her eyes, she began to read the address with her hand at her forehead—stupid like. Then she turned to me with the blind stare, and says, in the funny voice: 'Say, is there such places as that?' 'Yep,' says I. 'Where they give yer food and a bed just because yer need it?' 'Yep,' I says again.

"'And they don't ask yer no questions?'

"'That's about the size of it,' I tells her.

"'And don't want to know who you are? Or how many times you've been locked up? And don't want a certificate from the priest or minister? And won't turn yer away 'cos yer can't give no references from yer last place? Don't want to know who yer are, but take yer in, so long as you're unfortunate and poor?'

"I gave hes 'Yes' to all these questions.

"Then she turns and says: 'I'm glad I saw that placard. I'll try it. 'I ain't got any hope, but I'll try it. I've been turned down every'where I went, and I was just going to see whether the North river was kinder.' She went out," adds the sergeant, "and I saw no more of her. But I afterwards heard that they'd taken her in and found work for her somewhere."

It was on a bitter day in the winter of 1876. That Mrs. Osborne, hurrying to her home through a by-street on the West Side, saw two girls huddling for shelter in a doorway. Something in the figure of the woman, something in the expression of their tear-worn eyes as they looked out upon the driving rain, stopped her on her way, and she went back and spoke to them. Their story was soon told. "We are two sisters. Our home is in Winston, Conn. Our people are poor, and have not enough food to feed us all, and so we came to New York to look for work and didn't find it. We are penniless and homeless and starving."

Within an hour the two women were housed in Mrs. Osborne's home. Within a week they had by her aid found employment. And out of the chance meeting with these two women arose the thought that there were other sisters in New York who were in the need as desperate; that here was the possibility of a work which might be carried to an endless good. "I will make this work the object of my life," she said, and never for a single instant in twenty years did she weaken in her purpose.

Blood Thicker Than Water.

That it exists there can be no doubt. Even to people on this side of the Atlantic it is apparent; and those who, like myself, have passed through the United States can testify to its intensity and spontaneity. The cause which has produced it is not far to seek. A community and friendship has been apparent for two or three years. Even the excitement about the Venezuelan complications failed to disturb it; and when it looked as if Continental Europe was disposed to enter the contest between the United States and Spain, not an iota of sympathy for Spanish interests as with a view of humiliating the United States, there appeared a genuine sympathetic interest which extended from the humble in the street to the Cabinet Minister at Whitehall. We pitied the fall of Spain, but we could not help feeling that our kinsmen were taking up the cause from which this country in the past has spent so much and made such gigantic sacrifices. As became a neutral, we were unmoved spectators of events, until that whisper arose which stirred us all to our depths.

When it became evident that an Anglo-Saxon foot on the throw a Latin alliance into arms against the United States, the voice of Great Britain was unmistakably heard, and we showed plainly that in the main in the event Great Britain must be reckoned with, and any attempt to wrest from our kinsmen the gains won by her sons ashore and afloat must be combated. Continental Europe, would have to meet the whole Anglo-Saxon race in armed alliance. The storm passed, but that little proof of kinship did more than a torrent of words to establish cordial relations between the United States and Great Britain. Our kinsmen stood for us in the first time, what we have never doubted over here, that, differ as we may between ourselves, neither of us would ever see the flag of Anglo-Saxon freedom dipped on either side of the Atlantic to an overwhelming combination of Continental Europe.—Lord Charles Beresford in Pall Mall Magazine.

Another Depew.

Mr. Stubb—Maria, what that tramp after that was preaching so loud out in the yard?

Mrs. Stubb—He was after dinner.

Mr. Stubb—Him! one of those after-dinner speakers, I suppose.—Chicago News.

P. NGKY WAS VERY EASY

DEFEATED SATURDAY AFTERNOON BY ALIS FOOTBALL ELEVEN.

The Plainfield Boys Won by a Score of 11 to 0—Pingry's Consolidated Sent No Team Play Interference.

The Pingry's Consolidated, a football team, composed of graduates and students of Pingry's School, Elizabeth, were defeated Saturday afternoon on their own grounds by the Alis football team of this city, by a score of 11 to 0. The Alis boys played a ragged game, not up to their usual standard of team play.

Alis won the toss and chose the southern goal and the wind. Pingry kicked off to Waring. Alis carried the ball back to the centre of the field on a series of line plays and, after three futile attempts to gain, Phillips kicked to Pingry's thirty yard line.

Pingry's backs ran hard and well, but there was an entire absence of team work. After carrying the ball ten yards Pingry was held for downs and the visitors took the ball. Taylor and the Alis backs made good gains. Then Cuming circled the left end for 20 yards. Phillips bucked centre for six yards and a touchdown after seven minutes of play. He kicked the goal. Score, Alis, 6; Pingry's Consolidated, 0.

Pingry kicked off again and the ball travelled back into Pingry's territory. The first half of fifteen minutes ended with the ball in Pingry's possession.

The second half was of ten minutes duration. One important change was made in the line-up of the home team. Underwood, of the Orange A. C., going in at left half. Dumont kicked off to the ten yard line. Then Underwood scored a touchdown. Phillips was called upon for goals after each, and carried the ball back to the centre of the field. He had no interference but went into the line wherever opportunity offered. Then the ball was lost on a fumble. After returning the ball ten yards, Alis lost the ball on downs.

Manvel, once champion interscholastic runner, was at left end for Pingry. He was not able to get around the ends, being downed each time for a loss. Pingry finally gave up the ball on downs.

Phillips hit the line for five yards. A double pass from Homer Smith to Green netted twenty yards. With the ball on Pingry's twenty-five yard line, Cuming circled the right end for eight yards. The quarter back trick was then worked successfully by Phillips and Dumont, and the latter went the remaining seventeen yards for the second touchdown for the visitors. Phillips failed to kick the goal. With less than a minute to play, the game was called on account of darkness.

The line-up and summary:

Woolston	right end	Wade
Waring	right tackle	Green
Kilner	right guard	Smith
Smith, G	centre	Dow
Cuming	left guard	Homer Smith
Taylor	left tackle	Gould
Smith, H	left end	Manvel
Dumont	quarterback	S. Brown
Green	right halfback	Underwood
Phillips	left halfback	Cuming
	fullback	Phillips

Score—Alis, 11; Pingry's Consolidated, 0. Touchdown—Phillips, Dumont. Goals from touchdown—Phillips. Referee, Willis Wood of Plainfield. Umpire—A. B. Atwater, of Elizabeth.

FUEL FOR THE FLAMES.

Barn Stowed Full of Kindling Wood Burned Saturday Night in the West End.

A small barn with the lower story stored full of kindling wood gave the city fire department some excitement Saturday evenings. In some unknown manner a blaze started in the lower floor of the barn on John street, between West Fourth and Essex streets, belonging to Philip Stewart, sexton of Hope chapel.

An alarm was sent in from box 34 by Patrolman Cannagan. Within a minute after the sending of the alarm, No. 3 hose company was on the scene and had a stream of water on the fire.

The lower story of the barn was filled with kindling wood and the fire penetrated to the centre of it. It was necessary to separate the heap of wood and it was half an hour before Chief Doane was satisfied that no fire remained. The shell of the barn still remained. While the fire lasted it was a hot one and made a brilliant blaze. A large crowd was attracted to the scene.

The loss is estimated at $100, while the barn was covered by insurance to the amount of $200. One of Mr. Stewart's sons used the barn for his experiments with batteries and other electrical apparatus. It is that the fire may have been caused in some manner by chemicals or by spontaneous combustion in some of his supplies.

A Fractious Horse.

A spirited horse driven by Mrs. C. L. Wright, of this city, became frightened by a trolley car on West Front street about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The animal reared and plunged and finally fell upon its back near the curb opposite the store of Woodhull & Martin. It was assisted to its feet by Adam Fritz and other men. The wagon was not damaged and the horse escaped with a few bruises to its hind legs. Mrs. Wright displayed magnificent courage during the excitement and her nerve was commented upon by the spectators.

A BUTTERFLY SOCIABLE.

LADIES' CHRISTIAN WORK SOCIETY OF TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH.

A Social Function at This Popular Church That Proved a Delightful Affair —Buckwheat Cakes Made Butter Fly.

When the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church set about having a good time and incidentally coaxing a few dollars into the church treasury, they seldom fail of their undertaking. Such proved to be the case last Friday on the occasion of the butterfly sociable that was held in the lecture room of the church. There was not as good an attendance as had been anticipated. Supper, consisting of griddle cakes, made from Hecker's celebrated buckwheat, sausage, coffee, ice cream, etc., was served from 5:30 until 9 o'clock. After that hour the guests enjoyed themselves in social conversation and in becoming acquainted with those not regular attendants of the church. Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph.D., the pastor, was present to extend a cordial welcome to all and assist the ladies in making the evening a pleasant one. Butterflies made from various shades of crepe paper were conspicuous about the room, notably on the walls and chandeliers, while the ladies of the society present wore them in their hair. The menu cards, prepared by F. E. Smith, were quite unique, showing the design of a butterfly in one corner and beneath it the bill of fare.

The supper proved to be all that the ladies had claimed for it. The cakes were so delicious that they did indeed make the butter fly, while the sausage were done to a turn and proved palatable to even those whose digestions are not strangers to dyspepsia. During the evening a ladies' orchestra, consisting of Mrs. Buckley, piano; Mrs. Corle, cornet; Mrs. Saums, violin furnished excellent music by rendering a number of choice selections. The sociable was a delightful affair and will be cherished in the remembrance of all who attended as one of the many pleasant affairs of which Trinity Reformed church society is noted.

Much credit for the success of the sociable is due Mrs. E. T. VanWinkle, president of the Ladies' Christian Work Society, for her efforts in assisting her associates in the labors attending the preparation of the affair

CRANFORD COLLECTIONS.

Township Wants Two Officers to Pay Over Fees Which They Were Not Entitled To.

Although the Cranford Township Committee exonerated the Assessor and Collector from all blame in the collection of fees which the Township Attorney, Paul Q. Oliver, says they are not entitled to, the committee intends to ask the officials to make good the amounts they received for collecting the special county road and school taxes for the years 1897 and 1898.

Collector Theodore A. Crane will be asked to make good $290.62 and Assessor Edward Crane $431.59. The officials are brothers, and it is said they will not pay the township these amounts, but will fight the matters in the courts.

JERSEY TO GET A WIRE PLANT

New York Companies Overtaxed, Seek Better Facilities

In order to have the facilities of a tidewater cable plant and thus make a bid for foreign submarine cable contracts, the Saf-ty Insulated Cable and Wire Company, of New York, is about to erect a large plant in the vicinity of Bayonne City. Fifteen acres of land have been acquired and a $500,000 plant will be completed thereon inside of six months. Four hundred hands will be employed.

The company is now negotiating with a foreign Government for an important submarine contract. The New York plant has been working 22 hours daily for the last 18 months, and sufficient orders are stated to be on hand to keep going at the same high pressure for the next ten months.

MUST CLEAR APPEAL LIST.

Judge Strong Will Throw Out Cases Not Answered.

Judge Strong announced in the Middlesex County Court Thursday that he will call the list of appeal cases to be tried without jury Monday, November 27th, and gave notice to lawyers that they must be ready to answer to cases that day.

"Counsel should not be surprised," he said, "if the court should deal sharply with cases not answered. The appeal list is growing large and the cases must be disposed of. All cases to which there is no response will be apt to be thrown out."

The appeal list has been growing for some time, till now it has 74 cases upon it, being cases appealed from Justices' Courts.

Now a Corporal.

Dolph Giles, formerly of this city, but now on the U. S. S. New York, has been promoted to a corporal in the Marine Corps. After Thanksgiving the ship will sail to Hampton Roads, from which place she will go to the West Indies for the winter.

PARIS MARKET WOMEN.

How They Resented a Wrong to a Favorite.

Writing in the Fortnightly, Mr. Albert Vandam, in the course of an interesting paper on the Paris market women, tells an amusing story. They never fail to resent the wrong done to any of their favorites.

Forty-four years ago the architect of the present Halles suffered such a wrong. Queen Victoria was on her memorable visit to Paris, and M. Baltard was anxious to be presented to Her Majesty at the ball given in her honor by the Paris municipality. Haussmann, to whom M. Baltard expressed his fish, was all the more anxious to oblige him, inasmuch as he (Baltard) was his own architect.

Unfortunately, M. Baltard had a beard like a pard, and it was commonly supposed at that time—the time of the Crimean war—that the English Queen did not like beards. Haussmann therefore advised the architect to part with that magnificent hirsute adornment.

The advice was acted upon, and on the evening of the ceremony Baltard, the architect, presented himself close to the Prefect of the Seine while the latter was presenting the various personages of note. Haussmann took not the slightest notice of him, and was rather vexed at the frantic gesticulations with which Baltard endeavored to draw his attention.

At the conclusion of the presentations Haussmann went up to the man, whom he suspected to be an intruder, perhaps even perhaps from some private lunatic asylum.

"What is the matter with you, monsieur?" he asked, "and why this very strange behavior?"

"What's the matter with me!" replied Baltard. "Why did you not present me?"

"Who are you?"

"I am Baltard."

Haussmann had failed to recognize him, and Baltard had made the sacrifice of his beard in vain.

When the story came to the ears of the market women they were very indignant. They declared they would have reprisals by shaving Haussmann's beard if they could get hold of him. Meanwhile, to mark their sympathy with Baltard's misfortune, they ordered cases of Rowland's Macassar Oil and sent them to Baltard's house. They were found unopened at Victor Baltard's death, in 1874, for of course his beard had grown again quite naturally. —London Daily Telegraph.

Moccasins the Best Footwear.

The moccasin is the most rational and comfortable of all footwear. In moccasins the feet have full play; they can breathe freely; there is nothing to chafe them or impede circulation. In moccasins one can move like an acrobat, crossing slender and dangerous logs, climbing trees, or passing with ease and security along dizzy trails on the mountain side, where a slip might mean sure destruction. The feet do not slip in the wet mud. In the north, when the mercury is far below zero and no civilized boot will protect the feet from freezing, the savage suffers no inconvenience. His moccasins, stuffed with dried grass, let the blood course freely. The perspiration does not chill, as the air in a solid lump of ice, but the feet remain warm and dry.

The buckskin moccasin, Indian tanned, with deers' brains and wood smoke, always dries soft after a wetting. Best of all, the moccasin is light. Indian runners and soldiers affect high-topped laced boots with heavy soles and hobnails, imagining that these are most service-able for a long weather. But these boots weigh between four and five pounds, while a pair of thick moccasins weighs only eleven ounces. In marching ten miles, a man wearing the clumsey boots lifts twenty tons more shoe leather than if he wore moccasins.—Harper's Magazine.

Nature's Color Box.

Mother Nature is a great artist, and will beautify the plainest face if she has a chance. It sometimes takes months, or even years for her to complete her task, but it can be done with patience and full surrender to the invisible genius.

Onion juice looks to Bermudas, are bleaching, and so are lemons, asparagus and celery. Spinach is the broom of the stomach, as the French say, and serves in soup or puree, as they cook it in the provinces and at the students' restaurants in the Latin Quarter is a great beautifier. Dandelion, lettuce and all the salads will bring out the red and white tints of the skin.

Raw carrots, tomatoes, strawberries, raspberries, cherries and black berries are red and blood making and develope infantile loveliness in the cheeks. Take a feast on one now and then, but three times a day. This is the fruit cure or Garden of Eden breakfast, and it will be remembered that Eve had no patent medicines cosmetics or doctors.

Pineapple is good for the stomach and all passages. Fruits, cereals and white vegetables, such as cauliflower and parsnips, are wholesome. But pickles and piecrust, hot cake and too many sweets will make one look pasty, because they lack the acids and salt which nature needs to cleanse her machinery. Oil she must have, too, from the olive or nut, to keep the internal wheels revolving.

A Circus Man's Name.

A yarn is going the rounds of the press that Robert Bailey, a brother of James A. Bailey, the widely-known circus man, is a coal miner in the Wyoming valley. The fact is that Bailey is not the name of the eminent circus manager, for in his boyhood days he was known on the streets of Cincinnati as Jimmy Pitterdale, an old attache of the Robinson circus, named Bailey, took the young fellow in tow and he afterward assumed the name of his old employer and worked his way up in the circus business to the present remarkable position he now occupies.

Wedding or a Breach of Promise.

Belle—I guess that there isn't very much doubt about Mr. Rich marrying Marguerite.

Madge—No; that cut in her cheek from his diamond stud has apparently sealed his fate.—The Jewelers' Weekly.

ENTERTAINED AT GOLF.

DR. ENDICOTT WAS HOST FOR A DISTINGUISHED PARTY.

Visitors Were From Atlantic City—Played on Hillside Course in the Morning, Park Club in the Afternoon.

There was a distinguished party of golfers in this city Thursday who were the guests of Dr. G. W. Endicott, of Park avenue. The party was from Atlantic City and all are members of the golf club at that place. It included Judge Endicott, brother, of the host; Judge Thompson, Messrs. Leeds and Lippincott, proprietors of Haddon Hall; Dr. B. C. Penning, Warren Somers and Walter E. Edge, editor of the Atlantic City Daily Press.

The party arrived in the city early in the morning and were taken at once to the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club grounds, where they spent the morning in playing on the links. Everyone pronounced the course superb, and some good scores were made. Play was continued until noon when all adjourned to the clubhouse, where dinner was served.

After the inner man had been taken care of, the golfers journeyed to the Park Golf Club course, where the afternoon was spent in playing on the links these. Again some excellent scores were made and the contestants proved to be good players. There was a friendly rivalry that excited great interest. Everyone remained on the course until almost dark, when they returned to this city just in time to catch the 5:12 Philadelphia train that took them home. Their appreciation of the hospitality of their host was evidenced many times, and all were sorry when the time for departure arrived.

WON'T TAKE THE HOME.

The Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows Refuses to Make the Order Responsible for Its Maintenance.

The New Jersey Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows at Trenton Thursday day voted down the proposition to have the Grand Lodge assume control of the Odd Fellows' Home, in this city. The Home is now maintained by an association embracing 64 of the 225 subordinate lodges in the State, the other lodges having the privilege of joining the association. The committee to which the matter was referred last year made a minority and majority report.

The majority report, signed by four of the five members, advised against the Grand Lodge assuming control, and gave as a reason that it would cost $10,000 to make necessary improvements, and it would involve an annual per capita tax upon all Odd Fellows of the State to maintain the Home. This, it was argued, would be an unnecessary burden upon poor lodges, and lodges having no indigent members. The majority report was sustained by a vote of 114 to 106.

The Grand Lodge elected the following officers: Grand master, Henry J. Meloch, of Jersey City; deputy grand master, E. O. Bussing, of Lyndhurst; grand secretary, Lewis Parker, of Trenton; grand treasurer, Joseph R. Deacon, of Bordentown; grand warden, Harry H. Paine, of Camden, and grand representative, August Crossman.

CADETS SECOND DRILL

Officers and Privates Went Through the Facings and "Setting-up" Drill Yesterday.

The cadet battalion of the Plainfield High School held its second drill yesterday afternoon from 12 to 1 o'clock in Washington Hall. Officers and privates fell in and went through the facings and "setting up" drill. After a few more drills in the principal parts of the school of the soldier, the battalion will be divided into companies and the officers will take command.

A. B. Meredith, who is instructing the cadets, has decided that the drills hereafter will not be public and that no visitors will be allowed except by special permission. This rule has been made necessary owing to the fact that many have gone to Washington Hall to see the first two drills and so crowded parts of the Hall that there was not room to manoeuvre the cadets.

Quartermaster Charles Fountain has charge of securing the orders for the cadets' uniforms. Samples have been received and the orders for the uniforms will be ready in a few days. It is expected that the uniforms will be made and ready to wear by the first of the year.

Moonlight Straw Ride.

Some twenty-five young people of this city met at the home of Miss May Serrell, of West Front street, Friday and enjoyed a straw ride by moonlight. A large platform wagon was equipped with straw, and the party passed a very pleasant evening driving along the roads in the neighborhood of this city.

Church Fair Closed.

The German Lutheran church fair terminated last Friday after a most successful run of three nights. An excellent programme and bill of fare was given including Welsh rarebit served by Mrs. Bream. The attendance was very large and everything was disposed of.

"JIM THE PENMAN" AGAIN IN THE TOILS.

Edwin Dantes Proves to be a Very Clever Forger.

DISPLAYS PECULIAR HABITS.

FOR SIGNING OTHER PEOPLE'S NAMES TO CHECKS.

Has Been Arrested in New York for Forging the Name of Isadore Meyer by Whom He Was Employed to a Check for $25—So Skillfully Done as to Mislead the Officials of the Bowery Bank.

Edwin Dantes, a drug clerk, who was formerly employed by Druggist Hepburn and C. H. Hall, of this city, and was arrested several weeks ago for forging the name "Hepburn & Co." to a check, is again in trouble.

On Thursday Dantes was arrested in New York for forging the name of Isadore Meyer to a check for $25.

While at work for C. H. Hall, the druggist at Watchung avenue and Fifth street, when the latter was absent abroad, he stole in various sums from time to time about $150. About the same time he forged the check purporting to be signed by "Hepburn & Co." This check was cashed by Dr. Leonard, the dentist. For this transaction Dantes was arrested and arraigned before Justice Nash. Dantes was admitted to bail in the sum of $1500, the bondsman being Kalman Rosberg, a cigar manufacturer, living on West Third street.

Then Dantes left the city and returned to New York, where his relatives, who are said to be in good circumstances, reside. Dantes was soon successful in securing a situation in the drug store of Isadore Meyer at 784 Washington street, corner of Jane.

While in the employ of Druggist Meyer it appears that Dantes' forged the name of his employer, Isadore Meyer, to a check for $25. Having occasion to use money Dantes took the check to the Bowery bank, where Mr. Meyes does business, and succeeded in having it certified.

When the forgery was discovered Dantes was arrested and he is now in the Tombs awaiting a disposition of his case.

Soon after Dantes left Mr. Hall's employ the latter discovered that his diploma was missing. It was subsequently found in Dantes' possession. The same had erased the name of C. H. Hall by the use of chemicals and had inserted that of his own. It is understood that it was on the strength of this diploma that Dantes secured a situation at Myer's drug store in New York. Mr. Hall thinks he will be able to recover the diploma. If he does not, it will cost him $10 for a duplicate copy.

Although Mr. Hall is a sufferer to the loss of fully $150, besides the diploma, he has been paid back but about $40. He thinks, however, that he will receive $25 more from the Bowery Mr. Buck, who, it is understood, has this amount pledged from Dantes' relatives.

Rottberg, who became surety for Dantes, is anxious to be released of his obligation now that the latter is under arrest in New York, where, it is believed, his case will be quickly disposed of.

It is possible that the Grand Jury may not take notice of the charge against Dantes, preferring to let the authorities of New York county have jurisdiction.

AN EVENING IN BOERLAND.

Timely and Instructive Literary Entertainment Given in Vincent Chapel Friday Night.

"An Evening in Boerland" was the title of a very enjoyable literary entertainment given in Vincent chapel last Friday under the auspices of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church. The affair was arranged by the literary committee of the league, of which James A. Stafford is chairman.

There were a series of talks and papers on the subject in question which were as follows: "History of Boerland," J. R. Joy; "Resources of the Country," Miss Elsie Horne; "Cause of the War," A. B. Meredith; "Present Outlook," N. A. Miller; "Boer Side of Question," J. B. Tugwell; "British Side of Question," J. A. Stafford.

Dr. Richards Spoke.

One of the most successful sociables given at the Congregational church was held last Friday under the auspices of the Women's Association of the church of which Mrs. W. B. Wadsworth is president. The principal feature of the evening's entertainment was a talk by Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards on "Athens." He spoke very entertainingly. The address was preceded by a piano solo by Miss Nellie Winchester and followed by a bass solo by Stacy B. Reynolds.

Father Smyth's Brother Dead.

Rev Father P. E. Smyth, rector of St. Mary's R. C. church, has received word of the death of his brother, Dr. Matthew Smyth, of Jersey City. He was a prominent physician at that place and highly esteemed by all who knew him.

EDITOR ON TEMPERANCE.

HENRY W. WILBUR'S ADDRESS TO FRIENDS' HALF YEAR'S MEETING.

He Believes That the Cause of Temperance is Making Progress—John Shotwell, of Mattewan, Also Spoke.

A half-year's meeting of the Friends' Society of the Shrewsbury-Plainfield district was continued last Thursday at the meeting house on Watchung avenue, when Henry W. Wilbur, editor of "The Defender," a religious paper published in New York, delivered a powerful address on the subject of temperance. The speaker said that people nowadays begin to think that the saloon is a necessary evil, and that it must stay with us always. They believe that no progress is being made in the cause of temperance and they become discouraged and disheartened. He believed, however, that the cause of temperance is making steady progress and that people are becoming educated up to that point where they will yield their best influence on the side of right.

In speaking of the value of a saloon in a community, Mr. Wilbur said that not many real estate men advertise a piece of property for sale or rent and state that it is near a saloon. They do not want to advertise such a fact, neither do they want to buy or sell property situated. The fact that a saloon is near any other property tends to depreciate it, as no ones cares to live there.

The speaker said that it had been estimated that it costs about $2,000 to raise a boy to that period in life where he can do for himself, but no one has yet been born who can estimate the cash value in revenue necessary to make up the difference in the receipts coming from the saloon and those necessary to meet the taxes which must be secured to run the government.

Mr Wilbur stated that there are about 250,000 saloons in this country, a revenue from which seems to be a source of pride to those in authority who are satisfied to receive this money to help pay the balance of the taxes. He believed it would be better to abolish the saloon and then so much extra money would not be necessary to run prisons, almshouses, etc.

He contended that there was a time less than a hundred years ago when one could raise a barn, shear a flock of sheep, marry a daughter, or ordain a preacher unless they were washed down with grog, but not so to day, and in this respect he believed that the people were being educated to that point where such performances were found unnecessary.

He had never been addicted to strong drink, yet he had not been excluded from any place because of it. He thoroughly believed in educating the individual to the highest point against intemperance, encouraging the people to stand as a unit against it. In so doing everyone would be taught to exercise his personal duty as a test of settling this great problem in the supreme court of his conscience.

Following the above address, a few remarks were made by John Shotwell, of Mattewan, who spoke strongly in favor of temperance, and urged a more holy living on the part of all. At the close of these remarks, the meeting adjourned to this morning, when a youths' meeting was held.

The half-year's meeting of the Friends' Society came to a close today noon after the Young Friends' Association held a meeting for worship. Edward Hutchinson was in charge. After the meeting dinner was served, and the delegates departed for their homes.

STRAWRIDE IN THE MOONLIGHT.

Twenty Young People Enjoyed a Trip to Westfield Thursday Night.

About twenty young people, chaperoned by Miss Margaret Harold and C. Bridger, went out last Thursday for a straw ride. Their destination was Westfield. The beautiful moonlight night added pleasure to the trip made by the young people. They had great fun going and returning, and when this city was reached they stopped at Randolph's pharmacy and enjoyed some of his excellent soda. The conveyance used by the merry party was an ordinary box wagon, filled with straw, and the cool bracing weather put everyone in the best of spirits. Tin horns played an important part, while an occasional lively song kept all busy in completing a evening of pleasure.

Double Announcement.

The double announcement has been made of the engagement of the two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mitchell, of Philadelphia, formerly of this city. Miss Daisy Mitchell is engaged to Rev. Spencer Dickson, of Philadelphia, a graduate of Princeton University. Miss Katheryn Mitchell is engaged to Rev. Theo. Shipman, of New York, a student at the New York Theological Seminary.

Testimony in Divorce Case.

Testimony in the divorce case of Cook against Cook, was taken before Senator Cross at Elizabeth Thursday afternoon, Francis J. Blatz, of the law firm of Murphy & Blatz, of this city, appearing for the petitioner.

PRESIDENT KRUGER.

Personal Traits of the Peculiar Transvaal Leader.

Kruger is devoted to his wife, children, grand and great grand children; while they in turn adore him. He lives in a modest house, which stands back from the sidewalk about 15 feet. There is a grass plot in front and a sentry box inside of the iron railing. This house was presented to him by a syndicate. When the Volksraad is in session, a soldier is stationed in front of the President's house and no one, excepting officials, may enter the residence during the day without permission. After 7 o'clock in the evening, all are welcome to the chief executive's home.

Every morning at 6 o'clock a negro servant takes a cup of black coffee and a big pipe filled with tobacco to the President's room. As soon as he has drained the coffee Kruger rises and smokes the pipe while he is dressing. He is down stairs by 6:30 o'clock and is ready to hold a family prayers at 7 o'clock. Breakfast is served about 7:30 a. m. His morning hours are taken up with matters of state and the officials call during this time. Dinner hour is 1 o'clock. At all the meals Kruger says grace before bread is broken. He takes a short nap after the noon meal and is ready by promptly at 2 o'clock in the afternoon to receive callers. The supper is served at six o'clock and the conclusion of this repast ends all official business of the day for Kruger. Many writers have told how hot cups of thick black coffee are passed between the courses. Every person received is served with coffee. Besides his salary of $40,000 a year, Kruger gets $10,000 annually for coffee money. There is a two-gallon kettle of coffee always hot in the kitchen.

Since Kruger was elected President in 1881 he has been confronted with some trying times. In 1883 his country was in a bankrupt condition. It looked as if famine was going to overtake the land, but then gold was found in the Barberton district. A messenger from the new gold fields took a sample of gold, containing twenty ounces, to the President, presenting it to him as the first yield of gold from the Transvaal. Kruger was astounded when he saw the gold. He asked where it came from, and was informed that it was from the Barberton district.

"Is there any more left?" asked Kruger.

He was told that the country was rich in gold ore, and that millions of pounds could be secured where that came from.

"Thank God! My country is saved!" was his reply.

Kruger has expressed his regrets that he was not able to receive an early education. His only book for years was a Bible.

On the occasion of laying the last bolt in the Pretoria-Delagoa Bay Railroad, November, 1894, the President went out in his private train to perform the act. At Bronkher Spruit a delegation of Boers met the Presidential party. Kruger had to speak. Not from the platform, but from a mile distant, could be seen the three grouped graves of the rear guard of the British regiment, which had been annihilated in the Boers. The present trouble was beginning to make itself manifest; at least Kruger was so enlightened as to foresee that the storm would burst before very long. Looking significantly toward the three graves of the British soldiers, Kruger said to the two thousand Boers that had gathered round him:

"This is our country. Never give it up. Remember that we fought for it and made it free. Let us say 'We will never!' never permit a foreign foe to take the Transvaal from you so long as I shall live."—Exchange.

What to Drink.

The best beverage is water, fresh from a spring or well not contaminated by sewerage. Natural mineral water should be substituted when the common water obtainable is of doubtful purity. After water, says a medical writer, the best beverages, when taken in moderation, as the most wholesome for adults: Light, pure, natural Wine, containing not over 12 per cent. of alcohol; seasoned spirits, distilled from cereals or grapes and diluted with water; coffee from good berries, well roasted and freshly ground; pure beer made of barley, hops and water, containing not over 7 per cent. of alcohol. In regard to alcoholic drinks, he is not only of the opinion—that persons should abstain from it who are too weak to restrain their appetite, but that many physicians have testified that a temperate use of spirits is more apt to improve than injure the health.

Girl's Battle With an Owl.

Miss Maggie McKean, of West Hazelton, Pa., had a remarkable and unpleasant experience a few nights ago. About 1 o'clock she was awakened by a peculiar noise in her room. A repetition of the weird noise thoroughly aroused the girl and she raised her head and looked about for its origin. At the foot of her bed she beheld two glowing eyes that gazed in her direction with such a weird-like ing intensity that she screamed aloud in terror. A moment later she was horrified by a huge owl, which must have entered the room during the day, as the window of her room was tightly closed. She was badly scratched and bitten by the bird and fainted before other members of the family came to her assistance and secured the creature and killed it in that section, and its appearance was remarkable.

Debts of American Cities.

The present debt of the city of New York is $346,000,000; that of Philadelphia $56,000,000; that of Boston, $50,000,000, and that of Baltimore, $37,500,000. As compared with these eastern cities the great towns of the west are modest and free. The debt of Philadelphia, for instance, is twice as large as that of St. Louis and three times as great as that of Chicago. In New York, the assessed valuation of real estate is $3,000,000,000. In Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore the aggregate valuation is $2,000,000,000.

"Our sewing society met to-day for the first time in over two months," she said.

"Ah," he returned, "another scandal."—Exchange.

VETERAN HACKMAN DEAD

PATRICK T. KEELY SUDDENLY PASSED AWAY FRIDAY NIGHT.

Was Sick for Only a Few Hours—Had Lived in Plainfield for a Quarter of a Century—Heart Failure Caused Death.

There were few men in Plainfield more widely known than Patrick T. Keely, the veteran liveryman and hackman, who died Saturday morning, after an illness of a few hours. He made his home in Plainfield for a quarter of a century, and with the assistance of his son built up a flourishing business in which he was constantly active up to the time of his death.

Patrick T. Keely was born at Loughres, County Galway, Ireland, fifty-three years ago. He came to this country with his parents when a child, and made his home in New York city until 1875, when he moved to Plainfield. He went into the hack and livery business and kept a stable in the western part of the city. Fourteen years ago he built the present house and stables on LaGrande avenue, where he remained up the time of his death. In later years he has been in partnership with his son, John E. Keely, who will now continue the business.

Mr. Keely leaves a wife, one son and five daughters. During his lifetime Mr. Keely was very healthy, hardly ever missing a day on account of sickness. Friday he remained at home, but did not complain of feeling ill until 10 o'clock Friday night. A physician was summoned, and it was thought that there was no danger. At 2 o'clock he was taken suddenly worse and passed away an hour later. Heart failure was the cause of his death.

The funeral was held from his late residence, 599 LaGrande avenue, Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock, and from St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock where solemn mass was offered. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

J. A. LINBARGER'S FUNERAL

Held in Grace M. E. Church Wednesday Afternoon—Beautiful Floral Tributes Presented.

The funeral of the late J. A. Linbarger, of the borough, was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Grace M. E. church, and was very largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. T. E. Davis, of Bound Brook, conducted the service and preached a forcible sermon, and was assisted by Rev. G. W. Gardner, pastor of the church. During the service two selections, "Nearer God to Thee" and "The Christian's Good-Night," were sung by Mrs. Alonzo Brokaw and Mrs. Henry De-Mott.

The floral display was beautiful and consisted chiefly of chrysanthemums and roses, which completely covered the casket. There was also a floral anchor, a tribute from the family of the deceased. After the service the remains were taken to Bound Brook, where they were interred. Those who acted as pallbearers were W. A. Codington, Dr. C. R. Thiers, J. P. Humbie, Cornelius Waldron, Mr. Lians and Mr. Sourman.

A QUIET CEREMONY.

Marriage of Miss Woltman to Frank E. Richards Was Celebrated Yesterday Afternoon.

The marriage of Miss Clara Woltman, daughter of Emil C. Woltman, of West Seventh street, and Frank E. Richards, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Richards, of South Second street, took place November 18th, at 1 o'clock p.m. at the home of the bride. Rev. S. P. Simpson, of Netherwood, performed the ceremony in the presence of the relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The bride was attended by Miss Louise Woltman, her sister, and Miss Eleanor Woodcock, while the best man was John Deckel, of New York.

The house was prettily decorated with roses and chrysanthemums, and especially attractive were the decorations in the dining room. Following the reception after the marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Richards left for a wedding trip, at the conclusion of which they will reside in New York city.

RAN IN FRONT OF A TEAM.

Fifteen-Year-Old Boy Has One of Front Street This Morning.

Saturday on Front street, near Somerset street, a lad named Boss, aged 15 years, residing on North Front street, was knocked down by a team of horses owned by T. B. Brooks, of Washington Park, and driven by the coachman, John Motley. The lad was running across the street and he ran directly in front of the team. The wheels of the wagon passed over his body, and at first it was thought he was seriously injured. He was picked up by Constable Mattox and Mrs. Brooks ordered that the boy be taken in her carriage to his home. A physician was summoned and after an examination learned that the boy was not injured to any extent. Those who saw the accident gave the coachman much praise for his brave actions.

—"Denmoor Cream" is a most exquisite toilet requisite. Try it.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signatnre of Chas. H. Fletcher. and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

WORKING FOR LOWER RAILROAD FARES

Representatives of Suburban Towns to Act Together.

THE SUBJECT DISCUSSED.

COMMITTEE WILL BE APPOINTED TO URGE THE MOVEMENT.

Meeting Held by Board of Trade—Suggestions Made by President Lounsbury the Aim of Which is to Secure Material Reductions in All Classes of Tickets—Those Who Did the Talking.

If the efforts about to be made through the Plainfield Board of Trade to bring about a reduction of fares on the Central Railroad result in accomplishing the desired aims, citizens between Elizabeth and Somerville will have cause to congratulate themselves and incidentally to thank the Board. Monday's meeting of the Board of Trade was a representative one, many prominent citizens from those towns being present. Somerville, Bound Brook, Westfield, Dunellen and other cities and boroughs along the line of the Central Railroad were represented. For some reason, which did not develop, Elizabeth was not represented.

The principal object of the meeting was to take steps toward securing a reduction of fares for the benefit of the citizens living along the line of the Central Railroad between Elizabeth and Somerville. Before the meeting was called to order President Lounsbury exhibited two large placards, which he had hung upon the wall. One card contained the rates of fare between Plainfield and New York; the other told of the rates of fare charged by the Illinois Central Railroad between Chicago and a small place called Homewood, 23½ miles out. The rates as given on the Central road between this city and New York are: Single trip, 60 cents; excursion, 50 rides, $18, 36 cents per ride; 40-trip, commutation, $7.50. The rates given on the Illinois Central Railroad from Chicago to Homewood are: Single trip, 23 cents; 10 rides, $2.30; 25 rides, $4.65; 54 rides, commutation, $6.50; 60 rides, commutation, $7.20. Considerable interest was manifested in the last-named rates, which it will be seen are about half what is charged by the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

President Lounsbury, in calling the meeting to order, said he wished to extend a cordial welcome to the visitors and was gratified to see that so much interest was apparently being taken in the matter about to be discussed.

The object of the meeting was to bring out and devise the best method to be pursued to accomplish the object aimed at with a determination to win by following this meeting up with others if necessary until success had been met. He then asked for an expression of sentiment from some of the gentlemen from out-of-town.

Mr. L. M. Whittaker, of Westfield, was heartily in favor of taking steps that would bring about a reduction of fares. He said the trip ticket on the Central road was the same today as it was in 1868, while on the D. L. & W. road it was considerably less.

Paul Welch, of Westfield, also spoke of the advantages of reduced fares. He said he believed that if the attention of the railroad officials was brought to the matter they would see the advantages of make the reduction asked for. Mr. Oakley, of Bound Brook, was also in favor of anything that would benefit the towns along the line of the Central railroad. Messrs. Mason, of Bound Brook, J. T. Vail, of Plainfield, Schwed and Keasey, of Somerville, also voiced the sentiments of the other speakers and said they should be only too happy to assist in bringing about the desired reduction in fares.

Lawyer Lewis Beekman, of Somerville, was of the opinion that cheap fares might not be as much of a benefit to the towns outside of New York as they would imagine. It might have a tendency for more people to go the city to do their shopping.

In answer to Mr. Beekman's statements that with a reduction of fares a greater number of people would be liable to go to the city to trade, Mr. Lounsbury expressed the opinion that he did not believe it would prove to be the case. A reduction of fares meant increased population. With the population of the cities and towns increased the merchants would have no difficulty in holding the trade that now is lost to them and they could the more easily compete with the larger city stores. Mr. Lounsbury said he had the following suggestion to offer for the consideration of the meeting which he said might help creat public opinion:

First, That a sixty trip commutation ticket be sold at a flat rate with no sliding scale.

Second, That in addition to the sixty trip ticket there be placed on sale a 54 trip ticket for use of those who do not care for a 60-trip, the rate being seven or eight per cent. less than the price of the 60-trip ticket this for the benefit of young men earning small salaries.

Third, That the price of the regular excursion or round trip ticket be reduced and that either half of the ticket be accepted for a ride in either direction.

Fourth, That 10-trip tickets be placed on sale at a rate which shall not be any higher than is now charged for 60-trip tickets, ($18.)

Fifth, That 25- or 30-trip tickets be placed on sale to take the place of the present 50-trip tickets, the rate per trip being being lower than charged for 10-trip tickets.

These suggestions were well received. The president then asked if there were any others who wished to speak upon the subject.

S. D. Drake said that he considered that high railroad fares hamped a town's growth. He belived the Board was starting on the right lines and he would do what he could to encourage it. It was necessary if success crowned their efforts to have concerted action.

James E. Martine was the most interesting speaker of the evening. He said that the subject of a reduction of fares was an intensely interesting one and he had given it considerable thought. What is vitally important to Plainfield and all other towns along the line of the Central Railroad was to have lower rates of transportation. All classes were in favor of a reduction. A greater number of people could be induced to locate in Plainfield and other towns on the line of the Central road if inducements were held out such as lower fares. The present facilities he believed to be entirely inadequate to the needs of the city. It was the high rates that was checking the growth of all these towns between Somerville and Elizabeth. Mr. Martine said that while the people generally were benefitted by the railroad, on the other hand the railroad had been made by the people. He said that he had gathered from a recent report of the earnings of the Central Railroad the fact that the monthly receipts from this city alone were more than $20,000 for passenger traffic, while the freight business was nearly $30,000 a month. He mentioned the low rates of fare in Germany and advanced the theory that low rates of fare were productive of an increase in travel. By a united and concerted action an appeal to the officials of the Central Railroad could not help but have some weight, particularly if backed by the representative citizens of the various towns effected, Mr. Martine's remarks we e well received and warmly applauded.

After brief remarks by Mayor Smalley, of the borough, and other gentlemen, the following resolution was offered by Secretary Runyon and adopted:

Whereas, We are desirous of developing our various cities and towns along the line of the Central Railroad; and

Whereas, It is apparent that a serious obstacle to this development exists in the present rates charged for passenger transportation by said railroad; and

Whereas, We are convinced that the adoption of certain changes in said rates would result in great good to said cities and towns and also to the Central Railroad;

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to prepare a petition to be offered for signatures among the residents of our various cities and towns and to present said petition to the proper officers of the Central Railroad, and to personally urge the changes as therein set forth, and to take such other action in the matter as may seem desirable, said petition to embrace the various changes as discussed at this meeting.

The Board then adjourned, and the visitors were regaled with a light lunch served in the rear room, where a "feast of reason and a flow of soul" held full away for fully an hour.

CAN'T KEEP A COACHMAN.

Judge Coddington's Hard Luck Impels Him to Resort to a Locomobile.

Wm. A. Coddington, of East Second street, will soon appear on the streets with an up-to-date "locomobile" that he will use as a means of traveling about the city and country.

This will be news to many who know Mr. Coddington's love for horses that are speedy. But he has had a change of heart regarding horses, and will soon sell his three fine steeds to make room for the new conveyance which he has decided to purchase.

The reason for all this is explained by Mr. Coddington. A week ago Monday Richard Maher, his coachman, disappeared mysteriously, and up to the present time has not been heard from. He takes the fourth coachman that has left the Judge similarly, and he has made up his mind that he will not give another man a chance to do likewise.

VOORHEES INSPECTS.

The Governor Pays a Visit to South Plainfield and Inspects Water Works.

Governor Voorhees went to South Plainfield Saturday in company with Frank Bergen, E. C. Woodruff, and M. W. Halsey, of Elizabeth, to inspect the Middlesex Water Company's Works there.

Superintendent R. M. Kellog met the distinguished party at the station and they all went over the line from Carteret to South Plainfield, giving much credit to Superintendent Kellog for the manner in which the work had been done. The members of the party are all directors of the company and they were highly pleased with the fine office and up-to-date way in which the business was conducted.

It was the first time since elected Governor that Foster M. Voorhees has been in South Plainfield and the people welcomed h im royally.

Will Practice Dentistry.

Dr. Walter E. Probasco, son of Dr. J. B. Probasco, of East Front street, opened parlors at 132 Crescent avenue this morning for the practice of dentistry. Dr. Probasco graduated from the dental department of the University of Pennsylvania with an excellent record and will undoubtedly do well in this city where he has a large circle of friends.

Mr. French Continues the Business.

Announcement is made that Elston M. French and W. J. R. Thiers, who have been engaged in the real estate and insurance business, have agreed to dissolve partnership, the same to take effect Dec. 1st. Mr. French will continue the business, having bought out Mr. Thiers' interest.

New $5,000 House.

John Abbott, Jr., of West Front street, has plans out for a $5,000 house that will soon be built by him on Westervelt avenue near Front street.

Beauty Is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean your blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads, and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets,—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

HERE IS FOOD FOR THOUGHT

The New Ideas That Scientists Have Fathomed About the Brain.

STUDY OF GRAY MATTER.

Unrest Wears Out Brain and Worry is a Deadly Poison to Our Thinking Apparatus.

Each Convolution of Brain Has a Special Function, and if Destroyed It Cannot Be Replaced—Facts That are Worth Knowing.

Although there are many things about the brain which scientists have not yet fathomed, still great strides have been made recently in knowledge of what the cranium contains. The cerebrum is the chief part of the brain and immediate source of all our mental action. The gray matter of the outer surface is made up of layers of nerve cells. These are the thinking centres. Experiments on animals have shown that each convolution has a special function, and if destroyed it cannot be replaced. Also it is found that the left brain is more active than the right. This knowledge has been most useful in relieving suffering.

There are five large sensory areas:—First, sight, which is the largest, at the back. Smell instead hearing have their positions at the side of the head, in the temporal region and inner surface. Touch resides at the top of the brain, while the large motor area occupies the bulk of the middle brain. The motor area is so arranged that the motor cells of the lips are in front, then those of the hand, arm, and so on, backward to the foot. The simplest brain action is as follows:—If a person touched anything hot or sharp the painful sensation would be telegraphed to the sensory area. The sensory cell which received the message would wire on to the motor cells to pull the hand away. If the person was asleep, and, therefore, the brain not acting, such a simple act might be managed by the spinal cord, or medulla. It is called a reflex act.

(How brain operates body).

A person may be walking toward a precipice, and the appreciation of danger is telegraphed to the optic lobe, and thence a message is sent to the motor area to turn and walk away. But, supposing it be dark, how are the motor cells to receive instruction and guide the individual in walking? He feels with his hands and feet, and the sensory cells receive messages from them how to direct the cells. The impression stamped on the brain cell will guide the individual under similar circumstances again, and this goes to constitute experience and memory.

Those who photograph know well that a good impression requires correct exposure. Underexposures are poor and do not last. It is the same with our brains—frequent repetition when learning by rote, and careful fixed attention from the special guidance and energy of the prefrontal or fore brain, which acts as the commanding officer. Many people are not trained to use their eyes. A quick observer notes in a moment what would escape the dullard altogether. It is important to train one's self to observe. Accuracy and speed come with practice. The brain is like a big album of photographs and other sensory impressions. It should be stored with accurate impressions, especially of the good. It is specially wise in the training of children to give them impressions of the good and the true; the false and bad will be forced upon them soon enough.

Not only the memory, but the attention requires training; in fact, one is necessary to the other. If we sit before a preacher and hear every word he says, but cannot recall it a moment afterward, it is because our prefrontal brain has been at rest. If we wish to recall a subject the stimulus must pass to the prefrontal or registry office, whence the stimulus is sent to the brain cells containing the sensations to be recalled. The great problem is to keep the brain healthy and active without strain.

If the blood is not right the brain cannot be, for it is nourished by good blood. The chief enemies of the brain are worry, which disorganizes the machinery; shock, which paralyzes the brain. Worry or excitement causes irregular nerve action. We call it confusion of ideas or nervosity. The optic brain centres throw up a series of depressing mental photographs, exaggerating existing trouble. This continues to depress the cells in the fore brain, resulting in complete failure to judge aright or analyse correctly. Slight annoyances are likely to grow into quarrels in this way, for by brooding over them brain fatigue occurs. Then the imagination sees exaggerated views until spite and hatred and kindred passions exhaust the fore brain, and misguided actions result. The stronger the quarrel grows the weaker the finer perceptions become. This explains the disease of the age—worry—and its results.

Self-control is the key to right living and thinking. An overindulgent parent allows the animal instinct to prevail over the intellectual control, to the injury of the child's mental development. The higher the intellect the more these instincts are under control. Euthanasia, or mental well being, is what all people strive for—the body in health and the mind at peace Unrest wears out the strongest brains. Worry is poison to the brain; work develops it. The facts given here are taken from an interesting article on "The Brain Machine; Its Power and Weakness," by Albert Wilson, M. D., Just published by J. & A. Churchill, London.

ONION CROP.

It Estimated at Nearly Double What It Was Last Year.

Onions by the carload, in sacks, crates and farm wagons, arrive in Chicago each day. From 15 to 20 carloads of the vegetables are used daily. While the 2,000,000 or more residents of this city do not eat 20 carloads of onions each 24 hours, that amount is required for domestic and manufacturing purposes.

If the stage heroine wants to get up a good, lasting flow of tears for an evening performance she cannot do better than to pay a visit to one of the storehouses in South Water street, filled to the very roof with onions. Tell a funny story to a companion while you are escorting him along the top floor of the warehouse and he will appear to laugh till he cries. At least large tears are sure to roll down his cheeks. He can't help it unless he has been in the onion business. E. P. Jackson, known as the "onion king" of South Water street, can tell such stories and explain the virtues of onions in such a plausible manner that the most decided protester against the vegetable will agree with him that the onion is the ideal vegetable.

This year, according to Mr. Jackson, the onion crop has yielded nearly double over the last few years. The crop of fall onions is coming in each day and in any of the railroad yards one can find a car of onions without hunting. Northern Indiana has yielded a large commercially large amount, all the railroads crossing this district are kept busy shipping onions to the local market.

The farmer is also bringing in his supply. The mud-covered farm wagon will find its South Water street at all hours and the farmers are glad to get 35 to 40 cents a bushel. Mr. Jackson says the raising of onions cost them little or no work and whatever they bring is nearly all profit. In the box warehouse at 76 south Water street the floors and rooms are divided into districts. The silver leaf, red globe, yellow, common red, Spanish and white and yellow pickle onions each have a different section. The buyers of dealers who sought for and orders for this grade come in faster than they can be filled.

In the stock yards many of the packing firms use several carloads each week in manufacturing sausage while the dealers in small lots use many. The hotels, at least the large ones, buy a carload of onions at a time and have them sent to their air-tight storage rooms in the basteries. The manner of storing and preserving onions has been reduced to science. To prevent their "sprouting" they are stored in high and dry rooms with plenty of light and air.—Chicago News.

THEY RISE EARLY.

Mr. and Mrs. Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese Minister and His Wife.

The Chinese Minister and his wife are fond of rising early in the morning and exploring the outskirts of Washington. Often during these pleasant fall days Mr. and Mrs. Wu Ting Fang and Mrs. Yung Kwai may be encountered about 6 o'clock in the morning pattering along the asphalt pavement of Connecticut avenue on their way home to breakfast. The ladies are generally dressed in blue silk blouses reaching below their knees and wide black silk trousers similar to those worn by Mr. Wu. The latter's costume differs only in that his blouse is of black instead of blue silk, and that he wears the little black skull cap with the red button on top, while the women have no covering on their heads except the closely bound crop of luxuriant black hair. Mrs. Wu carries a fan to protect her face from the sun's rays and to ward off the morning sun. Mr. Wu pushes a little wheeled chair similar in all respects to a baby's perambulator. This is for the convenience of the ladies when they are weary of walking. Both ladies wear the smallest of their microscopic feet. In fact, Mrs. Wu has the appearance when walking of wearing stilts. The shoe is scarcely more than three inches long on the bottom, and her gait may be properly called mincing. It would seem that Mrs. Yung Kwai, who is the wife of the interpreter, is not quite so aristocratic, for her feet are a trifle larger and she appears to walk with less pain. Members of the party appear very cheerful and exhilarated, smiling and nodding at passers-by. Mr. Wu has a casual interest in botany, and he plucks numerous seeds and flowers by the roadside and explains their distinguishing characteristics in his companions.—Washington Cor. Chicago Journal.

A competent judge of music says some vocalists ought to get life sentences.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hageman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked:

"Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them especially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper box of convenient size to carry in the vest pocket, is now for sale by druggists. This low priced article is within the reach of all, and is economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mailing forty-eight cents (4 cartons, 48 tabules) to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York. Ripans Tabules will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some druggists.

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Flushing Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for every case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her cure: "I formerly employed a physician and did so the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended so highly in the New York Herald concluded to procure them. I found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and find the saving of $3 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules is quite a number and I would not be without them now if it were worth a dollar. At the time of the interview there were present two daughters who strongly objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade the name in the newspapers, but I told them the elder lady argued: "That may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other sufferer similarly afflicted to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice and thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest, Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds and odorless Lawn Dressing.

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,

119 East Front st.

VICK SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands of satisfied Customers for a half century and to celebrate the 50th year of business we have issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 24 pages lithographed in colors, 12 pages engravings, and beautifully bound with handsome half-tone illustrations of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Fruits, etc., elegantly bound in vellum and gold. A marvel in Catalogue making: as compared to all other publications. Send 10c. (stamps taken) for the same, and a descriptive catalogue of all that is desirable. It is too expensive to give away indiscriminately as we have formerly done, but every good garden to have a copy, therefore we will send the Guide with a CUT BULB for 25 cents worth of flower and vegetable seeds for 15cb

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

It tells how credit is given for full amount of purchase to be used in other goods.

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue

A perfect little gem of a price list. It is only the Catalogue of Vick's Seeds condensed, and is handy shape for reference.

Vicks Monthly Magazine,

enlarged, improved, and up to date in all subjects relating to Gardening, Agriculture, Flowers, Fruits, etc. Sample copy free. Subscription price 50 cents a year.

Special Limited Offer—the Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 25 cents.

OUR NEW PLAN of selling Vegetable Seeds gives you more for your money than any other seed house in America.

JAMES VICKS SONS,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

SEEDS Garden and Farm
Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the newest and best varieties, reliably tested. Catalogue free. Mailed FREE.
WEEBER & DOTY, Seedsmen
114 Chambers St., New York City.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The International is a wonderfully compact storehouse of accurate information."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superfluity of quantity characterizes its every department.

Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

DIME

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our clothes pins. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily in leisure hours. Send 12c for cloth and full direction for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (225 C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept.

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President,
GEO. W. ROCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the 1st.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER, 30, 1899. NO. 48.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

COMPOSER'S HYMNS SUNG AT HIS FUNERAL.

Obsequies Over the Remains of the Late Dr. Lowry.

SIMPLE AND IMPRESSIVE.

LIFE-LONG FRIENDS SPOKE AT THE MOURNFUL OCCASION.

Funeral Services Held at Deceased's Late Home Tuesday Afternoon and Largely Attended—Dr. Richardson Was in Charge—Beautiful Floral Tributes—Ritual of the Phi Kappa Psi Was Read.

The homage paid to the memory of the late Dr. Robert Lowry at the home 202 Madison avenue, Tuesday afternoon, was fitting and well deserved, and the large number of friends, both in high and lowly life, that assembled to look for the last time on the face of one loved by all, gave the highest testimony to the life of that great preacher and composer of the sweetest melodies that comprise the list of religious songs of today.

The service was held at 2:30 o'clock and those who took part paid just tribute to the one who so recently passed away. Rev. Dr. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, was in charge of the services, assisted by Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church; Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, of the First Baptist church, and Rev. Dr. Peltz, pastor of the Temple Baptist church, Philadelphia, and President of Temple College, of that place. Each one was a personal and warm friend of Dr Lowry, and from their hearts came forth testimony that was re echoed in the heart of every one present.

The remains rested in a simple plain casket in the parlor, and were surrounded with floral tributes of beauty. The members of Phi Kappa Psi, of which fraternity Dr. Lowry was at one time president, contributed a large set piece of roses representing the fraternity class emblem, the colors in lavender and red. There were other set pieces representing harps, wreaths and many bunches of choice flowers. In the hallway at the top of the second floor there was above a life-size crayon of the deceased, which was surrounded with beautiful smilax. It was near this point that those who took in the service stood. In the parlor, where the remains rested, were fourteen members of the Phi Kappa Psi, and in turn they took part in the services.

The service opened with appropriate Scripture reading by Dr. Richardson, after which a quartette consisting of Mr. and Mrs. David E Titsworth, Miss Nancy Randolph and Morris Van Arsdale, rendered sweetly "Shall We Gather at the River," one of the most notable compositions of the deceased. Then followed a fervent and earnest prayer by Dr. Richards, of the Crescent Avenue church, in which he breathed sentiments of his soul regarding the departed. Another selection, "In the Valley," was rendered at this time by the quartette.

Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, was the first speaker, and his words were concerning the departed as a teacher and pastor. He said that it was his request that when he died that Dr. Lowry should say a few words at his funeral, but in the Providence of God he was called upon to speak from the memory of his heart at the bier of his friend. As a preacher he regarded Dr. Lowry as studious in his habits, and with a never quenching love in the preparation of sermons. He was sure that no pastor's heart could be warmer toward his people. In need he was always at hand. As a composer his fame was world-wide.

The speaker related a touching incident in closing his remarks. He said that Dr. Lowry sent for him a short time before he passed away, saying that he wanted to look in his face once more. He then told him that it was all right, that his rest was in God. Early the next morning, about 7:30, the window in the sick chamber opening to the east was opened and the sun sent its rays into the room as if some angel had come to take his spirit to God.

At this time the quartette sang effectively another of Dr. Lowry's compositions, "Shall We Know Each Other," and the selection had a great effect on all present.

The next speaker was Dr. Peltz, of Philadelphia, who knew Dr. Lowry from youth, attended school with him and had maintained a personal acquaintance till his death, and he spoke of him as a man and from the personal side of his nature.

In speaking of the characteristics of the departed he said that one impressed him much and that was his profound sense of humor. Had he been a cartoonist he would have been successful, and had he been a politician, a financier, he would also have been successful. In his school days he was a genius with pencil as well as music, but his fancy never ran away with him. He was a man of rare administrative ability, as shown in Sunday-school work, and the conducting of the Fourth Ward Mission, New York, and as secretary for years of the Baptist Pastor's Conference, and in fact any where he was put he displayed a universal genius. He knew of no spot where he as a man was deficient. As a friend he was faithful, and he would always tell a *friend of his faults, yet in a continu*ance of love. As a Christian he was true and sincere. Dr. Lowry once remarked to the speaker that there was nothing sweeter than to submit to the inevitable, and that he had supreme contempt for death, for it meant nothing to him In conclusion Dr. Peltz spoke briefly concerning the world-wide influence of the hymns composed by Dr. Lowry, and especially of the one "Weeping Will Not Save Me."

After the above remarks the quartette sang a final selection, a composition of Dr. Lowry, entitled "He Arose." Then the men present representing the fraternal society of the colleges, took part. They stood about the bier, while Alex Griswold Cummins, Jr., of New York, delivered the burial ritual of the fraternity and read the Nunc Dimittis composed by Dr. Lowry. Each member then laid on the casket a small bunch of flowers, each tied with the colors of the fraternity. Then followed the benediction by Dr. Richardson.

Those of the fraternity present were W. A. McCorkle, Virginia; Henry Pegram, Dr. Richard T. Bangs, Edward Percy Gilchrist, Alfred C. Muller, Fred C. Hicks, Fred E. Hamlin, Norman C. Raff and W. H. Conard, of New York; Walter E. Probasco, of the University of Pennsylvania; S. C. Smith and G. L. Bavard, of Bucknell University; Ralph E. Lum, of Columbia University; Alex. Griswold Cummins, Jr., of Lafayette College, and Dr. J. B. Probasco, of Plainfield. From among the above the pall-bearers were selected, and after those present took a last look at the form of the departed, the remains were taken to Hillside Cemetery for interment.

BURNETT HIRED BY BLAIR.

Leaves $10,000 Job with Twombly to Lay Out a Private Park Near Bernardsville.

Edward Burnett will resign his position as superintendent of Florham Park, Hamilton McK. Twombly's country seat near Madison, on December 1st, to accept a similar position on the estate of John I. Blair, near Bernardsville. Mr. Blair contemplates laying out a large and beautiful park on his estate, and because of the great success which attended the efforts of Mr. Burnett at Florham Park, he was proffered the position as superintendent of the proposed Blair Park, which he has finally decided to accept.

Mr. Burnett is a son-in-law of the late distinguished poet, James Russell Lowell, and was a Democratic Congressman from Massachusetts for a number of years.

DREAMED OF BURIED GOLD.

Negroes Digging at Night for Alleged Hidden Treasure.

Labertville, Nov. 29.—There is much excitement among the colored people of New Hope, occasioned by a dream that "Aunt Mary" Steele, a colored woman of that place, had, wherein it was revealed that a fabulous sum of gold coin was buried in her backyard during the Revolutionary War. Several nights in succession she had the same dream, and finally she consulted an old soothsayer from Sourland Mountain, who came here and agreed to work the claim on shares.

Since then large excavations have been made in her backyard. Several colored men are engaged in the digging, and while at work they cannot be induced to talk. The digging is only carried on at nights, and during the day the place is carefully guarded. It is rumored that they have already struck it rich, but this cannot be verified.

Delivery Wagon Wrecked.

Tuesday afternoon the delivery wagon belonging to Hillier & Company, of Front street, was wrecked. The driver, Elward Wragg, went to jump in the wagon, when the entire bottom fell out. The wagon was taken to Homan's shop, where it will be repaired.

Held Successful Meetings.

Rev. and Mrs. J. Lester Leggett *have returned to their home on Wash*ington avenue, after a successful series of meetings on Staten Island. Last Tuesday Mr. Leggett preached in the North Jersey church, Newark. On Friday he leaves for Schuylerville, N. Y.

TRIP THROUGH EUROPE.

An Illustrated Lecture Given in the Y. M. C. A. Hall Tuesday, by Arthur W. Tyler.

An illustrated lecture on "Central Europe" was given at the Y. M. C. A. hall last Tuesday by Arthur W. Tyler, formerly librarian of the Plainfield Public Library. The lecture was given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Tyler started with his hearers at Paris and carried them on an interesting trip through Central Europe finally bringing up at Vienna and Pesth in Austria Switzerland, northern and southern Germany and the banks of the Rhine were visited. Mr. Tyler's talk was illustrated with a number of handsome views of the cities and prominent buildings. While telling of the places under consideration, he added to the interest by relating some of his personal experiences there. The stereopticon was in charge of Augustus Searing.

KICKING AGAINST TAXES.

Commissioners of Appeal Hear Complaints From About Fifty Property Owners in the Borough.

The Commissioners of Appeal of the borough met Tuesday afternoon in the Council rooms at 2 o'clock to treat with all complainants regarding the unjust taxation. There were about fifty people present, and among the number there were very few who made any big kick. In most cases the grievance was of a more or less trivial nature, and the commissioners were kindly disposed toward those complaining. In a majority of cases differences were settled amicably and everyone was satisfied. The session lasted for the most part of the afternoon, and it was the last for the year.

IN MEMORY OF WASHINGTON.

Free Masons Will Observe the Anniversary of His Death.

Elizabeth, Nov. 29.—Free Masons of this city are about to take steps for the suitable observance of the centenary of Washington's death next month. The initiative will be taken by Washington Lodge, the oldest Masonic lodge in Union county. It will hold a meeting next Friday night for this purpose.

Washington Lodge has been in existence for more than a century. The exercises in connection with the centennial in all probability will be held the historic First Presbyterian church in this city.

A Knowing Horse.

Jacob Blimm, of Somerset street, started out yesterday to take a trip over the mountains. He had not driven very far when his spirited horse became balky and refused to be driven. The owner solved the trouble by discovering that the animal objected to a curve bit. He was obliged to return home and make use of another kind of bit before he could continue his journey.

An A. O. U. W. Visitation.

Quite a delegation from Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W., accompanied Deputy Grand Master Workman Y. W. Nash to Westfield Tuesday night on the occasion of the annual visitation of the Grand Master Workman to Upchurch Lodge. After the usual lodge ceremonies a collation was served. A pleasant time was enjoyed by the guests from this city and other places.

Star Course Entertainment.

The following are the artists who will take part in the Star Course entertainment at the Y. M. C. A. on Thanks*giving night, at 8 p. m: Miss Blanche* Frederici, monologist and character impersonator; Master Vincent Fanelli, harpist; Miss Mabelle Louise Bond, contralto and Miss Edith Winifred Snell, concert pianist.

Distinguished Guests.

Former Postmaster-General Gary, of Baltimore, an old friend of Major Coleman, of the Park Avenue Hotel, is spending a few days at the hotel. Gen. Daniel Sickles, also an old friend of the Major, has arrived in town and will spend Thanksgiving at the above hotel.

Theatre Party From Brunswick.

About fifty young people from New Brunswick, including the members of the wheelmen's association of that place, attended the performance of "The Little Minister" at Music Hall Tuesday evening.

*Miss Giddis, of Mt. Horeb, is visit*ing relatives in the borough.

Mrs. Snyder, of Manning avenue, is detained at her home by illness.

Charles Dunham, of Bound Brook, has been visiting Plainfield friends.

Miss Youhr, of Central avenue, will spend tomorrow with friends at Reaville, N. J.

Miss Florence Amy, of Belvidere, is the guest of Miss Jessie King, of La-Grande avenue.

TRIAL OF TROLLEY LINE TO CRANFORD.

Trial Trip Made by Invited Guests Tuesday.

WESTFIELDERS JUBILANT

TWO OPEN CARS WENT AS FAR AS B. & O. CROSSING BEYOND CRANFORD.

Road Was in Excellent Condition and Trip Was Made Without Accident—Superintendent Adelmann in Charge of First Car—Lunch at "Billy" Grogan's —Prominent People Among Guests.

Plainfield, Westfield and Cranford are now united by trolley. The line of the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company, between this city and the B. & O. Railroad crossing between Cranford and Roselle, was formally opened Tuesday afternoon when a party of invited guests made a trial trip over the route. Today the cars are running for the convenience of the public at large. It will be several days, however, before they will be run on any regular schedule.

The trial trip of yesterday afternoon gave the guests an opportunity to see what has been done. With the exception of a stretch of a thousand feet in length at Scotch Plains, there is a double track trolley road from the end of East Second street in this city to a point beyond Cranford. It opens up a vast amount of territory and will develop the communication between the suburban towns along its line to a great extent. The obstacles that had been overcome in the building of the line were decidedly interesting to consider.

It was expected that the line would be formally opened last week, but delay in adding the finishing touches and the lack of cars postponed the event until yesterday. It was then necessary to utilize two of the open cars of the Plainfield Street Railway Company. As the trip was one of observation, the open cars were really better for the purpose, although rather chilly.

The postponement of the opening and the rather hurried arrangements yesterday had no effect on the attended absence on the part of the local officials and other invited guests. There was only a small delegation from Plainfield. Westfield sent a large batch down by train to start off with the party from here.

Cars Nos. 17 and 19 awaited the guests at the North Avenue station at 2:24 o'clock. The first car was in charge of Mortorman Mark Hipp and Conductor John Huyler. Motorman Peter Peterson and Conductor Samuel Ayres were on the second car. John Adelmann, formerly superintendent of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, and now sup-rintendent of the entire Plainfield Eliza*beth system, was in command of the* party and personally took charge of the first car on the outgoing trip.

Col. E. W. Hine, of Orange, and A. A. Gaddis, of Westfield, represented the company on the trial trip. L. W. Serrell, Jr., the contractor who built the road, Edgar I. Serrell, his superintendent of construction, and W. W. Sloey, his bookkeeper, were also present. H. C. VanEmburgh, the company's engineer, was with them, Sylvanus Hoffman, foreman of the local company's repair shop, was on the second car.

The invited guests numbered some seventy and included the following: Captain Anslee, of Newark; Free holder King, of Clark township; Freeholder M. M. Scudder, Assessor John M. C. Marsh, Collector A. H. Clark, Chairman of Township Committee J. Austin Dannis, Township Treasurer *C. W. Harden, Former Township Com*mitteeman George H. Embree, Township Clerk Charles D. Reese, Overseer-of-the-poor Fred C. Decker, Lawrence Powers, Charles Burtis, Justice A. B. Collins, John Ledley, Charles Machel, Hugo Kurzhals, William S. Welsh, Henry Miller, Howard Francis, W. H Grogan, W. H Barton, W. H. Bachman, J. S. Irving and J. J. Wahl, of Westfield; Township Engineer Freeland and L. H. Halsey, of Cranford; R. N. French and Ernest French, of Orange; Mayor George F. Kyte and Assessor William R. Stanebury, of Fanwood; President of Township Committee Thomas J. Nichol and Treasurer Brookman, of Scotch Plains; Councilman Frank H. Smith, J. J. Kenney, J. Wiswall Drayton, J. A. Blanz, C. M. Ulrich, Charles C. Lister and Silas D. Drake, of this city; Louis E. Hendrickson, of the Elizabeth Journal; R. M. Sickels, of the Union County Standard, M. F. Elderton, of the Plainfield News, and Charles B. Morse, of the Plainfield Press.

The cars left Plainfield at 2:36 o'clock, preceding the regular car to Scotch Plains. After crossing the main road there, the portion of the line just opened began and the guests gazed about with renewed interest. For a thousand feet there is but one track beyond Scotch Plains, and then it widens out to two which continue the remainder of the way. At 2:55 the cars left Cook Corners and started over the private right of way that continues until the Westfield township line is reached. Here the guests saw some of the problems that the engineers and construction gang had had to encounter. Right through the swamps and woods, over hills and rough grounds, the tracks had been laid. In some places there were cuts eighteen feet high and in others ten-foot enbankments were necessary. The steepest grade was in the Ackerman property, a grade of 5 per cent.

When the car passed over the boundary of Westfield, the Westfield men in the cars cheered wildly. The lines enters Westfield from the north west but finally reaches the business portion through Elm street. There was another considerable stretch of private right of way before Elm street was reached. There, Charles W. Runyon, district manager of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, was picked up. As the cars passed the residence of Dr. Sinclair, the American flag was hoisted to the top of his flag pole and was greeted with cheers. All along the line, handkerchiefs were waved from the windows and the small boys yelled from the curb.

At the corner of Elm and Broad streets, the cars stopped and the party was photographed at 3:25 o'clock. Then the run was continued passing through Westfield and to the south finally turning to the east and reaching Garwood by a private of way.

At Garwood, the line turns into South avenue and continues over a fine reserve that has been built through the swamp that lies between Garwood and Cranford. The cars passed through Cranford amid the cheers of numerous small boys and went as far as the B & O crossing where the track ends, reaching there at 4:08 o'clock.

The cars then returned to Westfield where the guests were invited to the North Avenue hotel. "Miss Host" Bill Grogan had a lunch ready, and then the prominent members of the party were called upon for speeches. Col Hine told of the final success of the three years' efforts. A. A. Gaddis and L. W. Serrell, Jr., also spoke. Township committeeman C. W. Harden told humorously of the troubles of a township committeeman called to vote on a trolley franchise. Justice Collins made a short speech. E. Eckel closed the speech-making with a song.

Shortly after five o'clock the cars left Westfield on the return trip and reached Plainfield without accident.

TO STIR UP INTEREST.

Epworth Leaguers and Christian Endeavorers to Rally at the Bible Study Meetings.

In preparation for the Bible Study Conference to be held in this city December 10-15th, the committee in charged have arranged to have a member of the visitation committee visit every Christian Endeavor Society and Epworth League in the Plainfield Union and talk up the matter, endeavoring to increase the general interest in Bible study. The visitation of societies is now being energetically carried on. Miss F. G. Hawkins, president of the local Christian Endeavor Union, has been assigned to visit the First Church of Christ, Third Street mission, Trinity, First Baptist, Washingtonville, Marcounier and South Plainfield societies. E. E. Anthony, the former president of the union, will visit the Presbyterian church of Dunellen, Warren chapel, and the Park Avenue Baptist; F. E. Smith the Crescent Avenue Presby*terian and Hope chapel; W. D. Mur*ray the Seventh-Day Baptist and the Congregational; Harry Gee the First Presbyterian; E L. Suffern the First Methodist; I. W. Travell Monroe Avenue; and R. H. Bogardus the Grace Methodist. The Mt. Pleasant society will be reached by Mr. Anthony through Howard Runyon.

South Plainfield Man Missing.

George Keeley, of South Plainfield, who has been in charge of the grist mill at that place, disappeared last Monday and has not been seen since nor heard from. It is understood that he also left a number of unpaid bills and that his creditors are anxiously looking for him. Mr. Jones, an old man seventy-two years old, is now in charge of the mill temporarily.

Miss Maude VanDyke, of East Front street, has been entertaining relatives from Somerville.

Miss Addie Weaver, of West End Park, has returned from a visit with out-of-town friends.

Mrs. Edward Weaver and family, of the borough, have returned from a visit with Somerville relatives.

CHIEF THEATRICAL EVENT.

"The Little Minister" Produced Before a Large and Fashionable Audience in Music Hall.

The production of "The Little Minister" at Music Hall Tuesday was the chief theatrical event of the season thus far for Plainfield. It brought out one of the largest and most fashionable audiences seen in the playhouse this season. The piece was impersonated by a company that was up to the usual high standard of all of Mr. Frohman's enterprises, and though many in the audience had seen it once or twice before—and many with Maude Adams in the role of "Babbie"—the actors last night gave perfect satisfaction and furnished a finished performance. In the role originated by Miss Adams, Miss Grace Heyer gave a vivacious and *cute impersonation. Adolph Jack*son was excellent as "The Little Minister." A number of theatre parties were present from out-of-town places.

THE AXLE BROKE.

Samuel Rabinowitz, of Plainfield, Caught in the Shafts, and Quite Badly Injured.

Samuel and Isaac Rabinowitz, of Plainfield, were driving along Spring field avenue, Irvington, Monday afternoon, when the front axle of their wagon broke. Samuel, who was driving, fell between the shaft and the horse. The animal started to run and Rabinowitz was dragged for half a block before his brother could stop the horse. Samuel was picked up unconscious and carried to the Irvington Hotel. Dr. C. E. Benjay found that the injured man was suffering from a slight concussion of the brain. His right shoulder was injured and his left foot was badly bruised. The physician advised that the man be removed to a hospital, but Rabinowitz insisted upon being taken to his home. His brother took him to relatives in Elizabeth.

MRS. HALL AGAIN PRESIDENT

About One Hundred Women Suffragists Discuss Problems and Choose Officers.

Delegates from nearly every part of the State of New Jersey attended the ninth annual meeting of the New Jersey Woman Suffragist Association Tuesday afternoon and evening in the lecture room of the Bergen Reformed church, in Jersey City. Most of the one hundred delegates were from the northern section of the State. The reports showed that the association was in a healthy condition.

The annual election of the officers resulted:

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Plainfield, president; Mrs. Q. M. Pullen, of Camden, vice-president; Dr. Mary D. Hussey, of East Orange, recording secretary; Mrs. Emma L. Blockwell, of East Orange, corresponding secretary; Mrs. S. R. Krom, of Plainfield, treasurer, and Mrs. H. D. Crane, of Montclair, auditor.

TROLLEY CAR AXLE BROKE.

Accident Occurred on Somerset Street and Disarranged Schedules for Rest of the Night.

Tuesday about 10 o'clock an axle broke on one of the Somerset street trolley cars as it was passing in the vicinity of John Powers drug store, and traffic was delayed for a considerable length of time. This accident disturbed the running schedule so that some of the cars did not make their late trips as usual. As soon as the accident occurred the necessary apparatus was secured for raising the car and transferring it to the car house, where it was repaired.

A Very Pretty Drive.

The work of laying out and grading Woodland Park, Netherwood, is completed and it makes a very pleasant drive. There is some talk of macadamizing the streets there this winter, but it will be done by next spring at any rate, and then this will make one of the finest driving sections hereabouts.

New Grillroom Open.

The new grillroom at the Kensington Hotel was opened to the public Tuesday at noon. It is handsomely furnished, and the room is decorated in an attractive manner. It is the purpose of the proprietor to provide every comfort for his patrons and give them a menu that will please the most particular.

Rev. Arthur Crane, the evangelist, left Monday for Norfolk, Va., where he will conduct a series of meetings.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice McGrath, of New Brunswick, will spend tomorrow with Mrs. McGrath's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sheppard, of West Fifth street.

Mr. Dufford, of Middle Valley, will spend Thanksgiving with his son, George Dufford, of West Second street.

HARRY MARSHALL FOR A WARD COUNCILMAN.

Popular Young Democrat Will Oppose VanHerwerden.

DECIDED ON MONDAY NIGHT.

D. C. IVINS ONLY DEMOCRAT RUNNING FOR FREEHOLDER.

John Ross Failed to File His Certificate of Acceptance of the Nomination—City Executive Committee Met Monday and Planned for an Aggressive Campaign Between Now and Next Monday.

Notwithstanding that the Democratic leaders have been kept on the hustle for the last three or four days in their efforts to go into the city campaign with a complete ticket, and have encountered several discouraging features in the reluctance of available and selected men to run for vari*ous offices, the difficulties have been* overcome in what is regarded as an excellent manner by the members of the party.

Up to Monday afternoon it was the general understanding that Lucena Byce, of Webster place, a New York lawyer, would consent to become a candidate for Second ward Councilman, but it seems that Mr. Byce left town Saturday to attend the football game in New Haven before his signature to a certificate of acceptance could be secured. Monday it was learned that he would not return home till today or tomorow. That effectively put him out of consideration, because *if a candidate was to stand his accept*ance had to be filed with City Clerk MacMurray before 5 o'clock last night.

From the outset of the movement in relation to the make-up of a city ticket, H. W. Marshall's name had been mentioned in connection with the Second Ward Councilman. Mr. Marshall was averse to being nominated, however, and he had not been pressed to take it. At the eleventh hour Monday Mr. Marshall finally consented to become the candidate so that the ticket might be completed in all the wards. Now that Mr. Marshall has entered the campaign he will make an aggressive and vigorous fight to defeat Councilman VanHerwerden for re-election.

Mr. Marshall is a sterling Democrat and a well-known and popular young business man. He is proprietor of the American Steam Laundry and a property-holder in the Second ward. He is an active and prominent member of Trinity Commandery, Knights Templar, in which he fills the office of commander. Should the organization movement among the Democrats he has been one of the most interested workers in it. He is secretary of the Democratic city executive committee.

There is just one vacancy on the Democratic city ticket. That is for one of the Freeholder nominations, John Ross, of the Second ward, having failed to file his letter of acceptance. This leaves D. C. Ivins as the only Democratic candidate for Freeholder, and the Democrats will put forth their best efforts to win the office for Mr. Ivins.

A meeting of the Democratic city executive committee was held Monday, at which several of the candidates were present, and plans of the city campaign discussed. It was realized that if effective work is to be done no time is to be lost. Several schemes of appealing to voters were discussed, and steps taken to put them in operation. It is the intention to conduct as aggressive a campaign as possible between now and next Monday.

HIGH SCHOOL EXERCISES.

Special Programme Given by the Pupils in the Assembly Hall Yesterday Morning.

Special Thanksgiving Day exercises were held at the Plainfield High School yesterday. Owing to the crowded condition of the Assembly hall there was no general invitation extended to the friends of the school. There were a few visitors present, however. The exercises were in charge of the principal, I. W. Travell.

The programme included singing by the school, scripture reading by J. B. Meridith, declamation, "Thanksgiving address," by Cyril Brown; essay, "The Origin of Thanksgiving," by Iola Moore; oration, "Some Causes for Patriotic Thanksgiving," by Chas. A. Brooks; recitation, "Thanksgiving Day," by Miss Ruth P. Maxson; story, "Jericho Bob," by Miss Helen Moodey.

Mr. Malloy and daughter, Miss Molloy, of Scotch Plains, who recently sailed for Europe, have arrived all right. They will be absent about two months.

WINTER COATS.

Sacks, Jackets and Tailor Made Gowns.

For autumn and winter wear many straight sacks, descending to the middle of the skirt, are seen. They are bordered with a scant circular flounce, plain or cut in scallops, and have two or three graduated pelerines over the shoulders. These sacks are seen in peau de soie as well as in cloth, in black and colors, and a great success is predicted for them.

The jacket is less in favor as a separate wrap than the long sack. When it does appear, it usually forms a part of the costume and has a very short basque cut in tabs. This tailor made style must be very simple, the only fanciful part being the lining. For the skirt lining tarfeta of a bright, contrasting color is chosen, while the jacket is lined with broche silk to match.

CLOTH SACK.

Tailor made costumes of all kinds will be greatly worn all winter, but their severity will be softened by the addition of chemisettes, vests and large, soft cravats of lace, net, gauze or silk.

Today's sketch shows one variety of the winter sack. It is of mastic cloth, curved a little under the arms, but otherwise quite straight. It closes with two rows of pearl buttons and has three graduated pelerines and a valois collar. All the edges are finished with rows of stitching, and stitching also follows the seams. The lining is of mastic satin. The black felt hat is trimmed with black satin, black plumes and a steel buckle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

DRESS ORNAMENTS.

Metallic and Jeweled Decorations Still in the Fore.

Elaborate buttons, clasps and ornaments are to be worn in greater profusion than ever this winter. Even those composed of imitation precious metals and jewels are carefully made and very expensive, while, of course, the genuine are quite beyond the reach of any except the wealthiest persons. One of the most favored class of designs is characterized by the introduction of a cameo head, large or small. Buckles of this sort are entirely new. There are also scarabs set in complicated gold work, which are likewise one of the season's novelties. Variations of more familiar patterns are seen in great profusion—gilt fretwork, rococo scrolls set with jewels, butterflies, etc. All buckles employed for belts are comparatively narrow to suit the width of girdle now preferred.

ROUND HAT.

In hat buckles there is greater variety of size and general form. Some are round, some square, some long and narrow. Rhinestones, jet and cut steel are chiefly used, as a brilliant effect is desired.

One of the new winter hat models is illustrated. It is of white felt, with a high crown and a wide, flat brim corded with black velvet. Around the crown is a torsade of sky blue mousseline de soie, a ball of the same material standing up at the left side, the stem of the ball being concealed by a jeweled ornament.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

The British Royal Archers.

The Royal Company of Archers is one of the oldest bodies of the kind in Great Britain, its records going back more than two centuries. Almost every notable Scottish family has been at one time or another represented in this corps of archers, who constitute the sovereign's bodyguard for Scotland. Their captain general, who is also a peer and holds high rank, is gold stick for Scotland, the corresponding office in England being held by the colonel of the Life guards. In terms of charter granted the Royal company in 1703 by Queen Anne they perform a service of presenting three barbed arrows to the sovereign when residing at Holyrood, and Queen Victoria received this offering three times.—London Chronicle

WINTER STYLES.

Great Revival of Fringe as a Trimming.

The wide brimmed hat of gray or white felt, the crown encircled by a band of silk and a long, straight feather stuck at the side, will continue to be worn until early winter.

Fringe, that revival of an antique fashion, promises to enjoy a great success. It is already employed, on some of the models of winter costumes, in very striking ways, one method being to use it like bands of trimming, to design tunics, redingotes, etc., on skirts. It is also placed over flounces, used as a finish to scalloped basques and employed for berthas.

For tartan cloaks the twisted fringe, continuous with the goods itself, is the best decoration they can have, especially now that plaid capes are cut in shawl fashion, with a point at the back. A novel addition to these capes is a scarf or large cravat of mousseline de laine of the predominating color of the plaid tied under the chin and falling in long ends.

SPANISH WRAP.

The cut shows a picturesque Spanish wrap. It is of gray cloth, mounted on a yoke of darker gray velvet, which forms two tabs in front. The tall, flaring collar, the yoke, strap and all the edges are bordered with rows of silver braid. The cloak is caught up on the left shoulder so that it forms a drapery and coquilles.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION HINTS.

Notes Concerning the Fall and Winter Styles.

Morning jackets are of flannel, surah and changeable silk. For winter the latter must be lined, and therefore fine flannel is preferable. Printed French flannels are now to be had and are seen in many attractive designs. Embroidery, narrow ribbon or velvet, bands of guipure and beading are the usual trimming for these jackets, while the favorite form is a blouse, gathered or plaited on a yoke, with a matteau plait at the back and front.

Fewer capes are to be worn this winter, but many long wraps, descending to the foot of the gown and having sleeves.

RECEPTION GOWN.

The newest garment for evening and traveling wear is the long, straight, narrow sack, with large revers. The corners of the fronts are much rounded away. For cold weather these sacks will be of velvet, lined throughout with fur.

The reception gown illustrated consists of a redingote of black grosgrain, embroidered with nile green silk and jet, opening over a tablier of green silk covered with black spangled and embroidered net. A drapery of green silk crosses the bosom over a fichu of the spangled net, which terminates in coquilles. Sleeve caps of black lace are surmounted by green bows, and a lace frill and green bow finish the half length sleeves.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

A Difficulty.

"Sunsets and sunsets!" exclaimed the connoisseur. "Why never a sunrise?"

"Ah, there is the difficulty of obtaining a model, you know!" protested the artist, who was in every sense a Bohemian.—Detroit Journal.

FUN FOR THANKSGIVING.

How a Young Matron Will Entertain a Lot of Fortunate Guests.

BY RUTH VIRGINIA SACKETT.

A young matron who expects to entertain a large house party at Thanksgiving time has already planned beautiful decorations for the dining room and collected the following games to be played during the evening. Her guests will include elderly people, young men, maidens and youngsters. She has tried to make the games equally pleasing to all.

The dining room is to look extremely pretty. The walls are to be covered with trailing vines, caught up here and there by bunches of ferns. The mantle is to be banked with ferns and with yellow and red chrysanthemums.

In the center of the table, interspersed with foliage, will be a mound of purple grapes, rosy apples and brown cheeked pears, surrounded by airy ferns and fluffy chrysanthemums.

THE NEW BICYCLE GAME.

For souvenirs at each place will be yellow jardinieres, small in size, holding tiny pots of growing ferns; also place cards with name and date and appropriate pen and ink sketch.

Vines are to be draped about the chandelier. They will reach to the four corners of the table, where they will be held in place by tall, slender vases filled with yellow chrysanthemums.

Above the centerpiece, fastened to the chandelier, will be a horn of plenty fashioned from cardboard, gilded and thickly twined with smilax, then tied from mouth to end with yellow ribbon, the opening to hang a little lower than the smaller end. Just before leaving the table the hostess is to cut the ribbon which holds the cover on. Out will tumble as many bunches of pansies as there are guests present.

Some of the games chosen are very mirth provoking. One of these is a new version of putting the tail on the donkey, only this time it is a new bicycle game.

A rough drawing has already been made on a large sheet of manila paper of a man occupying the back seat of a tandem waiting for his companion to be helped on the other. As many pictures of girls in wheel suits as there are to be persons present have been cut from fashion plates. These are to be numbered. Each competitor is to have one and in turn be blindfolded.

The one who succeeds in placing a picture in the most correct position wins the prize, a box of delicious bonbons.

A game which will cause much merriment, I am sure, is called "the comical concert." The hostess will play a familiar air on the piano, and the guests, who have been provided with thin tumblers and spoons, will strike lightly on the edge of the glass at every place marked by the music. The second time it is played they will clap hands at the same place. The third time men whistle. At the fourth every one laughs. There is then a grand finale of spoons and glasses.

THE BLIND RECEPTION.

The next game no one can witness without being convulsed with laughter. It is called "the blind reception." Two people at a time are chosen to take part. After being blindfolded they are turned around three times and then requested to shake hands with one another. After making the effort they can have a chance to watch the funny attempts of the others.

Another amusing feature of the evening will be a game for the older members of the party. It is called "a newspaper game." There will be passed pencils and sheets of foolscap paper. At the top of the paper will be written: "Please make a complete report for tomorrow's journal of what has taken place during this afternoon and evening. Describe the gowns worn by the ladies, the dinner, decorations, etc." As several of the guests expected are exceedingly witty, there doubtless will be some clever papers. Half an hour will be the time allowed. Then the papers will be collected and redistributed so that each player gets some other player's report. The reports are then read aloud and guesses made as to the authors. The one who makes the most correct guesses will receive a prize of a basket of flowers.

MUST CROWN HERSELF.

Clara Barton Defines Her Attitude on the Suffrage Question.

A letter from Clara Barton has recently been given to the press which may be of interest to many as coming from one who has devoted her life to the service of her country, which, in turn, refuses her any voice in choosing those who are to rule over its destinies. She says:

I believe I must have been born believing in the full right of woman to all the privileges and public duties which nature and justice accord to her in common with other human beings—perfectly equal rights, human rights. There was never any question in my mind in regard to this. I did not purchase my freedom with a price. I was born free, and when as a younger woman I heard the subject discussed it seemed simply ridiculous that any sensible, sane person should question it. And when later the claim of woman's right to suffrage came up it was to me only a part of the whole, just as natural, just as right and just as certain to take place.

And whenever I have been urged as a people to ask for this privilege for woman a kind of dazed, bewildered feeling has come over me.

Of whom should I ask this privilege? Who possessed the right to confer it? Who had greater right than woman herself? She had, if so, where and how did he get it? Who conferred it upon him? He depended upon woman for his being, his very existence, nurture and rearing. More fitting that she should have conferred it upon him!

Who is the man or the monarch who denies the right of man to place a crown upon his head. Only the great Jehovah can crown and anoint him for his work, and he reaches out, takes the crown and places it upon his head with his own hand. I suspect that this is in effect what woman is doing today. Virtually there is no one to give her the right to govern herself, as men govern themselves, by self made and self approved laws of the land. But in one way or another, sooner or later she is coming to it, and the number of thoughtful and right minded men who will oppose will be much smaller than we think. And when it is really an accomplished fact it will wonder, as I have done, what the objection ever was.

CLARA BARTON.

Notes About Women.

In the figure of "Columbia Protecting the Filipinos," one of the most notable figures on the Dewey arch in New York, an American girl welcomed the returning hero of Manila. The artist's model of Columbia was Miss Maude Courtney, a resident of Brooklyn.

Rev. Miss Margaret Bowers Barnard was recently ordained and installed as pastor of the First Unitarian church of Chelsea, Mass.

The first woman lawyer to be admitted to the bar in Maine is Miss Helen A. Knowlton, who successfully practices her profession at Rockland.

Jennie Creek, aged 16, who lives at the village of Millgrove, Ind., is the youngest person ever awarded a medal by the French Legion of Honor. Some time ago she discovered a railroad bridge on fire and thoughtfully flagged an approaching train, preventing a probable disaster. There were several distinguished Frenchmen on the train. They took her name, and through them she has now received the gold star of the French Legion of Honor and been made a member of the Humane Society of France.

Among Frenchwomen of letters, particularly those who write on political and serious topics, the name of Mme. Edmond Adam has long been prominent. She recently retired from the editorship of the Paris Nouvelle Revue, which she founded in 1879.

Mrs. Mary Preston Slosson has been appointed chaplain of the Wyoming penitentiary at Laramie. Should Mrs. Slosson increase the percentage of reform, as is probable, women will have proved their usefulness in another department of human endeavor.

FASHION ITEMS.

Prevailing Fancies in Feathers and Furbelows.

A new scarf consists of rather wide, full ruffles of mousseline de soie, each edged with little puffings. The ruffle is gathered up at the back of the neck, extends over the shoulders and falls in coquilles to the foot of the skirt. The same idea is carried out in black lace for an elderly woman.

Painted feathers are used for autumn and winter hats. The wide, flat quills of various birds are the kind which are decorated.

DINNER GOWN.

Princess tunics and polonaises of Scotch plaid are among the attractive novelties for early winter wear.

Fringe made a timid and tentative reappearance last spring after an absence of years, and it met with so promising a reception that in many of the new winter costume models it constitutes a noticeable feature.

The cut shows a dinner gown of pink crepe de chine. The seamless skirt has a train and is adorned with incrustations of black lace, embroidered and spangled. The bodice is crossed in front and at the back, having continuous revers of white satin incrusted with spangled black lace. The shirred sleeves of crepe de chine have frills of white lace at the wrists. The belt of white satin has jeweled clasps in front and at the back.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION HINTS.

White Still a Leading Feature in Attire.

White is still in the van of fashion and has the virtue of being becoming to both young and old. Few persons except those afflicted with jaundice will find white unfavorable. It demands, however, great fastidiousness of detail to look well and absolute freedom from any touch of soil.

White lace continues to be a favorite accessory, and stoles of lace, with wide velvet ribbons run through at each side, are much worn.

The tight bolero is a feature of the season's costumes. It reaches just to the waist at the back and a little below it in front and fastens with two rows of buttons.

Tailor made costumes are very plain again and are finished with stitching, stitched straps, mohair braid and occasionally passementerie, although it must be of the simplest, or the character of the costume is lost.

VISITING GOWN.

The cut shows a costume of dull blue. The silk skirt has a tunic heavily embroidered with black, beneath which appears a deep, plaited flounce of blue taffeta. A band of black velvet edges the tunic. The bodice, tight at the back and gathered in front, is of fine cloth and has a plastron covered with black velvet bands and embroidery. One side has a line of embroidery, the other coquilles of black lace. The tops and wrists of the sleeves are trimmed with black velvet bands, and the belt is of black velvet. The black velvet hat is adorned with black ostrich tips and pink baleen.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Sharps and Flats.

"Where are you going?" she asked, as he picked up his hat.

"Oh, just across the street for a change of air," he replied.

A moment later the street piano started in on another tune, and she knew his mission had not been fruitless.—Chicago News.

Falsehood.

Falsehood is never so successful as when she baits her hook with truth, and no opinion so fatally misleads us as that which is not wholly wrong, as no watches so effectively deceive the wearer as those that are sometimes right.

TOILET HINTS.

Suggestions Regarding the Preservation of Beauty.

Glycerin, although very healing in its effects, tends to give the skin a yellow tinge if it is used continuously as an application for the complexion and hands. It is, therefore, to be employed only occasionally, except for the lips. White vaseline is free from any discoloring tendency, but has another drawback—it stimulates the growth of downy hairs upon the skin to a noticeable extent.

"The majority of women—those at least of the thin, nervous type, which grows old early—sleep too little. Sleep is to a certain extent a matter of habit, and one may accustom herself to do with an insufficient amount of it, as of food. Repose is, however, like nourishing diet, essential to beauty, and all the lotions and cosmetics in the world cannot repair the ravages caused by a lack of either. It is only partly, overdeveloped physiques which can afford to cut down the allowance of rest and nourishment.

YOUNG GIRL'S GOWN.

The young girl's gown illustrated has a skirt of lilac cloth, closed at the left side and bordered with a band of violet velvet. Choux of velvet fasten the tablier. The bodice consists of a chemisette of lilac plaid silk and a short bolero of lilac cloth, bordered and trimmed with velvet bands and fastening at the side with velvet choux. The cloth sleeves are also trimmed with velvet bands, and the belt and collar are of velvet.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

VARIOUS NOTES.

A Novelty in Thin Bodices—Ornamental Neckwear.

Mousseline de soie of good quality is less fragile than it appears to be—in fact, the fibers of silk are very tough and will stand much wear. Bodices of this very porous material, either plain, plaited or with applications of lace, are as much worn as ever, but a new idea with regard to them has been introduced. Formerly they were lined with silk or satin, but now they are made on a double lining of the mousseline itself, which gives them a much lighter, more misty appearance.

Tight collars, closely embroidered with beads and tiny cabochons imitating rubies, turquoises, diamonds and other jewels, are a fashionable accessory. From the lower edge falls a more or less deep fringe, which rests upon the shoulders and chest.

PLAID COSTUME.

Boas of white, black or gray plumage are still immensely worn; although by no means new, they are very becoming, and therefore remain in favor.

A picture is given of neat and reversible costume of plaid. The skirt is untrimmed. The bodice, tight at the back with a short, rounded basque, is straight in front, cut square and fastened with velvet buttons at the left side. The collar and revers are of velvet and are bordered with mixed wool fringe, which also follows down the front. The sleeves are plain, with bands of velvet at the wrists, and bands of velvet border the basque and are carried up the front.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

A LITTLE SCHEME.

The Politician's Way of Finding Out How the Vote Stood.

"I was greatly puzzled Election day," said an amateur politician, "at the confidence with which a certain old-time leader, who is a particular friend of mine, gave out the exact character of the vote polled up to that hour at one of the down-town precincts, where he was stationed. 'It stands at present ——— for Flower, ——— for Candidate, and ——— scratched,' he said, in reply to my question, giving the precise number of votes, which I have forgotten. Oh, come, now!' I protested laughingly, 'you may have a general idea of the lay of the land, but I can't believe you know exactly how many ballots each candidate has received.' 'It's just like I tell you,' he replied solemnly. 'Well, how do you do it?' I asked. 'You are certainly not basing your figures on what the cars say, are you?' 'Not on your shirt studs,' he answered, grinning. I'm too old for such foolishness as that. But I don't mind telling you on, in strict confidence. Do you see that window with the blinds half drawn over there?' he added, pointing to the fourth story of the house opposite.' 'Yes, what of it?' 'Well, there's a man in the shadow with a pair of strong field glasses, from where he stands he can see right down into the open top of the voting box, and field glasses make it exactly like looking over the fellow's shoulder inside. I don't say he can tell what separate names are scratched, but he can see easily enough when any scratching is being done, and which ticket is stamped and goes straight. Then he gives me a signal from the window, and I jot it down in my little book, with possibly the name of the voter—just for future reference. There's no chance of a mistake. It's a sure thing.' I gluet my eye on the window the next time a man went into the booth, and presently I saw a movement in the shadow and a flash of glass. Then a hand was waved up and down the left side of the sill. That's another scratched ticket,' said my friend, pulling out his little red book.'—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

FUTURE OF CUBA.

Business Development and Chances for Investment.

For the island of Cuba there is a great future predicted. The general condition of trade and commerce has greatly improved within the past few months. The expanding market in this respect is not as rapid as some might wish, but it is steady. Each day sees a greater volume of money in circulation. It is only partly, overdeveloped physiques which can afford to cut down the allowance of rest and nourishment.

The young girl's gown illustrated has a skirt of lilac cloth, closed at the left side and bordered with a band of violet velvet. Choux of velvet fasten the tablier. The bodice consists of a chemisette of lilac plaid silk and a short bolero of lilac cloth, bordered and trimmed with velvet bands and fastening at the side with velvet choux. The cloth sleeves are also trimmed with velvet bands, and the belt and collar are of velvet.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

VARIOUS NOTES.

A Novelty in Thin Bodices—Ornamental Neckwear.

Mousseline de soie of good quality is less fragile than it appears to be—in fact, the fibers of silk are very tough and will stand much wear. Bodices of this very porous material, either plain, plaited or with applications of lace, are as much worn as ever, but a new idea with regard to them has been introduced. Formerly they were lined with silk or satin, but now they are made on a double lining of the mousseline itself, which gives them a much lighter, more misty appearance.

Tight collars, closely embroidered with beads and tiny cabochons imitating rubies, turquoises, diamonds and other jewels, are a fashionable accessory. From the lower edge falls a more or less deep fringe, which rests upon the shoulders and chest.

PLAID COSTUME.

Boas of white, black or gray plumage are still immensely worn; although by no means new, they are very becoming, and therefore remain in favor.

A picture is given of neat and reversible costume of plaid. The skirt is untrimmed. The bodice, tight at the back with a short, rounded basque, is straight in front, cut square and fastened with velvet buttons at the left side. The collar and revers are of velvet and are bordered with mixed wool fringe, which also follows down the front. The sleeves are plain, with bands of velvet at the wrists, and bands of velvet border the basque and are carried up the front.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

PUT TO TEST.

If the St Kildan Sow Survives It He Gets Married.

Both in the northern and western islands of Scotland the natives have some peculiar custom, unfamiliar to the dwellers of the mainland. One of these, known as the "marriage test," is practiced in the island of St. Kilda, where the population barely exceeds a hundred. The desire among the islanders to increase this number does not seem to be exceptionally strong, and every man believes he is deemed suitable for a husband has to perform an evolution, with no little bodily risk. The St. Kildan's aim, of course, adept dock climbers, and the aspirant for matrimony is therefore subjected to the test of balancing himself on one leg on a narrow ledge overhanging a precipice, bending his body at the same time in order to hold the foot of his other leg in his hands. If foolhardiness or courage of the maiden withdraws her betrothal, and should the man fall over there he it is presumed that, in his case, he will be disqualified.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

England's Post Cards.

A notice issued by order of the Postmaster-General says: "On November 1, 1899, the inland and foreign post card, 5½x3½ inches in size, will be issued. These cards (single and reply) will be sold at the same prices respectively as the present inland this cards and the present foreign cards. The issue of the colonial stout cards (single and reply) will be discontinued, when the colonial stout cards on sale in future The issue of these stout cards will remain unaltered. From the date mentioned the maximum size of private cards will be increased from 5½x3½ inches, to correspond with the size of the new cards."—London Times.

THE TRAPPISTS OF OKA.

A Visit to Their Monastary Near Montreal, Canada.

SEEN OVER THE DOOR.

The Inscription is: "Happy Are They Who Dwell in the House of the Lord."

Strange and Hard Life of the Monks Described by a Woman Who Secured Special Privileges at One of the Canadian Institutions.

The story of Trappist monasteries has been told before but not by the pen of a woman. To such they have been forbidden ground. Even the guidebooks, which, like a mirage, lure one on, said that women must stop at the door. Those who have been there said that women were received in the parlor, perhaps given a dinner, but not allowed to visit any part of the grounds or buildings. So it was with many misgivings that I took the morning boat from Lachine for La Trappe. But even the first view of the monastery seemed worth the trip.

The boat steamed up the Ottawa for two hours, passing many points hallowed by the blood of the French pioneers. The boat now reaches Oka, a quaint little village, the landing place for La Trappe. The stage was waiting at the wharf, for the monastery lies in the hills three miles beyond. It was filled with French people chattering at a hopeless rate. Only one spoke to me, and he in English. The prospect was dismal. These people spoke only French; the monks, so I had been informed, did not speak at all. But the deity of chance was not to fail me that day. The last passenger to get in the stage was a Frenchman who spoke most excellent English. He knew the monks well, often visited La Trappe; perhaps he could secure for "madame" some special privileges.

The stage wound slowly over the low hills. It would be hard to find prettier scenery than that along the Ottawa. Now the river is in sight, now hidden from view, until suddenly La Trappe appeared before us. The building is in the form of a square around a central court. It is made of gray stone, with several towers, and is very picturesque against a background of green hills. Both the building and the location were new. This building was erected in 1890. The old monastery is farther down the hill, and is used for an agricultural school. The monks are excellent farmers, as the fields, vineyards and orchards testify, but not one was to be seen at work at that hour. The good fathers and brothers were taking their noonday nap. They dine at 11 o'clock, then sleep from 11:30 to 12:30. They certainly need the rest, for, while the retire early—at 7 in winter and 8 in summer—they rise at 2 in the morning.

(Monks at confession).

The inscription in Latin over the door bespoke a welcome:

"Happy are they who dwell in the house of the Lord."

The white-robed fathers received us most cordially and talked freely, though for the most part in French. Some of the brothers were also present. One wore the brown robe.

The first inquiry—and a very hospitable one—was whether we had had dinner. Of course no one would dine elsewhere with a dinner at the convent in prospect. The meal was soon served for guests are always expected, but they are with rare exceptions men. To them La Trappe is freely open as any country home could be.

The dining room was light and airy and spotlessly clean, with a touch of the feminine in the muslin curtains at the windows. The repast was bountiful—roast meat, vegetables, bread and butter, and wine—not a tiny glass of it, but a whole tumblerful—followed by cider, served as generously. The wine is of their own making, the dark wine called St. Hilaire, the light wine Lorette.

A white-robed father waited on the table and his American accent fell pleasantly on my ears. He was very communicative. They did not eat meat, he said, but had bread, wine, cheese and fruit. Usually they have but one meal a day, but in the busy season there is lunch at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

They perform manual labor five hours a day; the rest of the time they are at study and prayers. There are five Trappists' convents in America—three in Canada and two in the United States, one in Kentucky and the other in Iowa. The law of silence is ordinarily observed throughout the convent, but it seems to make these monks fluent talkers when they are permitted to speak. The sign language is used and two monks may often be seen talking to each other in that way.

They work in silence, passing out to the fields in long, single file; they eat in silence and of course pray and meditate in silence.

Once a week, on Fridays, they castigate themselves with a whip. Some are cruel masters to themselves and carry the wounds for days. Then there is also the daily confession at 2 o'clock in the morning. The monks assemble before the bishop of the convent and if any one has sinned he prostrates himself on the floor, confesses his sins and learns what he must do by way of penance.

At La Trappe the atmosphere is one of continuous preparation for death. Within the entrance written on the wall in French are the words, "It may be hard to live in La Trappe, but it is sweet to die here." There is always an open grave in the little cemetery. As soon as that is occupied another is dug. The bell in the tower rings every fifteen minutes, marking off the brief moments of life. This monastery is open to men only. Members. Men from all professions, who have made great mistakes in life, retire here.

One end of the building is devoted to boarders. There any man, Protestant or Catholic, poor or rich, may stay if he chooses, and it is said that priests who have sinned are often ordered to La Trappe to purge their souls.

After dinner the chapel was thrown open for my eyes, though I was strictly forbidden to step over the doorsill. The altar was decorated in excellent taste, though my distance from it made a minute description impossible. Then permission was granted to visit the grounds.

"It is against the rules for women to go about these grounds, but you may forget the rules for to-day," the father said.

In front of the main building, on a slight elevation, we should call it a hill in our flat country, is an oratoire, with an image of the Virgin. From that situation a splendid view can be obtained of the farm of 1,000 acres. The old house in the La Trappiste spent their first winter is near, and farther off the old convent stands. The barns are large and well kept; the fields are the best cultivated. Here cattle, horses, pigs and sheep are raised. Here also are large quantities of pork.

The old cemetery is the square formed by the building, but that is filled and the later cemetery is outside. It is a beautiful spot, adorned with flowers and shrubs and fenced with a high fence. The crosses may be seen at a distance, also the open grave and the silent, white-robed figures pacing back and forth at their devotions.

Not the least impressive feature of the day was the silence. Again and again minutes of life has gone and it rings and again and again. It does not seem that life could speed so fast.

In spite of what might be called hardships, La Trappe seemed not a bad place to stay. The foods are wholesome and simple, the hours regular, sleep is sufficient, clothing is comfortable and clean; peace of mind is theirs.

The monks themselves give evidence of good care in their fine physique. Some faces are saddened, some spiritualized, some are full of mirth no life of silence and penance can quench. But whatever their faces told me they were all equally hospitable and cordial.—E. Meserve James, in Chicago Record.

HAVANA CIGARS.

Report That the Product Is to Be Turned Over to a Trust.

Manufacturers of clear Havana cigars in this country have decided to form a trust. The promoters say that by the first of the month the officers will be elected and the articles of incorporation filed in New Jersey. The promoters are "Sol" Rosener, No. 43 Beaver street, and James Ertheiler, No. 139 Madison lane. The trust will be capitalized at $25,000,000. $5,000,000 in preferred and $10,000,000 in common stock. Blair & Co., bankers, of No. 32 Wall street, will be the underwriters. The persons interested refuse to give further details. The following concerns, it is said, are among those that are to be in the combination; Sidenberg & Co., the Ybor-Manrara Company, Penlas & Alverez, Sanchez & Haya, Arguelles, Lopez & Bro., Bros., Salvador Rodrigues & Co., Cuesta Rey & Co., D. L. Trugillo & Sons, all of Tampa; the E. H. Gato Cigar Company and George W. Nichols & Co., of Key West; Eugene Vallens & Co., Chicago; Meyer Bloom, Bros. & Co., New Orleans, and a few other minor factories. It is said that none of the stock will be put on the market.

"The manufacturers of clear Havana cigars," said a man interested, "do about 25 per cent of the whole cigar business in this country. Of the Havana cigar manufacturers from 85 to 90 per cent will be included in the trust. No plants will be closed when the trust gets into operation. Tobacco will be bought by the thousands of bales, and the trust will thereby obtain a handsome margin of profit. There will be no increase in the price of cigars."—N. Y. Tribune.

Niagara Power.

Sixteen large manufacturing corporations are located at Niagara Falls, which use at present 34,590 electrical horse power. The largest use is 10,000, the smallest 20. The two new installations will bring the power up to 49,190 horse power. One fourth the power goes to Buffalo.

The acts of some so-called variety actors vacillate between bad and worse.

The Two Sisters.

[By M. Crosbie Thompson.]

When first this sickness fastened on me I knew not which was bitterer, life or death. To me, helpless, despairing, there seemed less torture in the icy grip I felt so suddenly upon my heart. So at first I counted death, too, among my enemies.

Then came the day I found out their secret—found out why and how I was dying, and realized that the discovery had delivered into my hands those who wronged me.

Weary days as I lie here alone, and look back on the past few months, I wonder that a commonplace life like mine could have been wrought into such a terrible tragedy. It is not yet a year, Millicent, since you came to us, with your sweet, sad smiles and funeral widow's weeds, to make havoc of my life and take my husband from me. You, my little sister, grief-stricken and subdued; so anxious to mother you and comfort you. But all my mistaken pity for you, to rouse you from your hopeless sorrow, till at last I appealed to Jim, my husband Jim, to cheer you up! Dear God! how unwittingly I must have set about the ruin of one's happiness!

I remember how he acted on my suggestion, began to show Millicent some kindness, bringing her home a few trifling presents; and so successful were his efforts that in his presence the heart-broken little widow ceased to weep and pine. I remember the first time I heard them laughing and chatting gayly together I felt I could never thank Jim for the kindness to my sister. Poor fool, poor fool! Blindly loving and trusting both. I rejoiced as the sadness dropped from Millicent's face like the widow's cap which were so speedily lightened. Interested and amused at her bright talk and pretty ways, Jim began to desert his club and spend his evenings at home with us. I was not jealous—then. But it's like sitting in hell now to look back on those days when, forgetful of her all those pretty ways of hers and childlike manner, the woman set herself deliberately to take away my all. Before many months were over she had cunningly the web which bound my husband to her. Her web has proved a snare. Tangled in its folds we shall die all three perish together.

When Millicent's visit to us had prolonged itself indefinitely, I began to wish for my husband's sake and Jim had kept close friends, her manner toward me became persistently disagreeable. Even in Jim's presence she criticised my housekeeping, found fault with the cooking; in fact, for want of better occupation, she openly set to fighting with every one around, and generally found much to condemn in each of them; and when at last, in answer to her appeals, Jim began to side with her, I knew that my patience could stand it no longer. She was making my life intolerable; so, coming to a sudden determination one day, I quietly told her it was time her visit should come to an end. For an instant I believed her to have gone crazy, so white, so terrible was the cruel sneer, that she threw at my husband's guest, not mine, and that only at his request would she leave the house. Jim was alone in his dispensary. I repeated Millicent's words to him, and, catching hold of his sleeve, I would have dragged him straight into her presence.

"You must come and tell her to go at once. I swear that she shall not stay another hour in my house."

He freed his arm from my hold with a sudden jerk. "Damn you!" he said angrily; "what business you think it is of yours to interfere? Can't two women ever live together without fighting? Your sister is welcome to stay here as long as she likes, and I'll be a fool before I get on with than you, my dear wife."

As he spoke my whole world seemed suddenly to grow yellow, to darken as a flash, though wholly unsuspected until then, the knowledge of my position came upon me. Millicent and Jim were together—I was left me. I stood alone. None of life's lessons is so hard for a woman to know and understand as that a man can cease to love her. Stupid that I was, I failed to understood now, all too quickly, that Jim's love for me was dead. He loved Millicent. The knowledge of agony seemed compressed into the moment that brought this knowledge to me.

We looked straight into one another's eyes. I read a message from me in his which I could not fail to read. "You know all now," they said, plainly; "what are you going to do?"

"Either Millicent or I must leave this house!" I cried. "Decide! Which of us shall it be?"

"You must go, if you like," he answered doggedly.

This was the end. "I will go at once," I said.

My preparations for departure were soon complete. My first impulse was to go somewhere by train, miles and miles away, long way off from Jim and Millicent; I could think things over better. Putting on my hat and coat, I noticed my purse lying on the dressing table. Impulsively I opened my purse that I suddenly remembered contained but one farthing. I had intended to ask Jim for an advance out of my housekeeping money that very morning, and now—I could never in this life ask Jim Moreland for anything again.

A woman's face stared at me from the looking glass. It could not have been my own face, for this woman smiled at me with a hard, bitter smile, nodded her head significantly once or twice, and I found myself repeating the words I read upon her mocking face: "The river journey cost nothing!"

Oh, cruelly wise words! You are right, you are right. The river was there to drown me and my trouble, and the sooner the better.

Instead of leave the room, that I might forget forth on this, the great, inevitable journey, Jim knocked at my door. He came in sulky and resentful, but conciliatory. He hadn't, of course, meant what he had said; had been speaking to Millicent, who would leave the house at once rather than cause a misunderstanding between us. Would I not come down and make friends with her and forget all the jealous nonsense I had talked in the morning?

Was this a reprieve from death? If Jim were with Millicent should go away. I need not drown myself. Yet I was not glad or comforted; no trust was left in me. But—they should have their chance to make wrong right, so, though sick and hopeless at heart, I resumed my everyday ways and returned to my household occupations.

We dined all three together that evening—what a cozy little party we looked! I had taken pains to prepare a dainty meal, and, moved by some unusual impulse of extravagance, ordered a sufficient quantity of champagne to last. I dressed for dinner carefully wearing one of the few pretty frocks I possessed. My cheeks were flushed, my eyes shining, but my heart was like lead within me.

Millicent looked at the table, surprised as she took her seat.

"Why," she said, "we have white flowers enough for a wedding."

"Or a funeral," said I, and thought that it was because of the bitterness of my voice that my companions blanched.

We studiously talked dreary commonplaces to hide our thoughts from one another till Jim's face, looked pale, and should take a glass of Borgundy. I protested, but he went himself to the cellar to get the wine he wanted. Standing there with his back toward us, he filled a glass, which he brought to me himself. - As I put it to my lips I felt a hand laid on his hand on my shoulder. "Drink that, old girl," he said kindly, almost affectionately; "I see now that you've been letting yourself run down, and I shall be having you a patient on my hands if I don't look after you."

When Judas kissed Christ, he set the fashion in treachery. With my husband's hand still resting caressingly upon my shoulder, I drank the wine, thus taking the first step toward the death snare laid for me. That night I went early to my room, feeling queer and sick; before a week was out I had, indeed, become one of Jim's patients, too ill to leave my bed.

The days passed; I grow steadily worse, not better. While I lie helpless, racked with pain, Millicent has assumed the management of the house. There is no more talk of her going away. She comes to me once or twice a day, and I can see a look of malicious triumph in her eyes as she asks coldly what she can do for me. In the evening she and Jim sit together, I, lying in the room overhead, am conscious of the smoke of his pipe and their frequent laughter. Those were my hours of torture.

But comfort came at last. I dreamed one night that some one was trying to poison me. When I awoke it was early morning. Outside my window there was a stir and twitter of birds; within the house I only was awake. For the moment my head was clear. I was free from pain. As I lay there idly watching the morning sunshine, my dream came back to me; then suddenly I realized in reality. A moment's thought proved the truth of my conviction—Jim's wine, Jim's medicine, Millicent's broth, all were making me the same sort of torture for me, all were helping on the much-desired consummation of my disease.

Oh, Jim, how could you be cruelty of it! But, oh, the blessedchance that I have not died helplessly ignorant an unrecognized! Jim, you think me, you have sent me to my death, as craftily as they may, I am forewarned. Like the blind giant Sampson, I shall not die alone.

Two days later I received by day of comfort broke. The need for me is now here. I leave all ready. Old Lawyer Sutton has in his possession a sealed package addressed to myself after my death. It contained my accusation against Jim and Millicent, a request that a post-mortem examination be made, I also enclose a small bottle of medicine and of broth, both of which, I am sure, will on analysis show traces of arsenic.

Just before I write for Mr. Sutton I had almost a qualm of remorse. I was thinking of Jim on the scaffold. High up there, what a handsome man he looked, how black and curling his hair is he, indeed, since the days when, only a medical student, but such a good-looking young fellow, used to meet me by stealth at the foot of my father's orchard. Evening after evening he used to walk five miles out of town and back for the sake of half an hour's lovemaking with me. Sometimes there was a moon, sometimes there was summer darkness; but we always found one another under the old apple tree, in which we could sit together and kiss and promise, instead of vexatious questions, the one thing that would love one another forever and ever.

Remembering those old days my heart grew soft within me. and "Kill me if you will, Jim," I thought, "but I cannot hurt you."

Then I came together into my room, Millicent and my husband, and, as my eyes met the eyes of my murderers, all sense of pity left me. Millicent looked ill, worried, terrified. Jim, standing over the eyes denote less facility of impression,, but clearer insight more definite ideas, greater steadiness in such matters, while the latter likes at the outer corners, show penetration and a sense of humor.

Eyes set near together, especially when there is a hollow across the nose, are a sign of cunning and meanness in small things—money matters and such like. Eyes far apart, the character will be generous; if too wide, careless and extravagant. The proper distance between the eyes is the length of one eye.

Help Wanted.

A Salina man loaned one of his neighbors a rat trap, the neighbor being troubled with rats. Next day he put the trap in his barn, and in two or three days he went to see what success he had had with the trap. When he opened the door he noticed across the a peculiar odor, and looking into the trap saw a young polecat. The animal had been there for a day—and night—and was dead. Nearby lay a rat. Neighbor has sent word to his friend to come and get his trap. In the meantime the animal is going without his regular meals.—Salina Union.

Feminine Charity.

He—Miss Deering always has a crowd of men around her. Why is it?

She (enviously)—Yes; they evidently think there is safety in numbers.—Chicago News.

Strange, if True.

Hewitt—I see that Philadelphian have erected a statue in honor of Ben Jamin Franklin.

Jewett—Then don't you suppose he had heard that he was dead

A MOST DREAD DISEASE.

Pneumonia Can be Avoided More Easily Than Cured.

HOW TO PREVENT IT.

Suggestions Made by J. J. Walsh, M.D. Ph.D., That May be Heeded.

It Is Due to Cold Alone and It Delights in a Weakened System—The Danger to Be Avoided—The Microbe and the Symptoms.

If a man reaches the age of twenty-five in good health, says Dr. J. J. Welsh in the New York Journal, he is a borring accident, practically assured of living till sixty, unless he is carried off by typhoid fever or pneumonia. Of the two, pneumonia is by far the more dreaded disease. It gives but a few short days of warning before the fatal termination. We have scarcely heard of a friend's sickness before his death is announced. Careful supervision of the water supplies of large cities has greatly reduced the mortality from typhoid—it is practically eradicated—and the disease in Berlin, Vienna and Munich—but no way of limiting the ravages of pneumonia has yet been found.

How to avoid the disease is, then, a very serious question. Pneumonia is the most frequent result due to cold, but rarely, if ever, due to cold alone. The cause of the disease is a microscopic plant, one of the disease germs of which we hear so much nowadays. It was first discovered nearly twenty years ago by the German general Sternberg, not in a case of pneumonia, but in the saliva of a healthy person. Normal human saliva when injected into the smaller animals, as guinea pigs or rabbits, frequently causes death. It was while investigating this subject that General Sternberg found that the deadly element in the saliva cases in the fatal cases was a micrococcus.

Further study, especially in Germany, showed this microbe to be the cause of pneumonia. Cold decreases our power of resistance by lowering the vitality, and so the invasion of the microbe is permitted.

The history of cases of pneumonia generally shows how important is this lowering of vitality in the causation of the disease. But it is not the cold alone that plays the important role in the development of pneumonia. Persons who are not in the least overtired at the time of their exposure to cold. They have been overworked for some time, they have lost one or more night's sleep, they are laboring under severe emotion—grief, worry and the like—they have been losing flesh for some time. Often the disturbance of normal health is but temporary. A meal is missed, owing to the press of business, several in succession are taken hurriedly and incompletely, or the digestion is upset by trouble or fever, then comes the exposure to cold and—pneumonia.

The secondary factors are really the important ones. Pneumonia is not prevalent in countries in proportion to the severity of their climates. It is much more common in large cities than in the country. The hurry and bustle of life, the never relaxing tension of competition, the struggle for existence, tempt the inhabitants of cities to their neglect of the plainest rules of health which makes the exposure to cold serious. Nature has an ample provision of conservative force stored away to protect us from the cold, but her economy is disturbed by neglect.

There is another important circumstance that accounts for the occurrence of pneumonia so frequently in cold weather and it is constant increase in frequency with the approach of winter comes once more. It is the custom to think of microbes as always harmful. Nothing is further from the truth. The number of microbes of benefit to the human race is legion compared to those that do harm.

In winter the microbes that hinder a too luxuriant growth of the germ of pneumonia in the mouth, do not flourish as well as in warm weather. An important principle, then, in guarding against pneumonia is to keep the mouth healthy. Wash it out frequently but gently, and not with new fangled antiseptics that do more harm than good; have decaying teeth filled, as they invite the presence of foreign germs in the mouth; especially keep the stomach in good condition, since disturbance there always alters the normal condition of the mouth.

Now, pneumonia, except in the very young and the very old, is not often fatal of itself. It is practically always a complication that causes fatal termination in patients from fifteen to fifty-five years of age. If the heart and kidneys are healthy when the pneumonia is contracted, the patient's chances between these ages never die, unless they have exhausted themselves at the beginning of the disease by being up and about when they should have been in bed. In pneumonia, as in typhoid fever, this is the great danger for the robust. They hope to shake off the ill feeling. They are tempted to be out. Ambulant cases, that is, cases that have been walking about during the first days of the disease, perhaps die too badly. Every hour out of bed after the disease has declared itself adds seriously to the danger of fatal termination.

Usually pneumonia begins with a chill. No one can afford to neglect this warning in cold weather. Until it is definitely known what condition is going to develop the patient should remain in bed—at least within doors. Sometimes there is only a feeling of weakness, with a pronounced tendency to freer sweating than usual, and a vague sense of discomfort in the lung into which the pneumonia is insidiously stealing. If these symptoms occur after exposure to dry, severe cold, especially in windy weather and at a time when some disturbance of regular habits or fatigue concurred to lower energy, then prudence dictates the utmost care until assurance is obtained that pneumonia is not developing.

Unlike other infectious diseases, pneumonia, instead of protecting from, predisposes one patient to subsequent attacks. One out of four, at least, of patients who recover from pneumonia has the disease again. They must be especially on their guard. Fatal cases of pneumonia among the middle aged occur particularly in hard drinkers and in those suffering from some chronic lung trouble, or whose heart or kidneys are affected. If any one of the limbs of the tripod of health—heart, kidneys, lungs—is out of order at the time of the attack, recovery from a fatal ending will not be easy. For people thus affected avoidance of danger is the hope. They must not expose themselves to cold, particularly not with empty stomachs, or when overtired or run down by fatigue or reduced. Pneumonia can be avoided more easily than cured.

Charles F. Bates.

Among the best known horsemen of New York, is Charles "Fatty" Bates.

At the recent horse show in Madison Square Garden, he was one of the most prominent attendants and his horses secured several prizes.

THREE SOMERSAULTS.

A Feat Which Has Only Been Accomplished Three Times.

The most difficult acrobatic work in the world is to throw a triple somersault. The double is comparatively easy. But to describe three complete circles in the air with the body is a bigger feat than the most expert acrobat of the day cares to undertake. Only three men have accomplished it, although dozens have lost their lives in making the attempt.

To perform a triple somersault, one would, of course, have to jump from a spring board high enough to be able to turn three times before alighting. And probably the highest board sufficient power to leap any higher than is necessary to accomplish a double. The height is not the only trouble. Ir it were, leaping experts, by improved appliances and practice, would overcome that difficulty. But after the body has turned twice the performer loses control of himself and the law of gravitation overcomes bodily dexterity. His head being heavier than his feet, he is apt to light on it and break his neck.

Only one of the three acrobats who have already accomplished the great feat refused to try it again, being assured that his lighting on his feet was an accident, and that he landed his body after turning the second time.

Another undertook the feat for a wager of $250. In his first attempt he turned three times, but alighted on his hands. Everybody was satisfied with the result and the money was tendered him. He refused it, saying that the feat had not been perfectly accomplished and that he would repeat it and alight upon his feet. He did attempt to repeat it and fell on his head, dislocating his neck.—Minneapolis Journal.

An Egg Sells for $210.

A specimen of the largest eggs in the world, those of the aepyornis maximus, an extinct bird known as the rock, sold at auction for $210 in London, not long ago. Madagascar is the only place where these eggs are found. Although the egg is equal to six of those of the ostrich, the bird itself, a skeleton of which can be seen in the British Museum, was not phenomenally large, though it was heavy. There are only about 20 specimens of these eggs, which measure more than a foot in length and nearly a yard in circumference, so they are rarer than the egg of the great auk. However, the specimen just sold did not fetch anything like the sum paid for the last specimen of the egg of the great auk which came on the market. This realized $2,100.

Mr. Four Miles, of Bridgeport, Conn., wants his name changed. His father, Mr. Miles, has five sons and called them by the first five numerals. One Miles and Three Miles already have had their names changed by the courts. Four Miles appears to be satisfied with his cognomen, and Five Miles cannot take a new name till he becomes of age. Four Miles wants to become Frank Miller.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Then and Now.

After burning much midnight oil in the effort to secure a suitable franchise for the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company to operate under in Elizabeth, the Common Council of that city finds itself confronted with a decision from the corporation that under no circumstances will it accept the terms that are demanded in consideration of the granting of the privileges it asks for. The breaking point in the negotiations, it appears, is over the question of transfers—the city officials demanding a more extensive system than the company seems willing to grant.

Chandler Riker, president of the company, contributes an interview to the Elizabeth Journal Saturday in which he outlines the situation as viewed from the standpoint of the company. He puts the main force of his argument on the point that a part of the transfer system that the city officials insist on being established by the terms of the franchise, is an utter impossibility, because the connecting lines, which are operated independently of the petitioning company, will not make an equitable division of the fares that a passenger using the trans fer system will pay for the service.

In his present position Mr. Riker assumes the air of injured innocence, but what a contrast it is to the position assumed by his company in dealing with the Brunswick Traction Company in the matter of transfers between Plainfield and Dunellen up till last summer. In the dealings between these two corporations the one represented by Mr. Riker was not even willing to allow the other to have one bit of the profit. Instead, the Plainfield Street Railway Company—which has the same corporate soul as the Elizabeth and Westfield concern—demanded and secured the whole of the five cents received from passengers transferred to it from the Brunswick Traction Company, the latter company having received only that sum, and therefore was compelled to furnish its service under the transfer system without one cent of recompense. It was an exhibition of hoggishness that was developed to the highest degree.

The result of this unfair arrangement enforced by the Plainfield Company was reflected in an inadequate and unsatisfactory service that aroused public sentiment, and finally, after a good deal of argument and persuasion, the local company was compelled to readjust the terms on a basis that best served the interests of the community from which it obtained its valuable privileges.

The Plainfield incident, however, is not particularly germane to the situation in Elizabeth, except that it shows up the same corporate interests in an inconsistent light.

Judging from the long experience that Plainfield has had with the Riker-Hine syndicate, we should say to the Elizabeth Common Council: Hold fast to your position. Protect the people's interests. The trolley company will come your way when they see that there is no other alternative.

The Rikers' refuse to accept the franchise offered them by the Elizabeth City Council because they say the terms are too exacting. They once said the same thing about the terms Plainfield demanded of them for the Scotch Plains franchise, adding that they would not touch it with a "ten thousand foot pole." They came around all right, however, and agreed to do exactly what they proclaimed they would not do. It will be the same way in Elizabeth if the city officials there stick to the stand they have taken. The trolley syndicate must get into Elizabeth to complete their road and make it a paying enterprise, and if Elizabeth demands certain conditions the company will eventually have to agree to them. There is no way in which it can escape.

Whatever the monopolists and their sympathizers and aids may think of the matter, it is evident that the promoters of fifty-cent gas in Passaic do not believe that it is a myth, judging from the terms they are willing to make if granted a franchise. The company does not ask for any contract with the city. It asks only for a franchise. It declares that it will put up a $100 000 plant at once, capable of turning out one million feet of gas a day. It will also furnish a bond of $10,000 to repair the streets properly.

THERE IS A CLASS OF PEOPLE

Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called GRAIN-O, made of pure grains, that takes the place of coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress, and not few can tell it from coffee. It does not cost over ¼ as much. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15c. and 25c. per package. Try it. Ask for GRAIN-O.

The official figures concerning the last election, as compiled by the Secretary of State, show that the Republican plurality in the State was 23,918 These figures are based on the Assembly vote. Governor Voorhees' plurality last fall was 6 449, and Governor Griggs' plurality of three years previous was 26,900 The Assembly plurality in 1898 was 8,455.

All this talk about Senator Sewell being an aspirant for the place of running mate with McKinley in 1900, is bosh. Senator Sewell was born in Ireland and that fact establishes a constitutional barrier to his filling the office of Vice President that cannot be overcome.

The Paterson Guardian intimates that Senator John Kean is going to make trouble for some of the big G. O. P. men of New Jersey. It says that "he is no lover of Governor Voorhees or of Attorney General Griggs. So look out for sparks."

Now that the Republicans and Democrats have nominated their tickets for the city election, and the colored people have failed in securing the recognition they desired, it will be interesting to watch their policy.

LOOKING FOR INFORMATION.

Druggist Dantes Latest Victim, Isadore Meyers, Visited Plainfield and Interviewed Rev. Mr. Buck.

Isadore Meyers, of New York, accompanied by his wife, last Monday called upon Rev. Mr. Buck, who lives in the Jackson flats. Mr. Meyers errand to this city was for the purpose of ascertaining if Mr. Buck would tell him something about the check which he (Buck) had cashed and which was supposed to have been given to him by Edwin Dantes, the young man who has been involved in alleged crooked transactions with the Bowery Bank of New York, where a check was cashed purporting to have been drawn by Mr Meyers recently but which proved to be a forgery. It is understood that Mr. Buck has declined to divulge any information about the check. It is believed that this check was given to Mr. Buck by Dantes for the purpose of paying Druggist Charles H. Hall a certain sum of money which Dantes had promised in liquidation of a sum he misappropriated while in the latter's employ. Mr. Hall was promised $45, but he has not yet received the money. It is understood that Mr Meyers failed to receive any satisfactory information from Rev. Mr Buck.

"THE TRAVELING LIBRARY."

New Jersey to Disseminate Literature After Manner of an Endless Chain.

New Jersey is busy getting into shape what its friends and projectors call "The Traveling Library."

The books that will constitute this literary innovation in the dissemination of literature are now at the New Jersey State Library, and are being catalogued, labeled, stamped and prepared for distribution to such towns and villages as shall make application for the same.

Many applications have already been received and cases for their ship ment are in process of manufacture by State carpenters.

Already some eleven hundred volumes have been received and prepared for issue.

Under the regulations already adopted those districts which file an application will have a selection of fifty volumes, with a catalogue thereof, record cards and other documents, sent them as soon as books and packing cases are ready.

It is estimated that the fifty volumes which will comprise each of the libraries will be sufficient for six months' reading, and in that time they will be returned to the State Library, examined as to condition, and reshipped to some other locality for use for a similar period, and so on every six months, from one district to another, forming, as it were, an endless chain.

The scheme of the traveling library is comparatively new one and in operation in only six States.

How Girls May See Paris Alone.

A bright American girl is going to tell, in The Ladies' Home Journal, how she and a girl friend went to Paris together, saw its sights, visited all places of interest, lived there and had "the time of our lives," as she explains their experience. In three gossipy articles all the points of interest in and about the French capital will be treated and briefly described, and how to live well at small cost—in fact, just how girls going alone to Paris can best and cheapest enjoy the trip, will be explained. Of course, these experiences are intended to serve as a guide for girls going to the Paris Exposition in 1900.

To Cure Constipation Forever,

Take Cascarets Candy Cathartic. 10c or 25c. If C.C.C. fail to cure, druggists refund money.

—The Xmas number of the "New Lippincott" has a striking frontispiece by Henry R. Poore. A. N. D., an artist who has several times interpreted lovingly the story of the Star of Bethlehem. There are also Christmas poems by Albert Bigelow Paine, "The Little Child," and by Thomas Welsh, "At Nazareth."

SMOKING CONTESTS.

FOOLISH MEN WHO MADE CHIMNEYS OF THEMSELVES.

A Modest Old Builder Won Easily—A Match With Seventeen Entries—"A Little Fire at One End and a Little Fool at the Other."

Smoking is the temperate as well as the contemplative man's recreation and great smokers are apt to exhibit their tobacco-consuming abilities by engaging in smoking contests. Still, however, there have been some curious tobacco-burning matches, such as St. James Gazett. In 1723 there was a great smoking contest in Oxford, England, a scaffold being erected in front of an inn for the accommodation of the competitors. The conditions were that anyone, man or woman, who could smoke three ounces of tobacco first, without drinking or leaving the stage, should have a prize of twelve shillings.

"Many tried," said Hearne, "and 'twas thought that a journeyman tailor of St. Peter's in the east would have been the victor, he smoking faster than and being many pipes before the rest, but at last he was so sick 'twas thought he would have died and an old man that had been a builder and smoking gently came off the conqueror, smoking three pipes ounces quite out, and he told me that after that he smoked three or four pipes the same evening."

About forty years ago a gentleman agreed to smoke a pound weight of seven cigars in twelve hours. The 100 cigars making up the pound were all to be smoked down to one-inch butts. The match was decided on a Thames steamer plying between London and Chelsea, and by taking up his position well forward the smoker had the full benefit of the wind. The contest began at 10 a. m., and in the first hour the smoker consumed sixteen cigars. After nine hours' smoking eighty-six had been disposed of, and with three hours to go and only fourteen to smoke, the backer of time gave in. The winner declared that he felt no discomfort during the contest, and finished off the 100 cigars that evening. More recently a solid silver cigar case and 200 cigars were offered to any smoker who consumed most cigars in two hours. Food, drink and medicine were forbidden. There were seventeen entries. After the first hour the competitors retired. The twenty-five smoked without pause from start to finish, reduced ten large cigars to ashes in the two hours, while the nearest competitors only finished seven. The people of Lille are inveterate smokers, and to decide the championship of the town a smoking contest was held. Each competitor was provided with a pipe, fifty grammes (about an ounce and three-quarters) of tobacco and a pot of beer. The one who smoked the contents only finished the winner. At the signal the air was filled with clouds of smoke. In thirteen minutes a workingman 45 years of age had reduced his weed to ashes, while seven minutes later the second man finished his little smoker. After such herculean smoking matches it is scarcely necessary to mention the cigar contests, in which the winner smoked 100 cigarettes in six hours and thirty-five minutes.

Has Ticked Five Centuries.

Rouen, one of the principal cities of France, and the greatest seat of its cotton manufacture, possesses the oldest public clock in the world. The great Rouen clock has held its place in that city for 510 years and is the pride of its citizens. Placed in 1389, it has been regulated without interruption from that day to this, requiring nothing except cleaning and a few trifling repairs of its accessory parts. The great clock had no accustomed the citizens to look upon its exactitude as a matter of course that when, in 1572, the breaking of a wire prevented its striking 5 o'clock one morning the population was in a state of consternation.

The magistrates summoned the custodian—Guillaume Petit—and remonstrated gravely with him. Until 1712 the great clock had no pendulum. For 323 years it had no other regulator than a "foliot," an apparatus unknown to the majority of modern clockmakers. The pendulum in clockwork was introduced in 1659, but so well satisfied were the people of Rouen with the time-keeping qualities of their famous old clock that thirty-three years were allowed to pass before a pendulum was substituted for the "foliot." Equipped with this new apparatus it has continued to this day to strike the hours and chime the quarters.

A Popular Rose.

A florist gives the information that George Bancroft, America's greatest historian, was the first producer of the American Beauty Rose. "There is quite a story behind the way in which that flower sprang into popularity," he said, the other day. "George Bancroft, in addition to his historical studies, was a botanist, a naturalist, and was particularly interested in flowers. Roses were his hobby and he raised a great many of them—not in a haphazard way, but with a scientific insight into their possibilities and a constant view to their improvement.

"When he succeeded in producing the American Beauty it became known by quite a wide circle that he had hit upon a very beautiful flower, and one night the plant was stolen, by whom it was never learned. It was said to be taken to France, where it soon achieved a wide popularity, under the name of the American Beauty, but claims were no less readily recognized in this country and it now occupies a front rank among roses. By all rights, however, it should be known as the Bancroft, rather than as the American Beauty, which latter was the name given to it by those who stole the rose."

Didn't Like the Ending.

"Eh, Philbrick, just heard from your wife?"

"Yes."

"Well, what are you looking so sour about? Is she coming home?"

"No. It's the way she ends her letter. Listen: 'From your loving wife dear, and don't forget to wash the dog!'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"You are the first man that has ever succeeded in getting a house moved down that fashionable and exclusive street. How did you manage it?"

"Well, I had a pull."

RESOLUTIONS OF ESTEEM.

Passed by Park Avenue Baptists on Death of Late Dr. Lowry.

At the close of the preaching service at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. J. W. Richardson called the church clerk, Thos. A. Cuming, to the pulpit, where, in the presence of one of the largest congregations of the year, the following resolutions in connection with the recent passing away of Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D., an honored member and former pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, were solemnly adopted:

Whereas, God in his wisdom has translated from the church below to the noble fellowship of the church above, the spirit of our brother and former pastor, Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D., and

Whereas, We as pastor and members of the select and congregation of the Park Avenue Baptist church, desire to express the love, esteem and high appreciation of the personal service rendered them by him during his life, and

Resolved, That the Park Avenue Baptist church, duly assembled in public worship on the Lord's Day, do hereby gratefully express to God their thanks for the unselfish, self-denying services of Robert Lowry, which under a Divine blessing, resulted in the organization of this body and the erection of its beautiful edifice.

That, as a people, we shall gratefully remember and cherish his ministrations, which led so many of our families to Christ, and for his sustaining sympathy for us in our sorrows when as acting pastor, he came into our homes.

That, it is a source of gratification for us to remember that he was profoundly loyal and earnest in preaching the truth, literal with his means in circulating the truth, and wise and considerate in his counsels to the brethren.

That, We tender our sincerest sympathy and love to the bereaved family, assuring them our earnest prayers of the tender ministrations of God by Spirit in this hour of their pain and grief.

Resolved, That this expression of high regard and love be placed upon our church record, and a copy of the same be transmitted to the family of our translated brother.

(Signed on behalf of the church.)

John W. Richardson, pastor.
Thomas A. Cuming, church clerk.

It rests with you whether you continue the nerve-killing tobacco habit, NO-TO-BAC destroys all craving for tobacco, makes weak nerves strong, purifies the blood, and brings rosy health and manly vigor. 50c. and $1.00, at druggists, or by mail. Booklet and sample free. Address STERLING REMEDY CO., Chicago or New York.

STOP SMOKING!

NO-TO-BAC

Will vouch for us. Take it with our guarantee in your pocket and if not satisfactory after using, your money back. Sold by druggists everywhere. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago, Montreal, New York.

GETTING THEIR MONEY'S WORTH.

No Part of Macadam Surface on West Third Street Is Below Grade.

The height of the surface of the macadam on West Third street has just been tested, and no part has been found below grade; by far the greater part is an inch or more above the required line.

As Street Commissioner Gavett required all the sub-grade to be tested before any stone was put on, it is absolutely certain that the contractor, C. M. Meeker, has put on, not only what the specifications required, but also whatevers above grade, as well as what was pressed into the ground

Y. M. C. A. Members Debate.

An interesting meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Literary Society was held last Monday at the association building. Charles H. Belknap read a selection from Josh Billings on Courting and the question—"Resolved, That the U. S. should interfere in the affairs of foreign nations," was debated by T. A. Cuming and Paul S. Whitall for the affirmative and C. M. Dolliver and C. E. Drange for the negative The critic's report by A. B Meredith was of interest.

An Imported Cow.

Charles Dieble, the West End milkman, has just closed a deal whereby he has sold a fine Ayrshire cow to a man residing in Bermuda. The cow was delivered last week, and is one of the finest ever raised in this vicinity.

Message of Condolence.

The relatives of the late Dr. Robert Lowry have been the recipients of many messages of condolence since his death Saturday morning. These messages came from all parts of the country from people who were acquainted with the deceased for years.

Reunion of Camp Boys

There will be a reunion of the young men who annually camp on the shores of Lake Champlain under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., at Montclair, Dec. 1st to 31. A number of the young men attached to the local association will attend.

Last Meeting Before Election.

The Common Council will hold its next regular meeting next Monday This will be the last session before election, and some important business will be considered.

Mrs. Ann Dobbins and daughter, of Kearney, are spending a few days with friends in town.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

500 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.

CONTENTS:

Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.

Same book in better binding 50 cts.
HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

If you haven't a regular, healthy movement of the bowels every day, you're sick or will be. Keep your bowels open, and be well. Force, in the shape of violent purges, or pill poisons, is wrong. Gentle, easy, smoothest, easiest, most perfect way of keeping the bowels clear and clean is to take

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets TRADE MARK REGISTERED

REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c., 25c., 50c. Write for free sample, and booklet on health. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York. 272a

KEEP YOUR BLOOD CLEAN

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE In 1900

NOVELTY IN LITERATURE AND ART FEATURES

PRINTING IN COLOR.

THE BEST ILLUSTRATIONS, with Cole's Engravings and Castaigne's Drawings.

A New and Superbly Illustrated

LIFE OF CROMWELL

By the Right Hon. John Morley, M. P.

THE conductors of THE CENTURY take pleasure in announcing this as the leading historical serial of the magazine for 1900. No man is more competent than John Morley, who was selected by Mr. Gladstone's family to write the biography of the great statesman, to write in the spirit of the end of the nineteenth century.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS will be remarkable. In addition to the original drawings, there will be valuable unpublished portraits of Cromwell and his family, and by the owners of the greatest Cromwell collections. Other features include:

Ernest Seton-Thompson's

"Biography of a Grizzly," delightfully illustrated by the artist-author,—the longest and most important literary work of the author of "Wild Animals I Have Known."

Paris, Illustrated By Castaigne.

A series of papers for the Exposition year, by Richard Whiteing, author of "No. 5, John Street," specially illustrated with more than sixty pictures by the famous artist depicting fascinating views of the Paris Exposition.

London, Illustrated by Phil May.

A series of papers on the East End of London by Sir Walter Besant, with pictures by Phil May and Joseph Pennell.

Sailing Alone Around the World.

The record of a voyage of 46,000 miles undertaken single-handed by Capt. Slocum in a 40-foot boat. A most delightful biography of the sea.

The Author of "Hugh Wynne."

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, will furnish a short serial of remarkable psychological interest, "The Autobiography of a Quack," and there will be short stories by all the leading writers.

A Chapter from Mark Twain's Abandoned Autobiography.

Literary Reminiscences.

Familiar accounts of Tennyson, Browning, Lowell, Emerson, Bryant, Whittier and Holmes.

Important Papers.

By Governor Theodore Roosevelt, President Eliot, of Harvard, Senator Chauncey Depew, Bailey Aldrich, Woodrow Wilson, John Burroughs, and others.

American Secret History.

A series of papers of commanding interest.

The Art Work of the Century.

It is everywhere conceded that THE CENTURY has led the world in art. Timothy Cole's unique and beautiful wood blocks will continue to be a feature, with the work of many other artists, and the best work of the American school famous. The fine half-tone pictures of Alice Barber Stephens, for which the magazine is distinguished, will appear with new methods of printing and illustrating.

Begin new subscriptions with November. Price $4.00 a year. Subscribe through dealers or remit to the publishers,

THE CENTURY CO.,
UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK.

The best of all Children's Magazines.—London Spectator.

ST. NICHOLAS

FOR YOUNG FOLKS.

A Monthly Magazine Edited by MARY MAPES DODGE.

For 1900 A Splendid Program of Art, Literature and Fun

TEN LONG STORIES, by Ruth McEnery Stuart, Mary Mapes Dodge, Elizabeth R. Custer and other writers. Each complete in one Number.

A SERIAL STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "MASTER SKYLARK," a tale of Old New York.

A SERIAL STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "DERRICK AND STEVE," a capital story for girls.

A SERIAL STORY OF ATHLETICS.

A SERIAL STORY FOR LITTLE CHILDREN

STORIES OF RAILROAD LIFE.

AN IMPORTANT HISTORICAL SERIAL of Colonial Life in America by Elbridge S. Brooks, author of "The Century Book of the American Revolution," etc.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, Governor of New York and Colonel of the "Rough Riders," promises a contribution upon "What America Expects of Her Boys."

IAN MACLAREN, JOHN BURROUGHS, and many other well-known writers contribute.

NATURE AND SCIENCE FOR YOUNG FOLKS will not be begun as a new feature per month.

ST. NICHOLAS LEAGUE Badge and Membership free. Send for instruction leaflet.

FUN AND FROLIC, both in rhyme, stories, pictures and jingles, will abound, always a striking characteristic of St. Nicholas.

Everything Illustrated,

A Free Sample Copy on Request.

November begins the new volume. Price $3.00. All dealers and agents take subscriptions, or remittance may be made direct to the publishers,

THE CENTURY CO.,
Union Square, New York.

CLEARING SALE OF PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of good second-hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7	Octave Square	$ 40
7⅓	" "	70
7⅓	Upright	150
7⅓	" "	165
7⅓	" Hallett & Davis	190
7⅓	" " "	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20 $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallett & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

$100 and up, and 3 years' time if you want it Other makes, Second-hand and All Impressments. $220—$1 per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,

94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

1831 THE 1900 Country Gentleman.

Seventieth Year.

The ONLY Agricultural NEWSpaper, AND ADMITTEDLY THE Leading Agricultural Journal of the World.

Every department written by specialists, the highest authorities in their respective lines.

No other paper pretends to compete with it in qualifications or editorial staff.

Gives the agricultural NEWS with a degree of fullness and completeness not even attempted by others.

Best Reviews of the Crops.
Best Live Stock Reports.
Best Accounts of Beautiful Rural Homes.
Best Everything

Indispensable To All Country Residents WHO WISH TO KEEP UP WITH THE TIMES.

Single Subscription, $2;
Two Subscriptions, $3 50;
Four Subscriptions, $6.

Special Inducements to Raisers of Larger Clubs.

Write for particulars on this point

Club Agents Wanted Everywhere.

Four Months Trial Trip 50 cents.

SPECIMEN COPIES

will be mailed free on request. It will pay anybody who reads in any way in country life to send for them. Address the publishers:

LUTHER TUCKER & SON,
10198 ALBANY, N. Y.

P. VanArsdale, PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 160, or left at Willett's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 Front street, corner Elm street. 9jly1

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 139, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. R. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law,

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corne of Park avenue and Second street.

Children Teething

Mrs. Winslow's has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa.

Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POST OFFICE.
NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7:30, 8:40, 11:30 a. m.; 2:30 5:00, 5:30 p. m.
Close—7:15 a. m., 12:30, 5:00 and 7:45 p. m.

SOMERVILLE AND EASTON.

Arrive—8:40 a. m.; 3:30 and 6:15 p. m.
Close—7:30 a. m., 12:30 and 4:30 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7:30, 8:40, 11:30 a. m.; 2:30 and 6:15 p. m.
Close—7:30 and 9:15 a. m.; 12:30, 5:00 and 7:45 p. m.
Through fast mail for West and South, close 5:00 and 7:15 p. m.

WARRENVILLE.

Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—9:30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m.
Mail closes at 6:15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M.

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Anthracite Coal Used Exclusively, Insuring Cleanliness and Comfort.

Stations in New York, foot of Liberty, and South Ferry, Whitehall Street.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT NOV. 19th, 1899

For New York 2 14, 3 37, 5 27, 6 30, 7 55, 8 40, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 a. m.; 12 00, 12 44, 1 35, 2 12, 3 30, 4 44, 5 45, 6 30, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30, p. m. Sunday 2 14, 3 37, 5 00, 5 27, 6 30, 7 55, 8 40, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 a. m.; 12 00, 12 44, 1 35, 2 12, 3 30, 4 44, 5 45, 6 30, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 p. m.

For Newark at 5 37, 6 30, 6 55, 7 30, 7 55, 8 15, 8 40, 9 02, 9 30, 10 07, 11 10 a. m.; 12 00, 12 44, 1 35, 2 12, 3 30, 4 44, 5 45, 6 30, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 p. m. Sunday at 5 37, 6 30, 7 55, 8 40, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 a. m.; 12 00, 12 44, 1 35, 2 12, 3 30, 4 44, 5 45, 6 30, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 p. m.

For Easton at 5 35, 8 19, 9 54 a. m.; 1 05, 2 30, 3 27, 4 50, 6 23 p. m. Sunday at 5 45, 9 54 a. m.; 3 05, 6 35 p. m.

For Lake Hopatcong at 9 54 a. m.; 5 37 p. m.

WESTWARD CONNECTIONS.

5 18 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Harrisburg, Pottsville, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Upper Lehigh, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

7 12 a. m.—For stations to High Bridge, connecting for stations on High Bridge Branch and Chester.

8 18 a. m.—For Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R. Easton, Bangor and Mauch Chunk.

9 54 a. m.—For stations on High Bridge Branch, Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R. Easton, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Pottsville, Shamokin, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Williamsport, Reading and Harrisburg, connecting at High Bridge for stations on High Bridge Branch.

9 10 p. m.—For Flemington.

6 26 p. m.—For Easton and at Junction for D. L. & W. R. R.

9 21 p. m.—For Easton.

9 48 a. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Williamsport, Reading and Harrisburg.

2 08 p. m. Sundays—For German Valley, Flanders, Netcong, Easton, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Williamsport, Reading and Harrisburg.

6 26 p. m. Sundays—For Flemington.

6 26 p. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Reading, Harrisburg, etc.

FOR LONG BRANCH, OCEAN GROVE, ETC.

For Red Bank and Long Branch, 8 35 a. m.; 4 17, 6 21 p. m.; Sundays, except Ocean Grove, 8 57 a. m.; 3 30 p. m.

For Perth Amboy, 3 27, 5 37, 8 18, 8 57, 9 16, 9 59, 10 37 a. m.; 1 05, 3 46, 4 17, 5 05, 6 21, 6 36, 7 28 p. m. Sundays, 8 57, 9 59, 10 37 a. m.; 3 30, 6 36 p. m.

For Atlantic City, 3 27 a. m.; 1 05 p. m.

For Freehold, 3 27, 8 35, 10 37 a. m.; 1 05, 4 17, 5 37 p. m.

For Lakewood, Toms River and Barnegat, 3 37, 9 16 a. m.; 1 35, 3 46 p. m. Sundays 9 16 a. m.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

For Philadelphia, Fifth and Chestnut Sts. Ferry, 2 14, 3 37, 5 27, 6 30, 7 55, 8 40, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 a. m.; 12 00, 12 44, 1 35, 2 12, 3 30, 4 44, 5 45, 6 30, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 p. m. Sunday 2 14, 3 37, 5 27, 6 30, 7 55, 8 40, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 a. m.; 12 00, 12 44, 1 35, 2 12, 3 30, 4 44, 5 45, 6 30, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 p. m.

For Trenton, 5 37, 7 12, 8 14, 9 04 a. m.; 1 05, 3 46, 5 14, 6 36, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 p. m. Sundays, 5 37, 8 45, 9 55, 10 44 a. m.; 3 30, 4 05, 6 36, 7 30, 8 30, 9 30, 10 30, 11 30 p. m. 11 nights.

For Baltimore and Washington at 5 37, 8 04, 10 44 a. m.; 2 16, 6 36, 9 38 p. m.; 11 nights. Sundays, 2 16, 6 36, 9 38 p. m.; 11 nights. 11 nights.

For Buffalo, Chicago and all points West, week-days at 9 54 a. m.; 1 05, 6 26 p. m.

(Plainfield passengers by trains marked) change cars at Dunellen Bridge.

Through tickets to all points at lowest rates may be had on application to agents at the ticket agent at the station.

J. M. OLHAUSEN,
General Superintendent.
H. P. BALDWIN,
General Passenger Agent.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect Nov. 19, 1899.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N.J.

Time given for Plainfield is leaving time of stage from City Ticket Office, 214 West Front street. Stage connects for connection with trains at South Plainfield.

Leave Plainfield 8:15 a. m.
Leave South Plainfield 8:25 a. m.
Daily express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

Leave Plainfield 12:10 p. m.
Leave South Plainfield 12:25 p. m.
Daily express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Diamond Express for Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

Leave Plainfield 6:30 p. m.
Leave South Plainfield 7:05 p. m.
Daily, Solid Vestibule train for Niagara Falls, Chicago and Principal intermediate stations.

Leave Plainfield 8:35 p. m.
Leave South Plainfield 8:50 p. m.
Daily, Exposition Express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto.

Leave Plainfield 8:15 p. m.
Leave South Plainfield 8:30 p. m.
Daily, Night Express for Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Chicago.

Passenger will also meet Eastbound trains 6, 8, 14, 4 and 10.

For time of local trains see pocket timetables, or telephone No. 125-B.

ROLLIN H. WILBUR,
General Superintendent.
CHAS. S. LEE,
General Passenger Agent.
26 Cortlandt St., New York.
FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent.
219 West Front St., Plainfield, N. J.

DEMAND THE OLD RELIABLE KENT RAZER

KENT CUTLERY CO. GREAT

SOLD EVERYWHERE WILL WEAR TWICE AS LONG AS ANY OTHER TRY IT.

USE THE KENT RAZER AND YOU WILL USE NO OTHER

Woolston & Buckle, PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

The fat undertaker,
Who plants the acres,
Poor victims of cough and cold,
Is signing and crying,
For we've all stopped dying;
Since Boschee's Syrup was sold.
And for those who desire
Not just yet to go higher
It is worth its weight in gold.

For sale by all druggists. L. W. Randolph, Wholesale Agent.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

BIT HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS

"UNCROWNED KING" OF WARREN WAS IN A BAD PLIGHT.

Got Into a Dispute With a Burly Teamster, Who Gave Him a Licking—Affair Taken to Court, But Thrown Out.

There was a lively time at Springdale in Warren township last Thursday morning. It all arose over an old fashioned slugging match between John C. Cooper, who is locally known as "the uncrowned king," and Daniel Carl, a teamster, with whom Cooper had an agreement to do teaming on shares. It appears that Carl had been using the team to draw stone and that Mr. Cooper desired it for another purpose. The result was a dispute, then a quarrel and finally a fight. It is alleged that Cooper attempted to take the team and that Carl resisted. Then, Carl claims, Cooper struck him. Carl is quite proficient in the manly art and he had no difficulty in promptly knocking Cooper down. Cooper, however, did not stay down the required number of "counts," as prescribed in Marquis of Queensbury rules; but on the contrary came back full of fight as a young bantem. Dan did not have any difficulty in again flooring his antagonist. In the mix-up which followed the men fell with Carl on top. Hostilities were put to an end at this stage of the mill by Cooper crying "Foul," alleging that Carl had bitten his ear.

After the battle Cooper consulted McClure & Meehan, of this city, with the result that he went before Justice Mattison, of North Plainfield, and swore out a warrant for Carl's arrest, charging him with assault. In the meantime Carl had secured the services of Murphy & Blatz. The trial was held last Friday evening. There were any quantity of witnesses on both sides and an army of lawyers that so completely upset the legal mind of the astute magistrate as to compel him to throw the case out of Court, from the fact that he was unable to determine who to punish. At one time in the trial there were five of Plainfield's legal lights arrayed against each other, for Lawyer Newcorn had been called into the case to assist the defendant's counsel. The affair attracted considerable attention in Warren township and has been the talk of the community ever since the fracas.

"LONGIES" WON THIS TIME.

Thrilling Bowling Match On The Alleys of The Park Club Saturday Night.

The last of the series of bowling matches between the "Longies" and "Shorties" of the Park Club was held on the Park Club alleys Saturday evening. The "Shorties" won the first two matches and expected to get the third but the lenghty membens got to gether and won the last match by some clever bowling. Ribbard, of the regular team, distinguished himself with a score of 226 which was a prominent factor in the result. Van Buren, of the "Shorties" tried to keep up with him but 193 was his best. The "Longies" won by a comfortable margin.

Arthur Chambers Dead.

The death of Arthur Chambers, aged 30 years, one of the best known colored waiters in this country, occurred last Saturday night at the hospital after a long illness. He has travelled extensively from one end of the country to the other and worked in most of the largest hotels. For sometime past he has been living in this city, and for a time he did nothing on account of illness. The funeral services were held from the Mt Olive Baptist church Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment was at Hillside.

Miss Grace Hurtt, of Manasquan, is spending a few days with Plainfield relatives.

Miss Tillie Schenck, of this city, will spend tomorrow at her home, Metuchen.

Rev. Dr. J. P. Taylor, of Park avenue, is spending a few days with some friends at Long Branch.

Miss Nancy Thomas, of Watchung avenue, will spend Thanksgiving holidays on Staten Island.

Miss Grace Browneli, of Hartwick, N. Y., who has been visiting Mrs. Seymour G. Smith, of Putnam avenue, has returned home.

Grace Vail, of Elmwood place, who some time ago lost the use of her legs is slowly regaining strength and is able to walk a little each day.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?
Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

JUDGE BARTINE AFTER THE PRIZE FIGHTERS

Will Severely Punish Bruisers Who Invade Somerset.

FINED ONE FIGHTER $110

SEVERAL MILLS HAVE BEEN PULLED OFF THERE LATELY.

"Anyone Wanting to See Such Disgusting Contests Had Better Go to New York," Said the Judge—Declares They Are Low, Degrading and Demoralizing—Promoters are Frightened.

Judge Bartine, of the Somerset County Court, is determined to put a stop to sparring exhibitions within his jurisdiction. During the past few months several have taken place.

The latest was a mill in an ice house at Bartine, in which Tony Bufano, of Pennsylvania, and "Kid" Thomas, of New York, fought eight rounds with gloves. It was to have been a twenty-round fight and tickets were sold to a large number of sporting men. At the close of the eighth round the fight was broken up because it was feared that the place would be raided by officers.

Bufano was arrested in Pennsylvania and taken to the county jail, Somerville, yesterday under extradition proceedings. He was arraigned before Judge Bartine and pleaded guilty.

In passing sentence Judge Bartine said: "I wish it understood that dog fights, cock fights and prize fights, under whatever name they occur, are in violation of the laws of New Jersey. *They are low, degrading, demoral*izing, and the law punishes severely. They are misdemeanors for which any one can be sent to prison."

It is to be said be understood that the laws of New York allowed such exhibitions. "Those who are brutal enough and degraded enough to enjoy them," he said, "had better go there and do so."

He then sentenced Bufano to pay a fine of $110, but said on a second offense he would be sent to prison.

Many of those who witnessed the fight are somewhat alarmed at the charge of the Judge that those who were present could be sent to State prison.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm Price including the spraying tube is 75 cents. Druggists or by Mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

TWO DEBUTANTES.

Coming Out of the Misses Fisk and Cox Will be a Notable Event in Society Circles.

Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, have issued invitations to a reception to be given in honor of their daughter, Miss Fanny C. Cox, and Miss Louise G. Fisk, Thursday, December 7th, to be followed December 8th by a dance at the Casino. Mrs. Cox will be assisted in receiving by Miss Bradford, of New York; Miss McCormick, of Harrisburg; Miss Wood, of Pittsburg; Miss Waterman, of Southport, Conn., and Miss Mitcham, of Chicago.

Other events in honor of the two debutantes will be a white luncheon, to be given Friday by Mrs. George Wharton Edwards; a theatre party Saturday, given by Mrs. Charles J Fisk, and a dinner to be given by Mrs. S. L. Schoonmaker Saturday evening. Two teas will also be given by Mrs. Cox Fridays, December 15th and 22d.

Former Plainfielder an Author

Among the new books in the Plainfield Public Library is one by a former resident of Plainfield, Miss Marion Agnes Taggart, now of New York. It is entitled "Royal Blue and Royal Scarlet," and is a pleasant juvenile story of the Revolution of '76. Two boys, intimate friends, who enlist in the army, one on either side, are the heroes, and there is also an attractive and plucky little heroine, who shows the true loyalty and bravery of so many women of her day.

Miss Griswold, of Madison avenue, will go to Brooklyn tomorrow.

Miss Jones, who has been visiting Miss Patterson, of Franklin place, returned to her home in Wilmington, Del., today.

GLORY OF THE LAND TOPIC FOR A SERMON.

Rev Cornelius Schenck Preached to the Jr. O. U. A. M.

OUR NATIONAL HERITAGE.

THE MINISTER SAYS THAT AMERICA IS ENVIED BY THE WORLD.

Free From Despotism, We Have All the Advantages of Intellect and Enterprise to Make Us a Great Nation—Church and School are the Two Greatest Agencies for Good in This Country.

Last Sunday at Trinity Reformed church Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor, preached a sermon to the members of *Franklin and Somerset Coun*cils, Jr. O. U. A. M. There was a large attendance of the members and a powerful discourse was given. Dr. Schenck took for his subject, "Our National Heritage," and his text was taken from Psalms 11 6: The lines have fallen unto us in pleasant places; yea, we have a goodly heritage." In part Pastor Schenck spoke as follows:

"If David could speak the words of our text, surely we can say as much in this land of the free and the home of the brave. It is sometimes well to hear what others have to say about our country. Prof. Brice, of Oxford, Eng., says 'The United States marks the highest level of well-being and the highest average yet attained.' Hon. Mr. Bascom says, 'America has the basis for the greatest empire ever known.'

"We certainly have a wonderful country with 29 920 miles of coast, and with four of the largest basins of water, not including our new possessions. The Philippines belong to us by treaty and by purchase for $20,000,000, and as soon as Lawton can put his hands on the neck of that sprinter, Aguinaldo, the troubles there will cease, and Godspeed the day.

"America, on account of her location, is envied by the world, and they are beginning to think more of us since Dewey sailed into Manila Bay. It has been said 'When America takes a pinch of snuff, the world sneezes.' "If so I can thank God that we are free from despotism, and that we have no state church, no shattered press with a censor as in Turkey and other foreign places. Our free schools are incomparable, and are attended by seventeen million scholars, who are taught by 300,000 teachers. Three-quarters of our population is of foreign birth or parentage. We are all immigrants, but some came a little sooner than others. The first families consist of the Indians, they are the only true aristocracy. Here we have no tyranny or caste that divide the people.

"Yesterday the people stood by the bier of an honest man, Vice-President Garret A. Hobart. When that man left college and started to practice law in Paterson his capital consisted of $1.59, but by hard work he rose to occupy the second position in the gift of the people."

In conclusion Dr. Schenck dwelt upon the necessity of supporting our great common schools and the Christian church the two greatest agencies for good. He urged the education of every boy and girl, the placing of a Bible in every schoolhouse, a flag on top of it and by its side a church. These things, he said, would solve the difficult problem, and for these things the people have reason to thank God for their goodly heritage. The highest and truest is not in expansion, nor in the army or navy, although we have the finest in the world, but it is in the quality of the men of the country. This is the highest glory of the highest type, and for it we should thank God.

During the service appropriate vocal and instrumental music was rendered and the choir sang special selections. *The pulpit was covered with an Amer*ican flag, and an air of patriotism pervaded the entire edifice.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

Prize Winners Announced.

Announcement is made of the prize winners in the contests during the recent fair held under the auspices of the German Lutheran church. Miss Clara Weber was awarded a silk umbrella, and Miss Emma Klein a pocketbook. The former turned in $1 75 and the latter $3.25.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

NEW YORK FASHIONS

THEY COME HIGH FOR THOSE WHO MUST HAVE THEM.

Bargain Gowns—Best Economy to Buy Good Materials—Wise Employment of Odds and Ends—The Narrow Turn-Over Collars.

An out-of-town friend sent me a clipping from a magazine, which stated that tailor-made suits might be had for $5 up. She enclosed $15, and minute directions as to cut, color, material, etc. I knew before I started out just what a wild goose chase I was destined for, but she was a dear friend and I resolved to take nothing for granted.

I wasted two whole days, spent two dollars in carfare and luncheon, lost my patience, aroused the ire of divers saleswomen because I tried to get a stylish, well-made gown for the money. I found at last the exact copy of the cut she sent me, and the price was $40.

The so-called bargains in the big department stores are bargains only when the purchaser can remodel the garment that is slightly behind the style and adapt it to her needs. The exhorbitant prices asked for some gowns and coats often apparently have no cause for being. It may be due to the special cut, the use of an exclusive material or an unusual amount of handwork that often doubles the cost of the garment. Fashionable women who order their gowns from Paris, or can buy the latest importations, have already discovered that the line to the most exact feminine world is wearing it on the street, so the woman who is not particular to wear the latest mode can often pick up beautiful models at a low cost, but they cannot always be had by seeking.

In search for fleeting styles, it pays to buy good materials and well-made trimmings. One clever woman, who does most of her own dressmaking and makes her hats says she is very careful to buy the best her purse affords, and the moment the trimming becomes out of date she rips it off and lays it aside, knowing that in "seven years" it will be in style again. She has an ermine collar on her new tailor-made suit that was a Christmas present when she was nine years old, and a white evening waist adorned with silk fringe that decorated her mother's concert dress years ago.

"I never give away finery," she says. "If a friend needs anything that I have for a certain purpose, I am generous, but indiscriminate giving is worth nothing and never appreciated."

Fur hats are especially fashionable, and if you have any scraps of fur, you can, if you are careful, make a toque yourself, while sable and chinchilla are the favorites, other furs make pretty combinations. To cut fur, lay it face downward on a board and cut on the skin side with a sharp knife. Sew it overhand on the wrong side and smooth the seam with the fingers.

The very narrow turn over white collars can easily be made at home. These are made of sheer batiste, cambric, Fawn or mull with the finest hand embroidery or edged with real lace. Dainty pocket handkerchiefs are used for this purpose or even the sheer hemstitched ones. These turned over collars are slipped into a band the width of an ordinary stock collar, and this band is sufficiently stiff to give support to the tie that is worn.

A vivid contrast to the animal scarfs and boas seen at a recent festival was a boa made entirely of violets. Another remarkable specimen in neckwear is a very short chiffon cape and long ends made of chenille fringe and sable fur.

Silks, gauzes and velvets are all pulled by hand and used as trimming. Of course, the work must be exquisitely done, for there is nothing more ugly than crude pulling on a handsome gown, and even when well done, must be used most sparingly.

The aim of dressmakers is to make the waist appear as long as possible, and belts, when worn, should be quite inconspicuous. On many of the cloth gowns the waists are put over the skirt and then the belt is the narrowest possible bias band with machine stitching, the ends of which cross in front or at the back with hook and eye.

Fancy muffs are to be the style, and all the good costumes now have muffs made especially for them. They are very small affairs, these fancy muffs, but the materials of which they are composed cost a large price. Lace and fur are combined in a most charming haphazard way, with an utter disregard as to the value of the material. A muff made entirely of lace will have a band of sable around the centre and then six or eight sable tails tied in front, with a knot of ribbon and occasionally a bunch of very fine artificial flowers. None of these muffs are large, and apparently are in contrast to the large muffs of fur that are so smart with the tailor gowns. Real fur, the black, the gray and the cinnamon bear muffs with long boas to match, are considered particularly desirable this year, and when a woman is tall enough to wear them without looking like a bear cub herself, the effect is certainly very good. Sable and mink are as popular as ever, while chinchilla is used as commonly as though it were torchon lace.

*The princesse style of dress is be*coming more and more fashionable, as more and more dressmakers are learning how to turn out a good-looking gown made in this style. A garment that used to be called the polonaise is more often seen than a whole princesse gown, although it be called by the latter name. It is a long, tight-fitting coat worn over quite a long skirt made of the same material, and a flounce of the material also shows below the coat. This coat fastens at the left side, or in the front, and, as a rule, whatever trimming there is is put on the upper part of the waist and is of embroidery and cut work, or velvet or a very rich lace or fur. Sometimes all these materials are combined.

The Horse Show was the means of bringing to light many smart gowns. The shop windows are filled with lovely importations, which rival anything at the show. The materials which seem to predominate are heavily embroidered satin panne velvets, chenille, embroidered laces and perforated satins. The colors this season are decidedly the pastels.

AGNES OLCOTT.

"LAMP OF LIFE" SERVICE.

HELD BY PARK AVENUE BAPTIST SUNDAY-SCHOOL SUNDAY.

An Interesting Programme Was Rendered —Names of Those Who Took Part— Offering Amounted to Eighteen Dollars.

The "lamp of life" service for Bible day, held at the Park Avenue Baptist church by the Sunday-school Sunday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock, proved of considerable interest to those who attend that school. The programme was of considerable length but none the less pleasurable to the large number present. The principal features of the service were: A recitation "The Wonderful Word of God" by Harry Stutzman; select reading, "Three Ideals," by Miss Cora Brokaw; singing of "The Bible Song" by the school; recitation, "What is God" by Viola Hillyer and "When I Learned to Pray" by Eloise Giles. A duet and chorus, entitled "My Mother's Bible," by the Misses Ada and Adelia Runyon was well rendered, as was also the recitations of "The Open Door," by Miss Lizzie VanWinkle, and "Crumbs" by Harry Doane. The motion exercises "How we Remember Our Bible Verses" was given nicely by the scholars of the school in a way to convince all that they had their hearts in the work. After singing a reading there were two more recitations, "My Bible" by Florence Cumming and "Oh, Let Me Ring the Bell" by Harry Cumming.

Previous to the address of Superintendent Hall, which was highly interesting and delivered along the lines of Sunday-school work and the great benefits to be derived from reading and studying closely the Bible, the school rendered beautifully "Our Precious World."

The offerings amounted to $18. The exercises were brought to a close by the school singing "An Open Bible for the World."

SURPRISED BY CLASSMATES.

Pleasant Party at the Home of Francis Anderson Saturday Night.

A delightful party was tendered Master Francis Anderson at the residence of his aunt, Miss Ketcham, of East Fifth street, Saturday evening. The party was gotten up as a surprise by his classmates, who met at the residence of Robert Crane, of East Second street, and proceeded from there in a body. To say he was surprised tells the whole story.

The young people were made welcome and games and music were indulged in. Herbert Dubois won the first prize, a beautiful vase, and the second prize, a handsome needle book, was captured by Miss Emily Winant, in a pleasant race. The scholars were highly honored by the presence of their teacher, Miss Day.

A bountiful collation was served and the children bid good night to their friends, regretting that the evening's pleasures were at an end.

Mrs. Morrison's Life Despaired of.

Thomas W. Morrison, of Mountain avenue, has the sympathy of a host of friends who will sympathize with him in the sad news received Saturday concerning the critical condition of his wife. Since she has been abroad visiting her son, Harry Morrison, a partial paralytic stroke of disease has developed, and her life is despaired of. The letter received Saturday states that she will make an extra effort to reach home as soon as possible so that she may see her husband before her disease reaches a more critical stage.

Resolution of Condolence.

WHEREAS, The Great Spirit, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to remove from our midst, our esteemed fellow citizen, the Hon. Garret A. Hobart, Vice-president of the United States of America; and

WHEREAS, The Improved Order of Red Men is distinctively an American institution, having been originated and governed with the inception of our Government; be it

RESOLVED, That the Chiefs of Miantonomo Tribe No. 118, Improved O. R. M. assembled in regular council fire, at their wigwam, on the sleep of the 28th Sun, Beaver moon, G. S D. 402, while bowing in humble submission to the will of the Great Spirit, who in His wisdom doth all things for the best, express their deep felt sympathy with the family of the late, Hon. Garret A. Hobart, in this their hour of affliction, and bereavement of one who had a long and honorable life of loving and dutiful husband father; be it further RESOLVED, That it is the sense of this Tribe, that in the death of the Hon. Garret A. Hobart, the nation mourns the loss of one who was noted for his energy, uprightness and generosity, and who by his career has proved an ornament to the nation and to the State that called him its son.

RESOLVED, That these resolutions be spread in full on the speaking books of the Tribe.

WILLIAM A. WESTFIAL,
WILLIAM H. MOORE,
HOWARD WOOLSTON,
Committee.

Adopted unanimously, 77 chief present.

Interesting Report.

In Friday's issue of the New York Tribune is an interesting statement of woman's influence in the schools of New Jersey. It is a synopsis of the report made by Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, chairman of the committee on education in the State Federation of Women's Clubs, and presented at their recent meeting in Atlantic City.

Beauty is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean your blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads, and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

Dr. Humphreys'
Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

NO.	CURES.	PRICE.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations.	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic...	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults...	.25
5	Dysentery, Gripings, Bilious Colic...	.25
6	Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting.	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Facesche ...	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo ..	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach.	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions.	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
18	Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Kidney Disease	.25
22	Ear Discharge, Earache	.25
23	Scrofula, Swellings and Ulcers	.25
24	Grave Diseases, Mercurial Affections	.25
25	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting ...	.25
27	Kidney Disease	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
29	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed..	.25
31	Painful Menstruation, Spasms ...	.25
32	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitations	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34	Chronic Throat Ailments, Elergyman's	.25
35	Chronic Congestions, Headaches ..	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists or Mailed Free.
Sold by Druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL
"THE PILE OINTMENT."
For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding; Itching, Scaly Eruptions of the Skin; External Pains. The relief is immediate—the cure certain.
PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.
Sold by Druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price.
HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

Cordova Wax Candles
Nothing else adds so much to the charm of the drawing room or dining table as the softly radiant light from CORDOVA Candles. Nothing will please more to the artistic sense of the luncheon, dinner or evening party guest than the simple suggestion of the most elaborate function—for Light and Shade in all colors and the most delicate tints by PEARLINE SILL CO., 109 and 111 Fulton St., New York.

CATARRH
THE CLEANSING AND HEALING CURE FOR CATARRH IS
Ely's Cream Balm
Easy and pleasant to use. Contains no injurious drug. It is quickly absorbed. Gives Relief at once. It opens and cleanses the Nasal Passages. Allays Inflammation. Heals and Protects the Membrane. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail. Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.
ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren St., New York

CATARRH
ELY'S CREAM BALM
CATARRH
COLD IN HEAD
ELY BROS. NEW YORK

MARRIED.

TYLER-VANBOSKERCK—At Grace Episcopal church, Plainfield, N. J., on Thursday, Nov. 23, 1899, by the Rev. Dr. Hedman, assisted by the Rev. F. A. Wright, Ethel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. VanBoskerck, to William Seymour Tyler.

DIED.

SPRICH—In this city, Nov. 22, 1899, Catharine widow of the late Ludwig Sprich, in her sixth year.

RUNYAN—In this city, November 24th, 1899, Earl Lukey, son of A. T. and G. S. Runyan, aged 3 months and 11 days.

CHAMBERS—In this city, Saturday, Nov. 25th, 1899, Arthur Chambers, aged 30 years.

LOWRY—In this city, Saturday, November 25, 1899, Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D.

NOTABLE VISITORS.

Distinguished Men Who Were Present at Funeral Services of Late Dr. Lowry.

At the funeral services of the late Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry, Tuesday afternoon there were a number of distinguished guests including Rev. Dr. A. C. Dixon, pastor of the Hanson Place Baptist church, of Brooklyn, where the deceased was formerly pastor; Rev. Dr. DeWolf, of Newark; Dr. Vassar, of Lyons Farms; Dr. Peltz, of Philadelphia; Rev. Mr. Cubberly, of South Plainfield; Dr. B. Leonard, of North Amboy; and all of the local ministry was present. There was also a delegation from the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, where Dr. Lowry held his membership, and where he attended communion service every month. There were many others from various parts of the State who were personally acquainted with Dr. Lowry.

Howard and Edgar George, of Craig place, two efficient Daily Press carriers, are spending Thanksgiving week with relatives in Philadelphia.

J. Hervey Doane and wife, of La Grande avenue, attended the performance of "Faust," given at the American Theatre, New York, last evening.

Miss Harvey, of Wilmington, Del., who has been the guest of Miss Marion Bowen, of Watchung avenue, for several weeks, has returned to her home.

Miss Josephine Burlingham, of Cooperstown, N. Y., who has been the guest of Mrs. Seymour G. Smith, of Putnam avenue, has returned to New York.

—There will be no meeting of Court Plainfield, No. 1144, I. O. F., till December 8th, when there will be an initiation of candidates. The reduced initiation fee be continued till the 31st of December.

CARNEY BROS.,
MADISON AVENUE,
Between Front and Second streets.
Tinners,
Plumbers
Gas Fitters,
Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Ware of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,
Brick and Portable Furnaces
Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,
Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.
Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man minding his own business, at all times and in all cases.
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN
Livery & Boarding Stables
FOURTH ST.,
between Watchung and Park avenues,
First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS.
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco. Smokers' articles, has removed from 241 West Front street, to South side of Somerset street, first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

A Free Trip to Paris!
Beliable agents wanted in every county, to introduce our goods. Salary $75 per month, and expenses, or big commission, with guaranteed increase each year. Permanent position. Outfit free. Address, with stamp, THE PARIS MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

LIPPINCOTT'S
A COMPLETE NOVEL
$3.00 PER YEAR
FOR SALE BY NEWSDEALERS
25 CENTS A COPY

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!
My new barber shop at
143 NORTH AVE.
a now open ready for business.
All the latest appointments in the tonsorial
EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

Wm. A. Woodruff,
Fire and Life
INSURANCE AGENT,
OFFICE,
corner Front St. and Park Avenue,
Plainfield, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale or Exchange
Money to loan on Approved Security

WERE WEDDED UNDER SIGN OF GOOD LUCK

Charming Home Wedding of Miss Ada L. Wagner.

TO S. BARRON BREWSTER.

CEREMONY WAS PERFORMED UNDER A FLORAL HORSESHOE.

The Eldest Daughter of Jacob Wagner Married to a Rising Young Business Man of Woodbridge—Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass Performed the Ceremony—The Members of the Bridal Party.

The marriage of Miss Ada Louise Wagner, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wagner, of 109 West Fourth street, to S. Barron Brewster, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brewster, of Woodbridge, which took place Nov. 22d at 6:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, was one of the prettiest home weddings of the season. The couple, surrounded by a large number of friends, were made one by Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, pastor of the First Methodist church, where the bride has been an attendant.

The marriage ceremony was performed in the parlor which was prettily decorated with evergreens and roses. Suspended from one end of the room to the other were the greens, centering in front of a bow window. From this point there hung a horse shoe of evergreen, and beneath it the bridal party stood while the nuptial knot was being tied.

Miss Mary Graves, of this city, presided at the piano and rendered the Lohengrin wedding march as the party entered the room. First appeared the maid-of-honor, Miss Florence A. Dodge, of this city, who was becomingly gowned in steel-grey cloth with white taffeta and lace trimming. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. Accompanying her was the best man, George F. Brewster, of Woodbridge.

Then followed the bride and groom. The bride was gowned in silk poplin, ecator color, with white corded silk and passementrie trimmings, and she carried a bouqut of bridal roses. Following the bridal couple came the bridesmaids, Miss Helen Frances Wagner, sister of the bride, and Miss Irene Stout, cousin of the bride, both of whom were gowned in pink mousseline de sole over pink silk, and carried pink Pa...

The party then formed a semi-circle in the parlor, with the bride and groom standing in the centre, after which Dr. Snodgrass performed the ceremony. Then followed congratulations, and the happy couple were showered with the best wishes of all.

A wedding supper was served after which Mr and Mrs. Brewster departed to take the 8:21 train for Philadelphia, where they will remain for a few days at the Colonade Hotel. From there they will go to Washington for a short visit. Upon their return they will reside in Woodbridge, where the groom has built and furnished a handsome new home.

The groom is in the wholesale flour and feed business at Woodbridge, where he is very popular. The large and handsome array of gifts received by them gave unmistakable evidence of the high esteem in which they are held.

There were present guests from New York, Philadelphia, Newark, Woodbridge, Sewaren and many from this city. They gave the bride and groom a great send-off and showed them with rice when they boarded the train at the North Avenue Station.

Alden Wagner, brother of the bride, and Elwood Sebring, of this city, were ushers.

YOUNG CHRISTIANS.

Officers and Committees of Trinity Church Endeavorers Plan Work for the Winter.

One helpful way of carrying on Christian Endeavor Society work is the one adopted by the Trinity Reformed church society. The plan is for the officers and various committees to meet occasionally and confer regarding methods for the advancement of the work. Last Friday President Edgar P. Sheppard and all the committees of the society met in the lecture room of the church and discussed the best methods for the most aggressive work for Christ the coming year.

There was a large attendance, as all of the one dozen committees of the society were represented by one or more members. The conference was a helpful one.

After the conference last evening refreshments, consisting of wafers and chocolate, were served.

MORE LOOMS NECESSARY.

Local Silk Concern Enlarges Plant on Account of Increased Business.

The directors of the Watchung Silk Company held a meeting Friday morning. Owing to the rush of orders received it was found necessary to order ten new looms, which, when placed in position, will occupy all the remaining space in the present quarters. Ten jacquards will be put over old looms so as to enable them to make all kinds of fancy silk.

GIRL OF THE PERIOD

HOW SHE IS ATTIRED AT THE FASHION CENTRE.

Long Bank Account Necessary to Gratify Her Whims—Tailor-Made Gowns and Fluffy Blouses—Capes and Coats —A New Skirt—High Collars.

(New York fashion letter.)

A flourishing bank account and untiring perseverance are necessary to the woman who would keep pace with the fashion of these days. The wise woman who wishes to be stylish and at the same time economical will put the lion's share of her winter allowance into one handsome tailor-made gown. There are a great many tailor gowns made on the old-fashioned lines of coats that look like waists, buttoned in front, opened with small revers at the throat and small close-fitting sleeves. This, however, is a style that requires a very well-made figure, while the coats that do not define the figure are better for the generality of people. There are few costumes made for street wear that have not some elaborate trimming. There is machine stitching, the stitched folds, the applique or velvet, or cloth in the different colors, and also the effect that is given by combining two shades of cloth or cloth and velvet. There are very few absolutely plain coat and skirt costumes and really most of the gowns that are seen are quite elaborate enough to be worn at receptions.

Both cheviots and rough cloths are used, but the smooth cloths are first choice. The fortunate woman who has her own carriage chooses gray and tan in the softest shades, elaborately trimmed with fur. The long coat is in vogue, but the great majority dependent on cable and trolley adhere to black, dark gray, blue or the new shade of brown. Sheets of wool wadding or even pieces of chamois are used to make the cloth coat comfortably warm.

Wraps offer a wide choice. There are capes of various styles and coats are of different lengths. Some are very short. Others reach to the knee, and still others entirely cover the skirt. The majority of these fit the figure snugly in the back, but hang loose in the front.

The Parisian modistes declare the tight skirts must go, but American women show no disposition at present to give them up. The very newest skirt is plaited, with the exception of the front breadth. But the plaits are firmly stitched down from the waist to well over the hips, so that here the clinging effect is still maintained. The low flare open, giving the rest of the skirt conspicuous width.

But no matter how many complete costumes the up-to-date young woman has, she will not consider her wardrope complete unless it contains a half dozen or more odd waists. For shopping or traveling she wears the winter shirt waist of flannel or velveteen. For theatre wear and impromptu dinners she has an assortment of fancy waists to match her skirts, and as for gorgeous creations this year, some of the imported models costing as much as $250. But here is the place where the clever girl will show her ingenuity and economy by making at least a part of these herself.

The new waists are fancier than they were last year. They are tucked and feather stitched and corded, and not the plain everyday affairs they at first were. Some have the well-known yoke in the back, others have plain backs, depending for the touch of needed fulness on the gathering or pleats at the waist line. This yokeless back seems to be gaining steadily in favor, and as it is a new touch a yokeless back seems to be gaining steadily in favor, and a yokeless back goes a great way with some women.

The pleated back is also shown, but as there is not necessarily a yoke with the pleats, it is also very new. The pleats are spread at the neck and narrow down to a point at the belt. This style of back should be popular with stout women, as it tends to making the lines taper, and every one with a grain of sense knows that this is the summit of a stout woman's ambition.

Separate waists of bands of ribbon are among the season's novelties. They are made skirt waist fashion, and the prettiest effects are obtained when the ribbon is trimmed with rich fringe. The bands of ribbon are connected with hemstitching done in silk or with any fancy stitches, and here and there the fringe is introduced. Ribbon shirt waists of this sort are made with a broad box plait down the front of the plait fastening on each side with jeweled buttons. The ribbons are so exquisite this year that these waists are really marvels of beauty. Much more simple waists are made of pale tinted silk, with the skirt waist pattern, with the yoke and box plait front embroidered in some small flower. Waists of faint green silk embroidered with tiny daisies, are extremely dainty and pretty. The new red shade known as automobile red is for children but rather too conspicuous for adults, except used in very sparing quantities.

There is no detail of a woman's attire at present to which the smart woman pays so much attention as her collar. It is not merely necessary to have a soft, straight collar around a woman's neck nowadays; she must stand and be fitted to a pointed turreted, overlapping chin supporting affair which is just as much an object of care and attention on the part of the modiste as any other portion of the bodice.

The new collar is a very complicated confection anyway, and its varieties of form, cut and style are numberless.

The main point which should never be lost sight of, is that it must be very high in the back, while in front it is low enough to be a comfortable rest for the chin.

AGNES OLCOTT.

SOCIETY WEDDING AT GRACE CHURCH.

Miss Edith VanBoskerck and William Seymour Tyler.

MADE HUSBAND AND WIFE.

BY REV. DR. E. M. RODMAN ASSISTED BY REV. FREDERICK WRIGHT.

Sacred Edifice Thronged With Friends of the Happy Couple to Witness the Nuptials—Many Handsome and Costly Gifts Were Received by the Bride—Reception at Home of Bride's Parents.

The society event of the autumnal season in this city was the marriage Thursday of Miss Ethel, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. VanBoskerck, of No. 542 West Seventh street, to William Seymour Tyler, the eldest son of Col. Mason W. Tyler of this city.

The ceremony was performed at Grace Episcopal church at 6:30 o'clock by the rector, Rev. E. M. Rodman, assisted by Rev. Frederick Wright, of Westfield, Mass. It was expected that Bishop Scarborough would officiate, also but he was unavoidable detained by a previous engagement, and did not reach the city in time although he was present at the reception.

The sacred edifice was crowded with representatives of society in Plainfield, New York, Boston, Washington, Baltimore and other cities. The church decorations were very handsome, the colors used being green and white.

The bridal party entered the church to the sweet strains of Lohengrin's march, played by Hrs. Wm. A. Free man, the organist, the ushers, Wind ser James Decker, M. D., of New York; Charles Theodore Burnett, of Boston; Dwight W. Morrow, of New York; Henry Tyler, of New York; George T. VanBoskerck and Thomas Rowe VanBoskerck, the latter brothers of the bride, leading the way to the chancel steps.

Following came the bridesmaids, costumed in nile green chiffon and carrying bouquets of pink roses. They were Miss Helen Ashton Bloodgood, a niece of the bride, of New York; Miss Harriet Elner Strong, Miss Helen Frances Bushnell, Miss Rosabell Shroeder, o Plainfield.

The maid of honor was Miss Edith VanBoskerck, sister of the bride. She wore a handsome dress of white chiffon and bas carried pink roses. The best man was Cornelius Boardman Tyler, brother of the groom.

The bride was richly gowned in white satin, en train, with a veil of point lace, which was worn by her grandmother on the occasion when she became a bride. She carried a large bonquet of lilies of the valley and orchids.

The beautiful and impressive solemn ritual of the Episcopalian marriage service was used. The bride entered the church accompanied by her father, George W. VanBoskerck, being preceded by the bridemaids, maid-of-honor and ushers. Rev. Frederick Wright, a cousin of the bride officiated at the first part of the service.

The happy couple left the church to the music of Mendelsohn's wedding march and were driven to the home of the bride's parents on West Seventh street, where a reception lasting from 7 to 9 o'clock, was held. The decorations consisted in the main of white chrysanthemums and Virginia smilax.

The groom's gift to the bride was a magnificent sunburst in the form of a star. Mrs. William Bloodgood, the bride's sister, of New York city, presented her with an exquisite golden crown set with a diamond cluster The ornaments the bride wore at her throat.

The bride's gifts to her attendants where pretty designs of diamond crescents. The groom gave the ushers stick pins in the shape of horseshoes set with small diamonds.

An array of magnificent gifts was displayed in one of the upper rooms. The presents were of an unusually valuable description.

Mr. and Mrs. Tyler left immediately after the reception for a short wedding tour to Old Point Comfort and the South. When they return they will take up their residence in New York city, where Mr. Tyler has a lucrative law practice.

The guests from out of town included Bishop and Mrs. Scarborough, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. William J. Boardman, Washington, D. C.; Mrs Augustus A. Zerega, Westchester, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Duvall, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. F. Dickerson, Brookline, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Jackson, Binghamton, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tyler, Amherst, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jermyn, Scranton, Pa.; Charles R. Bangs, Brooklyn; Lucien R. Eastman, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Thomas, Morristown; Miss Cable, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Rider, New Haven, Conn.; Mrs. Austin Decker, Scranton.

Those present from New York city were: Rev. and Mrs. L. Rowe Schuyler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Wadsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Ashton C. Clarkson, Mr. and Mrs. Borrum, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doubleday, Dr. and Mrs. Rufus Lincoln, Mrs. H. M. Fatchild, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott S. Benedict, Mrs. Floyd Clarkson, Mr. and Mrs. Leighton Calkins, Frank Belden, MacCready Sykes, Marchell Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Birdell, Miss Louise Dudley, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Herrick, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ruhne, John Hall Watson, the Misses Watson, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Ladd, the Misses MacCready, Miss Marian Yuille Bloodgood, John Hall Watson, Jr., Edward F. Bloodgood.

REPUBLICAN RULE STRONGLY DENOUNCED.

Democratic Platform for Coming Municipal Campaign.

ADOPTED AT CONVENTION.

WOULD READJUST METHODS OF CITY DOING BUSINESS.

Past Attempts of Independent Movements Declared Failures—The Question of Assessments—Reduction of Tax Rate Asked For—Cheapening of Utilities—Municipal Ownership Strongly Favored.

The following is the platform for the coming municipal campaign that was adopted at the Democratic city convention Thursday evening:

After sacrificing party identity for two years in municipal campaigns, in the hope of effecting a change in the local government the Democrats of the city of Plainfield, in convention assembled, hereby declare themselves as partisans in local affairs as much as in any other detail of government, believing that the best interests of the community are thus conserved. The late independent movements for the control of the local administration have signally failed in their efforts—even when partially successful at the polls—and it is a duty incumbent on the Democratic party which this preamble gives effect to, to plan and work for the success of a straight Democratic ticket, that the people may have a salutary change in the conduct of the municipal affairs of the city of Plainfield.

In entering upon the canvass for the city election we recognize that there is and has been an increasing demand for a radical change in the methods that have obtained control in the management of city business under Republican rule. We promise, in the event of the election of a majority of the Democratic candidates, to bring about such change in the conduct of the affairs of city business on a practical, economical and equitable basis. Fear of or favor to any man will not be tolerated in the conduct of the city government, a condition that is so lamentably absent under the present regime that it has got to be a public scandal.

As tax fountain head to which the city derives its funds for public use, we demand that the assessment of taxable property shall be on such a basis as to treat one and all with the same proportionate regard in arriving at the valuation, and in an economical administration of city affairs shall require. There is a positive demand from the people at large for reform in the matter of assessment of local taxables, and the Democrats promise that their nominees, if elected, will use the best and most honest endeavors to effect the desired change.

We promise such economy as may result from a keener and better appreciation of the common needs of the city, in an important essential to insist on if the community is to grow and prosper, and to the end that advantages and unhampered enterprise of its citizens tends to indicate that it will. Taxpayers may rest assured that their tax bills can be reduced with not sacrificing any of the considerations that go to make up a city in which it is both profitable and pleasant to live, and we promise that Democratic officials will accomplish no less end.

One of the most important subjects that the next Common Council will have to deal with is the various schemes that will assuredly be presented for the granting or renewing of the utilities that are operated and distributed through the use of the public streets, providing the only substantial asset which communities possess, the streets. It is a fact that the city is receiving a wholly inequitable return for the use of these inestimably valuable privileges, and it behooves the people to see to it that their interests shall be better conserved and protected by local legislation. When and where it is practicable and possible the ownership of utilities that depend upon public rights for their existence, sh ould be in the hands of the people. The history and location and general tendency of the Republican leaders in Plainfield are dia metrically antagonistic to any such ownership and if such reforms and principles as outlined above are to prevail, it will devolve upon a Democratic administration to carry them out. To gain a full measure of success it is therefore necessary for the Democratic party to be put into power through the resolute and honest motives of the people.

In conclusion, knowing that the majority of the people of Plainfield agree with us, we condemn the expenditures of thousands of dollars in special methods that were appropriations for certain departments of municipal work, thus entailing an unwilling an unjust burden upon taxpayers; the onerous and exacting assessments to fill the offices for which they have been nominated, to rectify the abuses recounted insofar as it lies in their power, honestly and fearlessly carried out, to do so.

An Accidental Shooting.

An unfortunate accident of Friday was the shooting of Harry Frisby, of Sycamore avenue, by Paul Collier, of East Sixth street, with an air gun, but there were no serious results. The shot lodged beneath a small wound in the head and caused it to bleed slightly. The accident was the result of fooling and was in no way intentional.

Engagement Announced.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Eda Beekman, daughter of John V. Beekman, Sr., of West Eighth street, and Lafayette Appleby Bowers, of Washington, N. J.

THE G. O. P. HOLDS ITS CITY CONVENTION.

Republican Ticket For City Election Now Complete.

ONLY ONE CONTEST MADE.

J. F. HUBBARD AND W. A. WESTPHAL NOMINATED FOR FREEHOLDERS.

J. F. Buckle, J. B. Dumont and James Craig Nominated as Councilmen at Large—Dumont's Nomination Unsprung at the Last Moment—Dr. J. B. Probasco Renominated to Board of Education.

The Republican ticket for the approaching municipal election is now complete. Tuesday evening the ward candidates were nominated at the primaries. Thursday, the city convention was held and the ticket at large nominated. Perfect harmony prevailed except over the question of naming the two candidates for the Board of Chosen Freeholders. The fight lay between the present incumbent, John H. Tier, Sr., of the First Ward, and Former Councilman W. A. Westphal, of the Fourth. The Second, Third and Fourth wards stood together and supported Westphal, who was nominated.

Aside from the Freeholder and one Councilman at large, the slate had been prepared and went through with the unanimous support of the delegates. It was understood that the nominations for Councilmen at large were to go to the First, Second and Fourth. Up to the time the delegates took their places, the Second ward delegation had not definitely decided who should be named from that ward. The name of Thomas A. Cuming had been mentioned but no attempt had been made to push his candidacy. At the last moment, the choice fell on Former Councilman John B. Dumont, chairman of the convention, and he was nominated.

The delegates and a crowd of well-known Republicans gathered at the Republican headquarters on East Front street some time before the time for the calling to order of the convention. Shortly after 8 o'clock, Mr. Dumont, of the Second ward, called the meeting to order and was chosen chairman. Frank H. Smith, of the Fourth ward, was made secretary. Former Councilman J. T. Baker, of the Third ward, was elected judge of election and Charles C. Davis, of the Second, inspector.

After the call had been read by the secretary, the delegates presented their certificates. There were very few changes in the delegations, the only important one being that City Clerk J. T. MacMurray acted as an aldermate in the First ward delegation and was subsequently chosen chairman of the delegation.

The first of the nominations was that of the two Freeholders. On the call for nominations by wards, Mr. MacMurray, of the First ward, presented the name of John H. Tier, Sr. The Third ward named J. Frank Hubbard th rough its chairman, Councilman E. T. Barrows. Harry C Runyon, from the Fourth, put up W. A. Westphal.

The seven votes of the First ward were cast for Tier and Hubbard. The twenty four votes of the other three wards were cast for Hubbard and Westphal. It was then announced that Hubbard and Westphal were elected.

Nominations were made for Councilmen-at-large. The First ward had a candidate in J. F. Buckle, City Judge William N. Runyon, chairman of the Second ward delegation, stated that the ward had no nomination. In a speech Mr. Barrows, from the Third ward, named J. B. Dumont as a candidate. James Craig's name was put forward as the choice of the Fourth ward.

Mr. Dumont thanked the convention for the nomination. He had been there several times already, he said, and he felt that he ought not to accept it. He said he would think it over and would let his decision be known later.

Dr. J. B. Probasco's name was the only one presented for the nomination for member of the Board of Education. The secretary cast a ballot for him.

The chairmen of the different ward delegations were appointed a committee to fill any vacancies that might occur in the ticket, and the convention then adjourned.

Marriage Announcement.

A number of Plainfield people will be interested in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Fay MacCracken, daughter of Chancellor MacCracken, of the New York University, to Rev. Frederick Stockwell, assistant pastor of the West End Presbyterian church, New York, which will occur Tuesday, December 5th, at the home of the bride in University Heights, New York.

—The regular dance given at the Plainfield Catholic Clubhouse Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary, was a great success and was largely attended.

CIRCUS ELEPHANTS

THEY ARE CAREFULLY WATCHED ALL NIGHT.

The Show Beast Must Always Be Scolded and Talked To or He Will Get Into Mischief—The Boss of All the Beasts.

The elephant men have to mind their charges every hour of the day and night. The "bull," to the circus slang, sleeps only about two hours, and often does that on his feet. One fool African elephant—they can't be taught to do anything, and the commonest saying about a show is that they are not worth the hay they eat—has been known to go three weeks without lying down at all. The elephant is always fidgeting about, always swaying that ridiculous bulk of his, which seems to be tied in a big knot from the cast-off breeches, always stirring up strife, and always picking at something with his trunk. He might loosen his stake and run wild. He must have something to occupy his mind, and so bales of hay are always at hand to be doled out to him. He must be scolded and petted and talked to and told to keep out of that, or get back there, or come out where he can be seen. When he isn't being talked to, he is being rapped on the nose with a "bull hook." An elephant has a hide about an inch thick, a temper that is as uncertain as the toss of a coin, the cruelty of the Apache, and the destructiveness of a tornado. Some wise and kind-hearted men in New York who couldn't bear to see a poor dumb brute beaten say that the "bull-hook" must not be used. They didn't have to be with the elephants all the time. The men who did, either hid the hook from their hands while the agents of the S. P. C. A. were around, or displayed broomsticks that would break in two every time about as soon as a feather duster would stop a cyclone. The bull hook is shaped like a boot hook. It has a straight point. This is to jab into the skin in tenderest, near the root of the tail. It is an amateur trying to blow a cornet for the first time. They shuffle up to a wagon, put their foreheads against it, and up it goes. Patsy trots behind them, making vicious downward jabs with the hook. "Hoosh! Hoosh! Hoosh! Yah! Hooyah!" They scull their way along the inclined plane and toddle down again for more. Once I saw a wagon half way up the incline going slow while the elephants turned tail and ran trumpeting with terror. A Non inside, angry at having his sleep broken, roared and shook the wagon. Romney and John wanted to hear. They fled, Patsy after them with his hook, and though they snuffed and trumpeted as they had become and push that wagon up. Perhaps they will treasure that up and some day—well, some day they are sure to get him.—Ainslee's Magazine.

Rent in Opie Read's Rented Suit.

Opie Read hates to wear a dress suit, says the Chicago Journal.

Recently he was invited to appear before a large and fashionable audience, and, much against his wishes, he was prevailed upon to borrow for the occasion a black dress suit.

The author told him stories to the assembly, and much laughter and applause greeted his recital. As he turned to leave the stage the laughter and applause broke forth with redoubled emphasis. The author stepped forth from the wings and bowed low in recognition of the flattering greeting, then left the stage again. The laughter grew louder. Mr. Reid repeated the performance and again sought the wings.

The laughter still continuing, Mr. Read was about to make another sally, when a friend behind the footlights grabbed him.

"They're not laughing at your stories, Opie," whispered the friend. "They are laughing at a big rent in the back of your coat. Upon your first appearance you burst it from top to bottom."

Mr. Read subsided without a word.

How She Tried to Do It.

The infant child of the eminent author was raising Cain and most every one else who has been buried since the Days of the fall, says Harper's Bazar. He was bawling at the top of his voice, and it towered above even the skyscrapers of Lower Broadway. And in the midst of all this the author was trying to extract from his inner consciousness a quiet, peaceful, idyllic description of a medieval love scene. Perhaps if he could not notice the wild cries that were breaking in on his concentration, and when they passed beyond his endurance he finally rose and walked out of the room to study to confer with the wife of his bosom.

"What in creation is Willie howling about?" By my soul, one would think he was possessed of a demon. Dost thou not perceive that he disturbs me? What ails him?"

"Well," said the patient wife, with a half sob, "I am sure I don't know what to do with him."

"But why is he crying?"

"Simply because I made him stop making a noise for fear he would disturb you at your work."

De Jones—I hear your firm discharged you.

Smythe—Yes; but I wouldn't mind that so much if they hadn't added insult to injury.

De Jones—How so?

Smythe—They advertised for a boy to fill my place.—Chicago News.

GRAND MUSIC WILL BE FREE TO ALL

Rendition Of "The Messiah" At Christmas Tide.

RELIGIOUS MUSICAL SERVICE

TO BE HELD IN CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH DECEMBER 21ST.

It Is The Result Of a Public Spirited Movement To Give Plainfielders One Of The Greatest Of the Oratorios in An Appropriate Season Without Cost — Public Rehearsal Will Be Held.

As the result of a public spirited movement in behalf of good music, "The Messiah," one of the grandest of the oratorios, is to be rendered at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Thursday evening, December 21st, for the benefit of the people of Plainfield. A chorus of over a hundred selected voices, assisted by a quartette of trained soloists, will give this musical work so appropriate to the Christmas tide. Without regard for wealth, race or social position, this religious musical service will be free to all.

The "Messiah" has been rendered in Plainfield before, but always at the concert of one of the local musical societies. The rendition this year will be on an utterly different plan. The incidental expenses made necessary in the preparation and carrying out of the service have been covered by subscriptions from some of Plainfield's public spirited citizens. The "Messiah" was selected as particularly appropriate to the Christmas time and a date was selected as near as possible to Christmas Day. The oratorio will therefore be in the nature of a religious musical service closely in touch with that season of the year.

Great care has been taken in the selection of talent for the chorus, which will be composed of over 100 voices. The best material that the city affords has been included in the chorus which, under the direction of H. J. Fitzhugh, will be able to render the oratorio as effectively as even the most exacting can wish. From the very start the different selections were taken up with a skill and vigor that delighted Mr. Fitzhugh and the committee, until there is every prospect that the service will be a musical treat that has never been excelled in this city.

Two members of the quartette choir of the Crescent Avenue church will fill the contralto and tenor solo parts. The soprano and bass soloists will be of an equally high class.

Mr. Miller, organist of the First Presbyterian church, will preside at the organ and Miss Jessie Utter at the piano. There will be in addition a small orchestra of trained musicians. E. J. Fitzhugh, whose great success as leader of the Choral Society has made him so popular in Plainfield musical circles, will direct the chorus.

The Crescent Avenue church is particularly adapted for such a service on account of its fine organ and its capability of seating a thousand people. This will enable a thousand lovers of good music to hear a grand and impressive service.

Tuesday evening, December 19th a public rehearsal will be held when the entire oratorio will be sung. There will be a limited number of invitations issued for the rehearsal and those who subscribed the necessary funds for the fulfillment of the project will have the privilege of attending it. There will also be a few extra invitations for the relatives and friends of the members of the chorus.

The service itself, on the 21st, however, will be the climax of all the efforts and then all will have an equal opportunity of listening to the rendition of the oratorio. The doors of the church will be opened at 7:30 o'clock and the service will begin at 8 o'clock. No seats will be reserved.

TO LONDON IN 1900.

A Delightful Tour Being Arranged for New Jersey Christian Endeavorers.

The transportation committee of the New Jersey C. E. Union, have arranged for a delightful tour through Europe in connection with the convention at London and the Paris Exposition. The trip will occupy about eight weeks and will be personally conducted by tourist agents of large experience and wide reputation, both in this country and Europe. The ocean voyages will be on special steamers newly built, large and safe, chartered from one of the largest steamship companies in the world. The party will start from New York on Tuesday, June 26th. The rate for the complete tour will be only $298. Applications need to be made at once. Circulars giving full details with daily itinerary can be secured from E. E. Anthony, Plainfield, N. J.

Colored Talent Organized.

Fred Firstbrook, of Liberty street, and Fred Huff, of New York, have organized a troupe of colored singers and dancers, and they will give performances at various times throughout the winter.

THE DAILY PRESS BOWLING LEAGUE.

Was Organized at The Press Office Last Week.

FOR A SILVER TROPHY.

PARK CLUB, WESTFIELD, ROSELLE AND CRANFORD ARE MEMBERS.

New League is an Outgrowth of the Central Journal League—A Successful Season in Prospect—S. C. Greves, of Roselle, Was Elected as President—Schedule Adopted at the Meeting.

There is every prospect of a bowling season of unusual interest this winter. The old Central Journal Bowling League has become a thing of the past with the winning of the trophy by the Roselle Casino, while The Daily Press Bowling League will be the centre of interest this winter. Thursday representatives of the Park Club, of the city, the Roselle Casino, the Cranford Casino and the Westfield Club, met in The Daily Press office and organized The Daily Press Bowling League, to compete for a handsome silver trophy offered by The Daily Press.

For some time there has been a new league under consideration. The Park Club, Roselle, Cranford and Westfield decided to start a four-cornered tournament. But a trophy was needed. So The Daily Press has offered a handsome silver trophy to become the permanent property of the club winning it three times.

Thursday The Daily Press Bowling League was formally organized and the season's campaign planned. Those present were F. O. Ball, of the Park Club; S. C. Greves, of the Roselle Casino; H. K. Dumont, of the Cranford Casino; Chauncey D. Smith and R. I. Townley, of the Westfield Club, and Charles Burdette Morse, of The Daily Press staff.

The offer of The Daily Press was formally accepted. The league was then named The Daily Press Bowling League. The following officers were elected: President, S. C. Greves, of Roselle; secretary and treasurer, F. O. Ball, of Plainfield.

The initiation fee was fixed at $10 for each club. The $40 thus received will be divided into three prizes, as follows: A team prize of $25 to the team winning this season; $10 individual prize for the highest average score, and a $5 individual prize for the highest average number of spares per game.

Each club will be represented by a five man team. Each club will roll a series of three games with each other club on the home alleys and then on the alleys of the opposing team. It will be the regular "two ball" game under the rules of the Amateur Bowling League.

The following schedule was adopted:

Tuesday, December 5th, Roselle at Westfield.

Thursday, December 7th, Cranford at Plainfield.

Thursday, December 21st, Parks at Roselle.

Thursday, January 4th, Roselle at Cranford.

Friday, January 5th, Westfield at Plainfield.

Friday, January 12th, Cranford at Westfield.

Thursday, January 18th, Parks at Cranford.

Thursday, January 25th, Westfield at Roselle.

Friday, February 2d, Parks at Westfield.

Friday, February 9th, Roselle at Plainfield.

Thursday, February 15th, Cranford at Roselle.

In conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was extended to The Daily Press for its kindness in offering the trophy.

NEW LAW FIRM.

Isaac P. Runyon Has Formed a Partnership With George H. Bruce, of Cranford.

Isaac P. Runyon has made arrangements to form a partnership with George H. Bruce, of Cranford. The new firm will go into effect on Monday, December 2d. Mr. Bruce is a well-known attorney, having practiced before the New York bar for a number of years, with offices at 38 Park Row, New York. He is a well known writer and author, having published several books pertaining to his profession. Mr. Bruce has a number of acquaintances in this city, having spent the past summer in Plainfield. The name of the new firm will be Bruce & Runyon, and their office will be those at present occupied by Mr. Runyon at Park avenue and Second street. Mr. Bruce's selection of Mr. Runyon to be his partner in business is highly complimentary to his legal ability and particularly flattering to his personality.

—In a short time the work of macadamizing South avenue will be completed and the traveling public will greatly appreciate the improvement.

FAMOUS MEN ROBBED

THOSE WHO HAVE HAD THEIR POCKETS PICKED.

Harrison and Depew Had Their Pockets Picked—And Even Russell Sage Has Suffered—A Pickpocket to H. R. H., the Prince of Wales.

Until the circumstance was recalled by a brief dispatch from Indianapolis the other day, nearly every one had forgotten the theft of Benjamin Harrison's diamond-studded watch, worth more than $1,000, as he was about to go to the Senate on the expiration of his term as a member of that body. The timepiece was stolen about five years ago, but just how and by whom does not appear to have been made public as yet, though a crook named Wilson, arrested in Nashville, Tenn., on the charge of burglary, has been trying to arrange for its return to the owner.

Should he recover the watch, the loss of which is a real sentiment with the former President will be luckier than have some other eminent personages from whom valuables have been stolen. Chauncey M. Depew's pocket was rifled of his watch one day away back in the '60s, and he never got it back. Mr. Depew was done up by a regularly organized pocket-picking "mob." He had been invited to join a pleasure party at Philadelphia and was standing in the platform of a horse car on his way to the Cortlandt street ferry. As he once told the story, he was thinking of good deal more about the pretty girls who were to be members of the yachting party than of his immediate surroundings, when there was a commotion among the passengers just as the car was passing ing Union Square. The rumpus was caused by two or three men, who suddenly seemed moved to get out of the car in great haste. As they passed Depew they jostled him and hustled him so much that he thought them rude. Desiring to know the time soon after they had jumped off he felt for his watch. Then he understood the tactics and ruthlessness of the men, for his pocket was empty.

Thomas Brackett Reed was despoiled of a fine watch, said to be worth $250 or more, a few years ago by a pickpocket while a political meeting addressed by the great man from Maine. The story goes that this meeting was held in Cooper Union, in New York City, but that's only a detail. Anyway, the audience was large and enthusiastic, and Mr. Reed, who was the chief speaker of the evening, discovered himself with glory, as he always does when he has a chance. After the speechmaking was finished and most of the audience had gone home a few remained, ostensibly to shake hands with the star of the evening, and Mr. Reed should have done so several, but finally his feelings toward mankind were of the friendliest when he went away from the hall, but they underwent a severe revulsion an hour later when he discovered the loss of his watch. It is said that he then declared he would never enter the hall again, and that he has kept his word.

The most wholesale lifting of watches from men of some prominence in New York was managed a few years ago at a meeting of the New York conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They were skillful, too, for though half a score of "clocks" were taken from the unsuspecting clergymen present, and as many "leathers" —by which the pickpocket means pocketbooks—in addition, the thefts remained till after the dismissal of the audience, then it was too-late to do anything.

From the other side of the water comes the story of how the Prince of Wales was robbed by the most successful, most famous French pickpocket whose name was never written down in the books of the Paris police.

Nobody has heard that Russell Sage's pocket ever was picked, and it probably never was, for he doesn't look like a man who would carry enough money in his clothes to make it worth while. Mrs. Sage was robbed on the street once, however, though her pocket wasn't picked. Like many women, she habitually carries her pocketbook in her hand as she goes walking, and the thief who robbed her had only to grasp the book to get it. She was luckier than either Mr. Harrison or Mr. Depew. She cried out at once, there was a long chase, the man was caught and the pocketbook was recovered. What was better from Mrs. Sage's viewpoint, he was tried and sent to prison. Another man was put behind the bars for the same offense. He entered the Sage house while dinner was being served and stole a lot of clothing, including one of Mr. Sage's celebrated suits, strange to say.

Haitian Conservatism.

The Haitian is a fine example of conservatism. What was, must be right. A few years ago the town of Port de Paix, owing to an unexpected progression in the art of civil engineering, constructed some fine water works. The town was well piped, with hydrants at short distances in all the streets. Beautiful fountains were placed in the squares, drinking places for man and beast everywhere. Darkness, as was to be expected, not the slightest interest in this important and necessary undertaking. At last, when completed, in accordance with the custom on the part of the water system was opened with a series of fetes. The whole section of the country had a hilarious holiday—processions, torchlights, &c. When these were all over the natives came to the conclusion that the water works must have been built to give pressure for them, and the water works were no longer of any service, so they promptly smashed the whole system, and returned to getting the city's water from the distant river by ox teams. Now they tie their animals to the hydrants, fall over the fragments of the pipes scattered around the streets, and are happy.—Harper's Magazine.

By a London woman's will an allowance of £12 a year is made for the maintenance of each of her five pet cats.

Twelve black cats were put in a New York cold storage warehouse. At the end of six months their hair had turned white.

NOTED HYMN WRITER CALLED TO HIS MAKER.

Rev. Robert Lowry Passed Away Saturday Morning.

KNOWN THE WORLD OVER.

AUTHOR AND COMPOSER OF INSPIRING RELIGIOUS SONGS.

Born in Philadelphia—Successful as a Preacher But Far Famed for the Hymns he Has Written—Has Lived in Plainfield for Many Years—First Pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist Church.

In the death of Rev. Lobert Lowry, D. D., who died at his residence, 902 Madison avenue, Saturday at 7:15, the community has lost a prominent citizen and the religious world one who had gained an international reputation as a writer of sacred music.

Dr. Lowry had been ill for several months with stomach trouble and his death was not wholly unexpected.

Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D. was born in Philadelphia, Pa., March 12th, 1826.

In 1848 he entered the university at Lewisburg, Pa., and was graduated in 1854, receiving valedictory honors. In the same year he was ordained and called to the pastorate of the First Baptist church, West Chester, Pa. In 1858 he was called to the Bloomingdale Baptist church, New York city where in 1865 he accepted a call to Hanson Place Baptist church, N. Y., where he labored over eight years. During his pastorate about 400 members were added to the church. In 1869 he was induced to accept the professorship of Belles-Lettres in Lewisburg, Pa., and the pastorate of the Baptist church. While here the new church edifice was dedicated.

After performing this double work for six years, he retired with the honorary title of D. D., to Plainfield, New Jersey. He was subsequently elected chancellor of the university.

Shortly after reaching Plainfield a new church was organized, which called him to its pastorship. This movement led to the erection of the Park Avenue Baptist church at a cost of $40 000.

Dr. Lowry has always been an active worker in the Sunday-school. He preached extemporaneously, and held tenaciously to the distinctive views of Baptists.

His melodies are sung in every English speaking land. Some of his hymns have been translated into foreign tongues. Music and hymnology were favorite studies with him.

A reporter once asked him what was his method of composition: "Do you write the words to fit the music or the music to fit the words?" His reply was: "I have no method. Some times the music comes and the words follow, fitted insensibly to the melody. I watch my moods, and when anything good strikes me I jot it down, whether words or music, no matter where I am, at home or on the street. Often the margin of a newspaper or the back of an envelope serves as a note book. My brain is a sort of spinning machine, I think, for there is music running through it all the time."

The doctor regarded "Weeping Will Not Save Me," as the most evangelical hymn he ever wrote.

Some of his best known pieces are: "Shall We Gather at the River;" "One More Day's Work for Jesus;" "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight;" "I Need Thee Every Hour;" "The Mistakes of My Life."

While the doctor has said "I would rather preach a gospel sermon to an appreciative, receptive congregation, than write a hymn," yet in spite of his preferences, his hymns have gone on and on in many languages, preaching and comforting thousands upon thousands of souls, furnishing them expression for their deepest feelings of praise and gratitude to God for his goodness to the children of men.

What he has thought in his inmost soul has become a part of the emotions of the whole Christian world. We are all his debtors.

Dr. Lowry was twice married. His first wife died about 15 years ago, when he married Mary, the daughter of the late Judge E. W. Runyon.

Seven children were born to him. The names of the children are Rev. Harry Lowry, of Rahway, Wheaton S. Lowry and Robert Lowry, of this city.

W. C. T. U. Tea a Success.

The tea given by the W. C. T. U. at the home of Mrs. J. A. Truell on Central avenue Thursday afternoon, was a successful affair, being attended by a large number of members and friends of the organization. The principal feature was the address of Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson on the work of the National convention, which she visited, attended as a delegate. The ladies who poured tea were Mrs. William L. Patton and Mrs. Stephen Cahoone. They were assisted by Mrs. French, Miss Yerkes, the Misses Grace and Gladys Kaufman, Miss Wilhelmina Patton, Miss Florence Cahoone, Miss Anna Bolce. The ladies receiving were the president, Mrs. Parse, Mrs. George Babcock and Mrs. John H. French.

VICTORIA'S TROUBLES.

Pa Knows All About Them And Tells His Son.

"That's whare Bein a queen Has its Disadvantige," paw sed ylsterdy nite after He kicked the pupp out the Back Door for chewin up the parler curtens.

"Whare?" maw sed.

"Look at Will Hell Meeny," paw says. "If she wasen't no queen she mite Have a Row to come around Every nite and Stay fer Dinner on Sundys like other gurls, and they could Set in the parler with the lites out after the Rest of the Folks Had went to Bed and Talk about the War in Africky and the Alasky boundary and expanshun and all them kind of Things and I thay wouldn't be nobuddy But her muther lisenen at the key Hole. But bein a queen she can't Have None of them Kind of pleasures. She Has to Do all Her Luv makin Out in the Open whares the Ministers of State kin keep watch. It's a Good Deal like if I was goin to fly a Horse. I would go Down to the Horse market and thay would bring out the Horses they Had in Stock and I would Look them over and examin thare Teath to See if enny of Them would Do. That's the way the Quean Hast to find a Husbend. I spose you red about Her Goin to Germany to Hunt one, Didn't you?"

"No," maw says. "I Bin too Bizzy puttin up peaches to keep track of all Them affares. What's Happened so fur?"

"Well," Pa told Her, "She ain't had much Luck yit. When she Got thare they were a Lot of princes on Hand. But they was Sumthing the matter with nearly all of Them. One was Lame and One had fits, and anuther Didn't Have no Grammer, and the next one Didn't Have a manly chest, but She could lean on in Times of Trubble, and So when She Looked Them over she Shook her hed and sed: 'No, maw, none of these Boys Kin sine to Me,' and thare Batten averdiges ain't enny good.'

"The hole trubble," paw says, "is That the Queen has a Feller picked out what she wants, and her Folks is agin Him."

"Who is that?" maw sat.

"It's the Prince of Weeds," paw told Her. "He will be the Jestice of the piece in Sum Township Over thare. But thay can't afford to keep only one Gurl so thay ain't in Bi society."

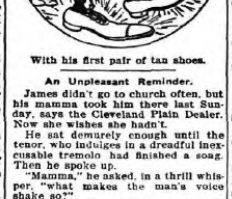
"Well, the Queen has plenty of munny, and could give Him sum kind of a political Job whare He could Have a Good Saliery and Go Huntin and Fishen whenever He wanted to, couldn't she?" maw sat.

"Oh, yes," paw says, "But you see They always Have to Ask Keep Thinkin about Future generasshuns over in Them Countries. The Queen, poor Gurl, knows she Hast to Be a muther sum Day and is Doing down of the Hewmiliyaten for Her to Haft to tell Her oldest Boy when she was Bringin Him up to be King that his fayther was Jest a Man. I Red in the Bible Rite Brand of blud in His vains, that she married jist Becoz he was a gentelman and a skoller. The Onely anser could she Give to a Boy child when he Burst into teers and ast why she ronged Him that way By not Takin a Prince and Sed to Him: 'Bi his fayther even if He did were a number five Hat and calld all the aektresses around the cort Theater Bi thare front name.'"

"My! I don't no," maw says.

"No, you Bet you don't," paw told Her. "You Don't no nawthin that you ought to Ken to keep posted about. Wimmin would Be Fine people to Go out and vote, Wouldn't thay?"—Chicago Times-Herald.

How Some People Feel.



With his first pair of tan shoes.

An Unpleasant Reminder.

James didn't go to church often, but his mamma took him there last Sunday, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Now she wishes she hadn't.

He sat demurely enough until the tenor, who indulges in a dreadful inexcusable tremolo had finished a song. Then he spoke up.

"Mamma," he asked, in a thrill whisper, "what makes the man's voice shake so?"

"Hush, dear," said mamma. "I don't know."

"But, mamma," the little scamp persisted in a still louder whisper, "you know when papa's voice shook the other night you said he was boozy."

And that's why Jamie's church privileges have been shut off.

Not the Right Way.

"Here's a story of a New Haven Italian," he said, "who has bought seven wives at 50 cents each, and now makes them keep them the way I work."

"Outrageous!" she exclaimed. "The idea of buying wives for 50 cents each!"

"It does seem wrong," he admitted. "What he ought to do is to get them for nothing, and then put in the rest of his life trying to make enough money to keep them the way more civilized men do."—Chicago Post.

Making Headway.

The Missionary—My erring brother, have you been converted?

Native—Not completely. They have gobbled all my land, but I still have my few clothes.—Indianapolis Journal.

Uncle Bill's Ideas.

Full many a woman would not blush unseen.

Too much forwardness often keeps a bright boy back.—Indianapolis Journal.

Some light-hearted women can make biscuits as heavy as lead.—Cleveland Leader.

MADE COMFORT BAGS.

NOVEL SOCIABLE OF CONGREGATIONAL ENDEAVORERS.

Many of the Young Men There Took Their First Lessons in Sewing—Held at the Home of the Misses Chase.

A very enjoyable sociable was held by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Congregational church last Friday at the home of Miss Chase, of Jackson avenue. The purpose of the sociable was the making of comfort bags for the sailors.

The pleasant house was crowded with interested young people, and all present, men as well as women, united in the work of the evening. The comfort bags, which were made of green linen, were nearly made beforehand, being stitched up and hemmed, so that all that needed to be done was the overcasting of seams, the putting in of drawing strings, and the filling of the bags themselves with the various "comforts," which included needles and thread, buttons, a large thimble, darning cotton, scissors, vaseline, a testament, a letter, and many other things.

Bags were distributed and some of the young men took their first lesson in sewing, amid much merriment. All was successfully done at last and the grand scramble for "comforts" was said by one young man to resemble the scene at a New York bargain counter.

When the bags were filled and put away the guests subsided into quiet and listened to two very pretty vocal trios, sung by Miss Agnes LaBoyteaux, Miss Katharine Wolcott Dwight and Miss Emma LaBoyteaux, accompanied by Walter Reynolds. Chocolate and cake were then served by the young women of the social committee, of which Miss Dwight is the chairman.

CORPS WAS INSPECTED.

Woman's Auxiliary of Winfield Scott Post Made a Good Impression on the State Omcers.

Last Friday the members of Winfield Scott Relief Corps met in regular session, when the annual inspection took place. There was a large attendance of the members, and a number of visitors were present. The inspection was very satisfactory and the officers who conducted it expressed great pleasure over the work performed. At the conclusion of the work there were short and interesting addresses made by local members and visitors. Before the meeting adjourned a committee served refreshments in abundance to all present.

Among the State officers present were: Department President Mrs Lottie Durell; Department Secretary Mrs. Jennie B. Atwood; Department Treasurer Mrs. Emma J. Southwick, and Mrs. Prawl, of Trenton; Department Inspector Mrs. Matilda Vickery, of New Brunswick.

VETERANS VISITED.

Delegation From Winfield Scott Post Went to Rahway Last Night.

A baker's dozen from Winfield Scott Post visited Barry Post, Rahway, last Friday. The veterans were driven over in a stage. The purpose of the visit was to attend the annual inspection of the post. Junior D. D. M. F. had charge of the inspection. After that the members repaired to a nearby resort, where the ladies of the Relief Corps had provided a palatable collation. The affair proved one of the pleasant events in the history of the organization. The Plainfield veterans reached home early this morning, thoroughly satisfied with their visit.

Informal Tea.

An informal but delightful tea was given Friday afternoon by Mrs. Morris Sawyer Iremaine, of Buffalo, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Middledith, of Mercer avenue. The tea was given in honor of Miss Duncan, of New Zealand, who is spending the winter at the home of her uncle, Walter Scott, of East Front street. Though informal, the tea was thoroughly enjoyed by the young ladies present.

Rumor of Another Warrant.

It has been currently reported that it is the intention of the Mayor and members of the Borough Council to issue a warrant on the Collector of Taxes with instructions that he sell property upon which 1898 taxes are due. This has caused some talk, for it is believed by most of the borough-ites that the officials have attempted about all in the direction that should be taken up this year

On the Jump.

Aguinaldo appears at present to be playing the role of the Wandering Jew; he no sooner alights in one place than he is obliged to go elsewhere—an experience that will not fall to your lot if you visit Collier's, 103 Park Avenue, for every thing that is known to the genius of the jewelry designer will be found there at prices within the means of all.

—The residents of Watchung have hopes that in the near future they will have telephone connection with the outer world, as efforts are being made to carry out such a scheme.

LINCOLN IN DESPAIR

THE TIME WHEN HE WAS TEMPTED TO SUICIDE.

An Instance When he Was More Serious Than the Case Warranted—Story Told by Secretary of War Stanton to Congressman Young.

"Mr. Lincoln during the war was very sensitive of the criticisms on his administration by the newspaper press, believing it to be, as he asserted, the true voice of the people. The failures of McDowell, McClellan, Burnside and Poe with the Army of the Potomac and the criticisms made thereon by the press almost crazed him. Time and again he would free himself from the Executive Mansion and seek my little office, the only place in Washington, he often said, where he could be absolutely free from interruption. When he became closeted with me these visits Mr. Lincoln would unbosom himself and talk of his cares and woes. Several times he insisted that he ought to resign, and thus give the country an opportunity to secure some one better fitted to accomplish the great task expected of the President. If he did not resign, he thought he ought to implore upon Congress the propriety of giving the absolute control of the army to some one in whom they had confidence. During one of these moods that he conceived the idea of placing Hooker in command of the Army of the Potomac, and of seeking for some such power that, in his opinion, he could not fail of success. He had a great idea of Hooker's ability as a soldier, but in addition he believed him to be an honest man and a sincere patriot. He wanted him to fight what he intended should be the last battle. He would be the closing battle of the war. Accordingly, when Hooker got under way, and the news came that at Chancellorsville he had begun his fight, Mr. Lincoln was in the greatest state of mental excitement. From the time that Hooker began his march until the smoke of battle had cleared from the fatal field of Chancellorsville, he scarcely knew what it was to sleep.

"It will be remembered that the fight lasted three days. During the first two days it looked as if Hooker was about to accomplish what so many generals before him had failed to do; but, early on the third day, the usual half-hour dispatches began to make matters look dark and ominous of defeat. The whole day Mr. Lincoln was miserable. He ate nothing, and would see no one but me. As it grew dark the excitement increased greatly at all. Mr. Lincoln would walk from the White House to my apartment and anxiously inquire for news from Hooker. Then, during the gloom of the night, a cold and drenching rain set in, which lasted through the night. At about 7 o'clock Mr. Lincoln ceased his visits to my room, and I was given orders at the Executive Mansion that he would see no one before morning. An hour afterward a dispatch of indefinite character was received from Hooker, and I hurried with it to Mr. Lincoln's apartments. When I entered I found him walking the floor, and his agonized appearance so terrified me that it was with difficulty that I could speak. Mr. Lincoln approached me like a man held with fascination, and with his outstretched hand, read it, and, his face slightly brightening, remarked: 'Stanton, read that.' Then, at my solicitation Mr. Lincoln accompanied me to the War Department, where he agreed to spend the night, or until something should be heard from Hooker. For five hours, the longest and most wearisome of my life, I waited before a dispatch announcing the retreat of Hooker was received. When Mr. Lincoln read it he threw up his hands and exclaimed, 'My God, Stanton, our cause is lost! We are ruined—we are ruined; and such a fearful loss of life! My God! this is more than I can endure!' He stood, trembling visibly, his face of a ghastly hue, the perspiration standing out in big spots on his brow. He put on his hat and coat and began to pace the floor. For five or ten minutes he was silent and then, turning to me, he said: 'If I am not around early to-morrow, do not send for me, nor allow any one to disturb me. Defeated again, and so many of our noble countrymen killed! What will the people say?'

"As he finished he started for the door. I was alarmed. There was something indescribable about the President's face and manner that made me feel that my chief should not be left alone. How to approach him without creating suspicion was the thought of my mind. Going last Sunday, laying my hand on his shoulder I said: 'Mr. President, I, too, am feeling that I would rather be dead than live; but is it manly—is it brave—that we should be the first to succumb? I have an idea: You remain here with me to-night. Lie down on yonder lounge, and by the time you have had a few hours' sleep, I will have a vessel at the wharf, and we will go to the front, and see for ourselves the conditions of the army.'

"The idea of visiting the army in person acted like a tonic. Mr. Lincoln immediately adopted the suggestion. The next morning at 8 left Washington on a gunboat for Hooker's command. On our return trip Mr. Lincoln told me that he would never leave the War Department on that evening he had fully made up his mind to go immediately to the Potomac River and there end his life, as many a poor creature—but none half so miserable as he was at that time—had done before him."—Philadelphia Times.

Women of the Transvaal.

The average Boer is big, brawny and strong, ruddy cheeked and wholesome, yet never handsome. The women, as a rule, do not approach the fresh and simple beauty seen in the north of Europe. Here and there throughout the Transvaal you will find a handsome Dutch girl, but not often. Their dress, usually of some cheap print, and the hideous poke bonnet, so universal, is not calculated to improve them.

They are curiously afraid of exposing their complexions to the sun, and are often pale and pasty in appearance. It is a curious thing to see how carefully a Boer woman will shade her face, and even keep her hands beneath her apron when in the sun.

Yet, on the whole, the women of the Transvaal are not unattractive—when you get used to them.

DEMOCRATS READY FOR CITY FIGHT.

Nominated Ticket At Large Thursday Evening.

AT THE CITY CONVENTION.

PROMISE RADICAL CHANGES IN CITY GOVERNMENT.

Democrats Are Now Started On The Municipal Campaign With the Strongest Ticket That Their Party Has Had For Years — DeWitt C. Ivins and John Rose For Freeholders—Resolutions Adopted.

The Democrats are now fully prepared to go to war in the municipal campaign with a complete ticket of candidates, the strongest that the Democratic party has put into the field for years. The city convention was held Thursday at the Ulrich building, East Second street, and the slate, as prepared by the city executive committee of the new organization, went through without a hitch. Besides the delegates, there were a number of local Democratic workers present to watch the proceedings.

It was 8 o'clock, before the meeting was called to order by Michael R. Flynn, chairman of the city committee. Justice Elmore D. Moffett was made chairman and J. J. Kenney secretary. E. M. Tomlinson was selected at judge of election with Frank MacInnerey as inspector.

The convention proceeded immediately to the nomination of three Councilmen at large. The First ward presented the names of Councilman James P. Homan and Clarence E. Teel. James Manning was the choice of the Fourth. The secretary cast a ballot for them.

DeWitt C. Ivins and John Rose, both of the Second ward, was the only ones mentioned for the two nominations for members of the Board of Freeholders. They were declared nominated.

The name of Charles O. Burnett was presented by J. J. Kenney for the nomination to the Board of Education and he was unanimously chosen as the nominee of the convention.

M. R. Flynn, as chairman of the city committee, gave the chairman a series of resolutions which were read by the secretary and unanimously adopted.

A committee, consisting of J. J. Kenney, William H. Brokaw and J. B Guttridge, was appointed to fill any vacancies that may occur in the ticket. Then the convention adjourned.

During the evening the committee from the Third ward to fill any vacancies that might occur in the ward ticket of the Third selected Edwin E. Booth as the nominee for ward Councilman in place of Percy Stewart who was nominated at the primary and refused to stand. Mr. Booth signified his acceptance of the nomination.

TEACHERS WERE TAUGHT.

Notable Gathering of Educators At Elizabeth Yesterday.

Teachers from all parts of Union county went to Elizabeth Friday to attend the annual meeting of the Teachers' Institute of the county, and in consequence all the pupils enjoyed a holiday.

When the session was called to order by County Superintendent William J. Shearer there were 350 teachers present.

The exercises were held in the assembly room of the Morrell street school. On the platform with County Superintendent Shearer were H. M. Maxson, superintendent of Plainfield's public schools; W. O. Robinson, superintendent of Rahway's public schools, and the visiting instructors from other States who were to address the assembly.

The meeting was the most successful the Teachers' Institute of Union county ever held, and much of the credit for this is due to Prof. Shearer, whose excellent system for the grading of schools has received the approval of teachers throughout the State.

A YOUTHFUL COUPLE.

Justice Abbott Performed His First Marriage Ceremony.

Justice Abbott performed his first marriage ceremony Thursday afternoon when he joined for better or worse John Lyons, of 512 West Third street, and Miss Kate Rothenhousen, of 158 East Front street. The ceremony was performed in the office of William Newcorn in the presence of Charles Rothenhousen, the bride's father, and Mrs. Sophie Lyons, mother of the groom, both of whom had accompanied the young couple to the office to see that the knot was tied right. Justice Abbott was assisted by Mrs. Newcorn. The bride is a handsome girl of 18 and the groom is 21. Both are employed in the Dahlgren Print Works. The groom gave his age as twenty-one years and four months and the bride as fifteen.

Transferred His Membership.

Silas D. Drake, a veteran of the Civil War, who resides at Lincoln, and who has been a member of Dahlgren Post, G. A. R., Elizabeth, has transferred his membership to Winfield Scott Post, this city.

900 DROPS
CASTORIA
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr. SAMUEL PITCHER
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP
Fac Simile Signature of
NEW YORK.
4 6 months old
35 DOSES – 35 CENTS
EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

ELIZABETH CRACKS BESTED BY ALIS.

Dauntless Eleven Defeated First Time This Season.

ALIAS WON TEN TO FIVE.

STRONGER DEFENCE OF HOME TEAM WON THE GAME.

Visitors Made Great Gains Through Tackles—Alis' Backs Showed Some Clever Team Work—Long Runs Made on Double Passes—Alis Missed Another Chance to Score by the Calling of Time.

Plainfield had a surprise in store for the Dauntless football team of Elizabeth when it visited this city Saturday afternoon. The Alis eleven, of this city defeated the Elizabeth cracks by a score of 10 to 5, after one of the hardest fought games of the season. The game was played on Martine Common before several hundred spectators. The Dauntless boys came to Plainfield very confident after a season unmarred by a single defeat. They expected to have an easy time but they didn't. Alis was lacking their regular quarter back and right tackles and was much lighter in weight.

Dauntless won the toss and took the ball. Alis had the advantage of the wind. Mills kicked to Phillips who ran back eight yards. After three attempts to buck the Elizabeth line, Green circled left end on a criss-cross play for thirty-five yards, being downed on Dauntless' 40-yard line. Small gains resulted from several line plays and H. Smith made fourteen yards round right end. With the ball on the 20 yard line, Phillips and Green hit the line for distance. Taylor made four yards through tackle. Green covered the remaining ten yards to the goal line, the Alis interference completely boxing the Dauntless ends and back. This was the first touchdown, scored after eight minutes of play. Phillips failed to goal. Score: Alis, 5; Dauntless, 0.

Dauntless kicked to Phillips who ran out of bounds at the 25-yard line. Steady line bucking carried the ball back to the centre of the field where the ball changed hands several times. Finally Mills kicked to Woolston who made ten yards before he was thrown on Alis' 45 yard line.

Phillips punted. Staples came through the line and nearly blocked the kick. The ball bounded to Dauntless' 20 yard line before Mills fell on it. Dauntless hammered steadily at Alis' tackles for gains until time was called with the ball on the 45 yard line.

In the second half, Phillips kicked off to Dauntless' 15 yard line. The heavy Elizabeth backs hammered at Alis' left tackle and carried the ball to Alis' 40 yard line. In the first half, Hoover had been used chiefly against the tackles until he was used up, Lourie was substitute for him in the second and was used with even better success. The ball changed hands several times on downs and a fumble.

From the centre of the field to Alis' 25 yard line, Dauntless went on those deadly tackle plays. Lourie gained twelve yards on a trick passed and then scored a touchdown, after six minutes of play. Hand failed to kick an easy goal. Score—Alis, 5; Dauntless, 5.

Dauntless found her tactics successful and soon had the ball to the centre of the field. Green got it on a fumble. Several small gains were made and then Green cleared twenty-five yards on a double pass from Phillips. Taylor ran eighteen yards. He was tackled heavily and dropped the ball, a Dauntless back failing on it on his own five yard line. Alis gained possession of the ball again on Dauntless' 40 yard line on downs. After gaining their distance, Green, in one double pass, covered twenty yards to Dauntless' 15 yard line. Taylor made six yards on a tackle play. Cuming netted six more around right end and then Phillips dove through the line for the second touchdown after fourteen minutes of play. Phillips missed the goal. Score—Alis, 10; Dauntless, 5.

On the second play, Green made the longest run of the game on a double pass. He ran fifty yards when Mills finally nailed him. The ball was then on Dauntless' 30 yard line. Steady games by Phillips, Taylor, Cuming and Smith carried the ball to within three yards of Dauntless' goal, when time was called.

The teams lined up as follows:

ALIS.		DAUNTLESS.
Hand	right end	Dorsline
Davis	right tackle	Hand
Kitre	right guard	Hopkins
Smith, G. F.	centre	Drake
Long	left guard	Hugh
Mills	left tackle	Jordan
Cathcart	left end	Hoover
Smith, H. B.	quarterback	Hoffman
Woolston	right halfback	Blank
Green	left halfback	Hoover
Phillips	fullback	Lourie

Alis—Touchdowns, Green, Phillips. Goal from touchdown, Phillips. Dauntless—Touchdown, Lourie. Goal from touchdown, Hand. Referee, Hall, Princeton. Umpire, Hoffman, Rutgers. Linesman, Hoffman, Princeton. Time, 40 minutes.

Injured Alighting From a Car.

Miss Lloyd, of 65 Washington avenue, was seriously injured Saturday evening while attempting to alight from a Fourth street trolley car at the North avenue depot. The car had not quite come to a standstill when she stepped off. She was thrown to the ground, dislocating her right wrist, and receiving a wound on her temple. She went to the office of Dr. Probasco and had her injuries attended to.

JAIL WARDEN'S PAY.

Freeholders Ask That Judgment for Mr. Biore be Set Aside—In Court of Appeal.

The court of errors an appeals at Trenton Friday heard the opening argument of counsel in the case of the Board of Freeholders of Union county against John C. Biore, warden of the Union county jail. The Freeholders seem to have set aside a judgment recovered by Mr. Biore after his term of office had expired and during the pendency of a suit in which his right, under the veterans act, to retain his office was pending.

It was decided in the latter suit that under the veterans' act Biore had no right to retain his office, because he was elected for a specified term. Biore then brought suit to recover the salary for the period to which he had claimed title to the office after his regular term had expired, and Justice VanSickel directed a verdict in his favor. The Board of Freeholders has been paying this money to Warden Dodd, Biore's successor, who claims that the money should be paid to him. His successor now seeks to have the judgment of Justice VanSyckel set aside.

Educate Your Bowels With Cascarets. Candy Cathartic, cure constipation forever. 10c, 25c. If C. C. C. fail, druggists refund money.

CITY CANDIDATES ON BOTH TICKETS.

Short Sketches of Men to be Voted For.

TOLD IN IMPARTIAL MANNER

REPUBLICAN VICTORY MEANS ENDORSEMENT OF PRESENT POLICY.

Two Councilmen Are Up For Re-Election—Democrats Have Unusually Strong Ticket—Something About The Men Who Are Running on Ticket-At-Large for the Both Political Parties.

The Republican and Democratic organizations in this city are now devoting every energy toward the campaign preceding the municipal election on Tuesday, December 5th. Both sides admit a lively fight and both are equally confident of victory. As there are seven Councilmen to be elected and there are only eleven in the Council in all, it will be possible for either side to secure a majority in the local legislative body This will cause the fight to centre about the Councilmen.

While the election of the Republican ticket means the indorsement of the present policy in the direction of municipal affairs, the case is particularly so in regard to Councilmen J. F. Buckle and John VanHerwerden, who come up for re-election. Councilman Buckle heads the Republican city ticket. He is one of the best known members of the Council. In the Council he has been particularly prominent as president of the Police Board. He is junior member of the firm of Woolston & Buckle, painters and decorators, of North avenue. He resides on Westervelt avenue and is a property owner.

Former Councilman J. B. Dumont, who is another candidate for Councilman-at-large on the Republican ticket has had much experience in city affairs. He has been a member of the Council for eleven years, not continuously, and has served on all the principal committees. He has also been president of the Council Mr. Dumont lives in a handsome residence on East Seventh street and is a stock broker in New York.

James Craig, the third nominee as Councilman-at-large, is a prominent property owner from the Fourth ward. He resides on West Front street, close to the Dunellen line. He is one of the strongest opponents of the sewer beds.

Dr. J. B. Probasco, the Republican nominee for member of the Board of Education, has served the city as a member of the Board for two terms of five years each. He is at present President of the Board. The chief opposition to him is the result of the "star Chamber" proceedings of the Board that caused a stir a few years ago.

Captain J. Frank Hubbard has been in the Board of Freeholders for over a quarter of a century and the Republicans have renominated him for the place. He is Director of the Board and a very efficient public servant.

The Republican nominee for the other place on the Board is William A. Westphal, junior member of the firm of Westphal & Son, the Liberty street grocers. He has served in the Council for several years and has been prominently indentified with the Improved Order of Red Men. He has taken an active part in Republican politics in the Fourth ward.

The Democratic ticket at large is of unusual strength and includes a number of well-known citizens. Of the three candidates for Councilman-at-large, Clarence E Teel, of North avenue, is very well known. Although he never took any active part in politics, Mr. Teel is a staunch Democrat. He was one of promoters of the Crescent League and the Crescent Wheelmen and did much for the advancement of healthy amateur sport here. He is now connected with the New York branch of the Peters Cartridge Company.

James F. Homan, the second of the Democratic city candidates for the Council, is now completing a two years' term in the Council. He was the only candidate on the Citizens' ticket at large who was elected two years ago. He resides on Hillside avenue and conducts a carriage factory on Somerset street.

James Manning, the third of the Councilmanic candidates, was born and raised in Plainfield. He is now in partnership with his father, Jeremiah Manning, in the building business. They have been developing a portion of the Netherwood district during the last year. He lives on Albert avenue, near West Front street.

Charles C. Burnett, who is the Democratic candidate for the Board of Education, has a host of friends in the city, where he has resided for many years. He was identified with the Union County Country Club during its existence. He is in the stationery business in New York and has a comfortable little home on Madison avenue.

DeWitt C. Ivins is the Democratic nominee for the Board of Freeholders. Mr Ivins is the principal owner of the DeWitt C. Ivins & Co.'s coal and lumber yard on Watchung avenue, and also has business interests in New York. He is the owner of considerable property in Plainfield, and did much to develop that part of the city in the vicinity of Watchung and Hillside avenues. He has resided in Plainfield on Hillside avenue for many years. He has always been a Democrat and was once an unsuccessful candidate for Councilman-at-large.

WAGON RUN OVER HIS FOOT.

Injury is Not a Serious One, but it Will be Several Weeks Before He Recovers From It.

Samuel Robinowitz, aged twenty-years, of 644 West Third Street, was taken to the hospital Monday afternoon suffering from a fracture of the bones of his foot. The injury was the result of a wagon running over the foot. Although the injury is not a serious one it will be fully six weeks before the patient will be able to leave the hospital.

Harry Hill, aged eighteen years, a resident of Dunellen, and employed as a presaman in one of the machine works at Lincoln, suffered a compound fracture of the first finger of the left hand yesterday, and as a result he lost the finger. He was taken to the hospital, where proper treatment was given.

AN ABSOLUTE DIVORCE.

Mrs. Ella Hummer Secures a Legal Dissolution of the Nuptial Bonds Made Nine Years Ago.

Through the efforts of Former Judge Wm A Coddington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, an absolute divorce has been granted to Mrs. Ella Hummer, of West Fourth street, this city, from her husband, Howard Hummer. The couple were married about nine years ago, but separated two years afterwards. Mrs. Hummer's maiden name was Ella Hedden, daughter of Albert Hedden. The grounds on which the decree was granted were non-support and desertion. The case has been pending several months. Mr. Hummer is now a resident of Brooklyn. There were no children.

KNOWS THE GAME LAWS NOW.

Stephen Lukacs Went Gunning Sunday and is Resting Quietly in Jail.

Stephen Lukacs did not know that it was against the law of New Jersey to go gunning Sunday, and accordingly went.

He found out about the law when he was arrested by Game Warden Charles Ayers, of Metuchen, and taken before Justice Mayo, of Metuchen, who imposed a fine specified by the law, $20, with costs of $10. The prisoner was unable to pay the fine and was sent to the county jail at New Brunswick.

Elevn More Braves

At the meeting of Miantonomo Tribe of Red Men, Friday evening, eleven candidates were adopted. The committee on resolutions made its report. The committee on the official memorial service commemorating the one hundreth anniversary of the death of George Washington reported that a public service will be held in Red Men's Hall the evening of December 14th.

Union Young People's Service.

The Union Young People's service of the Plainfield local union will be held in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. The leader will be Miss Ernestine Smith, secretary of the union. There will be special music and an offering will be received to be devoted to the Christmas joy at the Children's Home.

May Not Have Elaborate Entertainments.

From present indications it does not look as though the usual Christmas celebrations in the various churches will be elaborate this year as previously. It has been learned by Sunday-school officials that the expense attached to these elaborate affairs is too much to warrant.

Picture of Plainfield Woman.

In the illustrated magazine of Saturday accompanying the Mail and Express, there is a fine picture of Miss Louise Darling, of Netherwood, and her four spaniel dogs. The picture is one of several illustrating famous women and celebrated thoroughbred canines.

Superintendent Baxter Deserves Credit.

For the most excellent programme presented at the meeting of the Union County Teachers' Institute last Friday, credit should be given to State Superintendent of Schools Baxter, of this city. He was the one who arranged it.

An Entertaining Speaker

Miss Currey, of the Day Nursery, New York, has consented to speak to the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church at their meeting next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Visitors always welcome.

Endeavor Thanksgiving Service.

The Local Union of the Christian Endeavor Societies will hold Thanksgiving services at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Thursday morning at 9:30 instead of 10 o'clock.

How Are Your Kidneys? Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Pills cure all kidney ills. Sample free. Add. Hobbs Remedy Co., Chicago or N. Y.

NO ONE COULD TELL HER.

How Great Minds Dodged Her Small Question.

HOW NOT TO INVEST $500.

This Young Lady Asked Men of Money For a Little Information.

Russell Sage Was Artful—Platt Was Diplomatic, Roosevelt Was Polite, and Depew Was Frank—So She Has Her $500 Sewed in a Cambric Bag.

Mr. Russell Sage, Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, the Frohmans and some other have had their heads together recently over the investment of $500. They didn't know their heads were together, but probably no $500 since dollars began has ever had such a galaxy of advice upon its placing.

It belongs to a girl from the West—does this $500—and she went to New York recently determined to invest it.

She made a list of the men she wanted to see and she looked them up in the directory, secretly marveling not to find their names in black face type.

And the morning of the first day she stood outside the window of Russell Sage's office and was up against an explanation to the grave, unyielding clerk about what she had come for.

"About an investment," she confided finally, and at the word the half door flew open and she found herself in the presence.

If she could teach a little—this young woman, or if she could typewrite readably, that, he explained was her capital. Then she could have leisure to think about investments.

If Mr. Sage had been about to invest a complete fortune of $500 himself he could not more carefully have considered their relative merits.

Some way, as the great financier talked, that precious $500 began to shrink in the eyes of its owner, and to look like the price of a meal. Would not Mr. Sage advise her after all, she ventured to take that $500 and go back to the town she came from and invest it there?

(Hon. Theodore Roosevelt.)

"Certainly not," said Mr. Sage promptly. "If you can find a way to make a bare living here while you start, New York is the place to get on. But I really would rather not suggest."

Straight from the atmosphere of stocks and bonds the girl from the West flew to Louis Frohman. The Frohmans were used to dealing with beginners, and future greatness was their stock in trade.

Mr. Daniel Frohman—erect, judicial, totally without a smile—said it depended.

"In nine cases out of ten," said Mr. Frohman evenly, "I would say to the young woman that it would be well for her to go home, interest herself in the domestic relations, and marry. And she might have been just the one who would have succeeded? Well, no—not in all cases. Conceivably, yes. But a manager can usually tell. You might succeed—you might not. Generally the girl would better go home."

As for Mr. Charles Frohman, the young woman who wanted to invest her largely on her capital for car fare in making trial attempts to see him.

"Good heavens, don't invest it at all!" he said positively. "Of course, all the capitalists will tell you to. That's because they'd get the money sure, they're not all mine. That's where all our money's gone. No, don't invest it—don't invest it. I wouldn't know what to do with $500 myself. I am not accustomed to dealing in figures—such figures. Put it in a bank where you are sure of it, but remember and don't invest it. I am positive on that one point."

After that the young woman took three days off and went up to Albany.

Gov. Teddy Roosevelt was delighted to meet the young woman, really, he said, smiling so that her heart was warmed. He was delighted. If there was anything he could do he should be glad—really so glad. What? Invest $500? Oh, really, he could hardly be asked that. He so much preferred not to. It was the rule of his life to prefer not to. Might he be excused? Yes, he was sure he might be, because he was so delighted. And good-by, really, it's eighth time the young woman went to the office of Senator T. C. Platt; she found him in.

Mr. Platt was presenting his compliments. Mr. Platt was explaining one of the rules of his life which he has lived up to since boyhood. That in itself was worth knowing about, and the young woman heard it on his words. Mr. Platt's rule was this: "Never to ask for advice; and never to give advice, unless it was to advise that one never ask for advice." Mr. Platt was almost epigrammatic.

And then Chauncey Depew.

"Why," he said, "never think of investing it. If you do you will lose it just as sure as the world. Put it in a bank—if you are an expert at something, that is. If you are not there is no safer thing than at 4%. If you are not an expert, spend your $500 learning to be a stenographer—not here, where you will live up the money at $20 a week. Go home and use it in study and then come back and earn your $50 a week. I'll tell you a story to illustrate that."

This is why $500 note is sewed in a cambric bag and hangs about the neck of the young woman who wanted to invest.

A Prominent Physician.
A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.
The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked:
"Do you have much call for them?"
He was referred to a gentleman who stood at the head of the department. He said:
"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing. due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.
An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known as a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained the best results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and am a saving of $3 a call. A dozen's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if they were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present dozens of others who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which would bring her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly afflicted to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, however, were firm, and the folk about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES is now for sale by most druggists throughout the United States and Canada. The low retail price is introduced for the poor and the reason for the issue of the five-cent packet is explained in the fact that eight cents in the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton of TEN TABULES for five cents—will be sent to any address. Ripans Tabules may be had at any drug store, and one gives relief. Sold by druggists, or by mail if the price is sent to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York. Ripans Tabules are the best blood purifier, liver regulator, kidney tonic, nerve builder, complexion beautifier, and health promoter known to medical science. They are the most widely advertised medicine in the world, and their sales are increasing more rapidly than those of any other proprietary medicine. Ripans Tabules are sold by druggists, or by mail if the price is sent to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York. One gives relief.

ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.
The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had.

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

Everything for the Garden
Sweet Peas the choicest,
Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds
and odorless Lawn Dressing.
Telephone Call, 6.
A. M. GRIFFEN'S,
119 East Front st.

FARMERS' WIVES
or any other ladies who wish to work
Can Earn Lots of Money
working for us in spare time at home on our cloths We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full direction for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address
WINOOSKET CO. (225 C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept

VICK SEEDS
Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands of satisfied Customers for a half century and to celebrate the 50th anniversary of business we have issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of
Vick's Garden and Floral Guide
which is a work of art. It has 24 pages lithographed in colors, a paper souvenir, and nearly 100 pages filled with beautiful half-tone engravings of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Fruits, etc., elegantly bound in white and gold. A marvel in Catalogue making: an authority on all seasonable questions of the garden, both for the novice and a descriptive catalogue of all that is worth growing. It is a complete Encyclopedia of Horticulture, but we want everyone interested in a garden to have a copy. Send 15 cents (stamps taken) and we will send the Guide with a DUE BILL for 25 cents worth of flower and vegetable seeds to plant. The Due Bill is given in full amount of purchase to buy other goods. 15cts
Vick's Little Gem Catalogue
A perfect little gem of a book for the children. Send 10 cents (stamps taken) and it will be sent by return mail in handy shape for reference. FREE
Vicks Monthly Magazine.
Handsomely illustrated, 32 pages, each issue complete, relating to Gardening, Horticulture, and Floriculture; practical articles by practical men. Special limited offer: 25 cents pays for one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, or 50 cents.
OUR NEW PLANT of self-selling Vegetable Seeds gives you more for your . . . money than any other seed house in America.
JAMES VICKS SONS,
ROCKESTER, N. Y.

SEEDS ... FOR THE ... Garden and Farm
Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the newest and best varieties—quality unsurpassed. Illustrated Catalogue FREE.
WEEBER & DON, Seed Merchants
114 Chambers St., New York City.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.
President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The International is a wonderfully compact storehouse of accurate information."
WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY
Best for the Household.
Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and excellence of quality rather than superfluity of quantity characterizes its every department.
Specimen pages sent on application to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

DIME
Savings Institution,
Of Plainfield, N. J.,
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.
J. FRANK HUBBARD, President,
GEO. W. ROCKEFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.
Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the 1st.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, DECEMBER. 7. 1899. NO. 49.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

PRESENT CITY POLICY INDORSED BY VOTERS.

REPUBLICANS CARRIED CITY OF PLAINFIELD BY 880 MAJORITY OVER OPPONENTS.

Entire G. O. P. Ticket Elected by Varying Majorities—New Organization Of Democrats Failed to Reduce Republican Majorities—Election Was Very Quiet And Lacked Interest Except In The First Ward—Gloak Defeated Hetfield By 94.

The policy of the present administration was emphatically indorsed at the polls Tuesday. The annual municipal election was held and the Republicans elected every candidate they had nominated, The new organization of the Democrats had not the slightest effect in keeping down the Republican majority. The city was carried by 880 majority and Republican gains were reported in almost every election district.

James F. Buckle, John B. Dumont and James Craig were elected to the Common Council from the city at large by majorities ranging from 742 to 627. William L. Gloak was elected to the Council from the First ward by 94, John Van Herwerden from the Second ward by 90 majority, C. B. Clifton from the Third ward by 154, and Robert L. Lee from the Fourth ward by 262.

J. Frank Hubbard was returned to the Board of Freeholder with 677 majority and W. A. Wesphal with 460 majority. Dr. J. B. Probasco was elected to the Board of Education by 696 majority.

As a result of the election of Tuesday, the Common Council of 1900 will be exclusively composed of Republicans.

ELECTION WAS QUIET.

Aside From the First Ward, the Contest was Devoid of Much Interest—Irvine Made Good Runs.

The attempt of the new organization of the local Democratic party to become a potent factor at the municipal election of Tuesday met with failure. It was the first appearance of the new organization and it was expected that it would give zest and closeness to the election. As it turned out the Republicans won a complete and overwhelming victory, electing every candidate nominated by them. The election was a noticeably quiet one, far more so than was generally expected, and, with the exception of the fight in the First ward, devoid of much interest.

The day was fair but cold, and a blustery wind came out of the north until the sun went down. The weather conditions were favorable to a large vote but, outside of the First ward, there was a general falling off in the number of voters who exercised their right of suffrage. In the early morning hours and at night, just before the closing of the polls, there was some bustle at the polling places when the commuter votes were polled. The factory vote came chiefly at noon. During the rest of the day the polls were almost deserted except for the political workers.

The Republican organization had its regular corps of workers in every district with a plentiful supply of carriages. In the First ward, the leaders themselves were on hand almost all day to see that everything went right. City Clerk J. T. MacMurray was in the neighborhood of the polling place in the First district nearly all day.

The fight in the First ward had unusual significance. Owing to the factional differences in the G. O. P. ranks there, the Democrats had hoped to win. The victorious faction wished to show that it possessed the power to win and so every effort was made to that end. The defeated faction aided much in the work so that the claim might not be made that it had failed to support the ticket and had thus allowed it to be defeated.

The fight centered on ward Councilman. The dissatisfied Republicans agreed to support Hetfield and many hundred pasters were circulated through the ward. As a result, there was a large number of split tickets found in the ballot box.

The result proved beyond a doubt that Mr. MacMurray and his friends are a leading power in the ward. The Republican ticket swept the ward by a large majority and Gloak was elected ward Councilman by a majority of 94. The influences that won Mr. Hetfield's election for him two years ago worked against him yesterday and secured his defeat in his own district, the second, by 26 majority.

In the Second ward, H. W. Marshall rather surprised the Republican leaders by the size of the vote he polled. He ran way ahead of his ticket, Councilman VanHerwerden's popularity in Netherwood kept his majority up to a respectable number. His majority was 90, the smallest received by any of the candidates. Mr. Marshall's many friends and his general popularity may be held responsible for his remarkable run.

In the Third ward, C. B. Clifton had had no trouble in defeating A. H. Atterbury by 154 although the vote was small.

The Fourth ward simply tumbled over itself in its effort to support the Republican ticket. The largest majorities ever rolled up there in a municipal election were recorded and Mr. Lee was elected to the Council bo 262 majority.

Of all the Democratic candidates at large, D. C. Irvine, for Freeholder, made the best run. He made heavy inroads into the Republican ranks particularly in the Third ward. All over the city, W. A. Wesphal was generally cut to Irvin's advantage. J. F. Hubbard was elected by a large majority.

Dr. J. B. Probasco was re-elected to the the Board of Education by a majority of 696. Messrs. Buckle, Dumont and Craig were elected to the Council by majorities ranging from 742 to 627. Outside of the Fourth ward, Craig received the most cuts.

One Democrat was elected to office. That was William Callahan, Democratic candidate for constable in the Second ward. He was elected, however, for the reason that the Republicans failed to put up anyone against him.

Mrs. Ida M. Becker has returned from Wiltehouse, where she visited relatives.

FIRST WARD, 1ST DISTRICT.

Republicans Carried the District After a Hot Fight and Gave Gloak a Majority of 68.

The chief fight of the election was in the first district of the First ward. After the factional fight in the Republican ranks, it was necessary for the continuation of City Clerk J. T. MacMurray as ward leader that the Republican ticket should be successful. The fight was particularly on the ward Councilman. After a hard fight all day and a long count in the evening, it was found that the Republican ticket was victorious by a majority of 181, while Gloak received a majority of 68 in the district.

The number of ballots cast was 427, three more than last year. There were 309 Republicans and 121 Democrats and four of the Socialist Labor. It was a great gain for the Republicans, Gloak ran way behind his ticket as did Westphal. There was an abundance of pasters used.

FIRST WARD, 2D DISTRICT.

Republicans Carried The District Making Large Gains—Gloak Given a Majority of 26 in the District.

There was plenty of excitement in the second district of the First ward all day. Both parties made a strong fight but the Republicans fairly outdid themselves and carried everything before them. They carried the district by a majority of. 76 for the Republican ticket and 26 for W. L. Gloak, the Republican candidate for ward Councilman. Two years ago, Hetfield carried the district by fifty while running on the Citizens' ticket. Last year, City Judge Runyon received a majority of 4 and Councilman Tolles a majority of 8, while the other Republican candidates failed to get any majorities at all.

There were 180 ballots cast, 18 more than last year. Of that number, 127 were Republican, 51 Democratic and 1 Socialist Labor. One was rejected. Irvine ran 22 ahead of his ticket. On the Republican ticket, Westphal, Craig and Gloak were scratched the most.

SECOND WARD, 1ST DISTRICT

H. W. Marshall and D. C. Irvine Made Strong Runs—Marshall Defeated by VanHerwerden by 60.

While there was a small gain for the Republican ticket in the first district of the Second ward over the vote of last year, there was a genuine surprise party in H. W. Marshall, the Democratic candidate for ward Councilman. He was only 46 votes behind John van Herwerden, the Republican nominee. The Republican ticket secured a majority of 134. The Democratic candidates all ran ahead of their their ticket, Marshall and Irvine doing the best. Irvine ran one vote better than Marshall.

There were 356 ballots cast, 343 Republican, 109 Democratic and 1 Socialist-Labor. Three ballots were rejected. The day was a very quiet one and the vote polled was 79 less than last year.

SECOND WARD, 2d DISTRICT.

Netherwood Gave Councilman VanHerwerden a Large Majority—Pasters Used to Limited Extent.

The friends of Councilman John van Herwerden turned out in force in the second district of the Second ward. He was 44 better than his opponent while the Republican ticket ran 56 ahead. Hanna, candidate for Justice of the Peace, was the only one on the Republican ticket to run even with the ticket. Pasters were used to a limited extent. The result in the district large gains for the Republicans over last year.

There were 137 ballots cast, three less than last year. Of these, 96 were Republican, 40 Democratic. One was rejected. Last year, Mayor Rockfellow only received a majority of 15 and Councilman Mellick of 13. As this district includes Netherwood, which is Councilman van Herwerden's home, the large Republican majority can be accounted for by the activity of the Councilman and his friends.

THIRD WARD, 1ST DISTRICT.

Day Was a Quiet One and Vote Was Light—Democrats Made Small Gains—Irvine Runs Well.

Everything was decidedly quiet at the first district of the Third ward. The vote there was fair, but nearly seventy-five less than last year. The Democrats scored slight gains and all their candidates ran ahead of the ticket. There was a tremendous Republican majority and the Democrats only made slight inroads in it.

The total number of ballots cast was 329, as against 426 last year. Of that number, there were 251 Republican tickets, 108 Democratic and three Socialist-Labor tickets. Three ballots were rejected. Irvine ran best of the Democratic candidates and was only forty-nine behind Westphal, the Republican candidate for Freeholder. Hubbard ran ahead of his ticket. Among the Councilmen-at-Large, Buckle and Homan were the strongest on their respective tickets.

For the ward Councilman, Clifton won by 101 majority, while the Republican ticket had a majority of 143. Last year Councilman Cotlell was elected by 134 majority and Mayor Rockfellow received 176 majority in that district. Three ballots were cast for J. B. Dumont for Justice of the Peace.

THIRD WARD, 2D DISTRICT.

No Excitement Marked the Voting—Irvine Ran Best of any Democrat—Westphal and Craig Were Cut.

The count was first completed in the second district of the Third ward. The vote was light, only 97 ballots being cast as against 111 a year ago. Of that number the Republicans polled 78, the Democrats 17, the Socialist Labor ticket 2, while one ballot was rejected. That showed a large Republican gain, the Republican majority being 59 instead of 34 as last year.

Irvine, for Freeholder, made the best run of any the Democratic candidates, getting 23 more than his ticket. Westphal was cut accordingly. Homan, Democratic candidate for Councilman-at-large, made a strong run. Craig, the Republican nominee, was badly cut. The voting was very quiet, and was not marked by any excitement.

FOURTH WARD, 1ST DISTRICT.

Republicans Polled Heavy Gains Through Strong Organization—Vanderhoef Had Largest Republican Vote.

Large Republican gains were made in the First district of the Fourth ward. Both sides made quite an effort but the strong organization of the Republicans sent the majority for that ticket up to 75 as against 13 last year. There was a comparatively small amount of scratching as compared with the other wards.

There were 322 votes cast, 203 being Republican, 117 Democratic and 2 Socialist Labor. Vanderhoff, candidate for constable, did the best on the Republican ticket, running only 1 behind. Craig was 21 votes less and Westphal 15. Lee made a good run for ward Councilman, falling behind only 7.

FOURTH WARD 2D DISTRICT.

Regular Landslide For the G. O. P. Where Citizens' Ticket was Victorious Last Year.

There was a regular landslide for the Republicans in the second district of the Fourth ward where the Citizens' ticket had been victorious a year ago. The election passed of quietly and the vote polled was smaller than usual. The Republican ticket was easily victorious by 93 majority.

There were 336 votes cast, 208 Republican, 115 Democratic and 13 Socialist-Labor. Five were rejected. The Councilmen at-large all ran fairly together. Huff suffered the most from the scratches, running 40 behind Westphal last 26 votes. Irvine was 16 better than his ticket and was high man among the Democrats.

FOURTH WARD, 3D DISTRICT.

Republicans Had an Easy Thing of It and Rolled Up a Great Majority of 108.

The Republicans had no trouble at all in carrying the third district of the Fourth ward by a majority of 108, while last year they only succeeded in tieing the Citizens' ticket. There were plenty of workers around the polls all day, but the election proved a quiet one there.

There were 341 ballots, while last year there were 315. The Republican tickets numbered 169 and the Democrats 61. The Socialist-Labor ticket polled 18 votes. Three were rejected. There was comparatively few scratches and Irvine was the only candidate to run at all ahead of his ticket. He gained 14.

NO DEMONSTRATIONS.

Result of Election Received Quietly—Dinner By Mr. MacMurray to Lieutenants.

The Republican leaders were very confident long before the election that they would be victorious. The leaders there claimed the First ward by 100. Considerable interest was taken in the counting in the First ward. The usual election day excitement was entirely missing, however, and the announcement of the result was received without any demonstration.

A dinner was given at McVey's Hotel by Mr. MacMurray to his lieutenants after the news of the victory was received. It was generally known about the city as early as 9 o'clock that the city had been swept by the Republicans. Two hours later it was possible to estimate the result with considerable accuracy.

HOW THE TICKETS RAN.

Table of the Vote in Each Election District Which Offers Some Interesting Comparisons.

A record of the total number of Republican, Democratic and Socialist-Labor tickets cast in all the polling places of the city offers some interesting comparisons. The Republican ticket secured a majority of 880. A comparison of the following with the votes of the various candidates will show that they all ran behind the ticket. It is an evidence of the general use of pasters:

	Rep.	Dem.	S. L.
1st Ward—1st Dist.	309	121	4
" 2nd Dist.	127	51	1
2nd Ward—1st Dist.	243	109	1
" 2nd Dist.	96	40	0
3rd Ward—1st Dist.	251	102	3
" 2nd Dist.	78	17	3
4th Ward—1st Dist.	202	127	3
" 2nd Dist.	203	115	13
" 3rd Dist.	169	61	18
Total Vote	1669	743	46
Majority	880

Board of Education.

	Dr. J. Probasco, R.	C. C. Burnett, D.
1st Ward—1st Dist.	279	141
" 2nd Dist.	130	86
2nd Ward—1st Dist.	221	131
" 2nd Dist.	90	46
3rd Ward—1st Dist.	221	128
" 2nd Dist.	71	33
4th Ward—1st Dist.	188	141
" 2nd Dist.	191	124
" 3rd Dist.	169	69
Total Vote	1555	899
Majority	696

Board of Freeholders.

	J. F. Hubbard, R.	W. A. Westphal, R.	D. C. Irvine, D.
1st Ward—1st Dist.	300	255	167
" 2nd Dist.	135	107	73
2nd Ward—1st Dist.	239	209	154
" 2nd Dist.	92	86	47
3rd Ward—1st Dist.	250	196	146
" 2nd Dist.	76	53	39
4th Ward—1st Dist.	196	167	142
" 2nd Dist.	204	162	121
" 3rd Dist.	168	167	75
Total Vote	1661	1454	974
Majority	677	460

SONS OF VETERANS ELECT.

Edward F. T. Smith Elected Captain of John Hand Camp—Installation to Take Place in January.

A regular meeting of John Hand Camp, Sons of Veterans, was held last Tuesday at which time the annual election took place as follows:

Captain, Edward F. T. Smith; 1st lieutenant, George Bedford; 2d lieutenant, Frank Perry; camp council, Raymond L. McVoy, George Bedford, Clifford Compton; delegates to the division encampment, Clifford Compton, Frank Perry; alternates, Clarence Bittenhouse, Cornelius Perrine.

The installation of the above officers and the announcement of the appointive officers will take place at the first meeting night in January. After the meeting last evening the members retired to Clevesley's, North avenue, and enjoyed a collation.

Heptasophs Elect.

The annual election of officers of Protective Conclave, No. 505 Improved Order of Heptasophs, Tuesday, resulted as follows: Archon, F. C. Lounsbury; provost, John T. Grimo; secretary, V. W. Nash; financier, Michael Armstrong; inspector, F. A. Weber; prelate, J. P. D. Kirch; treasurer, E. M. Laing, warden, J. P. Ludre; sentinel, Horsley Barker; trustees, V. W. Nash, Samuel Boss and Bateman Thatcher.

—The Plainfield trolley cars are now heated and people can ride in comfort.

THE OFFICIAL VOTE.

Tables Giving the Vote For Each Candidate in Detail Throughout the City.

WARD COUNCILMEN.

	W. L. Gloak, R.	W. L. Hetfield, D.	J. VanHerwerden, R.	H. W. Marshall, D.	C. B. Clifton, R.	A. H. Atterbury, D.	R. L. Lee, R.	W. H. Bodner, D.
1st Ward,—1st District	343	176
" 2nd District	101	75
2nd Ward—1st District			199	153
" 2nd District			89	43
3rd Ward—1st District					256	102
" 2nd District					73	20
4th Ward—1st District							196	136
" 2nd District							196	113
" 3rd District							170	62
Total Vote	344	250	288	196	329	122	562	311
Majority	94		90		154		302

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.

	Dennis Carney, R.	Chas. McGinley, D.	Chas. Hanna, R.	William Day, D.	John Heath, R.	W. H. Conover, D.	E. J. Huff, R.	H. D. Mellvin, D.
1st Ward—1st District	266	142
" 2nd District	118	81
2nd Ward—1st District			243	109
" 2nd District			90	46
3rd Ward—1st District					252
" 2nd District					76
4th Ward—1st District							197	127
" 2nd District							197	117
" 3rd District							169	61
Total Vote	384	223	329	143	328		563	305
Majority	161		186		328		327

COUNCILMEN AT LARGE.

	J. F. Buckle, R.	J. B. Dumont, R.	James Craig, R.	C. B. Yard, D.	J. P. Homan, D.	Wm. Manning, D.
1st Ward—1st District	280	287	273	149	137	118
" 2nd District	132	126	112	58	50	30
2nd Ward—1st District	233	234	215	120	120	112
" 2nd District	92	94	89	44	47	40
3rd Ward—1st District	243	237	209	116	108	104
" 2nd District	72	74	69	18	34	18
4th Ward—1st District	197	192	181	142	142	124
" 2nd District	200	196	189	117	120	113
" 3rd District	170	160	178	62	62	60
Total Vote	1619	1599	1506	826	872	743
Majority	742	726	627

FOR CONSTABLES.

	R. R. Boss, R.	D. Kane, D.	Wm. Callahan, D.	Aaron Mellick, R.	Chas. McCarthy, D.	F. Vanderhoef, R.	F. McDermott, D.
1st Ward—1st District	302	133
" 2nd District	130	66
2nd Ward—1st District			206
" 2nd District			61
3rd Ward—1st District				252	106
" 2nd District				76	17
4th Ward—1st District						203	125
" 2nd District						203	115
" 3rd District						167	62
Total Vote	432	177	146	328	117	573	302
Majority	344		146	211		271

Endeavorers Have Club.

Miss Minnie Smalley, of Somerset street, entertained the card club of which she is a member, at her home last Tuesday. The regular membership of the club was present and a very enjoyable time was passed by all. After the evening's play supper was served by the hostess. The usual number of prizes were presented to the winners.

—Many places about town are now lighted with the underground system of electric lighting.

Fair of Holidays.

A "Fair of Holidays" will be held in Vincent chapel, Thursday and Friday afternoons and evenings of this week from 2 to 10 p. m. Admission will be free. The affair will be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church.

—H. A. Stiles, the eye specialist, will be at 197 East Front street today to examine eyes free of charge.

A THANKFUL SPIRIT IN LOCAL PULPITS

Special Union Services Were Held Thursday Morning.

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE DAY.

SPLENDID SERMONS BY REVS. GARDNER AND O'DONNELL.

Origin of the Custom of Observing Thanksgiving Explained, and Conclusions Drawn as That Admonition to Christians Came to Upper-mostly—American Have Much to be Thankful For.

The usual Thanksgiving service which was held at the First Baptist church Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock was very well attended by worshippers. The service was one of the most inspiring held. Seated on the platform were Rev. Dr. Yerkes, pastor of the church; Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, of the First M. E. church; Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, of Trinity Reformed church, and Rev. G. W. Gardner, of Grace M. E. church. The latter preached the sermon.

The regular church choir assisted at the service and two beautiful anthems were rendered, in addition to a pleasing duet by Miss Harris, soprano, and Mrs. Ward, contralto, and solos by George Smith, tenor, and William Holmes, baritone.

Dr. Yerkes opened the service with Scripture reading and prayer, and Rev. Mr. Gardner read the fourth chapter of Paul's Epistle to the Philippians. This was followed with an impressive and beautiful prayer by Dr. Schenck. Interspersing the opening exercises there was selections by the choir and the singing of hymns, after which the sermon was delivered by Mr. Gardner. It was helpful and powerful discourse, although the speaker did not deal so much in national affairs. His text was taken from Psalms 92:1: "It is a good thing to give thanks unto God."

Mr. Gardner then went on to tell why it is a good thing to render thanks. He said that it is fitting that a proclamation should be issued setting apart one day for thanksgiving. He rehearsed history showing the origin of the custom and how it had been kept for so many years. He contended that where the faith of the people is strong there will be much thanksgiving. He spoke of the sturdy Pilgrim Fathers whose faith never failed. He told of how there was a renewed activity in Thanksgiving day after the great religious awakening in 1864, and he voiced the sentiments of Senator Lodge who remarked recently in Boston that a strong faith in the country is a source of great strength. He said that all rejoiced in Dewey's victory in Manila Bay, but what is needed is a strong faith in God. He was glad that the sturdy pioneers of New England put in practice the Thanksgiving custom. It means a home festival, and if God be in it there is great sacredness there, and he hoped that the custom of reunion would never become obsolete, when parents, grandparents, children and grandchildren meet and join in the festivities of the occasion.

The speaker said that a well known person had remarked that goodness is uninteresting because there is so much of it. If a snake should invest a city park there would be two columns in the newspaper about it, yet nothing is said about the beautiful trees, the birds and there and watble their sweet songs. He urged all to form habits of giving thanks, thankfulness for everything. He then recited a portion of President McKinley's proclamation showing how prosperous the country had been and the reason why all should be thankful, and closed his remarks by saying that surely all ought to give their lives for those for whom God gave his life. Those to whom he referred were the millions of people that inhabit the country's new possessions.

The service closed with the taking of the collection of the Plainfield Relief Association, a prayer by Dr. Snodgrass, a duet by Miss Harris and Mrs. Ward and the benediction by Dr. Yerkes.

The Union Thanksgiving services at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Thursday morning were but fairly well attended. The pastor, Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, was assisted by Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, pastor of the Monroe Avenue Methodist church; Rev. G. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, and Rev. Dr. A. E. Main, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

The invocation was delivered by Dr. Main with Scriptural reading by Rev. Mr. Goodrich. A feature of the services was the reading by Dr. Richards of President McKinley's Thanksgiving Proclamation. In the absence of the choir Charles Lewis rendered very acceptably two baritone solos, his singing of "Where are the Roses now?" being especially well done. The offertory was for the poor of the parish, an annual custom at this church.

The sermon was by Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, who took his text from portions of the 31st and 32d chapters of Deuteronomy, which had to do with the song of Moses and the mercies of God toward His people. He said that the world is being made better owing to the glory of her men and women, who are being taught by the Bible, which today has come to be looked upon as the only true word of God.

Americans, he said, have much to be thankful for today owing to the great prosperity of the country which had been made possible by the divine providence of the Creator, who had so guided the affairs of the Nation backed by a wise administration, as to cause great rejoicing. When it is known that the export of flour from this country is so great that if the large numbers of barrels of that product shipped abroad were placed end for end they would extend across the great Atlantic ocean and half way back again. This, to say nothing of the nearly $200,000,000 annually in the United States treasury, is another reason why the American people have just cause to be thankful today for the wise Providence which has brought about this era of prosperity.

The speaker than referred to the poor and the great charity of the American people who did not hesitate to give of their means—a fact that truly signified the gratitude which they felt for God's blessings. The poorest man is by no means the one who has today to set down a frugal meal; but it is the man who has lost faith in the words of Moses—the faithless man—who is the poor man.

In our enthusiastic patriotism the Americans are apt to forget our gratitude to God and get over the line into that of bigotry. While we all have a natural love for our country we should not forget that while we are throwing up our caps and shouting for recent victories there is something back of all this. As a nation we cannot take all the credit—we must look to Our Higher in power and feel grateful to Him and His greatness.

Before closing Mr O'Donnell spoke of the soldiers' monument which the citizens purpose to erect in the triangle of the Crescent church lot. He said that when passing the spot he could in his imagination see the tall shaft rising heavenward, in honor of the brave men who had given up their lives for their country and he hoped that his dream could yet be a reality.

MARRIED TWENTY YEARS

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED BY MR AND MRS. MARTIN.

One Hundred Relatives Were Present to Give Joy the Event—Many Handsome Presents Received by Celebrants.

It was twenty years ago Friday that Mr. and Mrs. Horace J. Martin, of Jackson avenue, were united in marriage by Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry in what was known as the Central Baptist church, but which is now the old Seventh-Day Baptist church. This event was celebrated Thursday at the home of the bride and groom. There were fully one hundred and fifty relatives and friends present to join in wishing the celebrants many happy returns of the day. The home was appropriately decorated for the occasion and Mr. and Mrs. Martin received their guests cordially.

During the evening there was instrumental music by Andrew Carpenter and Mrs. J. M. Smalley, vocal music by Miss Marianna, and several vocal selections by Robert M. Clark, Edward O. Clark, Lyman Spencer and Joseph Martin.

Those who poured tea in the dining room were Mrs. John Bailey, of Manasquan, and Mrs. Robert M. Clark, of the borough, assisted by Miss Nellie Fenner and Mrs. David Richards, of this city. Between the hours of 8 and 12 o'clock the house was thronged with guests. Supper was served under the direction of W. J. Pride, caterer.

The presents received by the bride and groom were of every variety, and were both costly and handsome. These tokens of esteem were greatly appreciated by the recipients.

Horace Martin, Jr., and Willard Martin, assisted in receiving the providing for the comfort of guests who were present from Newark, Jersey City, Elizabeth, Philadelphia, Point Pleasant, Manasquan, Piuckamin, Dunellen, Royersford, Bound Brook, Raritan and this city.

Columbia Lodge Elects.

These officers were elected last Friday by Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W.: Master workman, F. C. Lounsbury; foreman, O. R. Pearson, Jr.; overseer, James Forestell; recorder, Robert H. Loughlin; financier, E. M. Laing; receiver, Henry Liefke; inside watchman, Corre Ryno; outside watchman, Michael Koller; trustee, Henry Nischwitz; representative to grand lodge, J. W. A. Bauernschs and William A. Woodruff; alternates, Henry Nischwitz and Robert H Loughlin.

—You can get fitted easily now from Doane & Edsall's large stock of fine up-to-date shoes at the lowest prices.

CEREAL EXPORTS.

Statistics of the Way This Country Feeds the World.

The importance of the American farmer is not revealed in its fullest extent until his relation to the world's food supply is considered. That relation is one that is hailed in a very intimate one, as men of all nations would attest if the farmer should suddenly decide to go out of business and live on the plains of the past two years. Then the old adage "Half a loaf is better than none," might find a more literal interpretation than in this well-fed age.

One cannot travel through the big wheat farms of the northwest without being wonderfully impressed with the spirit of industry and enterprise. They give the farmer his most favorable background. But it is necessary to resort to dull statistics to know the real worth of these vast estates to the United States treasury, is another reason why the American people have just cause to be thankful today for the wise Providence which has brought about this era of prosperity.

To begin at once on facts, the American farmer is responsible for annual exports aggregating in value $300,000,000 for nearly a decade and a half, to be remembered, is after catering to a very heavy home demand. The largest single item is furnish by wheat. Corn, oats and flour also contribute their other parts. Last fiscal year was a record one for flour, when 18,485,629 barrels were shipped. The number of bushels of wheat was 139,421,515. In 1891 the amount of wheat was 161,000,000 bushels, which is the greatest total of which any account is to be had. During that year exports of corn amounted to 208,744,000, which was the record in that cereal up to that time.

These wishes to show the stupendous results of agrarian labor one should turn to the figures given in the last annual report of the New York Produce Exchange, which containg export figures since 1821, when records were first available. Since that year the value of farm products raised within the United States has footed up to over six billions of dollars. This means that something like 4,200,000,000 bushels of wheat would have been sent out of the country to supply deficiencies in the food products of European nations.

There has been a gradual development in these sixty-eight years, with several periods of very rapid expansion. For instance, in the five years ending with September, 1835, the amount of wheat exported was only 614,145 bushels. The output of flour in that interval was 5,341,964 barrels. In the five years ending with 1840 there was a total of 138,306,000 bushels; ten years later they were 224,019,376 bushels, bumbling in the 8vyyear period following.

The best prices that the farmer has received for his wheat came between 1861 and 1870, when an average of $1.48 per bushel was obtained. This fell to a total of 128,306,000 bushels; ten years later they were 224,019,376 bushels, bumbling in the 8vyyear period following.

Heavy Shoes.

A woman who is a victim of the big shoe craze says that when she took a trip west a few weeks ago she wore her "comfortable," heavy-soled, rubber-heeled calfskins. In the sleeping car she called attention to the porter in black them. As her berth was the first one from the little chicken-coop place in which the porter attends to the odd jobs, he was also within ear overhearing a little conversation which took place between him and two of the men passengers.

"They calls 'em shoes, don't they?" the porter remarked.

"I guess so," replied one of the men. "They're just strong-minded shoes. The fashions are getting sensible. High time, too."

"Look lak they made out o' cowhide," the porter commented. "Lawd, look at dem soles; 'bout four inches thick."

"Must be a mighty big woman," put in the other passenger. "She weighs 200 if she weighs a pound. I never saw such shoes in my life. Think she'd have to have derricks to lift them on."

But the eavesdropper fell asleep right here. In the morning three pairs of eyes looked curiously at her feet and then took in a slender 110-pound figure. She said it was really amusing.—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Danger of the Season.

Mr. Rider Haggard, in "A Farmer's Year," tells a sad story about a Yorkshire gentleman who was one of a shooting party watched by a lot of miners.

A number of these gentry attached themselves to him so hard that he grew nervous and began to shoot badly. At length the last and great stand of the day was reached, when, just before the best began, a ferocious and unshaven miner approached the host and whispered hoarsely in his ear: "Look 'ere, gov'nor, you're shooting 'orrful, and I've lost three fob on yer. But I backed you for a tenner at 103-pound figure. She said it was really amusing.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Sound to Depart.

A youthful Stockton man rushed to catch a river boat for San Francisco, but was about two minutes late. The steamer was six feet out as he reached the dock. He saw his girls aboard and, jumping, caught a rope and a post and held fast. Everybody imagined he had fallen in. The captain, spectacle over his nose, saw the struggle and called out: "Here, you," he shouted, "by jiminy crickets, don't you ever do that again!" The passenger had headed himself sharply by this time, and, turning a look of scorn at the captain, said, "What do you think I'm going to do—jump back and try it over?"

What is that which increases the more you take from it?—A hole.

BLACKFORD A BIGAMIST?

Plainfielder Confronted By Two Wives.

ARRESTED LAST FRIDAY.

JOHN L. BLACKFORD, RAILROAD DETECTIVE, IS IN TROUBLE.

Married Miss Ulrich In Plainfield Ten Years Ago—Wedded Miss Morgan In Westfield Last Week—Arrested at Hotel Marlborough On His Honeymoon, Claims to Have Secured a Divorce In Dakota.

John L. Blackford, the well known private detective in the employ of the Jersey Central Railroad who lives at 926 Putnam avenue, was arrested Friday morning at the Hotel Marlborough, New York, on the charge of bigamy. The complaint was made before the New York authorities by Mrs. Blackford, No. 1, who was wedded to Blackford in this city ten years ago. She was a Miss Ulrick. At the time of his arrest, Blackford was on his honeymoon with with Mrs. Blackford No. 2, whom he wedded a week ago at Westfield. Her name was Alice Morgan, sister of Mrs. Charles Breesebolts, of Summit avenue, Westfield.

Blackford has been living with his wife in Plainfield up to the time of his last marriage. He formerly lived on East Fifth street, near Franklin place, but moved from there to Putnam avenue, nearly a year ago. He was on night duty for the Central Railroad and usually returned home in the morning about 8 o'clock. Neighbors say that their domestic life was not always peaceful.

The first that Mrs. Blackford heard of her husband's second marriage was when a friend told her that a man of the same name was to be married in Westfield. Then she received several papers with the announcement. Yesterday morning Mr. Breesebolts happened to visit Plainfield. He is the brother-in-law of the second wife. He easily found where Blackford lived and was surprised on reaching there to be received by a woman who claimed to be Blackford's wife.

Explanations followed and Thursday night, Mrs. Blackford No. 1, and Mr. Breesebolts went to New York where a complaint was made against Blackford on the charge of bigamy. He was arrested at the Marlborough with his bride at 4 o'clock Friday morning.

He admitted that he had been married before but declared that he had secured a divorce out in Dakota and that the second wife was now his legal spouse. Mrs. Blackford denied that there had ever been any divorce but did not want her husband punished. She merely wanted him to return to her. Mrs. Blackford became hysterical when her supposed husband was arrested but declared that she had implicit trust in him and believed that he was right.

DECIDED AGAINST WIFE.

Judge McAdam Declared Agreement of Separation Between Mr. and Mrs. Pollion Against Public Policy.

Judge McAdam, of the New York Supreme Court, Friday decided against Mrs. Frederica M. Pollion in a suit brought by her against her husband, J. J. Herring Pollion, formerly a resident of this city and now of New York.

Husband and wife mutually agreed to separate May 1st, 1898. The wife was to receive an allmony of $250 a month to support herself and her two daughters. Mr. Pollion claims that she compelled him to pay her $24,000 before she would execute a release of dower to permit him to go into a real estate deal. Then he refused to pay her allmony any longer. Judge McAdam decided that the agreement was against public policy. The case will be appealed.

OFFERING FOR HOSPITAL.

To Be Given By the Colored Pastors and Churches January 5th.

Rev. E. E. Jackson, of the Mt Olive church, with the rest of the colored pastors and churches of the city, will unite January 5th at the Mt. Olive Baptist church in a New Year's offering for the city hospital. There will be no entertainment, but a free will offering will be accepted. This movement is prompted by the pastors for the reason that the physicians and nurses in charge at the hospital have shown themselves strictly impartial in their treatment of both black and white.

SPOOK FURNITURE.

If Not This, Then What Could It Be! —A Peculiar Story.

A singular story is related by the New Orleans Times-Democrat. It was told by a well-known professional man at a stag dinner, and the unusual experience stated in his own words is well worth repeating:

"In the spring of 1892," he said, "I was living in a house in North Rampart street, which I had taken on my own account, expecting to build. Our family consisted of myself and wife, our little boy, then only 5 years old, and my unmarried sister. The house was a small one-story affair, and had been built before the war and the interior arrangement was very simple. The front door opened on a hall, which contained the staircase and ran all the way through on the right-hand side, while on the left was, first, our parlor, then the dining-room, and lastly my small sleeping apartment not much larger than a closet. Upstairs were bedrooms, and in the rear was a small building, also of one story, used as the room on the first floor to stand vacant for several reasons. To begin with it was actually too small for actual occupation, as it was lighted only by only one high, narrow window, besides some of the plastering had fallen from the ceiling, and I was afraid the rest might come tumbling down on our heads. That was undoubtedly a source of danger, and prevented us from using it for storage, so we simply left it as it was, and let it remain empty. I suppose the room was constructed originally for a pantry. I have been a little particular in describing the premises, as you will see, they have a direct bearing on my story.

"We had been living in the house almost a year," continued the speaker, "when one Sunday in June, as nearly as I can remember, I went with my wife and child to see some friends who had moved recently. My sister was visiting at Biloxi at the time, and we let the servant off for a holiday. We got back at 5 o'clock or thereabout and I was feeling still quite light, and as we were walking toward the house I noticed that somebody had left a stool standing on the sidewalk in front of the high window opening into the little disused room on the ground floor. That's rather a cordial invitation to prowlers, I said half aloud. 'Let's see whether any have availed themselves of it.' So when we went inside we walked back together to the last door and I pushed it open. And what does this mean?' I exclaimed in astonishment. There was nobody there, but the room, which had always been empty, was now contained several pieces of furniture. A rough-looking table stood in one corner, with an old-fashioned straight-back chair by its side, and against the wall a small bed cot. There were some papers and other things on the table and a religious print stuck on one of the walls. I started to put my wife behind me back. 'Don't go in,' she pleaded, 'the plaster may fall. Those things must belong to the cook. It struck me very forcibly that the cook should move in without asking permission, but I noticed that my wife was very much excited, so I drew her back as I went into the parlor. A few minutes later I walked outside to shift the ladder, and as I picked it up I glanced through the window. The room was perfectly empty.

"I am not superstitious, and the proof of it is that I thought immediately of the servant's practical joke. I re-entered the house quietly from the rear and again I opened the door. The room was as empty as a drum, and as I sat down to think over that no sort of trickery was remotely possible. I won't attempt to describe my feelings. I was so shocked, so bewildered, so frightened at the idea of the truth that for a moment or two I was simply rooted to the spot. Then I pulled myself together somehow and went back to the parlor. My wife saw at once that something was wrong.

"'It's that room!' I blurted out. 'There's nothing in it now—not a stick!'

"And immediately I had a case of hysterics on my hands. I will not tell all there is to the story. Next morning I examined the place carefully by broad daylight, and it was plain from the dust on the floor that no kind of thing of any kind had been there for years. We left the house before the end of the week, paying a month's forfeit, for no friend or relative would believe in spooks, but because we didn't care to stay in a place where unaccountable things happen that baffle the nerve. My wife and I have talked the matter over a thousand times, carefully comparing notes, and as far as we can see there is no clue to the things. My boy must have seen them, too, for when we went back into the parlor he asked his mother 'whether that was Aunt Harriet's room.' Aunt Hattie is an old relative of ours, who has a favorite straight-back chair, similar to the one we saw in the room. Of course we have never mentioned ourselves to refer to the occurrence before the child, so I am unable to say positively what else he observed. That I saw anything in the room else as distinct as you are at this moment, I even noticed that one of the table legs had been mended with a piece of slat, and my boy observed the same thing. The house is still standing, and has since been occupied by several successive tenants. As far as I know none of them have ever had any unusual experience."

BLACK EYES.

Treatment for the Kind That Are Not Given by Nature.

When the patient is seen early, before discoloration has set in, cold compresses or evaporating lotion are indicated; this reduces the swelling and limits the subsequent discoloration. But if the patient is seen after he has a fully-developed "shiner," hot compresses and massage are required. The affected portion is smeared over with vaseline and rubbed for 10 minutes several times a day. After the massage and continuous hot applications the discoloration may be almost entirely removed within twenty-four hours. The professional "black eye" artists use a poultice of the scrapings of a root, which is thought to be bryony root.

A single human hair will support four ounces without breaking.

END OF HILLSIDE SEASON

NO MORE MATCH GAMES OF GOLF ON THAT COURSE.

Play for the Gilbert Cup Was the Attraction Yesterday—No one Has Won it Enough Times to Become Permanent Owner.

The golf season which closed Thursday at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club grounds was one of the most successful in the history of the club, as the records made through the year are such that the members can feel proud of them. The list of events have all been interesting and the competitive list has been large. The season's play has brought out some fine material and numbered among the contestants are some of the best in this section. No doubt that next year great advances will be made in golf at this popular course and some big records will be looked for.

There was a large crowd at the course yesterday, the attraction being the mixed foursome play for the Gilbert cup. Like the rather the lady becoming a permanent owner of the cup is obliged to win it three times and have her name inscribed thereon as many times. This makes the fourth contest for the trophy and no one lady has won it more than once. Those who won it are: Miss May Evans and H. D. West; Miss Shepard and B. M. Shepard; Miss Grace Kaufman and Whitney Baker; Miss Gladys Kaufman and W. T. Kaufman. The last two named were the winners yesterday. As will be seen by the scores which follow, there was some fine play ing. The scores were rather close and there was not such a great difference between anyone of the contestants. As matter now stand it will take a long while for a person to secure the cup permanently, but the contest for it will be watched with considerable interest in the future.

Yesterday's scores follow:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
Miss Gladys Kaufman, W. T. Kaufman	108	15	93
Miss Goddard, Lawrence Tweed, Jr.	115	18	97
Miss Lee, S. P. Sayers, Jr.	130	33	98
Miss Schoonmaker, Mr. Schoonmaker	107	8	99
Miss Shepard, B. M. Shepard	115	15	100
Miss Strong, W. L. Glenner	108	8	101
Miss Ward, C. W. Fisk	113	12	101
Miss Grace Kaufman, Whitney Baker	107	5	102
Miss M. VanBoskerk, Dr. F. C. Ard	111	9	102
Miss Helen Traer, H. C. Traer	125	20	105
Miss Whitton, Howard Washington	130	14	116
Mrs. Eve VanBoren, Howard Washington	125	16	109
Miss Bond, Dudley Barrows	127	18	109
Miss Andrews, Mr. Van Horneverdink	126	16	110
Miss Van Horneverdink, H. D. Ryder	128	15	113
Miss May Evans, Thos. VanBoskerk	127	14	113

TALENT IN STAR COURSE.

CLEVER ENTERTAINERS SEEN AT THE Y. M. C. A. THURSDAY.

One of the Best Entertainments Ever Given by the Association—A Big Audience—The Best Features of Programme.

The second of the Y. M. C. A. star course of entertainments Thursday night the cosy hall of the association was the best given under the auspices of this organization. The hall was filled to its limit and the entertainment was of a high order.

The Blanche Friderici Concert Company of New York is composed of a class of entertainers which it is a pleasure to listen to. Miss Blanche D. Friderici's monologues are indeed gems of the elocutionist's art, and the lady displays a taste that while clever by far removed from the course or vulgar. Her charming and artistic interpretations of the various characters she personated won for her unstinted applause from an audience of culture. Should Miss Friderici be induced to pay a second visit to Plainfield she can be assured of meeting a cordial reception.

As for the musical portion of the programme much might be written in praise. Miss Bond, who took the place of Miss Turton, who is ill, has a wonderfully powerful contralto, of vast compass, and sweet in tone. Her graceful manner and sweet expression was satisfactory evidence of her musical ability. Master Fanelli, the harpist and Miss Snell, the pianist, are also artists in their various lines. The latter's execution of the grand piano was much admired for its delicacy of grace and shows her to be a master of technique and execution.

Space is not avilable to write more fully of the ability of these skilled musical artists, but it is safe to say that their performance was highly appreciated. It was a musical treat which will not soon be forgotten.

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
Charles F. Faber	119	20	99
Herbert Crowe	126	26	100
Mrs. Meredith Dryden	135	35	100
J. H. Howell	130	30	100
Miss Daisy Ekberg	130	30	100
Charles M. Price	126	24	102
Dr. A. B. Thiers	138	36	102
Charles J. Faber	132	30	102
Samuel Townsend	140	34	106
Rev. J. Mitchell	130	24	106

The other event of the afternoon was a mixed foursome for a prize offered by the club. Six pairs entered and all turned in their scores. The event was arranged especially to furnish a contest in which the ladies would take part. It was a handicap, nine holes, medal play. There was much interest attached in the play and a small crowd of "galleries" followed the players. First honors went to Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Dryden. Miss Daish Elsberg and Allan B. Laing were second.

The scores were as follows:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
Mrs. Meredith Dryden, Meredith Dryden	97	18	81
Miss Daisy Elsberg, Miss Allan B. Laing	79	20	89
Miss Adelaide G. Fall, W. B. Faber	73	14	61
Mrs. Herbert Crowe, Herbert Crowe	99	15	84
Miss Gladys Crowe, Captain T. Townsend	93	18	85
Miss Annie E. Howell, Gilford W. Cooley	73	7	67

The course was in excellent condition. It will remain open this week, Saturday will be the last opportunity to play. The club house will then be closed and the greens covered for winter. It is not probable that any arrangement will be made to have temporary greens for winter play as there is very little demand for it. W. B. Mitchell, the club professional, goes to Pinehurst, N. C., next week, for the winter. He will probably return to Plainfield again in the spring.

With Arranged the Surprise.

Last Wednesday evening Frank W. Bailey, of 86 Duer street, was given a complete surprise by a number of his friends. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Bailey, and she invited their friends and neighbors to the number of twenty-nine, to spend a pleasant

George Moreton and family, of Brooklyn, spent Thursday with Dudley S. Miller and family, of Orchard place.

PARK CLUB GOLFERS ENDED THE SEASON.

Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Dryden Won Mixed Foursome.

HYDE CUP TO MR. CROWE.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT LINKS ON THANKSGIVING DAY.

Chas. K. Faber and Herbert Crowe Qualified for Final Round, Match Play, in Hyde Cup Competition—Crowe Won 3 up and 4 to Play—Six Couples in the Mixed Foursome—Informal Tea Held.

Thanksgiving Day was a lively day on the links of the Park Golf Club. It marked the ending of the active season there and two events were arranged for the day. The Hyde Cup, a men's handicap competition, was won by Herbert Crowe. The victors in the mixed foursome were Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Dryden.

There have been comparatively few of the members who have been at all regular in their attendance at the course during the past month. With the arrival of the really cold weather and the early nightfall, the number of devotees has been largely reduced. Despite that fact, there was a large attendance at the course all yesterday.

The event of the morning was the qualifying round for the Hyde Cup, a silver trophy offered to the club by Charles W. Hyde. There were over twenty entries but only ten cards were finally handed in. Besides the competitors out, there were many who took no part in the contest. The ladies were specially engaged and many were disappointed to get over the links without them. The ladies were out in considerable numbers.

It was expected that the competitors to qualify would be from those who have been in regular attendance lately. Charles E. Faber put up a good game and recorded the lowest net score. Herbert Crowe was one stroke behind. W. de la R. Anderson, the club champion, played in remarkably good form and finished third, four strokes behind Crowe. He made the first nine in 43 and the second in 51, making a total of 100. That was the lowest gross score of the day. J. H. Howell tied him for third place. Gilford W. Cooley was next in line with 106 net. Senator Charles A. Reed was on hand again, but lack of practice was evident in the score.

The final round, match play, was played in the afternoon. Faber gave Crowe a handicap of three strokes on every round. From the start it was evident that Faber was not in condition to do his best game. Crowe made some remarkable drives and played a steady, conscientious game, that won him the match and the cup. Faber was off his usual form. At the end of the first round Crowe was five up. In the second round Faber braced up somewhat and prevented his opponent from increasing his lead. Crowe won five up, four to play.

The scores handed in for the qualifying round were as follows:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
Charles F. Faber	119	20	99
Herbert Crowe	126	26	100
Mrs. Meredith Dryden	135	35	100
J. H. Howell	130	30	100
Miss Daisy Ekberg	130	30	100
Charles M. Price	126	24	102
Dr. A. B. Thiers	138	36	102
Charles J. Faber	132	30	102
Samuel Townsend	140	34	106
Rev. J. Mitchell	130	24	106

The course was in excellent condition. It will remain open this week, Saturday will be the last opportunity to play. The club house will then be closed and the greens covered for winter. It is not probable that any arrangement will be made to have temporary greens for winter play as there is very little demand for it. W. B. Mitchell, the club professional, goes to Pinehurst, N. C., next week, for the winter. He will probably return to Plainfield again in the spring.

The Poor Made Happy.

Through the aid of the Plainfield Relief Association many poor families were made happy Thursday last. They were supplied with turkeys and many things that go toward making such a day one long to be remembered.

Mr. and Mrs. Bellis, of Elmwood place, are visiting Rahway relatives for a time.

CHARLES POTTER DIED SATURDAY.

Printing Press Manufacturer Lived To Be 75 Years Old.

A LONG BUSINESS CAREER.

ONE OF THE FIRST PROMOTERS OF THE CYCLINDER PRESS.

In 1879 Mr. Potter Removed the Printing Press Plant to This City, Where It Has Grown into an Immense Industry—Prominent in The Seventh-Day Baptist Church—Loved by the Men He Employed.

Charles Potter, president of the Potter Printing Press Company, died early Saturday at his residence, No. 417 West Seventh street, of a complication of diseases, after a few week's illness, aged 75 years.

Charles Potter was born in Madison county, N. Y., April 21st, 1824, being the son of Charles and Eliza Potter. His grandfather, Benjamin Potter, was a well known publisher of Philadelphia, having come from Rhode Island. He early received a fair academic education, and when a young man went to Rhode Island, where for a time he taught in the district schools at Potter Hill. Later he became identified with the "Fayetteville Manufacturing Company," at Westerly, R. I., which he conducted successfully for about three years.

In 1854 Mr. Potter became associated with George H. Babcock, of Westerly, Rhode Island, who had invented a printing press of about letter page size for printing several colors at one operation. An office was opened in New York, and there orders were taken for the construction of presses of larger size. At the end of seven months Mr. Potter sold his interest to Mr. Babcock, father of the inventor of the press. Some time afterwards Mr. Potter became interested in a printing press invented by Merwin Davis, of New York. Putting his services and means at the disposal of Davis, the Fayetteville Manufacturing Company he constructed and exhibited one of these presses at the Crystal Palace Fair in the fall of 1855, receiving a gold medal. The press afterwards received a silver medal at the Mechanics' Fair in Boston, and one at the Maryland Institute in Baltimore. A demand for these presses sprang up at once.

In 1856, while canvassing for a job press which George H. Babcock had invented, Mr. Potter saw that there was a demand for a cylinder press for newspaper work. He at once set about the construction of this style of press in a machine shop at Westerly, R. I. It was from this first step in the building of newspaper presses that the immense business of the concern sprang into activity. For some years Mr. Potter canvassed the United States and Canada, selling the cylinder and the Babcock & Davis job presses.

Upon the breaking out of the war he lost all he had accumulated, and found himself in debt owing to the Southerners reputable their obligations for his sales. Misfortune did not come singly, however, for in April, 1863, while in the office of the Portland Press, Maine, he received a fall which resulted in the amputation of his left leg above the ankle.

About 1865 Mr. Potter associated with himself Mr. W. F. Hubbard, of Plainfield, and the firm of "C. Potter, Jr., & Co." was formed. The construction of presses was again resumed at Norwich, Conn., where arrangements were made with J. M. Huntington & Co. to manufacture them. Upon the death of Mr. Huntington in 1877 the manufacturing was transferred to Hope Valley, R. I. In 1879 Mr. Hubbard retired from the firm owing to ill health. Early in the same year the plant was removed to this city, where the present immense buildings were constructed, covering a ground space of about two acres. The business is very extensive, and gives employment to several hundred hands. The presses manufactured by the firm have an international reputation for speed, durability and reliability.

In 1850 Mr. Potter was married to Miss Sarah P. Wilcox, daughter of Martin and Mehetabel Wilcox, of Unadilla, N. Y. Mrs. Potter, with three daughters, Mrs. David E. Titsworth, Mrs. Florence Potter Rose, Mrs. William C. Hubbard, all of this city survive him. Another daughter, Mrs. Joseph M. Titsworth, died some years ago.

While not active in politics he was deeply interested in the material affairs of our city and had served as a member of the Common Council. He was a stockholder, director and ex-president of the First National Bank, of Plainfield, and one of the incorporators of the Hillside Cemetery Association.

He was a staunch Seventh-Day Baptist and prominent in the church and denomination. He was president of the board of trustees of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of Plainfield, and it was largely through his influence and generosity combined with that of the late George H. Babcock, that the handsome church edifice of that denomination was erected some few years since. He was president of the American Sabbath Tract Society and of the board of trustees of the Seventh-Day Baptist Memorial Fund, and a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist Mission Band. He was deeply interested in education and had liberally endowed the schools of his faith.

In recent years he had been a trustee and was a regular attendant at the services. It is largely due to Mr. Potter's generosity that the handsome church edifice of that denomination was erected a few years ago.

As an employer Mr. Potter was as much beloved as he was highly esteemed by all citizens. His thoughtfulness for those in his employ often found expression in his desire that they should not be deprived of their wages when he passed away, and in accordance with this wish the works run as usual on Monday.

His death has removed a man whose personality was marked by integrity, uprightness and proverbial kindness toward all mankind.

The funeral services was held from Mr. Potter's late home Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

OLD RESIDENT DEAD.

Martin Roth, Sr., the Shoemaker, Lived in This City for Fifty Years.

The death of Martin Roth, Sr., aged 65 years, one of Plainfield's oldest shoemakers, occurred Friday at his home in Exchange alley, after an illness covering a period of about three years with stomach trouble. He was born in Germany, and came to this country when a young man. It was fifty years ago that he came to Plainfield and established a shoe shop. For fourteen years he has been in Exchange alley.

He was an orphan when he came here. He afterward was married, and a widow, two daughters, Mrs. Blatch and Mrs. Scheidecker, and two sons, Martin Roth, Jr., and John Roth, survives him. He was a member of the T. B. and S. that organization attended the funeral in a body on Monday morning at 8:30 from the residence and at 9 o'clock from St. Mary's church, where a requiem mass was said. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

THANKSGIVING EVE WEDDING

Miss Anna Griffen Becomes the Wife of Robert Stevens.

Last Wednesday evening there was a pretty wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Baits, 62 Somerset street, when Miss Anna Griffen, formerly in the employ of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McGee, of Washington Park, and Robert Stevens, of 94 Manning avenue, and employed by Wm. A. Garrigues, were united in marriage by Rev. Scott Walker, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church. The house was tastefully and appropriately decorated and was filled with friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 o'clock and was followed by hearty congratulations from the guests.

The bride was attended by Miss Lemy Coles as bridesmaid, while Oscar Carey was the best man. Both the bride and her attendant were gowned attractively and carried bouquets of flowers.

Following congratulations a wedding supper was served and the bride and groom left the city for a short honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside at 94 Manning avenue, where the groom has furnished a home that awaits their coming. A great many nice presents were received by them, especially from their employers, including handsome clocks, lamps, pictures, toilet sets, and many articles too numerous too mention. They are popular young people and have a host of acquaintances, and their start their married life with every good sign of success

BEHIND THE MASK.

Ancient and Modern Characters Impersonated at the Hall of the Twilight Social Club.

Every character of history and romance, from Mephisto down to Robin Rider, was to be seen at the masquerade ball of the Twilight Social Club, held in the Crescent Rink, Thanksgiving Eve.

It was the fifth masquerade that the Twilight Club has held and was considered a great success. There was nearly a thousand present during the evening. Fancy costumes were most numerous among the women that among the men. Some were quite elaborate and attracted much attention.

Two clowns, impersonated by athletically inclined young men, entertained the crowd with a series of gymnastic stunts during part of the evening. There was an exhibition bakewalk cleverly executed by Miss Blaggie and Michael Higgins. The grand march came shortly after 10 o'clock and was led by Miss Higgins and Michael Higgins.

The dancing continued until an early hour yesterday morning. The ball passed off without any trouble to mar the success of the affair.

USE OF CEREAL FOOD

ITS VALUE IS LARGELY UNDER ESTIMATED.

Should Form a Greater Part of the Daily Menu—Economy and Health Favor the Use of Less Meat and More Starch Food.

Economy and hygiene both demand a careful consideration of cereal food in these days of advanced housekeeping. The housewife of to-day aims not to fill the cavities and simply sustain life—but to furnish a diet favorable to health and the highest personal and physical development. Cereals such as whole or steel-cut oats and whole wheat contain all the elements necessary to life, and may sustain the vital forces indefinitely.

Much of the nutritious element of cereals is lost for want of slow cooking and mastication. Before we can digest starchy foods the grains must absorb a large amount of water during the process of cooking, and the starch contained therein must be thoroughly cooked.

The larger the grain the longer it will take to accomplish these results. Steel cut oats cannot be prepared for breakfast if not cooked the day before. In the burry preparation it is under cooked and its food value is destroyed. It is such a valuable food not only for children and healthy adults, but for those in the decline of life and bodily powers, that too much stress cannot be laid upon the thoroughness of cooking.

To cook oatmeal, put two heaping tablespoonfuls to each pint of water, with half a teaspoonful of salt. Cover and cook slowly for at least four hours. It is hardly possible to cook it too long.

The kettle should be kept closely covered and it must never be stirred. When it is well cooked put aside, and in the morning fill the under boiler with hot water and heat it.

The rolled or flaked rice, wheat, barley or oats, are scientifically cooked and burst by steam into flakes; therefore they require from 15 to 20 minutes cooking only, in about twice their bulk of water.

Rice is one of the easiest foods to digest. When well cooked and prepared in different dainty ways, there is no good reason why a healthy appetite would not relish it and be all the better for using it often. Often take the place of the potato, and may be cooked in water, stock or tomato pulp. Or it can be served with an onion or vegetable sauce poured over it.

When you are boiling a large piece of beef or mutton wash two cupfuls of rice; tie it in a cloth, allowing room to swell, and throw it in with the meat. Let it boil one hour, then take up and tighten the cloth if it seems too loose. Boil one hour longer. One hour before serving add a carrot, a turnip, a few stalks of celery and parsley, an onion and salt and pepper to the water. This flavors the meat and rice. Remove the rice, let drain a moment, and then roll out in a dish. It will be in the form of a large ball. Serve in slices with the meat, making a good sauce with some of the pot liquor. If any of the rice is left it can be sliced and browned in butter or warmed in gravy or rice.

In place of the soggy dumplings seen on so many tables: Select small apples, wash, peel and core them, keeping the peel and cores if not defective. To six apples allow one pint of water, and simmer gently until just done, but not broken. In the meanwhile cook half a cupful of rice in milk and water, slightly salted. While tender, line six small cupfuls with it, leaving a hollow in the center in which drop an apple, fill the core cavity with sugar and a dusting of cinnamon. Cover with more rice. Set the cups in a steamer over hot water; or in a baking pan filled with hot water, cover and steam until the apples are tender. This is sufficient for two one-quart molds, or lard pails with flat covers will answer the purpose. They are steamed at the same time in a large saucepan, having the water come up two thirds on the molds. Grease the molds well before adding the mixture, cover and do not let the water stop boiling for three hours. These small loaves will cook through better and keep longer than the larger loaves. They may be eaten hot or cold. They can be warmed by placing in a hot oven for 15 minutes before serving.

Corn meal cup puddings form one of the most attractive of simple desserts. Use one cupful of corn meal, one and four tablespoonfuls of sugar and one teaspoonful of salt. Mix well together and stir slowly into one pint of boiling milk. Cook 10 minutes; take from the fire; add one tablespoonful of butter, the yolks of two eggs beaten with half a pint of milk, half a teaspoonful of cinnamon and half a nutmeg, grated. Whip the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, fold in carefully. Half fill small buttered cups, stand in pan of hot water and bake in a quick oven 25 minutes. Turn out on a dish and pour over them a sauce. This may be a fruit sauce, a liquid pudding sauce or a hard sauce.

At present the cling is held; skirt is in the height of its popularity.

PASSING OF A "TERROR"

An Episode of the Kansas Border in Cowboy Days.

A COMMON AMUSEMENT.

When a Texan Demands an Apology It Must Come in Blood—Some Reckless Shooting—How a Rollicking Rough Rider Became Gloomy and Prematurely Old.

Among the cowboys who were familiarly known in all Kansas border towns twenty years ago, were Johnnie Foutz and Ben Franklin, riders on the "T 5" ranges, which stretched from the Big Blue to the Cimarron River. Of the two, Ben Franklin was the more prepossessing in appearance; Johnnie, more of the typical "terror." When his name was linked with the recklessness and hair-raising beverage sold for whisky in those border towns, Foutz was reasonably peaceful, though never sociable in his disposition, but when he was loaded with what was commonly termed "Old Hell's delight" he was one of the most dangerous of his class. It was his common form of amusement when in this condition to draw his revolver and empty it into the street, generally firing at one of the more sour unoffending citizens was in the road of the bullets or not. That he was possessed of a certain reckless, daredevil courage he never knew him doubted, and the close of his career demonstrated that the estimate was correct.

It was in the early part of March, 1884, that Franklin and a number of the cowboys of the "T 5" range went to Caldwell to take in the town. All the riders except Foutz were well known for that reason Johnnie Potts and others had to stay at camp. Franklin, who in cowboy circles was considered a most jovial fellow, and a good and jovial spirit, showed his sympathy for his unfortunate companions who did not have the opportunity to participate in the pleasures of painting the town red, by bringing back to camp a jug of the liquor dealt out at Caldwell saloons. That night for a few hours Foutz was ignored at the "T 5" ranch. Between the inspection of jack pots and the guzzling of liquor furnished by the liberal Franklin, the cowboys felt consoled for the disappointment in not having been able to run their horses through the town of Caldwell, howling like wolves, and pulling shooting holes through the surrounding buildings. The effect of the liquor did not appear to be particularly serious, except in the case of the "terror" Potts.

As the night wore on he drank more heavily, his face became bloated and became more sullen. It was nearly morning when he arose from the camp table and, staggering against the desk of the boss, Hall Jones, the ranch company, upset the ink and disarranged the papers. The book-keeper made some protest, which, with Johnnie Potts' mood, was sufficient to end by filling his six-shooter, he proceeded to kick over such furniture as there was about the camp house as a sort of preliminary to the general row. The other range riders were not so full of red liquor that they did not realize that it was time to interfere or soon many would be able to get out of range when Johnnie began to shoot. Franklin, who was quicker to think and act than the rest, realized with a swift movement caught the "terror" from behind and, throwing him to the floor, disarmed him. Johnnie raved like a madman in his efforts to get loose and the epithets known to the cowboy vernacular until he had worn himself out and lay quiet for a few minutes. The next morning Ben Franklin concluded unoffending citizen was in the road State of Texas he should demand an apology from the "terror" for the conduct of the previous night. With most members of the cowboy class this request would have been complied with at once, but Johnnie Foutz had the opinion that it was beneath the dignity of a real "terror" to apologize for anything and would not. Franklin was game to the core, although an unusually good natured member of the fraternity, felt that Johnnie Foutz insulted an apology it must come or blood.

The range riders stood close together; there was no consultation of "seconds" necessary, as in many places. There were three sharp, loud reports, the flashes and smoke of the "forty-fours" and the thing was over. Franklin was unhurt, but the left arm of a second and Johnnie's pistol arm was shattered before he could pull the trigger. The ball from his revolver which was aimed at the heart of Ben's gun plowed through Johnnie's vitals. Then a curious thing happened for the "terror." Franklin, who called Johnnie Potts, the "terror," Franklin, filled with remorse now that the shooting was over, wanted to hunt up a Twitchell doctor, and instead of surrender himself into the hands of the law, but the "terror," though writhing in his death agony, would not hear to it.

"What's the use o' doin' that, Ben?" gasped the dying "terror." "Yer got me, but I'll be damned if you get me if I'm dressed a little quicker. I don't do me no sort o' good for you to go and stand trial, sur you either."

The cowboys buried near the lonely camp house, and the foreman of the ranch took the trouble to see that the grave was not entirely neglected. Ben Franklin went to Texas and changed man. Instead of the rollicking rough rider he became gloomy, haggard and prematurely old, with the haunted look in his eyes which was the picture of a night's debauch, a fatal duel the lonesome, unmarked grave of Johnnie Potts, the "terror."

Tom Hayden, a negro, aged 24, was recently taken from the officers who had him under arrest for the murder of Andrew Woods, a young white man, and hanged to a tree, near Fayette, Ms. The killing took place just previous to the hanging, and was the result of a fight over a game of craps at a negro festival. Tom Hayden was arrested by the sheriff and was taken to Fayette, where a mob overpowered the officers. Hayden had a bad reputation.

TRUE VALUE OF FOOD

IT IS NOT WELL-KNOWN BY ALL HOUSEKEEPERS.

Price is No Guide to the Amount of Nourishment—One Half Our Incomes Spent Blindly—Useless Expense That Frittens Away Money.

The current number of What to Eat contains an article by Laura Clark Rockwood on the "Pecuniary Value of Food," which is worthy of consideration. Here the great advantage of the earnings of the wage-workers of the country is spent for food but, unfortunately, the money is spent more or less blindly, and the result is that the, the man or woman who does the buying determines the purchase largely by taste or by chance, as the case may be, without regard to the nutritive values.

And this mistake is through no special fault of theirs, but rather is there is a great lack of general knowledge upon the subject of the pecuniary economy and nutritive value of foods. The average income of people of this country is small, not over $500 per annum, and statistics show that of this amount over one-half is spent for food. In many instances it has been found that less money might have been expended with better results; that is, the diet of many families of the family might have been better nourished through a different selection of cheaper food. The most economical food is that which is best adapted to the requirements of the user, which will best nourish the body, which will "agree" with him, and which is the most costly.

It is all very well for those who can afford porterhouse steak to use it, but it is not necessary that those who can't afford it should be ignorant of how to make a palatable way to prepare the cheaper cuts. A butcher in New York said that he had often heard ladies say, as they passed a poor seamstress, who always bought tenderloin steaks at 60 cents a pound, that she might get just as much nourishment from the round steak for 20 cents, and this amount will make a meal for four people, there being, of course, considerable waste in the way of fat and trimmings.

This same 20 cents will buy four pounds of neck meat, in our household we cook it by thoroughly browning all sides of it in hot butter in which there is a slice of onion. This searing over the outside serves to retain the juices. Then boiling water enough to keep the meat from burning is added and the meat allowed to simmer for two hours. Salt and salt and pepper a short time before it is done. A half hour before dinner dumplings are made and added to the gravy around the meat. These are just as savory and nutritious a dish as one could wish. A second serving of the same meat appears as a roquefort pie. Any that is left from the first day is incorporated, and a third serving takes the form of hash, minced and warmed up with cream. Two pounds of the meat for three meals has been provided at a cost of only 30 cents.

Do not despise hash. It is a tempting dish when properly prepared. Chop the meat fine and put in the skillet with a little boiling water, butter, pepper and salt. Spread evenly over the bottom. Cover closely and let the potato steam through, but do not stir it into the meat until just before serving. Then add a little of the nutritive value of whole wheat flour is not appreciated as it should be, for the food value of a pound of flour is about equal to that of a pound of meat, while its cost is very much less.

It is safe to say that many people spend much more than is actually and necessary. In a recent article in one of the leading magazines a percentage of over threefourths of the income was given for food, and that when the income varied from $1,500 to $2,000. That ratio for a family of four was much too large. A family of four can live well on food in comparatively cheap, a family of four can live very well on $400 a year, judiciously expended. This sum, of course, does not include the cost of preparing the food; that is servants' wages.

Philippine Women.

The aristocratic Philippine matron and her daughters indulge in no great bodily exercise, if they can help it, as they consider driving or walking out of the Philippines, several at a time squatting on the floor around a single frame, picking at antipodean theirs and sometimes the indispensable delicate fibers. Sometimes they work for months to complete a single matting, or for hours to finish a fan. Native women are rarely employed by European residents as domestic servants except in the capacity of lady's maid or children's nurse, and even these positions are occupied by boys. They are very reliable, and the utter absence of sense of gratitude, so characteristic of the rest of Philippine race renders it an almost hopeless and very exasperating task to attempt to train them as servants.

A Class Loss.

Ella Ewing, the tomtress, has completed her residence near Goring, Ill., and will soon move into it. It is a most proportionate with Miss Ewing's needs. The doors are ten feet high, and the ceilings are proportionately low. Some of fabled giant's clothes. She is still growing and is now eight feet, four inches tall.

To Preserve Cheese.

Cheese can be kept from moulding by rubbing the cut part with butter. Cover with a white paper and keep in a dry place.

ORGANIZED A SOCIETY.

The Family for the Prevention of Cruelty to Microbes.

"I have a son who is taking a medical course at Tulane," remarked a member of the Board of Trade, "and he has been especially interested in the study of bacteriology. I am sorry to say it has proved a great affliction to the entire family. Four months ago, when he was but two months old, he held aside a few samples of his breakfast and remarked casually that he intended to put them under the glass'—meaning his new $125 microscope. Next day he told his mother that we'd have to have our milkman and grocer immediately. He said he lived next door to a miracle that any of us were alive and when he gave me the Latin name of the microbes he had discovered I was inclined to agree with him. The idea of absorbing that many substances at every mouthful was enough to scare anybody, so we set on the safe side we followed his suggestion. A few days afterward he saw some fish lying undivered at the gate, and immediately became incomplete. In less than two hours he rushed down and threw two fine pompano into the street. 'You've had a narrow escape, father.' he said. 'I made a gentle protest, for I am very fond of pompano, broiled. 'If you'd eaten that fish,' he said, 'you'd have been a dead man in a week.' After that we had no peace. He insisted on making what he called a 'superficial investigation' of our premises. Of course, he was looking for only three or four of the most deadly forms of bacteria and would reserve the moderately dangerous ones for his graduate thesis. The result was that he condemned nearly everything we had on hand. Then he wanted to sterilize the kitchen utensils. I objected to the use of sanitary rules and regulations for the guidance of the cook. Fortunately the cook can't read, but the rest of us were being rapidly reduced to starvation, and day before yesterday I headed a revolt and organized a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Microbes. Everybody in the house joined except my son, and I gave him solemn warning that if I ever caught him molesting the cook I'd put him in the museum I would cut him off with a microscope. Since then we have gorged ourselves with impunity and microbes and have had a thousand grand meals. My son looks on sadly and says he washes his hands of the consequences. I told him he could wash his hands as much as he pleased, but he'd have to wash any more skillets—especially with germicide fluids. I have hopes he will survive until Mardi Gras."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

OPIUM SMOKERS IN CHINA.

In Formosa One Person in Fifteen Uses the Drug.

To learn the actual number of opium smokers is impossible, but we know the amount of the foreign import of this drug, and the native consensus of opinion enables us approximately to tell us precisely the amount of opium required to pass the ya, or craving. It is for each person one ounce daily. An ounce or liang is equivalent to 576 days and a catty suffices for eighty days. Four catties are enough for 320 days and a picul is enough for a year with the user to the end of a year with comfort. A picul is enough then for only twenty-two persons and 50,000 piculs will suffice for the more than 1,100,000 persons. The law of compulsion in the smoker is just as imperious for native opium as for foreign, and the native is the best interest to know the extent of the evil.

In regard to Szechuen, that very populous and wealthy province, Mr. Schjoth, in the Chinese Review, also informs us that Szechuen produces 100,000 piculs of opium, and the cultivation of the poppy extends from Chungching, where he is commissioner, he is told that 20,000 piculs suffice for consumption in the province and that 65,000 piculs are exported. We may conclude that the smokers of that province cannot be less than 650,000. Since the population is 67,600,000, the number of smokers is one in a hundred. In Shensi one in 140 smokes, in Formosa one in fifteen is the proportion. Where in China the rich sunk to the lowest point of degradation and this is the largest proportion yet known of opium smokers in any country in the general population.—Shanghai Mercury.

How Much Sleep.

The statistics and diagrams of sleep in the Sunday Post-Dispatch are interesting as showing the influence of occupation upon habit. The American naval officer gets less sleep on the average than any other class. It is with him a matter of regulation, but he gets used to his scant allowance and seems to thrive under it. He sleeps six hours out of the twenty-four. The actor sleeps ten, while the army officer is allowed eight hours. There are two extreme opinions on the subject of sleep. One is that one does not sleep enough, and the other that they sleep too much. Probably the truth is that a tranquil and evenly balanced mind does not give the physical action of needless excitement needs less sleep than the fussy man who indulges in these nervous and unexpectations vices. It is possible to rest even when in the midst of work. But it requires much toil and self-control to achieve such a power of rest.

Municipal Novelty.

There is a decidedly humorous side which occasionally comes to light in connection with the administration of municipal corporations but the action of the enterprising city fathers of a small Hungarian town is certainly unique. The Town Council of the Town Council, consisting of eight members, formed themselves into a band of forgers and carried on a thriving business in the Town Hall manufacturing paper notes current in Austria, which they circulated pretty extensively. They actually had to provide with the necessary implements, was fixed up a cellar of the Town Hall, and they actually set policemen to guard the door while their work. This remarkable state of affairs existed for a couple of years, when the burlesque was detected, the police and gendarmerie surrounded the professional brigands upon being arrested.—Cin. Enquirer.

BOROUGH WANTS ALL OF ITS BACK TAXES.

Effort To Be Made To Collect $3,000 Now Outstanding.

COUNCIL TO TAKE ACTION.

FINANCIAL MATTERS OF THE BOROUGH ARE ATTENDED TO.

Regular December Meeting of the Council Was Held Friday—Collector Brown's Report Read—Several Petitions Received —Only $6.75 in Fines Collected in Police Court During March of November.

The regular December meeting of the Borough Council was held Friday evening with Mayor Smalley and Councilmen Valiant, Burtis and Clark present. The evening was spent in considering routine business chiefly.

The monthly report of Collector Brown to as follows: Taxes and interest, $2,736 03; Board of Health, $6.75; special school, $1,620 78; Watchung avenue, $17 50; rent from property sold for taxes, $36; rebate interest on state tax $82 55; license, J. A. Gracely, $213 75; Germania Fire Insurance Co., $35; Frank Rowley, clerk, $22 50; fines, $4; sale of stone, $632; dog tax, 10 cents. Balance, November 1st, $10,571 75; total receipts, $16,128 98; disbursements, $10,469 68; cash on hand, December 1st, $6,063 30; borough, $5,260 08; Watchung avenue, $803 22.

A petition was received from Charles Bock, who owns the property at 27-29 Somerset street, and being an exempt fireman he asked the Council to grant him an exemption of $500 on the property. He stated that he had been paying the taxes on the property for the years '96, '97 and '98, and asked to have the matter adjusted. It was referred to the proper committee. C. L. Nichols, of Washington avenue, asked the Council to locate a crosswalk in front of the property of the pupil's home, where it is assigned one is needed. Ward, Edmunds & Boughton, accountants, of New York, asked for an opportunity to bid on the work of examining the books of the borough. The petition was laid on the table.

Clerk Frank Rowley reported the receipt of $8.75 from Recorder Long from fines collected during November. Mr. Clark, chairman of the street committee, presented his report of the month's work, showing expenditure of $96 65 for labor; $79 92 for stone; $9 60 for putting a pipe in Washington avenue, and $87 for dressing Somerset street. The Plainfield Water Supply Company and Street Railway Company will stand the latter expense on Somerset street. There was expended in all $296 60, and there is now an unexpended balance of $415.20.

Mayor Smalley made inquires concerning the laying of pipes by the borough. He referred to the one laid on Washington avenue which cost the borough $6 65. He thought the Board of Health members should look some of the expense. The matter will be investigated and settled definitely.

At this time a number of resolutions were offered by Mr. Valiant. One provided for the payment of a $1,000 note due December 5th, and another for a $1,000 note due December 8th. Another provided for the drawing of a warrant for $15 to pay for repairs to a property held by the borough and located corner of Somerset street and Park place. He offered another one providing for the payment of $1,446 75 due to Engineer E. B. Allen, and another one to meet a $1,600 note due January 2d, 1900. Still another resolution by the same member approved the action of Collector Brown in deducting $61 and $20 from the rent of property owned by the borough, at 8 and 10 Craig place and 70 Manning avenue. This was due to the fact that the occupants had repaired the properties to the extent of the amount named. Another resolution by Mr. Valiant provided for the erasure of certain names from the tax list, as uncollectable. The last resolution by this member called for the drawing of a warrant for $625 to meet a fire department bond and pay the interest on the other fire department bonds.

The last matter considered was that regarding the 1898 delinquent tax list amounting to about $2 000. Mayor Smalley introduced this matter and stated that according to law the list would have to be advertised following years, and as nearly half of those delinquent would have to be stirred up he thought it about time to begin to stir. Notice was given that next month the Council will take action looking toward the collection of the several amounts. He Mayor realized that the matter of collecting taxes had been pushed rather lively, but he was not inclined to be too easy on those who by law must be were holding off until the last minute.

—Manning Bonyon, of West Front street, is making some noticeable improvements about his house.

—This is the best time to make your Christmas selections and Woodhull & Martin offer some good bargains.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Were May Go on the Bench.

According to persistent current report in Newark it is the intention of Governor Voorhees to appoint former Governor George T. Werts to the position of Circuit Court Judge of Essex county as successor to Judge Francis Child. The appointment, it is alleged, will be made to pay a debt of gratitude. During Mr. Werts' term as Governor many of his appointments are alleged to have been dire ly influenced by a powerful R-publican leader, and there was some grumbling on the part of the Democrats that their claims to political plums were not sufficiently recognized.

When Mr. Werts' term as Governor was up an effort was made to make him Vice Chancellor for a seven years' term, at a salary of $9,000 a year. When it was practically assured he would get the prize it was suddenly discovered that the law made it necessary that a Vice Chancellor should have been a counselor-at-law for at least ten years prior to his appointment. To get over this obstacle he was promptly made a counselor-at-law and a bill was introduced wiping out the requirements that he should have been such for ten years. This bill was fathered in the upper House by Senator, now Governor, Voorhees, but aroused such opposition that its advocates did not dare to push it, and the Vice Chancellorship went to the present occupant of the office. Therefore, up to date, Mr. Werts has never been repaid for the favors he did the R-publicans during his term as Governor.

So far as the old time "pony" express business is related to Plainfield, it became a thing of the past sometime ago when the sole survivor of the enterprise succumbed to the United States Express Company and lost his personal business identity by being put on the big corporation's employe list, where he now transacts business for the company the same as he formerly did for himself. But not withstanding this condition of affairs, there is contemporaneous interest in the decision of Justice Lippincott in the action of an Elizabethian against the Central Railroad, in which former undertook to enforce what he considered was his right to carry as many bundles on the passenger cars of that road as his arms could hold. Justice Lippincott decided that the passenger had no right to do this. It is the deathblow to the "pony" express business, but it is not at all likely, however, that the railroad company will enforce the law on the average passenger. It will always remain, however, as a guard for the railway company in dealing with pri vate expressmen.

United States Marshal Allen, of West Virginia, and ex-Consul J. Hampton Hoge, of Virginia, favor Attorney-General Griggs as the candidate of the R-publican party for Vice-President on the ticket with President McKinley. Colonel Allen said of Mr. Griggs: "His record is above criticism and without fault, and with him New Jersey would gladly transfer to her distinguished living the stainless mantle of her immortal dead."

A Washington correspondent says that Representative Daly, of New Jersey, is being urged by his Congressional friends for an important committee assignment. New members, as a rule, are not provided with important places on good committees, and if Mr. Daly succeeds in obtaining a good place he will owe it to the good impression he has made since reaching Washington.

A DANGEROUS BLAZE.

Started in the Residence of Charles M. Ulrich—Supposed to Have Started From Stove.

A dangerous little blaze started in a close on the second floor of the residence of Charles M. Ulrich, 318 East Fifth street, Monday. It is not known how the fire started but is supposed to have caught in some way from a stove. An alarm was sent in from box 23 and the department responded promptly. An extinguisher did the work.

The damage to the house and the contents of the closet will amount to $30, which is fully covered by insurance.

David Dunavan, a fireman, happened to be passing the house when the fire was discovered, and he went in and lent valuable aid till the fire department apparatus arrived.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new cereal drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their system. Grain-O is made of pure grain, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs only ¼ as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

Tuesday's Election.

It is evident that the policy of the present administration in municipal affairs is satisfactory to a majority of the people of Plainfield. Tuesday the Republicans won an overwhelming victory in a municipal election fought on the lines of the endorsement or reversement of the present administration. The Republicans came boldly to the front, declared that the existing policy was satisfactory and could not be improved upon and asked the votes of the community that it be continued. The Democrats denounced it as extravagant and asked for an opportunity to conduct the city's business on a different basis.

Had there been any widespread feeling against the present methods, it would have been very likely to make itself evident in a campaign conducted on such lines. The Republicans elected their entire ticket and carried the city by 880 majority. While there are always a certain number who will vote their party ticket under any circumstances, this substantial victory for the Republicans would indicate that the independent vote of the city supported the administration. Therefore the present administration can fairly claim that its course has the approval of the majority of the people.

As a result of the election, the Common Council next year will be entirely composed of Republicans. Under such circumstances, general harmony will be looked for and the Council will be free to carry out its present policy without objection from any of its own number.

This wholesome victory for the Republicans was something of a general surprise. The advent of the new Democratic organization was generally looked upon as an influence lending to close elections. The Democrats had the most representative men on their ticket that they have ever presented to the Plainfield public. The personal popularity of a number of these candidates won them many votes from Republicans. As a result the Democratic candidates ran well ahead of their ticket. It is, however, an interesting fact that the Democratic ticket despite the excellence of its candidates and the advantage of a regular organization, lacked several hundred of polling the same vote given to the Citizens' ticket last year. It cannot be denied that yesterday showed a lack of interest that was surprising after the campaign that both parties made previous to the election.

Elizabeth Electric Trolley Firm.

According to the press agent of the Riker Hine trolley syndicate, who has been working overtime in the Elizabeth Journal and a few other newspapers friendly to that corporation, Elizabeth is to be frozen out of all benefits to be derived by granting a franchise to the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company, because it is said the company has now taken steps to build their line into the country seat over a private right of way, thereby avoiding all the rake-off that would have been required in the use of a public street. The trolley press agent seems to be shedding salt-water tears over the fact that the syndicate is not going to be able to make Elizabeth a present of several thousand dollars, more or less, every once in a while.

But the sympathy is an unwarranted as the usual argument of the trolley company is fallacious. According to this record the shrinkage and swelling of trolley sentiment, the company has had this scheme of a private right of way up its sleeve for sometime. Such being the case, together with the alleged fact that the route is just as advantageous and much more cheaper than the use of one or more of Elizabeth's streets for the trolley tracks, why, in the name of common sense and good business judgement, has the syndicate been so anxious to secure the public franchise when, at the very least, it will cost them immeasurably more than the private right of way? If the company knew all along that they could get this private right of way why did they plan and wight for a public franchise that entailed great cost on them? The Riker-Hine trolley syndicate is a soulless corporation, and it is not given to benevolence when its interests are served just as well by a method that does not cost more than the minimum price.

Summed up in brief, the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company is putting up a great big bluff in Elizabeth, the same as it did in Plainfield a year ago, and if the city officials of the county seat hold tenaciously to the position they have taken the trolley company will come to their terms, private right of way and all other arguments to the contrary.

New Brunswick is steadily paying off its bonded debt. The Common Council has provided to redeem $1,200 of bonds falling due, and John M. Carpenter, Sinking Fund Commissioner, ordered to purchase the renewal bonds. During the past two years over $100,000 of the city's debt has been paid by renewal bonds which have been taken care of by the Sinking Fund. The city debt, which amounted to $1,700 000 in 1894, is now less than $1,000,000 net.

MYSTERIOUS FIND IN JERSEY WOODS.

Woman's Clothes Found with Chloroform Soaked Handkerchief

EVIDENCES OF STRUGGLE.

YOUNG MAN REPORTED TO CONSTABLE, WHO DELAYED ACTION.

Prosecutor English Finally Notified, and an Investigation Is Now Being Made—The Evidence Secured Points to Murder —Valise Also Found Which Had Contained Chloroform Bought in Newark.

Prosecutor English and County Detective Keron, of Elizabeth, Monday afternoon began investigating what they believe to be either a most peculiar attempt at suicide or a strange crime.

Francis Francisco, of Milburn, and John Adams, of Springfield, on Sunday afternoon went out in the woods looking for 'possums. About half a mile from the road leading to Summit they saw something white in a clump of underbrush. They made an investigation, and found several articles scattered about, which they took possession of and carried to Milburn. This is given as a list of what they have in their possession:

One pair gold rimmed glasses, one pair of black kid gloves, long small black veil, three hatpins, black topped, one handkerchief—a woman's, two spools of cotton, two vials, three cornucopias, made of newspaper, three pieces of cloth, apparently torn from a handkerchief, one newspaper dated December 1.

The vials were from Petty's drug store in Newark. The sponges were new and apparently had never been used, as they had fastened to them tags showing they had been purchased at the store of Hahne & Co., in Newark. The newspaper is said to be one issued in Newark.

The three funnels, or cornucopias, are said to have been made out of portions of the newspaper. Pieces of handkerchief were in the small ends of the funnels. The vials had contained chloroform.

The handkerchief is said to have been still wet with the same liquid when found, and the condition of the three pieces in the funnels was the same, still damp from the chloroform.

Francisco and Adams gathered up the articles and hurried back to Springfield, where they told their story to Constable Howard. They wanted Howard to take charge of the things and investigate; Howard, according to Detective Keron and Prosecutor English, refused to take possession of the articles, and told the finders to retain them and come around Tuesday morning and tell their story to Justice Huff, as the Justice was away and would not return until that time. The articles were taken away by Francisco and Adams.

News of the find became public yesterday afternoon, and Constable Howard came to Elizabeth. It was then too late for Detective Keron to go to Springfield.

Howard says the men told him there were signs of a struggle about the place, but they did not investigate to any great extent, taking what was lying in view and not penetrating the bushes.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At a regular meeting of the board of directors of the First National Bank, of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on the morning of December 5th, 1899, it was received as follows:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father in his infinite wisdom and all-wise providence to remove from our midst by death our esteemed friend and former president and honored co-director, Charles Potter, who for sixteen years past has earnestly and faithfully served this bank. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the board of directors of this bank hereby express their high appreciation of his manly Christian character, his sterling integrity and his faithfulness to duty.

Resolved, That in his death we real se that this bank has lost an energetic and faithful officer, and this community one of its most valued and devoted citizens, whose place in the cliff rest walks of life it will be difficult to fill.

Be it further resolved, That we tender to his bereaved companion and family our heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of their great sorrow.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to his widow, and also engrossed on the minute book of this board, and also published in the local papers.

Attest: J. W. Johnson, president.

William M. Stillman, clerk.

A Future Foot ball Player.

In the illustrated magazine accompanying the Mail and Express of last Saturday there appeared an excellent picture of the son of J. Hervey Duncan, of LaGrande avenue. The young man was in football costume and the picture was titled "A Future Football Player." The picture was taken by the young man's father.

Change of Police Beats.

Patrolman Saunders and Patrolman Watson are now doing duty in the business section of the city. Brandsman Fredericksen has returned to night duty and Brandsman Flynn is doing duty in the day time.

To Cure Constipation Forever.

Take Cascarets Candy Cathartic. 10c or 25c. If C. C. C. fail to cure, druggists refund money.

HOPE CHAPEL'S NEW HOME.

It Is the Intention of the Members to Open the New Building on the Last Sunday in December.

It is now the intention of the worshippers of Hope Chapel to take possession of their new building the last Sunday in this month, December 31st, when it is expected that everything will be completed. Arrangements are about complete for the furnishing of the new building. J. Doull Miller's Sunday-school class will provide for the pulpit and platform furnishings, while the Ladies' Aid Society will furnish the carpet for the new rooms. The handsome stained-glass memorial window that is directly back of the pulpit platform was furnished by the Sunday-school class taught by Ilas Yerkes. The pews for the chapel are expected to arrive very soon, and other furniture needed will also be here soon. As stated, it is expected to take possession on the last Sunday in the month, at which time the building will be appropriately decorated. Extensive plans are being formed for the dedication, and a good time is hoped for when the members worship for the first time in their handsome new church home.

Chorus Choir Being Organized.

A chorus choir is being formed to assist at the Bible Conference Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, December 11 18, in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. Any persons desiring to join the choir may do so by applying, by letter, to L. H. Biglow, Jr., 921 Central avenue, before Friday, December 8, if possible, naming the part they will sing. They will be assigned to one or more evenings, by mail.

Prize Winners at Fair.

The fair held in Washington Hall last week under the auspices of Mat tha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, closed Saturday evening after a very successful week. The prize and chance contests were closed at the same time and were won as follows: Toilet set, Mrs. Daniel Page; rocking chair, J. J. Kenney; a lamp, Mrs. William Thompson; a quilt, Mrs. Anderson.

Costello Taken to Somerville.

George Costello, who fought under the name of "Kid" Thomas, in Somerville recently, was taken to Somerville from New York City Monday, by Detective George D. Totten, and landed in the county jail. Costello was arrested a week ago, and has since remained in the Tombs waiting extradition. He will be arraigned before Judge Bartine today.

Revival Meetings Successful.

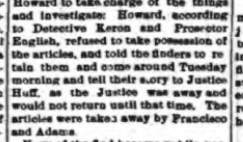
At Grace M. E. church Sunday morning there was great cause for rejoicing over the accession to the membership as a result of protracted meetings held recently. There were about fifteen persons received, and there are still a number who could not be present who will be received later. The regular communion service was also held at this service.

Electricity in the Mine.

The many friends of Former Freeholder George W. F. Randolph, of West Front street, will be glad to learn that an electric apparatus recently purchased by Mrs. Randolph, is having a very beneficial effect on Mr. Randolph's arm and side and his general health has improved under the treatment.

Small Boy Fell Innocently.

Harry, the two-year old son of George Suydam, of Stebbins place, fell downstairs last Saturday evening and received several contused wounds of the head. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan was called and he fixed the little fellow all right. No serious results are feared.



Brought by Mrs. Treay.

The Streuli property that was put up at an auction sale last week by F. G. Wolbert, of Jersey City, auctioneer for the estate, was sold to Mrs. Evarts Treay, of this city. The price is not known. The piece will continue to be used for residence.

Short One of Ha Fingers.

Andrew Bergman, of Monroe avenue, an employe of the Pond Tool Machine Company, had one of his fingers nearly crushed by a piece of iron striking it while at work Saturday. He went to the hospital to have it dressed.

To Take a Long Time.

The Mayor and borough Council believe that it will take several months to prepare for the collection of the 1899 delinquent taxes, hence the fact that they are starting in early for the work.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

400 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.

CONTENTS:

Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.

Sent free by mail, postpaid. Humphreys' Homeopathic Medicine Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

If you haven't a regular, healthy movement of the bowels every day, you are sick, or will be. Keep your bowels right with CASCARETS. Don't take pills, salts or purgatives that force the bowels right and leave them worse than before. CASCARETS make every organ right. They're the most perfect way of keeping the bowels clean and clean it to take.

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets TRADE MARK REGISTERED REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c., 25c., 50c. per box. Sold by druggists everywhere. Genuine tablet stamped CCC. Write for free sample and booklet. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York. 324

KEEP YOUR BLOOD CLEAN

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE

-:- In 1900 -:-

NOVELTY IN LITERARY AND ART FEATURES

PRINTING IN COLOR.

THE BEST ILLUSTRATIONS, with Cole's Engravings and Castaigne's Drawings.

A New and Superbly Illustrated

LIFE OF CROMWELL

By the Right Hon. JOHN MORLEY, M. P.

THE conductors of THE CENTURY take especial pleasure in announcing this as the leading historical serial of the magazine in 1900. No man is more competent than John Morley to write the biography of Oliver Cromwell in the spirit of the end of the nineteenth century.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS

will be remarkable. Besides original drawings, there will be valuable unpublished portraits lent by Her Majesty the Queen, and by the owners of the greatest Cromwell collections. Other features include:

Ernest Seton-Thompson's

"Biography of a Grizzly," delightfully illustrated by the author—the longest and most important literary work of the author of "Wild Animals I have Known."

Paris, Illustrated by Castaigne.

A series of papers for the Exposition year, by Richard Whiteing, author of "No. 5 John Street," splendidly illustrated with more than 40 drawings by Castaigne, the Parisian artist, including views of the Paris Exposition.

London. Illustrated by Phil May.

A series of papers on the East End of London by Sir Walter Besant, with pictures by Phil May and other artists.

Sailing Alone Around the World.

The record of a voyage of 46,000 miles undertaken single-handed and alone in a 45-foot boat. A thrilling narrative by the hero of the sea.

The Author of "Hugh Wynne."

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, will furnish a short story of unusual interest for THE CENTURY. "The Autobiography of a Quack," and there will be short stories by all the leading writers.

A Chapter from Mark Twain's Abandoned Autobiography.

Literary Reminiscences.

Familiar accounts of Tennyson, Browning, Lowell, Emerson, Bryant, Whittier and Holmes.

Important Papers,

By Governor Theodore Roosevelt, President Seth Low, Hon. Thomas B. Reed, Hon. Harry Alldrich, Woodrow Wilson, John Burroughs, and others.

American Secret History.

A series of papers of commanding interest.

The Art Work of he Century.

It is everywhere conceded that THE CENTURY has led the world in art. Timothy Cole's unique and beautiful wood blocks will continue to be a feature, with the work of many other engravers who have made the American school famous. The fine half-tone plates—re-engraved by wood engravers—for which THE CENTURY is distinguished, will appear with new methods of printing and finishing.

Begin new subscriptions with November. Price $4.00 a year. Subscribe through dealers or remit to the publishers.

THE CENTURY CO., UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK.

The best of all Children's Magazines.—London Spectator.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR YOUNG FOLKS.

A Monthly Magazine Edited by MARY MAPES DODGE.

For 1900 A Splendid Program of Art, Literature and Fun

TWO LONG STORIES, by Ruth McEnery Stuart, Mary Hazen Wade, Frances H. Gamer and other writers. Both complete in the volume.

A SERIAL STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "MASTER SKYLARK," a tale of Old New York.

A SERIAL STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "HALF A HERO AND HER TROUBLES," a capital story for girls.

A SERIAL STORY OF ATHLETICS.

A SERIAL STORY FOR LITTLE CHILDREN BY LAURA E. RICHARDS.

AN IMPORTANT HISTORICAL SERIAL of Colonial Life in America, by Elbridge S. Brooks, author of "The Story of the Chevalier," "The American Revolution," etc.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, Governor of New York and Colonel of the "Rough Riders," promises to contribute a paper on "What Boys Can Do for the Country."

IAN MACLAREN, JOHN BURROUGHS, and many other well-known writers will contribute.

NATURE AND SCIENCE FOR YOUNG FOLKS will be brought by a noted department.

ST. NICHOLAS LEAGUE, Illustrated Monthly Competitions. Send for instruction leaflet.

FUN AND FROLIC, both in rhyme, stories, pictures and jokes, will fill many pages, a striking characteristic of St. Nicholas.

Everything Illustrated.

A Free Sample Copy on Request.

November begins the new volume. Price $3.00. All dealers and agents take subscriptions, or subscriptions may be made direct to the publishers.

THE CENTURY CO., Union Square, New York.

CLEARING SALE OF PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of of good second-hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7	Octave Square	$ 40
7	" "	70
7	" Upright	130
7	" "	165
7	" Hallet & Davis	190
7	" "	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20. $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS,

$300 and up, and 2 years' time if you want it. Other makes—Cabinet Grands, all improvements. Rare—If per cent discount.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,

94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

1831 Seventieth Year. 1900

The Country Gentleman.

The ONLY Agricultural NEWSpaper, AND ADMITTEDLY THE Leading Agricultural Journal of the World.

Every department written by specialists, the highest authorities in their re pective lines.

No other paper pretends to compete with it in quality, and none approaches it in price.

Gives the agricultural NEWS with a degree of fulness and completeness not even attempted elsewhere.

Best Reviews of the Crops,
Best Market Reports,
Best Accounts of Institutes and Fairs,
Best Everything

Indispensable To All Country Residents

WHO WISH TO

KEEP UP WITH THE TIMES.

Single Subscriptions, $2;
Two Subscriptions, $3 50;
Four Subscriptions, $6.

Special Inducements to Raisers of Larger Clubs.

Write for particulars on this point of Club Agents Wanted Everywhere.

Four Months Trial Trip 50 cents.

SPECIMEN COPIES

will be mailed free on request. It will pay anybody interested in any way in country life to send for them. Address the publishers:

LUTHER TUCKER & SON,
10 19 8 ALBANY, N. Y.

P. P. VanArsdale, PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 160, or left at Willett's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 W. Front street, corner Elm street. 9jly2

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 1, Plainfield, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. R. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law,

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

Children Teething

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa.

Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POST OFFICE.

NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7.00, 8.45, 11.30 a. m.; 2.00, 5.00, 8.30 p. m. Close—7.00 and 8.45 a. m.; 12.45, 5.00 and 7.15 p. m.

SOMERVILLE and RARITAN.

Arrive—8.45 a. m.; 5.00 and 8.30 p. m. Close—7.30 a. m.; 12.45 and 7.15 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7.00, 8.45, 11.30 a. m.; 2.00 and 8.30 p. m. Close—7.00 and 8.45 a. m.; 12.45, 5.00 and 7.15 p. m.

Arrive—7.00, 8.45, 11.30 a. m.; 2.00 and 8.30 p. m. Close—8.00 and 7.15 p. m.

WARREN VILLE.

Arrive—12.30 p. m. Close—8.30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9.00 to 10.00 a. m. Mail closes at 8.30 p. m.

S. R. SHEP, P.M.

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Anthracite Coal Used Exclusively. Insuring Comfortable and Cleanly Cars.

Stations, in New York, foot of Liberty, and South Ferry Whitehall streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT NOV. 19th, 1899

For New York 2.05, 3.45, 4.45, 5.45, 6.45, 7.30, 7.35, 7.50, 8.45, 9.45, 10.45, 11.45 a. m., 12.45, 1.45, 2.45, 3.45, 4.45, 5.45, 6.45, 7.45, 8.45, 9.45, 10.45, 11.45 p. m. Sunday 2.05, 3.45, 4.45, 5.45, 6.45, 7.45, 8.45, 9.45, 10.45, 11.45 p. m.

For Newark 2.05, 3.45, 4.45, 5.45, 6.45, 7.30, 7.45, 8.45, 9.45, 10.45, 11.45 a. m., 12.45, 1.45, 2.45, 3.45, 4.45, 5.45, 6.45, 7.45, 8.45, 9.45, 10.45, 11.45 p. m. Sunday 2.05, 3.45, 4.45, 5.45, 6.45, 7.45, 8.45, 9.45, 10.45, 11.45 p. m.

For Somerville at 8.15, 7.35, 9.05, 9.45, 10.45, 11.45, 11.30 a. m.; 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 p. m. Sunday at 9.45, 10.45, 11.45 a. m.; 12.05, 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05, 12.05 p. m.

For Bound Brook at 9.05 a. m.; 5.27 p. m.

WESTWARD CONNECTIONS.

5.38 a. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Upper Lehigh, Harrisburg, Pittsburg and Buffalo.

7.12 a. m.—For stations to High Bridge, connecting at Junction for stations on High Bridge Branch except Chester.

7.38 a. m.—For Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R. Easton, Allentown and Mauch Chunk.

9.04 a. m.—For stations on High Bridge Branch except Chester, Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg, Mauch Chunk, Shenandoah, Pottsville and Upper Lehigh, connecting at Junction.

1.03 p. m.—Way for Easton, connecting at Junction for stations on D. L. & W. R. R.

2.39 p. m.—For Flemington, Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tobyhanna, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Williamsport, Watsontown and Sunbury.

3.27 p. m.—For Flemington and Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Williamsport, Watsontown and Sunbury.

5.05 p. m.—For Flemington and High Bridge.

5.05 p. m. Sundays—For German Valley, Flanders, Hackettstown, Delaware, Water Gap, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Williamsport, Watsontown and Harrisburg.

5.39 p. m. Sundays—For Flemington.

6.30 p. m.—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Harrisburg, Pittsburg and Buffalo.

8.23 p. m.—For Flemington.

8.36 p. m.—For Easton and at Junction for D. L. & W. R. R.

9.23 p. m.—For Easton.

10.00 p. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

9.05 a. m. Sundays—For Flemington and Junction.

5.05 p. m. Sundays—For German Valley, Flanders, Hackettstown, Delaware, Water Gap, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Williamsport, Watsontown and Harrisburg.

5.39 p. m. Sundays—For Flemington.

6.30 p. m. Sundays—For Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Harrisburg, Pittsburg and Buffalo.

EASTWARD CONNECTIONS.

From LONG BRANCH, OCEAN GROVE, ETC.

Leave Plainfield at 2.37, 8.35, 10.37 a. m.; 4.17, 6.21 p. m.; Sundays, except Ocean Grove, 4.17, 6.21 p. m.

For Perth Amboy, 2.37, 8.35, 10.37 a. m., 2.05, 4.17, 6.21, 8.06 p. m. Sundays, 4.17, 6.21, 8.06, 11.59 p. m. Sundays 8.35, a. m.; 2.39 p. m.

For Rahway, 2.37, 8.35, 10.37 a. m., 2.05, 4.17, 6.21, 8.06 p. m. Sundays, 4.17, 6.21, 8.06, 11.59 p. m. Sundays 8.35, a. m.; 2.39 p. m.

For Freehold, 2.37, 8.35, 10.37 a. m., 4.17, 6.21 p. m.

For Lakewood, Toms River and Barnegat, 2.37, 9.16 a. m.; 4.17, 6.21 p. m. Sundays 9.16 a. m.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

Leave Plainfield for Philadelphia, 2.37, 8.35, 10.37 a. m., 2.05, 4.17, 6.21, 8.06, 11.59 p. m. Sundays 8.35, a. m.; 2.39 p. m.; 11 night, Sundays, 2.37, 8.35, 10.37 a. m., 2.05, 4.17, 6.21, 8.06, 11.59 p. m. Sundays 8.35, a. m.; 2.39 p. m.; 11 night.

For Trenton, 2.37, 7.28, 8.35, 9.06 a. m., 2.05, 2.16, 4.14, 6.25, 8.06, 10.35 p. m.; 12.30 a. m.; 11 night, Sundays, 2.37, 8.35, 9.06, 10.35 a. m., 2.39, 6.25, 8.06, 10.35 p. m.; 12.30 a. m.; 11 night.

For Bristol, 2.37, 8.35, 10.37 a. m., 2.05, 4.17, 6.21, 8.06 p. m. Sundays 8.35, a. m.; 2.39 p. m.

For Buffalo, Chicago and all points West, week-days at 9.54 a. m.; 7.01, 8.06 p. m. Sundays at 7.01, 8.06 p. m.

Through tickets to all points at lowest rates may be had on application to agents. Baggage checked through to destination.

J. H. OLHAUSEN,
General Superintendent.
H. P. BALDWIN,
General Passenger Agent.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect Nov. 19, 1899.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N.J.

Time given for Plainfield is leaving time of stage from City Ticket Office, No. 97 Front Street, where direct connection with trains at South Plainfield.

Leave Plainfield 7.30 a. m.

Leave South Plainfield 9.05 a. m.

Daily express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

Leave Plainfield 12.30 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 12.51 p. m.

Daily except Sunday. Black Diamond Express for Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

Leave Plainfield 6.59 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 7.22 p. m.

Daily, Sleeping Coach for Niagara Falls, Chicago and Principal intermediate stations.

Leave Plainfield 8.30 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 8.56 p. m.

Daily, Excursion Express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Chicago.

Leave Plainfield 8.35 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 9.00 p. m.

Daily, Night Express for Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Wilkesbarre, Geneva, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Chicago.

The stops will also meet Eastbound trains 5, 8, 14, 6 and 10.

For rates of local trains see pocket time-tables. Telephone No. 115-B.

ROLLIN H. WILBUR,
General Superintendent.
CHAS. S. LEE,
General Passenger Agent.
26 Cortlandt St., New York.
FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent,
258 West Front St., Plainfield, N. J.

Woolston & Buckle, PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

Piso's Cure

The first medicine. For Coughs and Colds. For children or grown people. For whooping cough and croup. It is sighing and crying. Sold by druggists everywhere. Piso's Remedy Relieves Sore Throat. Piso's Remedy Cures Consumption. Just what you've been looking for. Piso's Remedy is not bad to take. Piso's Remedy is good. Piso's Remedy Cures. Piso's Remedy is the best. Piso's Remedy is sold by druggists. Piso's Remedy is sold for 25 cents. Piso's Remedy is sold by druggists everywhere. Piso's Remedy is sold by druggists

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ONE EYE GONE BLIND.

The Affection of Stephen A. Brown Causes Him to Lose His Job on the Central.

Dunellen, Dec. 4.—The many friends of Stephen A. Brown, of this place, will sympathize with him in his recent affliction, the loss of the sight of one eye. This affection of the eye has been bothering him for about a year, but it was hoped that with the best of treatment the sight could be saved. It could not, however, and he has been obliged to give up his post as an engineer on the Jersey Central. Mr. Brown was one of the most careful engineers on the road and he secured his position after many years of hard and faithful work. No doubt the company will appreciate his services sufficiently to give him a position in some other department that he can attend to.

HAD A FAMOUS NAME.

But He Dishonored It by Associating With Bad Company and Getting Arrested.

City Judge Runyon enjoyed the novelty of passing sentence on George Washington Monday a. m. George went to Stotch Plains Sunday and there fell in with Firman Sharp and a friend. There were lady friends too, so he says. There was also something to drink. When they reached home late last night the men quarrelled over the question of payment for the drinks. Washington was knocked down and rolled in the gutter.

He complained to Patrolman Totten and Totten arrested both Washington and Sharp. This morning the two young colored men came before the the judge and were fined $2 each.

UNION SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEETING.

Teachers to Meet in the Seventh-Day Baptist Church Next Tuesday Evening.

G. E. Hall, a member of the State executive committee, and others have arranged for a union meeting of Sunday-school teachers and all interested workers in the Bible school cause to be held in the Seventh Day Baptist church Tuesday evening, Dec. 12th, at 8 o'clock. A leading feature of the meeting will be an address by the able State Sunday-school secretary, Rev. E. M. Ferguson, of Trenton, from whom his hearers may expect added knowledge and increased enthusiasm. Rev. Mr. Burdick, of Elizabeth, president of the county convention, is also to speak. It is regretted that this date conflicts with one of the Bible studies, under Mr. Shelton, at the Y. M. C. A., but speakers had been engaged and other preparations were far advanced, so that any change in date seemed impracticable. Persons interested in the question of organizing a Plainfield Bible School Union are requested to come with some thoughts upon that subject.

Died at Ripe Old Age.

The death of Mrs. Caspar Volz, aged 89 years, occurred at her home in Newark Tuesday, November 28th. In spite of her advanced age she was never ill a day and always enjoyed the best of health. Her death was due to a sudden breaking down of the general system. She was buried on the Thursday following her death, at Newark. She leaves six daughters and two sons. One of the latter is Louis Volz, of Johnston's Drive. The deceased was quite well known in this vicinity where she visited frequently.

Mr. French Buys Out His Partner.

The well known firm of French & Thiers, real estate and insurance, has been dissolved by mutual consent, Wm. J. R. Thiers retiring. The business will be conducted at the same location on North avenue by Elston M. French, who will be pleased to continue to cater to the wants of the patrons of the old firm, which has built up a splendid business through the efforts of two gentlemen of integrity and enterprise. Mr. Thiers has not yet decided what business he will engage in.

Frightened Horse's Wild Race.

A horse belonging to F. A. Weber, the coal dealer, who was hitched to a two-seated wagon and left standing in front of Mr. Weber's home at 124 Liberty street, became frightened about 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning and ran away. The animal dashed over Liberty to West Front street and to Madison avenue where it was caught by two young men. In going over Liberty street the wagon came in contact with a tree and two wheels were wrecked.

GRAIN-O! GRAIN-O!
Remember that name when you want a delicious, sparkling, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers at 15 cts. per pkg. Grain-O has that rich seal brown of Mocha or Java coffee, but it is made from pure grain, it aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder and the children as well as the adults can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee. 15 and 25c per package. Ask your grocer for Grain-O.

DEATH OF MRS. MACDONALD

Mother of J. Fred MacDonald Passed Away After a Long Illness at Her Home on Front Street.

After an illness extending over a period of several months, Mrs. Sarah A. MacDonald died about 8 o'clock Saturday evening at her home, corner of Watchung avenue and East Front street, aged 67 years.

Mrs. MacDonald had been an invalid for a long time, but her condition did not become so serious as to compel her to take to her bed until about nine weeks ago, where she had lingered a great sufferer, her disease being catarrh of the bowels. Saturday morning Mrs. MacDonald's condition became noticeably alarming to the family. It was apparent that she could not live but a few hours. Toward afternoon she became weaker and was conscious that the end was near. At 8 o'clock she passed away. J. Fred MacDonald, her son, did not reach the house in time to be with his mother at the time of her death.

The deceased was the daughter of J. J. Gardner and the widow of Rudolphus MacDonald, who died about twelve years ago. She was born in New York city in 1832 and in 1856 was married to Mr. MacDonald, who at that time was a prosperous merchant and established the grocery business which his son is now conducting. Their only child was J. Fred MacDonald, who survives his mother and who succeeded to his father's business at the time of his death.

Soon after coming to Plainfield Mrs. MacDonald joined the Second Presbyterian church, now known as the Crescent Avenue church. For many years she was identified in church work and took an active interest in the Sunday-school, being a teacher for a number of years.

Of late years, however, she has been a regular attendant at Trinity Reformed church, from the fact that she found it more convenient to do so owing to ill health.

The funeral services were held from the house Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. W. H. Richards, D. D., and Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph.D., officiated.

Solid Train to Northern Michigan.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway is now running solid trains of palace sleeping cars, dining cars (serving meals a la carte) and first class day coaches, through from Chicago to Calumet, Houghton, Hancock and other points in the Copper Country without change of cars, with direct connection for Marquette, Negaunee, Ishpeming, etc., and passengers from the East, South and Southwest will find this a most desirable route.

All coupon ticket agents sell tickets via the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway. 12 6 3 o 12 7 2

Funeral of Martin Roth.

The funeral of Martin Roth was held Monday at 8:30 o'clock from the house and 9 o'clock from St. Mary's church. Rev. Father Westman officiated. The T. A. B. Association attended in a body and the following were pallbearers: Peter Flynn, Sr., J. Motley, M. McCarthy, J. Hickey, M. Welsh and A. McGuigan. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Another Central Official to Reside Here.

The residents of Fairview avenue, in the borough, are congratulating themselves over the fact that they have gained a very pleasant neighbor in Clarence L. Hollis, the recently appointed station master of the Jersey Central Railroad at Jersey City. Mr. Hollis has rented a house on that avenue and he and his family are now occupying it.

Scandinavian Society Officers.

At the monthly meeting of the Scandinavian Society Thule held Saturday the following officers were elected: President, Thomas Caleen; vice-president, David Peterson, secretary, Gustav Peterson; assistant secretary, Miss Matilda Gustavson; treasurer, Gust. N. Rydell; auditors, Andrew Krog and Chas. Dahlin.

Beauty is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic the ideal blood purifier, are beautifying and stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

Graduating Accordions.

At the communion services in Trinity Reformed church Sunday morning, nine persons were received into membership of that church, seven by letter and two by confession.

W. J. Kilfoil, of Princeton, is visiting Plainfield friends for a few days.

Charles E. Faber, of Rockview avenue, is spending several days in Philadelphia on business.

MR POTTER'S FUNERAL.

HELD TUESDAY AFTERNOON FROM HIS LATE HOME.

The House Thronged With Friends Who Desired to Pay a Final Tribute—Services in Charge of Rev. A. E. Main.

The funeral services of the late Charles Potter, Jr., were held Tuesday afternoon from the home, West Seventh street, when a large number of relatives and friends assembled to pay their last tribute to one of Plainfield's most prominent and best known citizens, who was respected and loved by both high and low. Rev. Dr. A. E. Main, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, where the deceased was a member and attendant, was in charge of the services and introduced those who took part.

After the singing of "Thy Will be Done," by a quartette composed of Mrs. Frank Dawson, Miss Nancy Randolph, R. E. Runyon, appropriate Scripture selections were read by Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, who was a friend and neighbor of Mr. Potter for many years. Then followed a fervent prayer by President Theodore L. Gardner, of Salem College, West Virginia, who was a personal acquaintance of the deceased. After another selection by the quartette, "There is a Wideness in God's Mercy," Rev. Dr. Main made a few remarks. He spoke in part as follows: "Early last Sabbath morning this message was received by me: 'Dear Pastor, Father Potter has gone to spend Sabbath in Heaven. He passed away at 7:15 this morning.' I cannot but speak of the excellence of one whom I loved. He never pretended to be faultless, but as a Christian and citizen his deeds are worthy of historical record.

"In the first place Mr. Potter was my friend, and for years he has been one of the truest and best of friends. During the three years of my pastorate his words have been those of encouragement, and he has been kind and regular in his attendance at all the church services, thus proving himself to be one best and helpful members. He loved and was loyal to his church, and a generous supporter with his means. The church was the object of his love and he prayed for her growth and success.

"He was the most friendly of men, and always manifested his kindness of heart. A young machinist once called on him for advice, and in speaking afterward about his call remarked that if he had been Mr. Potter's own son he could not have been treated more kindly. He was one of the most hospitable of men, and there was always a warmth and cordiality that was more beautiful than his surroundings. He was a liberal man and in many ways his means was drawn upon to assist in objects that were worthy. One man remarked one time 'I am willing that such men as Mr. Potter should be rich,' so generously did all feel his abundance.

"There are many enterprises in this city and elsewhere that speak of him, and among the last institutions that he spoke of as needy was Muhlenberg Hospital. He was a trained, cultured and educated laboring man, and above all he was a Christian. He remarked not long ago 'I do not fear to die, for I settled the question long ago when I first met God.' His precious testimonies in the prayer meeting and his good life may well deserve the name of Christian. His earthly life of changes has been followed by a more glorious life beyond."

Dr. Main's address was followed with one by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, one time pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, and a long time personal friend of Mr. Potter. In part he talked as follows:

"There is no life that lives for the best that does not live for something besides self. Early in life our friend learned to live for others. He was not a denominational man in the narrow sense of the word, but was broad and liberal. He represented Christian manhood everywhere. Striking with his hand and heart for all that was good as Plainfield knows so well.

He was a strong missionary supporter in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and the various fields of labor shared in his generosity. At the end of the Civil War, West Virginia, among other border states suffered in sacrificing the interests of the denominational church and there was a separation between the south and north. At that time Messrs. Potter & Hubbard, of their own accord, sent missionaries into West Virginia for two years, and the result is that a strong tie has been cemented and Salem College stands today as a living testimonial of that work. During my pastorate Mr. Potter sent two missionaries south. In early life he was a teacher and he knew the value of education. At Alfred University he founded the "Charles Potter Chair of History and Political Science," that has made his name immortal.

At this time Dr. Lewis read a letter of condolence from the trustees of Alfred University to the bereaved family and friends, after which he continued to speak of Mr. Potter regarding his interest and membership in various societies. He was trustee and president of the Seventh-Day Baptist Memorial Fund, and he was the president of the publishing interests of the denomination. The speaker then referred touchingly to a picture before him of four men, President Allen, of Alfred University; George H. Babcock, Charles Potter and himself. This four men toured through Europe in 1884, and of the four he is the only one left, and spoke feelingly of the memories of that journey in closing his remarks.

After prayer was offered by B. C. Davis, president of Alfred University, the quartette sang a favorite hymn of the deceased, "The Bright Forever-more." The benediction was then pronounced by Dr. Main, after which an opportunity was given those present to take a last look at the face of the departed.

The remains laid in a handsome black casket in the front parlor, and were completely hidden by a profusion of flowers in the form of wreaths and roses, while there was a bank of flowers directly back of the casket, and at each end was placed broken columns of flowers.

After the services the interment took place in Hillside Cemetery.

In one of the rooms the chair usually occupied by Mr. Potter was draped in smilax and cut flowers, and a photograph of the absent one stood on a table at its side. The music rendered by the quartette was under the direction of Arthur L. Titsworth at the organ.

PUBLIC SCHOOL TERMS.

DATES ARRANGED BY BOARD OF EDUCATION MONDAY NIGHT.

Business That the Public Can Know About Was Transacted in Ten Minutes, After Which Was Executive Session.

All the members of the Board of Education were present at Monday's regular monthly meeting. The only business transacted of which the public can be made acquainted through the medium of the press, owing to the fact that the board went into executive session after ten minutes' public meeting, is the following:

A large number of bills were audited and ordered paid.

The report of the collector of taxes showed that school money to amount with interest of $36,121.71 had been collected and deposited to the credit of the Board in the First National and City Bank.

At the suggestion of Superintendent Maxson the board designated the various terms of school for next year as follows:

The winter term to begin on Tuesday, January 21, and extend to Friday, March 23—12 weeks.

The spring term to begin on Monday, April 21, and extend to Friday, June 21st—12 weeks.

The fall term to begin on Tuesday, September 11th, and extend to Friday, December 21st—15 weeks.

The superintendent stated that his annual report and the financial statement were ready for the printer. It was decided to have 2,200 copies printed at once.

Upon motion of President Probasco the board then went into executive session.

MAY EXTRADITE BLACKFORD

New York Judge Asked to Hold the Alleged Bigamist—What the Prosecutor Says.

Prosecutor English, of Union county, said Monday that he had taken no steps as yet to bring to New Jersey John L. Blackford, the Central Railroad detective, who is held in New York on a charge of bigamy. Mr. English was not prepared to say what action he might take in the matter, but said he had written a letter to the Judge in New York before whom Blackford had been arraigned and requested him to hold the prisoner for thirty days, so that, if necessary, requisition papers could be obtained to bring Blackford to Union county.

Mr. English said he had been informed that Blackford was very willing to come to New Jersey, as he thought his chances of getting bail would be much better here than in New York.

"I have not looked into the matter," continued Mr. English, "but simply as a precautionary measure wrote the letter asking that Blackford be held, and I have heard nothing from New York since.

Here Are Three Queer Birds.

County Clerk John H. Conger, of New Brunswick, is the possessor of three freak fowls that are attracting considerable attention. They have the heads and feet of chickens and bodies like ducks. The legs are bowed and they waddle. The bodies are covered with oily feathers and the tail is of the stubby type. The freaks were hatched from duck eggs.

Miss Martha Tracy, daughter of J. Evarts Tracy, of West Eighth street, is home from the Woman's Medical College of Philadelphia, for the Thanksgiving vacation.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away. To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac, blood purifier, wonder, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

CHANGES MADE IN METHODIST CEMETERY.

Over Two Hundred Bodies Successfully Moved.

WILL ALLOW IMPROVEMENTS

ADJOINING LAND PURCHASED FROM ISAAC RUSHMORE.

By Consolidating All Lots Owned By Trustees on South Side and Adding New Purchase, That Land Will be Sold as Building Lots to Cover Expense of Improvements to be Made.

The difficult task of moving the 210 bodies from the southern part of the Methodist cemetery on Plainfield ave nue to other lots in that burying ground has been successfully accomplished. These changes have made possible certain improvements which will redeem the cemetery from the old run-down condition and add much to its permanency.

This spring the cemetery was in a very poor condition. Many of the plots had been neglected and little care was taken of any of it. There was some talk that the city might condemn and forbid further interments. The board of trustees of the First M. E. church decided that some action must be taken.

The trustees still owned a number of plots scattered through the cemetery. It was believed that if the vacant plots were to be collected into one area they might be disposed of at a price sufficient to cover the cost of the necessary improvements and the expense of the removal of the bodies as well. Isaac Rushmore, who owned the strip of land between West Seventh street and the cemetery, agreed to sell it to the trustees on reasonable terms, so that it might be joined with the southern end of the cemetery and then disposed of as building lots.

After much difficulty the consent of the lot-owners to the cemetery was secured. Lots of equal or greater value were given in other and more central parts of the cemetery in exchange, and the trustees agreed to bear all cost of the change. In the case of lots, the owners of which could not be found, the Union County Court gave the desired permission.

The contract for the removal of the bodies was given to Moses Terrill. The work was begun two weeks ago and is now completed, although forty-five days were allowed by the contract for the completion of the work. In every case, where there was the slightest reason for it, new caskets of the best grade were substituted for the old. E. R. Runyon also gave his personal attention to such cases where the owners desired it. Many of the lot owners visited the cemetery during the progress of the work of removal, and all expressed satisfaction at the manner in which it was done. There were no offensive features to it.

The part of the cemetery along the ledge at the southern side was in bad condition. Several trees had completely overgrown neighboring graves. Others had been neglected so long that the contractor was obliged to trench to find the caskets. A complete plan of the old cemetery and the new changes has been made, making it possible to easily identify any of the unknown bodies by their position before the change.

The bodies have now all been removed, and the work of putting the cemetery in proper shape is going forward. The cemetery will be surrounded by a high ornamental fence, and a keeper's lodge will be erected by the Plainfield avenue entrance. The strip of land purchased from Mr. Rushmore, for which the deed was made out and signed a few days ago, and the southern portion of the cemetery, are to be divided into building lots facing on West Seventh street, with a depth averaging 122 feet.

Is its advanced and chronic form a cold in the head is known as Nasal Catarrh and is the recognized source of other diseases. Having stood the test of continued successful use, Ely's Cream Balm is recognized as a specific for mentioned diseases of the nasal passages, and you should resort to this treatment in your own case. It is not drying, does not produce sneezing. Price 50 cents at druggists or by mail. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York. Give up prejudice and try it.

Happy Bachelorhood.

The people of Harlemville are happy over the news that early next spring their town will be improved by the trolley, a new station and also street on the Susquehanna and Western Railroad and a bank building to cost $75,000. These things were determined upon at a meeting of the Board of Trade.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. Humphreys'
Specifics act directly upon the diseases, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

No.	Cures.	Price.
1	Fevers, Congestion, Inflammation	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headaches, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Eruptions, Humors	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
19	Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping Cough	.25
27	Asthma, Difficult Breathing	.25
28	Ear Discharges, Deafness	.25
29	Scrofula, Swellings and Glands	.25
24	General Debility, Physical Weakness	.25
25	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Diseases	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
30	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
31	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
32	Painful Menses, Frictus	.25
33	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitations	1.00
34	Epilepsy, Spasms, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
35	Sore Throat, Quinsy, Diphtheria	.25
36	Chronic Congestions, Headache	.25
37	Gout, Rheumatism	.25

Sold by Druggists, or sent postpaid on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL "THE PILE OINTMENT."
For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding. Itching Piles yield at once to its soothing influence. The relief is instantaneous. Every box is warranted to cure. Sold by druggists, or sent postpaid on receipt of price.
TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.
HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

Eureka Harness Oil
Eureka Harness Oil is the best preservative of new leather and the best renovator of old leather. Gives a lasting, black-as-coal polish. Use
Eureka Harness Oil
on your best harness, your old harness, your buggy top, your shoes, and it will not only look better but wear better. Keeps out dampness and dust. Sold by dealers from half pints to five gallons. Made by STANDARD OIL CO.

WANTS AND OFFERS.

BUTTER cow wanted; breed no object. Send full particulars to B-12 203, Fanwood. 12 5 3 o

DIED.

POTTER—Entered into rest on Dec. 2d, 1898, Charles Potter, Jr., aged 67 years.

BOTH—In this city, Dec. 1st, 1898, Martin Both, aged 65 years.

COOPER—In North Plainfield township, Friday Dec 2d, Mary A. Cooper, aged 80 years, 8 months, 26 days.

ROSE—In North Plainfield township, November 30, 1898, Emma, wife of Fred. Rose, in the 30th year of her age.

MACDONALD—In this city, Saturday, Dec. 3d, 1898, Sarah A. MacDonald, aged 67 years, widow of Rudolphus MacDonald.

BOSTWICK—In North Plainfield, Monday, Dec. 5th, 1898, Mabelle G. Bostwick, aged 21 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sandiker.

GRAVES—In New York city, Tuesday, Dec. 6th, 1898, Charles Henry, infant son of Charles C. and May Isabel Graves, aged 2 months and 26 days.

Nasal CATARRH
In all its stages there should be cleanliness. Ely's Cream Balm
Effectively cleanses the head, allays inflammation, heals the diseased membrane. It does not dry up the secretions and does not produce sneezing. It is quickly absorbed. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. Cream Balm is placed into the nostrils, spreads over the membrane and is absorbed. It is not drying—does not produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

COUNTRY CLUB RECEIVER.

On Application of Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, a Creditor, E. A. Meeker Was Appointed.

Craig A. Marsh appeared before Vice Chancellor Emery in Newark Tuesday a. m. and made application, in behalf of Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, a member and a creditor of the Union County Country Club, for the appointment of a receiver to close up the affairs of the club. W. S. Angleman also appeared as the representative of Edward W. H. Sterling and other bondholders. Robert A. Meeker was appointed receiver and will now proceed to close up the affairs of the club.

Death of Mrs. Bostwick.

The death of Mrs. Mabelle G. Bostwick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sandeker, of 10 willow avenue, occurred Monday after a long illness. The deceased has not been a resident of the borough a great while, having moved here from New York. The funeral services will be held probably afternoon from the late residence at 4 o'clock. Interment was in Greenwood Cemetery.

West Dudley Avenue Opened.

An effort is being made by certain property-owners to have Dudley avenue opened to this city so that this can be used for pleasure driving. Horsemen do not fancy using Front street where the trolley runs.

Christmas at the Hospital.

The usual Christmas celebration will be held at Muhlenburg Hospital on Monday afternoon, December 26th, and arrangements are being made for a good time.

CARNEY BROS.,
MADISON AVENUE,
Between Front and Second streets.
Tinners,
Plumbers
Gas Fitters,
Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware for canners. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,
Brick and Portable Furnaces
Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,
Etc., Etc., Etc.
I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.
Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in cases.
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN
Livery & Boarding Stables
FOURTH ST.,
between Watchung and Park avenues.
First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF.
Manufacturer of
CIGARS.
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 321 West Front street, to South side of Somerset, a few doors from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

A Free Trip to Paris!
Includes pleasure of a week spent at the Paris Exposition, and all other expenses, with gold watch and chain, to be given away in connection with The PATENT RECORD, Washington, D.C.

EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.
Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE
A COMPLETE NOVEL
50 PER YEAR 25 PER COPY
FOR SALE BY ALL NEWSDEALERS
J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, PUBLISHERS
PHILADELPHIA

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!
My new barber shop at
143 NORTH AVE.
is now open, ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.
EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

Wm. A. Woodruff,
Fire and Life
INSURANCE AGENT,
OFFICE,
corner Front St. and Park Avenue,
Plainfield, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale or Exchange. M. S. Y to loan on Approved Security.

GOTHAM'S PHILANTHROPIC FARCE.

How a Woman With More Money Than Brains Amuses Young Women Whom She Calls "Her Working Girls."

BY BESSIE DOW EATES.

The funniest thing in New York happens on Friday nights every week. It is already a good many months old and promises to live to a good old age. And it will have time—the very funniest thing in all this big city—ever since its beginning, and it will continue to be a screaming farce as long as it lives.

The funniest part of it all is that its instigator and central figure does not have the faintest idea that there is anything funny about it.

I have told the story to a number of New Yorkers who have lived here for years and who know the city thoroughly, and, although they greeted my statement that it was "the funniest thing in New York" with skeptical smiles, they have always agreed with me when they have heard the story.

So it is only fair to tell it here, for a few doors from Fifth avenue and not very far from Central park, there lives a very rich woman who likes to think and is anxious for her friends to believe that she is graciously charitable in a unique and original way.

She is the wife of a wealthy man, the daughter of a very rich man whose sporting tastes have made his name well known and the sister-in-law of a famous member of England's house of lords.

She wanted something to do, did this rich woman, whereby she could make the sunshine of her gold gleam down into the paths of the poor. She wanted to do something that would refine and elevate and purify that portion of New York that works for its living.

She scorned the "flannel petticoat idea." No. What the working women of New York needed, she thought, is something that will educate and elevate their æsthetic instincts.

So she got together a club of "working girls." She receives the club at her home every Friday evening and endeavors to educate the æsthetic instincts of its members by showing them her good clothes, not her dresses and bonnets—oh, no; that would be too much like vulgar display—but such refining and sweating portions thereof as her lace petticoats.

She takes the club members through the drawing room sometimes and lets them look at the pictures and bric-a-brac, talking to them about what she has pass along what each one is. She tells them about the opera and about life and matters among the Four Hundred and attempts to talk literature, art and political economy.

The girls are admitted at the area door, where the French governess receives them and gives them a French lesson—sometimes. If madam is ready for them to go up stairs, there is no French lesson, because she does not like to wait. If she isn't, the lesson varies in length from ten minutes to an hour, lasting only until she is ready for them to meet her in the dining room.

Nearly all the young women who attend this remarkable club do so simply and solely for the sake of a lark. They are bright, sensible, intelligent and capable women who maintain themselves in comfort and enjoy not a few luxuries. Scarcely one of them but is by far the superior of madam in common sense, shrewdness, intelligence and information, and they take keen delight in making her show off her vanity, her ignorance and her feeling of superiority. Then they go away and make all manner of fun of her and her assumptions.

SHOWING HER GOWNS.

One evening madam had her little son brought in and said to him, "Tommy, these are mamma's working girls." Ever since then they call themselves "mamma's working girls," although not in her presence.

Very frequently it happens that madam prefers to go out, and then the girls are invited into the dining room, and madam appears before them in all the glory of evening dress, rustling in silks and flashing with jewels. She goes away feeling very happy and complaisant over the help she has given to the influences that are working to elevate the lower classes, and the girls have hard work to keep their faces straight until they get into the street again.

I went to one of the meetings of this club, and I know whereof I speak when I say that it is the funniest thing in New York. There were present that evening a student in Barnard college and two newspaper women, who were there out of curiosity and for the sake of the fun; the wife of a well known artist whose family belong to the Four Hundred and whose name and lineage are very much better than madam's own, who also, though rather a frequent attendant, goes for the sake of the lark; a number of public school teachers possessed of bright, keen appreciation and a darwinian spirit, who go regularly every week and thoroughly enjoy themselves making madam say ridiculous things, and, finally, one single meek mannered little thing who took it all seriously and seemed to be much edified by the proceedings.

Madam never asks who her club members are, nor what they do, nor where they live, nor what their circumstances are, nor in any way shows any interest in their lives. Her story are always "my working girls" and subjects upon whom to apply the elevating lever of her information, intellect, taste and possessions. Her manner toward them is as indescribably mixture of affability and hauteur, as if she were trying to make them feel that she believed they were her equals and at the same time hugging her evident consciousness of immeasurable superiority.

Their manners toward her were an admirable piece of acting. They were quietly admiring, respectful, submissive, grateful and occasionally even a little apologetic, and it was worth being subjected to the stream of trash which madam talked for two solid hours to see the quiet, innocent looking way in which they set traps for her and made her lay bare her ignorance and vanity.

"Have you ever read Gibbon's 'Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire?'" one girl demurely asked. "No," said madam, "but I have read Carlyle's."

She tried to talk political economy and naively confessed at the start that she knew nothing about it "except that the middle man is the one who ought to be strung up by the neck." But that did not hinder her from attempting to enlighten their minds for one long hour on the subject. Any one of them could have told her a great deal more than she knew about it.

She spoke of a paper she had heard read in the parlors of one of her society friends which had referred to Henry George. "I think that is his name," she hesitated. "Henry—yes,—Henry George. I didn't know anything about his theories," she added, with a wife more than one head was bent down to conceal a smile.

Madam has traveled a great deal, and she was telling her "working girls" one evening about Paris. "Oh," exclaimed one, "I so want to go to Paris! But I don't suppose I ever shall."

"You must not despair," madam replied encouragingly. "You may go as a lady's maid some time, and you may marry a rich man, and then you can go. You never can tell what's going to happen in this country, you know. Why, you may be the president's wife yet. I'm sure every president's wife very often comes from just such people as you."

One evening madam told them long and volubly about the glories of the court. Finally she ended with her inimitable little manner of affability, condescension and reserve: "But I suppose you go to the theater sometimes, don't you? Isn't there some place, some theater, where you can go?"

She had kept them quite late on one occasion, and one girl exclaimed a little as she looked at the clock.

"Oh," said my lady, "if you were to be afraid, even if it is 11 o'clock! Nobody will speak to you, of course, for you are just working girls!"

She Wants It Stopped.

Mrs. Estelle G. Mauff, a young and handsome Chicago woman, has begun a suit in the circuit court of that city the outcome of which will be of special interest to women. In some mysterious manner her photograph came into the hands of a distilling company and is now found on the labels of bottles of liquor sold by the distillers. She asks the court for an injunction restraining the company from thus using her picture.

Mrs. George B. Wilson of Philadelphia owns the largest collection of orchids in America.

THE WORK OF WOMAN.

What Some Members of the Unquiet Sex Are Doing.

Miss Amalia Kussner, an American miniature artist, has had a rather novel and exciting experience in South Africa. She was caught at Kimberley when the Dutch-Boer war broke out and was compelled to remain there. Between bombarding and other things calculated to unnerve the ordinary female she has been painting the portrait of Cecil Rhodes. Miss Kussner is a New York girl, young and handsome. Among the leaders of New York society whose portraits she has painted in miniature are Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger, Mrs. Lorillard Spencer and Mrs. Arthur Paget.

The only woman dentist in Holland is Miss Trude Mertens, who practices her profession in her native city, The Hague. She has among her patrons Queen Wilhelmina and the women of the court of the Netherlands.

The queerest honeymoon spent by a young bride is that of Lady Delamere, the wife of the famous African hunter and explorer. For three months, ever since their marriage, the couple has been in Mombasa on a hunting expedition. Lady Delamere, who is an excellent shot, participating heartily in the sport.

Conspicuous among women who have attained success in business is Miss Ida Harned, an insurance agent in Chicago. She recently received an international medal from the company she represents for having written more insurance in a single month than any other agent in the world.

It is a rather unique school which is conducted by Mrs. C. A. Cross in Chicago. She is a professional teacher of parrots.

Miss Maud Ballington Booth, besides her evangelical and prison reform work in connection with the American Volunteers, does something in literature. Her first volume, recently issued, is entitled "Sleepy Time Stories," a collection of charming sketches for children.

Miss Jessie Ackerman of Philadelphia was the first American woman to volunteer under the Red Cross for South Africa. She has spent much time in the Transvaal and was there when the Jameson raid occurred.

Mrs. Kate Cabell Currie, who is president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, was the guest of honor at a reception in Nashville, which was one of the most brilliant events that have occurred in that city.

One of the most popular women in what is left of the government set in Washington is Mrs. Hansbrough, wife of the North Dakota senator. She is beautiful, vivacious and a thorough diplomat.

There has recently come to this country from Norway a singer of some note, Miss Bakken Lassen, granddaughter of the Russian Princess Saltikoff. Miss Lassen will sing in the homes of New York's society folk, playing her own accompaniments on the harp.

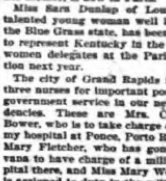
The Countess of Aberdeen, who recently visited this country, is at the head of a project for a big Irish fair to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York next spring.

Comparatively few women are engaged in strictly scientific pursuits, but Mrs. Percy Frankland of Northfield, Worcestershire, England, has achieved notable success in her extensive researches in bacteriology.

The story comes from London that Miss May Goelet, heiress to many American millions, is to marry the Prince of Orleans. Miss Goelet, with her mother, is now in Paris.

Miss Sara Dunlap of Louisville, a talented young woman well known in the Blue Grass state, has been selected to represent Kentucky in the board of women delegates at the Paris exposition next year.

The city of Grand Rapids furnishes three nurses for important posts in the government service in our new dependencies. These are Mrs. Christiana Bower, who is to take charge of the army hospital at Ponce, Porto Rico; Miss Mary Fletcher, who has gone to Havana to have charge of a military hospital there, and Miss Mary Welsh, who is assigned to duty in the military hospital at Manila.



The reigning beauty of Paris is La Belle El Dorido, a new histrionic star who has completely dazzled the French capital. She is a young woman who went to the metropolis a few months ago from the provinces of France, being then comparatively unknown. Her triumph in both art and in society has been signal. Rising from obscurity to such prominence has not affected her charming frankness of manner, which equals with her perfection of feature and form has won the hearts of all Parisians. By many she is regarded as the most beautiful woman in continental Europe.

ANNETTE CRAWFORD.

GEORGIE TALKS.

He Tells of the Folly of Lying and About Paw and Maw.

Maw she was makin Ketchup yisterday Afternoon, an she told me To watch out the Front part of the House so if Strangers or Callers Came to See them She wasen't Home. I Got the pupp and little Albert in the Parlor and was havin a purty Good Time with that Dog Spankin him and me and the pupp the amurious army when The bell rung.

I went out to See who it was, and The grand Mussis Mackrils, all Dressed up Like if She didn't never expect to Git another chanct to wair Her Good Clothes.

"Is your maw Home?" She says.

"Yes," I told Her. I felt offel Glitty. I Hatt to Tell liss.

"Where is She?" she says.

I Dident Have no time to Think. Maw forgot to Tell me where she had went, so I Had to say the Furst Thing Hapened along.

"She went for the Doctter," I says.

"My Goodness," she says, "what's rong?"

"Poor little Albert," I says. Glittin kinda used To It By that Time.

"What's the matter with Him?" she ast, lookin purty scared.

"He Drunk a little bit of Holths water," I says. They was comin Easy Then. "Goodness grashus!" she yelled. "Is the Poor Child Hurt Bad?"

"Oh, it's offel," I says, kinder Groanin.

"Is your naw Here?" she ast.

"No," I Told Her, "He don't no it yit. Poor gal!" I was Purtier than Ever. Then so I could put Them rite over the plate every time, But Before I got a chanct to Toss anny more up Her way she Let out a Awful Yell as Thood Trot, so I went Back and was purtendin I was goin to Heng little Albert Fer a Spy, and purty soon nearly all the assembly Gatherd up in the Parlor. I peked Between the curtens and Seen who Was There So I made little Albert Duck out the Back way.

When I went to the Door They all come in and Begin to ast If He was Ded yit.

Every little while I would Hear maw Rattlin things out in the kitchen, and Mrs. James Had a pitcher of molasess Becuz she Sed That was Good for Burns and Everybody she Had Sumthin what would Heal the poor child.

They wanted to go up Stares, But I told them the Dockter and maw was up there and Dockter sed Absolutly Dassent come up, and They musn't Be no noise.

They was all whisperin away Like people in church and the minister is pasyin, and it was the saddest Site I ever Seen.

Purty Soon Sumbuddy Got to Sneezin, an then Her Herd Her, so She came In From the kitchen to See who was there.

Maw Had Her Sleeves Rolled up and Her Fais was all Red and She was Swettin and Had a Streak of Tomato acrost Her Brow.

Before She Could say anything Sis wimen Had There arms around Her neck and Was Weepin and Tellin Her the Best Thing to Do. After which maw forgot About Her Winder and Got Loose and ast What was rong.

"Poor woman," says misess Carson, "She's lost Her reason."

"I'll Tell You," I says. Looked purty mutch that way.

I Dunno Jist what Hapened Then. I snuck out the Front Door and was Wonderin whether I Better Go out west and Be a indian About or Stay Home and Try to Stand the Disgrals when I Seen Down the Street and Seen paw Comin. He was Prancin and Gitting away from the Seen of Trubble.

"Georgie," I says to Myself, "you are now standin Fais to Fais with your Smish."

By that time paw was Fallin up the Steps, and I Says, I would Fix it up with Him and I says:

"Never mined, Paw. It's all rite. They ain't no Harm Done."

"I told that Fool to get A Wumman pot to munky with Her old Ketchup when I started," paw panted. "Whare is He —whare's poor little Albert?"

Jist then I Seen Albert and the pupp come a hoopin Around the Corner, and maw and the sabers Come out of the House. They was all looking for Me. I Seen I was Disgraced. Her purty Bad, and misses Marten Says to paw:

"I'm offel Sorry I telefoned and Give you Such a skare, Mr. Shoffett, But I was tryin to Be Kind."

Then they went away and maw She Begin to weep.

After a while when paw Found out what Hapened He was So mad He went out in the kitchen where maw Had a little Pail of Stuff what was all Bottin over on the Stove and She was a-goin to Throw It out the window only when He Took It Away and Put it the Hands Every Red Spot and He Let go and spilled the Hole Thing and Some of the Tomato Stuck to Him and he Jumped up and Down and yelled Like a Enjun and Begin wheel and Licked his Fingers and Said it was'n't married to a man with a Christian Spirit some thrrable tradegy Would of Hapened in our Family Long ago.

After He got Hizzy with me I made up my mind about one Thing. Nobuddy can make me Mad. That a Bad Thing it is to be a orfun.—Georgie, in Chicago Times-Herald.

Mormons Get Converts.

A squad of American Mormons has passed through Paris with some 50 or 60 Swiss girls, recently converted. This small regiment of future wives was split up into three groups to avoid attention, some going to Holland, some to England, and others to Belgium, all eventually going to Utah. Four of the converts had been married and left behind, presumably with the purpose of seeking new female converts among the French rural population.

Bible's Old Meaning.

The word Bible means simply book, but it is now confined to the Book of Books.

The authorities in Algeria gave 245,000 toward fighting the grasshoppers. In one section 1,200 cubicle were employed to carry off the insects and bring over the places where eggs had been deposited.

Women employed on Japanese tea farms work twelve hours and are paid fifteen cents a day.

MONSTER GAMBLERS.

Don Filipe Martel pays $1,000 a day License, But Has Made Millions.

When, a few years ago, the Mexican government sought to abolish gambling throughout the land, the measure was vigorously opposed, not only by the proprietors of hells, but by many of the richest and most influential citizens of the republic as well, the latter element declaring that in the event of gambling prohibited from their beloved and inherent pastime they would remove to some domain where their rights and predilections would be respected. The authorities, however, determined not to be outdone, yet not wishing to disregard outright the demands of the sporting fraternity, concocted the idea of placing a tax, the exorbitance of which would be productive of the same results as would prohibition. A law was therefore established requiring every gambling resort to pay a daily license of $1,000. The result was that on the same day the ordinance was announced the gambling establishments throughout the country promptly closed their doors—all but one. Don Filipe Martel had calmly waited until the last of his contemporaries had left the hall, whereupon he presented himself at the Tax Collector's office in the City of Mexico and, depositing $1,000 in cash, demanded a receipt therefor. The amazed officials could scarcely believe their senses, but the coveted document was nevertheless delivered to him, and by nightfall it had been noised all over the city that Martel's establishment on the Calle de Gante would be open that evening as usual for business.

The effect of this display of nerve acted as magic upon those who had opposed the reformatory measure. That night Martel's place was thronged with the wealthiest sporting element in the city, and the profits of the establishment ran far into the thousands. The following day others, stimulated by the success of the bold venture, took out their license and endeavored to resume, but to no avail. Martel had won the patronage and support of the players at a stroke and was quickly left in sole possession of the field. As time went by his phenomenal success continued, and one after another he established branches in various portions of the city, for each of which he paid an additional thousand dollars license.

When, eventually, it became apparent to the city administration that Martel was there to stay, and possibly not unmindful of the immense revenue he was paying into the municipal treasury, the authorities became reconciled to the situation, and, by appointing a deputy inspector for each of his establishments, whose duty is to see that no unfair methods are resorted to by the bankers, dealers or players. Up to the present period Felipe Martel has acquired a fortune of over 12,000,000, and the average daily expenditure of his various establishments is the incredible sum of $40,000.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Tropical Ceremony.

One of the most striking forms of self-immolation practiced by fanatics in India is known as hook swinging, and is described by a recently returned missionary as a wonderful feat of endurance. The devotees have iron hooks inserted into the flesh in front of their backs, and are then swung up in the air before their goddess, at the end of a long pole balanced at the center like an old-fashioned well sweep.

(Hook-swinging ceremony in India.)

Masher Made a Mistake.

Mrs. Edwards of 513 Washington street, Hoboken, N. J., received a letter a few days ago from a young man, asking her to meet him in Washington street and ride on the trolley car to Rutherford. The man was unknown to her and as the matter is public, she advised her to meet him.

Mrs. Edwards was at the appointed place on time. So was the man. So were Detectives Nelson and Preston. As soon as the stranger accosted Mrs. Edwards he was arrested and taken to headquarters.

He said he was Albert Hamilton of Rutherford and that he was employed by the Hoboken Ferry Company.

Hamilton was held in $200 to await a hearing.

John Potter, of Oakland, Cal., a resident of Berkeley, private, who shot and killed recently, at Lincoln, Ill., while with a gang of robbers who were attempting to rob a general store at that place, overpowered the night watchman in the store shot him in the head. The other members of the gang fled. The coroner's jury exonerated the night watchman from all blame.

Adam Moser, who was convicted of manslaughter in the first degree for the murder of Mrs. Mary Whitmore, whom he stabbed in the head on the night of May 29 last, committed suicide in the jail at Lancaster, Pa., in his cell in society has been signal. Rising from obscurity to such prominence has not affected her charming frankness of manner, which equals with her perfection of feature and form has won the hearts of all Parisians. By many she is regarded as the most beautiful woman in continental Europe.

J. T. Robertson, a young man of Delsea, who was shot by the negro woodchuck, when he had taken out of jail, is dead. Goosbury is the negro who was taken from his father's home and hanged and shot to death by a mob of white men.

BASED ON NOTHING.

Most of the Fears That Beset Fair Maids and Matrons.

The cause that implants the spirit of fear in the bosom of the gentle sex is a subject that may well puzzle the most devout student of human nature. The list is considerable, ranging from the harmless of creatures, and yet it has been responsible for more cases of hysteria than any animal many times its size.

One woman, who all her life has searched beneath her bed before retiring, at one time found herself in possession of a folding monstrosity, the intricacies of which she had first to solve before taking her well-earned rest. But such is the force of habit. After pulling down the bed she would carefully look beneath it, for no other reason than that she had done so ever since she was a child.

A far more illusive is that of having one's legs seized, either from behind in going upstairs or on getting into bed. Women have been known acutally to measure the dark setting at defiance all the laws of locomotion in a hitherous attempt to keep their legs some distance ahead of the hands supposed the arms of a mysterious clutch. Girls will also make flying leaps into bed to eliminate the same improbability.

Many women search diligently in closets, bureau drawers and all sorts of impossible places before resigning themselves to sleep. An old housekeeper whose table silver, in two baskets, was always placed in her bedroom after the evening meal, was one night alarmed to find that the sentinel suspicious sounds from the lower regions. Cautiously leaving her room laden with the silver, she pitched both baskets down to sleep, calling out as she did so, "Take it all and please go," then fled precipitately and barricaded herself in her room. Needless to say the silver in the baskets and scattered contents the following morning, a little the worse for the rough handling she had given them.

WORKERS AMONG COTTONSEED.

New Machine Which is Designed to Monopolized Their Business.

An always interesting sight to New Orleans people is the work of the large gangs of darkies unloading cotton seed from the barges at the oil mills, piling the sacks of seed on the heavy trucks and trundling them down the wharf into the mill, singing lustily the while. The picturesque side of the old-time method of handling seed by no means appeals to the owners of the mills, however. Such labor is very expensive, and sometimes impossible to obtain. Competition in the manufacture of cottonseed products is very keen, and unnecessary handling of the raw material must be done away with wherever possible. The big grain elevators, built right up to the deep water, have long ago solved the problem, but with the oil mills at Gretna, on the west bank, where, with their wharves stretching a considerable distance into the river, and with these wharves sinking and twisting all the time from the action of the current and the treacherous river bed, the question how to unload their barge and carry the seed back into the mills at a cheap rate has been until now a very difficult one to answer.

The Union Mill Company has recently installed at its large Crescent mill at Gretna a plant for rapidly and economically unloading seed from barges, which seems to meet all the conditions. The main part of the system is a belt conveyor running on trestle work along the wharf, and thence under the roof of the mill. Along this conveyor the seed is carried from the end of the wharf 220 feet to a point in the mill, where it is weighed and either stored or distributed to the different parts of the mill. From the time it is taken from the barges until it leaves the mill as a finished product the seed is not touched by hand.

The present capacity of the plant is about 4,700 bushels (seventy tons) of cottonseed per hour, but this can be largely increased. It is estimated that this conveyor will save in labor in wages saved in less than two seasons.

Saved From Prison by His Ears.

"I don't often ask a thief or a bad man with big ears," said Judge Crawford from the bench in commenting on the physiognomy of Gilbert Closser, a 16-year-old boy charged with assaulting Frederick R. Morse, "but I like to see a boy with big ears." The boy scarcely knew whether the Judge was sarcastic or sincere, and he fumbled his cap bashfully while his ears turned red.

The spectators tittered, but Judge Crawford continued literally: "I am inclined to give you a chance, my boy, on the strength of your big mouth and generous ears. You've got a good face. A man with little ears, like a fox or a squirrels, won't always do. They need watching." After warning Closser never to carry knives or revolvers, Judge Crawford sentenced the boy to the reform school and then paroled him with instructions to report to the court January 1.—Kansas City Journal.

A Youthful Effusion.

Senator Platt, who has taken good-naturedly the newspaper chaffing about his poem, "The White Rose," decidedly objects to the unauthorized publication of it. It was written by his fiancee, Miss Fraser. He says it was a youthful effusion written 20 or more years ago and he was not aware that any groups of the poetical role more than a quarter of a centry since

A Dog Shed.

Ida—Maud Beulah is going out to cut all the fur trimming from her skirt.

May—Is it moth-eaten?

Ida—No, indeed! But her French poodle shed all his fur and Maud says she doesn't to get rid of hers to harmonize the effect when he frets by her side.—Chicago News.

A Queer Place for the Bird.

The eagle which originally decorated the stern of the famous schooner yacht America—which first won what is now known as the America Cup—is now the sign of the Royal Eagle Hotel at Ryde, Isle of Wight, overlooking the scene of the vessel's triumph over the English competitors in 1851.—The White Mice.

GRANULATED SUGAR CHEAPER.

Why the Old-Fashioned Brown Variety is Seldom Seen.

"When I was running a boarding-house for gangs at work on new railroads in the West a few years ago," said the old man, "brown sugar cost me 4 cents a pound when it was the cheapest, and granulated sugar cost 12 cents a pound when purchased in quantity. I had a hotel then, if you had 200 men to board, all of whom took sugar in their coffee, what kind of sugar would you buy?"

"I suppose I'd make a mistake, but as far as I know now, I would buy brown sugar, for that would be the cheapest," was the reply.

"And that's where you'd make a mistake," said the old man. "I'll prove it to you in a minute. When you go home to-night, you take a teaspoon and experiment with both kinds of sugar. You'll see that with granulated sugar you can pick up only so much as will fill the spoon, while you'll fill it's different with brown sugar. If you dig your spoon deep into it, when you lift the spoon, you bring nearly three teaspoonfuls of sugar with it, as it packs closely. That is what housewives call a 'heaping teaspoonful.' Now the average railroader is used to putting three spoonfuls of granulated in his coffee and he never looks to see whether they are heaping ones or not. Therefore, the brown sugar is the more economical. I tried both ways, and I found that using granulated sugar saved me over $15 a month over what it cost to serve brown sugar. There's even another reason why it is better than, too. The big sugar concerns have broken down the price of granulated sugar until it costs but a penny a pound more than brown sugar, and I'll bet you see granulated sugar in all the cheap boarding-houses to-day."—New York Sun.

STORM-TOSSED CREW.

They Went Ashore and Found Cannibals Devouring a Human Body.

The crew of the British steamer Glendistan, Captain Littlehales, now lying on a cargo of coal at Lambert's Point, tell of an experience at once strange and horrible. While at Iquique, Iquique, Chile, and when off the Patagonian Coast, near Tera del Fuego, was caught in a storm and had come to a stop. A boat's crew went ashore and hearing a strange noise proceeding from a cavern near their hiding place inspected it. A party of savages were found there, and in the midst of what seemed to be the dismembered body of a human being. The savages attacked them, but the seamen ran, whereupon they turned upon the killing of the savages. His companions carried the dead body away, and, the sailors believe, devoured it. In the cavern was a British flag and much wreckage. On the shore near the cavern lay the wreck of a wooden brig.—Norfolk, Va., Cor. Baltimore Sun.

New President of the Senate.

By the death of Vice President Hobart, the presidency of the senate will fall upon Senator Wm. P. Frye, of Maine. Senator Frye is 67 years old, looks younger. His term as senator will expire in 1901.

(Senator Wm. P. Frye.)

Threw Away Fifty Thousand Dollars.

There died in the City Hospital at Philadelphia last week a woman, practically a pauper, who by inscribing a few lines upon a paper would have been paid in possession of $50,000.

For many years Dr. Isabel Mitchell was a physician of some prominence in the Quaker city, while specializing in her profession she became interested in the pure food movement, and about much of her time in perfecting a process for the preservation of milk, which, she believed, would be of great benefit to families where low was not obtainable. Her experiments resulted in a formula which was declared practically perfect by chemists of Philadelphia and Philadelphia and vicinity. It was a preparation which answered the purposes desired and was of the same time harmless to health. But it required capital to put it into the articles to be preserved.

Dr. Mitchell received many offers for her process, but none of the terms were satisfactory to her, though one of them was for $50,000. While working on her food preservative, she neglected her practice, and was reduced to want. It all. From a comfortable home she went by gradual changes to a garret, where she was taken ill with a lingering disease, and was removed to the hospital. She persistently refused to reveal her secret to the few friends who had stood by her, and with her death the formula is lost to science.

Enoch Arden in Real Life.

After an absence of thirty years James Edwards, whose home is now in Denver, Col., returned to Bangor, Me., and found that his wife had been divorced from him and married to another man. Thirty-five years ago Edwards and his wife lived in Portland, whose parents were wealthy. Edwards was in poor circumstances and he married against the wishes of her parents.

The couple lived together for five years, but at the end of that time Mrs. Hickman is alleged to have stopped Edwards on the street and afterward went West and became wealthy.

Edwards says he repeatedly wrote to his wife, but she failed to get the letters. He supposed she was dead, and for fifteen years Mrs. Edwards silently died and received a letter from Denver informing her that a man answering to her husband's description had been killed. Mrs. Edwards, not certain that her husband was dead, obtained a divorce and remarried.

Edwards recently left in meeting his former wife upon his return. There were explanations all around and he went here forward and went back to Denver.

The $1000 Bill.

(By Leonard Outman.)

They were out on the veranda in the cool of the evening, old Caleb Loring in a rocking chair, smoking his cornecob pipe, and Bertha, his daughter, swinging in a low hammock, and her husband, Edmond Hackett, who was perched upon the wooden balustrade. Wilton Lorin was there, too, lounging in a canvas chair and smoking a "domestic" cigar. The veranda ran around three sides of a modest frame house, and was shaded by trees, the exception of its bright green shutters. Edmond and Bertha, recently married, lived there in the outskirts of Wood-land with the head of the family. Wilton had run down from Philadelphia, where he was cashier of the Ranchers' National Bank, to spend an all rambling over their meagre income.

"Uncle Sam," remarked Edmond Hackett, a quiet, steady-going sort of fellow, as he advanced toward middle life, "Uncle Sam is not generous to us boys and girls of the civil service. We handle a great deal of money—ten million dollars every working day, and give our lives to the mill-horse business for a bare existence."

"Since I've been cashier of the Ranchers' National," said Wilton Loring, "I've had enough money pass through my hands to make me crazy with fifty per cent of it. Sometimes—"

"Don't like to hear you talk like that, Will, my son," remarked old Caleb, with a quick shake of the head, as if a mosquito had lighted on him. "Thoughts of that kind sometimes realize into deeds you'd be sorry for."

"Humph! I'm not so sure I shan't one day try to pinch something," pursued Wilton, with a wink at his sister. "But big steals are the sort that speed you safely. To make a corner in something or other; to float a salted mine, or a bogus building society. That's the ticket."

"Tut, tut!" protested the elder Loring, with a fierce expectoration; but Bertha mischievously took up her brother's words.

"There's a fine chance now I've got into the counting division at the Treasury," said she. "Say, now, why not take the family combination? You, Wilton, are cashier at the Ranchers', and you're constantly having old bills to send into the Treasury for redemption. You'll think it you call it, a thousand-dollar greenback, and forward the packet to the Treasury indorsed as containing one more bill than it does. Then I, when the packet comes to me to be counted and examined. I just pass it as containing the number of greenbacks specified. Oh it would be fine! And my husband, whose duty it chances to be to check my count. Smart Edmond finds one bill short; but, seeing his Bertha's initials on the packet, he just winks a little, and the packet, with, say, 99 bills instead of 100, goes into the macerator. Uncle Sam thinking he destroys $1,000 against the new one to that value which he sends back in exchange to the Ranchers' Bank through the Division of Issue. See?"

"Sir," Mrs. Hackett addressed Edmond Hackett, disposed to enter into any joke conceived by his adored little wife, "How we could bless Uncle Sap, and help ourselves to the salaries he ought to pay us!"

"Have done! Have done!" burst out the old man. "If I believed my son and my daughter and my daughter's husband were capable of such rogues I'd fetch out my gun and fill you full of lead, every one!"

He meant it. His usually placid features were distorted and purpled with indignation, and the stem of the pipe he held snapped in the angry grip of his fingers. Wilton flung himself back in a fit of hearty laughter, but Bertha perceived that the joke had gone wrong.

"Father! dear father!" she exclaimed, soothingly. "You know us all better than that, sure. We were just joking. Why, Edmond, Wilton! Besides, such 'a combination as I figured out couldn't be, anyway."

"Quite impossible!" averred Wilton, getting over his mirth.

"Well, I reckon it's impossible in the last degree," said Edmond Hackett.

"So, as opportunity makes the thief, and we shall have no opportunity," added young Loring, "the whole three of us've got to be honest, will we, or won't we."

"You know, father," urged Bertha, to calm the old man, who muttered and pounded, "we seemed to have taken fright at the very thought of a breach of trust. "there are nine ladies in the Counting Division besides myself, and Wilton's inactive, a packet might go to any one of them instead of to me."

"And if Bertha did get it and pass it," remarked Hackett, to clinch the argument, "there are plenty of fellows in the Secretary's office who check the counts besides me, and one of them would surely be 'overnight.' Even if the short packet came to me it would be useless for me to wink, for I should only have one-half of the bills. They are cut horizontally," he added for Wilton's information, turning to his brother-in-law; "one-half—the lower section—comes to the Secretary and the upper boy goes to the office of the Register to be checked there."

"We should need another confederate in the Register's," put in Bertha. "The steal would be caught to a certainty in the Register's office."

"Unless we've got the whole bag of tricks. The combination you figured out is not such my boy, forty-four, forty-five, forty-six, forty-seven, forty-eight and forty-nine! Oh, I'm senior counter on the Register's division. The big bills go to him. This is marvelous. If fortune is disposed to do us a good turn, here's the wished all ready and dried: A sobble a thousand-dollar bill at the bank, and send a packet of ninety-nine bills to the Secretary's office. Then Bertha passes it through the Counting Division, Edmond gets the lower half to the Secretary's office, notes his wife's initials, and swallows the evidence with connubial submission; and Mr. Loring who spots the game in the Register's, out of respect for—"

"His total, his utter incapacity, the honor of his name," burst out the old man, "reports the matter instantly. I'm afraid me lot of you way, to ruin, to disgrace, to the bulks. No words about it! That's what I should do, sirted that!"

Wilton smiled feebly.

"The bundles of rubbish; shanty-ettes or a hundred bills; what would it matter to Uncle Sam? And I should send each of you $250. Think it over, Dad."

"Think it over? I shall never forget this talk of yours, Wilton. A crime committed half a century ago. May I never hear more of this combination of yours, in joke or in fact, or I'll be a prayer from this day to God in heaven."

And shaking his head angrily the father strode into the house.

* * * * *

A few days after this conversation Bertha Hackett sat in the office of the Redemption Division assisting Mrs. Lawson, the senior lady of the department, to count a package of "big bills." Greenbacks of large denomination were allotted to the senior lady in charge, Bertha and the other juniors would take it in turn to work with her for the sake of becoming accustomed to every kind of note, and to guard against fraud. Mrs. Lawson, the fussy, fat senior lady of the department, was the perfect withdrew, a forgery that might fall into their hands. Bertha was serving her apprenticeship in this department, and that day she sat at Mrs. Lawson's desk to learn all that this good lady could teach her.

Now, around the packets of old bills sent in from all parts of America to be canceled and exchanged for new currency, it was not unusual for the Ranchers' National Bank of Philadelphia to contribute to its share. Bertha's bright gray eyes took a sidelong glance at the heap of parcels before her, and speculated during what chance would so far realize their fancied combination as to bring into her hands a consignment from her brother Wilton. Then she dismissed the idea as hopeless, and set to work.

Mrs. Lawson, a portly, middle-aged lady placed before her a heap of thousand-dollar bills which she had been critically examining with a magnifying glass. They were the property of the Ranchers' National—a hundred bills of a thousand each. I make them right, but you go over them again one by one, and count them." A packet of fifty each, and bind them with a paper band in the usual way for me to initial and pass forward."

Mrs. Lawson proceeded with another packet, so absorbed in her work that she did not notice how strangely young Mrs. Hackett stared for a moment at the task before her. With the heap of bills lay the paper band that had inclosed them when they came from the bank in Philadelphia. It was indorsed with the number and denomination of the notes, and bore the signature, "Wilton Loring, Cashier." Mrs. Lawson verified them as correct, and yet Bertha's fingers trembled as she turned them over. She counted half of them backward, from 50 to 1, and made a packet of them, as instructed, and the other half she counted in the usual way, beginning one, two, three, four, and so on. Then she set aside the half of this count she paused, and counted this second half again backward. Then she slowly fastened a band around the packet.

"You're not very smart at present, my girl," remarked the elder lady, observing her sluggish action. "I have to hunt for counterfeits, but I should never get through if I took so long as you have done with that simple check. Did mark you miscount, child? I've passed a wrong count?" she added with a little touch of irony. "After thirty-four years at this work, my dear—"No, no, Mrs. Lawson," she said through Rosina Lawson's hands can be taken as right if she says so."

Mrs. Lawson was rather tetchy, and had a high conceit of her own skill of long infallibility. Bertha in silence wrote her own initials on the wrappers of the two packets, and this accomplished, she sprang to her feet. To have taken fright at the very thought of a breach of trust, "there are nine ladies in the Counting Division besides myself, and Wilton's inactive, a packet might go to any one of them instead of to me."

"And if Bertha did get it and pass it," remarked Hackett, to clinch the argument, "there are plenty of fellows in the Secretary's office who check the counts besides me, and one of them would surely be 'overnight.' Even if the short packet came to me it would be useless for me to wink, for I should only have one-half of the bills. They are cut horizontally," he added for Wilton's information, turning to his brother-in-law; "one-half—the lower section—comes to the Secretary and the upper boy goes to the office of the Register to be checked there."

"We should need another confederate in the Register's," put in Bertha. "The steal would be caught to a certainty in the Register's office."

"Unless we've got the whole bag of tricks. The combination you figured out is not such my boy, forty-four, forty-five, forty-six, forty-seven, forty-eight and forty-nine! Oh, I'm senior counter on the Register's division. The big bills go to him. This is marvelous. If fortune is disposed to do us a good turn, here's the wished all ready and dried: A sobble a thousand-dollar bill at the bank, and send a packet of ninety-nine bills to the Secretary's office. Then Bertha passes it through the Counting Division, Edmond gets the lower half to the Secretary's office, notes his wife's initials, and swallows the evidence with connubial submission; and Mr. Loring who spots the game in the Register's, out of respect for—"

"His total, his utter incapacity, the honor of his name," burst out the old man, "reports the matter instantly. I'm afraid me lot of you way, to ruin, to disgrace, to the bulks. No them discredit and a consequent check to Bertha's home promotion. It was Wilton who first broke the silence.

"Father," he said feebly.

"Missing? No, nothing is missing at all. There is said to have been one too many."

So many miracles had happened that day that Bertha could only gape at her in astonishment. It was an amazing coincidence that one taken from one hundred should leave one hundred and one. There came another session to the Treasury. Another packet was sent for at 10 o'clock from Mrs. Lawson's desk. The old lady was almost in tears, but she carried it off with a show of jocosity.

"Dear me, I must have some conscious money knocking about or Mrs. Bertha Hackett brings a mascot to the Treasury," said she. "Is this another surprise, a thousand-dollar-bill, sir?"

"But this was the shortage which Edmond and Loring had corrected, and it was happily met by the excess in the other packet. So beyond an admonition tempered in mercy for the inexperience of the bride, Mrs. Hackett got into no trouble. She held stoutly to a theory of the intervention of some divine Providence, who, discounting the matter at home, had her husband swept the precious fancy away.

"I reckon Providence don't supply cheating clerks with thousand-dollar-bills," said he. "You divided the packet of 100 into two of 50, as you thought, and I reckoned to find them forward, from 100 to 50 inclusive, and that left you only 49 for the second packet. But why didn't you tell Mrs. Lawson you made one count?"

"Fact is, Edmond, that combination chatter of ours had got into my brain. I thought Wilton had pinched a bill, and I reckoned to do mine for my brother than daddy would do for his bill."

"Ha!" observed old Caleb, filling his pipe. "Duty first, family afterward, and roguery never at any time, under any circumstances."

She Still Smokes.

Societies for the study of longevity will find an interesting subject in Mrs. Deborah Norris Logan, a woman, of Philadelphia, now an occupant of the Home for the Aged and Infirm. The date of her birth, November 14, 1776, is the year following the awful winter of 1775, and she remembers the smoke of battle that blew across the very graveyard of her house.

Mary Norris was but was bound out until she was eighteen years of age to a wealthy farmer named Rose Hannah Norris, at the time of the products were always at the disposal of General Washington's troops. She remembers that during the war she was a little woman and unknown not. She never owned a silk dress. She says that she owes her long life largely to the fact that she was brought up in the plainest kind of food and always had plenty of exercise.

She remained with her master and mistress until she was eighteen. She then married, and was blessed with a family of eight children. All of her sons and daughters, and also her husband, have long since died, and Mary is now the only one left. She seems to enjoy life in spite of her threescore and ten. She has everything necessary to comfort in her declining days, and she employs her spare time sewing carpet balls. Since 1890 she has served 1,175 carpet balls, and she keeps at her work every day.

The Duke's Coolness.

The coolness in action of great commanders is well illustrated by Wellington, John Nicholson and Stonewall Jackson has been worth whole battalions in the fighting line. Says a writer in The Cornhill. Basil Jackson, who had frequent opportunities of seeing the "Iron Duke" during the hours of battle, has recorded the remarkable and interesting and characteristic fact that the only sign of nervousness that he remarked in him was that in a dangerous crisis he would bite his lip hard in and out the folds of the powerful field glass which he carried, and of which he made such admirable use in this and his other battles. On the other way, English telescopes of the time were far better than the French, and it was to one of these I prize when one of them fell into their hands. In one of Wellington's battles against Soult, he was able to send that very glass to Lord Fitzroy Somerset, by signatures to an aide-de-camp, and accordingly took prompt measures to counteract his plans; and years afterward I was told by Lord Raglan that he astonished the Marshal by telling him how he had defeated him.

A Use For Old Watch Cases.

Many families have somewhere carefully laid away collections of old time watches which vary in style from the round, thick-cased watch of the past to the flat, open-faced gold watch. The works of these watches are practically useless and the case would bring a trifling amount if sold for either old gold or silver. Sentiment seems to cling about the faithful timepieces, and they are laid away forever to pass. As the counterpiece came to your husband in his department, so it has come to the Register's. Whatever hope he had cherished on his homeward way that he might find Bertha unconscious of the storm that threatened was dashed to the ground the moment he perceived her and her husband's agitation. The memory of that evening on the veranda burned in his mind, and in a fury of rage he demanded fiercely:

"Daughter, what infernal thing is this you have been doing? Are you 'mad'—is Edmond in it? Or has Wilton—— No, no! For God's sake, don't tell me it is my son!"

Then, at her husband's amazement and dismay, fell down at her father's feet and confessed that she—she had yielded to temptation and stolen the missing bill. She hurriedly stated the miraculous chance that had put Edmond in a position to save her, and, inferring from her father's knowledge of the affair that the man who had detected the shortage had confided to him his daughter's responsibility, with a view of screening her, begged him to accept the friendly overture.

But the stern Caleb spurned her from him.

"I would permit no man's dishonor for the sake of me or mine," he declared. "For what you have done you must pay the penalty. Your impossible combination has actually come to pass. As the countercheck came to your husband in his department, so it has come to the Register's. Whatever hope he had cherished on his homeward way that he might find Bertha unconscious of the storm that threatened was dashed to the ground the moment he perceived her and her husband's agitation. The memory of that evening on the veranda burned in his mind, and in a fury of rage he demanded fiercely:

"Daughter, what infernal thing is this you have been doing? Are you 'mad'—is Edmond in it? Or has Wilton—— No, no! For God's sake, don't tell me it is my son!"

Then, at her husband's amazement and dismay, fell down at her father's feet and confessed that she—she had yielded to temptation and stolen the missing bill. She hurriedly stated the miraculous chance that had put Edmond in a position to save her, and, inferring from her father's knowledge of the affair that the man who had detected the shortage had confided to him his daughter's responsibility, with a view of screening her, begged him to accept the friendly overture.

But the stern Caleb spurned her from him.

"I would permit no man's dishonor for the sake of me or mine," he declared. "For what you have done you must pay the penalty. Your impossible combination has actually come to pass. As the counterpiece

The Kind You Have Always Bought
In Use For Over 30 Years.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

ALIS ENDS SEASON WITH A VICTORY.

Defeated Bedford A. C. by Score of 11 to 0.

VISITORS FROM BROOKLYN.

GREEN MADE BOTH TOUCHDOWNS FOR HOME TEAM.

Game Was Marred by Disgraceful Wrangling and Unfair Tactics of Visitors Who Were Bound to Win Anyhow—Visitors Nearly Scored in First Half—Alis' Second Touchdown in Last Minute of Play.

The Alis football team ended their season Saturday afternoon by defeating the Bedford A. C. of Brooklyn after the fiercest game played on Martine Common. It was the first defeat of the season for the visitors and they took it greatly to heart. While they played a good game of hard, snappy football, they spoiled the good impression by their constant wrangling and the unfair methods they introduced toward the end in their effort to win anyhow. In the second half, the play was very rough. The umpire from Westfield gained general disfavor by his decisions decidedly favoring the visitors.

Alis won the toss and took the western goal with advantage of wind and sun. Bedford kicked off to Taylor at Alis' 25-yard line. The first few plunges into the line netted but small gains for the home team. Then Cuming circled right end for eight yards and Dumopt cleared fifteen more to Bedford's 45-yard line. There the visitors braced and held Plainfield for three downs. Phillips punted to Kayser, who fumbled but fell on the ball on his own 20-yard line.

On Bedford's first attempt th gain the ball was fumbled. Cuming broke through the line and fell on it twelve yards from Bedford's goal. Cuming and Phillips hit the line for short gains principally at tackle. With the ball a yard from the goal, Green circled left end for a touchdown after eight minutes of play. Phillips failed to goal. Score, Alis, 5; Bedford, 0.

Bedford kicked off to Long at Alis' 35 yard line. Cavanagh snatched the ball out of Long's arms after the latter had called "down," but the play was allowed and Bedford took the ball. After gaining fifteen yards on end plays, Kayser fumbled and Green fell on the ball twenty yards from Alis' goal. Cuming carried the ball ten yards on an end run and then Bedford gained the ball again on a fumble.

Then Alis woke up. Woolston, Cathcart and Taylor downed the Bedford backs for a loss each time and Kayser tried to kick. The kick was too low, and Cathcart went through the line and pushed VanDain in front of the ball. Wolff fell on the ball on Alis' 30-yard line. Bedford failed to gain and then time was called.

Dumont kicked off in the second half for Alis. The ball was carried back to Bedford's 45-yard line through good interference. Then VanDain and Lovibond plunged through the line for good gains. When the ball reached Alis' 45 yard line there was a dispute that delayed the game some time and forced the playing way into the dark. The Bedford backs made small gains through the line, but were finally held for four downs and Alis took the ball. Green lost seven yards on a fumble. Cuming was good for twelve around right end. Woolston circled left for seven more. Cuming carried the ball to the centre of the field, five yards more, and Dumont added six on a trick play.

Green shot around left end and was finally stopped by Lovibond after gaining 28 yards. Woolston fell on a fumbled ball. Little gain was made at centre and then Green plunged through tackle. The Bedford boys didn't see him and he speeded toward the goal. Kayser was still to be passed. Green dashed headfirst into the Bedford full back, temporarily spoiling the latter's usefulness, while Green rolled across the line for a touchdown. Phillips kicked the goal. Time was then called. Score—Alis, 11; Bedford A. C., 0.

ALIS.		BEDFORD A. C.
Woolston	right end	Aufman
Cathcart	right tackle	J. Taylor
Welch	right guard	Osterwood
Dumont	centre	Wolff
Long	left guard	Wolff
Cavanagh	left tackle	C. Taylor
H. Smith	left end	McG'varen
Green	quarter back	Kaynesell
Green	right half back	Lovibond
Cuming	left half back	VanDain
Phillips	full back	Kayser

Score—Alis, 11; Bedford A. C., 0. Touchdowns, Green (2). Goals on touchdowns, Phillips. Referee—Roger Erickson of Plainfield. Umpire—H. Hayes of Westfield. Chief Linesman—A. Wills West. Timers—William Miller and William Hobbie.

ALL FAVOR IMPROVEMENT

WIDENING OF SOMERSET STREET A POPULAR PROJECT.

Many Property Owners Have Been Seen and None Seem to be Opposed to It—Expense to Fall on the Whole Borough.

Already a number of the property owners along Somerset street from the county line to Jackson avenue, have been seen regarding the widening of the street and almost all are unanimous in the belief that the work should be done. Some have agreed to donate the necessary amount of land in front of their property.

It is proposed by the Mayor and Council, if the work is done, to place the expense in the general tax budget so that the borough as a whole may share equally in the improvement. By doing this the expense will fall lightly on all. It has been determined that if the improvement is made that there will be at least a ten or twelve foot sidewalk on each side of the street and this is considered large enough.

As already stated there are a few cases where owners have built over the line, and of course they can be compelled to move back. In the case of Saengerbund Hall the front steps extend over the line, but this trouble can be averted by building a vestibule in the front of the hall and removing the steps. It would give the hall a better appearance, and the room required for this improvement would not be missed if the hall is extended in the rear as now proposed by the members.

It has been ascertained that the other properties over the line can be moved with comparatively little trouble and expense, and there is no reason to doubt but what all the owners will be glad to assist in making this grand improvement so much needed.

How Are Your Kidneys?

Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Pills cure all kidney ills. Purely vegetable. Add Sparagus Remedy Co., Chicago or N. Y.

OPEN CAR HELD UP BY ORDER OF THE MAYOR.

Borough's Chief Executive Bound to Stop "Pneumonia Express."

CHIEF MARSHALL ACTED.

OPEN CARS STOPPED AT THE COUNTY LINE ON SOMERSET STREET.

Chief Marshal Warned Motorman and Conductor Not to Go Any Further—Closed Car Was Finally Secured—Passengers Were Compelled to Disembark and Wait Till Another Car Came Along for Them.

That open trolley cars will not go in the borough was demonstrated Sunday afternoon when Chief Marshal Campbell, acting under instructions of Mayor N. B. Smalley, stopped one at the county line about 4 o'clock. His Honor had previously given instructions to the trolley company that they would have to stop running open cars in the borough. The company stopped for a day or two, but evidently thought His Honor was an easy mark and on Saturday they started to run an open car in the borough, and again Sunday. This news reached Mayor Smalley's ears, and he gave Chief Campbell explicit instructions to stop all open cars from going into the borough.

About 4 o'clock an open car came along in charge of Motorman Peter Hansen and Conductor J. B Martin, and there were a number of passengers aboard. Chief Campbell was on the lookout and the car was held up on the bridge. The men in charge of the car were told they could not go any further, and they decided to obey the instructions of the officers. The passengers then left the car, after which it was taken back to the city In a few minutes a closed car came along and the passengers were taken aboard to continue the journey along the road. Mayor Smalley is determined that the open cars shall not run in the borough at this season and he will see that they do not, even if the road ceases to operate in that domain.

BLACKFORD TO BE HELD.

PROSECUTOR ENGLISH TO HAVE BIGAMIST EXTRADITED TO JERSEY.

The Prisoner to be Held in New York For Thirty Days—Wife No. 2 Called on the First Wife in This City Yesterday.

There were several visitors at 926 Putnam avenue Sunday to see wife No. 1 of John L. Blackford, who is now confined in the Tombs prison, New York, on the charge of bigamy. Mrs. Blackford was not at home to her visitors, however, and all inquiry could only obtain the reply that Mrs. Blackford had nothing to say.

Mrs. Blackford, No. 2 with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Brenesholtz, of Westfield, called at the Blackford home yesterday afternoon. It is not known whether the two wives met or what was the result. The call was a short one and the visitors refused to say what happened.

Prosecutor English, at Elizabeth, said Sunday that he had sent word to the New York authorities to hold Blackford for thirty days. That time will be required to obtain requisition papers to bring the prisoner to Elizabeth to be indicted. Mr. English declared that the complaint should have been made in Jersey instead of New York.

Asleep in a Field.

Henry Kuhnhofer came up from Elizabethport Sunday afternoon. He enjoyed the hospita lity of his Plainfield friends. The hospitality was largely in a liquid form and overcame the sense of direction that Kuhnhofer possessed. Patrolman Vanderwag found the visitor asleep in a field on Grant avenue early this morning. He was locked up. As all his fun had been at the expense of his Plainfield hosts, City Judge Runyon set the city's share down at $3.

A Quiet Wedding.

A quiet wedding took place at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, when Catherine, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Bergen, of South Second street, was united in marriage to Charles M. Wheeler, of Boston, Mass. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Smyth, of St. Mary's church.

Prize Choristers.

The prize choristers of Grace church for November are: W. Brooks, Y. Miner, W. Davis and Misses C. Woodward, J. Little, M. Ulrich, J. Tallamy, B. Miner. Master Vincent Miner and Miss Jessie Little each received the Grace church cross.

New Trolley Cars.

The Brunswick Traction Company has received six new cars, three of which will soon be put in use on the Bound Brook line. They are about twice as long as the old cars, have double trucks and 100 horse power motors. They are nicely fitted up and run smoothly.

Educate Your Bowels With Cascarets.

Candy Cathartic, cure constipation forever. 10c, 25c. If C. C. C. fail, druggists refund money.

MANY SMALL MATTERS CLOSE UP THE YEAR

Last Regular Meeting of the Present Common Council.

LIBRARY APPROPRIATION.

IT IS DECIDED TO OFFER THE DIRECTORS ONLY $400.

The Exact Amount That the Library is Entitled to Under the Appropriation Cannot be Collected—Another Small Waste $75 for Extra Work—The Gas Franchise Was Talked Over.

The last regular session of the Common Council for this year, held last Monday, was not a long one, and there was not a great deal of important business transacted. All the members were present except Messrs. Hetfield and Buckle. The latter was detained at home by a severe illness. No time was lost in considering the business of the evening.

John Morton, of 701 West Front street, an exempt fireman, asked the Council to grant him $200 tax exemption. Petitions were received for electric lights on Leland and Johnston avenues, and one on the south side of Madison avenue, near Seventh street. The latter was referred with power. T. O. Doane reported the granting of nineteen building permits, and A. J. Gavett reported that twelve sewer permits were granted during the month. Mr. Coriell offered a resolution entering into an agreement with the Watchung Water Company, of Dunellen, for two fire hydrants on West Front street, near the city line, for fire protection to that part of the city which is not reached by the mains of the Plainfield Water Company. Mr. Mellick offered a resolution authorizing the drawing of a warrant for $65,302.75 to pay the county and State tax. He also offered another resolution which provides for borrowing $6,300 on account of the fire fund in anticipation of the collection of taxes. Mr. Tolles moved that two electric lights petitioned for be granted. One light will be located on Clinton avenue and the other on West Fifth street, between Grant avenue and Lee place.

Mr. Mellick offered a series of resolutions in one to the effect that the city treasurer be authorized to charge to the license trust fund $15 and credit it to general account; charge account of Pease street opening $7.90 to general fund; uncollected North avenue sewer rentals $75 to general fund; charge sundry resources account $633.57 and credit uncollected assessments to close account. These transfers are made to close up the several accounts for the year. Another resolution by Mr. Mellick provided for the correction of an assessment under the Martin Act of $6.07 on property owned by Mrs. Mary Dagnall, which was in error. In connection with this Mr. Mellick stated that a number of petitioners had asked to have several amounts assessed against them corrected but the committee on the matter failed to find good and sufficient reason why this should be done. The petitioners included are Frank McVey, Wm. Monsell, Wm. Newcorn, on behalf of clients, Samuel Dreier, Preston B. Goodfellow, Mrs. M. M. Swaim, S. F. Dunn; Reed & Coddington on behalf of client, Robert Walker. The last resolution offered by Mr. Mellick provided for the refunding of $1.36 to Robert Dwyer, and $18.76 to the Home and Loan Association, which amounts were found to have been paid twice under the Martin Act assessment.

A bill for $75 was received from Charles H. Hand for extra time as a city assessor. It was referred to the committee on taxes. Mr. Barrows called up the ordinance relative to the issuance of temporary bonds for the work of macadamizing Third and Fourth streets, and the same was adopted on its third reading.

After the session took a recess of ten minutes to talk about the application of the People's Gas Company, they returned and Mr. VanHerwerden, who in the meantime had come in, reported on the matter concerning the request of the directors of the Public Library for the balance of their appropriation, $333.50. He then stated that it had been found that the amount could not be collected and it was considered wise by the finance committee to compromise and offer the directors $400. He then offered a resolution giving that body the sum named.

Another matter reported on by Mr. VanHerwerden was that regarding the request of the Board of Education for their share of the amount collected by the city under the Martin Act. He stated that after due consideration by the corporation counsel, the finance committee and the Mayor it was decided that the share due the Board of Education is $66 04 out of every $195 42 collected. The general apportionment out of the latter amount is as follows: Ct 7, $123 59; $735 70 for the first sewer assessment to close account; fire department, $10.31; library, $3 60; Board of Education, $66 04; poor fund, $7 56; sewer bond fund, $40 cents; sewer interest fund, 95 cents.

The consideration of business and a motion was offered that the Council adjourn on Monday evening, December 18th, at 9 o'clock.

WAIST TROPHY RETURNS

PARK CLUB TEAM SUCCEEDED IN WINNING IT MONDAY NIGHT.

Won From the Jersey City Club by Just One Trick—Park Boys Will Add Prize by the Score of Second Round.

The State challenge trophy of the New Jersey Whist Association has returned to Plainfield again after a somewhat lengthy absence. Monday night it was won by the Park Club four in a match with the Jersey City Club at the clubhouse of the latter. The victory was won by just one trick.

The trophy has journeyed about the various clubs since the season opened and the Jersey City Club has been successful in holding it several times. The Park Club was represented by Peter B. Matthews, Arthur A. Freeman, Albert Woltmann and Ralph Willis. The Jersey City Club had its veteran four, Messrs. D. Bowky, C. Bowky, Scott and Fertig.

The first round showed the Jersey City players ahead by one point, 6 to 5. The teams broke even on the next round, 4 to 4. In the last round, the Park Club boys pulled together and won out on the round 6 to 5, giving them the victory in the match by a score of 17 to 16.

The trophy was brought back to Plainfield last night and now occupies a prominent place in the clubhouse of the Park Club. The next match will be played in this city, probably Wednesday evening, December 13th.

SHE CARES FOR THE BABIES

Miss Curry Told of Her Work in the New York Day Nursery at Trinity Church Monday Night.

There was a very large attendance last Monday at the Christian Endeavor Society meeting at Trinity Reformed Church, when Miss Curry, Superintendentent of the Day Nursery, New York, was present and gave an interesting talk concerning her work. George Bolsterli was in charge of the meeting and introduced the speaker of the evening. She is a thoroughly consecrated woman, full of faith, and a review of her work elicited the liveliest attention of every one present. Miss Curry has been engaged in the work of caring for the babies of poor mothers for four or five years, and during that time over 14,000 babies have been cared for at the Day Nursery. This means that the name and address of each baby is on record, and each one has been kept track of. It is an important part of the work to see that the children, as well as the mothers, are taught to be cleanly in their homes and are taught Christianity and methods for a higher plane of living.

Through the establishment of this day nursery poor mothers are given an opportunity to go out for the day and leave the children at the nursery until the day's work is done. There are at present over forty babies cared for each day.

The money necessary to carry on this work and support it has been received by Miss Curry without the solicitation of a single person for contributions. Miss Curry says that all the money has been received in answer to prayer to God. Miss Curry is a very pleasant person to meet and listen to, and after the regular meeting a number remained and adjourned to the church parlors, where they met her personally and enjoyed a still further talk regarding this work. All felt well repaid for attending the meeting, and thus learning something about this work that is so dear to the heart of Miss Curry.

GRACE P. E. CHURCH AFFAIRS.

Annual Meeting Held and Wardens and Vestrymen Elected.

The annual meeting of Grace P. E. Church was held Monday evening. The following were elected: Wardens, De Witt C. Ivins and Thomas Minford; vestrymen, Marion S. Ackerman, Edward H. Booth, George J. Coe, Charles C. Howard, William T. Gough, Lewis G. Timpson and Charles E Brooks. The vestry is the same as last year with the exception that Mr. Brooks was elected over N. Pendleton Rogers. The delegates to the Diocesan Convention are John E. Dunn, George M. Barnard and George S. Clay; alternates, Marvin S. Ackerman, Lewis G. Timpson and R. Henry Depew.

Sacred Concert and Contest.

A sacred concert and contest between the choirs of the following churches, under the auspices of the Sewing Circle, will be given in Mt. Olive Baptist church, on Thursday, December 21st. The First Baptist church, Cranford; First Baptist church, Westfield; Fillmore Baptist church, A. M. E. Methodist church and Mt. Olive Baptist church, of this city. The prize will be a silver cup. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the church.

Mrs. Morrison Returning Home.

Mrs. T. W. Morrison, of Mountain avenue, who has been so very ill in London at the home of her son, sailed for America on Saturday, accompanied by a nurse. Should she able to stand the voyage and arrive safely, she will be taken to the home of her daughter in Philadelphia, there to spend her few remaining days.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a druggist, M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthropist, and do the greatest good—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is to be found of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co., on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules sold, bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have to call for them?"

He was referred to a gentleman who had charge of the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is enormous and increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of them, to the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are learned I notice that a purchaser comes for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the best fake advertising of the age. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

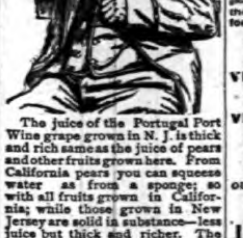
An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules in the days of slow trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the peculiarities of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules commended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what I had demanded. The result never required a physician since, and that means a saving of $3 a call, or $6 a day, or $180 a month, and I would not be without Ripans Tabules for if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview the present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should appear by name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There are a lot of old ladies like myself, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the taking of one of the Tabules enabled some other person similarly afflicted to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how surrounded she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

A new style packet containing ten tabules is now supplied by a large portion of the druggists in the United States and Canada at the price of five cents. This packet is sufficient for ordinary occasions, and the family chest should always be supplied with the larger packet containing seventy-two tabules (one dozen five-cent packets), which is sold at the factory price, sixty cents. Ripans Tabules may be had of druggists generally throughout the United States and Canada.

ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had



The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest,
Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds
and odorless Lawn Dressing.

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,
119 East Front st.

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our cloths. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full direction for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (218 C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept.

VICK SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have gone in thousands of satisfied Customers for a half century and in recognition of this fact the Publishers have issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 24 pages lithographed in colors, 4 pages engraved, and nearly 100 pages finely illustrated from photographs direct from nature. It tells how, when and where to plant Vick's Seeds, Bulbs, Plants, Vines, etc., elegantly treated in what we call the Vick style. It is a complete manual on all subjects pertaining to the garden, and a safe guide for the same, and a descriptive catalogue of all the Vick specialties. It is a book that will be highly appreciated by every one who receives it, and will be used constantly, but we want everybody interested in a good garden to have it, and will send it for 10 cents in stamps. Mention this paper.

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

The Guide with a DUE BILL for 25 cents worth of flower and vegetable seeds for 15cts

It tells how and where it is given for full amount of purchase to buy other goods.

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue

A perfect little gem of a price list. It is as large as the Guide in number of pages, but is small and handy shape for reference. FREE

Vicks Monthly Magazine.

Enlarged, improved and handsomely illustrated each issue. Each number will contain a fine colored plate, suitable for framing. Handsome in form, original in contents, pure in tone, and unique in every respect. Special Limited Offer: Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 50 cents.

Special Limited Offer: Vick's Floral Vegetable Seeds given you more for your money than any other seed house in America.

JAMES VICK'S SONS,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

SEEDS ...FOR THE... Garden and Farm

Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the leading varieties. Our Seed Annual for 1898 is now ready, Illustrated Catalogue FREE.

WEEBER & DON, Seed Importers
114 Chambers St., New York City.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says:
"The International is a wonderfully correct storehouse of accurate information."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is clearly traced, and examples of good use rather than quantity of quantity characterizes its every department.

Illustrative pamphlet and specimen pages free on application to
G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers,
Springfield, Mass.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President,
GEO. W. BOCKEFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. FORT, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the 1st.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, DECEMBER, 14, 1899. NO. 50.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

FIRST WIFE STEPS IN.

Mrs. Sarah Pangborn Claims a Fortune After Years.

IT READS LIKE FICTION

WAS WINFIELD SCOTT ALLEN REAL STEPHEN PANGBORN?

Sensational Developments in Connection With a Valuable Estate in Williamsport, Pa. —Alleged Double Life Led by a Former Resident of Plainfield.

In a modest little cottage on Lake street, one of a number that forms a small settlement south of Watchung avenue, near Netherwood, there lives an aged woman, grey-haired and wrinkled, who has laid claim to one of the largest estates in the city of Williamsport, Pa., and will figure in one of the most sensational lawsuits that has ever been held in the courts of Lycoming county, Pennsylvania. Mrs. Sarah Pangborn, now living in penury with her daughter, declares that her husband, Stephen Pangborn, and Winfield Scott Allen, a prominent and wealthy business man of Williamsport, were one and the same person.

Mrs Pangborn and her daughter, now Mrs. Louis Miller, formerly Mrs. Charles M. Perrine, have instituted a suit through their attorneys, Isaac P. Bunyon, of this city, and James O. Clark, of Westfield, to secure their alleged rights in the case. Winfield Scott Allen left a supposed wife and three children in Williamsport, who lay claim to the estate. Part of the real estate has been disposed of since the death of Mr Allen and is now held principally by the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad.

Only the oldest citizens of Plainfield will remember old Stephen Pangborn who kept a general store on Chatham street, nearly half a century ago. He prospered and accumulated a fair estate. There were ten children in the family. One of the sons was named Stephen after the father.

Young Stephen fell in love with Miss Sarah Giles, the daughter of Mr. James Giles. She was an active, nervous young woman and was considered quite a belle. Her lively temperament suited young Stephen, although his parents were not favorable to the match. On January 1st, 1863, they were married.

It had been the custom for the sons of the elder Pangborn to turn their savings over to their father to keep for them. Stephen did as the rest. It is said that at the time of the marriage, he purchased jewelry and many other gifts for his wife and charged them all to his father, greatly overdrawing the account. The elder Stephen Pangorn settled the bills but the relations between father and son were not the best thereafter.

December 31, 1863, a little girl, Louisa, was born to them. Mrs. Giles came to young Pangborn's home and stayed with her daughter during that period. The sisters of Pangborn also came to help. One day, shortly after the child was born, there were some high words between husband and wife because Pangborn brought something home to his sisters. Mrs. Giles denounced his acts and her daughter sided with her. The quarrel resulted in a separation. Pangborn left his home early in January, 1864, and from that time on she never saw his face again. She took the child and went to live with her parents.

Relatives of the husband declare that he made every effort to support his wife and child but that Mrs. Pangborn utterly refused to have anything more to do with them.

Mrs. Pangborn told a Press reporter yesterday that false heard that her husband had gone out to Williamsport but that she gradually lost track of him there. He occasionally came to Plainfield, she said, and saw their child on several occasions, but made no further attempt at reconciliation. She never heard of his death until she was told a few days after it occurred by her nephew, Daniel Tainor, of this city.

The relatives of Mrs. Pangborn claim that the claim of identity between Stephen Pangborn, who went out into Pennsylvania twenty-five years ago to seek his fortune, and Winfield Scott Allen, the wealthy and respected citizen of Williamsport, is complete.

[CONTINUED ON PAGE 8.]

PLAN TO ORGANIZE NOW.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORKERS TO HAVE AN ASSOCIATION.

Result of the Conference Held in the Seventh-Day Baptist Church—Committee to Do the Preliminary Work.

For the purpose of increasing interest in Sunday-school work in this city a number of teachers from the various churches met in conference at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Tuesday and listened to short talks on the subject from Rev. E. M. Ferguson, of Trenton, State Secretary of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association, and Rev. George Buckle, of Elizabeth, president of the Union County Sunday-school Association. Mr. Ferguson told of the good work that is being accomplished by a perfect organization. He believed in a unity of action, whereby all Sunday schools of the city, if united, would be benefitted by increased interest and numerical strength.

Mr. Buckle said that it was necessary to overcome the earth in the human system by supplanting the spiritual seed in the lives of the boys and girls. He told of the good that had already accomplished in the county and state since the organization of the State Association, and impressed upon those present the importance of a united and concerted action.

After the remarks by the above gentlemen it was the sense of those present that a local association should be formed that would include all the Protestant Sunday-schools of the city. Upon motion, Rev. Dr. Main appointed Rev. J. W. Richardson, Dr. A. R. Lewis, F. E. Smith and E. C. Martin a nominating committee to name a larger and permanent committee to report at a subsequent date upon an organization, that will cooperate with the State Association in efforts to materially benefit the Sunday school work in Plainfield.

FUNERAL OF MRS. KITCHEN.

Services Held From Her Late Home and Largely Attended by Those Who Were Her Friends.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. John H. Kitchen were held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the home on Somerset street, near Coddington avenue, when a large number of friends, neighbors and relatives gathered to pay their last respects.

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, where the deceased was a member, conducted the services. He was assisted by Rev. George Bowers, of Oceantown, a personal friend of the departed who had been for many years. Both divines spoke feelingly and gave the highest testimony to the exemplary Christian life and character of Mrs. Kitchen.

After the service those present were given an opportunity of viewing for the last time the face of the departed. There was a profusion of beautiful floral offerings, and the casket was completely covered with these expressions of love and esteem.

Interment took place in Hillside cemetery, and those who served as pall-bearers, all neighbors, were: Henry Niechwitz, Newton B. Smalley, George W. Taylor, Brazilian R. Waldron, George Egel and Corrs' Ryno.

Died in Colorado.

George B. Harding, who resided on John street, left Plainfield three weeks ago for Manitou, Col., in the hopes that the might gone relief from dread disease, consumption. He arrived there all right, but the change had no beneficial effect for word has been received that he died there last Friday, and was buried in that place Mr. Harding was 34 years of age, and he had many friends in this city who will learn with deep regret of his death.

Christmas Vacation.

The Christmas vacation at the Plainfield High School will begin Friday noon, December 22d. That day special Christmas exercises will be held by the school. Special music appropriate to that season is now being practiced. The public will be invited to attend although there is really but little space in which they may be accommodated.

—Hand, the stationer, of West Front street, has a store well stocked with seasonable goods for the holidays. A good place to select your Christmas presents.

—At the close of the Bible study conference this evening there will be a meeting of the general committee. All members are earnestly requested to attend.

—Sparklets—No need of reducing our city's gas to a dollar when we have it for 2½ cents. Wm. W. Moore, 210 Park avenue.

—Sparklets—At last we have found something to give a man for his Christmas. Wm. W. Moore, 210 Park avenue.

NOT SUCH A JOB TO WIDEN THE STREET.

No Really Important Changes Will Have to be Made.

ONE BUILDING TO MOVE.

UNDERGROUND TELEPHONE WIRES TO FOLLOW IMPROVEMENT.

Borough Officials Have Undertaken the Project With Great Interest and Vigor —Exact Figures of Cost Will Soon be Prepared, But it is Not Estimated to be More Than $2,000.

The project to widen Somerset street seems to find general favor among the residents of the borough. Somerset street is the principal thoroughfare of the borough and yet it is one of the narrowest of all the streets there. With the trolley cars, the present width, thirty feet, is hardly large enough to accomodate the traffic. The addition of ten feet to the width of the street would greatly relieve the congestion at busy times.

The plan, as mapped out by the street committee of the Borough Council, in consultation with Mayor N. B. Smalley and Senator C. A. Reed, is to add ten feet to the width of the street from Green brook to Jackson avenue. A careful examination of the situation has been found necessary to move but one small building, the little cobbler's shop, just north of Pearl street. There are several pianos that will have to be reduced in width and the sidewalks, in many cases unusually wide, will be reduced to normal size.

The committee has the assurance of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company that in case the improvement is carried through, the company will take up all its old poles and place its wires underground in conduits as in Plainfield. It is expected that the Plainfield Electric Light Company will be willing to do the same. This would do away with over a hundred poles that now stretch along Somerset street.

A number of trees will have to be removed and the street will gain a far more open appearance with a reduction in the number of trees and the absence of the forest of telephone and electric light poles.

It is estimated that the entire cost to the borough of the improvement will be in the neighborhood of $2,000. Exact figures will be prepared and presented at the public hearing next week. At that time it is to be hoped that the property owners along Somerset street will be prepared to give the required consent for the improvement.

Miss Marsh's Method of Teaching.

Miss Anna O. Marsh wishes to answer questions about her vocal sight reading classes by stating that her teaching is similar to that of Frank Damrosch in his large people's classes in New York city. Miss Marsh received her diploma from the Holt School of Vocal Harmony, from which Mr. Damrosch also graduated at an earlier date. The method employed aims to develop in pupils an intelligent idea about time, and to train them to sing and recognize tones independent of an instrument, and thus help them to become quick readers at sight.

Planned to Grave Inside Her Sister.

Miss Laura Winton, daughter of former Senator Henry D. Winton, of Hackensack, who died Saturday afternoon from the shock of the sudden death of her sister, was buried Tuesday alongside her sister. The flowers on her sister's grave were quite fresh yesterday. Rev. Herman Vanderwalt, of the First Reformed Church, made a touching address. Members of Miss Winton's graduating class and her associates in church work were at the funeral services.

Moves Big Barn.

Tony Lazardi, the North avenue fruit dealer, is suffering from a severe injury to his right leg caused by his horse hitting him on the thigh. Mr. Lazardi was at New Market Tuesday on business. When passing in front of his horse the animal suddenly snapped at him, seizing his leg in his teeth and biting it seriously.

A Prize Meeting.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church will hold a praise meeting next Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the chapel of the church. An address will be delivered by Mrs. J. F. Pingry, of New York. Tea will be served at 5:30 o'clock.

Locating Alley Witnesses.

Constable Totten, of Somerville, has been spending several days in the borough looking up witnesses for the Paul Roehricht murder trial that will be called at Somerville next Monday.

DULL WHITE OVER RED.

NEW COLOR FOR THE LETTER BOXES IN THIS CITY.

Department Officials Have Promised Postmaster Bird to Have Improvement Made—Carrier Service Satisfactory.

Postmaster Bird has succeeded in securing from the officials at Washington their consent to repaint the letter boxes in the city and borough. The change will be a novel and pleasing one. The box will be painted an aluminum color and the lettering thereon will be in red, making a very attractive box and one that can be seen a great distance off. These boxes will be mounted on green posts. For some time past Mr. Bird has been working on this matter and a few days ago he received a letter saying his wish had been granted and in a short time the boxes will be painted.

Under the new schedule adopted, with the increased number of carriers, the people of city and borough are receiving a superior service that is certainly gratifying. In the main portion of the city and borough three deliveries are given every day. In some instances persons are able to get their first mail while they are eating breakfast, before they leave for New York. Mr. Bird has been generously congratulated by a number of people on the excellent service that is being given. The schedule is certainly working in a most satisfactory manner.

YALE CLUB ELECTS.

Annual Banquet of Club Will Probably be Held Again This Year—Committee Appointed.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Yale Club was held last Tuesday at the residence of Fred W. Yates, of Kensington avenue. The attendance was small. The following officers were elected: President, Charles S. Foote; vice president, William N. Bunyon; secretary-treasurer, Harry L. McGee; members of executive committee, James B. Joy, Dr. Dr. W. R. Richards and George A. Strong.

William N. Bunyon was appointed chairman of a committee to ascertain the possibilities of a successful club dinner. The general sentiment of the members present at the meeting was that a dinner should be held this winter.

The prizes awarded to Plainfield boys who passed the best entrance examination into Yale University last fall, were announced. Roger Richards won the prize in the academic department and Carroll L. Bunyon in the Sheffield Scientific School.

SUCCESSFUL SALE.

Result of Candy Sale at Residence of Fred H. Andrews, Central Avenue, Announced.

The candy sale held at the residence of Fred. H. Andrews, Central avenue, December 8d, proved very successful. The net proceeds were $22. The object of the sale was to raise money to pay for the Christmas tree at Hope chapel. $22 was needed for that object. The extra $10 will be divided between Muhlenberg Hospital and the Children's Home.

The children who managed the sale were the Misses Katherine Titus, Alice Titus, Dorothy Fisk, Annee Fisk, Helen Timpson, Jessie Miller, Margaret Leggett, Mollie Perkins, Marjorie Phillips and Louise Andrews.

A Talk on Naked Men.

Monday evening at the North Plainfield Public High School, Former Mayor Charles Place, of Grove street, gave the second of a series of talks on the subject, "Noted Men Whom I Have Met," and it proved to be as thoroughly interesting as the preceding talk. Among those mentioned, whom the speaker has met are Charles Dickens, Horace Greely, John B. Gough and Henry Ward Beecher. He also mentioned the name of Anna A. Dickinson. About each one he related something personal and told something of the characteristics of each.

Why?

The best gold fishes come from China; one of the rarest and most expensive of these is the Brustail, a pair of which sells for $1,000. But why should you buy a Brustail at that rate when you can procure a whisk broom, with solid silver handle, for a dollar? Personal answers to the conundrum will be received at Collier's, 103 Park avenue, during business hours between now and January 1st, next.

Approaching Nuptials.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Mabel VanMiddlesworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry VanMiddlesworth, of Elmwood place, and John Goodman, of Manning avenue. The event will take place Monday evening, January 1st, at the home of the bride's parents.

John Naylor, of East Third street, is improving from a severe attack of pneumonia.

"BELIEVERS HAVE INHERITED CHRIST."

Principal Points Brought Out By Don O. Shelton.

BIBLE STUDY CONFERENCE

ANOTHER LARGE AUDIENCE OF CHRISTIANS IN Y. M. C. A.

The Teaching of Mr. Shelton is Very Popular and it Has been Decided to Hold The Rest of The Meetings in The First Presbyterian Church—A Subject of Intense Interest To be Considered Tonight.

The Bible Conference that is being held in the Y. M. C. A. Hall was continued Tuesday with a large and thoroughly appreciative audience, which seems to be increasing steadily. The main part of the hall was filled and many occupied seats in the gallery. Nearly everyone present had a Bible and followed closely the talk and instructions given by Mr. Shelton. Preceding the talk there was the usual song service by the choir under the direction of Horace J. Martin, and Mr. Shelton gave the customary ten minute address on how to study the Bible. The points mentioned and dwelt upon for a few minutes included a study of the Bible consecutively, prayerfully meditatively and perseveringly. Just before Mr. Shelton commenced the study of the evening, G. M. Bitzenhouse, who was in charge, conducted a brief season of prayer in which several persons offered prayer. It was announced that the conference would be held in the First Presbyterian church tomorrow and Friday evenings, and that on the last evening Prof. Harper Smyth, the noted evangelistic singer, who has been associated with Dr. Chapman, will be present and sing.

The conference last night devoted its attention to the person and work of Christ as shown in Ephesians. Preliminary to this Mr. Shelton spoke briefly on methods for reading and studying the Bible. He began by referring to the high esteem in which the Bible is held by Oliver Cromwell, for whom, Mr. Moody says "a single volume comprehended all literature, and that volume was the Bible." Mr. Shelton also referred to the statement of Charles Dudley Warner, which is now familiar to the liberal education in itself. He then urged his hearers to read and study the Bible: (1) Consecutively. No part should be neglected. (2) Prayerfully. (3) Meditatively. Reference was made to James 1:22 and John 20:31. (4) Perseveringly. The famous Dr. Johnson, on his death bed, said to a young friend: "Attend to the advice of one who has had some fame in this world and who will shortly appear before his Maker: read the Bible every day of your life." Each of the foregoing points was forcibly illustrated.

Mr. Shelton began the study of the evening by saying the key thought of the epistle under consideration was the oneness of the believer with Christ Jesus.

In speaking of the fact that the hardship of the church is Christ, he told how Rev. Dr. Gordon, pastor of the Clarendon Street Baptist church, of Boston, came to completely change his method of work through the influence of a vivid dream. He dreamed that he was preaching a sermon in his church to his regular congregation, when, so it seemed in his dream, there came into the church a stranger of such appearance that somehow all his speech was directed to this one individual. At the close of the sermon, as his dream ran, Dr. Gordon asked the official who had shown the stranger to his seat, if he knew who the stranger was. "Why," said the official, "didn't you know? That was Christ." Dr. Gordon seemed to feel a deep distress at his not having met the Master. The official said to him, so he dreamed "Well, he was here today, and he may come again." Dr. Gordon made that the key note to all his work, preaching, visiting, and all, from that day on, and his ministry took on new power.

Mr. Shelton showed that Christ is the believers inheritance. He said that "all believers have inherited Christ." The grace, mercy, peace love and power of God are for us through Christ. This is plainly declared to be the purpose of God, "who worketh all things after the counsel of His own will."

"In 1 Peter, 1 3-5, reference is made to the believer's inheritance. He points out three distinct and beautiful characteristics of this inheritance: (1) It is incorruptible. It is not subject to decay. One of the most charming of earthly things "transitory" is written. The harvest fields turn to gold in the summer sun only to be consumed. Flowers bloom but to fade. The

[CONTINUED ON PAGE 4.]

XMAS GIFTS IN PLENTY.

ARTICLES THAT IT IS POSSIBLE TO BUY IN PLAINFIELD.

No Need for Plainfielders to Go to Big Cities for Their Presents, for There is Variety and Quality Here.

Christmas shopping has begun in earnest and the merchants are as busy as bees in honey time. It is indeed a pleasure to choose Xmas gifts when there are stores full of handsome goods to select from, such as are to be found at Woodhull & Martin's, where several extra clerks have been added to the force to keep pace with the demands of the constantly increasing crowds. From now on until "the night before Christmas" this store will be kept open until 9 o'clock to accommodate the many patrons of the establishment. The holiday trade, of course, is the one being catered to at present.

This firm has a splendid of choice toys, and fancy articles including medallians, clocks, toilet articles and an endless assortment of books. There's an endless display of dolls—dolls with white and black hair, dolls that go to sleep, dolls that don't shut their eyes; big dolls, little dolls, at almost any price from 10 cents up. In other toys there are all kinds of games, drums, wagons, rail top desks, toy stoves in which a fire can be made, child's blackboards, swinging horses, dolls bureaus, washstands, etc. Space is not available to mention the endless variety of toys and fixings to fill the little one's stocking. In more sensible presents, there's the furniture department in the basement made larger than ever owing to the removal of the carpet department to the old VanEmburg store just west of the post office. No better or larger stock of furniture is to be found outside of New York. Here may be found ladies' writing desks, fancy rockers, etc., in various styles, quite suitable for Christmas gifts, to say nothing about the elegant and substantial bedroom suits. We almost forgot to mention that among the fancy, yet useful goods may be found the celebrated Paul E. Wirt fountain pen—the best on the market.

In the more staple goods are to be seen as the center of attraction, dry goods, blankets, cloaks and everything usually to be found in a first class establishment. The carpet department, west of the post office, referred to above, is one of the most complete in the State. The stock is all freshly selected and there are many designs in all grades to select from. Better go early to select your Christmas gifts and avoid the rush that there is sure to be next week. If possible come in the forenoon. But if not convenient then come when it is. You will be a welcome visitor at the store at any time. If you do not make a purchase it will amuse you and not harm Messrs. Woodhull & Martin.

A RESORT FOR SANTA CLAUS

Large Display of Holiday Goods to be Found at Crosby & Hill's.

Busy Days.

Crosby & Hill, Plainfield's popular dry goods merchants, are now ready and prepared to receive their many friends who are desirous of making purchases for the holidays. Today they announce their holiday opening and Manager Casson has made it a point to see that articles that will meet every pocketbook can be found in their large store. A specialty is made of toys of all kinds. The firm imported them this year and in addition an importer's surplus stock was purchased. All kinds of toys can be found at 5 and 10 cents that formerly sold for 50 cents. These are arranged in the new basement just opened, and it will pay one to examine this stock. Other specialties that are seasonable are handkerchiefs, ribbons, umbrellas, gloves, hosiery, at popular prices, and a stock of fine goods is kept as well. The firm will make a drive in sterling silverware and they have any number of novelties at reasonable prices.

In brass goods they can give good bargains. This stock is complete, including everything. There is also a complete line of Roger Brothers' silverware at prices that are right. In the basement there is to be found a full line of fancy and plain chairs, including the popular Morris chair. The house furnishing goods department contains everything needed, and in fact there is not a thing that is to be found in such a store that cannot be purchased at Crosby & Hill's. An inspection will convince all of the merits of the goods.

—Sparklets, a useful holiday gift, at a moderate cost. Wm. W. Moore, 210 Park avenue.

Dr. Ralph Waldo Emerson will at an early date take up his residence in Washington avenue, in Washington Park, where he and his brother, who is a practicing physician, will open office.

NEW CITY OFFICIALS TOOK THE OATH

Sworn in by Mayor Rockfellow Tuesday Night.

FEW WERE NOT PRESENT.

THEY WERE RE SWORN IN BY MAYOR YESTERDAY.

Constable Amos Moffett Sworn in for Third Consecutive Time—Some of the New Men Were Strangers to the Mayor—Councilman Buckle Will be Sworn in at Home, as He is Ill.

Mayor George W. Rockfellow spent an hour at his office in the Steward building on Tuesday and administered the oath to the city officials elected at the recent municipal election. Most of them were there. Others were to be sworn in Wednesday. Councilman J. T. Buckle is too ill to leave his home and the Mayor will have to go to him.

According to law, the successful candidates to the municipal offices must be sworn in within ten days after they are elected. Consequently notification was sent to all those elected that they might appear before the Mayor last night and take the oath agreeing to the proper performance of their duties.

Dennis Carney, Justice-of-the-Peace-elect in the First ward, was the first to swear to faithfully perform his duties. After him, the others followed in rapid succession, Councilman-elect William L. Glaat, of the First ward, was the first of the Councilmen to take the oath. He was followed by Councilman J. B. Dumont.

A number of city officials, politicians and reporters gathered in the City Clerk's office and the lobby in the Mayor's office to watch the proceedings. Councilman Robert L. Ege, of the Fourth ward, was not known to the Mayor and others of the party. He made himself known to the Mayor and was promptly sworn in.

Amos Moffett, Constable from the Third ward, was sworn in for the thirty-fourth consecutive time. Mr. Moffett is the oldest city official, in term of service, now in the city.

Councilman C. B. Clifton and School Trustee J. A. Probasco were unable to be on hand last evening and were sworn in by the Mayor this morning. This afternoon, the Mayor will visit the home of Councilman Buckle and administer the oath. The officials who have yet failed to take the oath are Justice of the Peace Thomas Hanna, and Constable William Callahan of the Second ward.

EVERY FIFTEEN MINUTES NOW.

Five Cars Running on the Line From Cranford to This City.

Five cars are now running on the trolley line between Cranford and Plainfield, and it is expected that several new cars ordered will reach Plainfield to be put on the line at any minute. The cars are running from Cranford to the Plainfield depot without change, under 15-minute headway. The cars leave Plainfield and, Cranford and Broad street, at Westfield, on the hour and every fifteen minutes.

Over 200 Italian laborers were discharged from the work, which is now about completed for the winter. Only a small gang yet remains to finish up at Roselle, and it is expected that Constructing Engineer Serrell will be through with the work to the Elizabeth city line by Christmas.

Given a Song Recital.

Miss Dora Louise Topping, of New York, is a guest at the home of David D. Smalley, of Manning avenue, and Tuesday she gave a song recital during which she gave a demonstration and talk on the scientific production of voice according to the John Howard method. There were about fifty people present and all were highly entertained and instructed. Later on Miss Topping may organize a class in this city.

Councilman Barrows Taking Vacation.

Councilman E. T. Barrows, of West Eighth street, is now enjoying a two weeks' vacation in the south, accompanied by his wife and children. Mr. Barrows, who is president of the New York Produce Exchange, attended to his business duties all summer, hardly missing a day. He is now on a well-earned vacation. He returns the last of this week.

Not to Meet Again This Year.

It is not likely that the Mayor and Borough Council will hold another meeting this year, as there is nothing of importance to call them together.

Miss Moynihan, of Bound Brook, has been visiting Plainfield relatives.

BLACK AND GRAY FIRST.

Society Has Set Its Seal on These Colors—Echoes of the Horse Show.

Of all the dresses seen at the horse show three-fourths were black or gray. The black were purple or some one of the light pearl shades which are not only popular now, but will be far more so next spring.

The principal trimming was spangles, so many that no words could do justice to their glitter and sparkle.

One would like to tell many things of interest, but when one is set to tell only of the lovely ladies and what they wore it is hampering work. The salient points to be seized upon may be summed up thus: First, the seal set upon the choice of black and gray as the most fashionable colors; second, the fact that picture hats—that is to say, the great Gainsborough styles—will be worn and will be trimmed with not only the bedding plumes with which we are all familiar, but bows as large in comparison.

Fur toques, fur turbans and fur everything in the form of a bonnet is almost a fad, fur and lace trimming on everything, even some evening gowns, though there really was no very low necked dress to be seen. There were a few young ladies without high collars to their waists, but they were not exactly what one could call decollete.

The style for cloaks and wraps was diverse, and there was everything from a white cape to a lace and satin wrap. There were fur bordered ulsters made of light tans, reaching quite to the bottom of the dress, and there were short and long box coats of light colored cloths, one had a wide band of the same material in another shade set on and closely stitched in many lines around the bottom and across the shoulders. This was fastened with large white pearl buttons. It looked very swell.

CLOTH AND FUR COSTUME.

Mrs. Burke Roche had a sack coat of real chinchilla, with a high collar of the same, which formed a pretty background for her refined and delicate features. Her dress was of gray and her hat of gray tulle with spangled angel wings, the spangles in silver. The whole scheme of color was in different shades of gray.

Velvet, broadcloth and china crape seemed to be the three favorites for gowns. The crape was nearly always made the foundation for elaborate spangle trimming. Black net was literally covered with them. So were silk tissues sometimes. The velvet dresses were trimmed with heavy lace and fur or jetted passementerie or embroidery, often both.

There was absolutely no dress that I could see trimmed with fringe in spite of the determined effort of the dressmakers to force it forward. The plum shades in velvet appear to be liked better than anything but black.

I saw two young ladies, one in a dark blue and the other in a dark green velvet dress. They looked like sisters. Miss Gallatin wore a silver gray cloth suit, with short jacket, the front filled in with a cascade of pale pink chiffon, with silver spangles strewed upon the edge. Her hat was very large and covered with immense gray and white plumes.

Mrs. Edmond Bayles wore a costume of blue broadcloth, cut so that the back part of the skirt had a spring flounce, headed by a roleau of a light gray fur. This same fur extended across and up the front in form of a tablier. The waist and skirt were sewed together at the waist under a roll of fur. There was a cape of the same blue gray fur, with long tabs. The revers were faced with pale uncut velvet, bound with the fur and having a rich lace cravat. The hat was made to match.

The cloth suits, as a rule, were strap seamed, stitched and finished with the most exaggerated perfection. One tan colored coat over a light colored skirt had almost a princess shape, with a stitched on spring flounce some ten inches deep at the bottom. All this was stitched most exquisitely. It was lined with white satin.

The velvet coats generally have the backs all in one piece, like the box shapes, but the trimming on them makes up for the plain back.

The plaited skirt about which so much has been said lately as a reaction from the habit skirt had but one representative. That was a lavender gray cloth. On the sides and in the back it was laid close to the hips in plaits only about ten inches deep.

HENRIETTA ROCHEFAU.

FASHION NOTES.

Methods of Converting Old Clothes Into New Ones.

Gown bodices made in the coat style have very short basques, but coats themselves are longer. A coat which is too short may be lengthened by the addition of a wide band of fur. Capes also may be rejuvenated in a similar fashion. The short cape with a straight edge has practically disappeared, the capes now worn being longer and sloping downward toward the back, with the front corners rounded off. Old capes may be cut to the desired form and then be made longer by a circular ruffle or a band of fur, or a band of the same goods may be cut to the right shape and added, the junction being concealed by passementerie or other applied trimming.

TAFFETA GOWN.

The straight sack of medium length is another new garment which may be made out of an old one. The skirt of a long redingote will supply material for the body of the sack, and as sleeves have been growing steadily smaller the old ones can be cut down to right shape and size. The goods may even be pieced if the seams are planned so as to be concealed under little, stitched straps of satin or cloth which form a trimming.

The gown illustrated is of sky blue taffeta. The skirt is terminated by two circular flounces, the upper simulating a pointed tunic, headed by applications of white silk embroidery. The fitted bodice is stitched in front and has a yoke of guipure on white satin and a plastron of shirred white mousseline de soie. The revers are of white satin embroidered with pale blue silk. White lace bretelles are gathered at the shoulders by little bows of white satin. The hat of black velvet is trimmed with black plumes or a cluster of pink orchids. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION HINTS.

Heavy Garments For Use During Cold Weather.

The straight sack is decorated sometimes with a short bolero, sometimes with yoke or a pelerine. Circular ruffles also frequently follow the edge. These sacks always suggest a nightgown, and the woman who ventures to wear one must be tall, well formed and of a fine and dignified carriage, else the undressed look is exaggerated. It also needs a woman with the same characteristics to carry off the old fashioned shawl wrap, which has been revived. It has a point back and front and is rather long and on the wrong woman is the acme of dowdiness.

Cloth polonaises, jackets or long wraps are much trimmed with applications of cloth of a contrasting color and of velvet outlined with fine galloons.

MANTLE.

A novelty is seen in the shape of plaid perforated cloth, the cut designs being brought into prominence by a backing of plain color.

Fur is now treated like ordinary material and is adapted to all the usual forms of dress—bodices, gowns and hats, as well as wraps. It composes circular flounces and even large circular bows.

The mantle illustrated is of velours du nord, which forms a point at the back, the front and each shoulder, and is embroidered with jet. Below the velvet is a deep border of sable, headed by a jet cord and edged by a band of embroidered velours du nord. The collar is of embroidered velours and has a satin choux in front. The mantle is lined with white broche silk. JUDIC CHOLLET.

WINTER FASHIONS.

Notes of Various Styles Now Prevailing.

Ivory satin velours is employed for some very elaborate bridal gowns.

Velvet and cloth in combination are much used this winter. The velvet is often of the same shade, but covered with close lines of stitching. It forms collars, cuffs, revers, bands and pocket flaps.

Hats are of large or medium size, no very small ones being worn. Although bright and light colors are fashionable, many black hats are worn. They are chiefly of velvet or drawn silk and are trimmed with ostrich plumes. Infantile hats of taffeta, with a large, full crown and a brim composed of fine plaitings, are adopted by many women, but they are really suitable only for very young girls and little children.

WEDDING GOWN.

For stationery light tints, such as blue, mauve, gray and dull green, are used, but many of the most elegant women always use white or cream, with either a dull or a glace finish. The cipher or other device is placed at the middle or left corner of the top of the sheet.

The wedding gown illustrated is of white satin and is in the princess style. The yoke is composed of horizontal plaits of white satin and continues downward in front in the form of a plastron and tablier. All three are outlined by a ruche and plaited ruffle of mousseline de soie, which continue around the foot of the train. The sleeves are plain, with flaring ruffs and a full of mousseline de soie. Sprays of orange blossoms are placed at the shoulder and the waist, and a tiny crown of them fastens the illusion veil to the hair.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE MODE.

Mourning Fashions—Velvets For Winter Wear.

The fashion of motifs for application has won such favor that even mourning dress cannot be part of the current order, are decorated with applied motifs of crape of all sorts of odd forms. Bands of crape also design chevrons, Greek patterns and ornate effects.

A novelty in mourning handkerchiefs is of white lawn, with an insertion and ruffle of black chantilly lace. This lace washes perfectly.

For very little children's wear the preferred mourning dress is pure white. Black ribbons, sashes and stockings may be adopted.

Velvet is enjoying immense favor this winter. Not only silk velvets are worn—and they are seen in bewildering variety—but there are many velveteens, plain, printed and fancy woven, as well as curdury of all kinds. Golden brown, blue, Russian green, wine and chinchilla are fashionable colors, and dark gray is also very well worn. These gowns are trimmed with little olives in jewsied effects.

MORNING JACKET.

The picture given today shows a morning jacket of velvet. It has a watteau plait at the back and falls straight in front and is trimmed with bands of valenciennes insertion, of which two circulate the waist, while the third is drawn through and tied in bows at the top. The third band follows the outline of the jacket in a zigzag pattern. A frill of lace confines the neck, and the lace passes down the front in cascades and follows the edge of the basques. The half length sleeves are plaited in the middle, the top forming a puff and the lower part a flounce, with a lace ruffle at the edge. There are lace epaulets and bands of lace form a collar, the ribbon ends ribbon drawn through and tied in bows.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Otherwise Inspired.

"Henry, you said you'd take me to the opera."

"I know I did, Amelia, but I decided I'd rather have a winter overcoat."—Chicago Record.

FASHION NOTES.

Materials Employed For Cold Weather Costumes.

All heavy, soft goods are in great demand—poplins, silk damasks and especially plushes, which are used in many varieties. It is plain or is embroidered, perforated and enriched with all sorts of applications.

For gowns for ordinary hard service heavy serge in the plain, standard shades is generally adopted—blues, browns and beiges. Fine velvet of the same shade as the serge continues to be the preferred trimming, being used as applications for folds and in all sorts of ways.

Cloak composed the majority of the long wraps which are so much seen this winter. These are even made with a train sometimes, and, while they are very useful for carriage wear, they are quite unsuited for walking and impede progress most effectually.

PRINCESS TUNIC.

A new material just been produced which has a very long pile and is of a beautiful gray. It is called "chinchilla" and closely resembles that attractive but perishable fur.

The costume illustrated has a trained skirt of broche silk in two tones of gray. The primrose tunic is of gray cloth, slightly draped across the bosom and at the waist and fastened at the left side with two gold buckles. It has a wide collar bordered with knotted gray silk fringe, and the edges of the tunic are also trimmed with fringe. Above the fringe is a fine embroidered design. The sleeves, high collar and little plastron are of broche silk. The hat is of velvet of black velvet is trimmed with gray ostrich plumes and a jeweled buckle. The narrow black velvet strings are tied under the ear. JUDIC CHOLLET.

GOWNS OF CEREMONY.

Details of the Elegant Costume of the Moment.

It is not a necessity that for formal toilets the hat or bonnet should be of just the same shade as the gown. This rule is considered decidedly inelastic, but now the hat may be quite different in color provided that it harmonizes.

Toque and capote hats are more ceremonious than the round hat. Nevertheless very young girls may permissibly wear round hats to weddings, receptions, etc. The hat, of whatever form it is, must equal the rest of the costume in elegance, and even the best quality of felt is not worn, velvet, silk, embroidery or beaded tulle being employed. Neither veil nor wraps is proper, these articles being left in the carriage or the cloakroom.

BENDALINE GOWN.

Pure white gloves without colored stitching are still the rule for dress wear, and glace kid is now considered more elegant than suede.

Silk stockings of the color of the gown frequently accompany costumes of ceremony, although black silk stockings are always in excellent taste.

The picture above shows a gown of green bengaline, the skirt being trimmed at the foot with two narrow bands of sable, while two other bands simulate a tunic drapery, which is fastened at the back and crossed and plaited in front. It opens over a full chemisette and collar of mauve mousseline de soie and has a wide collar of white satin embroidered with mauve and trimmed with two little bands of sable. A frill of mauve mousseline de soie edges the collar. The plain sleeves of green bengaline are finished at the wrist with a band of fur and a frill of mauve stitched velvet and is trimmed with mauve ribbon and mauve plumes.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

JUVENILE STYLES.

Fashions Adopted For Little and Large Girls.

Some yachts are preferred as outside garments for little children, and even quite large girls wear them. The long cloak, like a sack, reaches to the edge of the dress and closed with a double row of buttons, is also in vogue. For half grown girls the jacket of the fall suiting variety makes a favorite. For warmer days the Carrick cape, coming only to the waist and composed of three scant pelerines, is well worn.

Grown up girls adopt the usual styles for women, with the more formal characteristics omitted. For example, the medici collar is not worn, as it gives too mature an aspect, and a young girl should remain young as long as possible. The capuchin also is rarely worn, except for golf or evening capes, where it is of some practical use. The great aim is to keep the entire wardrobe simple and girlish as may be, and in order to gain this end rich materials and trimmings must be eschewed and all mature styles which tend to add dignity and age to the appearance of the wearer.

GIRL'S CLOAK.

The picture shows a girl's cloak of Russian green cloth. It is long and is cut quite straight, being closed at the left side by loops and large cloth buttons. A wide, stitched band of cloth ornaments the body of the cloak. The pelerine is covered with a black, braided design and is bordered with astrakhan, the collar being also of astrakhan. The sleeves have braided cuffs. The gray velvet hat is trimmed with green ribbon and a gold bugle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FANCIES OF FASHION.

Novelties For the Luxurious Woman's Wardrobe.

Panne, the beautiful new material which fashion has so eagerly adopted, is a sort of very thin, delicate velvet, something like matique velvet. It has a short, flattened pile, with a soft, lustrous quality, and comes in the most exquisite colorings. It is plain or is printed just as fancy dictates, the printed design being usually of a close, mixed character. There are moire effects also. Many exquisite evening wraps are made of panne, mingled with lace and fur, and it is also used as a lining for fur mantles and other luxurious garments. Neck and bat boas with fringed ends are also made of it.

WINTER HAT.

The lining is becoming of more importance than the outside in the case of some garments. For example, a simple tailor made gown has a skirt lining entirely puffed in such tiny puffs that the effect is of a sort of moussline. The puffing is all done by hand and is the work of great time and patience, intended to increase the expense and luxury of a costume said to be built in plain and quiet.

A picture is given which illustrates a typical winter hat. The crown is covered with bias folds of coral velvet. The brim is draped with a wide scarf of corall taffeta having fringed ends. The scarf forms a choux at the left side, from which the fringed ends drop. Plumes of velvet of the same shade are placed under the brim next the hair. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SIZES OF SPROCKETS.

From Small to Large and Now Smaller Again.

It is on the card that big sprocket wheels have had their day; and while it is not to be supposed that they are extremes, it is by no means unlikely that a reaction will shortly set in that will once more bring in smaller and possibly small chain wheels. The evident desire for somewhat lighter machines is likely to do much to bring this about.

With the coming of the safety machine, and the consequent necessity of gearing up to obtain even a moderate degree of speed, the bicycle sprocket wheel made its appearance. As at first fitted it was neither large nor small. Weight had not become a burning question at that time, and makers naturally paused on the happy mean in the matter of sprocket-wheel sizes. They were too much occupied with other problems of a pressing nature to descend to such trivialities as the proper number of teeth a sprocket wheels should contain.

After most of the problems had been satisfactorily overcome which took some years—the weight question assumed great importance. In looking about for ways to lighten a machine the sprocket wheels and chain could not long be overlooked. Widths of chains ran the whole scale—from five-eighths of an inch made its appearance. In a few cases, to one-eighth; thus covering the two extremes and finally settling at about one-quarter inch. At the same time the number of teeth in the chain wheel was cut down. Instead of nine and ten-tooth rear sprockets that formerly ruled. They came down to six and seven, while five-tooth front chain wheels underwent only slight alteration, for the demand for higher gears partly kept pace with the increase that resulted from the use of small rear sprockets.

The cranx for light weights and small sprocket wheels reached a period at practically the same time. Straightway both began to retrace their steps, but sprocket wheels cut a much larger figure than did weights. They climbed steadily upward, until nine and ten-tooth rear wheels became customary once more. As gears had been stiffened also, the front sprocket wheel had to be increased in proportion, until twenty-five teeth ceased to be unusual, and even larger ones than this were not abnormal. The "freak" machines thirty teeth were not at all uncommon.

The additional weight necessitated by the use of such chain wheels was considerable. Chains were much narrowed, of course but the additional length—four and one-half feet being equal in some instances—almost counterbalanced this gain. As to the sprocket wheels themselves, there was nothing to set against the additional weight, and that is not true for the complacence of the riding public in the matter of weight the use of such heavy chain wheels could not have been tolerated. This apathy as regards weight and the advantage, real or supposed, obtained by the use of large sprockets, made it possible to fit them.

Once more the time seems ripe for a change. Extremely large chain wheels are no longer in favor, and there is every reason to believe that small ones—say nine and ten-tooth rear and twenty-three to twenty-five front —will have to go. They have been in favor so long that their first flush of novelty, and many riders would hail a drop with acclamation. At the same time it should be borne in mind that the size of the sprocket is not to be largely on the question of weight. Any considerable reduction in this respect must be brought about partly by the use of smaller sprockets, which—Bicycle World.

Light Tires For Winter.

Rather a curious theory, one directly opposed to generally accepted ideas, is advanced by an English writer. He contends that light tires are better suited for winter than for summer riding. His reasons have much to commend them and are worthy the attention of riders at this time, when many are contemplating changes of equipment. He says that the ideal tire for winter riding. He says he finds the light road racing tires are good in the end of winter, do not cut through into the inner tube, and do not slide up as much as big tires and are less uncomfortable, because most of the time in winter riders are "pad fed" with mud. On the other hand the narrow hard tires, except the best of them, bump distressingly on the frozen ruts; they do not easily vibration, it is agreed, is the chief thing suffered from small tires.

As one rides longer distances and at a higher rate in winter a tire measure of 1¾ inches diameter is therefore better than one of 1¼ inches for summer use, unless one desires to slowish, while through the mud of winter the "speed" tires will lessen the exertion and the side slip. While the road conditions in England differ from ours, there are some things to be said on the other side of this proposition, the points made are too well taken to be unheeded.

Billiards While Riding.

Impossible as it may seem, a billiard match has been played on bicycles, the opponents on the occasion being Mr. Arthur Lumley, champion, and an equally well-known artist. This proved a greater test of skill than the match between players on horseback, as the latter could not only propelled to make their strokes while the bicycle was in motion, it being one of the necessary rules of the game that either of the players balked during a stroke or allowed his bicycle to touch the table, the score, if any, was to be scored to his opponent. The latter at last ultimately won easily, and exhibited himself by a new bicycle in consequence. The most unique billiard match on record was that in which a German crack defeated a well-known English amateur, the conditions stipulating that the German must not let his machine touch the ground in the course of the performance under the circumstances.

Jeffries now talks of taking on Corbett before he does Sharkey.

MASCULINE FASHIONS.

Dress Suits, Sack Coats and Trousers and House Coats.

Extremists in dress are endeavoring to introduce the wearing of braided seams on evening dress trousers. This attempt must be classed with the recent one to create a vogue for velvet collars on dress coats. Both are vagaries of fashion that will be eschewed by men of taste, who are jealous of the preservation of distinctive evening clothes, enforced alike by custom and tradition. Occasionally a fad of this sort may be tacitly sanctioned by the wearing of a few men who are ignorant of it. By most men braided seams, velvet collars and like innovations in evening attire are regarded as a species of grotesque effrontery not to be treated with amused tolerance.

Stripes and checks in sack suits are little approved this season. Solid dark mixtures in rough fabrics, such as cheviots and unfinished worsteds, are very stylish. Serges, except rough cloths, have been relegated to the background. Cheviots with a sprinkling of red, brown or green in the patterns are eminently correct. Sack coats are not long. They are longer than their shape exactly. Trousers are wider than heretofore, and will doubtless before long attain the English standard, of fullness.

Smoking jackets and house coats have not escaped the reaction from gaudy colors that prevails in most branches of men's apparel. At one time recently the design was so aggressively loud as to induce a belief that the fancy had run riot, checked through sheer inability to go further. Fashionable house coats are sold for $6 to $25. They are made of fancy worsteds with soft figured figures, plaid cheviots, Bedford cords, velveteens and broadcloth, prettily adorned at the cuffs, collars, lapels and pocket flaps. They are to be had in plaids, checks and velvets, lined and unlined, with silk cording, satin binding or quilted satin facings. The range of prices is wide.

Merchant tailors who are indisputably the arbiters of fashion in men's clothes, have decided that twelve inch cut edges on frock and cutaway coats. During the last few years raw edges held sole sway. It is predicted that this change will be gradual.

Horseshoes have given a decided fillip to the popularity of riding whips, spurs, horses' heads, crops, stirrups, buckles, bitfeathers and other articles of jewelry emblematic of equestrianism. Needless to add, the fewer and plainer the ornaments worn the clearer the proof of their owner's good taste.

Wives and Mothers.

I cannot close this paper without a reference to the unjust laws relating to the property rights of married women in the statute books of most of the states and which should be amended. Only when the women, through the agency of the American federation allow the married father and mother to be equally legal owners and controllers of the property which they have jointly ownership resides in the father; the mother who bore them, who won them at the risk of her life in the valley of death, who reared them to maturity. The laws in many states not only give to the father the minor children, but the legal ownership of the wife's person and property which practically reduces her to slavery. To the husband is given the right of choosing the domicile of the family, regardless of the wishes of the wife. If the husband dies intestate the law divides his property among his heirs, and very often the widow has by law as to one ground for ship to his wife. These unjust statutes are an inheritance from a long gone past, and were not formulated by the legislators of the present. The majority of American husbands and fathers are better than these laws, and never enforce them, and many are truly honorable exceptions. Still, their influence is felt in the community, and their practical results are always disastrous to the home and the family, when intelligent men who lack an ideal comprehension of the worth and glory of motherhood and fatherhood.—Mary A. Livermore in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for December.

An Unbroken Rule.

"Look at that bicycle," exclaimed the woman as she entered the hall bedroom and saw that it had been knocked about badly.

"You'm, I've been looking at it," was the landlady's reply. "It's smashed."

"It's all smashed to pieces."

"You'm."

"And it was done on this line."

"You'm."

"Well, what do you propose to do about it?"

"I'll report it to the foreman, ma'am, and he'll report it to the station master, and the station master to the general manager, and the general manager to the Board of Directors, and some day, three or four years hence, a lawyer will call on you and want to know why you didn't travel with your bicycle on the property made over. That's our routine, ma'am, and we never deviate—not even when the guards forget to leave us a piece of the machine."—Exchange.

Study of Forestry.

The report of the first year's work of the School of Forestry at Cornell shows that this course has become established on a firm basis. The state has an appropriation for instruction there, and devoted a further sum to the acquisition of forest land in addition to the Adirondacks, during a period of thirty years, for practical demonstrations. The academic year began on the same calendar date as ever, and had not then been transferred, yet notwithstanding that fact the class rolls in the forestry course shows thirty-one, thirty-five and fifteen students for the fall, winter and spring terms respectively.

Where Smoking is a Crime.

France's Anti-Tobacco Society is going to make a crusade in Algeria next month. The society has learned that smoking is almost unknown in Abyssinia, and is punished as a crime when practiced. French explorers have to smoke their cigarettes in secret.

There are seventy-four gold mining companies in the Transvaal.

THERE ARE BILLIONS IN IT.

Enormous Investments in Utilizing Electricity.

THE GIGANTIC FIGURES

Capitalization of $3,000,000,000 Based on the Use of Their Power—Some Will Get Rich and Others Be Ruined—The Railways Are in the Lead.

In the twenty-four years which have elapsed since the modern development of electricity investment in it has been swollen to the almost fabulous sum of $2,000,000 in this country, by the capitalization of four or five branches of electrical industries alone. There are various other branches, whose stocks, bonds, and obligations reach a total of at least $250,000,000 more. In this list is not included the manufacture and operation of the automobile, the youngest application of electricity.

These figures, telling the story of a growth unparalleled in history, from a financial standpoint, are given in a pamphlet written by T. Commerford Martin for private circulation. What is even more astonishing is that the aggregate earnings of the various departments of the industry are sufficient to pay dividends or interest of from 4 to 5 per cent, and even more, on the whole mass of securities.

Mr. Martin is editor of a semi-technical electrical paper. He draws most of his material from official reports, and in the instances where these are not available he makes estimates.

In point of capitalization electric railways are by far the most important branch of the industry. Electric railways in all parts of the world figure. That it to say, in 1898 the electric mileage in the United States was insignificant. In 1899 the proportion of street railways run by electricity to those using electricity is so small that Mr. Martin dismisses it as unworthy of notice.

At the close of 1898 the capital liabilities of the street railways of the country were $1,621,820,000, a gain of nearly $150,000,000 in a single year. There were about 900 roads or systems. Of these 250 earned $100,000,000 in 1898. Estimates made by several authorities working from different bases placed the gross earnings of the roads outside of the 250 at $50,000,000, or $175,000,000 for the whole number. If the net were estimated at around 40 per cent, there was thus yielded a sum between $60,000,000 and $70,000,000, sufficient to pay from 4 to 5 per cent. on the whole capitalization.

Electric lighting is next in importance. There are upwards of 2,400 central station lighting companies operated by corporations. They have a gross capitalization in stock of $1,000,000,000. With bonds, floating debt, and other obligations, the investments, Mr. Martin asserts, stand not less than $500,000,000.

These plants include a capacity of 4,000,000 horse-power in engines and water wheels, to which are connected 27,000,000 arc and incandescent lamps. Here is a capitalization of $200 to the horse-power of engines and generators in the station and all of the distributing system. To the capitalization of the quasi-public companies Mr. Martin adds $400,000,000 for isolated electrical plants. Taking 2,000,000 arc lamps at $90 a year, he estimates an increase of $22,750,000 is yielded, besides $20,000,000, as the proceeds from incandescent lighting. Another $7,500,000 is being derived from the sale of power for driving machinery, or a total of $50,250,000. The costs charged against this by the 400 plants are $30,000,000, leaving $20,500,000 as the net profits of the central station industry, or the equivalent of 4½ per cent. on the face value of its capitalization of $500,000,000. To attempt to make to give the earnings of municipal plants and those owned by private corporations.

In the matter of closings the telephone makes a dazzling exhibit. There are over 2,300 "independent" companies in the country, but the Bell and its constituent companies are taken into principal account by Mr. Martin. The last Bell annual report gave 1,221,900,000 as the number of conversations recorded there in 1898, and the cost at between 1 and 2½ cents. At 4 cents a message this would yield $49,240,000. (The Bell long distance wires last year amounted to 32,385,000. If the earnings of the independent companies, which operate at a lower rate, are placed at the same as only $7,000,000, or $29 a telephone, and the entire total of earnings be figured at $50,000,000, or considerably less than the totals given, there is realized $50,000,000 as applicable to dividends, after deducting the high rate of 30 per cent for the cost of operation. The profits are sufficient to pay 5 per cent. on a capitalization of $400,000,000, or double and more than that rate on the sum actually invested.

Mr. Martin places the investment in telegraphy in this country at not less than $250,000,000, including that of the Western Union and the Postal companies, and those of the hundreds of railroads operating their own systems. Nearly every large city has its own police and fire alarm system, and upwards of 750 cities and towns are equipped with fire alarm telegraphs.

In the manufacturing branch of the electrical industry, Mr. Martin states, fully $100,000,000 is actually invested. Three concerns alone represent a capitalization of about $50,000,000. Where*as* it is estimated that concerns engaged in long distance power transmission and in the manufacture and operation of electric railway machinery and kindred securities aggregating $100,000,000. There are over 400 electro-plating establishments in the country, with an invested capital of $50,000,000, Mr. Martin says; a number of electrolytic plants, representing several millions, more are known in every city; electrotext annunciators, electro-therapeutic equipment, "interior" telephones, and an endless variety of miscellaneous appliances. Allowing $25,000,000 for all these minor appliances and the electrolytic plants, Mr. Martin makes the total capitalization of the electrical industry $3,750,000,000.

In this figure no account is taken of the rapid development of automobiles. According to figures given in the trade journals, there have been built and are under construction no*t* less than 40,000 vehicles. The cost ranges up to several thousand dollars for each. The capitalization of the automobile industry is vastly by excess of pleasure, and, although in the cases of numerous companies only part of it has been paid in, it is a fact that several large dividends on the whole have been distributed.

The capitalization of the electrical industry has not escaped "watering." It generates a large proportion, probably, but, on the whole, probably shows a larger number of independent plants and companies than many other branches of American industry. American electrical machinery, almost unknown in foreign lands ten years ago, is now shipped to every country under the sun. Enormous water powers of consumption have opened up, and innumerable new uses have come out of cheapened production, so that it is safe for no man to predict what employment will not yet be made of a power which was an almost unmanageable mystery three-score years ago.

TELEPHONE COMPANY.

It Is Furnishing News to People Upon Prominent Current Events.

The project of President Morris F. Tyler, of the Southern New England Telephone Company, to station an extra operator at all the large exchanges to give subscribers the latest news on stocks, athletic topics, the theatre, the prize-ring, the doings of society and the South African war does not contemplate any publicly control instruments for the distribution of news on any of these subjects.

"Yet it isn't going to hurt our business," said a representative of the New York Quotation Company, which operates the "tickers" of New York City and furnishes news to the outside tickers which makes stock quotations a specialty.

In point of capitalization electric railways are by far the most important branch of the industry. Electric railways in all parts of the world figure. That it to say, in 1888 the electric mileage in the United States was insignificant. In 1899 the proportion of street railways run by electricity to those using electricity is so small that Mr. Martin dismisses it as unworthy of notice.

"In the first place it could never take the place of a ticker in the saloons and other places where one of our instruments are located. Anybody can read the tape, but news sent in by telephone would have to be copied down for the crowd in such small proportions as to be useless. It would take more time than the usual style is to allow her to celebrate mass. Naturally, so the report continues, the cure be the thief, when closely pressed, dropped the glove at the edge of the footpath near a shop from which several would herself escape. Then she returned. Protruding from the pocket were two of the pencil cases.

The plan has been ascertained, was used in this way: The thief, a well-dressed man, walked into the shop and asked to be shown various small articles, and while engaged in selecting which to make a selection, he slipped what suited him into the glove pocket.

His hands were always in sight, and when he left a small parcel would be left the shop, and of course nothing had been observed to arouse suspicion. And now for another trick of the thief. Flower girls as a class are fairly honest, but now and again there are specimens who are exceptionally clever with their fingers. Pushing their wares, they will put a button-hole bouquet under the nose of a gentleman in order that he might become enamored with the perfume, while his fingers screen her other hand, she deftly lifts his pin.

Many landlords of licensed liquor houses in England keep the gold that is received in a glass which is placed itself. But she has gone further, and this has stirred up the storm. So far as plurality of wives goes, Roberts is no worse than his Congressional colleagues. The end is not yet.

(Mrs. Susan B. Anthony.)

Belgian Queen's Home.

The Queen of the Belgians was brought up in her father's castle at Pesth amid surroundings and customs which were those of the feudal ages. At night her father himself descended the great staircase to lock the outer gate and the drawbridge was raised. The castle was divided into two parts, one end being raised a little above the other. At the elevated end the daughters of the house sat at their needlework or painting or music, while their attendants sat at the lower end of the hall.

Wisconsin ships East 30,000 Christmas trees.

THE BYE WAYS OF CRIME

How You May Protect Yourself Against Theft.

WAYS OF PICKPOCKETS.

How Women Are Used as a Cover—The Glove With a Pocket—The Umbrella Thief—The Pretty Girl With the Bouquet—The Well Dressed and Smart Woman.

"A certain amount of care, combined with common sense and caution, will nonplus the criminal," says R. J. Power-Berrey in his book just printed in England, entitled "The Bye Ways of Crime."

The list of crimes for which no one has been convicted, he shows, is a very lengthy one, and is being added to day after day, and will be added to so long as the public declines to take care of themselves or their property.

Here are a few hints from his book designed to help people protect themselves against the most common up-to-date devices of criminals.

A pickpocket, when he sets out on a thieving expedition is, whenever possible, accompanied by one or more confederates.

The confederates serve two purposes, both very important. They, like all criminals, know most of the detectives by sight, and are familiar with their methods of work, and so are able to give the operator warning when danger threatens, while as soon as he makes a "haul" the chief turns the loot over to his pals, and they, and they alone, are secure.

The confederate must be a very smart man, for he has to keep a sharp lookout for the police, and must be always ready to catch and dispose of any article the thief may throw or pass to him, while he also has to cover the operations of the pickpocket—really acting as a living screen. The spoils are therefore rarely in the possession of the crook for any length of time.

Sometimes a woman is used as a "cover," and one instance of this which came under notice occurred at a railway terminus.

The woman was arguing some matter of a ticket with the clerk. Behind her was the thief, while next to him was a portly individual, whose wealth of chain denoted the presence of a valuable watch. Owing to the crowd the three were brought together, and the thief, holding a cigar rather conspicuously in his left hand, reached round with his right and soon had the watch, which by a dexterous flip slipped into the woman's pocket, at the same time giving her the "office" to get out of the way.

Even if the man had been arrested he could not have been connected with the crime for the property was then far away in safety.

One individual invented a glove, in the palm of which was a small pocket. Probably this dodge should not have become known but for the fact that the thief, when closely pressed, dropped the glove at the edge of the footpath near a shop from which several would herself escape. Then she returned. Protruding from the pocket were two of the pencil cases.

The plan has been ascertained, was used in this way: The thief, a well-dressed man, walked into the shop and asked to be shown various small articles, and while engaged in selecting which to make a selection, he slipped what suited him into the glove pocket.

His hands were always in sight, and when he left a small parcel would be left the shop, and of course nothing had been observed to arouse suspicion.

And now for another trick of the thief. Flower girls as a class are fairly honest, but now and again there are specimens who are exceptionally clever with their fingers. Pushing their wares, they will put a button-hole bouquet under the nose of a gentleman in order that he might become enamored with the perfume, while his fingers screen her other hand, she deftly lifts his pin.

Many landlords of licensed liquor houses in England keep the gold that is received in a glass which is placed on a shelf behind the bar. In order to reach this the thief has invented a couple of instruments.

(Reached round and soon had his watch.)

One is a long piece of leather attached to a handle made to fit on to the end of a walking stick.

The leather is kept smeared with some substance like grease, and when not in use is enclosed in a case. When manipulated by the thief the leather is merely pressed on to the coins which are to be obtained, and in almost all cases, which are carelessly exposed to view and reach on a shelf.

Occasionally it is found necessary to hit the glass bodily from its place, and this proved a rather difficult matter. In order to reach this the thief has devised a horse shoe fitted with a handle, which can be extended, telescope-fashion, from the end of what looked like an ordinary walking stick.

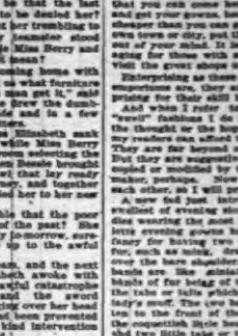
When thieving has to be done under circumstances such as these, where time and opportunity are material considerations, it is usually brought to a successful finish with the aid of a confederate, who engages the bar people in interesting conversation.

The umbrella thief is a person who is rarely detected, but he or she can only operate successfully in the wet weather.

The umbrella, which has probably been stolen from some height ring establishment, is utilized as a means of concealing and carrying away more valuable property.

The operator is most frequently a well-dressed woman, and the favorite places of call are jewellers and good-class chemists.

In chemists' shops great varieties of articles are displayed on the outside of windows, and the commonest and best method adopted is to slip whatever is within easy reach into the folds of the umbrella.



(The dotty little bis pin.)

This is a simple enough task when the thief is the only person in the shop and the assistant is behind a screen compounding a prescription.

BOUND THEM TO A TREE.

How an Injured Husband Treated an Erring Couple.

Big John Gillen, a well-known farmer residing on Moon View road, near Hilton, W. Va., held up his wife to the scorn of the public in a merciless manner the other day. In addition to this punishment on the man with whom the woman is alleged to have been intimate.

Gillen operates a small truck farm, and does team work. He is good-looking, and remarkably strong. He was married three years ago to Sarah Stack who lives with her widowed mother. The girl was handsome and inclined to be wayward. The couple had no children.

Frank Donaldson was supposed to be the cause of the estrangement of husband and wife.

Gillen early decided to put a watch on his wife's doings. He hired a detective, who donned old clothes and applied to Gillen's house for food during the busiest hour of the day. The detective was about to start up to the village, but delayed long enough to give the tramp a sandwich. He then went to the village where Donaldson was waiting. The detective gained a point where he could observe all that transpired.

The pretty girl was all flutter of anticipation for her lover, also some cake. She stroked his mustache, and he in turn smoothed her tresses. The evidence done again by the detective will be, it is said, sufficient for Gillen to procure a divorce. The detective met Gillen and told him of his discovery. He advised Gillen to make believe that he was going to the market the next day, and instead of going, to drive up the road out of sight of the house and return to the spot designated.

The orders were obeyed to the letter. The husband watched his wife and Donaldson for over an hour and was restrained from springing upon them only by the detective.

Soon the couple descended to the frugal liquor which Gillen had prepared and fell asleep on the bench where they had been sitting. The husband and detective crept upon them and bound them in standing positions to a tree a short distance from the road. In his rage Gillen stripped the sleeping pair to every stitch of clothing. The bound couple recovered to find themselves in a forlorn plight. Donaldson's moustache was shorn, and Gillen describes as 32 years old, 5ft. 6in. tall, light complexion, wearing dark clothes, and weighing 150 pounds, roamed along. She turned and looked at him and he returned the admiring glance.

She stopped, and he advanced to meet her. Soon both repaired to a hostelry on Hayward place. Here he invisibly entertained his newly-made friend, afterward dining at the Lion d'Or restaurant. He then returned to his home, and while there something impelled him to open his handbag.

There was still money there, but it amounted to only $30. He rushed down to station 4, reported his loss, and the police are looking for the woman.

Edna May's Divorce Suit.

Edna May Titus, the actress, under the name of Edna May, who is suing Frederick Titus, the bicycle rider, for an absolute divorce, obtained a new decision from Justice Scott of the supreme court, New York, so that her evidence could be taken in London. She married Titus in New York on April 14, 1896. She accused Titus of intimacy with a chorus girl in "The Belle of New York," in London, and of having taken the part of the Salvation Lassie.

Patrolman M. F. Brown of Boston dropped dead recently. He had been on the force 31 years.

Jerusalem is about to be cleansed both inside and out by a sanitary committee.

MISS ELIZABETH

"So Miss Pyser's got to go to the poor farm," said Mrs. Green. "I'm surprised that's she's beg' out of it so long."

"Yes," said portly, pompous Mrs. Barker, wife of the chairman of the selectmen, "my husband told me this noon that she had applied to the town for help, and of course they can't support her in her own house."

"And I said 'twas flying in the face of fate when she took those two children to bring up; one died and t'other run away, and now she's all alone."

The vinegar-faced dame who had thus delivered herself settled to her work with a self-congratulatory look, as if she thanked the Lord that she was not as others were.

Mrs. Barker creased her hands in stately idleness; it did not become the wife of the richest man in Bayville to sew at the fortnight circle; her presence was all-sufficient.

Mrs. Berry, who sat beside her, looked up from her work, her sallow face was a trifle pale.

"You don't mean to say that the Willard-Dole people are going to allow Elizabeth Pyser to go on the town after all the good she's done?" she asked.

"Why not?" returned Mrs. Barker. "It ain't their fault that she's wasted her money. She's always givin' something to somebody; and stuck-meek as Moses; you'd think she hadn't say her soul's her own; but she's deep!" And with a sigh of contemplation for the depravity of poor little Miss Pyser, she closed her mouth with a snap. She had never forgiven her for being Mr. Barker's first love, and suspected that he would be quite willing to exchange his energetic and short-tempered wife for the gentle spinster. "I'll tell you mustn't whisper that I told you this, for Mr. Barker says women never know enough to keep anything to themselves."

"I'm sure we never gossip here," said Mrs. Green.

"Where you goin', Miss Berry? Ain't you goin' to stop to tea?"

"No, I guess I'd better be gettin' home early to-night. Beasie'll be waitin' for me."

"Now I'll bet Clarinda Berry's gone straight over to the milliner's store to spread the news; so tried she can't tell it. 'Thank Heaven, I know enough to keep things to myself!'"

But Miss Berry was not going to the store nor to spread the news; she knew that it was unprecedented for her to leave the sewing circle before two, and she was also listened to the talk the days of her girlhood rose before her when she and Elizabeth Pyser, who was then Miss Dole, told each other all their secrets; then came a foolish little quarrel, and they had not exchanged words for twenty years.

She walked straight down the street, turned the corner, and without giving herself time to change her mind, entered Miss Pyser's garden. She stood up the walk bordered with bouncing-bets, or "old maid's pinks." When, in answer to her knock Miss Pyser came to the door, she knew what to say, but straightway fell into each other's arms and began to cry.

"Why, Elizabeth!" cried Miss Pyser, "you're all trembling. Come in here and have a cup of tea. I've got a chicken myself; but if I'm as heartless as them I left behind, I hope I'll die before morning."

"Well, what's the matter? You seem to be excited."

"No, I ain't! I'm just as calm as you are. But you're makin' calls this afternoon. I went to see Betty Fryser. I kep' questionin' her till she told me all about how she lost her money in the bank, and called over to Coveton; the man that owned the house, he'd sent her in it out of pity; first she earned a little, but she's lately folks didn't seem to want any work done, and she just shut herself up there to starve. But human nature got the best of her, and she sent Jimmy out to the town. She's always been hoping that that good-for-nothing Johnnie would come home; but I guess he's forgot her now. I asked her how much of the furniture was hers, and kep' a-listin' and a-listin' till I found she owned everything, and could tell me; and I enjoyed every minute."

She paused, out of breath with excitement, and remained for some time in a deep study. Beasie, too, was silent. She divined what was passing in her aunt's mind.

"Say, Beasie," said Miss Berry at last, "do you think we could contrive to keep another? I can't bear the thought of having Elizabeth go to the poor farm. I guess it's that back chamber with nothing in it, and she's got her own furniture."

She looked inquiringly at the girl, who did not immediately answer. To undertake the care of another meant additional sacrifices. Some rigid economy had been practised in living to be sure, but enough for her already. Should she add to her burden? Would she be just to herself in doing so? These were thoughts of the days when she had John Fryser were boy and girl lovers, and made wonderful plans of what they would do when they married. She had never lost faith in John; some day if he lived, she knew he would come back to them in light and honor. Her mother was dead, and she had her aunt's look with a smile.

"Miss Elizabeth won't go on the town, auntie. I'm sure I can earn enough for her here, and we'll drive over this very evening and bring her home."

After her guest had departed, Miss Elizabeth sat in the old kitchen that had "wine and so many confidences, and the tears flowed down her thin cheeks. She thought of the years she had spent herself for what the morrow would bring; but now she was a forlorn old maid, crying because she was to be a burden on the charity of Cousin Sarah and William Will. How little she had dreamed of this in the days when she was young and pretty, and every one called her Beauty. She was wise enough she was the apple of his eye; but he would not undertake the care of her orphaned nephew and niece, and she could not blame him; so he left her for another, and became an important person in the town, a selectman; and she gave a little gasp, and hoped he would not be the one chosen to come for her to-morrow; she really didn't think she could bear it.

This was the last night in her own home, and she could not swallow the morsel of bread that formed her evening repast; something would rise in her throat and choke her every time she tried.

Hark! a wagon was rumbling up to the gate; could it be that the last night at home was to be denied her? A loud knock brought her trembling to the door. A burly teamster stood there, and by his side Miss Berry and Beasie; what could it mean?

"Betty, you are coming home with Beasie and me. Tell us what furniture you have to take, and we'll get it," said Miss Berry; and she drew the dumbfounded woman aside and in a few words explained matters.

Almost in a dream Elizabeth sank on the old lounge, while Miss Berry went from room to room selecting the articles which were to be brought to the homest and shanet that lay ready for to-morrow's journey, and together she and Miss Berry led her to her new home.

Could it be possible that the poor house was a thing of the past? She could be dreaming. By to-morrow, surely, she would wake up to the awful reality.

But it was no dream, and the next morning when Beasie came in with the feeling that an awful catastrophe had been averted and the sword which had been hanging over her head had fallen harmless, she found Elizabeth sitting up in bed, and suspected that she would be quite willing to exchange his energetic and short-tempered wife for the gentle spinster. "I'll tell you mustn't whisper that I told you this, for Mr. Barker says women never know enough to keep anything to themselves."

"I'm sure we never gossip here," said Mrs. Green.

"Where you goin', Miss Berry? Ain't you goin' to stop to tea?"

"No, I guess I'd better be gettin' home early to-night. Beasie'll be waitin' for me."

"Now I'll bet Clarinda Berry's gone straight over to the milliner's store to spread the news; so tried she can't tell it. 'Thank Heaven, I know enough to keep things to myself!'"

But Miss Berry was not going to the store nor to spread the news; she knew that it was unprecedented for her to leave the sewing circle before two, and she was also listened to the talk the days of her girlhood rose before her when she and Elizabeth Pyser, who was then Miss Dole, told each other all their secrets; then came a foolish little quarrel, and they had not exchanged words for twenty years.

She walked straight down the street, turned the corner, and without giving herself time to change her mind, entered Miss Pyser's garden. She stood up the walk bordered with bouncing-bets, or "old maid's pinks." When, in answer to her knock Miss Pyser came to the door, she knew what to say, but straightway fell into each other's arms and began to cry.

"Why, Elizabeth!" cried Miss Pyser, "you're all trembling. Come in here and have a cup of tea. I've got a chicken myself; but if I'm as heartless as them I left behind, I hope I'll die before morning."

"Well, what's the matter? You seem to be excited."

"No, I ain't! I'm just as calm as you are. But you're makin' calls this afternoon. I went to see Betty Fryser. I kep' questionin' her till she told me all about how she lost her money in the bank, and called over to Coveton; the man that owned the house, he'd sent her in it out of pity; first she earned a little, but she's lately folks didn't seem to want any work done, and she just shut herself up there to starve. But human nature got the best of her, and she sent Jimmy out to the town. She's always been hoping that that good-for-nothing Johnnie would come home; but I guess he's forgot her now. I asked her how much of the furniture was hers, and kep' a-listin' and a-listin' till I found she owned everything, and could tell me; and I enjoyed every minute."

She paused, out of breath with excitement, and remained for some time in a deep study. Beasie, too, was silent. She divined what was passing in her aunt's mind.

"Say, Beasie," said Miss Berry at last, "do you think we could contrive to keep another? I can't bear the thought of having Elizabeth go to the poor farm. I guess it's that back chamber with nothing in it, and she's got her own furniture."

She looked inquiringly at the girl, who did not immediately answer. To undertake the care of another meant additional sacrifices. Some rigid economy had been practised in living to be sure, but enough for her already. Should she add to her burden? Would she be just to herself in doing so? These were thoughts of the days when she had John Fryser were boy and girl lovers, and made wonderful plans of what they would do when they married. She had never lost faith in John; some day if he lived, she knew he would come back to them in light and honor. Her mother was dead, and she had her aunt's look with a smile.

"Miss Elizabeth won't go on the town, auntie. I'm sure I can earn enough for her here, and we'll drive over this very evening and bring her home."

After her guest had departed, Miss Elizabeth sat in the old kitchen that had "wine and so many confidences, and the tears flowed down her thin cheeks. She thought of the years she had spent herself for what the morrow would bring; but now she was a forlorn old maid, crying because she was to be a burden on the charity of Cousin Sarah and William Will. How little she had dreamed of this in the days when she was young and pretty, and every one called her Beauty. She was wise enough she was the apple of his eye; but he would not undertake the care

SOME NEW FASHIONS

TO BE ADMIRED EVEN THOUGH BEYOND MODEST PURSES.

Hints as to the Popular Evening Styles —Handkerchief Draperies—Dress Goods—Velvets—The New Long Coats—Fashionable Millinery.

(New York Fashion Letter.)

As I remarked last week, if you think from the announcements of recent fashionable entertainments in this city that you can come here or send here and get your gowns, headgear or wraps cheaper than you can procure them in your own town or city, just the thought right out of your mind. It is really discouraging for those with small purses to visit the great shops of this city.

Enterprising as these great dry goods emporiums are, they are chiefly overpraising for their skill in advertising.

And I don't mean to say that the so-called "swell" fashions I do not do so with the thought or the hope that many of my readers can afford to purchase them. They are given merely as matters of history. But they are suggestive. They may be copied or modified by the home dressmaker, perhaps. Now we understand each other, and I will proceed.

A new fad just introduced at the smallest of evening dances is that ladies wearing the most beautiful gowns, and sometimes have been very odd fancy for having two tiny branches of fur, such as mink, draped as tails behind the skirt. These two fur bands are like miniature boas, the ends of fur being of the thickness of the tube or tails which dangle from a point in the back of the skirt, and extend to the front of the corsage, with the coquettish little head of an animal the two little tails or tails as a finish. Many of the dancers have been known for sleeves to the ball gown, or the bands of fur may be looped across the front of the skirt, suspended by the long ends are tied in a bowknot on the left shoulder with a loop and two ends, one from four to six inches longer than the other, and finished with a tiny head on the very tip of the shoulder.

A handkerchief drapery is a unique fashion for the assortment of the front of a ball dress. Sometimes it is a full gown in one of the new shades of deep pink then the handkerchief drapery trimming is of a most delicate and lightest shade of pink, or the handkerchief drapery is of a rich purple or lavender velvet then the drapery trimming may be of pearl-tinted satin. The handkerchief is of lace with the decolletage, falls to the right and the left like two dainty jabots, and is edged on either side with sequins to match the color of the gown,

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Reform in Primaries.

Speaking of the trickery and dishonesty at the recent Republican primaries in Plainfield the West Jersey Press says:

What is needed in this State—and it is the greatest political need of the day—is a law throwing about the primaries the same safeguards as are afforded at our general elections. In no other way can the people be guaranteed a free and fair expression in the nomination of party candidates. That it would be expensive goes without saying, but it would be worth all that it would cost, and more to it. At one time this reform is bound to come in West Jersey—as it already has in other States—and the sooner it is inaugurated the better it will be for the entire body politic.

This leads the Elizabeth Journal to add:

"There are already laws galore, but they are not effective. The West Jersey Press touches the core of the matter when it argues that primaries should be guarded as carefully as elections. In some respects primaries are more important than elections. The latter merely ratify the former. Primaries choose candidates—or delegates who are empowered to choose them—and elections can never improve on or supercede the primaries. Attendance at both primaries and elections should be imperative, and the former as well as the latter should be safeguarded in a way that would permit of no trickery, no dishonesty, no intimidation, no improper voting."

Reform in Scotch Plains

Once again reformation of the town morals fills the air in Scotch Plains. To read of the activity and purpose of the Citizens' League of that place one would think that the old town was almost on the brink of perdition, but to the casual visitor in the community it possesses a most serene and settled appearance—a contradiction to common reports. But what there is below the surface—ah, there is the rub.

The Citizens' League, with the energetic and aggressive Rev. Mr. Shott standing on the parapet, has fired its first load of ammunition. It is aimed at the local bar rooms—to which the revered gentleman attributes the non perfection of the Scotch Plains sinfulness. In seeking an effective way to combat the legalized license of these places the League has struck for the most pregnable point in going for the signers of the applications for license. Without the signers to their applications, recounting and avering the qualifications the law demands as necessary, the barroom-keepers would find it impossible to secure a license.

Here, then, is the meat in the nut that the Citizens' League has got to crack.

If the reformers can prevent the hotel keepers from getting the necessary number of signers they will thwart the traffic at the very outset. Whatever difference of opinion people may have as to the public welfare being served by the granting of liquor licenses in Scotch Plains, it is a fact that the Citizens' League has made a strong move to oppose the license by attempting first to influence those whose signatures are necessary to get the applications before the court. And in announcing their intention to compel each signers to testify in court to the details of qualifications recounted in behalf of the applicant, a condition is placed in front of those who have heretofore stood ready to aid the hotel keepers that may act as a deterrent to accomplish the results sought by the League.

The Newark Sunday Call says that the daily newspaper gossip of opposition to Assemblyman Jones for the Speakership is not to be credited. It argues that Essex has eleven votes in the Assembly, and several attributes of strength and importance, and the Republican leaders are well aware that with the united voice of the county desiring the Speakership, at this time, the only wise and politic action is to concede it the position without hesitancy or dickering. There is said to have been considerable opposition to Essex candidates from lobbyists, who have had more control over State officials at times than was at all safe. It is possibly reflected in some of the paragraphs recently published. But Essex can afford to welcome such criticism and opposition.

Congressman Daly came home from the seat of government long enough to spend Sunday and give the press his impressions of Congress. What is most anxiously awaited in Mr. Daly's case, however, is his expressions in Congress.

TRY GRAIN-O! TRY GRAIN-O!

Ask your Grocer today to show you a package of GRAIN-O, the new food drink that takes the place of coffee. All who drink it enjoy it. All who try it, like it. GRAIN-O has that rich seal brown of Mocha or Java, but it is made from pure grains, and the most delicate stomach receives it without distress. 1/4 the price of coffee. 15c. and 25c. per package. Sold by all grocers.

BUYING THE DINNER

USEFUL HINTS FOR CHRISTMAS OR ANY OTHER DAY.

The Color of Meat—Age of Fish and Fowls—Selecting Vegetables—Facts About Good Fruit—Choice of Butter, Coffee and Milk—Canned Goods.

Market by personal visits rather than by giving orders.

Do not confine your patronage to any particular firm. Each mercantile firm has its specialties.

There is probably no branch of marketing that so puzzles an inexperienced housewife, nor one in which she is often worsted, as in buying meats.

The young housekeeper may always be sure that meat that is bright and red is young and tender. If the color be of the shade she sought so earnestly for her out-loaded grocer, she may be certain that the meat is old. The age of a beef can safely be determined by its color. If light red it is young; if dark red, old. It is well for the young housekeeper to buy a large roast, say ten pounds, at a time, if your family is large enough to dispose of it. By so doing you can get a fine cut of sirloin and a good fillet for a separate dish for another meal. By combining a rib and tenderloin thus you can buy them both for the same price you would either alone.

There are only about two good sirloin cuts of a beef. They should be cut to include the flat bone, for the adage that "where the bone is, there is the meat," is strictly true. A good test of the age of meat is the color of the fat. If white it is young; if yellow it is old. The color of veal is a good guide, but it is one that is almost indescribable. The sense of smell is quick to detect the difference between the fresh, delicate smell of new meat and the stale, rancid odor of the old.

Fresh fish is firm outside and is crisp when cut through the bone. If stale it is likely to be slimy and flabby and pliable to the touch. The blood of a fish is an infallible indication. If a bright red, it is of prime quality; if pale, the blood will be muddy and brownish the fish is too stale for use.

The wings indicate the age of a fowl. If they bend easily at the touch they belong to a young fowl. Grasp the wing at the upper part where the bone is largest. Its power of resistance is a certain sign of the age of the fowl. If it is soft and cartilaginous, the meat will be tender. If the wings are hard, the meat will be tough. Pressing the thumb firmly upon the breastbone of a fowl is another reliable test. The meat is as old as the breastbone is hard.

The color of the skin of a chicken, duck, turkey or goose determines largely its age. The skin of the young is a very light yellow, almost white. As it grows older it becomes darker in tone. The fat of an old chicken grows a dark yellow. If a chicken has been on ice long the flesh gets flabby and the skin shrinks. This is not always a invariable rule, however, that by their breastbones and pinions you shall know the age of chickens, ducks, turkeys and geese.

As to potatoes, the golden mean is best. They should be light in color, thin skinned and of medium size and weight. The medium ones are more likely to be solid before cooking and mealy afterward.

The quality of most vegetables may best be tested by weighing them in your hands. A head of cabbage, for instance, may look plump when it is really shrivelled at the heart. If by lifting it you learn that it is lighter than it looks you will know that the leaves are withered and that it is coarse, tasteless and pithy. Cabbage should be crisp and compact. You should look beneath the outer leaves to be sure that the inner ones are of like promise.

Test celery by breaking it to see whether it is crisp. Do not throw away the root, which has the choicest flavor in the plant. The stem is the best indication of the condition of cauliflower. If it is tough, stringy or discolored the same condition is true of the head of the cauliflower. Choose the smaller cabbages always. The large ones will be coarse if they are not pithy. The color of a head of lettuce indicates its quality. They should be of a bright red or pink.

Cranberries may be tested by the eye, taste and touch. They should be crisp and solid, and of medium size and medium red. If too dark a red they are overripe and soft. Remember that the medium sized, thin-skinned fruits are the best.

Don't touch the apples you expect to buy. Their red or yellow plumpness is descriptive. The touch of the fingers no matter how light, bruises the apple, and starts the process of decay. You must be educated in apple lore to buy intelligently, for tasting the fruit is not always practicable or convenient, and touching is forbidden. You must know what varieties are tart and which are sweet, what are of fine flavor and which are of soft pulp. In the meantime, until the lack of education has been supplied there is nothing to be done but to blindly follow the greengrocer's, or fruiterer's, lead in the matter.

Oranges should be thin-skined and of light, almost transparent, yellow. Lemons should also be of the thin-skinned, pale yellow, plump, firm variety.

Many housekeepers who pride themselves on their discretion and economy buy fresh eggs for table use and packed eggs of an age that inspires suspicion, and of a quality that is a great mistake. The taste of a stale egg can be detected as quickly in a muffin as beneath the plate or glass before your plate. It is impossible to disguise the taste of stale eggs, and foolish to try.

Be exceedingly fastidious in your choice of butter. Call into service both taste and smell. It is well to buy it in small quantities. Be sure to learn who are the best butter dealers and buy only their best grades.

It is best to buy coffee in the bean and roast and grind it yourself just before using. Be sure that the coffee bean is crisp, not leathery, and that it is roasted only to a rich, dark brown, not black. One-third Mocha and two-thirds old Java will make a mixture best to my taste. Oolong and English breakfast tea in equal parts is an excellent mixture.

Avoid blue milk. If you use the sort which comes in bottles, be sure that there is a finger of cream in each bottle, which proves that the milk is of the richest, not skimmed milk.

Be extremely particular about selected canned goods if you use them at all.

HOLIDAY FAIR IS OVER

THE SUCCESSFUL FESTIVAL IN VINCENT CHAPEL.

Netted Over $300 For the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. Church —Chief Features of Each Night.

"The Fair of the Holidays" at Vincent chapel closed last Friday a decided success. Besided being a great success from the social standpoint, the affair netted the Ladies' Aid Society, under whose auspices it was held, a sum amounting to over $300.

Friday was the second day of its continuance. The booths were just as pretty as ever and the attendance was large. There was a slight falling off in the patronage of the supper-room, which was to be expected on the second night. There were 111 suppers served. The articles in the booths were disposed of. Where there was a prospect of a few articles being left over, they were auctioned off by Charles H. Lyman.

A word should be said in praise of the efforts of the decoration committee, composed of Mrs. Nelson A. Miller and Mrs. J. H. Howell. The results of their work added greatly to the success of the affair.

There was a change in the entertainments for the evening. In the place of the stereopticon, a series of shadow pictures were given illustrating the "Bird's Christmas Carol." The story was read by Miss Rita Pond. "Mrs. Bugglies" was impersonated by Miss Susie Davies. The other characters were taken by the Misses Mabel Stevens, Helen Joy, Gertrude Geier, Edna Kennedy, and Maud Disbrow, Leslie Hallock, Roland Horne, Harold Fenno and Charles Lyman. The pictures were very clever. The children were drilled by Miss Luella Crowther.

IN TOO MUCH OF A HURRY

Firemen Started Out Before They Knew What Box Had Been Rung in For a Fire.

For the second time since the new fire alarm system was established in Plainfield, part of the apparatus went to the wrong box Monday afternoon. The alarm came in from box 15 sometime after 5 o'clock when Fred Breem, regular driver of the truck and William Townley, regular driver of the chemical engine, had just gone to supper. Harry Bush was on duty at the truck and Edward E. Vail at the chemical.

In their hurry to get to the scene of action without delay, they left the house before the entire round came in on the indicator. They heard 14 and drove to box 14, Watchung avenue and Front street. That box was locked and the crowd there yelled that the fire was out Front street. The chemical engine and the truck proceeded out East Front street for some distance when the mistake was discovered and the apparatus returned to box 15.

It is the duty of the fire department that the drivers shall remain in house until the first round is completed and, if there is any doubt then, they are to remain until the second round is given by the indicator. The men were cautioned in the future not to allow their zeal to be on the scene promptly to overstep the necessary delay in learning the box.

WHAT "SPARKLETS" ARE.

An Ingenious Device Which Makes Soda Water by Dissolving It.

Everybody is wondering what "Sparklets" are, of which Messrs Moore and Audsley, of 310 312 Park avenue, have so much to say about. "Sparklets" are an ingenious device whereby everybody is enabled to have a soda water fountain of their own. Carbonic acid gas is compressed under very great pressure into little steel capsules or shells. With the use of these, fitted with patent stoppers, these capsules or shells can be opened and the contents of the bottle charged as thoroughly as can be wished. With the aid of tablets, any kind of mineral water can be readily prepared. Pure water can be transformed into carbonated water to which the regular syrups can be added, equalling the best soda water sold at fountains.

How Are Your Kidneys?

Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Pills cure all kidney ills. 25c per box. Ask druggist for pamphlet. Sold by C. M. Higgins & Co.

Sprained His Ankle.

John Coles, of Westfield, an employe of the local branch of the Paul T. Norton Company, of East Front street was unloading some bags of feed from his wagon last Thursday. He slipped on the curb and sprained his ankle. He is now confined to his home in Westfield.

Property Sold For Sale Made $200.

The flower sale and fair held last week at the Unitarian church netted over $200, and this amount will be placed in the fund to purchase a much-needed pipe organ for the church.

Executors of Mrs. MacDonald's Estate.

By the will left by the late Mrs. Sarah MacDonald her son, J. Fred MacDonald, and W. F. Arnold, cashier of the City National Bank, are made executors of the estate.

Through Working on trolley.

All of the laborers on the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway were discharged Saturday except about forty. The discharged men will be paid at the Westfield office this afternoon.

SENIORS' BIRTHDAY TEA.

CLASS OF 1900 OF PLAINFIELD HIGH SHCOL IN CHARGE.

Gave a Successful Tea in Assembly Hall of Franklin Building, Monday Afternoon—Informal Programme.

The Senior class of the Plainfield High School gave a "birthday Tea" Monday afternoon in the Assembly Hall of the Franklin School building. Its object was to raise the necessary funds to meet the Christmas celebration expenses but it proved a decided social success as well.

The hall was prettily decorated with the class colors, red and green, in bunting and with palms and potted plants. Red shades were placed over the the electric lights. The table was prettily decorated in the prevailing colors. There Mrs. George Weeks Sandford and Miss S. Lena Bass poured tea and chocolate. A booth, bedecked with bunting and banked with palms, was in charge of Miss Marion Woodcock and Miss Emily Runyon, who sold homemade candy Their trade was excellent until the supply was entirely exhausted.

An informal programme was rendered. A. B. Meredith, of the faculty, acted as master of ceremonies. The programme included piano duets by Miss Beatrice Miner, Miss Helen Brown and Miss Emily Runyon. A recitation, "The Freckled Faced Girls," was given by Miss Edna Burr.

The tea was well attended by the young people of the High School and by a number of their friends. The faculty was well represented by Superintendent H. M. Maxwell, Principal L. W. Travell, Miss Ellen E. Niles, Miss S. Lena Bass, Mr. and Mrs. George Weeks Sandford and A. B. Meredith.

Albert Schomp had charge of the door where the "birthday gifts" were received. The committee of arrangements consisted of Miss May Bass, chairman; Misses Emily Runyon, Pauline Denton, Edna Burr and Lois Moore, Albert Schomp and Walter Squires. The committee on entertainment consisted of Miss Beatrice Miner, chairman; Miss Josephine Lapsley and Miss Helen Brown. Miss Pauline Denton was chairman of the sub-committee on decorations. Miss Marion Woodcock, president of the class, was a member of the committee in charge with general charge of the affair. The net receipts of the tea will amount to about $20.

CHURCH IMPROVEMENTS.

Holy Cross Exterior Has Been Altered and Repaired So That It Presents an Attractive Appearance.

The work of repairing, altering and improving the Church of the Holy Cross is completed, and it presents a very attractive appearance. The edifice has been painted a light color, which shows to good advantage, while the building has been thoroughly overhauled and repaired inside and out, putting it in the best of condition. A new substantial slate roof has also been put on the church, something which has been needed for a long time, and the church can now be said to be in a thoroughly first-class condition throughout, much to the gratification of the worshippers.

Exposure to a sudden climatic change produces cold in the head and catarrh is apt to follow. Provided with Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh. Price 50 cents at Druggists, or Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York, will mail it. The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation, cleanses and cures. Cream Balm quickly cures the cold.

The Old Fellows Won.

The Kids and the Patriarchs of the Park Club met on the club alleys Saturday night for an exciting contest. The teams were composed of six men each. The older generation found their opponents an easy thing and won the match without a great deal of trouble. The Patriarchs all rolled good games, much better than the average, while the Kids with few exceptions failed to distinguish themselves.

Appointed Administrator.

Robert M. Clark, counsellor-at-law, has been appointed administrator of the estate of Mrs Mary A. Cooper, deceased, of Harmony street, the borough.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

100 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.

CONTENTS:

Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.

Sent by mail on receipt of price. 25c. each, or 5 for $1.00. Humphreys' Homeo. Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

If you haven't a regular, healthy movement of the bowels every day, you're sick, or will be. Keep your bowels clean with Cascarets, and be well. Don't put off taking a Cascaret for another day. If you're bilious or constipated, why not take a Cascaret now? Don't delay. Don't wait. Don't forget that a Cascaret will cure you. Don't buy or try any substitute. Don't be talked into taking something said to be "just as good" as Cascarets. Don't be deceived. Don't be persuaded. Don't be induced. Don't be influenced. Don't be coaxed. Don't be urged. Don't be prevailed upon. Don't be induced. Don't be persuaded. Don't be deceived. Don't buy or try any substitute. Don't forget that a Cascaret will cure you. Don't delay. Don't wait. Don't put off taking a Cascaret for another day. If you're bilious or constipated, why not take a Cascaret now? Don't be sick. Don't be weak. Don't be miserable. Don't be blue. Don't be nervous. Don't be irritable. Don't be cross. Don't be disagreeable. Don't be unhappy. Don't be gloomy. Don't be despondent. Don't be discouraged. Don't be downhearted. Don't be melancholy. Don't be dejected. Don't be depressed. Don't be low-spirited. Don't be out of sorts. Don't be out of humor. Don't be out of temper. Don't be out of tune. Don't be out of the way. Don't be out of the road. Don't be out of the path. Don't be out of the track. Don't be out of the course. Don't be out of the line. Don't be out of the direction. Don't be out of the channel. Don't be out of the current. Don't be out of the stream. Don't be out of the flow. Don't be out of the tide. Don't be out of the wave. Don't be out of the ripple. Don't be out of the surf. Don't be out of the foam. Don't be out of the spray. Don't be out of the mist. Don't be out of the fog. Don't be out of the cloud. Don't be out of the rain. Don't be out of the snow. Don't be out of the hail. Don't be out of the sleet. Don't be out of the frost. Don't be out of the ice. Don't be out of the cold. Don't be out of the heat. Don't be out of the warmth. Don't be out of the sunshine. Don't be out of the light. Don't be out of the darkness. Don't be out of the night. Don't be out of the day. Don't be out of the morning. Don't be out of the noon. Don't be out of the afternoon. Don't be out of the evening

LOOKING AFTER THE WELFARE OF FIREMEN.

Annual Meeting Firemen's Mutual Benefit Association.

OFFICERS WERE ELECTED.

DINNER FOLLOWED AT THE HOTEL KENSINGTON.

Delegates Present From the Cities That Maintain Paid Departments—Nature Was Mostly of a Private Nature—Stirring Speech by James Clifford—Thomas O'Neil Elected President.

The annual meeting of the State Firemen's Mutual Benefit Association was held in this city Monday afternoon in the Exempt Firemen's Association Hall on Park avenue. Every city in the State that has a paid fire department was represented with the exception of Orange. There were about thirty delegates present. The business to be considered was mostly of a private nature and was not made public.

It was arranged to have Mayor Rockefellow present at the meeting and make the address of welcome, but being out of town and unable to get home in time, his place was filled in a highly creditable manner by City Judge William N. Runyon, who gave the delegates a cordial welcome to the city.

Thomas O'Neil, of Jersey City, president of the association, presided over the deliberations. The objects of the association, that of looking after the interests and welfare of the paid firemen, was the general topic under consideration. This is the main purpose for which the association was organized, so that the politician, who often-times has an axe to grind, cannot cause the removal of an efficient fireman for trivial cause. Another object is to care for the widows and orphans of deceased firemen. This is an especially worthy object and the association has established a well deserved reputation for itself in this respect.

There are cases on record where a death claim has been paid within six hours after death. It is the purpose of the members to advance every interest that is for the betterment of the firemen, yet every effort made to break rules, etc., is promptly discouraged and not tolerated. It was along these lines that the various members talked at the meeting, and the members were highly interested in a stirring speech by Captain James Clifford, of New York, who is the father and founder of the association. He advanced some excellent suggestions and created considerable enthusiasm among the members. Another distinguished guest was Lieut. Hayes, of New York, and there were firemen present from Boston, for a short time to learn something of the association. Fred Markoe and Chas. Maxwell, of the Philadelphia association, were also present.

There is a membership of about six hundred in this state and the association is composed entirely of what is termed the privates in the fire department, no officer above an engineer being allowed to join.

The business of the afternoon included the election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, Thos. O'Neil, Jersey City; vice-president, Michael Ryan, Paterson; secretary, J. McCarron, Newark; treasurer, Michael Campbell, Trenton; sergeant-at-arms, J. Beasley. The general legislative committee of the association, representing every branch, was re-elected. The Plainfield members selected are L. M. Dunavan, Harry Bush and Wm. Townley. At the close of the meeting the association received and accepted an invitation to meet in Paterson next year.

After the meeting adjourned the delegates retired to the Kensington Hotel, where a course dinner was served by Proprietor Stasts. The menu was one of the usual excellence for which this hotel is noted and the service was of a superior kind. In addition to the delegates and the committee from the local branch of the association, who were the hosts for this occasion, there were present Chief T. O. Doane, Assistant J. W. Murray, Councilman, B. Frank Coriell and City Judge, Wm. N. Runyon as guests.

The local branch deserves credit for the excellent manner in which they entertained the delegates and showed them about the city, and they were heartily thanked by the association. After the dinner the delegates adjourned to the hotel parlors where they enjoyed themselves in a social manner until the time for departure arrived.

Mrs. Martin Had Imbibed Too Much.

Miss Jane Martin was found intoxicated on Liberty street Saturday evening and hooked up. This morning City Judge Runyon fined her $5.

THERE IS A CLASS OF PEOPLE

Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation of pure grain, called GRAIN-O, made of pure grains, that takes the place of coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress. Neither boy nor man can tell it from coffee. It does not cost over ¼ as much. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15c. and 25c. per package. Try it. Ask for GRAIN-O.

FIRST WIFE STEPS IN

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.)

There appears never to have been a great deal of secrecy about the change of Pangborn's name. He came back to Plainfield and called on some of his relatives who declare that he was very free to say that he had been disgusted with his treatment by his father and wife and had gone to work under another name. They claim he gave the name then of Winfield Scott Allen.

Stephen Pangborn or Winfield Scott Allen, which ever he was, began his career in Pennsylvania as a carpenter. He was first employed in building a railroad trestle. He was possessed of considerable ingenuity and soon won his way up so that he was able to go into the contracting business on his own account. He invested in various ways and the concerns in which he was interested seemed to flourish.

He seemed steady and industrious. At last he was wedded to the daughter of one of the leading citizens of Williamsport. His business continued to flourish and he lived in a handsome residence. There were three children, two girls and a boy, who were, until the alleged sensational details of their father's early life were made public, lived in Williamsport. They are now living at Laceyville, Pa., with the supposed wife of W. S. Allen.

Allen went into the manufacture of rifles and kept a large sporting goods store in Williamsport. He was superintendent of one of the largest Methodist Sunday-schools in that city. He was particularly fond of hunting. While out with a party of friends in the wilds of western Pennsylvania, he was accidentally shot. He wore a deer-skin coat at the time and was taken for a deer by one of the party. That happened in 1882.

Pangborn's last visit to Plainfield occurred in 1890, when the elder Stephen Pangborn died and his will was read. The son was present at the funeral and afterwards listened to the reading of the will. According to the terms of the will he was cut off with $5, while the remainder of the property was divided among the wife and the other children. It is said he remarked at that time that he did not care for he had more of his own than his father could have given him.

The news of the death of Stephen Pangborn, or Winfield Scott Allen, was known among the relatives at the time. A short account, giving the name as Stephen Pangborn, appeared in one of the local newspapers, it is said. The claims of Mrs. Pangborn and her daughter were not generally realized until the matter came to the attention of Attorney Isaac F. Runyon. He told Mrs. Pangborn, who was ignorant of the fact that there was a valuable estate left.

Since then Attorney Runyon has been working on the case and has associated with him in the case James O Clark, of Westfield McCormick & McCormick, of Williamsport, are the Pennsylvania representatives.

A mortgage was given by Mrs Pangborn and her daughter, to James O. Clark, for money loaned and advanced. Under this mortgage a fight is being made to recover possession of the entire Allen estate, part of which was sold, as has already been stated.

Mrs Pangborn is now living with her daughter, Mrs. Louis Miller, in the little cottage on Lake street. The daughter married Charles M. Perrine but secured a divorce, it is alleged, and has since married Louis Miller, a sailor in the United States navy.

The second wife of the elder Stephen Pangborn is still living. She makes her home with a daughter, Mrs. Fred Slater, of Jackson avenue. Of the ten children, there are eight living. They are Mrs. Anne Brown, of Washington avenue; William H. Pangborn, of Chatham street; Mrs. Sarah Jane Allen, of Westfield; Mrs. Julia Shepard, of Flemington; Freeman Pangborn, of this city; Mrs. Louis Willett, of East second street, and Mrs. Fred Slater, of Jackson ave nue.

BELIEVERS HAVE INHERITED CHRIST."

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.)

leaves which nature so exquisitely embroiders fall in their beauty and moulder away. Yes, all the glory and loveliness of earthly things are fleeting, but our inheritance in Christ shall never decay. (2) It is undefiled. Everywhere on earth there is leprosy of sin. (3) It is unfading. Its beauty shall abide. See John 4:14."

Referring to Ephesians 3:17, he quoted Rev. Dr. A. T. Pierson as saying that if the book of Ephesians was as be verily believed, the Switzerland of the Bible, this verse, was its highest mountain peak. He said that the Disciples on the road to Emmaus had Christ for a companion for awhile, but it is our privilege to have Him ever with us.

Mr. Shelton said that on one occasion a poor fallen woman wrote to Mr. Stead, of London, asking what could be done for her in her ruined state. Stead began a letter, intending to say that "You may and you must be a Christian." But he was called away from his writing and when he returned and read what he had written, he found he had said: "You may and must be a Christ." And he let it stand.

He noted in Ephesians 3: 16-19 that each succeeding "that" leads us to something higher. He urged faithful study of this and other passages. Commenting on the exhortation "And walk in love," he said that one step at a time is all that God requires. The grace of God, if present in our lives, will manifest itself each step we take. The secret of effective Christian service lies in this in giving ourselves for others as Christ gave himself for us.

"Note the words, 'hath loved' 'hath given.' Christ loved us, therefore He gave Himself for us. Without love there will be no sacrifice. 'Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.' (John 15:13.) Unless love be born within us by the Holy Spirit we shall not be able to give our lives in self-sacrifice for others.

"Christ loves us individually, as stated here, and He also loves the church, collectively, 'for we are members one of another.' (Eph. 4:25.) The love which Christ has for us passeth knowledge.

A subject of great importance and intense interest will be considered tonight: "The View Given by the Epistle to the Ephesians of the Holy Spirit." The public will be cordially welcomed.

ONE YEAR ON THE ISLAND FOR DANTES.

Drug Clerk Sentenced for Forgery in New York.

UNDER INDICTMENT HERE.

WILL BE ARRESTED AGAIN WHEN HE LEAVES THE PRISON.

He Stole the Diploma of C. H. Hall, Substituting His Own Name—For This the College of Pharmacy Will Prosecute Him—Rev. Mr. Buck's Testimony Saved Him From a More Severe Sentence.

Edmund Dantes, the forger and embezzler, has finally been placed where he will do less harm to the community in which he resides than formerly. Monday in the Court of Special Sessions at Centre street, New York, Dantes was sentenced to one year's imprisonment on Blackwell's Island, having previously been convicted of forgery preferred by Isadore Meyer, a druggist of Washington street, by whom he had been employed.

It will be remembered that while in this city Dantes forged the name of Druggist Hepburn to a small check, which was cashed by Dr. Leonard. He was arrested on this charge and held in the sum of $150 to await the action of the grand jury, for issuing a worthless check.

For a time Dantes worked for Charles H. Hall, the Watchung avenue druggist, during his absence abroad. While in Mr. Hall's employ Dantes became too familiar with the cash, and when Mr Hall returned he found that he had been robbed of more than $200.

When Dantes left Plainfield after his arrest on a charge of forgery preferred by Mr. Hepburn, he secured a position with Isadore Meyer, passing himself off as a graduate pharmacist. To substantiate his claims Dantes exhibited a diploma which bore the endorsement of the faculty of the New York College of Pharmacy. Later developments devulged that the diploma which Dantes had in his possession had been stolen from Mr. Hall, of this city, and that he had in some manner obliterated Mr. Hall's name and substituted that of his own. For this crime the College of Pharmacy has preferred a bench warrant, and when Dantes is released from prison he will be arrested for practicing pharmacy without a license and prosecuted for the crime.

Rev. Mr. Buck, of this city, who has taken an interest in Dantes, was in court yesterday and testified to Dantes' previous good character. It was on the strength of Mr. Buck's pleading in the young man's favor that the court was lenient in pawing sentence.

—Next Monday evening Queen City Lodge, No. 228, I. O. O. F., will elect officers and a full attendance is requested of all members.

—The regular Friday evening meeting at Warren chapel will be omitted this week on account of the Bible conference at the Y. M. C. A.

—A phonograph or gramophone makes a suitable Christmas present, especially when you can get them so reasonable. Brokaw, the East Front street piano dealer, keeps both kinds, also records and supplies. He has a good stock of the best phonographs for parlor or studio. If your piano needs tuning call on him and you will get prompt and efficient service.

Beauty is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean your blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads, and that sallow, unhealthy complexion by taking Cascarets,—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

PROGRESS OF CADETS

HIGH SCHOOL BATTALION NOW DIVIDED INTO THREE COMPANIES.

Commissioned Officers Have Been Chosen —Instruction to Go Forward by Competition—Prof. Meredith Will Instruct.

Excellent progress is being made by the cadet battalion of the Plainfield High School. Every Friday morning the last hour is devoted to drill and instruction. Heretofore the entire battalion has been drilled in the fundamental movements and facings and in the setting-up drill. Friday the cadets were divided into three companies, A, B and C.

The assignment of the recently-elected officers to the companies was made as follows: Company A, Captain Lawrence S. Tweedy, Lieutenant Hooley Titus; Company B, Captain Fred Mason, Lieutenant David Ford; Company C, Captain Albert Schoone, Lieutenant Ames Brooks. Cadet Major Mason has appointed his non-commissioned staff and the appointments have been confirmed by the faculty. They are Melick Tweedy, sergeant major; Edward F. Jones, quartermaster-sergeant.

All the commissioned officers have now been chosen, and the staff of the commanding officer is also complete. There still remain the sergeants and corporals to be appointed. They will be chosen by the officers of the different companies and the suggestions approved by the faculty. This will be done in a few weeks. Now that the battalion is divided into companies, instruction will go forward by companies. Lieut. Meredith, instructor in tactics, will devote special attention to the officers, who will thus be enabled to give better attention to the work of their respective companies.

GIVEN $14,000 DAMAGES.

Brooklyn Man Secured Big Financial Salve For the Injuries he Received by Motor Starting Up.

A verdict for damages to the amount of $14,000 was given in the Kings County Supreme Court, Brooklyn, Friday, jointly against the American Engine Company, of Bound Brook, and the World's Medical Despensary Association, of Buffalo. The plaintiff in the case was Henry M. Flynn, of Brooklyn.

Some time ago the American Engine Company, of which F. H. Ball, of Myrtle avenue, is general manager, installed a motor in the press rooms of one of the large newspapers on Park Row, New York. The motor was given by the Dispensary Association in return for advertising. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, is the principal owner of both Dispensary Associations and the engine company. July 12th, 1900, one of the workmen of the engine company was looking over the motor to regulate some trouble reported there. Flynn was a pressman. The motor started unexpectedly and caused the press to revolve. Flynn's hand was caught between the rollers and crushed so that amputation was necessary.

Suit was then brought by Flynn for $50 000 damages and the case was argued in Brooklyn last week. Friday judgment was given for the plaintiff to the amount of $14 000.

AID FOR NEEDY AND WORTHY

Ladies' Christian Work Society Has Sent Large Box of Useful Articles to a South Dakota Minister.

At this season of the year the many missionaries both at home and abroad have a prominent place in the hearts of the good people at home, who are mindful of their needs. Every year various societies send out barrels of clothing and useful articles for the missionaries and they do a great deal of good.

In this connection the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, has sent away two barrels of clothing, shoes and useful articles to the Shofield school, Aiken, S. C. They have also sent to Rev. E. F. Koerlin at Davis, Turner county, South Dakota, a large dry goods box filled with various articles for family wear and use, embracing clothing for husband, wife and children, new rag carpet, books, canned goods, etc. This is really the most valuable box sent by this society, and will no doubt be highly appreciated. The Young Woman's Mission Band of the church has also made a Sunday school at Wichert, Kankakee county, Ill., happy by sending a box filled with toys, games, etc., valued at $25.

Educate Your Bowels With Cascarets.

Candy Cathartic, cure constipation forever. 10c, 25c. If C. C. C. fail, druggists refund money.

Cut Glass Bottle Worth $200.

There is on exhibition at Randolph's drug store, West Front street, a cut-glass bottle of great value. It is the property of Lazell, Dalley & Co., and is one of thirteen that was used in their exhibition of perfumes at the World's Fair. It is the largest cut glass bottle in America, requiring seven hundred pounds of crysal before the work of cutting began. The entire set cost $3,500 and this bottle alone cost $200. The stopper weighs fifteen pounds, and the bottle sixty pounds. It is considered to be one of the finest pieces of cut-glass work yet seen. It will be on exhibition here for sometime.

BIBLE CONFERENCE IN Y. M. C. A. HALL.

Don O. Shelton's Meeting Attracted a Large Audience.

EPISTLE TO THE EPHESIANS.

TALK PRIOR TO REGULAR LESSON HAD TO BE OMITTED.

Mr. Shelton Treated the Topic by a Carefully Arranged Plan, Which Included the Asking of Questions to be Answered by Those Able to Do so in the Audience—What He Taught.

There was a large audience in attendance at the Y. M. C. A. Hall Monday to participate in the first of Don O. Shelton's studies in the Epistle to the Ephesians. In spite of the threatening weather the first night of the Bible Conference was a decided success. Nearly all of those present had brought their Bibles, and a large majority had read the Epistle at least once before coming to the meeting.

L. H. Bigiow, Jr., and a chorus choir, with Miss Lillian A. Force at the piano, led the introductory song service, which was joined in heartily by the audience. Rev. J. O. McKelvey then conducted the devotional exercises, offering prayer, leading a responsive reading, and calling for a repetition of the Lord's Prayer. A vocal solo, "The Golden Threshold," was sung by Mrs. George W. Gardiner, with a violin obligato by Dykeman Winckler, and prayer was offered by I. Winthrop Trowell, Frederick H. Andrews and Mr. Shelton. An offering for the expenses of the Conference was received, Mrs. Gardiner singing "In the Secret of His Presence" during the offertory.

Mr. Shelton had expected to give a ten-minute talk on "How to Study the Bible," prior to the regular lesson of the evening, but the time for the opening exercises had been more than used up, so the preliminary talk was omitted, and the subject of the meeting entered upon at once.

"The View of God the Father given in the Epistle to the Ephesians" was the topic assigned for this first session. Mr. Shelton treated the subject by a carefully arranged plan, aiding his listeners in following this plan by notes upon a blackboard. He called for the reading of many references, and asked many question, which were answered by any who were prepared. "God as a Father" was the first division of the topic. First, said Mr. Shelton, He is Our Father. He is accessible to us. He provides for us; He protects us. From Him we should reverence, honor, imitate and trust Him. He is the Father of Our Lord Jesus Christ. He is also the Father of glory, the Epistle states; by glory we understand celestial honor, of which He is the Source. Then He is the Father of all who believe.

"The Character of God the Father" was next dwelt upon. First, the Epistle stated that He possesses great power. If we will but let knowledge of this power, the leader said, it must be by exercise of the faith we have; it will grow by use. He is love. One reason for which the Bible is given to us is to show us this fact. He is also wise and righteous, and can impart wisdom and righteousness to us.

The Epistle, Mr. Shelton went on to say, is a revelation of God at work. What does it tell us of what He has done and is doing? First, He chose Paul. Next, the privilege of every one of us to feel that we are what we are and where we are because God has chosen us for it. Rev F. B. Meyer has given us a good rule for learning what God's will for us is: when inner conviction, the Word of God and a providential opening all point one way, we may feel assured that that is the way in which God would have us walk. The reason for His choosing us, the Epistle tells us, is that we should be holy and blameless before Him. But the Epistle tells us of other things He has done. He has accepted us in Christ; He has raised Christ from the dead; He has manifested His mercy and kindness to us; and He has made us to sit in heavenly places. If we have the spirit of heaven in us, heaven begins for us here below; and we shall not fall of the heavenly inheritance at last.

A brief prayer by Mr. Shelton, the singing of a closing hymn, and the final words of prayer from William D. Murray brought the meeting to an end.

Mr. Shelton is simple, clear and easy in his manner of teaching, and his talk was practical, interesting and thoroughly helpful. His object is not so much to impart a certain amount of instruction as it is to interest in Bible study, and to give a love impetus to the real "searching" of the Scriptures.

A New Avenue.

Michael Undal has a force of men engaged in grading an avenue for J. E. Martine. The avenue intersects Park avenue at the residence of F. O. Herring and will be known as Thorn avenue. It will extend from Park avenue to the Woodland Boulevard.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the diseases, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

no.	cures	cents.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Torpid Liver	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Eruptions, Eczema	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
18	Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Kidney Disease	.25
22	Nervous Debility	.25
23	Sea Sickness, Vertigo	.25
24	Kidney Disease	.25
25	Nervous Debility	1.00
26	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
27	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
28	Painful Periods, with Spasms	.25
29	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitation	1.00
30	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
31	Scarlet Fever, Eruptive Diseases	.25
32	Chronic Congestions, Suppressed	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggist or Mailed Free.

Sold by druggists, or sent postpaid, of price. Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL "THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles—External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding, Itching or Ulcerated. Relieves Pain at once. The relief is immediate—the cure perfect.

PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent postpaid on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

Eureka Harness Oil

Eureka Harness Oil is the most pervasive penetrative lubricant, the best preservative of oil leather. It cuts, softens, toughens and preserves the leather fibre.

Sold by dealers everywhere. Made by STANDARD OIL CO.

CATARRH

LOCAL and CLIMATIC

Nothing but a local remedy or change of climate will cure

CATARRH

The Specific is

Ely's Cream Balm

It is quickly absorbed. Gives Relief at Once. It Opens and Cleanses the Nasal Passages. Allays Inflammation. Heals and Protects the Membrane. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. No Mercury. No Injurious Drug. Full Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail.

ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

COLD IN HEAD

DIED.

ADAMS—At Dunellen, N. J., Wednesday, Dec. 25, 1901, Mary Adams, in her 83rd year, aged 6 years, 2 months and 15 days.

DUNCKEL—At Plainfield, on Thursday, Dec. 26, 1901, Mary, widow of Chas. Dunckel, aged 68 years, 3 months and 7 days.

KITCHEN—Suddenly, in North Plainfield, Saturday, December 28th, 1901, Irene, wife of Charles Kitchen, aged 25 years, 6 months and 27 days.

LAYTON—At Jersey City, Sunday, Dec. 29, 1901, Samuel Layton, aged 80 years.

MINER—In this city, December 11th, 1901, Frederick J. Miner, in his 52d year.

PURDY—At Plainfield, Dec. 31, 1901, Clarence B. Purdy, aged 32 years.

PARTICULAR MENTION

N. P. Drake, of Dunellen, is confined to his home by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Powlison, of the borough, have been entertaining company from out-of-town.

Oliver Voorhees, of East Front street, has returned to his old position in the press room at the News office.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward White have arrived safely at San Antonio, Texas, and next Saturday they will leave for Mexico.

David Titsworth, of West Seventh street, left yesterday for Ottawa, Can., on important business. He will return the last of the week.

Robert Grant, for many years bookkeeper at Rheanme's coal and lumber yard, has accepted a similar position in a New York wholesale house, and N. H. Sayron has taken the position vacated by Mr. Grant at Rheanme's.

—Iona Council, Degree of Pocahontas, will elect officers at their regular meeting next week Wednesday evening.

—The Ladies' Aid Society of Warren chapel will meet Friday afternoon at the usual hour and a full attendance is desired.

—By the first of next month the Plainfield Electric Light Company expect to have their underground system of lighting in working order.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE,

Between Front and Second streets.

Tinners,
Plumbers
Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your furnace mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,

Brick and Portable Furnace

Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,

Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanlike manner.

Having had myself work with the Master Mechanics Association of New York City, I employ none but first-class men, and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 113 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues.

First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF.

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco and smokers' articles, has removed from 201 West Front street, to South side of Somerset street, first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

A Free Trip to Paris!

Including a visit to the Paris Exposition, with good salary, will be given to a reliable man or lady to travel and advertise our business. For particulars address, with stamp, THE PARIS EXPOSITION, Baltimore, Md.

"ARE" EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE

A Complete Novel

53 DO PAGES FOR SALE BY ALL NEWSDEALERS

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

I have been ready for business. All the latest appliances in the barber's line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue,

Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale or Exchange. Money to loan on Approved Security.

AFTER THE SIGNERS FOR LIQUOR LICENSES.

Law and Order League Of Scotch Plains.

TO INVOKE THE LAW'S AID

IN PREVENTING THE SALE OF LIQUOR IN THE TOWNSHIP.

Those Who Sign the Petition for a License to Be Summoned Before the Courts to Explain Their Rights to Do so—A Printed Circular Sent to Every Citizen in Scotch Plains and Fanwood.

The executive committee of the Citizens League of the Scotch Plains and Fanwood townships have issued a circular to the voters and freeholders for the purpose of laying before them certain things which they claim to be a menace to the fair name of the townships and the lowering of the standard of morality in these communities. Reference is made to the licensing to sell intoxicated drinks at the inns and taverns in these places. The league has been formed for the purpose of suppressing the sale of liquor, particularly on Sunday, and to the means so far used to bring about this result have been without effect, it is now proposed to resort to more extreme measures to not only stop the sale of liquor but if possible to prevent the flocking to these towns a disorderly element which the sale of liquor induces. The League believes the solution of the problem lies with the signers of the applications for licenses. If the applicant cannot get twelve freeholders to sign the legal petition a license cannot issue. Following is the legal form of the application for a license:

We, the subscribers, freeholders of the Township of Fanwood, in the county of Union, do certify that ..... who is desirous to obtain a license for keeping an inn or tavern in the township of Fanwood, is a person of good repute for honesty and temperance, and is known to us to have at least two bedchambers more than is necessary for his family use, and is well provided with house room, stabling and provender, and that the place where he now resides is in every necessary kind proper for a tavern and we pray your honors to license him accordingly. And we do further certify that the said tavern is necessary and will continue to the public good.

The league states in the circular that it does not believe that the places are a necessity or conduce to public good, and they purpose to contest the applications for license. For that purpose able counsel has been secured and it is proposed to examine the qualifications of all who sign the above petition, and if possible to ask the courts to compel them to show their right to sign. These circulars were yesterday sent to every citizen in the town. This latest movement of the league has caused considerable consternation among the number of the league told a Daily Press reporter last night that the members of the executive committee would, if it was possible to do so, have every signer of an application summoned to court and compel them to testify to the facts. In this way the committee believed it will be successful in reducing the number of signers to a minimum. This latest movement of the Law and Order League will be watched with interest by all classes.

WILL HOLD ASSEMBLIES.

THAT SERIES OF DANCES WILL BE RESUMED THIS WINTER.

The First Assembly Will be Held in the Casino December 27th—Two Others to Follow—The List of Patronesses.

The prospects for an unusually active social season in Plainfield this winter are very bright. The latest announcement of importance is that the Assemblies will be resumed this winter. The first will be held in the Casino on the holiday season.

The last Assembly was held three seasons ago. For the last two winters no attempt was made to continue the old custom. Instead a series of subscription dances took their place in a measure. This winter there has been a general feeling that the Assemblies should form part of the happenings of the social world.

The invitations for this series of formal society dances will be issued this week. The first will be held Wednesday evening, December 27th. The next will be held during the middle of January and the third in February, just before the beginning of Lent.

The patronesses will be Mrs. C. E. Brooks, Mrs. Rowland Cox, Mrs. N. E. Edgerton, Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, Mrs. Pliny Fisk, Mrs. H. M. Stockton, Mrs. Henry Talmage, Mrs. H. G. Runkle, Mrs. W. T. Kaufman, Mrs. S. L. Schoonmaker and Mrs. J. Kirland Myers.

Greenbrook Council Elect

At the meeting of Greenbrook Council, No. 1758, Royal Arcanum, last Thursday evening, these officers were elected: Regent, Frank Cobb; vice-regent, L. B. Skillman; orator, W. F. Oliver; secretary, Webster Grant; collector, J. F. Bamberger; treasurer, Harry Coward; chaplain, Nelson Van Winkle; warden, J. M. Higgins; sentry, Ralph Bunyon; trustee, C. G. Davis; trustees of hospital bed association, L. B. Skillman and Frank Cobb.

THE ARMY CHAPLAIN.

Different Ways of Reaching the Hearts of the Soldier Boys.

While military men and office-seekers of almost every other sort are using every effort to secure commissions in the new volunteer regiments, no large and loud clamor for the positions of chaplain have been made public. The regiments in the Philippines are not overburdened with these black-coated officers as it is, and it is entirely probable that most of the ten additional regiments will leave without them. The chaplains are appointed by the President, but their nominations are usually to posts rather than regiments, and they are a function of peace time.

Dr. J. S. Turner, who is one of the examining surgeons at the Chicago recruiting station, was talking a few days ago about the chaplains he had known in his long experience on Western posts and Indian reservations. He inclines to the theory that an army chaplain can do more good by example than active preaching, and that while some of them try to "convert men on the spot," as he says, and most of them fail, He is heartily in favor of them as an institution, and speaks highly of their excellent assistance and benefit to the enlisted men. The surgeon and the chaplain have opportunities to do good outside the strict line of their professions, which most of them are quick to seize upon and many a soldier in trouble has found a friend in them.

"The best army chaplain I ever knew," said Dr. Turner, "served at Fort Randall for nearly twenty years. He was a Catholic priest, who had lived all his life on the frontier, and he was the right man in the right place, and was appointed from there. His whole experience in life was drawn from those two close neighborhoods—the mission and the army post. He knew absolutely nothing about the world outside, and was the most guileless man I ever met. He was one of the best things we had around that post. He was broad in his religious views if he was narrow in his observation in life. He used to read and conduct reading the Episcopalian morning prayers occasionally at his services or of using the forms of the other churches in his unit, for he was field agent affiliated at. He did his greatest good in just living there in his quarters. He was a quiet, gentle man, and his quarters were visited many a time by the men who were in trouble, and needed a friend's advice. The officers cannot always help the men out of their scrapes, but this man could. He considered that that was the example of that simple old man, living there alone, doing good to all who came to him for everybody, saved more of the wild young fellows from going to the devil than all the preaching he could have done on the parade ground as well as anywhere else he might meet them and talk to them about their souls. But they never thought to take him much, and he wasn't popular about the post. I have known several of the army chaplains who were as religious and good as this active campaigner, and they got along lots better. The good ones don't preach dogma. They talk about the principles of living, and watch out for chances to befriend the men. The best way to a soldier's soul is through his heart."

A BOER CAPTURE.

How a Correspondent Was Taken Prisoner and Treated.

We got through safely as far as Elandslaagte, but at that point the skirmishers dead against us and the driver refused to go further. He was bullied cleverly manhandled by a party of Boers numbering about fifty who had been lying in wait for us. The moment we moved down the hill we were covered by their rifles and we were called upon to alight. The passenger train we learned afterward, had left Elandslaagte station. The Boers had fired upon it, but the plucky engine driver put on full steam and went safely ahead, though he was compelled to leave the guard behind. The Boers had taken possession of the station, and ordered the man in charge to set the signal at "stop" in order to wreck the train. Our driver ran right into the trap, and we found ourselves prisoners before we knew what had happened.

Directly they had secured the train, the Boers cut the telegraph line and tore up the tracks. We ourselves were treated fairly enough but the officer in command warned us that any one attempting to escape would, if discovered, be immediately shot down. At the same time, he assured us that the Boers were not savages. Those under his charge consisted of Transvaalers, three Swiss and Germans from the Cape Colony who were British subjects. My enforced stay with the enemy was not without its amusing features.

General Joubert, with a few guns and 1,500 men, including a German contingent, arrived in camp the same night. It was evident to us from the conversations which we heard that a battle was impending. I and my fellow prisoners were strictly warned to remain within doors under guard. During our confinement the proceedings of one or two of the more turbulent Boers caused us some anxiety. Two of them, actuated by drink, broke into our room, and had to be separated by force. But the leaders were on the whole particularly careful to place us under the charge of men who could be trustworthy men. On Friday night our field cornet, although nodding in his chair at times, showed a disposition for an hour over another smoking concert, when the utmost jollity prevailed. We prisoners slept on the veldt, while the majority of the Boers were under cover

NOBLE WORK OF THE KING'S DAUGHTERS

Reports Made at Semi-annual Meeting of City Union.

REVIEW OF THE BABY CAMP.

MUCH GOOD WAS ACCOMPLISHED FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

A Balance Left in the Treasury Which Will be Used to Commence the Enterprise Next Summer—Jacob A. Riis, the Noted Au hor, Delivered an Address, Telling of Work Among Poor of New York

The semi-annual meeting of the City Union of King's Daughters, held Thursday afternoon in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church, drew together a large number of the members of the union as well as many ladies and gentlemen who have taken ap interest in this organization. Miss Fiorella Bliss, the president, presided and Miss Lillian A. Force occupied the corresponding secretary's chair. Reports were received from various committees, including those of Miss Edith B. Little, chairman of the camp committee, and Miss Emily B. Tracy, chairman of the nurse committee. Miss Lillian A. Force, the corresponding secretary, also read a report of the spring meeting held and what it was proposed to do as regards the Baby Camp, all being well known to the public, who has watched with interest the successful efforts of the ladies who have had in hand the laudable and noble work.

Miss Little's report first referred to the destruction of the first cottage on the mountains and the erection last summer of the new building, costing $346, which had been finished and the Bapy Camp opened on July 18th, thanks to the generosity of the public which had been appealed to by the press and clergy of the city. The register showed that there had been 109 visitors present on the opening day and since on until until the close 1,010 persons had called to inspect the camp. These had come from Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Texas, Maryland, Michigan, Nova Scotia and many cities in New York State.

Miss Octavia Setzer, the nurse who had charge of the camp, had made sixteen trips from July 18th to September 13th, there being an average of three mothers and three little ones taken at each trip.

The report showed $759 90, with disbursements, including insurance, etc., of $517 84, leaving a balance of $242 06 in the hands of the treasurer. At the last meeting of the executive board it had been decided that the balance should be reserved to carry on the work of the Baby Camp next year, instead of being used to carry on the winter work, as had been suggested.

The report of Miss Emily B. Tracy, chairman of the nurse committee, was equally as interesting as that of Miss Little. It stated that the nurse had paid twenty-seven visits to the sick during July and August and early in September. There had been found comparatively little in Plainfield during the summer and the nurse had been called less than usual, but as cold weather approaches the work is expected to increase. From May 11th to November 1st, thirty-four patients had been cared for—seventeen improved, one unimproved and three died.

Owing to the resignation of Miss Setzer, the committee had been compelled to secure another nurse in the person of Miss Delaney, a graduate of Muhlenberg Hospital, who will assume charge of the work on February 1st. Thanks were extended to all who had contributed liberally and sent contributions through the Needlework Guild.

Reports were then received from the various circles attached to the church and sums of money, which in the aggregate amounted to over $400, were reported.

Jacob A. Riis, of New York, author of "The Other Half" and other works, who has been identified with tenement house work, and incidentally that of the King's Daughters, gave an entertaining talk along the lines of charitable work, particularly with reference to the good that has been accomplished in New York city. Charity, he said, must come from the heart. Machine charity, he likened to a wheel barrow that had to be pushed along. Education and self help were the two rocks to stand upon in charitable work. First educate the one you purpose helping to help himself, even if only in a small way. In helping others the little things that greater ones are accomplished. Mr. Riis referred feeling to the introduction among the poor of flowers and how much had been accomplished by opening the windows of their minds with the natural beauties of God's handiwork. His reference to the pine coffin, containing the body of a poor child, which had been covered with field daisies supplied through the charity organization of New York, produced an inspiration among the audience that the sentiment clearly reflected in the faces of all who heard the story. The speaker interspersed his talk with several anecdotes which served to illustrate the humorous side of the subject to good advantage. In closing he spoke of the good work accomplished by the King's Daughters in the establishment of the kindergarten and cooking schools, the latter he maintained being particularly helpful in the way of teaching temperance more strongly than was at first thought possible. By supplying the stomach with good wholesome food rum was not used quite so freely and in time might be entirely dispensed with. Mr. Riis impressed upon the young ladies of the City Union the importance of looking after the little things, for by so doing he said they would "carry the little stones and in time help build the palace of justice."

Many of the ladies brought with them glasses of jelly and other delicacies which are to be stored in the closet of the Union to be used for the sick.

At the close of the meeting the lady members of the Union and their friends were provided with a tea and light collation served in the Sunday school room.

DONATIONS AT HOSPITAL.

Those Who Have Contributed to Make Life Brighter in the Community Sick Room.

The following have contributed articles to the Muhlenberg Hospital during the past month:

Arthur Robinson, daily papers; Mrs. D. T. VanBuren, 15 glasses of jelly; Mrs. Cra[illegible] 2 cakes; Mrs. W. H. Sampson, literature; hospital committee of Holy Cross church, 4 glasses jelly, grapes; C. E. of Presbyterian church, Dunellen, 25 glasses of jelly, 3 jars fruit, old linen, literature; D. C. Ivins, 14 bags of potatoes; Mrs. Brooks, books; Mrs. Wm. Davison, old linen, jar of preserves; Mrs. Chiffon, flowers; Mrs. H. B. Paul, literature; Mrs. Walds, literature; Mrs. Reading, box of apples; J. A. Alexander, literature; Mrs. Ridder, apples; Mrs. S. Huntington, literature, box of California grapes, turkey; John Mc Dowell, celery, (3 times), bananas; Mrs. L. W. Serrell, basket of apples; Mrs. Rebe Ryder, 2 pints of jelly, literature; Mrs. A. C. Vail, quantity of quilting, Sunday papers; Mrs. Wallace Vail, 12 glasses jelly; Patrick Egany, 12 bbl. wood, basket apples, basket potatoes, 3 heads of cabbage; Dorcas Circle King's Daughters, 10 small frocks; Mrs. T. S. Hunn, Sunday papers; Mrs. W. H. Moore, basket of apples; Miss A. L. Gorslin, literature; Mrs. B. O. Bowers, 12 glasses of jelly; Mrs. D. M. Moore, 2 baskets of apples; Helping Hand Circle Grace church, butter, sandwiches; Mrs. J. W. Wright, clothing; Ethan Lamphear, literature; G. H. Cook, 10 cauliflower; Harry Roberts, literature; Hope chapel, cake; Miss Louise Booth, basket of apples; Stanley Day, literature; W. W. Moore, 1 bottle and 1 dozen sparklets; Miss Anna Miller, hope and literature; E. T. Dunn, can corn, peas and tomatoes; Miss M. E. Brown, literature, old linen; Mrs. M. B. Giles, old linen; H. DeMott, turkey; Mrs. Pliny Fisk, bbl. apples; Mrs. W. H. Stockton, 12 glasses jelly; D. W. Towers, red stocker; Mrs. H. G. Squires, 6 jars of jam; Mrs. J. E. Morse, literature; E. Eddy, turkey; Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, box oranges; C. Arnold, turkey; Drake & Mundy, 2 turkeys; Needle Work Guild, 236 pieces clothing.

SUPREME DICTATOR THERE

Official Visitation to Senate Lodge, Which is Reported to be in a Prosperous Condition.

There was an in interesting meeting last Thursday of Senate Lodge, No. 3542, K. of H., at which time the following dignitaries were present; Supreme Dictator J. C. Shannon, of St. Louis, Mo.; Grand Dictator C. J. Feytel, of Newark; Vice-grand Dictator C. E. Tooker, of Demarest, N. J.; Grand Reporter J. M. Mayhew, of Newark; Past Grand Dictator Peter Sherf, of Elizabeth; Past Grand Dictator and District Deputy Chas. Mayhew, of Newark, and other representatives of lodges in this vicinity.

It was an official visit of the officers and a good time was had. The order was reported to be in better condition than ever and increasing in membership. It was decided that in the near future to give a smoker for the members. The annual meeting for the election of officers will be held Thursday evening, December 21st, followed by a collation.

RELIEF CORPS ELECT.

Auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post Chose Their Officers for a Year.

At the regular meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 78, G. A. R., held last Friday, the annual election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Casper Bolsterli; senior vice-president, Mrs. W. B. Mattox; junior vice-president, Mrs. Charles Stephens; treasurer, Mrs. Walter Walker; chaplain, Mrs. M. C. Dobbins; conductor, Mrs. Andrew Cox; guard, Mrs. Alexander Sergeant; first deputy, Mrs. Kline; second, Mrs. Devine; first alternate delegate, Mrs. Samuel Terry; second, Mrs. Alexander Sergeant. The installation will take place early in January.

40 YEAR'S STRUGGLE

BISMARCK'S MEDICAL ADVISER ISSUES A STATEMENT.

Reveals That the Iron Chancellor Was Face to Face With Death From Disease Many Times During That Length of Time—At Times Was Out of His Mind.

Prof. Schweninger, the medical adviser of Prince Bismarck during his declining years, has just issued a pamphlet, entitled, "Aerztekrieg Bismarcks," describing his medical diagnosis and treatment of his distinguished patient.

Intended for medical readers, the pamphlet is intensely interesting to lay readers, says the New York World.

It reveals that thirteen years before the humbling of France in 1870 Bismarck an injured his leg that his amputation was threatened; that in the Sadowa or Koniggratz campaign in 1866 he broke down and cried like a child; that an attempt was made to assassinate a dying state, and that in his later days he not only suffered intolerable agonies but was sometimes for brief periods out of his mind.

For forty years the life of this man of iron, whose name was in the popular estimation almost a synonym of health, was a struggle against disease, fight with disease, suffering and death.

Prof. Schweninger paints a thrilling picture of Prince Bismarcks' grim struggle with death.

"Several times during nearly forty years," he writes, "Bismarck was face to face with death. In 1852 he was injury to his leg, received while hunting, developed, from neglect and quack treatment, into a serious wound, so that the question arose whether the amputation of the left leg above the knee. But Bismarck decided to fight the disease.

"After two years of keen suffering he regained his strength, but this left leg always remained the seat of weakness. In the Koniggratz campaign in 1866, when he was broken down by work and worry, this leg became violently painful. He was reduced to the most pitiful state of nervous prostration, attack culminating in a violent storm of hysterics, in which the 'man of iron' cried like a child. When he returned from the campaign he was elevated in reputation of the left leg above the knee. But Bismarck decided to fight the disease.

"After two years of keen suffering he regained his strength, but this left leg always remained the seat of weakness. In the Koniggratz campaign in 1866, when he was broken down by work and worry, this leg became violently painful. He was reduced to the most pitiful state of nervous prostration, attack culminating in a violent storm of hysterics, in which the 'man of iron' cried like a child. When he returned from the campaign he was elevated in reputation of the left leg above the knee. But Bismarck decided to fight the disease, and he succeeded.

"When I saw him first, in 1882, I said: 'If he goes on as he is now, there will be a serious collapse in six months,' with results concerning which I should entertain great fears.'

"My prediction was fulfilled. The Chancellor was reduced almost to a dying state. In 1883 by advertisement, his doctors diagnosing his case as cancer of the liver and stomach.

"I put him under a strict regimen and in a few months he was as well and in my absence he drank an immense quantity of buttermilk—enough for three ordinary men—bringing on pneumonia, fatal illness, many anxious days. Oct. 17, 1897, (nine months before his death on July 30, 1898), there began an intolerable pain whose sudden appearance in the middle of the night I cannot inexplicable, rendering his life thenceforward an unbearable burden.

"Of diagnosed these symptoms as incipient cancer of the intestine, which the protracted and relentless course of the disease had confirmed, though the bulletins, which were prepared for the harmless bulletins were prepared for the papers, so that he might not learn the truth from that source.

"The paroxysms of dread was attended by slight aberations of the mind, by delusions of which he was afterward conscious. 'This afternoon I was partly outside of myself; now I have found myself within me again,' was his description of these attacks.

"For two days before his death he was unable to sit in his accustomed place at dinner and drank the foaming wine in which he delighted. His intellect was as bright as ever.

"So he was taken. After ten months of this awful agony death was a gentle deliverer and we had succeeded in keeping the raging disease within still the depay of the vital forces brought about the end."

Origin of "Hip-hip-hurrah."

"Hip-hip-hurrah" has always been regarded as a meaningless jubilant cry, typical of the exuberant temperament of the race. Compared with it the "Vive" of the Frenchman, the "Hoch" of the German, the "Viva" of the Russian are tame and expressionless; but the "Hip-hip-hurrah" from Anglo-Saxon throats rings through the spheres and carries everything before it. It is a cruel blow to find that the words are not English at all. The one consolation left us is that they were not "made in Germany."

A gentleman named Adams has been investigating the mysteries of the pyramids and monuments of Egypt, and has found the phrase "Hip-hip-hurrah" among the early hieroglyphics of that country. The only consolation which this remarkable discovery is the argument which may reasonably be deduced that the presence of these British words on the stupendous monuments of Pharaoh-land give us a prior right to the whole of the Nile valley. And this theory is strengthened by the fact that Professor Hip, Mr. Adams, the hieroglyphic "Hip-hip-hurrah" means, when translated, "On, on to plunder."

Thought She Needed It.

A Boston lady of great respectability was presently returning to North Dakota, a right prohibition state, and in the dining-cars this notice was posted: "No intoxicating liquors will be served on this train." The lady passed through the state of North Dakota." The train had been rolling along through that interminable state a long time, when the lady's waiter came into the dining-car for her dinner. Casting her eye out of the car window upon a somewhat changed landscape, she called the waiter, with purely geographical interest:

"Are we still in North Dakota?"

"No, ma'am," said he alertly, and with a hospitable grin: "what'll you take to drink, ma'am?"

Every man is a hero and an oracle to somebody and to that person, whatever he says, has an enchanted value.—Emerson.

YOUNG SOCIETY BUDS BLOSSOM IN STYLE.

Formal Coming Out of the Misses Cox and Fisk.

WAS A BRILLIANT AFFAIR.

RECEPTION GIVEN AT HOME OF MRS. COX THURSDAY.

Debutantes Looked Charming and Were Introduced to Over Six Hundred Guests of This City, New York and Other Places—Today a White Luncheon is to be Given—Theatre Party for Tomorrow.

With an elaborateness of detail that has never before been equalled in this city, Miss Fanny C. Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, and Miss Louise G. Fisk, daughter of Former Mayor and Charles J. Fisk, of West Seventh street, were formally introduced into Plainfield society at a reception given by Mrs. Cox at her spacious home Thursday afternoon and evening. This "coming-out" of these two charming young debutantes is marked with a series of functions that make it a leading social event of the season.

The reception of Thursday was complete in every particular. The decorations at the Cox residence were be wood with a lavish hand, and the rooms were fairly transformed into floral bowers of pink and green. American Beauty roses and southern smilax were used in profusion. Over 1,000 invitations were issued for the reception. Between the hours of 4 and 7 there were fully 600 guests from the elite of society of Plainfield, New York and neighboring cities, who thronged the parlors and gave life and beauty to the scene.

At the left of the entrance to the drawing room the two debutantes awaited the guests. They were both charmingly gowned in white. Miss Cox carried a bouquet of white daisies. Miss Fisk's bouquet was of pink roses. Both young women are attractive in appearance, Miss Cox a pronounced blonde and Miss Fisk a less decided type, and both looked very beautiful indeed in their superb toilets. About them were grouped Miss McCormick, of Hertisburg; Miss Wood, of Pittsburg; Miss Hall, of Chicago; Miss Waterman, of Southport, Conn., and Miss Bradford, of New York, all of them pretty and charming and gowned in a becoming manner.

The mothers of the two debutantes were present in the drawing room, where they were assisted in receiving by Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Mrs. C. W. McCutcheon and Mrs. S. L. Schoonmaker. A string quintette was encamped behind a floral barricade and rendered selections during the reception. In the dining room the table was magnificently decorated in the prevailing colors. Refreshments were served by Sherry.

About the mantel and fireplace in the drawing room a perfect bank of American beauty roses set in southern smilax was arranged. At each bow window curtains of smilax were held back with pink roses, while others were arranged along the top. In every possible space roses and smilax were artistically distributed with a profusion that was fairly bewildering.

The affair was one of the most elaborate of its kind ever held in this city. It formed a grand opening for the society careers of these two young women, daughters of two of Plainfield's leading families.

Friday and Saturday were equally busy ones for the young debutantes. A white luncheon is given them Friday by Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, an aunt of Miss Cox. A dance was held in the Casino Friday evening in their honor. Saturday Mrs. Fisk gives t en l theatre party followed by a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria.

COURT PLAINFIELD OFFICERS.

Lathey DeCamp in Chief Ranger of Independent Order of Foresters.

Court Plainfield, No. 1344, Independent Order of Foresters, at their meeting Friday night accepted twelve applications and initiated five candidates after which the following were elected to serve the court for the ensuing year: Past chief ranger, J. J. Fraed; chief ranger, Lathey DeCamp; recording secretary, James Patterson; financial secretary, John F. Casey; treasurer, J. W. Kerr; T. Woodward, W. Monsell; chaplain, A. J. Jennings; finance committee, A. J. Jennings, W. H. Toms; trustees, H. H. Lowrie, J. J. Fraed. The installation of the newly-elected officers will take place the first meeting night in January, 1900, by the High Court officers.

Fire in a Chimney.

Friday evening between 7 and 8 o'clock an alarm of fire was sent in from Box No. 143, corner of Grandview avenue and Somerset street, a fire having been discovered in the chimney at the house 34 Grandview avenue, occupied by James White. The department responded, but the firemen were able to extinguish the fire with one extinguisher. The damage was very slight.

RATS CLIMB TREES.

THIS IS NO FAIRY STORY BUT A PLAIN STATEMENT OF FACT.

If You Don't Believe It Just Take a Trip to Cocos and Christmas Islands and Be Convinced—Some Wonderful Crabs Are There Also.

Cocos and Christmas Islands would be pretty comfortable resorts if it were not for their extreme remoteness and for the bad habit the rats and crabs there have acquired of climbing the trees, and making themselves perniciously active in other surprising directions. Mr. Darwin said that the rats didn't believe crabs could climb trees, but Mr. Darwin had never lived on the Christmas Islands, and unhappily did not live to read the report that Dr. Guppy has issued, with all due formality, by the Government of Her Majesty Queen Victoria.

It is a sufficiently interest that the Queen takes in these two islands off the southern coast of Sumatra, for these little dots on the map have a monarch of their own, in the person of King Ross III. The Queen has made a practice of sending a commissioner to visit her brother monarch once a year, and, of course, on each successive visit, the labor problem recently has been more troublesome than usual, owing to the fact that the phosphate deposits are worked by Bantamese coolies, fourteen in all, who are such a bad lot that it requires the entire supply of native Cocos men, every one of the Bantamese working, one Cocos being told off to watch one Bantamese, with three left over for emergencies. Just why the Bantamese are so bad and the Cocos men so good, in spite of the fact that in place of the Bantamese is not exactly apparent, except that they are said to be rather stupid, and, like the inhabitants of Pitcairn Islands, are degenerating; one indication of the degeneracy, according to Her Majesty's commissioner, is the partiality of the Cocos women for European medicines, with which they dose themselves quite regardless of the nature of their ailments. It is a commonplace of the days when the water is smooth the women spend the whole day gazing at their reflections on its surface, and get lost in the shallows. But the Queen's emissioner does not report that they have any especial excuse for this conduct on the ground of extreme beauty, though he does not commit himself, and see any of the Cocos crabs actually engaged in climbing trees, but there was so much testimony to that effect from the natives that he is satisfied. Another queer custom of one variety of the Cocos crab is to march down to the margin of the sea in a body in January, when the entire crab population of the island going down in procession, which lasts for fifteen days. The female deposits her eggs, and by the time procession faces about and marches back, extending its return over another fifteen days. When the eggs are hatched, the young crabs likewise form in line and move uphill.

The other variety of crab, which is a big land crab, has for an enemy the Cocos rat, which is small. If the rat carries an oil sac under his tail which is esteemed as a special luxury by the Cocos Islanders, and if it wins the fights that take place, for while the young crabs are not a match for the rat, the old crab is, on the other hand, a terrible foe, and it takes a big crab at just the right age there is a fight worth seeing.

The big rat is the bane of King Ross's domain, and it is said that if it were not for dogs the houses on the islands would not be habitable. In the simple language of the commissioner, the dogs "bother the rats," and so they do. God allowed His children to pass through such pain and suffering. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, then spoke concerning the beautiful Christian life of the departed, and what an example she left for those with whom she was surrounded. He referred to her patience in suffering, her generosity and of her noble Christian qualities, and told of how she had considered death a boy living and a worthy life. As the close of Dr. Schenck's remarks he offered a fervent prayer. "Thy Will Be Done," was then tenderly sung by Mr. Runyon.

There was a profusion of floral tributes, both large and small and of great beauty. The Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, of which the deceased was an honorary member, sent a beautiful floral tribute as a token of the high esteem in which she had been held.

After the service the remains were placed in the receiving vault at Hillside cemetery, pending the selection of a family plot. At the receiving vault Dr. Richards offered prayer and pronounced the benediction. Those who served as pall-bearers were J. B. Coward, G. L. VanEmburgh, E. H. Holmes, A. L. Force, Thomas E. MacDonald and William H. Martin.

WILL HELP PLAINFIELD.

FACTORY ENTERPRISES TO BE DEVELOPED IN SUBURBS.

Other Banks's Scheme is Discussed—Bonsmar Bros. to be Established—Several Acres Have Already Been Sold.

About three months ago Elias Dewey Drake addressed the Plainfield Advancement Association, and stated that if a large tract of land could be bought in Plainfield or nearly on its westerly limits he could locate factories on the site and it would be in time of incalculable benefit to mechanics and the merchants of Plainfield. Since that time Mr. Drake went quietly to work and purchased the Nelson Runyon farm and Adam Denkman tract, running from the westerly line of Dunellen to the bank house, having a frontage of 1,000 feet on the Central Railroad and over 2,000 feet on the old road that is traversed by the trolley line.

Mr. Drake immediately formed the Middlesex Land Company to develop the tract. The company has purchased the property and will take title to the same Jan. 1st.

The company has already sold by contract five acres of the Nelson Runyon farm for $3,000—nearly one-half that the company paid for the 40 acres of land. As soon as the title to the property is taken Mr. Drake will close a deal to locate two large manufacturing plants on this property.

In addition a number of capitalists from New Brunswick have bargained for ten acres of meadow land near the tanks to be dug out to form a lake for boating in summer and skating in winter, and they also secured the five acres of woods to established a park or picnic ground.

Lincoln Boulevard will be opened up from Lincoln to Dunellen through this property, and when Mr. Drake has brought out this improvement he will be the means, during the past three years, of opening up a boulevard from Dunellen to New Bound Brook. All these improvements will add Plainfield's material interests.

CONE TO HER MAKER.

Funeral Held Over the Remains of the Late Sarah A. MacDonald Wednesday Afternoon.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Sarah A., widow of Rudolphus Mac Donald, were held Wednesday p. m. at 1:30 o'clock from the home, corner of East Front street and Watchung avenue. There was a very large attendance of friends and relatives who assembled to pay homage to the memory of one who was respected and loved by all.

After Elmer E. Runyon sang effectively "Abide With Me," Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, read appropriate Scripture selections, after which he very tenderly spoke of the great mystery of human suffering and as to why God allowed His children to pass through such pain and suffering. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, then spoke concerning the beautiful Christian life of the departed, and what an example she left for those with whom she was surrounded. He referred to her patience in suffering, her generosity and of her noble Christian qualities, and told of how she had considered death a boy living and a worthy life. As the close of Dr. Schenck's remarks he offered a fervent prayer. "Thy Will Be Done," was then tenderly sung by Mr. Runyon.

There was a profusion of floral tributes, both large and small and of great beauty. The Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, of which the deceased was an honorary member, sent a beautiful floral tribute as a token of the high esteem in which she had been held.

After the service the remains were placed in the receiving vault at Hillside cemetery, pending the selection of a family plot. At the receiving vault Dr. Richards offered prayer and pronounced the benediction. Those who served as pall-bearers were J. B. Coward, G. L. VanEmburgh, E. H. Holmes, A. L. Force, Thomas E. MacDonald and William H. Martin.

PARALYTIC STROKE FATAL.

Mrs. Mary Dressell Stricken Wednesday Morning and Passed Away Thursday.

Born in Germany.

Mrs. Mary Dressell, aged sixty-six years, mother of Charles Dressell, of Lincoln place, died Thursday from the effects of a paralytic stroke she received yesterday morning. She had up to that time been in remarkable good health and was about every day.

Mrs. Dressell was born in Germany and came to this country about thirty-five years ago, settling in New York. There she remained ten years, after which she resided in Hoboken for a time, then she came to Plainfield, where she lived ever since. She had a host of friends and was well known by all who knew her. She was a member of the German Reformed church, where she attended regularly. She leaves one son, Charles Dressell.

The funeral services were held Saturday afternoon from the German Reformed church, Craig place, at 2:30 o'clock. Interment was in the North Plainfield cemetery.

LARGE INVESTMENT IN NEW DWELLINGS.

Activity in Building Operations is Still Continued.

MANY FINE RESIDENCES.

REMARKABLE GROWTH IN THE NETHERWOOD DISTRICT.

More New Houses Built in Netherwood This Summer Than in Last Seven Years—Building in the West End Continues—Four Elevens in Making Repairs to Mr. Sayre—12 Permits in November.

The steady growth of Plainfield continued during November despite the fact that the cold weather came and threatened to stop all building. The month was remarkable for the number of portentious dwellings that have been started. There were nineteen building permits issued during the month which is a slight decrease from the number issued during October. Six were for residences that will cost $4,000 or more to erect.

The new settlement in the vicinity of West Seventh street and Monroe avenue still continues to grow. A handsome residence has been designed for Frederick K. Fish, Jr., by Architect R. V. French, which has been awarded to W. Bryson & Street next to A. C. Stebbin's new house, near Leo place. The house will cost over $4,000. Seaman Williams has the contract for the mason work and Charles M. Wilson the contract for the carpenter work.

Not far away, on West Seventh street, near the corner of Monroe avenue, Mrs. Minnie Stryker has started a charming residence that will cost $4,000. It was designed by Architect Fred L. Lancaster. A. A. Stryker is building it. Mrs. Stryker has started a similar frame dwelling at 1214 Watchung avenue which will also reach $4,000. The plans for the latter were drawn by A. L. C. Marsh, while A. A. Stryker is doing the building.

Another new residence for the West End is in the course of erection at 804 West Front street. It is owned by Mrs. Henry Liefke. It's cost will reach $4,000. F. L. Lancaster was the architect, W. Thompson the mason and W. H. Wilson the carpenter.

A substantial boom seems to have reached Netherwood this summer and fall. Twenty-eight new houses have been built there since last spring, more than were heretofore erected in seven years. Manning and Runyon have started another $6,000 colonial residence on Belvidere avenue, corner of Park lane. It is a frame structure with 4 dressed stone foundation. Fred Olum is the architect. J. F. Mitchell is doing the mason work and James C. Manning the carpenter work.

David Hand has a brick dwelling started on Berkeley avenue in the rear of the Hotel Hunterston property. It will cost $3,500. W. S. Jimeson is the mason and G. Hoffman the carpenter.

Edward F. Maynard has moved the cottage that formerly stood at 814 West Fourth street, and is erecting a $2,000 cottage in its place. W. Tallamy is doing the mason work and W. S. Pound the carpenter work.

A $1,600 cottage is being built on East Sixth street, near Berckman street. R. R. Cain is the owner and builder, while W. C. Smith has the contract for the mason work and E. C. Schenck for the carpenter work.

The other permits granted during the month were for small additions in various parts of the city and for several barns and a greenhouse.

STRANGER IN A STRANGE LAND.

A Native of Jerusalem Talks Interestingly of Jerusalem Before Endeavorers.

Miss Rebecca Amsouzie, of Jerusalem, gave a very interesting address before the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, Thursday, about Jerusalem as it is at the present time. She spoke of the Jews going back to their native home and build up outside the city walls. Then she took her audience to Bethany in her story, to the birthplace of Christ, and told of the beautiful star that is supposed to hang over the house where Christ was born. In her address she exhibited her beautiful hand-made needlework and other expensive articles in embroidery which she makes in her own country. She was partly educated in this country by missionaries and was a helpful interpreter for Miss Dunn, who is in Jerusalem now and who is well-known by Plainfielders.

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER

Pumpkin Seed
Alx Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carb Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP

Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.

At 6 months old
35 DOSES – 35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

DIED AS SHE WENT TO DOCTOR'S OFFICE.

Mrs. John H. Kitchen's Sudden Illness That Proved Fatal.

HURBAND WAITING FOR HER

WHEN HE ARRIVED AT HER SIDE LIFE WAS EXTINCT.

Mrs. Kitch n Had Gone Downtown to Do Some Shopping When She Felt Ill—Unable to Get Home—Had Been in Appar nt Good Health—A Devoted Wife and Popular Among Neighbors.

The community was greatly shocked Saturday evening to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. John H Kitchen, of Bliss street, which occurred about 8 o'clock at the home of Dr. Zaglio, where she had gone to seek medical aid for a distress about the heart. When she arrived at the doctor's office he was not at home and she decided to wait for him. In the meantime she experienced great difficulty in breathing. Her condition became so alarming that Dr. Jenkins, Mrs. Kitchen's physician, was telephoned for. He could not be found at the time and Dr. Pitts, who lives opposite, was called in. He at once noticed that Mrs. Kitchen was suffering from heart trouble. He prescribed the proper remedies and did all that was possible, but his efforts were futile. The patient's symptoms grew rapidly worse, resulting in death a few minutes later.

It was between 7 and 8 o'clock that Mr. and Mrs. Kitchen had decided to come to this city. It was arranged that he should precede her and then 'meet her near Crosby & Hill's dry goods store about 8 o'clock. Mr. Kitchen left his wife in her usual good health and soon afterward she left the house. A portion of the distance she walked in company with William Morrison, of the borough. After leaving him at Mountain avenue and Somerset street, she continued her journey.

According to a report she reached the city and attended to two or three errands. While doing this she began to feel distress about the heart. She started for home, but upon reaching Dr. Z glio's home she felt so bad that she was compelled to stop, as said above.

During this time Mr. Kitchen was at the meat market of Adam Fritz, on West Front street, waiting for his wife. He was found there by Dr. Jenkins, who in the meantime had been to Dr. Z glio's, and who was asked to find Mr. Kitchen and notify him of his wife's death.

The doctor informed the husband that his wife had been taken ill, and it might result seriously. The two then went to Dr. Zaglio's, only to find that Mrs. Kitchen was dead. The grief-stricken husband broke down under the great affliction.

Later the body was removed to the late home of the deceased at 202 Somerset street.

Mrs. Kitchen's maiden name was Inese Coltbar. She was a native of New Market, and lived there previous to coming to Plainfield. She was 44 years of age, and is survived by a husband, John H. Kitchen, of the four and feed firm of Nischwitz & Kitchen, and a son, William Kitchen, of the Campbell Press Co., of Taunton, Mass.

Mrs. Kitchen was very well-known and highly esteemed by all that knew her. She had a very jolly disposition. She and her husband expected to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage in January, and they were planning for a large time. She was a member of Trinity Reformed church, and a devoted Christian. Her death is a particularly sad bereavement to her husband who was thoroughly devoted to her. Among the residents of the borough, especially her neighbors, she was well liked. Her genial disposition, charitable characteristics and lovable manner had endeared her to many and her death is a sad blow to all who knew her. A telegram was sent Saturday evening to the son, William Kitchen, at Taunton, Mass., and he has arrived in Plainfield.

The funeral services were held from Mrs. Kitchen's late home on Somerset street Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Interment was at Hillside cemetery.

WILL COME DOWN.

Trolley Fare From Westfield to This City is Eventually to be Dropped to a Nickel.

The Hon. Chandler W. Riker, president of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company in talking with a representative of the Elizabeth Journal regarding the ten cent fare being charged from Westfield to Plainfield depot, informed the Journal representative that the ten cent fare was not to be a permanent thing, but eventually the rate would be five cents.

Mr. Riker said his company had not selected a terminal at Plainfield. When this was done the fare would be five cents. Just where the terminal will be located is not yet known, but it will probably be in the vicinity of Plainfield depot or in some other section of the shopping district.

CALLED ON THE RECTOR.

And When They Left Miss Bertha Stites and Arthur E. Ford Were Husband and Wife.

The many friends of Miss Bertha Stites and Arthur E. Ford, of this city, will be surprised to learn that they were quietly married last week Monday evening at the rectory of the Church of the Holy Cross by Rev. Wm. M. Downey, pastor of the church. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William J Ford, of East Fourth street. His wife is also well-known in this city, where she has many friends. For the present the couple will reside in Jersey City, where the groom has a lucrative position.

Dr. Raymond Preached.

The pulpit at the Crescent Avenue church Sunday was occupied both morning and evening by Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, D. D., formerly pastor of Trinity Reformed church, and now president of Union College. Interesting and helpful sermons were delivered and there were large congregations present at both services to greet this popular divine.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

FOUGHT FIRE IN BURNING GARMENTS.

Narrow Escape of Mrs. Michael J. DeCourcy.

A DEADLY PARLOR MATCH.

SET FIRE TO FANCY GRASSES AND THE FLAMES SPREAD RAPIDLY.

Mrs. DeCourcy Was at Home With Her Baby—Fought the Fire With Pails of Water While Her Shirt Waist Unbuttoned—Her Danger Was Seen and the Flames Extinguished.

Alone in the house with her little child late Sunday afternoon Mrs. Michael J. DeCourcy, of 310 East Second street, bravely fought the flames in the parlor until the firemen and neighbors arrived. She did not realize that her gown was all ablaze, but carried pails of water from the well at the rear of the house and checked the progress of the conflagration that threatened her home with destruction.

"Never mind the house," exclaimed William Warnock, one of the first men to arrive as he saw the flames spreading about her skirt. "We'll look after you first." They dashed water on her and extinguished the fire. Her hands and face were badly burned.

It was shortly after 5 o'clock when Mrs. DeCourcy started to light the large lamp in the parlor. Then the "deadly parlor match" got in its work. As she struck the match part of the head flew off. A vase of fancy grasses was standing in the corner at the spark set fire to them. In an instant they blazed up and the flames spread to the curtains and the shades. The fire traveled from one curtain to another until the whole side of the room was ablaze.

Mrs. DeCourcy seized the grasses and tried to trample out the fire. Her skirt caught fire and the flames spread to the carpet. Then she went to the well in the rear of the house and carried pails of water. Her cries had alarmed the neighbors, who hurried to her rescue, while an alarm was sent in from Box 15, corner of East Second street and Washington streets.

Then came the firemen and Mrs. DeCourcy was saved from a horrible death which she did not realize threatened so closely. The flames were extinguished with pails of water and hand extinguishers from the apparatus.

The house is owned by Mrs. Margaret McGinley. The total loss to contents and building will reach $300, all of which was covered by insurance.

Mr. DeCourcy, an employe of the Daily Press, had left the house a few minutes before the fire started. He heard the alarm and hurried home to find the house the scene of general excitement. The fire was out, however, when he arrived.

BISHOP BOWMAN SPOKE.

He is Eighty-five Years Old But Despite His Age He Delivered a Soul-Stirring Sermon.

The members and worshippers at Monroe Avenue church were favored Sunday in having present Thomas L. Bowman, of East Orange, Senior Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, who has been a Bishop since 1872. Despite the fact that he is nearly 85 years of age he is especially active and is able to preach a soul-stirring sermon.

Sunday morning he gave a short talk to the Epworth League members, and in the afternoon he addressed the Sunday-school on missionary work in India, where the speaker was located at one time, and about which country he knows considerable.

In the evening he preached a sermon on the subject "To do Good and Communicate," in which he brought forth many points that are helpful to one in the endeavor to not only be good, but to help others to be good also. All the services were well attended and enjoyed.

Solid Trains to Northern Michigan.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway is now running solid trains of palace sleeping cars, dining cars (serving meals a la carte) and first class day coaches, through from Chicago to Calumet, Houghton, Hancock and other points in the Copper Country without change of cars, with direct connection for Marquette, Negaunee, Ishpeming, etc., and passengers from the East, South and Southwest will find this a most desirable route.

All coupon ticket agents sell tickets via the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway. 12 6 3 c 12 7 2.

District Meeting of Pythians.

There will be a district meeting of Knights of Pythias next Friday evening in Perseverance Lodge rooms when some of the high officers will be present and business of great importance considered.

To be Sworn in Tomorrow.

The city officials elected at the municipal election last week will be sworn in tomorrow evening by the Mayor at the City Clerk's office.

$1.00 A YEAR

McCLURE'S MAGAZINE

10c A COPY

NOTABLE FEATURES FOR 1900

THE LIFE OF THE MASTER

By the REV. JOHN WATSON, D. D.

Author of "The Mind of the Master," "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush," etc.

Illustrated, largely in color, from pictures made in Palestine, by CORWIN KNAPP LINSON

A Novel by - - - ANTHONY HOPE
Frequent Contributions by RUDYARD KIPLING
Short Stories by - - MARK TWAIN

SCIENCE AND EXPLORATION

The Hottest Heat
Flinz Plants of Europe
Bacteriology in Cosmetics
The Inside of the Earth

Lieut. Peary's Latest Campaign for the Pole
Cy Warman's Account of the Klondike Railroad
On the Greatest Ship Afloat

SHORT STORIES by such well-known writers as Bret Hart, Cy Warman, Booth Tarkington, Shan F. Bullock, Tighe Hopkins, Robert Barr, Clinton Ross, W. A. Fraser.

INTERESTING ARTICLES by Lieut. Richmond P. Hobson, Capt Joshua Slocum, Hamlin Garland, R. S. Baker, Rev. Cyrus T. Brady, Prof. E. S. Holden, Ex-Gov. G. S. Boutwell, and others.

THE S. S. McCLURE COMPANY
200 East 25th Street
NEW YORK CITY NEW YORK

TROLLEY WORK GOES ON.

PLANS FOR BRIDGE TO GO OVER S. AND O. R. R. CROSSING.

It Will be Twenty-One Feet High and 300 Feet Long—Cars Now Run Under the Fifteen - Minute Headway.

The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company is now running cars under fifteen-minute headway, and it is expected that the cars will be running every twelve minutes before many days pass. The company is expecting three more new cars for the line, like the two already in use, and when these cars arrive with others ordered, all the cars will have the appearance of new ones. The work on the road at Westfield is about completed for the winter, and it is expected all workmen will finish up tomorrow.

At a special meeting of the Cranford township committee Township Engineer C. E. Vreeland submitted to the committee a map showing a proposed trestle to be erected on South avenue to bridge the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crossing for the Riker trolley line to cross. At present passengers on the trolley are transferred over the railroad crossing and must walk to the other side in order to get a car for Roselle or Westfield.

The proposed structure is to be 18 feet in width, 21 feet in height at the crossing, and is to extend 300 feet on either side of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. It is proposed to narrow the sidewalks on either side of the structure to nine feet, leaving a roadway of 18 feet in width on either side of the trestle. According to the map pedestrians are to cross the railroad tracks on grade, and the bridge as designed will, if erected, be entirely devoted to the trolley. The matter will receive the attention of the Cranford township committee at its next regular meeting.

HIS HAND IN SPLINTS.

Lawyer Isaac P. Bunyon Met With a Painful Accident Assisting His Wife.

Lawyer Isaac P. Bunyon is carrying his right hand in splints today, as he will for several days, all owing to having broken one of the small bones in the back of the member. Mr. Bunyon was attempting to assist his wife to increase the size of the dining table by the addition of an extra leaf. The latter did not fit to a nicety, and that it might conform to the evenness of the other portion of the table, Mr. Bunyon dealt the leaf a sledgehammer blow that would do justice to the striking abilities of a pugilist. The result was the damage to his hand. Dr. Clawson's skill was sought to reduce the fracture. Mr. Bunyon, although somewhat handicapped, is still attending to business as usual.

Mr. Gallup Range Out His Shingle.

Carlos C. Gallup, the young attorney-at-law who passed his entrance examinations to the Jersey Bar so successfully last month, has established offices in room 18, Marsh building, right over the law offices of Craig A. Marsh, where he studied for four years.

Death of Fred Miner.

The death of Fred Miner occurred Monday at 1 o'clock at the home of his sister, Mrs. Fred S. Moore, of West Front street. He had been sick for a long time with consumption. He was about thirty years of age, and well-known in this city.

To Cure Constipation Forever.

Take Cascarets Candy Cathartic. 10c or 25c. If C. C. C. fail to cure, druggists refund money.

NEW SOCIETY BELLES

FINAL EVENTS IN "COMING OUT" OF THE MISSES COX AND FISK.

The Last Party to Be Given Mr. and Mrs. Kendall, After Which an Elaborate Dinner was Served at the Waldorf-Astoria.

A theatre party and a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, were the concluding events of the "coming-out" of Miss Fanny C. Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bowland Cox, of West Seventh street, and Miss Louise G. Fisk, daughter of Former Mayor and Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, of West Seventh street. They were held Saturday and were given by Mrs. Fisk.

The theatre party numbered twenty in all. They attended the matinee of Mr. and Mrs. Kendall in "The Elder Miss Blossom" at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, occupying seats in the orchestra. After the conclusion of the play, they went to the Waldorf-Astoria where a very elaborate dinner was served in the "Palm Room" French dinner cards were used.

Handsome bouquets of pink roses tied with pink ribbon were provided for the young ladies, while their escorts received boutonnes of carnations.

A luncheon will be given in honor of the debutantes by Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, Thursday. Another luncheon will be given in their honor by Miss Lotta Lowe, Saturday.

COUNTY WILL NOT PAY

Policemen Who Served at Polls Must Look Elsewhere for Pay, Says County Attorney Codington.

County Attorney Codington has rendered an opinion to the Board of Freeholders that the county is not liable for the pay of policemen who were on duty at the various polling places in the county at the November election and who demand $3 each for their services.

Attorney Coddington says that they must look to the various municipalities where they were employed for their compensation and not to the Board of Freeholders. Mr. Coddington has learned that this is the rule followed in all other counties.

In accordance with this opinion all bills from officers were rejected last week at the regular meeting of the Board of Freeholders.

Tribute to Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D.

The obituary notice of Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D., published in the New Jersey Baptist Bulletin contains the following tribute to the musical ability of the eminent song writer and composer. "It is his music that voices the cry of the soul, 'I Need Thee Every Hour,' 'Savior, Thy dying love' is so wedded to the music of Lowry that Dr. Phelps, its author, once said his hymn would never have been known had not Lowry given it wings in song."

During the Preliminary Week.

It is quite likely that this month there will be a special meeting of the Mayor and Borough Council for the purpose of furthering plans looking toward the widening of Somerset street from the county line to Jackson avenue. Surveyors have been busy of late getting the necessary measurements and data that will be presented at the meeting of the property owners.

Arranging for Christmas.

The Christmas committee of the First Baptist church Sunday school held a meeting Sunday afternoon to further plans for celebrating the event. The Christmas Day musical service will be elaborate this year and of a special nature.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in charge of the Dispensary of Bellevue Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I assorted that if one wished to become a physician, and do business, he should consent that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to purchase the Dime Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a lozenge and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you handle much call for them?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sales of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, the passing out of the likes through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the facts claimed in the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

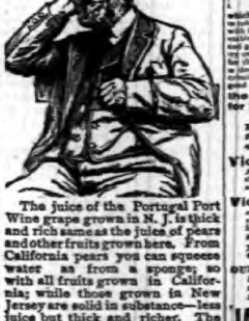
An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known as a strong advocate of Ripans Tabules for any canse of liver trouble or indigestion, called at the store mentioned here for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always suffered as a physician and did so on the last occasion I had to, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but recommended Ripans Tabules recommended so highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what I had demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $3 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them here if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who spoke highly of the virtues of Ripans Tabules, but declined to allow their testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the editor lady argued: "There are so many of us, through the kindness of friend to friend, Ripans Tabules is advertised as I was. If the knowledge of my case in print enabling some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I have no objections." The editor, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had



The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juices of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest,
Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds
and odorless Lawn Dressing.

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,

119 East Front st.

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our clothes. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, in leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full directions for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address

WINOOSKET CO. (118-C) Boston, Mass. Mfg. Dept.

VICK SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands as "extended Comforts for a half century and to-day are more than ever the best. Send for Vick's Special Golden Wedding Edition of which is a work of art. It has 64 pages handsomer in colors, 4 pages beautiful and exactly true copies from Nature, and literally 1,000 illustrations. Poems, Prose, all elegantly bound in silver and gold. It tells how to grow the best, and gives all seasonable information concerning the garden, with us for the same, and a descriptive catalogue of all the Seeds, Bulbs, Plants and Roses that are worth ordering, but no more overgrown specimens or extraordinarily high prices than are consistent with honest value. Its 160 pages tell the whole truth. Send 15 cents for it, and we will send you the Guide with a DOLLAR BILL for 25 cents worth of flower or vegetable seeds, as you may select from the Guide. It tells how credit is given for full amount of purchase to buy other goods. FREE

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue

A perfect gem, only 3 inches square, but filled with information. FREE

Vicks Monthly Magazine,

Reprinted 1900 either one Magazine one year or Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, 15 cents.

OUR NEW PLAN of selling Vegetable Seeds gives your money for FIRST ... money back and a present besides.

JAMES VICK'S SONS,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

SEEDS ... FOR THE ... Garden—Farm

Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the leading varieties, including Novelties introduced this season. Illustrated Catalogue FREE.

WEEBER & DON, Seed Growers and Importers
114 and 116 Nassau St., New York.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

President Eliot of Harvard, says: "The International is a wonderful work—a perfect storehouse of accurate information."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is clearly traced, and the preference is given rather than superfluity of quantity characterizes its every department.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President.
GEO. W. ROCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. FOSS, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January 1st will draw interest from the 1st.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1899. NO. 51.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well as Its Limitations as to Its Authorities."—Madison.

TOLD STORY OF SHOOTING.

Mrs Fingerhuth Put on the Witness Stand Yesterday.

DIDN'T MEAN TO SHOOT.

WAS FEARFUL HER LIFE WAS IN DANGER.

Testified That Clark Had a Revolver in His Hand—Broke Into Sobs and Judge Adjourned Court for Dinner.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Somerville, December 20—Confident that her own testimony would go a great ways towards clearing her of the charge of the willful murder of Paul Roehricht, at Somerset Park, September 12th, Mrs. Henrietta Fingerhuth, who is accused of that crime, was put on the stand herself today in the continuation of the trial in the Somerset County Court.

When court convened at 10:20 this morning the direct examination of Theodore Fingerhuth, her husband, held as an accessory to the crime, was continued. Fingerhuth testified that after the alleged discharge of him by Roehricht in June, Emil Dembrosky, representing Roehricht, had told him that though his services were not wanted he would be permitted to occupy the house on the property until March 15th, 1900. Then the defense tried to spring a sensational piece of testimony by starting to show that on the first Sunday in June Roehricht had a talk with Fingerhuth, during which the former suggested that Fingerhuth have his household goods insured and then set fire to the house in order to secure the insurance money for both contents and building. This line of questioning brought forth a quick objection from Prosecutor Dungan, and Judge Magie sustained the objections. This ended the direct examination of Fingerhuth.

In the cross-examination by Prosecutor Dungan he sought to bring out the fact that Fingerhuth's work had been unsatisfactory, but he was unable to make the witness admit such a condition. The circumstances of the trouble with Roehricht, as related by Fingerhuth in his direct examination, were gone into minutely, but the Prosecutor was unable to shake the testimony as first given. Before Fingerhuth's direct examination was ended he identified Exhibits 3 and 4, which were the letters that passed between the witness and Roehricht when the former was employed.

Just before noon, Mrs. Fingerhuth, the prisoner, was called to the stand. She does not understand English well enough to testify in that language, and her evidence was translated in German by an interpreter. She acted calm and collected when she assumed the witness chair, and told in detail of the preliminaries that led up to the happenings within a short time of the killing of Roehricht. She testified that on September 7, Lawyer R. M. Clark came to the house and told her husband to move out, but he would not agree to.

On September 11th, the day before the tragedy, she testified that she was engaged about her housework when she heard loud voices coming from the garden. She investigated and found her husband engaged in a heated conversation with Lawyer Clark, Dembrosky and Constable Robert Bartel. Finally, Bartel grabbed hold of her husband, and then she released the dog that they owned. When she did this Clark pulled a revolver from his pocket and leveled it at the dog. He did not shoot, however, and Fingerhuth retreated to the house. Clark and the other man followed and the former went to the door and struck it forcibly. Mrs. Fingerhuth stepped in front of Clark, and then she said he pulled a revolver. At this move she grabbed him around the arms, and Clark remarked to the others:

"Look, what a nice girl I have."

"Who are you that you come here

[CONTINUED ON PAGE 8.]

'TIS A DAZZLING OFFER

PASSAIC'S OLD GAS COMPANY MAKES A BIG BLUFF.

Makes a Proposition That is Said to Involve a Profit of $220,000 to the City if It Can be Carried Out Successfully.

Passaic, N. J., Dec. 20.—Agitation for fifty-cent gas is at a standstill just now, because of a most remarkable offer of the United Gas Improvement Company of this city. A company organized by former Mayor Andrew McLean asks for a franchise to furnish gas to the city at fifty cents a thousand feet. It proposes to use the so-called Chisholm process now in operation in SanFrancisco.

The city Council met to grant the franchise, but members decided to wait awhile and think over this proposition from the local gas company:

"Mayor Howe to appoint a representative, former Mayor McLean to appoint a representative for the new gas process, and the United Gas Company to select a representative; these three to go to SanFrancisco and make a personal examination of Dr. Chisholm's plant and process; if it is found to be practicable to make and sell gas for 50 cents a thousand, the United Gas Improvement Company offers to pay $50 000 a year for each year the patent runs (17 years in all). In addition the company offers $20,000 each of the two hospitals in Passaic; to give the Council $28,000 to erect a new schoolhouse in the Third ward of Passaic; to give the Firemen's Relief Fund $10,000; to provide a like amount for the Police Fund; furnish a bond to come to any arrangement for city lighting that the Council may dictate, and to furnish all consumers with 50 cent gas."

The actual cash outlay thus provided is $238,000, besides the penalties incurred.

FIFTY YEARS MARRIED.

Golden Wedding Anniversary of Well-Said Couple Was Celebrated Yesterday.

Westfield, December 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Miller celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home on Central avenue yesterday, there being guests present from New York, Brooklyn, California, Asbury Park, Newark, Elizabeth and this place. Besides being the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Miller it was the eighty-second birthday of Mr. Miller. They were married in Westfield in 1849 by Rev. James Hunting, at that time the pastor of the Presbyterian church. Both Mr. and Mrs. Miller were born and have always lived in this place. Mr. Miller was for many years a New York business man.

SCARLET FEVER IN COLLEGE.

Epidemic in Wellesley College Closed Institution Earlier Than Usual.

The young women from this city who are students at Wellesley College returned home for the Christmas vacation a week earlier than they expected. This was occasioned by the fact that several of the young women at Wellesley were attacked with scarlet fever and it was deemed best to send the others home. None of the students from Plainfield were taken ill and none were close enough to the contagion to have any chance of getting the dread disease.

Rubber Company Shuts Down.

Announcement has been made that the United States Rubber factory at New Brunswick will shut down Thursday for the holidays. It is feared that the shutdown may be extended somewhat, as the mild and open winter has delayed orders for rubber boots and shoes. The New Brunswick factories are feeling the effects of the mild weather.

A Well Grounded Conclusion.

Recent events in the Transvaal have brought Mr. Chamberlain and his friends to the conclusion that the followers of Jim Paul are hard to beat, a remark which a visit will cause you to apply to the character and price of the holiday goods on sale at Collier's, 103 Park avenue.

To Be a One Day Later.

On account of next Monday being Christmas Day the Primary Teachers' Union will meet on the following Tuesday afternoon when there will be a review of the Christmas lesson, conducted by Mrs. Banks. There will also be a praise service afterward.

A. O. O. F. Pow-wow.

Plans are being formed for a great O. O. F. pow wow in this city in the near future. It will be something similar to the one held at Elizabeth last Saturday and will be given under the auspices of the County Republican committee.

Thomas Muir, of West Fourth street, who is suffering from a painful affection of one of his eyes, is thought to be slightly improved. He is still detained at home.

SHOPLIFTING ON GIGANTIC SCALE

Three Plainfield Women Held in $1,500 Bail in Newark.

HOW THEY DID THE TRICK.

ONE WOMAN WORE A CAPE WITH SEVERAL POCKETS IN IT.

Made a Practice of Visiting the Newark Stores Every Day for Sometime Past—Detectives Have a Strong Case Against the Women—Plainfield Stores Also Subjecting to Work of Shoplifters.

In the arrest of Mrs. Anna M. Bowers, Mrs. William Carroll and her mother, Mrs. Jennie Garrison, of 169 East Front street, which occurred in Newark Monday on a charge of shoplifting, Detective-Sergeants Carroll and Pursell, of the police department of that city, has disclosed one of the biggest cases of shoplifting known in recent years to the police.

There are many additional facts not obtainable for yesterday's edition of The Daily Press that makes the case of great interest. It appears that for some months past the department stores of Newark, as well as the large stores of this city, have been suffering to a large extent from shop-lifting and in spite of careful watching it was impossible to get trace of the lifters. Finally, the loss in Newark became so great that the matter was placed in the hands of Detectives Carroll and Pursell, two of the best men in the business in this State. They went to work on the case at once and it was not long before their suspicion was directed toward the three women who were arrested yesterday. It was noticed that they went to Newark frequently and that they visited certain stores. They were watched closely and all possible evidence was secured before the arrest was made.

Monday afternoon the women, after making the rounds of the stores, were arrested by the detectives. It was then learned that they each carried satchels, which they left at a certain place. After making a shopping tour they would return and place their articles in the satchels. At the time of the arrest the women had a number of articles in their possession. It is said that the articles altogether are valued at $100

The women were then arraigned in the police court and held in $1 500 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. Yesterday morning Detectives Carroll and Pursell came to this city to see Chief Grant for the purpose of making a search of the house where the women resided. Accordingly the three officials went to the house, where they found Fred Tanner and William Carroll, the latter the husband of one of the women arrested. They stated their errand and the house was searched.

What the officials found simply amazed them. Goods amounting to $200 were found in trunks, closets, packing boxes, etc, and in much variety. There were yards of lace and ribbons, kid gloves, toilet sets, carving sets, toilet articles, soap, a number of fine silk shirt waists, silk wraps, looking glasses, albums and most everything that a person could think of. Mr. Tanner and Mr. Carroll claimed that the goods did not belong in the house and that they had no knowledge of them. They were then all taken to police headquarters in the Coward building for identification.

Word was sent to Woodhull & Martin, Manager Carson at Crosby & Hill's, I. H. Boehm and other places, where it was considered possible goods might have been taken. Mr. Carson identified goods amounting in value to about $25, such as toilet sets, carving sets, silk shirt waists, an album and a few other things of greater or less value. Other merchants saw a few things that had been missed. These were held out and the rest of the goods were sent to Newark, where the merchants of that city will have a chance to identify them. There was also included in the goods extract of cologne which retails for $6 a bottle.

It is believed that goods were taken from other stores in this city not yet heard from. Mrs. Bowers, who appears to be a leader in the scheme, when arrested, wore a large cloak inside of which was a number of pockets, and it is in these that many articles were carried. She is an exceptionally large woman, and it is said that she could carry many articles without being detected. However this may be, the scheme seems to have worked successfully until Monday last.

The women are now confined in the Essex County Jail, where they will be held for the Grand Jury. The evidence against them seems to be so

[CONTINUED ON PAGE 5.]

BLACKFORD SAYS GUILTY

BIGAMIST ARRAIGNED IN COUNTY COURT WEDNESDAY.

Decided That He Would Fare Better if He Did Not Stand Trial—Will Probably be Sentenced Next Wednesday.

Elizabeth, December 20.—John L. Blackford, of Putnam avenue, Plainfield, who was arrested two weeks ago in the Hotel Meriborough in New York while living there with his second wife whom he had married in Westfield, without securing a divorce from his first wife in Plainfield, was arraigned in the Union county court this morning before Judge Vail on the charge of bigamy.

Since he has been confined in the county jail the prisoner has come to a realization that there was a strong case against him and that if he stood trial he would be undoubtedly convicted and would receive a much more severe sentence than he would if he pleaded guilty and compelled the State to prosecute him. When arraigned he therefore pleaded guilty to the charge of bigamy. Judge Vail was not prepared to pass sentence at once and Blackford was remanded back to the jail till next Wednesday when he will be sentenced.

Blakford seemed quite chipper when he appeared in court, and was evidently reconciled to his fate. He greeted many of the court habitues familiarly, as he had frequently appeared there himself as an officer in connection with cases in which the Central Railroad, for whom he was a detective, was concerned.

Neither one of his wives or any of his relatives were in court.

HOLIDAY VACATION.

Borough Public Schools Will Close Friday With Exercises Appropriate to Season.

The Borough Public Schools will close on Friday for the holiday season, and appropriate exercises will be held at both schools at 11 o'clock in the morning. Charles S. Lewis, the musical director of the schools, will be in charge, he having arranged the programme, which consists chiefly of music. There will also be some literary features. The High School and lower grades will hold their entertainments separate. They will be of a patriotic character. The public is cordially invited to be present and to expect a treat. Many of the children work of the scholars in each class, which will be displayed at that time. The schools will not re open until Wednesday, January 3. This arrangement is made so that the teachers, many of whom live out of the State, will not be obliged to leave their homes on New Year's Day to come back to school.

Martha Washington Council Elect.

Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, met last Tuesday and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Councilor, G. B. Allen; associate councilor, Mrs. A. Randolph; vice councilor, Mrs. H. Thompson; associate vice councilor, Mrs. A. Angleman; assistant recording secretary, Gilbert Butphen Martin; conductor, Miss May Hughes; guardian, Anne Wilson; inside sentinel, F. G. Wilson; outside sentinel, Mrs. S. Page; trustee, twelve months, Gilbert Surphen Martin.

Mr. Woodland Promoted.

J. Elston Woodland, of the borough, who for two years has been the local superintendent of the Prudential Insurance Company, has been promoted and after January 1st he will take charge of the company's interests at Trenton, where he will have ten assistants and sixty-seven agents under him. This promotion is well deserved for Mr. Woodland has been the means of building up the business in this city to a considerable extent.

Gave Character Sketches.

A highly creditable entertainment was given Monday evening in the Borough Public High school by Lieut. Charles Scott, of Indianapolis, who gave a series of character sketches from the readings of Eugene Field, J. Whitcomb Reilly and other well-know writers. The school hall was filled to its utmost capacity and the audience was an appreciative one. As a result of the entertainment $43 was noted for the benefit of the school.

Death of J. A. Horn's Granddaughter.

The death of Jessie Auteet, aged twenty-two years, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Horn, of Craig place, occurred in New York Sunday last after a protracted illness. The funeral services were held from the late home in New York and interment took place in Hillside cemetery, this city.

Reception for a Debutante.

Invitations have been sent out by Mrs Strong and her daughter, Miss Strong, of Central avenue, for a reception to be given Friday afternoon, December 22d.

SUBLIME MUSIC OF HANDEL'S "MESSIAH."

Public Rehearsal Attracted A Great Audience.

RENDITION WAS SUPERB.

GREAT RELIGIOUS FERVOR EXPRESSED IN THE ORATORIO.

Chorus Was Composed of the Local Singers, and Were Thoroughly Trained by Edward J. Pitzhugh, the Conductor — Soloists and Musicians Did Excellent Work in Their Various Parts.

Among the sublime musical compositions of the world, probably no other is so universally popular as Handel's "Messiah." It appeals to all alike, with its grand teachings and exquisite musical effects. The vast audience which filled the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Tuesday night, on the occasion of the public rehearsal of the oratorio given by the Messiah Chorus, sat for more than two hours silent and absorbed. The Christmastide festivities of the year are well opened by this rehearsal and the public rendition of the oratorio which will take place to-night.

The oratorio is in three parts. The first part tells of the Messianic prophecies and their fulfillment; the second is a record of Christ's sufferings and realization, and the third is a theological account of His work for men. The first part opens with a brief, devotional overture, after which a solitary voice, that of the tenor soloist, sings the exquisite recitative, "Comfort Ye, My People." Many promises are cited, then the chorus breaks into a joyful cry, "The Glory of the Lord Shall be Revealed." A shadow falls with the words: "Who Shall Abide the Day of His Coming?" and "Behold, Darkness Shall Cover the Earth;" but the prophet adds that a great light shall shine upon the darkness; and the people shout with triumph that the coming Deliverer's name shall be called Wonderful. Then comes the exquisitely beautiful Pastoral Symphony, in which the harmony seems to tell the listener of the nightfall near Bethlehem, when the shepherds were gathering their flocks for the night. The story is told by the soloists in air and recitative, while the chorus sing the angel message, "Glory to God in the Highest!" The beautiful invitation, "Come Unto Him," and the response, "His Yoke is Easy," close the first part.

The most noticeable parts of the second section are the solemn invocation: "Behold the Lamb of God!" the unspeakably sorrowful air: "He Was Despised and Rejected of Men," the chorus "All We, Like Sheep, Have Gone Astray," in which the hopeless wandering of the sheep can be distinctly traced by the instrumental movement, and the glorious "Hallelujah Chorus," during which the audience rose as one man, remaining standing until the close. The third part opens with the beautiful air: "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth." The air, "The Trumpet Shall Sound," with the actual trumpet sound running through it, is a very effective number. The chorus of praise, "Worthy Is The Lamb," and the stately "Amen Chorus," as if all the world joined in a great "So Let It Be," to the Redeemer's work, closes the oratorio.

The chorus, which was composed of more than a hundred local singers, was seated on a large platform in front of the pulpit. The parts seemed very well balanced, and the chorus, a large part of whom had sung the oratorio before, were thoroughly well trained, and full of the spirit of the music. Edward J. Pitzhugh, who is a true musical enthusiast, acted as conductor, with his usual ability, having such thorough control of singers and accompanists as to secure perfect harmony.

The soloists were Miss M. S. Perry, contralto, of the Crescent Avenue church choir; Miss Annie L. Walker, soprano; E. C. Towne, tenor; and Douglas Lane, bass, all of New York. All sang their parts with sympathy and ability.

Miss Jessie M. Utter, as pianist, had the largest share of the work of accompanying, and did it with entire success. William H. Miller did excellent work as organist, the deep organ tones giving to the grand music a solemnity and weirdness impossible to obtain in any other manner. These instrumentalists were assisted by a septette of musicians from New York City, who, with the soloists and chorus, added to the general effect.

The audience, admitted entirely by complimentary tickets, was very large, interested and reverent. The rehearsal was more in the nature of a religious service than like a concert, and this will be even more true to-night, when the rendition of the oratorio will be free to all.

LECTURES FOR TEACHERS

PROF. RIGGS WILL ADDRESS CITY AND BOROUGH INSTRUCTORS.

Superintendent Mayson Has the Matter in Charge—Lectures Will be for Special Benefit of the Teachers.

Monday evening there was a regular meeting of the Borough Board of Education, when one important matter was considered, that of arranging a series of lectures for the benefit of the teachers of the city and borough schools. If possible it will be arranged to give the lectures so that all of the teachers can get the benefit of them. Superintendent H. M. Maxson, of the city schools, has the matter in charge.

It has been learned that Prof. Riggs, so well and favorably known to Plainfielders, can be secured for four lectures during the latter part of the winter or early spring. This has met with the approval of the teachers and they are delighted with the idea of being able to hear this able and talented person. Prof. Riggs is kept constantly busy lecturing, hence it is only possible to secure him by arranging ahead for the dates.

These lectures will be given for the especial benefit of the teachers, and the subjects will be those best suited to them in their work. The Board of Education of the borough very kindly has arranged to let the teachers in their schools attend these lectures without any cost to them, and no doubt the Plainfield Board of Education will do likewise. This will be the first time anything of the kind has been given, and it will undoubtedly be of great value to these instructors.

CARNIVAL OF DREAMS.

Wonderful Entertainment to be Given by Scholars of Bryant School Tomorrow Afternoon.

The "Carnival of Dreams," to be given at the Bryant School this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, will be a good plan to see many old friends.

Miss Nellie Abrams, who takes the part of the "Dreamer," is lulled to the land of dreams by the dainty fairies.

Mother Goose and a goodly number of her train appear to the Dreamer, while many old melodies remind her of by-gone hours.

In the second scene snow fairies, mermaids, Brownies, Red Riding Hood, Little Lord Fauntleroy, May Queen and Golden Hair prove very delightful company.

The stories of Apollo, Neptune, Athena, Mercury, Mars and Diana again delight the dreamer as they appear in their various vocations.

Later she discovers Rip Van-Winkle, Grace Darling, Sir Walter Raleigh, Minnehaha, Hiwatha and the fair Priscilla, who are as attractive as ever.

The final scene introduces Santa Claus on his way for his yearly round. The Dreamer wakens and calls the Christmas Fairies to guide Santa Claus and this train to all children in the land.

The fairies obey and the great company are seen starting upon their long journey.

HEAVY MACHINE FELL.

Thirty Tons Attached to a Chain That Had a Defective Link.

The Pond Machine Tool Company has been put to heavy expense and a large amount of extra work by the breaking of a link in a chain used on the big electrical crane in their shop. Saturday afternoon a 30 ton machine was being removed from a flat car, which was too weak to bear the weight. The machinery had been hauled back in the shop when a link broke in one of the chains supporting it. It allowed the machinery to fall to the floor with a crash, making the building tremble. The machine was badly warped and strained and will have to be rebuilt. Several workmen narrowly escaped injury.

Called on Plainfield Friends.

Joseph Sperry, a resident of Plainfield thirty years ago, and one of the prominent members of the old Central baseball team, stopped in Plainfield Tuesday on his way home from an extended trip through the west. At present Mr. Sperry is living at Cranford. His many friends, who have not seen him in thirty years, were glad to greet him last evening.

Odd Fellows Elect.

Last Monday evening Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., elected the following officers: Noble Grand, N. C. Pennington; vice noble grand, John Bowman; secretary, J. F. Sheppard; financial secretary, E. H. Bird.

A Christmas Sermon.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church is distributing a Christmas sermon of Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of that church. Copies of the sermon are now on sale at Estil's and Harper's.

JONES FOR SPEAKER BY UNANIMOUS VOTE.

Officers for the Next House of Assembly Agreed Upon.

THE SLATE WENT THROUGH.

ASSEMBLYMAN WAKELEE NOMINATED THE ESSEX MAN.

Stated Candidates for Other Offices Selected in Open Session—Steering Committee Apportions the Minor Places to Various Counties and Hence Everyone Will Be Asked for, Except in the Case of Morris.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 20.—Although the South Jersey counties put up a stiff protest, the slate fixed in Newark a few days after election was ratified yesterday by the caucus of the Republican Assemblymen.

There was considerable complaint about what was called the "Essex combine," this county capturing the Speaker and the two secretaries, the bill clerk, four doorkeepers and two pages. A large handful of choice plums, considering the fact that seventeen counties were entitled to something from the plum tree, South Jersey, however, did not kick in vain. After threatening to bolt they were finally pacified, and captured a few of the important officers and a share of the doorkeepers.

The caucus was really not a caucus proper, but was held with open doors, because some members wanted reporters present. The general public were also invited. It was a public conference with all the binding effect of a caucus.

Assemblyman Wakelee, of Bergen, in a eulogistic speech, presented the name of Assemblyman Jones, of Essex, as the Republican candidate for Speaker of the House. In doing so, he said that at one time he had cherished an ambition to preside over the next session of the House himself. Next to that honor, he said, he knew of nothing that would give him more pleasure than to urge the appointment of the Essex candidate.

Lewis, of Passaic; Wood, of Mercer; Foote, of Union, and half a dozen other members seconded the nomination, which was unanimously ratified.

Other positions filled by the open caucus were named with the same unanimity and resulted as follows:

For Clerk of the House—James A. Parker, of Passaic.

For assistant clerk—Geo. E. Poole, of Morris.

For bill clerk—George P. Powell, of Essex.

For sergeant-at-arms—Frank Tantum, of Monmouth.

For assistant sergeants at arms—Horatio F. Havens, of Ocean, and John C. Cooper, of Somerset.

For journal clerk—Noah F. Morrison, of Union.

At this juncture on motion of Mr. Lewis, a steering committee of seven, including Leader Wakelee, was named to apportion the remaining positions, including doorkeepers and pages, among the several counties. The committee named was Lewis, of Passaic; Dexheimer, of Essex; Welsh, of Mercer; Wood, of Mercer; Hurst, of Burlington; Sussman, of Cumberland, and Wakelee, of Bergen.

The session of the Steering Committee lasted longer than was anticipated, and was the only indication of a lack of harmony incidental to the caucus. The committee report, submitted by Chairman Lewis, made the following allotment:

Atlantic, one doorkeeper; Cumberland, one page; Burlington; two doorkeepers; Bergen, one gallery-keeper; Camden, one gallery-keeper and one page; Cape May, one doorkeeper; Essex, four doorkeepers and two pages; Gloucester, one doorkeeper; Middlesex, one doorkeeper and two pages; Passaic, one doorkeeper; Salem, one doorkeeper; Union, two pages; Mercer, two pages; Assistant Bill Clerk, Camden; Assistant Supervisor of Bills, Mercer; Assistant Journal Clerk, Cumberland; secretary to Clerk, Bergen.

Under the law of 1898 it was found necessary to make provision for two extra gallery keepers, two pages, secretary to the Clerk of the House and clerk to Committee on Corporations by resolution, and this action was taken. It was also decided to adopt the rules of last year until after the appointment of committees.

Resigned as Superintendent.

James W. Jackson, who has been superintendent of the Sunday-school of the First M. E. church almost continuously since 1866, has resigned and James R. Joy, formerly one of the assistant superintendents, has been elected to fill his place. The change will be made Sunday, December 31st.

LOVED HIS FELLOW MEN.

Proof That Our Early Ancestors Were all Cannibals.

HISTORIC BONES DUG UP.

A Report That Has Caused a Great Sensation in Scientific Circles.

Marks of the Teeth—The Use They Made of the Aged—The Cooking Utensils—Beliefs of the Cannibal—Dining off a Wise Man's Brain.

Prehistoric man dined off his parents, says the Vienna correspondent of the Chicago Herald, when the latter had outlived their usefulness; he cooked and ate his friends when he got the chance, as well as his enemies; he considered the flesh of infants and of children the daintiest of morsels; he would punish the one who injured him, first by slaying him and then by eating him. All this has been proved conclusively by the discovery in prehistoric caves recently unearthed near Knavize, in Bohemia, of a great collection of bones, which Dr. Matelcka, who has made a careful examination of the relics declares to be the unmistakable debris of the cannibalistic feasts of prehistoric man.

In his report on the subject, which has caused a great sensation in scientific circles in Europe, Dr. Matelcka says: "The position in which the bones were found leaves no doubt they were the remnants of cannibal banquets. I examined many compartments of the caves and in twelve of them found human bones, part of which comprised the complete skeleton of a child, skulls and fragments of skulls, thigh bones and arm bones, parts of the human jaw, shoulder bones and pieces of the bones of the foot. They seemed to be the remains of at least eight persons.

"The skeleton of the child was perfectly preserved and on the edges of the bones were the unmistakable signs of the teeth that had gnawed at the bones in the dreadful feast. Such teeth marks could only have been made by a person biting greedily at the bone in picking off the flesh. On all the bones these same significant marks were visible, but a more important sign of the use to which the remains had been put was to be seen in the burned edges of the bone, which showed clearly that they had been cooked over a pile of ashes. There was no possibility of mistaking the marks left by the fire of a methodical roasting. The marks pointed only to a fire of ashes such as would have been used for slowly cooking flesh destined for eating purposes. In one case the skull had been only burned a little and was in a perfect state of preservation. On this skull the marks of the teeth were plainly to be seen."

It may be contended that the bones were buried in the usual way after death, but the fact that they were in caves as well as the fact that they were in such peculiar fragments proved this idea to be erroneous, for the parts of the skulls and bones were only those that would have been brought to the cave for a cannibalistic feast. The small bones that would naturally have been thrown away by those who prepared the feast were missing, except in the case of one child, whose body was probably cooked entire.

Another circumstance that confirms this view is that the bones and fragments were found mixed with the remains of earthenware jars that prehistoric man must have used for eating utensils. Still additional proof was found of the cannibalistic habits of prehistoric man in the fact that the skulls in every case had been opened, evidently with the intention of extracting the brains, which the eater of human flesh always considers a dainty. The manner in which the bones were broken also disclosed the fact that the diners had a liking for the marrow and the bones had been broken with the intention of extracting this. In some of the bones this evidence was clearer than in others, but it was in every case so clear from a close examination of the edges of the bones that there could not be the slightest doubt about the breaking being done for the purpose of getting at the marrow. So much importance was attached to this point, that the bones were submitted to other scientists for the purpose of getting their opinion regarding the cause of the breaking of the bones and in every case it was pronounced to have been done intentionally by those who were engaged in a feast of human flesh.

A close study of the conditions existing at the time these bones were left as remnants of a cannibalistic feast shows that they were eaten first from necessity. Food was scarce and the same motive that impels a shipwrecked mariner to slay his fellow castaway to allay the pangs of hunger induced these prehistoric cannibals to dine off their fellows. In some cases the objects of the feast were the friends and relatives and parents.

When they had outlived their allotted span of life and had become a burden upon the younger generation it was not at all an unusual thing for the old folks to be killed, cooked and eaten. But the principal supplies for such horrible feasts as those of prehistoric man were the remains of enemies killed in battle. It was looked upon as adding terrors to the fight when it was known that the killing of an enemy was not the end of him, but that he would be afterward consigned to the pot or spread on the ashes of the cooking fire and eaten with avidity by the victors.

Another inducement to eat his fellow of that land which with the prehistoric man was that certain portions of the human makeup, if eaten by another, were supposed to supply missing attributes that were coveted by the eater. Thus the heart of a brave man was eaten by one who had slain him or could carry off his body, after he had been slain, for the reason that the eating of his heart was supposed to give additional courage to the one who devoured it.

To dine off a wise man's brain imparted additional wisdom to the diner, and to make a meal of a man of muscle and sinew gave strength to the cannibal who satisfied his hunger with the strong man's remains.

To those parts of the world where cannibalism is still in existence some of these theories are believed in to this day, which proves that the prehistoric man of the present day differed in his likes, dislikes, tastes and disposition to the modern savage. It is not surprising to find that prehistoric man was a cannibal. The interest in the matter lies largely in the fact that the discovery has been given to us the actual remains of a cannibalistic feast at a time so far removed as to be lost in the shadows of antiquity.

A NEW REPUBLIC.

Evolution of a South American No Man's Land.

A republic of two hundred thousand square miles (one and a half times the size of Great Britain and Ireland) has suddenly arisen in the heart of South America, writes a Buenos Ayres correspondent of the London Daily Mail. This is the Republic of Acre, so called from the river of the same name (a tributary of the Amazon) which flows through it.

The circumstances which gave rise to this new State are somewhat novel. The territory of which the Republic of Acre is composed has long been disputed by, Bolivia and Brazil without being effectively occupied by either. It is a thinly peopled region inhabited by less than fifty thousand souls, who make a living principally by the collection of rubber, which grows wild in the forest in great abundance.

An adventurer named Rodrigues Alves took it into his head to proclaim himself President of this no man's land. The new government was formally created, Ministers of State appointed, and the capital fixed at Antimari, a small hamlet which is a depot for the rubber trade. The new State of Acre contains no large cities; indeed, it contains no town larger than a small village.

The new President is a man who has seen much fighting in his life. He is a Spaniard, and was formerly a banker in his own country, then theatrical impresario in the United States, clerk of works in Paris, and merchant in Brazil, settling down later as a broker in Buenos Ayres, where he made the acquaintance of the gentlemen who to-day are his Ministers.

The new government is no mere fiction, for it has caused no small consternation among the neighboring States, Bolivia in particular being much concerned and about to send an armed force to cause her flag to be respected in the new Republic.

The Argentine papers are full of accounts of the discovery of them giving maps and illustrations.

The new President of Acre does not reckon upon raising a revenue by the sale of titles, nor yet by the establishment of gambling hells, methods which were adopted under like circumstances by Baron Harden Hickey, erstwhile monarch of the barren island of Trinidad, but expects to fill the public exchequer by levying export duties on rubber, which at present is the sole source of wealth to the country.

Whether the new Republic of Acre will have a more lasting existence than the government of Trinidad remains to be seen.

A New Fad.

Scientists are recommending the electric light bath. It is free from the exhausting effects of Turkish baths and is lending to save muscles and joints. Nervous headache yields to this treatment, and the bath is of great benefit to persons of sedenary habits, such as teachers, doctors, lawyers and professional men generally. Rheumatism could never survive it is said the electric light bath is positively rejuvenating.

Not Throwing Money Away.

"It will cost you $1," said the jewel er, inspecting the works of the time piece through his eyeglass, "to put this watch in thorough repair."

"Hand it back," haughtily replied the young man on the outside of the counter. "I can get a new one for 98 cents."—Chicago Tribune.

How to Fasten the Thread.

The best way to fasten the thread at the end of a sewing machine seam is to turn back on the seam just sewn and stitch for half an inch or more; then you can cut the thread and not snag it. So, while take a great deal of time and is absolutely necessary if you would not have your thread rip-ping out all the time.

TIMOTHY BROWN.

Oh, Timothy Brown was a terrible scamp,
And lessons he voted a bore;
French, grammar, geography, history, sums,
He vowed he'd not learn any more.
At the end of a year he knew nothing at all
About anything under the sun,—
French, grammar, geography, history, sums,
He'd forgotten them every one.

One day a rich uncle said, "Timothy Brown,
I'll ask you a question or two.
If I'm forty-five, and you're younger than I,
How much am I older than you?"
Well, Timothy Brown he thought for a while,
And at last he discovered this fact,
That he hadn't a notion how long he'd been born.
And didn't know how to subtract.

"Come, when is your birthday? I'll give you a tip,"
Said his uncle, and patted his pate,
But Timothy Brown burst into tears,
He couldn't remember the date!
That's the end of the story of Timothy Brown.—
A story that's perfectly true,
And perhaps there's a moral for no one at all,
And perhaps there's a moral for you!

—Eric Parker, in St. Nicholas.

WHERE BUBBLES GO

Elsie was blowing bubbles at the open window. She had a big bowl of pretty white soapsuds and a new bubble pipe, which was a great success. A wind was blowing, and Elsie would lean out of the window and watch the bubbles as they swayed and swirled at the end of the pipe. Then she would give it a little shake, and the bubble would go swiftly away on the wings of the wind, up, up, in the air, so high that Elsie lost them all together.

At last she grew tired of this pastime and knelt down on the floor by the big window and leaned her curly head on her arms to watch the big white clouds that passed over the bright blue sky like a flock of woolly sheep.

Something else was floating up in the air now in, now out of the soft clouds, as if a part of them. Elsie wondered what it could be, for it glistened and shone as the light struck it, and it seemed to turn and float away from it closer to the right in a different direction.

"Why, I do believe its one of my big bubbles!" she cried, as it floated over the sill where she was still kneeling.

But when she looked at it more closely, Elsie was not sure of it at all, for at the bottom of the thin, shining globe there swung a tiny, silken basket (just as she had seen on big balloons), and in this basket was seated the wee form of a beautiful creature no larger or heavier than a butterfly. Indeed, at first Elsie thought it was a queer butterfly but as she looked with wonder at its glistening wings, the tiny creature raised its head, and Elsie had no further doubts. She thought at once that it was a fairy, and she was sure of it as soon as it began to speak.

"Good-day," said the fairy in a silvery little voice.

"Howdy," replied Elsie, rather shyly. For she was a little doubtful about the proper way of carrying on a conversation with a real fairy.

"I have come to thank you for the pretty bubbles," said the fairy, as she dropped a tiny golden anchor on the window sill where the bubble car might remain still while she talked. "I was nearly out of bubbles when at least a dozen fine ones were wafted in, so I took the biggest for my car, and here I am."

"I'm glad you liked them, I'm sure," said Elsie, politely, "but would you mind telling me where you live?"

"Why, in Bubble Land, of course," said the fairy, rather sharply. "Do you mean to say that you never heard of such a place before?"

Elsie was a little frightened as she saw the tiny frown on the fairy's face, so she only shook her head in reply.

"Well, I must say I am astonished," said the fairy in a reproachful tone. "Where did you suppose the bubbles went to?"

"I never thought about it at all," replied Elsie, plucking up courage as she saw the fairy regain her good humor. "Some of them just bursted before they reached the window sill, and the others floated up in the air."

"Well, well," said the fairy; "so you never suspected what became of all the bubbles that you and your friends send out into the world? And to think that I should be willing to save muscles and joints. Nervous headache yields to this treatment, and the bath is of great benefit to persons of sedenary habits, such as teachers, doctors, lawyers and professional men generally. Rheumatism could never survive it is said the electric light bath is positively rejuvenating. you have no idea that you were doing me a favor! But that makes no difference," she hastened to add, as she saw the sorrowful look on Elsie's face. "I should be thankful all the same, and to prove it, if you wish, I will take you back with me to Bubble Land and show you what good use I have made of your fine, big bubbles."

And before Elsie had a chance to say a word the fairy had touched her lightly on the arm and Elsie found herself seated in the tiny car without feeling the least bit crowded.

What was stranger still, she did not feel the least fear as the fairy drew up the golden anchor and the tiny car began to sway and move out over the window sill into the soft summer air.

Elsie had often watched people ascend in big balloons, and had shivered at the thought of floating so high above the earth, yet he she was in a tiny bubble balloon, so thin and frail that she could see the blue sky through its transparent sides.

"It is not very far," said the fairy, as the breeze carried them higher and higher in the air, "only a few hundred miles away." But Elsie thought that was pretty far, and wondered if she would get back in time for supper and what her mother would say about her taking such a trip with a stranger.

To divert her thoughts from this unpleasant subject Elsie watched the fairy with interest as she guided their frail car through the clouds into that surrounded them. She glanced down at the earth far below, and wished some of her little friends could see her now as he sat beside the tiny figure that was busily attending to the ropes as fine as cobweb that bound their car to the bubble, which reflected every tint of sky and land.

"Maybe it's all a dream," she thought, remembering other dreams that had seemed as real. But no, there was the fairy close beside her, and she could feel the soft breeze fanning her face as they floated on. And then, all of a sudden, before her eyes there dawned a scene of such strange beauty that Elsie cried out in wonder and delight.

The bubble car had halted at the window of a shining crystal palace that shone suddenly out of the cloudmist like a star. This palace was lighted by hundreds of flashing colored lights which were covered with bubble globes of transparent spiderweb.

Merry bubble cars like that she could count were floating up to the palace windows, and gayly dressed fairies were alighting with so much chatter and laughter that Elsie grew shy again and wondered what she would do in that strange and noisy company.

(Elsie saw that it was a fairy).

But the fairy was busily drawing up their tiny anchor and preparing for their homewward voyage.

"I have had a lovely time," sighed Elsie contentedly, "only I would have liked to go into that palace and see what was going on."

"That cannot be," smiled the fairy as they floated slowly away from the flashing lights of the palace. "Indeed, you are the first mortal that ever visited Bubble Land, and only my gratitude led me to take you to our shores. It is only on one condition that a mortal may join in our fairy sports, and that, I fear, can never be fulfilled."

"Tell me what it is," said Elsie eagerly, hoping it might be in her power to fulfill it,

"It is," answered the fairy, with the same smile, "on condition that the mortal can blow a thousand bubbles with one single drop of water. When this feat has been achieved we will welcome him to our court and teach him the secrets of our power."

"I guess I won't try," thought Elsie, giving up all hopes of ever seeing the inside of Bubble Land.

She was just about to tell the fairy that not even the best bubble-blower in existence could manage such a feat when their car bumped into something hard and Elsie held her breath in terror, but the fairy only laughed at a terrible rate of speed, and Elsie shut her eyes and waited in fear and trembling for what would happen next. She wanted to pray, but she could think of nothing but "Now I lay me down to sleep," and did not seem the thing at all for the occasion. She called wildly to the fairy, but there was no reply, and the car swayed more and more, till it was all that she could do to keep from fall one another and then another and then another. "The bubble must be melting," she thought, "I must jump for my life."

She called up all her courage and prepared for the fatal leap, when her outstretched hand struck something with sudden force and to her surprise and delight she found that it was the window-sill of her room.

She crept in and gave a long sigh of relief, as she found herself again kneeling on the floor with the bubble-blower beside her, just as she had been when the fairy first appeared.

"Thank goodness, I got here all right," she thought, "but what has become of the fairy?" Then a sudden thought struck her, and she understood it all.

"It was the naughty Pixies," she said to herself. "They pierced our bubble-car, and, of course, the fairy had to fly away. But I am awfully lucky to get out of it without a scratch, and I guess I won't try it again; no, not even if I blow the thousand bubbles and could join their sports in the Crystal Palace." And Elsie rubbed her eyes and stretched her arms that were tired from the strain of holding on so long, then ran down to tell her mother about it.

The Secrets of P'aps.

Alice expected her aunt on the train. She failed to appear, but Alice said: "P'aps she'll come."

"Oh, no," said her aunt; "she can't for the train has gone."

But Alice said: "P'aps she'll come, p'aps she'll come. Aunt Abbie, you don't know about p'aps."

He Knew That One.

A little fellow who has not, as yet, succeeded in learning the name of the three daily meals, came down to breakfast the other morning, when his mamma said:

"Well, Rollo, what meal is this."

"Oatmeal," was the confident reply.

ALASKA'S GOLDEN BEACH

Like a Chapter From the Arabian Nights.

WEALTH OF CAPE NOME

New Facts About the Golden Sands —Dawson Will Be About Deserted— The Country All Staked for Miles— Cost of Food and Fuel.

Who solves the riddle of the Cape Nome beach sands, gold hidden beneath the dreams of the most avaricious, says a correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, will earn enduring fame and the gratitude of the hundreds of prospectors who will search during the coming winter the beaches bathed by the Arctic Ocean and Behring Sea for the "mother lode." The offering of this "mother lode" are the placers of Snake River, Nome River, Anvil Creek and a score of other streams bordering Behring Sea and the Arctic Ocean, 125 miles north of St. Michael and 1,000 miles northwest of the Yukon's mouth.

It is easy to tell the truth about Cape Nome, but a very hard thing to make people believe it. It is not misleading in the wildest flights of fancy, of the Arabian Nights order. However, it happened that such very well-known men as Lieut. Jarvis, U. S. R. C. S. and Captain Walker, who were stationed in Alaska last summer, made a thorough investigation of the district, and their reports are known to be reliable in everything that is said in this article, but probably the best proof of all of the wonderful Cape Nome sands, where gold is as free as the air you breathe, is stranded miners last summer, lies in the sacks of the yellow stuff which have been brought down during the past few months and sent by Uncle Sam through the government assay office at Seattle.

A Sawyer Wing estimates that at least $400,000 in Cape Nome gold has been deposited with him this fall, while the records of the transportation companies show that as much more has been disposed of through other sources, or sent to San Francisco.

The discoverers of the Cape Nome district were Peter Lindberg, John Lindbloom and Johan Brandson. The first two were sailors on the whaler Alaska. Becoming dissatisfied with their lot, in August, 1898, they deserted, landing on the beach near Cape Nome, on Norton Sound. They laid for a few days and then were taken into camp, thinking they were Russian fur traders, Eskimos. A few days later they canoed up the Snake River on a little prospecting trip. They found what the Lindberg and Lindbloom found gold-bearing gravel on a shallow bedrock on the bed of a creek entering Snake River. It is said that they made on the second day, when they had laid out their claims. They kept their secret for a few days, brought in some of the richest dirt and went to Dawson, and then organized the district. Since that day they have located claims all over the district, which is thirty miles square. It is estimated that the value of the three discoverers of Cape Nome has taken out upwards of $100,000 since the first luck find was made.

The romance of the Cape Nome, however, lies in the discovery of gold in the beach sands. In June, this year, the rush numbered not over 200 people. Late in the month Lieutenant Dawson brought hundreds of miners down the Yukon bound outside," having left Dawson after the claims had been profitably. They camped in tents on the beach at Nome, waiting for the steamers to take them to Seattle. Half of the little crowd had not the money to pay their passage. The rest were preparing to work their way to Seattle. One day, one of the miners in a tent accidentally found gold in the sand beneath his tent. He sobbed a pan, and with the sea water panned a dozen pans of gold in the dirt. The deeper he went into the mater beneath the higher grew the number of colors. In an hour's work he found a pay streak, which, after sweeping the beach, he settled it. The next day sluice-boxes, men with pans and shovels were thick on the beach as flies around a molasses barrel in a country store.

For weeks the beach fairly swarmed with men. All made wages of $1 up to $50 per day. All who were working at wages left their jobs. The steamer, called Nome, threw up their positions and went to panning gold on the beach. The deposits lay in a 60-foot strip between the sea and the tundra, mines of the government. It was free to all who came. There was no staking of claims, as no title could pass from the govern. ment.

At one time there were over 1,000 men at work, on the beach. The steamer Jeanie from Seattle with miners bound for Dawson, the Koyukuk, Tanana and Forty-Mile districts, landed their passengers at Nome. Soon the country was staked for miles. The steamer two weeks later was nearly bringing the beach miners to Seattle. Instead of coming down from the north with sacks of gold dust, they came with a hundred to $10,000. Great excitement reigned among north-bound miners, and returning steamers went up loaded with every foot of space occupied by passengers and men.

Out of a space of ground 20 feet square Daniel Cronin took nuggets worth $18,000 in a day. Back to the hills went the prospectors, over the tundra, to where they found colors. In the spring an effort will be made to find the mother lode, from which, it is supposed by the miners, glaciers ground down the gold-bearing rock into the sea ages ago, depositing their precious contents on the sands for American miners to find at the dawn of the twentieth century. Nome is the richest mining camp in Alaska. Half of the people will live this winter in tents. Every article of food is dear. Wages are $10 per day and up. Hundreds are going to Dawson to spend the winter, expecting to take the first boats for the new mining fields in the spring, but the all-water route several weeks.

Appropriate.

The Milkman—I am going to buy a horseless milk wagon.

The Housekeeper—Yes, it will be an appropriate—goes so well with the watered milk.—Cleveland Leader.

AN ADIEU BY PROXY.

AND IT PLEASED THE SOLDIER BOY HIGHLY.

An Incident of the Late War—A Mother Sends a Farewell by a Good-Looking American Girl—She Delivered the Message.

The tension of the crowd of soldiers and their friends gathered in and around the armory was becoming so great that even bystanders who had no acquaintances in the regiment were irresistibly drawn into it. The time was growing short, for in ten minutes the bugle would sound to fall in and the regiment marched away to the depot to embark for Tampa.

Among those on the outside of the armory were a mother and her soldier son; she a pale, slight body, with the hands of a working woman and the face of a lady; he a big, awkward boy, with in his veins, but with his mother's heritage of refinement. Most of the other family groups contained at least three or four beside the "boy in blue," and in partings, as in other things, there is safety in numbers. But these two were alone. There were none to take any interest in their sorrow except such bystanders as noticed them and felt a natural sympathy for them.

One, however, took a more than passing interest in the couple. A good-looking girl of 20, gracefully posed and daintily dressed, had watched them ever since she first caught sight of them. She was a typical, thoroughbred, American girl, fair of face and form, and thoroughly healthy in body and mind. She had noticed the boy's pair from Adam, but she was attracted by the woman's pale refined face, and by a certain evidence of "good stock" about the boy, despite his unfamiliness, which doubtless responded to the same quality in herself. Mother and son did not converse much, for they held each other's hand and fed on each other's eyes, as though the time were too precious to waste in words.

Suddenly, as she watched them, the girl became aware that the woman's eyes lost their expression and stared vacantly into space; and almost before she could tell herself the reason she saw the poor, frail body totter and fall into the soldier's arms. At that instant the bugle sounded to form companies, and the boy looked helplessly around, and catching the girl's sympathetic glance his eyes appealed to her. She nodded quietly, and beckoned him to bring his mother into a nearby store, whose owner stood on the steps watching the formation of the troops.

"I will take care of her," she said quietly. "You are wanted over yonder."

He looked his thanks, for he dared not trust himself to speak, and was gone.

To the tune of "Star Spangled Banner" the regiment marched away toward the depot. It was to halt at the Chamber of Commerce and receive a

A burst of cheering and the simulsan hour the poor woman remained in a dazed condition, but at last the storekeeper worked faithfully and patiently with her. At length she opened her eyes.

"My boy," were her first words.

"Hush," said the girl gently. "He had to go with his regiment you know. You would not have him stay behind?"

"O, no, no," sighed the poor woman, "but I did not even say 'God bless you' to him when he went."

"He understood," said the girl, soothingly, "I am sure he understood. He went to the front, you know, my friend, and presently you shall tell me your name and address and I will take you home."

stand of colors. For more than half tenacious music of the band came from the direction of the town, and the woman started up, but the girl gently laid her back again.

"They had received their colors at the Chamber of Commerce," she said, "and are starting for the depot."

"For the depot," echoed the poor mother despairingly. "He will go away and I shall have no chance to say 'Good-bye' to him. He has no one to see him off but me."

The girl took a sudden resolution.

"Listen," she said, taking the toil-worn hand in hers and stroking it softly, "You cannot possibly go down to the depot, for you are tired and ill and weak. You shall tell me your boy's name and the number of his company, and I will go down and say good-by to him for you, and give him the poor mother caught eagerly at the offer.

"Will you really?" she cried, with tears in her voice. "O, God bless you, my dear! Go quickly. Tell my boy—O, my dear, tell him all I would say to him if I were young, but you know what a mother would say to her boy. Tell him, above all, to be brave, and I will pray for him until he comes home again. Go quickly, or you will be too late."

The girl hurried away, leaving the woman in the care of the hospitable storekeeper. Hardly had she gone when it suddenly occurred to her that in the excitement the woman had forgotten to tell, and she had forgotten to ask again, the boy's name and company.

"There is no time to go back," she said to herself, "I must find him without, that's all."

She reached the depot as the boys and their friends were saying final good-bys and exchanging last keepsakes and tokens. As luck would have it she quickly found the object of her search for he was standing apart from the crowd, on the further end of the depot, looking forlorn. Several of the soldiers and their companions found time, even amid their last greetings, to look at her as she passed, and to wonder what fortunate bluecoat claimed relationship with the lovely newcomer.

Coloring a little at the attention she attracted, she walked through the crowd of soldiers and friends straight up to the disconsolate boy whose loneliness she had come to lighten. He recognized her at once, and questioned her eagerly about his mother.

"She is better," said the girl, reassuringly, "but she could not get down to the depot, so she asked me to come and say 'Good-by' and 'God bless you' for her."

"You are kind," he stammered, confusedly, Both were aware, and each knew the other was aware, that they were by this time the center of observation. "Did my mother send me anything?" he asked after an awkward pause.

"She sent you her dearest love," she answered, "and bade me tell you she would pray for you until she saw you again."

"Did she send me nothing else?" asked the lad, thudding wistfully of the many little keepsakes and remembrances he had seen exchanged between th other soldiers and their relatives.

"Nothing else that I remember," replied the girl. "There was no little thing you know."

The poor boy, (for he was nothing but a boy) looked disappointed, and she felt sorry for him, but could think of nothing more to say to him. Then, like a flash, into her quick woman's mind there came a thought that staggered her with its audacity. A brazen girl would never have thought of it at all; a less thoroughbred girl would never have dared carry it into effect. She hesitated a moment, blushing furiously all over her pretty face and throat. Then, with head held high, she flung back her grizzled head with the gesture of a Princess, and darted a look of defiance at the bystanders.

"Nobody," she said, "except this," and putting her arm round his neck, she gave the astonished boy a kiss that made the cheeks of every soldier within eye and earshot tingle with envy. After which she turned and fled.

BLACK FIGHTERS.

What Happened When the Twenty-Fourth Boarded a Transport.

With their hands full of candy boxes and flowers they stood staring about, having hard work to keep their faces set in the proper lugubrious lines. It seemed to them that they were the people to which these numberless men most of them youths, were going with laughter and jest, gayly and gallantly, as men go to a feast.

From stem to stern the transport was as clean as a newly washed china egg, for fresh air and sea room would make her. From her soldiers' quarters, lined with three tiers of new canvas berths, to her officers' staterooms, from the white paint and enamel-work washstands, she was trim and neat. They did not seem to be a hole or corner of her into which the crowd did not penetrate. They peered into the officers' staterooms and climbed up and down ladders to and from dark places in the bowels of the ship. They even, in a body, surrounded General Shafter, who sat in a deck chair, gasping after his pull up a perpendicular stairway, and followed General S. S. Young, the raising officer of the expedition, as he piloted a party of important looking gentlemen through the highways and byways of the transport.

As the hour drew on toward four the troops gathered on the wharf were marshaled into line and in single file ascended the gangway. The recruits were formed in front their backs of crying the crowd and greeted the advancing column, whose steady tramp shook the pier, with wild howls of welcome. The din was deafening, the shouts of the men above providing accompaniment to the cheers below. Through the thunder jokes shouted in every key that went hurtling back and forth, many shrill shrieks of personal recognition rent the air.

Enthusiasm reached its height when a small body of the Twenty-fourth Infantry marched on to the gangway. They were in full kaki uniform, the column headed by a sergeant of magnificent proportions, carrying beside his regular accoutrements a handful of new brooms. With an even tread, upright, their dark faces expressionless, their figures full of the pride of their reputation and their regiment, they swung into line. The two wings of the crowd fell back and the sergeant with his broom mounted the gangway. As the eyes of the soldier blacks fell on the brooms a shout went up that was taken and repeated in a steady as the sound from one gigantic throat, burst from the decks and rolled away, reverberating down the wharf's length. The dignity of the negro, a thing hard to shake, trembled, but it held good and the shouts, loud and uncontrollable, flashed down the line of dark faces and an answering howl of welcome followed.—Collier's Weekly.

Dewey's Epigrams.

I am not a candidate for President. I never will be.

Notable dignitary is to say nothing and say it well.

Politics should be less a matter of party than principle.

Crush the rebellion first and then provide a just government.

A naval officer should be content with the honors that come to him in the profession.

In the case of the Philippines there is mercy in force and untold misery in procrastination.

Many a man has been made a good citizen by being sternly thrashed.

FOR EVENING WEAR.

Beautiful New Dancing Dress For Young Folks—Some Novel Coiffures.

Just this week there is scarcely anything thought of but dancing dresses, frocks or gowns, as one likes best to call them. I like the word dress best, and so shall call them that to the end of the chapter.

The very young girls go floating about in the lightest of tulle like spirits of the mist. Their dresses are made mostly looser than those for older persons. These last fit quite snugly over the silken lining, almost as closely as the lining, and where they flare at the bottom there are superimposed flounces of lace or chiffon, sometimes both. It becomes a wonder how such flimsy overdresses could sustain such a weight.

There was a very beautiful dress of white satin, with an overgown of figured white net. This was sloped to fit over the underskirt, but around the bottom of the skirt were three flounces of the net. At the very bottom of the skirt were three ruffles of white silk mull. Over this was the first flounce of the net. This had festoons of very narrow pale pink chiffon ruches. Where each joined there was a tiny bow of narrow pale pink ribbon. The three flounces were each headed by a line of silver spangles. The waist was made in the same general manner. The sleeves end at the elbow in the dress shown in the illustration, but I saw another where there were none at all, the ruffles around the neck doing duty for them.

Hairdressing for evening has undergone some radical changes. The hair is waved at the sides and drawn back from the face. Then right above the middle of the forehead is made a large butterfly set of loops of the hair. Those to whom it is more becoming mass their hair in something of a pompadour style and still others draw the hair back, leaving the forehead uncovered. The object seems to be to give a low but wide forehead, and it is a pretty fashion.

Another becoming style is to part the hair in the middle and draw it smoothly to each side, where there are neat little side combs. Beyond them the hair is puffed and curled as much as ever, while a high knot rises at the summit of the head, and this is upheld by a jeweled comb at the back and perhaps a jeweled ornament in front.

A very ingenious arrangement for wearing at the theater after the big hat is removed is an Alsatian bow of black velvet ribbon, with a rhinestone ornament in the center. The lady has this fastened to a hairpin, and before the hat is fairly off the bow is on, and the effect is really good.

There are in some of the swell establishments a number of rich and elegant suits made of velutina in black, brown, dark green, gray and some of the purples, particularly those called Cyrano These are made into what one might call tailor suits, with jacket or long coats as may be. The strictly tailor suits are made plainly, as such garments are wont to be, but where there is a long coat or empire coat it is richly ornamented with jet and fur and often rich lace wherever such can be used with propriety.

There was one suit where the skirt was made quite plain and of a Cyrano purple. There was an empire coat wrap of the same velutina, overlaid with black applique guipure. This wrap was like a princess polonaise in shape, cut away in one deep scallop in front, with the apex reaching quite to the knees. There was a row of knotted fringe all around the bottom. There were a high storm collar and deep lapels all faced with fine chinchilla fur. The whole wrap was covered with the thick silk guipure. Many skating dresses and whole suits are made of velutina, trimmed with fur.

For the very young the fayored jacket is what we call a Sans Gene. These are made both with and without points at the back, and all have the box plaits at the back of the skirt or the side plaited skirts. These have the plaits laid along and tacked so as to exactly fit the hips, and from there they hang loose to the bottom. Velvet of any kind, to look at its best, needs to be laid in heavy folds.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

QUEER THINGS WOMEN DO.

Strange Paths of Activity Into Which Their Talents and Impulses Lead.

Pope county, one of the southern most counties of Illinois, furnishes an interesting romance of everyday life. A year or so ago Miss Nettie Clark, the bright and pretty daughter of a farmer living on the banks of the Ohio river, in company with a school companion about her own age, prepared each a note asking that the finder answer it upon receipt. The missives were placed in bottles, securely sealed and thrown into the river. Weeks passed without replies, and the trivial incident was forgotten. Near his Louisiana home, a short distance from New Orleans, C. T. Anderson, a rich and prominent planter, in passing along the river bank, picked up a bottle with a note inclosed. It was the bottle thrown into the Ohio months before by Miss Clark. Correspondence followed, which subsequently developed into personal acquaintance and mutual admiration. As a result the Illinois girl who threw the bottle into the Ohio river is now the mistress of a big plantation on the banks of the Mississippi in Louisiana.

Mrs. Ella M. Clemmons, a sister of Mrs. Howard Gould, has decided to devote her life to the teaching of the doctrines of the Catholic church to the Chinese and has opened a mission school for this purpose in San Francisco. Mrs. Clemmons is a young woman and, like her sister, is remarkably beautiful, and the announcement of her purpose to devote herself to the Christianization of the Chinese caused something of a surprise in the society circles of many cities where she is known.

Near Ukiah, Cal., there is a unique farm upon which bears are raised for the market, much the same as cattle, sheep and hogs are raised on stock farms. What is still more unique about it is that it is conducted by women, the owner of the bear ranch being Mrs. Bowman, and her principal assistant is her daughter.

About 100 miles from New York and near Montauk Point, on Long Island, there is a pretty village by the sea where politicians are unknown, where not a cent is wasted in salaries, where there is no need of either jail or almshouse, where the sale of all intoxicants is absolutely prohibited and where peace and good order always prevail. This is the village of East Hampton, which has a population of 1,500 in winter and 3,500 in summer, and its affairs are almost entirely conducted by women. Four years ago the women organized the Ladies' Improvement association, which has wrought a marvelous change in the place.

Miss Elsie H. D. Strand, a niece of Senator Depew, was graduated recently from the Women's Medical college of the New York Infirmary For Women and Children with an M. D. degree and will practice her profession. She is a resident of Peekskill, N. Y., and inherited her taste for medicine from her father, Dr. Albert Strang, a successful physician of that place.

Miss Elsie Clews, the daughter of the noted New York financier, Henry Clews, has just published a book of 826 pages which bears the title of "Educational Legislation and Administration of the Colonial Governments." Heretofore efforts have been a number of aspirants for literary distinction among the smart set of the metropolis, but Miss Clews is one of the very few who have chosen to handle so weighty a theme. She has for some time been one of the inspectors of schools in New York.

Ten years ago Alma Frisbie was the most admired and gayest miss in Revere, Mass. Living in what was practically a part of the classic Hub, she acquired that manner and culture supposed to belong from birth to native Bostonians. A few years later she married and was subsequently deserted by her husband. After a time she married again, but this time her happiness was cut short by the death of her husband. Utterly heartbroken, she fell into a state of melancholy and one day suddenly disappeared. Her second husband had owned a tract of land in a remote and sparsely settled region of Georgia. Thither she journeyed, unknown to her friends, and established her domicile in a hermit cottage, with a few pet dogs, cats and goats as her sole companions, living the life of a recluse, having little intercourse with any human beings, her nearest neighbors being many miles distant.

ANNETTE CRAWFORD.

MADE OVER GOWNS.

Present Styles Available in an Economical View.

The fashion of skirts of two different materials is establishing itself and is a most convenient one, as it allows of "making over" a gown so that it looks like new. There are several ways of making these skirts. There may be a circular or plaited flounce around the foot, with a train falling over it, or there may be a tablier with a redingote effect, of different goods, or the skirt may be flared up from the foot with different material, the top of the facing forming points or some other decorative design, outlined by passementerie.

An old bodice may be freshened by the addition of a yoke and sleeve caps or may be covered with a stitched straps of satin or taffeta. Light silk bodices are often available as a lining under mousseline de soie or lace, while those of bright colored velvet can be cut over into the bolero form and veiled by applications of black or white guipure.

WALKING COSTUME.

An illustration is given of a walking gown of almond green cloth. The skirt is finely embroidered with black and opens at the left side over a panel of guipure over almond green silk. The coat bodice has a short basque and fastens across the waist by a strap and fancy buttons. The bolero is short and forms sleeve caps also, being embroidered with black and fastened by two large buttons. The plastron is of guipure over almond green silk. The sleeves have corded tucks at the top. The accompanying hat is of green felt and is trimmed with black and white feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WINTER FASHIONS.

Costly Furs Occupy a Prominent Place.

Fur, which, it was predicted, would be very fashionable this winter, is already proving the truth of the prognostication. Entire costumes are made of it, and there are long redingotes and straight mantles of fur. Fur capes are more worn than ever, but to them are added flounces of lace, mousseline de soie or velvet. Otter, mink and astrakhan are among the most fashionable varieties, with, of course, sable.

As fine furs are so expensive a luxury as to be available only for the very few, ingenious manufacturers have invented several substitutes, among them a heavy silk and wool plush closely imitating the fur of the otter. This is used for long and short jackets, sacks, boleros and mantles. All forms of wraps are employed, no variety being now excluded from favor.

VELVET COSTUME.

The cut shows a gown of purple velvet. The princess tunic is embroidered with silver spangles and bordered with sable and is draped at the left side by a velvet bow and silver buckle, the lower skirt being plain, with a band of fur around the foot. The crossed bodice is embroidered and edged with fur, opening over a plastron of purple velvet. The right sleeves are embroidered and bordered at the wrists with fur. A directoire hat of purple velvet accompanies the gown. A pudding of plush tulle is placed under the brim, and a scarf of the tulle encircles the crown, forming a large bow under the chin. Pink ostrich plumes form the remainder of the trimming.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WHAT IS WORN.

Beaulieu, Capes and Redingotes—An Evening Gown.

Capelike mantles are much worn with the more ceremonious dress of gowns, as they are easily put on and off and do not crush the costume as does a coat. There are all varieties of mantles, from the plain tailor made cape finished with stitching to those of velvet, satin or damask trimmed with fur and passementerie, not to mention evening wraps of the most elaborate and brilliant description.

The short capes of the last few years are out of date. They may still be utilized if they are in good condition by rounding the front corners and adding one or more circular reples. If the goods cannot be exactly matched, velvet may be employed. In that case velvet ornaments must be used on the body of the cape also, the collar and revers being of velvet.

Redingotes are having a growing success, and the loose sack is also making its way by dint of appearing in modest, tailor made guise and not rendering its ugly, undress aspect conspicuous by rich materials and trimmings. Prettiest of all are the little boleros of cloth or fur, well fitting and smartly trimmed.

The evening gown illustrated has a trained skirt of white velvet. Over this is a princess tunic of guipure de venise, cut square at the top and with long, tight sleeves. The decollete edge is bordered with black velvet set with crystal buttons, and two bands of velvet are tied across the top of the arm, forming a bow. A spray of flowers is placed at the left shoulder and a large butterfly at the front of the bodice.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

MOURNING STYLES.

Fashions For the Several Stages of Mourning.

Mourning apparel is divided into two classes—first and second mourning. The first is always of dull wool and crape, and only black wool, dull jet or crape stone ornaments are permissible. Preferably none but veils adorn riding and mourning. The gloves are of black wool, castor or suede.

For the second period of mourning fancy black weaves are used, and silks and black lace are also admitted, and fur may serve as trimming. Ornaments of bright jet or gun metal are appropriate, as are glace gloves.

These two stages are followed by half mourning, when combinations of black and white and all shades of gray and violet are proper. Flowers are worn in the hair—mauve orchids, lilacs, pansies, lilacs, periwinkle and, in addition, white cyclamens, which are now very charmingly and naturally fad.

MOURNING CAPE.

The fashion of making mourning costumes is the fashion of the moment modified and robbed of all oddities and ghastly effects. This is the general style for mourning garments different from the usual one.

An illustration is given which shows a mourning cape of black chevriot. It has a deep border of English crape, headed by stitched applications of the chevriot. The rabbit collar is of English crape, the finish of wadded doll finished silk. Astrakhan may be used instead of crape. The hat of English crape has a drapery of crape, and black flowers and feathers form the trimming.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHIONS IN FUR.

Various Ways of Employing Expensive Pelts.

The princess form is that adopted for the most elegant of outdoor gowns. Its velvet or cloth it is particularly attractive. The trimming is usually passementerie, fringe designing visits or fur.

Fur is immensely worn, with no reference to the temperature of the open fur is a rich and expensive novelty. Lace, flowers and tulle are combined with fur without hesitation. Ermine, chinchilla, mink, not only in jet, but in turquoise, amethyst and other jeweled effects, are also used.

CLOTH COAT.

Fur bats are a feature of the season's millinery. These are not the pretentious, flat caps or toques, but are regular hat shapes, with a large or small brim, covered with chinchilla, astrachan and other short pile fur. Usually if the crown is of fur the brim is of velvet, shirred tulle or some other fabric, and vice versa. Such hats are often very elaborately trimmed with spangled net and flowers and are intended to accompany very rich gowns. There are also hats entirely of fur trimmed with big effects of colored mousseline de soie.

The pretty coat illustrated is of black cloth and has a large collar and revers of black velvet corded closely with white silk stitching. The back is close fitting, the front forming a straight, square tab at the bottom. Pockets outlined by stitched straps of white cloth, and steel buttons fasten the jacket. The cravat is of black mousseline de soie, the toque of black brocaded silk with white quills.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

OUT OF DOOR STYLES.

Tailor Made Gowns, Jackets and Long Coats.

The tailor made costume is in great favor this winter and will be worn throughout the season. Perfectly cut and well made, such gowns are charming and may be worn for many purposes, but not for dress occasions. For rolling, etc., a costume of heavier goods is necessary. The tailor made gown may be trimmed with fine astrakhan, with soutache or simply with stitching. If it is made with a bolero or coat, this is usually lined with fancy or contrasting silk.

Young girls affect jackets this season and are most frequently of mastic or gray cloth.

Tight bolero jackets of red cloth, having the shortest possible basques, are a pretty novelty. The red is bright, and the jacket is a most attractive addition to a dressy tailor suit or costume.

For automobile and carriage wear the long, loose coat, entirely covering the gown, is adopted. It is almost always finished with a cape collar and has a high, flaring collar.

The long coat illustrated is of mastic cloth and is tight at the back and straight in front. It fastens at the left side, the skirt part being edged by a circular flounce, headed and bordered by rows of stitching. Revers are formed of diagonal stitched strapped cloth, terminating under large pearl buttons. Straps and buttons also trim the sleeves. The collar is edged with stitching. The hat of beige felt has a band of brown velvet, with a pearl buckle and brown tulle thous.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

JAPAN'S FOXES.

They Are Held as Very Powerful Beings in the Land of Flowers.

In Japan, with its quaint, gentle people and its quainter, gentler beliefs, even the foxes are not be scared as they are in other countries. Here a fox is a plaything, a creature to be hatried and torn to pieces by dogs for sport. In Japan it is well to address a fox by the most honorable titles, to treat him in the best places found for him and be very glad when he goes. For in Japan foxes have great power, and it is not well to offend them. Many are the tales the little people whisper—whisper for fear the foxes will hear and take offense—about the deeds of Inari the fox.

They are popularly supposed to take up their abode with those whom they fancy—and, alas! also with those whom they do not fancy. And sometimes it is hard to decide which is the happier. For the foxes must be fed. And as there are always many in a family, and they do not visit singly much rice must be consumed for them. Good luck is supposed to their arrival, however, but it is liable to be changed into the direst ill fortune at any moment. For the foxes are exceedingly sensitive, and a word carelessly spoken, will serve to send them off in a huff, and then all sorts of misfortunes will follow. When a man is seized with a fit in Japan they say "He is afflicted with foxes," or "He has made an enemy of the foxes."

Sometimes foxes will be shunned by the villagers because it is supposed that foxes have taken up their abode therein. Families supposed to be afflicted with the friendship of the foxes are rather left alone by the rest of the peasants, as they do not like even when the unwelcome guests will transfer their affections—and their presence—to others. And the villagers do not care to place temptation in their way. Friendly lovers of foxes are not allowed to marry into those having them, as when the foxes attach themselves to a family it includes in its affections all its members, even to the most remote. One of the most famous families in Japan claims its supremacy to be due to the good influence of the foxes who have taken up their abode in that family.

All over Japan you will see images of the foxes—gold and silver, with their noses perked smartly in airy great foxes and little foxes, sages and clowns, all kinds and degrees—showing the prevalence of this belief in the land of the wonderful Rising Sun, and also showing in what respect the fox is held.

It is curious to note that in all countries the fox, above all other animals, has been considered to exert great influence for good or evil. Nations have legends of which the cunning and intelligence of the fox is the theme.

EFFIE'S KISS.

How She Showed What She Thought of the Little Brook.

"Effie, we are going into the country!" cried Molly, clapping her hands.

"What's the country?" asked Effie promptly.

"Oh, it's a lovely place," said Molly. "It's all green fields and trees and flowers, and little lambs and birdies, and cowslips and—and—"

Effie liked to think things over. She sat on the floor, right in the way of a sunbeam and considered the matter. The sunbeam gave her an idea.

"Effie likes sunshine," she said shortly at last. "an' flowers an' birdies."

Molly breathed more freely, for there was no knowing how Effie would take things.

"And you'll be very good, Effie, because I'm going to take care of you," Molly continued.

"Course Effie be good!" was the reproachful answer.

A few days later the fussy train carried mother and Molly and Effie away to the country, where they were going to spend the day at a nice, old-fashioned farmhouse.

The weather was fine and Effie went into the garden with their baskets to get flowers.

"Look after 'Little Mischief,' Molly," called mother from the doorstep.

"Yes, mother," said Molly, brightly; but Effie walked on ahead and walked on with great dignity.

The sight of the meadow, golden with buttercups, soon made her forget though, and she began to pick the flowers with all her might.

"See," said Molly after a while, as they found themselves hearing the bottom of the hill, "there's a lovely brook down here! See how it sparkles in the sunshine and hear how it sings among the stones!"

"Oh," cried Effie, "I must kiss it," and throwing down her basket, she ran to the brook, right into the water and lifted up some in her dimpled hands to "kiss" before the bewildered Molly could guess what she was going to do.

"Oh, Effie! she cried, "what are you doing?"

"Hew how pitty," cried the little one, "and so nice to Effie's foots!" and she looked down at the little ripples curling around her plump ankles and clapped her hands.

Happily for both children mother was near enough to feel a feeling which had happened she came running to the rescue, and in a few moments Effie's wet things were off and she was being cuddled up in a blanket beside the kitchen fire.

Altogether that first visit to the country turned out a grand success, and when she grew up Effie had many a laugh over her queer idea of wanting to kiss the pretty brook.

Dogs That Never Bark.

There are three varieties of the dog that never bark—the Australian dog, the Egyptian shepherd dog and the "blue-headed" dog of Thibet.

NAMES OF PETS.

It Is sometimes Difficult to Find Suitable Ones.

Who does not know scores of dogs answering to the names of Prince, Gyp, Jack, or Spot? Poney and Kitty are also in very common use, and Fido is the favorite of the canine multitude to the extreme. How many birds are called Dick! And how many parrots Polly, regardless of sex! As if there were not numbers of appropriate names for dogs, cats, birds, etc., that are prettier, more musical, and always strangely common names which we hear on all sides.

If I may offer some suggestions: Why not give noted names of history, having due regard to the personality of the species, if not of the individual? For example, an appropriate name for a Scotch collie would be Lochiel, Lochinvar, or Albyn (ancient name for Scotland), though this last might more properly be given to a male. Bebba, Coun, Cormac or Lorc might be given an Irish setter, as these are the names of ancient Irish historical personages. Brutus and Hiuhin, which were the names of the two dogs of Frau, a pure Chihuahua Irish hero, might also be used. And so on with other breeds too numerous to mention. Of course I do not mean that the national names should «"» be given; not by any means.

Names that occur in fiction often make very proper titles for pets. A fox terrier I call Natty Bumpo, Bumpo for short), a name which those familiar with the wonderful Indian of Cooper's novels will at once recognize. A high-sounding title for a brace of cats—or dogs, for that matter—would be Sir Peter and Lady Teazle. Names, too, of friends, if they be not too long, or friends in whose honor we delight particularly well not to object, may serve our purpose. I call a dove by the onesyllabled family name of a poet friend.

Sometimes circumstances will suggest the name. A novel way of having a pet is to call it from "treasure-trove," which comes from the French trouve, found; because the dog came to me and (though I tried) I was never able to discover the owner.

Words in languages, likewise, will furnish titles. I know a little cat called Pierrot, which we know means "clown" in French; at least, that is one of the meanings. Again, names of favorite characters in our own or other favorite authors are not uncommon. Animal Friends.

FOR THE HORSE.

Ian Maclaren's Pretty Introduction to a Story.

Under this title Ian Maclaren tells in St. Nicholas how a farm-hand at last finds out that the man who saved his horse from drowning at the expense of his own life. The story would be spoiled by condensation, but the introduction is worth printing by itself.

In the days of long ago I used to live in the summer-time upon a farm in one of the rich plains of Scotland, where the soil was deep and we could grow everything, from the fragrant strawberry to the yellow melon, without. One reason why our farm bore such abundant crops was its situation; for it lay, in the shape of the letter V, between two rivers which met upon our ground. One of the rivers was fretful and shallow, and for the most part ran over gravel, brawling and fretting when it came upon a large stone, and making here and there a pleasant little fall. This river in the winter-time would be in flood, with such a strong current and there were days and sometimes weeks when we could not send our men and horse across its ford. We never hated this river, because, although it could be angry at times and when it was raining on the distant hill or a big thunder-cloud burst in the glens above us, it was never treacherous and sullen; it had no unexpected depths into which a man and horse could sink, but was as open as the day and its water was as bright. Wherefore I have kindly thoughts of that stream, and when the sun is hot in the city, and there is no shade for the eyes, I think of it where again upon its banks and could see it gleaming underneath the bushes as it sings its way past my feet.

The other river was narrow, and ran in silence between banks; or rather it did not run, but trailed itself along in a serpent's pace, black and smooth. There was no end to its wicked cunning, for it pretended to be only three feet deep and it was twelve, and sometimes it hollowed out to itself a hole where a twenty-foot boat would not touch the bottom. One of its worst tricks was to undermine the bank so that the green turf on which you stood became a trap, and, yielding beneath your feet, unless you were very dexterous, landed you in the water, and, unless you could swim, the river would drown you in its black water as if with delight.

When They Were Naughty.

Sir Edwin Landseer, the great artist, loved children very dearly. When his small children were naughty their mamma punished them by standing them for a few minutes in a corner, with their faces to the wall. Sir Edwin found this quite severe punishment to their hearty loving pugs. So he had painted in the corners where his children were punished sprays of flowers, saying, "If he has to go to the corner I am convinced he shall enjoy himself there." It is also said that the artist, when visiting, found a child of his host receiving the same punishment, and that he quietly sketched, with a pencil, flying birds in the corner where the small boy stood.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Proposed School Laws Opposed.

The proposed codification and revision of the school laws of the State, which has been arranged by a committee of the State Board of Education, one of whose members is S St. John McCutchen, of North Plainfield, is encountering more serious opposition than has been anticipated. In several counties there has developed bitter antipathy to the proposed codification—notably in Hudson and Passaic.

In Hudson county a meeting of the Boards of Education of that bailiwick was held a few days ago and a series of resolutions passed in which the principal changes in the school laws, as proposed by the special committee, are vigorously opposed. The resolutions declare that Boards of Education are reborn of their most important prerogatives by the requirement that a two-thirds vote of all the members of the Board is required to override the superintendent in the appointment, promotion, transfer and dismissal of teachers and the adoption of text-books and courses of study, and that a Board, even by the unanimous vote of all its members, is debarred from making important appointments unless on the nomination of the superintendent or business manager.

Another objection that strikes the Hudson county educators is that the proposed law empowers the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to remove any member of any local board of education on his sole authority without trial, and without, apparently, any appeal from such action.

It is finally charged that the whole tendency of the bill is to centralize the control of the schools and their patronage in a few officials.

That there will be a bitter fight in the Legislature to prevent the adoption of the codification, in view of the opposition that has developed, goes without saying. The proposed measure has the approval of the Republican leaders, however, and the chances are therefore good for its passage.

Not All is Favorable.

It is a trite and true old saying that "there is two sides to every story," and this is so in relation to the service of the voting machines that are designed to supplant the old and tedious methods of counting ballots on election nights. Up to the present time nearly everything that has been said about the practicability of the voting machines has been favorable to the devices—many praiseworthy accounts of the work of the machines coming from the municipalities that have used them.

But there is another side, too, and one not quite so favorable. The town of Rye, in New York, purchased seven of the machines six years ago, paying $3,160 for them. At the last election a serious error was made by the mechanism of one of the machines, and after considering the question of saving time in counting votes as compared with the risk of a mistake such as was committed at the last election, it was decided that the old system of conducting elections was preferable. Consequently the voting machines were dead wood on the hands of the town. They were advertised for sale at public auction, and Saturday they were bought by a junkman for 42½ cents a pound. Rye citizens will now revert to the old method of burning midnight oil in copious quantities to determine the result of the voting after the polls close on election days in the future.

The city of Mt. Vernon owns ten voting machines, too, which it is very anxious to dispose of. They cost $4,000 to purchase, but were abandoned some time ago as undesirable in elections. The city officials say that no reasonable offer will be refused.

The Congressional Committees.

Speaker Henderson's treatment of the New Jersey Representatives in Congress with respect to the committee appointments, which he made Monday, was very satisfactory.

Congressman Fowler, of the Eighth district, had been a candidate for the chairmanship of the Committee on Banking and Currency—one of the most important in this session of Congress—but sometime ago he realized that it would be impossible for him to secure the place. He was made, however, the second member of the committee, and if he stays in Congress long enough he may eventually succeed to the chairmanship.

New Jersey Congressmen captured two of the chairmanships, which is doing well for such a small Commonwealth. Mr. Gardiner was reappointed Chairman of the Committee on Labor, and Mr. Stewart of the Committee on Expenditures in the Navy Department.

Mr. Howell, of the Third district, was entitled by seniority on the Irrigation Committee to a chairmanship, but did not press his claim, and accepted his old place on Public Buildings and Grounds, and a place on the Immigration Committee, on which he served two Congresses ago.

Mr. Daly is assigned to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, which will probably be one of the most active committees during the present session, by reason of its having to consider the shipping bill.

AT THE CHILDREN'S HOME.

Articles That Are Needed Most For Christmas Presents at That Worthy Institution.

By the courtesy of the editor, I can answer several notes by one. The Apostle Paul tells us to "covet earnestly the best gifts." Our best gift is always money, but we have beside many other needs. Come with me to our wardrobe room. A pair of shoes for school and church means for our twenty-six children fifty-two pairs; and we are always glad of a few extra pairs for unlooked for arrivals. Three handkerchiefs a week each, means from seventy-five to eighty on our shelves. There are in weekly use more than fifty pairs of stockings. Beside, sometimes, the little feet are accidentally wet, and if not attentive mudpuddle of pleasfully and with enthusiasm—multiply the wants of any child in the comfortable homes of our city by twenty-five or thirty and you will have a good idea of our needs. We need unbleached muslin sheeting, cut with with 2¼ and 2½ for the larger beds. Sheets and rubbers for twenty-six children; twenty-three between three and ten years old. Knee pants, handkerchiefs, gingham and prints; books, toys and games suggest themselves at Christmas to all lovers of children. The Christmas tree will be lighted during the week between Christmas and New Years. Notice of time given later.

M. E Kimball.

Dec. 19th, 1899.

MT. OLVE CHURCH OFFICERS.

Deacons Chosen at the Annual Meeting of Members Monday Night.

There was a large attendance of the members at the Mt. Olive Baptist church last Monday when the annual meeting for the election of officers was held. The following were selected: Deacons, Sipio Whindleton, D. H. Brown, Albert Wilson, Peter Gordon, William Phillips, B Yetman; treasurer, Oscar Green; clerk, N. J. Pollard; assistant clerk, T. J Banks; organists, Horatio Randolph and Miss Alice Maynard. The following trustees were nominated to be voted upon at the meeting to be held the first Monday evening in January: J W. Reed, W. H. Manning, John Scott, John See, Charles Barber, Samuel Fields and William Burton.

WAS TOP-HEAVY.

The Result Was That a Load of Furniture Tipped Over in the Street.

A spring wagon, drawn by a gray horse and loaded with furniture, upset about 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at the corner of West Front street and Madison avenue. The furniture was too much for the wagon and the load becoming top heavy, toppled over. There was a profusion of bed room suites, chairs, tables, bed springs, etc., strewn about the street and in the midst of the debris the contents of a barrel of sour kraut was conspicuous. The accident caused a crowd to collect and many amusing comments were made.

Hopes for Their Recovery.

The condition of Mrs. William C. Chamberlain and her fifteen year old daughter, Lorrie, who were burned terrible on Sunday last, remains about the same Dr. Lowrie has more hopes of the recovery of the mother and daughter as thus far they do not show any signs of having inhaled the flames. Neither one can rest very well as they suffer the most intense pain. Constant attention is given them and the soothing applications afford temporary relief.

To Debate Government Ownership.

The subject for the next debate of the Y. M. C. A., on January 8 h, under the auspices of the literary society, will be "That the United States should own all public railroads and telegraph lines within its domains." O S Rogers and T. A. Cumming will take the affirmative, and George S. Clay and J. H. Crane, the negative.

New Coaling Trestle.

A large force of men were at work all day Sunday on the new trestle to be used for coaling locomotives of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at South Plainfield. The new arrangement will save a great deal of time and also work.

Opened New York Office.

The Marvel Bottle Company, of this city, have opened an office at 45 Beaver street, New York.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new cereal drink, called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more healthy you are children obtain all the nourishment in coffee, but the addition of coffee has not much. Ask grocers and try it. 15c. and 25c.

CONTINUE TO PLAY GOLF

ENTHUSIASTS STILL GATHER AT THE CLUB COURSE.

Quite a Lively Demand for Winter Golf, Which Will be Played Even After There is a Fall of Snow—Good Attendance.

The fine weather of Saturday drew quite a crowd of golfers to the links of both the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club and the Park Golf Club that afternoon for winter golf. Although the season has closed at both courses and the club houses have been locked up for the season, temporary greens have been arranged close by the old greens, now covered for the winter, and playing is still possible.

There was a fair attendance at both courses during the afternoon. The Hillside Club announced, when the course was closed last month, that arrangements would be made so that play might still continue. There have been a few who have visited the links of that club at frequent intervals during the month

It was not expected that the Park Golf Club would have any great demand for winter golf, but quite a number of members signified their desire to continue the game as long as the good weather continued. So the greens committee arranged to have temporary greens laid out, and while the course is not as good as the regular one, it answers the purpose of giving the members a chance to keep their hand in the sport and occupy the pleasant Saturday afternoons of the winter months.

Golf on snow is something that few Plainfield golfers have tried, and there are quite a number who want to see what it is like. So the first snow storm is likely to see a little gathering of enthusiasts on the local courses.

WATCHED THE ECLIPSE.

Easy to See the Advance of the Earth's Shadow Over the Moon Saturday Night.

There were hundreds of Plainfielders who watched the eclipse of the moon Saturday evening with interest. The day was a pleasant one, but, with the setting of the sun, the sky grew hazy and the rising moon was partially dimmed by thin clouds. As the moon continued to rise the clouds grew thinner and the outline of the moon was plainly distinguishable. The first appearance of the earth's shadow was noticeable, however, As the evening advanced the clouds disappeared and the moon came out in all her glory.

It then became very easy to watch the advance of the earth's shadow over the moon. The uncovered part shone with unusual brilliancy, while the remainder could be faintly seen, a dull red in color All the moon was finally covered except a very slim crescent in the southeastern side. The shadow then passed away as gradually as it came and the moon shone as if nothing unusual had happened. Next there will be the unusual sight of a total eclipse of the sun, visible in this part of the globe.

Resolutions of Condolence.

A special meeting of the trustees of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club was held Sunday, all the members being present except Mr. Waring, who is traveling in the south. The president announced the death of Josiah Browne, and the following minute was adopted:

Josiah Browne, Esquire, was one of the founders of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. He had been a trustee of the club from the beginning, and had been for three years its treasurer, and during the past year its president. During the period of his service he devoted himself to the welfare of the club with the greatest industry and intelligence. The success of the club in the past has been largely due to his efforts, and it is to a high standard of manly sport which will promote the future welfare. It is therefore

Resolved, That we, his fellow members and associates in the board of trustees of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, on behalf of ourselves and the members of the club, hereby express our appreciation of the services which we, as a club and as individuals, have received at the hands of Mr. Browne, and we record here this testimonial to his virtues.

Horse Had a Lively Run.

A horse owned by D W. Rogers, the fish dealer, ran away Monday morning and made things lively for a time. The animal started from the place on Second street, and after running for a short distance succeeded in getting away from the wagon through a broken clip. The horse then ran into Front street and went west at a great rate of speed. After much trouble he was caught and returned to the owner The damage was comparatively slight.

Beauty in Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic, clean the blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to be beautiful. Sold, Monday, blue-box cure and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets,—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

Not Time to Act as Postmaster.

F. W. Wohlfert, of Watchung, has discovered that he has not the time to spare to be postmaster at that place, and has sent a letter to the Postmaster General to that effect. He recommends the name of Geo. A. Schmidt for the place, and he will probably receive the appointment.

Coming Out for the Parents.

The funeral services of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David McInnes, of 443 Webster place, were held Monday afternoon when a number of relatives and friends gathered at the home of the heart broken parents and showed their feelings of sympathy through the gift of beautiful floral tributes. Miss Florence Kline sang two selections, and Rev. G. Kenney Newell, pastor of Hope chapel, spoke comforting words about the loss of the young daughter. The remains were laid to rest in Hillside cemetery beside those of her grandmother.

Annual Report of the Hospital.

The annual report of the Muhlenberg Hospital was issued last Saturday. It is somewhat later than usual. The report shows that during the past year there were 326 indoor patients as against 288 for the previous year. The visits at the dispensary have been 1,323. Last year there were 1 226. Nine nurses have been graduated from the hospital, and there are nine pupil nurses in the institution now. Up to the present time the hospital has received bequests amounting to $15,000 90.

To Continue Her Studies.

Miss Ella Conover, of Elmwood place, who was graduated a short time ago from the Mercer Hospital, Trenton, as a trained nurse, entered the Sloane Maternity Hospital Monday, where she will pursue a course of three months. This is necessary for all trained nurses, and Miss Conover is fortunate in being able to continue her studies under such favorable circumstances, and without being obliged to wait very long for the opportunity.

Missing Woman Found.

Mrs. Angelo Podretti, the Italian woman, who resides on Grove street, and who disappeared last week from home, has been found. She was discovered by the Elizabeth police in that city Saturday and returned to this city. She refuses to have anything to say as to where she has been or what she was doing. She does express a wish to return to Italy, and it is possible that her husband may send her there soon.

A Picture of Mr Brown.

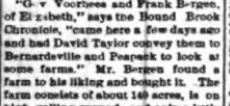
In the December issue of "Association Men," a monthly publication devoted to Christian manhood and the interests of the Y M C. A., there appears an excellent picture of Charles B Brown, secretary of the Jersey City Y. M. C. A., conducting a popular secondary meeting for the benefit of the employes of one of the large shops in that city. The picture includes a large assemblage of workmen who are listening to Mr. Brown.

Hasn't Be Looked After.

A great many persons have expressed the opinion that if Messrs. Woodhull & Martin had the enterprise to erect a trolley waiting station at the Dunellen terminal of the line, that the Plainfield Street Railway Company should certainly manifest enough enough enterprise to look after it and place a light in the place at night. It is certainly a bad place for women to stop at night unattended.

Frank Bergen Days a Farm.

"G-r-r Vootfeess said Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth," says the Bound Brook Chronicle, "came here a few days ago and had David Taylor convey them to Bernardsville and Peapeack to look at some farms." Mr. Bergen found a farm to his liking and bought it. The farm consists of about 140 acres, is on high, rolling ground, and only a little distance from Bernardsville.



Christmas Dinner to be Abandoned.

The Salvation Army has cancelled the free dinner which they expected to have Christmas Day for the poor, on account of the illness of Mrs. Ensign Martin. It is impossible for the Ensign to give his time to it.

Able to be Out Now

Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., of Jackson avenue, who sprained her ankle a few weeks ago, is much improved and hopes to be able to get out again shortly. It was first feared that she would be laid up all winter.

Singing Trainer as a Choir.

Edward C Clark, of 18 Jackson avenue, has accepted a temporary position as tenor in the choir of Trinity Reformed church, and his singing at Sunday's services was very enjoyable.

A Violin Recital.

Prof. F. Ludwig Condo is arranging to give a violin recital in Y. M. C. A. Hall some time in February, when he will play selections of the old masters.

Rode Without a Light.

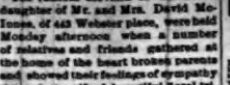
Sentence was suspended on Raymond Todd Tuesday morning by City Judge Runyon for riding his bicycle at night without a light.

Coming Out of Miss Phillips.

Invitations have been sent out by Mrs. Henry Russell Phillips and Miss Phillips, of 11 Rockview terrace, for a reception to be given Tuesday, December 26th, from 4 until 6 o'clock.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

If you haven't a regular, healthy movement of the bowels every day, you're sick, or will be. Keep your bowels right with Cascarets. Don't take pills, salts or purgatives that irritate and injure the bowels. Cascarets do their work gently and forever.



Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c. Sold in bulk, (cheap stuff) 10c. per lb. Genuine tablets stamped CCC. Sold and guaranteed by druggists throughout the world. Book free. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York. 1

KEEP YOUR BLOOD CLEAN

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE -:- In 1900 -:-

NOVELTY IN LITERARY AND ART FEATURES

PRINTING IN COLOR.

THE BEST ILLUSTRATIONS, with Cole's Engravings and Castaigne's Drawings.

A New and Superbly Illustrated

LIFE OF CROMWELL

By the Right Hon. John Morley, M. P.

THE conductors of THE CENTURY take especial pleasure in announcing this as the leading literary feature of the magazine in 1900. No man is more competent than John Morley to write the story by Mr Gladstone's family to write Cromwell in the spirit of the end of the nineteenth century.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS

will be remarkable. Besides original drawings, there will be valuable unpublished portraits lent by Her Majesty the Queen, and by the owners of the greatest Cromwell collections. Other features include:

Ernest Seton-Thompson's

"Biography of a Grizzly," delightfully illustrated by the artist-author. One of the most important literary works of the author of "Wild Animals I have known."

Paris, Illustrated by Castaigne.

A series of papers for the Exposition year, by Richard Whiteing, author of "No. 5 John Street," splendidly illustrated with more than sixty drawings by the famous French Castaigne, including views of the Paris Exposition.

London, Illustrated by Phil May.

A series of papers on the East End of London by Sir Walter Besant, with pictures by Phil May and Joseph Pennell.

Sailing Alone Around the World.

The record of a voyage of 46,000 miles undertaken single-handed and alone in a 45-foot sloop. A delightful story of adventure on the sea.

The Author of "Hugh Wynne."

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, will furnish a short series of remarkable stories, the first of which, "The Autobiography of a Quack," and three will be short stories by well-known writers.

A Chapter from Mark Twain's Abandoned Autobiography.

Literary Reminiscences.

Familiar accounts of Tennyson, Browning, Lowell, Emerson, Bryant, Whittier and Holmes.

Important Papers.

By Governor Theodore Roosevelt, President Eliot, Harvard; Brander Matthews, Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Woodrow Wilson, John Burroughs, and others.

American Secret History.

A series of papers of commanding interest.

The Art Work of the Century.

It is everywhere conceded that THE CENTURY has led the world in art. Timothy Cole's unique and beautiful blocks will continue to be a feature, with the work of Henry Mosler, Kenyon Cox, and others of American school famous. The fine half-tone plates—to-engraved by wood engravers—for which THE CENTURY is distinguished, will appear with new methods of printing and illustrating.

Begin new subscriptions with November. Price $4.00 a year. Subscribe through dealers or remit to the publishers.

THE CENTURY CO.,
UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK.

The best of all Children's Magazines.—London Spectator.

ST. NICHOLAS
FOR YOUNG FOLKS.
A Monthly Magazine Edited by MARY MAPES DODGE.

For 1900 A Splendid Program of Art, Literature and Fun

TEN LONG STORIES, by Ruth McEnery Stuart, Mary Mapes Dodge, Frank R. Stockton and other writers. Each complete in One Number.

A SERIAL STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "MASTER SKYLARK," a tale of Old New York.

A SERIAL STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "DENISE AND NED TOODLES," a capital story for boys.

A SERIAL STORY OF ATHLETICS.

A SERIAL STORY FOR LITTLE CHILDREN by Mrs. Molesworth.

AN IMPORTANT HISTORICAL SERIAL of Colonial Life in America by Elbridge S. Brooks, author of "The Century Book of the American Revolution," etc.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, Governor of New York and Colonel of the Rough Riders, promises to contribute a paper on "What Constitutes the Success of Boys."

IAN MACLAREN, JOHN BURROUGHS, and many other well-known writers will contribute.

NATURE AND SCIENCE FOR YOUNG FOLKS will soon be begun on a new the par-mount.

ST. NICHOLAS LEAGUE: Stories and Money Prizes for Boys and Girls Readers.

FUN AND FROLIC, both in rhyme, stories, pictures and puzzles, will be, as always, a delightful feature of ST. NICHOLAS.

Everything Illustrated.

A Free Sample Copy on Request.

November begins the new volume. Price $3.00. All dealers and agents take subscriptions, or remittance may be made direct to the publishers.

THE CENTURY CO.,
Union Square, New York.

CLEARING SALE OF PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of pf good second-hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7 Octave Square		$ 40
7¼ "		70
7¼ "	Upright	120
7¼ "		160
7¼ "	Hallet & Davis	190
7¼ "	"	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20 $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

Come and up, and I never time if you want it to get your Piano or Organ, all improvements, from $7 per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,
94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

1831 Seventieth Year. 1900
THE
Country Gentleman.

The ONLY Agricultural NEWSpaper,
AND ADMITTEDLY THE
Leading Agricultural Journal of the World.

Every department written by specialists, the highest authorities in their respective lines.

No other paper pretends to compete with it in qualities or in quantity of matter.

Gives the agricultural NEWS with a degree of full-ness and care, intended not even attempted by others.

Both Markets of the Crops.

Best Market Reports.

Best Accounts of Institutes, Best Everything

Indispensable To All Country Residents
WHO WISH TO
KEEP UP WITH THE TIMES.

Single Subscription, $2.
Two Subscriptions, $3 50;
Four Subscriptions, $6.

Special Inducements to Riders of Larger Clubs.

Write for particulars on this point

Club Agents Wanted Everywhere.

Four Months Trial Trip 50 cents

SPECIMEN COPIES

will be mailed free on request. It will pay anybody interested in any way in country life to send for them. Address the publishers,

LUTHER TUCKER & SON,
10 & 8 ALBANY, N. Y.

P. P. VanArsdale,
PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 160, or left at Willett's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 F. Front street, corner Elm street. 8jly3

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 122, Dunellen, N. J., or address Box 1, Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. R. CODINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law,

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public Offices Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

Children Teething

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa.

Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POST OFFICE.
NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7:00, 8:05, 11:00 a. m.; 2:30, 5:05, 7:30 p. m.
Close—7:30, 11:30 a. m.; 1:30, 4:00, 7:00, 7:45 p. m.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD MAIL.

Arrive—9:40 a. m.; 2:00 and 6:15 p. m.
Close—7:30 a. m.; 2:00 and 6:15 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA MAILS.

Arrive—7:00, 8:05, 11:00 a. m.; 2:30 and 5:05 p. m.
Close—7:30, 11:30 a. m.; 1:30, 4:00, 7:00 and 7:45 p. m.

Through mails are dispatched to the West and South, close 4:00 and 7:00 p. m.

WARRENSVILLE.

Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—8:30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m.
Mail closes at 6:30 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M.

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Anthracite Coal Used Exclusively, insuring cleanliness and Comfort.

Stations in New York, Foot of Liberty, and Christopher Streets, North River.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT NOV. 19th, 1899.

New York Plainfield Express, 2.10, 2.45, 3.45, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.00 night.

Newark 2.37, 3.37, 4.37, 6.37, 7.37, 8.37, 9.37, 10.37, 11.37 a. m., 12.37, 1.37, 2.37, 3.37, 4.37, 5.37, 6.37, 7.37, 8.37, 9.37, 10.37, 11.37 p. m., 12.37 night.

Elizabeth 2.47, 3.47, 4.47, 6.47, 7.47, 8.47, 9.47, 10.47, 11.47 a. m., 12.47, 1.47, 2.47, 3.47, 4.47, 5.47, 6.47, 7.47, 8.47, 9.47, 10.47, 11.47 p. m., 12.47 night.

Rahway 2.54, 3.54, 4.54, 6.54, 7.54, 8.54, 9.54, 10.54, 11.54 a. m., 12.54, 1.54, 2.54, 3.54, 4.54, 5.54, 6.54, 7.54, 8.54, 9.54, 10.54, 11.54 p. m., 12.54 night.

For Perth Amboy, 2.10, 2.45, 3.45, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.00 night.

For Monmouth Junction, 2.10, 3.45, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.00 night.

For Bound Brook, 2.10, 3.45, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.00 night.

For Somerville, 2.10, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.00 night.

For Flemington, 2.10, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.00 night.

For Lambertville, 2.10, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.00 night.

For Trenton, 2.10, 3.45, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.00 night.

For Philadelphia, 2.10, 3.45, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.00 night.

For Philadelphia, Chicago and all points West, 9.00 a. m., 2.00 p. m.

(Philadelphia passengers by trains marked † change cars at Bound Brook.)

Through tickets to all points at lowest rates may be obtained on application to agents at the stations.

J. H. OLHAUSEN,
General Passenger Agent.

H. P. BALDWIN,
General Manager.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect Nov 19, 1899.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N.J.

Trains given for Plainfield in leaving time of other trains. Call at Ticket Office, 229 West Front street, which makes connection with trains for all points.

Leave Plainfield 8.03 a. m.
Leave South Plainfield 8.08 a. m.

Daily except Sunday, Black Diamond Express for Manhattan, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

Leave Plainfield 8.03 p. m.
Leave South Plainfield 8.08 p. m.

Daily except Sunday, Black Diamond Express for Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

Leave Plainfield 8.03 p. m.
Leave South Plainfield 8.08 p. m.

Daily, Solid Vestibule train for Niagara Falls, Chicago and Principal intermediate stations.

Leave Plainfield 6.55 p. m.
Leave South Plainfield 7.00 p. m.

Daily, Vestibule Express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto.

Leave Plainfield 8.03 p. m.
Leave South Plainfield 8.08 p. m.

Daily, Night Express for Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Wilkesbarre, Geneva, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Chicago.

The steps will also meet Eastbound trains at 8.15, 8.45 and 9.15.

For time of local trains see pocket time-tables, Telephone No. 122-B.

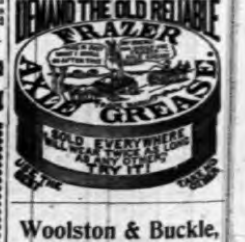
ROLLIN H. WILLIAMS,
General Superintendent.

CHAS. S. LEE,
General Passenger Agent.

26 Cortlandt St., New York.

FRANK BOWLEY, City Ticket Agent,
229 West Front St., Plainfield, N. J.

DEMAND THE OLD RELIABLE FRAZER AXLE GREASE



Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

The Best Substitute.

When prepared by the new process of cough and cold. For weak throats and lungs. For worse all attempts failure. Shows Emulsion is needed. Use and for those who cannot take cod liver oil in any form. It is worth the weight in gold.

For sale by all druggists. L. W. Randolph, Wholesale Agent.

THREE PLAINFIELD SHOP-LIFTERS CAUGHT.

Newark Detectives Arrest Three Well-Known Women.

STOLEN GOODS RECOVERED.

SEVERAL SILK WAISTS AND MANY PAIRS OF KID GLOVES.

Much of the Stolen Property Found at the Home of Annie M. Bowers, on East Front Street—Mrs. William Carroll and Jennie Ganson are Also Under Arrest for the Same Offense.

The arrest Monday in Newark, of Mrs. Annie M. Bowers, Mrs. Jennie Caroll and Jennie Ganson, of this city, charged with shoplifting, has brought to light a wholesale case of stealing that is astonishing.

For some weeks the large department stores of Newark have suffered from shop lifters. Detectives have been at work endeavoring to locate the perpetrators. A few days ago suspicion was directed to the above women who had been frequently noticed in the stores of Hahne, the Beehive, Goerckes and others. A careful watch by both the store detectives and Detective-Sergeant Carroll and Pursell of the Newark police force resulted in confirming the officers suspicions.

Monday at Newark the women were found in one of the large stores and placed under arrest.

When taken to police headquarters and searched nearly $100 worth of goods was found secreted about them.

Among the articles stolen were eighteen ladies' silk waists, several pairs of kid gloves and numerous toilet articles.

Chief Grant, of this city, was notified and Tuesday the Newark detectives came to Plainfield to look for other goods.

Accompanied by Chief Grant and Roundsman Flynn, the Newark detectives visited the home of Mrs. Bowers, at 169 East Front street. Here the officers made the discovery that there was several hundred dollars' worth of valuable goods, all of which had apparently been stolen, some of the articles still containing the ticket denoting the sale price. It is not known exactly how much has been stolen.

But when a newspaper reporter visited the house the officers were busy packing a large trunk and two or three wooden cases with the stolen goods preparatory to shipping them back to Newark.

The Bowers woman has been living with a man by the name of Tanner, who is employed at Ponda Tool Works. She claims to have been divorced from her first husband.

The Carroll woman is the wife of Wm. Carroll, a motorman employed by the Plainfield Street Railway Company. The Carrolls occupied the upper part of the house at 169 East Front street.

The Ganson woman is a friend of the Bowers family. It is understood that the women have been making frequent trips to Newark for several weeks. It was not until last week that they had been suspected of shoplifting.

A BELATED CALL.

The Blaze in Charles Denckla's House was All Out When Fire Department was Notified.

After it was all over the fire department was notified that there had been a fire at the home of Charles Denckla, 323 East Second street. Sunday morning. Assistant Chief Jennings went around to see that it was entirely extinguished. Mrs. Denckla started to carry an oil stove from one room to another, when the stove suddenly collapsed, and the burning oil was spread over the floor.

Mrs. Denckla had a narrow escape while the blaze spread across the floor. Members of the family soon had the fire under control and extinguished it after $30 worth of damage had been done to the house and furniture. The loss was covered by insurance.

A Quiet Marriage.

A quiet marriage was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Hand, of Netherwood, Saturday evening, when their daughter, Sarah, was united in marriage to Herbert Henry, of Bound Brook. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. M. Shoot, pastor of the Baptist church, of Scotch Plains. Only the immediate relatives were witnesses of the ceremony. After a short wedding trip the couple will take up their residence in Bound Brook.

—Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., will hold a regular communication next week Tuesday evening.

GRAIN-O! GRAIN-O!

Remember that name when you want a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it. Grain-O is made of pure grain and the most delicate stomach receives it without distress. It has a snappy, rich taste and the children as well as the adults can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee. 15c. and 25c. per package. Ask your grocer for Grain-O.

TOLD STORY OF SHOOTING

[CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.]

like a robber," demanded Mrs Fingerhuth, "What is your name." Theresa Clark gave her his card, and this card was identified by the prisoner.

After Bartie had waved a club he had in his hand, and Fingerhuth told his wife not to touch Clark if he went in the house, the party went away. Later in the day they appeared again with a warrant for Fingerhuth's arrest on the charge of trespass, preferred by Roehricht.

At this time Lawyer W. G. DeMeza was sent for, and it was arranged that Fingerhuth should appear before Justice Mattison, of North Plainfield, the next day, to answer to the charge preferred against him.

The next morning, Mrs. Fingerhuth testified, her husband asked her what she would do if the men should return and tried to k ll or murder her. Then Mrs. Fingerhuth suggested that a revolver be bought with which she could protect herself. That led to the son, Oscar, going to Plainfield and buying a revolver which her husband gave to her, at the same time saying:

"Here mamma, I leave this revolver with you. Only show it and they will run. If they force the door then defend yourself. Don't get attacked first, otherwise you are lost. Shoot if you are in danger."

Mrs. Fingerhuth then testified of the visit of Edward Clark to her house, which was the same as told by Clark—that she refused to let him in. Shortly after Lawyer Clark returned with Roehricht and several other men. Clark took off his coat first and picked up a heavy stick with which he battered down the middle front door. Mrs. Fingerhuth then told of the incidents of the killing in the following language:

"I said don't come in or I will shoot you. They did not stop and I pulled the trigger to the revolver, but it missed fire. Clark pointed his revolver at me. Then I thought I was lost. I didn't know where to run, and I stood there said, 'O God may help me.' I returned to the kitchen and stood by the window, holding the revolver in both hands. I was horrified to hear a report. I only came to myself when Mrs. Cheming run in the house and said, 'Roehricht is dead.'"

Mrs. Fingerhuth then broke down in violent sobs, and Judge Magie adjourned court for the noon hour.

SHOPLIFTING ON GIGANTIC SCALE.

[CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.]

strong that it seems almost a certainty that they will be indicted. Mr Tanner and Mrs. Carroll left last evening for Newark to see the women. This arrest is considered by the police to be one of the most important in recent years, and they believe that this will bring an end to much trouble hitherto experienced by a number of merchants.

S. B. Carson, manager of the Crosby & Hill department store, this morning swore out a warrant before Justice Nash for the arrest of Mrs. Jennie M. Bowers and Mrs. Jennie Correll, charging them with stealing on the 10th inst. property from that store valued at about $15. The warrants were given to Chief Grant who took them to Newark and they will be used in the event of a case against the accused failing through in that city, where they are held awaiting trial, charged with stealing from several of the larger department stores of that city.

THE COURTS.

JUSTICE MOFFETT.

Landlord and tenant — Bayliam against Burke; judgment for possession of premises.

The constable's sale of the plumbers' goods of Michael Armstrong has been adjourned to January 31, to give the parties who claim to own the property the right to establish the ownership.

JUSTICE MORRIS.

Summons—Geenna against Wilson, on contract, returnable Dec 27th.

A Mang r Service.

The annual "Manger Service" of the Sunday school of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, will be held in the parish house next Sunday at 9:45 a. m. The presents collected will be given as usual to the Children's Home.

Chancellor McGill Better.

Chancellor McGill is steadily improving, and expects to resume holding court next month. He expects to sit in Jersey City on January 2d and in Trenton on January 9th.

—Hepburn & Co. are making a new display in their windows. It will interest you and the children to see it, at Central Pharmacy.

—Mrs. L. Adams, of 114 East Front street, has a new lot of trimmed hats for Christmas at very low prices; also a pretty line of dolls' hats.

—The choir of the Church of the Holy Cross, under the direction of Organist Hoskins, is rehearsing special music for the annual Christmas services.

THEIR LAST RESPECTS.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE JOSIAH BROWNE HELD MONDAY.

Services in Charge of Rev. W. H. Rochester. Where Words Were Consoling to Mourners. Many Associates Were Present.

The home of the late Josiah Browne on Watchung avenue was filled Monday afternoon with relatives, friends and business associates who gathered to pay their last respects to one who held a prominent place in their hearts, and who was greatly admired by all for his many excellent qualities.

The services were in charge of Rev. Dr. W. H. Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, where the departed was an attendant, and after reading several appropriate selections from the Scriptures, he made a few remarks in which he dwelt upon the uncertainty of life. He referred in a touching manner to the bereaved ones, the wife and children and those near and dear to the one who had departed this life so suddenly. His words were full of comfort and consolation to all present.

During the services Charles L. Lewis, of the Crescent Avenue church quartette, sang two beautiful selections in an effective manner. They were "My Jesus as Thou Will," and "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." He was accompanied on the piano by Mrs Lewis.

The remains rested in a beautiful black cloth covered casket in the parlor, which was filled with the rarest flowers. The floral display comprised a number of large set pieces, which were sent from the American Tobacco Company, of which the deceased was official. Notable was a large arch of roses, fully six feet high, and there were several wreaths of galax leaves, and several other set pieces, including a large floral book made of lilies of the valley. There were also other pieces of small and greater size that combined to make a picture of rare beauty.

Following the service Dr. Richards pronounced the benediction, and then an opportunity was given to view the remains. Afterwards the interment took place at Hillside cemetery.

Among those who attended the services was a large delegation of officials and employes of the American Tobacco Company, with which the deceased had been associated as secretary. They included President J. B. Duke; first vice president J. B. Cobb; treasurer G. Arents; auditor W. M. Hicks; assistant auditor J. T. Fletcher; George Arents, Jr.; Thomas F. Jeffress, H. D. Cook, Baron Von Hempman, Carl Dietz, W. H. Irby, W. S. Manos, E. Whitlock, J. E. Avery G. B. Hutchins, E. T. Smith, N. Da Costa, Charles E. Brown, A. T. Stewart, Lucien Ostin, Ralph Oakley, Josiah T. White, John O'Keefe, W. H. Schroeder, Mr. Marsley, A. D. Bendheim, J. Fletcher, Jr., J. Peterson, D. O. Wright, W. H. Cammeyer, A. Kime, C. Dushkind, H. J. Stockham, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Lynch, Mr. Bein, W. W. Fuller and Mr. Chapin.

Those who served as pall bearers were J. B. Duke, J. B. Cobb, George Arents, W. W. Fuller, George A. Chapman and John T. Baker. Most of the business associates from the company accompanied the remains to the last resting place, after which they returned to New York by special car which brought them to this city.

Let me say I have used Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh and can thoroughly recommend it for what it claims. Very truly, (Rev.) H. W. Hathaway, Estabeth, N. J.

I used Ely's Cream Balm, and to all appearances am cured of catarrh. The terrible headaches from which I long suffered are gone.—W. J. Hitchcock late Maj. U. S. Vol. and A. A. Gen., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Sold by druggists at 50 cts. or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac. That wonder worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

—A watch-night service will be held at Monroe Avenue church New Year's Eve.

—The grill room at the Kensington Hotel is growing in favor and is well patronized.

—Sparklets—Just the thing for the college student—Wm. W. Moore, 310 Park avenue.

—The Plainfield physicians will hold their annual meeting and banquet early in January.

—The next regular meeting of the Borough Council will be held Friday evening, January 8th.

—As an evidence of the high esteem in which the late Josiah Browne was held there were persons at his funeral who came all the way from New Orleans and St. Louis for the purpose. These persons are connected with the American Tobacco Company.

STILL WITH THE PARKS.

WHIST TROPHY WON FOR THIRD STRAIGHT TIME BY LOCAL TEAM.

Elizabeth Clubs and Whist Club Tried To Take It From the Champions Monday Night, But Proved Unsuccessful.

The State challenge trophy of the New Jersey Whist Association still continues to find a resting place at the clubhouse of the Park Club. Monday night the four of the Elizabeth Clubs and Whist Club failed in an attempt to carry it away. This was the third consecutive victory for the Park Club.

The match was played at the Park Clubhouse last evening, the regular combination, Peter B. Mathews, A. A. Freeman, Albert Woltman and Ralph Willis representing the home club. The Elizabeth team was composed of Messrs. Haarbiecher, Roberts, Edson and Martinson.

At first it looked like an easy thing for the home team, but then the visitors took a big brace and nearly overcame the lead of the Parks. In the last round the Park four defeated the challengers roundly and won the match rather easily by a score of 20 to 13. As the Elizabeth team has the reputation of being one of the most formidable in the league, the Parks are quite confident that they have a good showing to win the trophy.

The score by rounds was as follows:

	Park Club.	Elizabeth.
First round	6	7
Second round	13	0
Third round	1	6
	20	13

The next match will be played in this city December 27th, when the challengers will be the Forest Hill Club.

AGAINST CURRENCY BILL

"FARMER ORATOR" MARTINE DECLARES IT A BAD POLICY.

Replying to Congressman Daly's Interview, He Can See No Good Reason for Democrats to Drop Money Question.

The interview of Congressman Daly, of Hudson county, to the effect that the currency question would be allowed to remain in the background by the Democrats in the presidential campaign next year, attracted considerable attention by reason Daly's prominence as a devoted follower of Col. Bryan. The Daly interview was called to the attention of James E. Martine, the "Farmer Orator," Monday, and the latter asked what he thought of the statement made by his friend Daly.

"Well," said Mr. Martine, "that is but a personal opinion of Mr. Daly's. For myself I can see no good reason for dropping the money fight. To my mind there is as much reason for bimetalism as ever. The gold standard does not seem to bring all its' advocates claimed for it, either here or in England. We read in dispatches from the other side that England is squeezed for gold, that the rate of discount in the Bank of England has been most unprecedentedly raised, and that gold may go to a premium, which would mean a general depression in prices.

"All this possible with that staple metal gold? How wrong that the whole commercial world should be at the mercy of the gold output of a little patch of territory, the Transvaal; and the United States to sit idle, as throws that Secretary Gage must come to the rescue to prevent a crisis and buy bonds—that are not yet due—bankers and money lenders profits increasing, while the masses fight to keep from bankruptcy. All this has come under gold monometalism."

"Then you do not believe that the pending Carreney bill will relieve the people?"

"No, it will enrich bond holders and give increased opportunity to banks to make money. In the interests of the people the bill should be defeated."

COLORED CHURCH TO UNITE.

Members Arrange for a Union Meeting to be Held January 4th.

At a recent conference of colored pastors of this city it was decided to celebrate the emancipation proclamation, and a resolution offered by Rev. E. E. Jackson, was to the effect that each church and pastor unite with the Mt. Olive Baptist church, Thursday, January 4th, in celebrating this event, and a union offering will be taken for the benefit of the hospital. Those present at the conference include Revs. E. E. Jackson, Scott Wallace, J. W. Cooper, J. W. Mitchell, of this city, and S. S. Rose, of Westfield. At the time mentioned music will be furnished by the Independent Singing Club, under the direction of Prof. Richard Randolph.

Dead After a Lingering Illness.

Mrs. Harvey Henderson, of Martinsville, died Saturday at the home of her son, George Gidden, 180 Duer street, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Henderson was about fifty years old. She came to this city to visit her son some time ago and was taken ill while there. Mr. and Mrs. Henderson formerly resided on Chatham street in the borough, but left there four months ago to make their home at Martinsville.

PRESENT COUNCIL COMING TO ITS END.

One More Meeting Before Its Adjourn Sine Die.

NO CHEAP GAS ACTION YET.

PEOPLE'S COMPANY WANTS ANOTHER CONFERENCE BEFORE REPORT.

The Bill of Assessor Charles H. Hand for $75 Extra Services Received an Adverse Report—Street Railway Company Files $50,000 Bond in Connection With The Arlington Avenue Franchise.

Messrs. Buckle and Hetfield were the only two members of the Common Council that did not attend the adjourned meeting last Monday but a quorum being present, the business of the evening, which was limited, was transacted in short order, as none of the members had any desire to tarry along. In the absence of City Clerk MacMurray, who is detained at home by illness, George B. Wean filled his place.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company notified the Council that the six new hydrants recently ordered, were located and in operation, and the Plainfield Street Railway Company filed a $10,000 bond in connection with securing the franchise to operate a street railway on Arlington avenue. It had been approved by the corporation counsel and on motion of Mr. VanHerwerden it was received and properly recorded.

The Council received official notification of the fact that the work of macadamizing West Third and Fourth streets is completed and a bond has been filed to keep the same in repair for a certain length of time. Mr. VanHerwerden offered a resolution giving the directors of the Public Library $400, which amount is the difference between what they wanted and what the Council could give them, and which is the balance of their appropriation. The directors agreed to accept this amount.

On Mr. Tolles' motion an electric light was ordered to be placed on New street, between Fourth and Fifth streets. Mr. Tolles also reported that he intended to make a report for the committee regarding the application of the People's Gas Company for a franchise, but at the request of the company the report was held as they desired another conference with the committee from the Council.

Mr. Mellick reported on the petition of Charles H. Hand for $75 for extra services as an assessor, and the committee on collection and assessment of axes reported adversely in the matter.

Mr. VanHerwerden offered a resolution which provided for advertising for bids for the $12,000 street improvement bonds. Only $8,000 of this amount is to be used for the street work that has been done on East Eighth street, Franklin place, East Ninth street, West Third and Fourth street. In connection with the above, Mr. VanHerwerden offered another resolution providing for the appointment of commissioners by the court to enter benefits for assessments to provide for the payment of the work of macadamizing the above named streets. December 30th is the time set in the resolution when such appointment is to be made.

Mr. Barrows offered a resolution which provided for the transferring of $119 07 from the street fund to the general fund, so that the accounts can be adjusted for the year. Mr. Barrows offered a resolution to the effect that when the Council adjourn it be to meet on Thursday evening, December 26, at 8 o'clock. Council then adjourned.

Educate Your Bowels With Cascarets.

Candy Cathartic, the ideal combination laxative and tonic. Cures or your money back. 10c, 25c, 50c, 1000 in a metal box. Sold and guaranteed to cure by druggists everywhere.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Sparklets—Carbonic acid gas is death to bacteria. No fear of typhoid. Wm. W. Moore, 310 Park avenue.

—J. E. Townsend will lead the union gospel service in the W. C. T. U. room Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

—We are receiving some very fine green smelts from Maine. They are the best. Place your order early. Rogers.

—The annual Christmas entertainment under the auspices of the Sunday-school of the Church of the Holy Cross will be held between Christmas and New Years.

—Are the spectacles you are wearing no longer satisfactory? If so, consult us. Examination free. Stiles & Co., at 107 East Fourth street. Every Thursday. Hours 10:30 to 4 p. m.

—Grapes, pears, apples, Florida and California oranges, nuts, Christmas candy, Japanese persimmons and in fact everything in the fruit line at Alex Lojardi, 211 West Front street.

—C. E. Gulick & Co., the Park grocers, have all the seasonable goods for the holidays and invite your inspection before you buy. They are building up a fine trade by good goods and low prices.

Dr. Humphreys' Specifics are directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

No.	CURE.	PRICE.
1—	Fevers, Congestion, Inflammation	.25
2—	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3—	Teething Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4—	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5—	Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic	.25
6—	Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7—	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8—	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9—	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10—	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11—	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12—	Whites, too Profuse Periods	.25
13—	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14—	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15—	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16—	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17—	Piles, External or Internal	.25
18—	Ophthalmia, Weak or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19—	Catarrh, Acute or Chronic, Cold in the Head	.25
20—	Whooping Cough	.25
21—	Asthma, Difficult Breathing	.25
22—	Ear Discharges, Deafness	.25
23—	Scrofula, Enlarged Glands, Tumors	.25
24—	General Debility, Weakness	.25
25—	Dropsy, Fluid Accumulations	.25
26—	Sea Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27—	Kidney Diseases	.25
28—	Nervous Debility	1.00
29—	Sore Mouth or Canker	.25
30—	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
31—	Painful Menstruation, Spasms	.25
32—	Sorrows of the Heart, Palpitation	1.00
33—	Salivary, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34—	Sore Throat, Quinsy, Diphtheria	.25
35—	Chronic Congestions, Headaches	.25
77—	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists, or sent free.

Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL "THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles, External, Internal or Bleeding, Recent or Chronic, Itching, Blind, Weeping or Painful. Relieves Pain at once. Soothing and Healing. Cures Fissures, Fistula, Ulcers, Sores and Wounds. Prevents Blood Poisoning. Allays Inflammation. Sold by Druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price.

PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.

Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

Cordova Wax Candles

Perfectly clear while in use and burn to the end. Made in all sizes and colors to suit the requirements of the trade. Manufactured under the supervision of the manufacturers, who guarantee them to be absolutely pure. Made in all colors and sizes. Sold by all dealers.

E. ANDRAE & SON, Sole Agents and manufacturers.

DIED.

SKELLENGER—In this city, Tuesday, Dec. 24, 1901, Ida, wife of the late Benjamin Skellenger.

MCINNES—In this city, Dec. 24, 1901, Christina, daughter of the late Alexander McInnes, aged 3 months, 6 days.

BROWNE—In this city, Dec. 23, 1901, Josiah Browne, in the 65th year of his age.

MUNSON—In this city, Friday, Dec. 27, 1901, Mary Ann, widow of the late Thomas Munson, aged 1 year, 4 months.

HENDERSON—In North Plainfield, December 23, 1901, Harvey Henderson, aged 52 years.

CORNELL—In North Plainfield, Dec. 23, 1901, after a lingering illness, Jennie Cornell, wife of Harvey Bonnell, aged 31 years.

BONNELL—In North Plainfield, at her late residence, 15 W shington avenue, Dec. 26th, 1901, Mrs. Sarah Ann Bonnell, widow of Abram Bonnell, aged 81 years.

AUSTIN—Died in New York, Sunday, December 22d, after a lingering illness, Joseph Austin, aged 71 years. Funeral at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hoag, of Crain place.

WANTS AND OFFERS.

FOR SALE or exchange for house and lot or small farm, a fine farm of 20 acres, well watered and fenced. Address Albert, care Daily Press. 12 21 f

Nasal CATARRH

In all its stages there should be cleansing, soothing, healing. Ely's Cream Balm does this. It is quickly absorbed. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. It is not drying—does not produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

News and Opinions OF National Importance.

The Sun ALONE CONTAINS BOTH.

Daily by mail $6 a year
Daily and Sunday, by mail $8 a year

The Sunday Sun

is the greatest Sunday newspaper in the world.

Price 5c a copy. By mail, $2 a yr

Address THE SUN, New York.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE.

Between Front and Second streets.

Tinners, Plumbers Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,

Brick and Portable Furnace Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing, Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Manger Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 113 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues.

First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 314.

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 101 West Front street, to store next door to Bond st. and next first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

A Free Trip to Paris!

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE

A COMPLETE NOVEL.

$3.00 PER YEAR. 25 CENTS A COPY.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

A new room ready for business. Also the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.

EDWIN D. MAYNARD.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale or Exchange Money to Loan on Approved Security.

WILL TRY TO RELEASE ULRICH FROM ASYLUM

Former Judge's Case Considered By Grand Pythian Officers.

THEY HAVE DECIDED TO ACT.

EFFORT MAY BE MADE TO GET HIM OUT BY HABEAS CORPUS.

If He is Pronounced in Court Than There Would be Opportunity to Produce Some of the Evidence Which is Alleged to Show Him to Be Sane—Pythian Officers Decline to Discuss the Case for Publication.

As had been arranged by the special committee of Perseverance lodge, Knights of Pythias, there was a conference held last Friday between that committee and the grand officers of the order in this city to consider the case of John Ulrich, a former member of the New Jersey Legislature and a prominent Republican politician of Union county, but now confined in the State Insane Asylum at Morris Plains. Ulrich is detained there for the reason that he is declared to be of unsound mind, but the Pythians who have been investigating his case allege that he is perfectly sane.

The conference was held in the Hotel Kensington, and was presided over by Grand Chancellor Somers Champion, of Atlantic Highlands. J. P. D. Kiren, a lawyer, of this city, who is chairman of the special committee investigating the subject for Perseverance lodge, presented a large amount of evidence which goes to show, it is alleged, that Ulrich is being subjected to a great injustice in being confined in a mad house against his will. Among the documents favorable to the case is said to be an affidavit from one of the physicians that signed the commitment sending Ulrich to the asylum, which states that he now believes him to be perfectly sane and deserving of his liberty.

The matter was discussed at great length by the Pythian conference and a plan of action to secure Ulrich his liberty decided upon, but just what it is remains a secret with the Pythians engaged in the project. It is understood, however, that it is the intention to make application to have Ulrich produced in court by habeas corpus proceedings, where it will be possible to secure a hearing for the mass of evidence which the Pythian claim to have to show that their brother is being detained illegally and in defiance of his rights as a citizen.

After the meeting of the officers they adjourned to the rooms of Perseverance Lodge, West Second street, where the district meeting was held, and where Samuel Robinson, of that lodge, was elected to the office of district deputy. At this meeting a slight reference was made to the case of Mr. Ulrich, but no names were mentioned. He was spoken of as one living, yet dead. No extended report was made on the case, but the committee from the lodge was continued after it made a report of progress.

There was an unusually large attendance of Knights at the meeting, thinking that a report on Mr. Ulrich would be submitted. Before the meeting adjourned degrees were conferred on several candidates.

LEFT CLOCK TO HIGHEST BIDDER.

Odd Provision in the Will of the Late Justus Morris, of Elizabeth.

The will of the late Justus Morris, who at one time owned nearly all the property on Broad street, Elizabeth, N. J., has been admitted to probate by Surrogate Parrot, of Union county. He left his farm and furniture to his widow, who is some fifty years his junior, and whom he married a few years ago.

An odd provision of the will is that an old family clock shall be sold to the legatee who bids the highest for it. Another provision is that a monument, not to exceed $300 in cost, shall be erected over his grave. The will directs that Rufus Morris and Justus Morris, Jr., two sons of the deceased, be appointed executors.

No Cause for Action.

The action of William Newcorn vs. James M. Derby to recover $72 alleged to be due plaintiff for rent of a house on East Second street, was tried before Justice Smalley and a jury yesterday afternoon at the Somerset hotel at North Plainfield. The defendant rented the house and lived in it for about three months and then moved out, claiming there was water in the cellar. The jury returned a verdict of no cause for action. William Newcorn for plaintiff, W. S. Angleman for defendant.

Still Missing.

Mrs. Angelo Pendretti, the Italian woman who disappeared from her home on Grove street a few days ago, has not been heard from, although every effort is being made to find her. The woman was, like her husband, a silk weaver, and worked at the local silk mill. There is no doubt in the husband's mind but what his wife's mind is affected, and he is afraid that she may do herself harm.

FAMOUS QUARRIES.

THOSE OF RED PIPESTONE WERE SUNG OF IN HIAWATHA.

No One But the Indians Are Allowed to Work It—Difficulties Encountered When the Government Tried to Buy the Reservation—How the Stone Was Named.

Less than a mile from the bustling little city of Pipestone, Minn., are three freaks of nature that will well repay a visit from the lovers of the curious and the beautiful. The first is a waterfall, or cataract, which when the stream that feeds it is swollen by melting snow and spring rains is a miniature Niagara, and a perfect beauty rivals many of the famed waterfalls of the East. The second is the famous Red Pipestone Quarry, the scene of the opening of Longfellow's immortal poem of "Hiawatha," and the third is a group of immense rocks—also spoken of in "Hiawatha" as the Three Maidens—that stand as a perfect landmark to guide the Indians to the only spot in the known world where the sacred pipestone could be found.

The waterfall, quarry and Three Maidens are all located on the Indian Reservation, which is one mile square, adjoining the corporation of Pipestone on the north. The reservation belongs to the Dacotas, or what is better known by its French name as the Sioux Nation, but it is claimed by the Yankton Sioux. Several years ago a determined effort was made by a committee of citizens of Pipestone to purchase it, as they did not want so large a part of their city lying in this tying idle, but the Indians would not part with it for love or money. The next best thing to do was to see if something could not be done to open it, even if it remained in the Indians' possession. An application was made to Congress, an appropriation of $30,000 was promptly made, a fund for Perseverance lodge, presented a large amount of evidence which goes to show, it is alleged, that Ulrich is being subjected to a great injustice in being confined in a mad house against his will. Among the documents favorable to the case is said to be an affidavit from one of the physicians that signed the commitment sending Ulrich to the asylum, which states that he now believes him to be perfectly sane and deserving of his liberty.

The matter was discussed at great length by the Pythian conference and a plan of action to secure Ulrich his liberty decided upon, but just what it is remains a secret with the Pythians engaged in the project. It is understood, however, that it is the intention to make application to have Ulrich produced in court by habeas corpus proceedings, where it will be possible to secure a hearing for the mass of evidence which the Pythians claim to have to show that their brother is being detained illegally and in defiance of his rights as a citizen.

After the meeting of the officers they adjourned to the rooms of Perseverance Lodge, West Second street, where the district meeting was held, and where Samuel Robinson, of that lodge, was elected to the office of district deputy. At this meeting a slight reference was made to the case of Mr. Ulrich, but no names were mentioned. He was spoken of as one living, yet dead. No extended report was made on the case, but the committee from the lodge was continued after it made a report of progress.

There was an unusually large attendance of Knights at the meeting, thinking that a report on Mr. Ulrich would be submitted. Before the meeting adjourned degrees were conferred on several candidates.

LEFT CLOCK TO HIGHEST BIDDER.

Odd Provision in the Will of the Late Justus Morris, of Elizabeth.

The will of the late Justus Morris, who at one time owned nearly all the property on Broad street, Elizabeth, N. J., has been admitted to probate by Surrogate Parrot, of Union county. He left his farm and furniture to his widow, who is some fifty years his junior, and whom he married a few years ago.

An odd provision of the will is that an old family clock shall be sold to the legatee who bids the highest for it. Another provision is that a monument, not to exceed $300 in cost, shall be erected over his grave. The will directs that Rufus Morris and Justus Morris, Jr., two sons of the deceased, be appointed executors.

No Cause for Action.

The action of William Newcorn vs. James M. Derby to recover $72 alleged to be due plaintiff for rent of a house on East Second street, was tried before Justice Smalley and a jury yesterday afternoon at the Somerset hotel at North Plainfield. The defendant rented the house and lived in it for about three months and then moved out, claiming there was water in the cellar. The jury returned a verdict of no cause for action. William Newcorn for plaintiff, W. S. Angleman for defendant.

Still Missing.

Mrs. Angelo Pendretti, the Italian woman who disappeared from her home on Grove street a few days ago, has not been heard from, although every effort is being made to find her. The woman was, like her husband, a silk weaver, and worked at the local silk mill. There is no doubt in the husband's mind but what his wife's mind is affected, and he is afraid that she may do herself harm.

Nothing Like Trying.

"Ha," exclaimed the jealous man, "Somebody has been pressing a kiss upon your brow!"

"No, no, no," protested the unhappy woman.

"Then you have been sitting too near the radiator!" he thundered, with an affectation of politeness. "For there is a hole burnt in your pompadour."

It is not easy to construct the story that shall be at once psychological and medievealistic, but as will be seen, the riffle can be made.—Detroit Journal.

An Odd Collection.

A French woman has collected for fifty years specimens of insects worn at different periods and in her chateau is a billiard room with glass cases in which are her treasures. Those who shudder at the idea of an eighteen-inch waist would be shocked at a corset of the Catherine de Medici reign with a waist of fifteen and one-half inches, and outside power of steel bars to prevent stretching. There are to be seen some leather stays worn by Charlotte Corday, and a pair of white satin ones, which once belonged to the Empress of Austria, with only a fifteen and one-half inch waist.

Cost of a Fatty Suit.

The folly of going to law is shown by a recent transaction in the Justice Court at Greenville, Tex. The constable levied upon 800 pounds of seed cotton, which when sold the next day under the attachment brought the sum of $12.34. When all costs were paid there was left $2.70, which, by the terms of the original instrument, went to the attorney, leaving the attaching party without a cent for the collection.

It Wasn't Like Hers.

Husband—What's that you are reading?

Wife—It's a letter from mother.

Husband—And what does she say?

Wife—Oh, not much—anything.

Husband—You are trying to deceive me. It's a cold day when your mother hasn't anything mean to say.—Chicago News.

Quick Work.

To test the skill of their workmen, the Compagnie Francaise des Chemins de Fer de l'Est, at their works in Epernay, recently caused a locomotive to be "mounted," or built up, piece by piece, as soon as possible. It was finished in fifty-six hours.

Life Worth Living.

In Carlsruhe, the capital of Baden, a law is in force fining any person who plays the piano with open windows.

BIBLE CONFERENCE COMES TO A CLOSE

Final Talk of Mr. Shelton Was Uplifting to Christians.

A SPECIAL SONG SERVICE.

DWELT ON THE NEED OF A SOLDIER'S HEART IN CHRISTIANS.

In Closing Mr. Shelton Dwelt on the Need of Using the Divine Word Intelligently and Earnestly—After The Regular Conference Mr. Shelton Gave a Personal Talk To Many Who Remained.

The Bible conference that was held every night last week came to a close Friday in the First Presbyterian church, where the meetings have been held for two nights. One encouraging feature of the conference was the steadily increasing attendance every night. Each audience has been a representative one. The attendance last evening was the largest of the week and there was a deep and profound interest. Another feature has been the general attendance of the pastors of the city.

The closing session of the conference was marked by the attendance of Harper G. Smyth, the noted evangelistic singer, who was led to adopt his profession by Dan G. Shelton, when the latter was secretary of the East Side Branch of the Y. M. C. A., in New York. Mr. Smyth sang several solos effectively and the singing deeply impressed the audience. He was accompanied by Clifford Braider on the organ. The song service was in charge of L. H. Biglow, Jr., and there was a large chorus choir. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. W. Richardson, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, after which Chairman Travell of the executive committee, made a short address reviewing the past week and the purpose for which the conference was held, and stating that the work would probably be carried on in the various churches.

Previous to the study of the evening Mr. Shelton took occasion to thank those who had attended the meetings, the pastors for their assistance and the press for the reports given.

Before beginning the study of the evening Mr. Shelton urged those who had come under the influence of his teaching to devote themselves to a personal, every-day consecutive reading of the Scripture. He hoped all would resolve to attend a Bible class regularly. The greatest kindness ever done to himself was in the shape of an invitation to become a member of such a class. And he trusted that some would prayerfully consider whether they call of the Master to become teachers of the world did not reach them. No calling, he thought, was higher. He also earnestly suggested to his hearers that they continue to study the Epistle to the Ephesians; that they seek to master its contents; and that they set aside a certain time each week for this definite study.

Coming to the lesson of the evening, Ephesians 6:10 17, which he described as one of the great lessons of the book, not only to the church to which it was first addressed, but to the Christian church of today, he noted first that the exhortation to be strong rang out as God's will for us. We need a soldier's heart. Perhaps the fact that this letter was written while Paul was in the prison at Rome, surrounded by the Roman soldiery, who were his guards, may have suggested to him this military imagery of the whole Christian life. Said that "a battle is on," the Christian soldier therefore must have supernatural strength, the strength which Christ alone can give. Christ can and will strengthen for every duty, every conflict, every crisis. Christ dwelling in the heart by faith—that is the secret of victory.

"As the water spider takes with him a diving bell of pure water when he goes down into the mud, so we, as we go out into the evil influences of the world, may take Christ with us, and He that is in us will be greater than he which is in the world." I John, 4:4.

In considering the different parts of the armor, he saith that the girdle of truth, which controls the flying oriental garment, gave strength and freedom of action, and therefore confidence. The breastplate of righteousness, a righteousness not our own, the feet shod with the preparation of the Gospel of peace; our lives being guided and strengthened by the Gospel; the helmet of salvation, with the shield over all, and the sword for offensive fighting, all these, he noted, prepared the Christian soldier for everything but retreat.

Referring to the passage, "Take the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked," Mr. Shelton said, in substance: "It is through faith that power comes to the believer to resist and overcome the attacks of Satan. 'Above all, take the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked.' (Eph. 6:16). The shield evidently referred to was large and oblong, four feet in length by two and one-half feet in breadth like an oval door in appearance and when the combatant was behind it his safety was assured. Faith, to the Christian, is a protection against all the missiles of the enemy. Victory over every outpost of Satan is assured if we but have faith in Christ. He is willing to save us, for He would not have any to perish: 'He is able to save us, for all power has been given unto Him in heaven and on earth.

"Let us hold the shield of faith firmly, that no dart of Satan shall pierce our souls, for promise is that by faith we shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked one. No matter how severe and numerous our temptations may be, we can resist them through faith. The symbol here used suggests the fierceness of Satan's attacks.

"Not only does he attack us from without, but from him come our evil thoughts." It was the devil who put it into the heart of Judas to betray Christ. (John 13:2.) He tempts us to disbelieve the word of God; to neglect prayer; to think bad thoughts to deny Christ, when in the company of the ungodly; to desecrate the Lord's Day; our time and talents, and to commit secret sins. But these, and all other temptations, we may overcome, if we resist him steadfastly in the faith. (Ret. 5:9.) For whosoever is born of God overcometh the world; and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith. (John 5:4.) Whatever or severe the attacks of the devil may be, they can be resisted, if we but trust in the power of Jesus to save.

The soul that on Jesus leans for repose,
He will never, no never, desert to His foes;
That soul though all hell should endeavor to shake,
He will never, no never, forsake.

"We must believe that Christ can and will enable us to overcome every form of temptation."

In closing Mr. Shelton dwelt upon the importance of using the Word of God intelligently and earnestly in Christian work. He said that those who use the divine Word will be used by the Holy Spirit in building up the kingdom of Christ. He referred to the reasons given by a noted Bible student as to why the Word of God is the Sword of the Spirit: "(1) Because it is of His own making. (2) Because He puts the edge upon it. (3) Because He alone can instruct in the use of it. (4) And chiefly because He is the great Master in the use of it." Mr. Shelton appealed to his hearers to take this Sword and never put it down, "for the time will come," said he, "when you will wish it for use. Restore it, study it, believe it, use it, and bring life and work up to its standard."

The following is a brief outline of the entire lesson: I. General directions for the conflict of life; vss. 10-13. II. The Christian's complete armor described; vss. 14 17. (1) Have our loins girt about with; vs. 14. (2) Have on the breastplate of righteousness; vs. 14 (3) Have your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; vs. 15. (4) Take the helmet of salvation; vs. 17. (5) Take the sword of the spirit, the word of God; vs. 17."

After the conference many remained in response to an invitation and for fifteen minutes Mr. Shelton gave a personal talk containing good advice and points for continuing the study of the Bible. Before the conference was concluded a large number met Mr. Shelton and personally thanked him for his work of the week.

TROLLEY TO LORRAINE.

Senator Kean Will Build the Line in Two Weeks After Permission is Granted.

Secretary John W. Whelan, of the Elizabeth Street Railway Company, informed a reporter that the company would construct its road to Lorraine within two weeks after receiving permission from the Board of Chosen Freeholders to do so.

Property owners along Westfield avenue are so anxious to have the road built that they have donated land on the north side of the avenue for the purpose.

It is likely that a special meeting of the Board of Freeholders will be called at an early day to secure consent to construct the road from Elmora to Bender's Hotel.

ANOTHER "COMING OUT."

Miss Lydia Ackerman to Make Her Debut in Society Sometime Next Month.

The debut of Miss Fanny G. Cox and Miss Louise G. Fisk this month was undoubtedly one of the events of the season for Plainfield society. It was also the most elaborate "coming out" that has been given in honor of any Plainfield young women. It will be rivaled in elaborateness and magnificence by a similar social function next month when Miss Lydia Ackerman, daughter of Mrs. J. Hervey Ackerman, of West Seventh street, will be formally introduced into Plainfield society with a series of receptions, dances and teas that will give the local society folk something to look forward to with much interest and expectancy.

Mrs. A. M. Higgins and family, of Liberty street, have returned from a visit with Hunterdon county friends and relatives.

MAY MEAN A BIG FIGHT.

FERRY TERMINAL AT ELIZABETHPORT MAY BE MOVED.

It is in the City of Elizabeth Will Probably Try to Gain Control of the Rights Used by the Central Railroad.

Reports have been current in Elizabeth for the past few days that the Elizabethport and Staten Island Ferry Company would move their ferry terminal at Elizabethport from the foot of East Jersey street, where it now is, four blocks further south to the foot of Elizabeth avenue, and that the North Jersey Traction Company would apply to the City Council for permission to extend its line down Elizabeth avenue a block and a half from First street to the ferry entrance. This move would be a bad one for Senator Kean's new trolley line, which runs now from Elmora through Elizabeth and directly to the ferry entrance on East Jersey street.

It is doubtful, however, that the scheme, if contemplated, can be carried through successfully, as it would have to overcome the opposition of Senator Kean, whose power and influence with the Elizabeth City Council has been demonstrated more than once. Besides this, the dock at the foot of Elizabeth avenue is held by the Jersey Central Railroad, which for four years has retained its grip upon this valuable piece of water front, despite several efforts on the part of the city of Elizabeth to dislodge the railroad company and secure the ground for a public dock.

There have been long litigations between the city and the railroad company over this question, which as yet remains undecided. The city grew weary of fighting the matter, and for several years it has remained in abeyance.

Any attempt, however, on the part of the Central Company to give the use of the land for ferry purposes to the Staten Island Ferry Company would be certain to reopen the contest, in which event the city would have the strong backing of Senator Kean. It is said, to thwart any deal between the ferry company and the railroad corporation. This land at the foot of Elizabeth avenue was the location of a ferry to New York in olden times, and the avenue was then known as the King's highway, the latter extending from the ferry through Elizabeth and Rahway, and so on through New Brunswick and Trenton until it came to Philadelphia.

TRANSFERS AND TROUBLE.

Raritan and Somerville Citizens Claim That Brunswick Traction Company is Acting Unfair.

The citizens of Raritan, who patronize the trolley, are having considerable trouble. The conductors have been instructed to refuse tickets for passage between that place and Somerville, unless accompanied by the coupons for Finderne and Bound Brook. This is considered very unfair, since, they say, the coupons for the latter places are punched, which renders them invalid if the travelers leave the cars at Somerville.

A few days ago A. H. Conyne, of Raritan, offered Conductor Devereaux a ticket for Somerville, which was detached from the coupons. The conductor refused to take it, and Mr. Conyne would not pay, claiming he had purchased the ticket that day and had not been informed when he bought it of the new ruling. The conductor then attempted to put him off the car, but couldn't. Motorman Miller was called to assist and the two succeeded in dislodging Mr. Conyne only after several windows and a handle on the door had been broken.

Ex-Sheriff Ditts had an experience with another conductor and was allowed to make the trip without the ticket or money.

NEW STEP IN BOROUGH PLANS.

Dissatisfied Spring Brook Property Owners Pay Taxes Under Protest.

John Collins, one of the principal property owners in the "South Neighborhood" section of Springfield township, who has taken a leading part in the proposed borough movement, paid his sidewalk and lighting taxes under protest.

Mr. Collins said that the "South Neighborhood" property owners had instructed their counsel to sue the township to recover money paid in flag sidewalk taxes. Action, he stated, would be brought on the ground that taxpayers-at-large could not be legally assessed for sidewalks, which could should be paid for by abutting property owners.

Pleasant Surprise Party.

Thursday a very pleasant surprise party was given to Mrs. John Pool, of LaGrande avenue. It was arranged by her husband, and a few relatives and intimate friends gathered to pass an evening of sociability and games. During the evening a repast was enjoyed, after which the guests departed leaving their best wishes with the hostess and her husband.

—Mrs. L. J. Denton, the florist, has secured the work of decorating the Crescent Avenue church for the holidays, and something specially fine is anticipated.

NO ENGLISH LAW.

AN IOWA JUDGE WHO WOULD HAVE NONE OF IT IN HIS COURT.

Law Made in the United States Was Good Enough for Him—Story Heard at the World "Barrister"—What Jim Bunting Said of Chitty.

While sitting at a hotel table in a small city of southern Iowa, a short time ago I got into a conversation with a well-known lawyer, and remarked that the death of Sir Joseph Chitty had removed the one prominent lawyer who would have been anything like a match for anyone in the art of chaff and word fencing. The General seemed surprised that a lawyer named Chitty had been alive within the present year.

"Why, bless my soul," he said, "nearly half a century ago when I began to study law, I used to tear my hair over one Chitty, whose book on pleadings was the hardest nails one ever chewed; another book written by a man of the same name on contracts.

I told him that for five or six generations there had always been some man named Chitty in the front rank of the legal profession.

After a few other reminiscences the Iowa lawyer turned to me and said:

"Let me tell you a story I remember about Chitty, and I have never been in England. Like most young men of my time in Iowa—about the middle of the century—I was fond of the profession, and when I got it the difficulty was to make anything out of it. I hung out my shingle, and for many a weary month swung it reading and swinging in the breeze.

"Suddenly came the call to action. A neighboring farmer bought a horse that some one defended to him was not that such animals are capable of possessing. The farmer came to me as a client and told me he wanted to get his money back. I took the case of the horse. I went into the facts with him, and from what he told me I felt able to advise him that the seller had given him a case for damages and rescission. This was enough. He told me to proceed with the case.

"The trial was to take place before a Justice of the Peace in an adjacent township. So on the day appointed I borrowed a horse, put on a black coat and a plug hat, and with a copy of Chitty—the only law book I possessed—ed bearing on the case however remotely—in my saddle-bag, I went on my way. In those days we took our law books with us when we went, and law books were scarce. After my statement of the facts I produced my Chitty and read out the great book. Then I had to say on the subject of a verbal guarantee.

"And then, while working up to my 'peroration,' I closed the book and laid it on the table. The Justice of the peace—who, by the way, was a local roustabout that had never been admitted to the bar—took the book and opened it at the title page. He read it carefully, his bleary eyes following slowly his dirty thumb. He looked up at me with a look of the most extraordinary way for a lawyer to defend his cause in your court. I hold in my hand the authority from which so much has been read to you. I ask you to hand something about this wonderful authority law. Here it is, right on the first page. This is the book, with the full text of the enactments and decisions of the law it pretends to expound, who written, it seems, by a man named Joseph Chitty, Esq., barrister-at-law, of Lincoln's Inn, London, England. Your honor never heard of Joseph Chitty, Esq., no more's I did. I bet, No man in this county ever heard tell of him. Nobody in this township knows who he is or was. Barrister-at-law!

"What's that? Is the name of all that's holy! We've heard of attorney, and solicitor, counsel, advocate, judge, jury and prisoner at the bar but who ever heard of a barrister-at-law before? The only fair presumption, yer Honor, is that 'tis some shallyway that was brought up to the bar to have a drink at—the nearest bar—that 'tis all such fellows in England barristers! An' ye see such presumption must be right, because the writer—who, for all we know, may be a tramp, or worse, a plagueriist—lives in an inn, a common, low dive of a place, a tavern, a third-rate hotel, as yer Honor knows such places are called in England.

"Yer Honor, are we here in Iowa to take our law from some travelin' circus man that was brought up to the bar? Are we to live in one of these dens of infamy, that the Britishers call an inn? Yer Honor, I want to ask the Court if the law made here in the United States of America is not good enough for us? When we have to decide on the merits of a horse, owned by a free-born citizen of the State of Iowa, must we go for instructions to one of them bloody, brutal Britishers that we kicked out of this country so many years ago? Yer Honor will, of course, dismiss this case, an' send my friend with the plug hat back to his home with a few in his ear, an' broken-backed Chitty. The Court in with Jim Bunting to keep him company.

"This was said with a fury that roused the angry passions of the Court to such a pitch that he fined me, and said, the Judge: 'we don't want no British law from the dwellers in London terms in this Court. You're right, Jim Bunting. The Court is with you.'

"Leaving the room, I had a talk with my client, and told him that of course we would take an appeal. 'Young man,' the Judge said, 'you needn't. Jim Burton says! Was that d—d book of yours writ by an Englishman?' I said, 'Chitty.' 'Then it was the greatest living authority on the law of contracts.

"He looked at me viciously as he chawed his tobacco and said with indignation: 'You're a fool, young man, take your hat, go home. Have no more to do with my business. I'll get some fellow in future that knows the law of this Congressional Deestrict. You an' your British law be blanked!'

"So you see Jim Burton knocked out the Englishman. That experience with Chitty ruined my practice for a long time, and it took many a year to set over it."—Chicago Post.

JOSIAH BROWNE DIED SATURDAY.

Prominent Plainfielder a Victim of Typhoid Fever.

WAS ON WAY TO RECOVERY.

ONE OF THE LEADING MEMBERS OF THE HILLSIDE CLUB.

Born and Brought Up in New York City, and Spent Most of His Life There—A Mercantile Career—Has Been Secretary of American Tobacco Co. For Years—Always Been a Republican.

Quiet and unostentatious in all his ways, there were few men in Plainfield who attained such general popularity as Josiah Browne, of 1126 Watchung avenue. The news of his death early Saturday was a general shock to the whole community. He was just recovering from a severe attack of typhoid fever and, when there seemed no doubt of his recovery, death came very quickly.

Mr. Browne was born in New York city, April 6, 1851. He received his education in the schools of that city, and spent most of his life there, although he accompanied his family when they moved away on account of his father's health. He also resided in Gloversville, New York State. He began a mercantile career as a young man and finally became associated with the American Tobacco Company as secretary some six years ago. He moved to Plainfield nine years ago and resided in the large house on Watchung avenue, corner Webster place, where he continued to reside up to the time of his death.

He was prominently identified with the old Hillside Tennis Club, and was one of its first directors and treasurers. He was very active in the interests of the club. When the club was changed to the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club and became located in its new quarters, he continued in the office of treasurer and was one of its strongest supporters. He took up the game of golf and became quite enthusiastic over the sport. Last year he was elected secretary. The great success of the club is due in some measure to his energetic efforts in its behalf.

Aside from the Hillside Club, he was also active part in any local organization. He was a staunch Republican in his home and was a kind loving father. He had a host of friends wherever he went. There was a genial fashion about his personality that made him universally popular. He was indentified with the Republican party in this city and was frequently chosen as a delegate to city and county conventions. He refused, however, to allow his name to be used for any nomination. He was a regular attendant at the Crescent Avenue church.

He leaves a widow, two sons and three daughters. His mother is still living, as are also one brother and two sisters, all residing in central New York.

Mr. Browne was taken ill a few weeks ago after his return from a dinner with a friend on Staten Island. The friend was taken ill and died shortly after. Mr. Brown was attacked with great intensity. He passed through the fever without complications and his temperature had become normal with the promise of an early recovery. Saturday when his heart, always weak in his best health, began to fail and soon brought on the end.

The funeral services will be held from his late residence, Monday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock.

A Weak Little Fellow.

One of the brightest little fellows to be found in this part of the country is Edson Woodbull, son of F. T. Woodbull, of Washington Park. He is a great reader of the newspaper, although young in years, and is especially fond of reading The Daily Press. One point upon which he dwells is the forecast of the weather, and he seeks this information every afternoon as soon as the paper is delivered so that he can inform his father upon his arrival home from the place of business. Many other things interest the little fellow and he is very studious.

Trying to Save Sight of Eye.

Thomas Muir, the night telephone operator at the local office, is confined to his home by eye trouble, and every effort is being made to save the sight of the one eye which does not appear to be greatly affected. His physician, Dr. Ard, is treating the eye, and hopes to be able to bring him around all right, but deems it wise that he should not use his eye for the present. His place at the telephone office is being filled by Charles McCann, as assistant.

Has a Horseless Carriage.

W. H. Schoonmaker, of Central avenue, is the first Plainfielder to own a horseless carriage. He made his first appearance with it on Thursday and it attracted considerable attention.

Raymond Longer, of the borough has returned from a visit with relatives at Watchtower.

WESTFIELD WINS TWO OUT OF THREE.

More Games Rolled In Daily Press Bowling League.

AT THE CRANFORD CASINO.

SHARP WON THE SECOND GAME FOR THE HOME TEAM.

Made Four Consecutive Strikes and Was Held Wm Weak on Wind Up—First Game Was Easy Thing for Visitors—Would Be Won Third Game by a Phenominal First Frame—Cranford Team Held Her Own.

The first games in the Daily Press Bowling League to be rolled on the alleys of the Cranford Casino, furnished lively contests last Thursday. The visiting team was from the Westfield Club and the Westfielders managed to win two out of the three games by steady bowling. Quite a delegation accompanied the visiting team while there were a number of the Cranford folk present at the games.

Westfield went into the first game with the intention of winning. The opening was strong, the visitors leading by one pin in the first frame. That lead was increased until it reached 90 in the sixth. Then Cranford braced but too late. Westfield's lead was slightly reduced but the game was easily won by 69 pins.

The second game was decidedly exciting. Cranford opened strongly and lead by five pins on the first. They held the lead for another frame and then Westfield started a lively pace. After Westfield obtained the lead in the third frame, the bowling on both sides grew wild and breaks were frequent. When there were not breaks, a multitude of splits were evenly divided between the teams. Hillier was in particularly hard luck. He had a split in the last four frames.

Sharp saved the day for Cranford. He made a strike in the sixth and kept it up in the seventh, eighth and ninth, with a spare on the windup. Westfield's lead, which ran up to 47 in the fifth, dropped down to four in the seventh and then Cranford stepped ahead. On the windup, Westfield drew two splits and Chauncey Smith only rolled six in all. Cranford won by 21 pins.

It was the first frame in the last game that carried victory into the Westfield camp. It was a clean frame and netted 106, 44 better than Cranford. Cranford put up a game fight and refused to be left behind any more despite the visitor's best effort. Dumont was way off in his form, but Barry and Bates were rolling well.

In the fifth Chauncey Smith won the hearts of the audience by a pretty shot that changed a bad split into a spare. Hillier had another just like it in the eighth and was equally successful. Westfield's lead varied from 36 to 47 all through the game. In the last three frames Cranford braced, but a double by Captain Smith saved the day for Westfield and they won by 47 pins.

The Daily Press trophy was placed on exhibition in the clubhouse and was greatly admired. The individual scores follow:

WESTFIELD CLUB.

	1st game.	2d game.	3d game.
Fowler	169	186	156
Quaile	162	161	169
W. E. Smith	190	139	157
W. Chauncey	149	153	174
C. D. Smith	156	134	163
	824	794	801

CRANFORD CASINO.

	1st game.	2d game.	3d game.
Dumont	136	174	118
Hillier	180	117	149
Barry	167	137	166
Bates	143	186	149
Sharp	141	200	174
	785	776	756

Funeral of Aged Lady.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Isabella Skellenger were held Friday afternoon from the residence 317 West Fourth street, and were conducted by Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, where the deceased was a member and an attendant, and he spoke words of praise concerning her life. There was a large attendance at the funeral. Interment took place this afternoon in Greenwood cemetery.

Ready for the Rush.

Owing to the heavy rush on at the U. S. Express Company's office, Manager E. W. Mills, has been granted a request for two extra horses and two extra wagons to meet the demands during the holidays. The horses and wagons have arrived, and this week Mr. Mills will employ two or more extra men to assist in the rush. He is determined to give Plainfield the best possible service and his efforts will be appreciated.

Has Left the Hospital.

Patrick Hanrihan, the employe of the Crescent Embossing Works, who had his arm taken off some time ago while at work, was discharged from the hospital Thursday where he has been for treatment.

To Build An $8,000 House.

Mrs. D. W. Rood, of Watchung avenue, has decided to erect an $8,000 residence in Woodland Park, and work will be started in a short time.

A CURIOUS CUSTOM.

PUNISHMENT OF ANIMALS THAT WAS FORMERLY IN VOGUE IN EUROPE.

They Were Sometimes Put to the Rack in Order to Extort Confession—In Other Instances They Were Buried Alive—Fire Hanged or Burned for Murder.

Beasts were often condemned to be tortured alive, and, strangely enough, it was in the latter half of the seventeenth century, an age of comparative enlightenment, that this cruel penalty was most frequently inflicted. Occasionally a merciful judge adhered to the letter of the law by sentencing the culprit to be slightly singed, and then to be strangled before being burned. Sometimes they were condemned to be buried alive. Such was the fate suffered by two pigs in 1456, "on the vigil of the holy virgin," at Oppenheim-on-the-Rhine, for killing a child. Animals were even put to the rack in order to extort confession. It is not to be supposed that the torture had the slightest expectation that any confession would be made; he wished simply to observe all forms prescribed by law, and to set in motion the whole machinery of justice before pronouncing judgment. "The question," which in such cases would seem to be only a wanton and superfluous act of cruelty, was nevertheless an important element in determining the final decision, since the death sentence would be commuted if the punishment provided the criminal had not confessed under torture. The use of the rack was therefore a means of escape from capital punishment. Appeals sometimes made to higher tribunals, and the judments of the lower courts annulled or modified. In one instance a sow and her six pigs were sentenced to be hanged; on appeal and after a new trial they were sentenced to be simply knocked on the head. In another instance an appeal led to the acquittal of the accused.

In 1260, at Fontenay-aux-Roses, near Paris, a pig, convicted of having eaten a child, was publicly burned by order of the monks of Saint-Genevieve. In 1386 the tribunal of Falaise sentenced a sow to be mangled and maimed in the head and hands, as had been done, for having torn the face and arm of a child and caused its death. Here we have a strict application of the lex talionis. "The sow was dressed in man's clothes and executed in the public square, near the city hall, at the expense to the state of ten sous and ten deniers, besides a pair of gloves to the hangman.

The executioner was provided with new gloves in order that he might secure from the effects of his duty with clean hands, thus indicating that as a minister of justice he incurred no guilt in shedding blood. He was not the common hangman, but a public functionary, a "master of high works" (maitre des hautes oeuvres) as he was officially styled. In 1394 a sow was convicted of having killed and murdered a child in the parish of Roumaygne, in the county of Mortaing, for which deed said pig was condemned to be clothed and hanged by Jehan Pettit, lieutenant of the bailiff."

There is also extant an order issued by the magistracy of Gisors in 1405, commanding payment to be made to the carpenter who had erected the scaffold on which an ox had been executed "for its demerits."

On the 9th of June, 1576, at Schwein-furt, in Franconia, a sow which had bitten off the ear and torn the hand of a child was given in custody to the hangman, who, without further authority, took it to the gallows green and there "hanged it publicly, to the disgrace and detriment of the city."

On the 17th of July, 1457, a sow was convicted of murder, committed on the person of an infant name Jehan Martin of Savigny, and sentenced to be hanged. Her six sucklings were also included in the indictment as accomplices, "but in default of positive proof that they had assisted in mangling the deceased, they were restored to their owner, on condition that he should give bail for their appearance should further evidence be forthcoming to prove their complicity in their mother's crime."

The Knowing Shark.

A painful moment on board ship at sea is that at the burial of a mortal, who has died on the voyage, has to be laid away in the bosom of the deep with the simple ceremonies of an ocean burial.

A vessel carrying a dead body and passing through waters frequented by sharks is almost sure to be followed by one or more of these fishes if it does not out-speed them.

Rather than bury a corpse while sharks are following the vessel the captain will sometimes have a body placed in the ice chamber and full steam put on the engines until the hungry fishes have dropped astern completely.

In one case at least a body was actually cremated on board by the captain's orders because of the sharks. But sharks are not often obstacles to prompt burial, and, generally speaking, when death occurs at sea the body is slipped into the water at night with some of the ship's company, usually a couple of the crew and the captain, who reads an abridgment of the service from the Prayer Book.

The Oldest Clocks.

The oldest clocks of American manufacture were made by Gideon Roberts, of Bristol, Conn., according to the best authorities, no clocks were manufactured in what are now the United States prior to 1800, at which time Mr. Roberts began to put upon the market his clocks were made with the greatest care, and much time was spent in perfecting them. They were all of the style commonly known as "hall" clocks, about six feet in height, handsomely finished and a recognized separate piece of furniture in which the owner always took great pride.

A Real Monster.

A novel sort of window glass has been invented. Persons on the inside of the house can see through it, but it is opaque to those on the outside.

Not a Rollover Will.

The Kurds and Cossacks believe that Mount Ararat is guarded by an unearthly being, and that no man can ascend the peak and live.

MR SHELTON ON THE STANDARDS OF DUTY.

Terrible Evil of Willful Rejection of Counsel of God.

NEED OF GOOD TEACHERS.

UNDERSTANDING OF MAN HAS BEEN DARKENED BY SATAN.

A Large Audience Attended the Bible Conference in the First Presbyterian Church Thursday Night—First Meeting Tonight Will Be Very Interesting—J. Wilbur Chapman is to Sing.

There was a marked increase in the attendance at the Bible conference continued last evening in the First Presbyterian church under the direction of Don O. Shelton, and the large edifice was filled with interested Bible students, and had the meetings been continued in the Y. M. C. A. Hall that place could not have held all who wished to attend.

The singing by the chorus choir was in charge of Horace J. Martin, and the devotional exercises were conducted by L. W. Randolph. This included a number of prayers by various ones in the audience, after which Mr. Shelton took charge.

In his introductory address Mr. Shelton called attention to a plan of Bible study once almost universal, but now almost fallen into disuse, namely that of studying by the marginal references, in the best editions of the Bible, had been carefully prepared by Bible students, and often contain real and thorough instruction.

His theme for the evening was the "Standards of Duty" as indicated in Ephesians. He noted the previous life of the Gentiles to whom the epistle was addressed, and showed how lofty was the ideals held before them and the very outset of their Christian lifestandards not reached even now by the advanced Christianity of today. They come from the very moment of their conversation under the sway of new principles. He noted, too, that it was said that there were those whose hearts were blinded, and their understanding darkened by willful ignorance of God. We should pray for enlightened understanding. We need teachers and he considered that wise, prayful and scriptual instructors are the great need of the hour.

He noted the terrible an evil is the willful rejection of the counsel of God. As a result of alienation from the truth by choice, there comes a state where we are past feeling, given over to delusion. Where pain exists we are eager for a remedy, but when no pain is felt, the disease does its deadly work unchecked. He said that sin, like prussic acid, is deadly. A certain gardener had always been noted for his beautiful gardens, free from weeds. Some one asked him why it was that he did not let a little crop of any secret, especially. All he knew was that he didn't encourage weeds when they were young. Mr. Shelton spoke of the awfulness of sin and showed that it is the mission of the Bible teacher and the Christian worker to open the eyes of unbelievers and turn them from darkness to light. He said that this is to be accomplished by bringing the unsaved within the orbit of the world's great light—Jesus Christ. "The sublimest privilege of life", said he, "is the leading of a soul to the Son of God."

"The understanding of men has been darkened by Satan. He has blinded the eyes of them that believe not, 'lest the light of the glorious Gospel of Jesus Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them.' (2 Cor. 4:4) He goes about seeking whom he may devour.

"Sin is an armed soldier. Every man must meet on the battle-field of life, and he can be vanquished only by those who fight him in the strength imparted by the strong arm of God.

"Sin is a prison—hath its bolts, its chains: brings into bondage whom it entertains: Hangs shackles on them, bends them to its will.

"Will bind them, make them deaf; yea, blind them, "will them gag.

And ride them as the devil rides his mag. Sin is a beast—he is the devil's out of door; If once he slave, thou mayst be free no more.

"Sin once possessed of the heart, will play The tyrant. Some its vassal to obey: 'Twill make the things own hopeless oppose, And be a hell to those it does enclose; 'Twas love the best; yea, make thee to defy The law and counsel of the Most.

Remove then: keep this tyrant out of door; For once in slave, thou mayst be free no more."

On the injunction, "speak every man truth with his neighbor," Mr Shelton said:

"God gave an early command to the Children of Israel to be truthful: 'Thou shalt not raise a false report; put not thine hand with the wicked to be an unrighteous witness' (Ex. 23:1)

"Those who are in Christ will act the truth; will speak the truth. It should be observed that the apostle turns from the contemplation of the sublimest truths to inculcate plain precepts for the conduct of the daily life.

"The Scripture urges truthfulness. (Ps. 15:2) This is an evidence of its divine origin, for we are told that orientals are prone about speaking the truth. Lying is a vice deeply characteristic of heathenism."

He said that Paul pictured Christ as one who lived unsullied by the conflicts of daily life. He is, too, the Christ of the busy haunts of men, rather than of the cloister. Hurrying on Mr. Shelton called attention to the fact that while Ephesians deals with the highest truths, yet it also has specific directions for the daily life. The epistle is packed dense with thought. We are to practice truth; to be indulgent; to be pure in conversation; to be forgiving. He showed how deep an injury a man does himself who harbors resentment against another.

Mr. Shelton said that, in his estimation, one of the highest tributes ever paid to Prof. Drummond was that of an old Scotch woman, whose husband was dying. She wanted Drummond to come and visit her husband, although he was too far gone to talk, or even hear Prof. Drummond talk, but as she put it, "I would like him to has a breath o' you about him after he does." His Christian life was such that she felt a holy influence would go out from his very presence in the sick room.

WILL OF CHAS. POTTER.

ADMITTED TO PROBATE IN SURROGATE'S COURT FRIDAY.

The Estate is Kept Largely Within the Family—Bequests to Dr. Lewis and the Seventh Day Baptist Church.

The will of the late Charles Potter was probated at Elizabeth today, the executors being David E. Titsworth, Arthur T. Gallup and Horace W. Fish.

The estate is kept largely within the family, the only outside bequests being a gift to Dr. A. H. Lewis, who was for many years Mr. Potter's pastor and a bequest to the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of which Mr. Potter was a member, of the house and lot on the south-west corner of West Sixth and Division streets.

The estate is then distributed among the family, remembrances being given to the younger grand children, and the remainder being divided between Mrs. Potter, the three daughters now living and the children of the eldest daughter, deceased.

No change is expected to be made in the Potter Printing Press Co., as the will provides for Mr. Potter's interest remaining as before.

Mr. Potter's often expressed idea of public bequests was that they should be made while the donor was alive and could see them administered.

WEDDED AT MT. OLIVE

Nuptials of Eugene Cole and Miss Louise Randolph Performed by Rev. E. E. Jackson.

A wedding among the colored people Thur day at the Mt. Olive Baptist church, was the all-absorbing topic discussed throughout the city among that race Friday. The contracting parties were Eugene Cole, and Miss Louise Randolph, late of Virginia, but recently residing at 323 Plainfield avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the church, at about 8:30 o'clock in the presence of a large congregation. Isaac Fields filled the important post of best man, while Miss Annie Randolph, from Elizabeth, but no relative to the bride, was the bridesmaid.

The bride wore a dress of white organdie silk over pink, cut entire, with a long white veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. The brides maid also wore a gown of white without the veil. As the wedding party passed up the left aisle and took their places, Arabel Randolph, the organist, played Lohengrin's wedding march.

The couple passed from the church by way of the right aisle. A coupe was in waiting and into this the bride and bridesmaids took seats, while the groom had to content himself with sharing a seat with the driver. The party was driven at once to 323 Plainfield avenue, where they have taken up their residence. The formality of a reception was dispensed with.

HE ACTED WILDLY.

Demented Man was Running About Washington Park in a Way to Frighten People.

Thursday afternoon there was a demented man, a stranger, running wildly about Washington Park. He acted strangely and the residents in the vicinity became frightened lest he should do some harm to himself or to others. Word was telephoned to Chief Campbell concerning the man, and after a little trouble he succeeded in getting him out of the borough. The stranger was not actually crazy, and he thoroughly understood the Chief when he told him to get out of the borough. It is not known which way he went, but nothing further has been heard from him.

Farm Sheep Are Needed.

The members of the Woman's Relief Corps are endeavoring to secure a certain amount of money to assist some toward furnishing the home at Vineland, recently established for old soldiers, and they are meeting with good success. The plan is to have each Corps try and furnish one room in the me.

PRIZES FOR FINE DOGS.

MISS DARLING'S ENTRIES IN DOG SHOW WON DISTINCTION.

Captured Honors in the Class of Spaniels, Among Them a Prize Given by the Princess of Wales. —It is seldom that Plainfield fails to secure distinction in any great event, and this is true concerning the dog show that was held in Madison Square Garden, New York, Nov. 29, 30 and Dec. 1, when Miss Clara Louise Darling, of Netherwood, entered her celebrated Ruby spaniels and captured about all the important prizes and honors in that class, and won honorable distinction.

In the limit and open class she was awarded first prizes with "Duke" and "Lillie Langtry" and third prize with "Princess B." In the novice limit and open class she secured second prize with "Babbie." One notable distinction was the securing of first place for the best champion Ruby in America. With "Duke" and "Lillie Langtry" she won six special prizes of gold.

The first was the silver cup offered by the Princess of Wales for the best pair of Ruby spaniels. Another prize was the London Premiership for the best Ruby male, and a third prize of $10 for the best Ruby female. She also was awarded two fish plates for the best pair of Ruby spaniels. Still another prize was awarded Miss Darling, that of team medal, and first in team class of four.

There were twenty-one spaniels entered in the show and the competition was very close. Miss Darling is deserving of great credit for having won so many honors.

CENTRAL LODGE OFFICERS.

Worshipful Elected Master Workman—Eight Candidates Also Elected and Initiated.

A meeting of Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., was held last Thursday. Eight candidates were elected and initiated. Several propositions were received. The following officers were then nominated and elected: Past master workman, Edward M. Moeber; master workman, W. R. Larrabee; foreman, George A. Blythe; overseer, H. B. Thorn; recorder, N. C. Magus; financier, William Newborn; receiver, Charles H. Randolph; inside watchman, A. J. Burrows; outside watchman, John Cashman; organist, Theo. Mason; medical examiners, Drs. O. L. Jenkins, M. A. Snow, M. S. Whitford, and W. J. Nelson; trustee, T. C. Smith; representatives to the Grand Lodge, N. C. Magus, C. T. Rogers, Edward M. Moeber; alternates, C. H. Randolph, J. R. Dunham and T. C. Smith.

MILK FOR SETOFF CLAIM.

An Interesting Contract Case Tried Before Justice Mattson in the Borough Court Thursday Afternoon.

Justice Mattson held court in a rear parlor of the Somerset Hotel Thursday afternoon, when the suit of Robert Carson, who had a claim of $139, balance alleged to be due from Charles L. Jeter for building a house on Belmont avenue that cost $1,400. The defendant filed a set off claim for 279 quarts of milk at 8 cents a quart and $53.24 for cash paid on account and also claimed a deduction of $10 for other amounts. The jury after nearly a two hours' deliberation returned a verdict for the defendant. It was made up of David King, O. R. Steele, Walter Bonnet, Elias Allen, J. Giddis, George Raph, Walter L. Linbarger, James Bagley, William McLoughlin, B. F. Conover, John Cooper and Warren Linbarger. W. S. Anderson for plaintiff; Frank Black for defendant.

Jerusalem Chapter Elect.

At a regular communication of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., held Thursday, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Walter Freeman, high priest; Jacob Kirkner, king; B. A. Meeker, scribe; Henry Leifke, treasurer; F. K. Vanauken, secretary; C. Goss, captain of host; Garret Dunham, principal sojourner; Edward Nelson, royal arch captain.

Patents For Inventors' Assignees.

In last week's issue of patents granted to American inventors 16 were granted to residents of our own State. To subscribers of this paper a description and drawing of any patent will be furnished free by Louis Bagger & Co., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., if a printed heading cut from this paper, is enclosed with the order.

Put Up Handsome Stone.

The heavy carting of stone and freight have somewhat injured the macadam pavement on Richmond street, between East Second street and North avenue, but Contractor Meeker is putting stone in the ruts and proposes to make the street satisfactory again at his own expense.

Home in Shipbuilding.

Lewis Nixon, the Elizabethport shipbuilder, is trying to buy more water front to enlarge his plant. There is said to be enough work ahead to keep the plant running on full time for three years. The Elizabethport shipyard may shortly have to be run night and day if Mr. Nixon fails to get the land.

KEY TO PYRAMIDS.

STONE IN BRITISH MUSEUM WHICH MADE PLAIN EGYPTIAN RECORDS.

Manners, Customs and Religious Rites of the Ancient Egyptian Brought to Light Through the Rosetta Stone—Three Languages Cut in It.

There are many historic and famous stones in the world, but few of them possess the value and interest of the piece of black basalt called the "Rosetta Stone," mounted in the west gallery of the British Museum. How this piece of lava, only three feet by two feet eight and one-half inches in size, and scarred and scaled by the action of fire, had it not been for the Rosetta Stone, our linguists would have been absolutely at a loss to decipher the Egyptian records; the hieroglyphic characters would have been meaningless tracings.

This stone, however, proved the key to the language of Egypt, and the important part it played in this has been accomplished through this knowledge is very great indeed. For instance, many of the antiquets in relation to ancient history have been found to, and, in some instances, important passages of the Bible—especially relating to the period of the sojourn of the Hebrews dwelt "in the land of Egypt"—have been elucidated.

The manners, customs and religious rites of the ancient Egyptians have been brought to light, and, through this stone, we are enabled to obtain an insight into the early history of this wonderful country. The inscription upon the stone, which directed the cutting of the inscriptions upon the Rosetta Stone in three different languages—no doubt with a view to making the hieroglyphic characters understood by the clever Greeks, the most intellectual people in the world at that time.

The Rosetta Stone is written in three languages—the Hieroglyphic, or language known only to the priest caste; the Demotic, or Enchorial, the common speech of the people, and the Greek. Had it not been for the use of the Greek, it is doubtful if the Rosetta Stone would ever have been deciphered. Of course, every classical scholar has a knowledge of Greek; by this knowledge the learned men were enabled to apply the language on the other parts of the stone were easily made out, and, by use of the key thus afforded, the whole of the characters of Egypt—which are picture words—became very easy to read, just as one may decipher the most difficult of cryptograms if he is provided with a key.

The stone in question is of black basalt, as has been said. It is 2 feet 7 inches long, 2 feet 6 inches wide, containing 42 lines of the Hieroglyphic and nearly all of the Greek portion on the upper part and some of the sides having been broken away. The inscription was made by priests to a decree in honor of Ptolemy Epiphanes by the priests of Egypt, assembled at a synod at Memphis. The synod was convened on account of the remission of the arrears of taxes, and dues owed by the Sacerdotal body. So it seems, even in the days of "B. C." the "Sacerdotal body" were ready to convoke synods on the slightest provocation, especially in regard to their "dues and taxes."

This in itself is an instructive lesson, which shows us that the world is about the same as it was 2,000 years B. C. 196, when the stone was put up. The Rosetta Stone in the British Museum is the only discovered specimen of the numerous inscriptions of a similar nature set up at the same time.

The stone was found in 1799 by M. Broussard, a French officer of engineers, during the French occupation of Egypt. It was unearthed in an excavation made at Fort St. Julien, near Rosetta, a city on the west bank of the old Bolbitic Nile. The name "Rosetta" is derived from an old Egyptian word "Rousat," meaning "the mouth of the Nile." Historical researches show that this stone was found on the site of a temple dedicated to Necho II, of the twenty-sixth dynasty. The worshippers in the temple paid homage to the Solar God, Atum or Tum.

Romance of Siam's Great Peaks.

Siam's greatest mountain range is the Sam Roi Yot, or "the three hundred peaks. A quaint legend, which explains their origin is set forth by the Siamese geologists as follows:

"It appears that one Chao Lai and his wife once inhabited the neighborhood (they were giants), and each promised their daughter in marriage, unknown to the other, to a different suitor. At last the day of the nuptials arrived, and Chao Lai and the Lord of Mineral Wealth (Dhi Thorani) arrived to claim the bride. When the horrified father found how matters stood—having a regard for the value of a promise, it would not have been well for Chao Lai—he cut his daughter in half, so that neither suitor should be disappointed.

Chao Lai in the meantime, on finding that he had a rival, committed suicide, and the peak of Chaolai is the mountain of the body. The unfortunate bride is to be found in the islands off Sam Roi Yaut, the peaks of which are the remains of the feast which were made to the body man who was to solemnize the wedding, while Kaw Chang and Kaw King, on the east coast, are the remains of the pots and buffalo cart in which the presents were brought."

A Strange Manifestation.

A letter paper printed in Arabic in Cairo states that a villager of Mawatech sold some land. After discussing with his wife the best hiding place, he decided to bury the money under the mattress of the baby's cot. Of course the entire village knew of the sale, and that night three robbers came to get the money. They entered the house, and one of the robbers carried it out. Oor and all. The father and mother, awakening, rushed out to rescue their treasure, but the man who had taken out the baby rushed back to join his comrades. In the turmoil the mud walls of the house fell down, crushing the three robbers, while the peasants, the baby and the money were safe outside.

Women admire a brave man and love an audacious one.

It's a wise plan that is able to analyze its own complexion.

There are no longer any farms in Northern Illinois. They have all been annexed to Chicago and cut up into town lots.

FIRE THREATENED TO GRILL THREE HOBOES.

Were Night Lodgers at the City Jail.

WOMAN RELEASED THEM.

CITY JAIL CAUGHT FIRE FROM OVER-HEATED STOVE.

Tommy Martin's St. Bernard Dog Awakened Warden's Wife in Her Room Over Jail—Rehearsal Hoboes Tried Vainly to Stop Spread of Flames—Fire Department Finally Called Quite Damage Done.

There was mourning in the city Friday. Early Friday morning an overheated stove set fire to the city jail and threatened to wipe it out of existence. The prompt response of the fire department saved the structure from total ruin. All Plainfield mourns that the flames were not allowed to wipe out a municipal disgrace. There are three hoboes, however, who are thankful for the opportunity to rejoice. They were confronted with the rather immediate prospect of being grilled in their cells when assistance came.

The City Jail is heated by a large stove that stands close to the wall in the corridor. Thursday there was a fire in it as usual, but for some reason Warden Tommy Martin allowed it to run unusually hard. Warden Martin lives over the jail with his wife and five children. Besides being warden, he is also a special officer. Thursday he was on duty at the dance held at Washington Hall. He took his two youngsters with him to see the entertainment. Mrs. Martin and the three little boys remained at home.

Early in the evening three elderly hoboes applied for lodging at the jail and were locked in adjoining cells for the night. There is no provision for a desk man to remain on duty at the station house all night. The station house and jail is allowed to take care of itself. That's what it tried to do Thursday.

Tommy's great St. Bernard dog is responsible for the saving of the jail. But for the dog the building would have been doomed and part of its inhabitants might have perished in the flames. The smoke awoke the dog and his barking aroused Mrs. Martin. She awoke to find the room full of smoke. Then she investigated, accompanied by the dog.

The barking of the dog aroused one of the hoboes. He thought the afterlife had begun. Then he realized the situation. But the hoboes were in no cell floor were safe. Mrs. Martin hurried upstairs and got the key to the cells. Returning, she released the prisoners. One was so overcome with smoke that she had difficulty in rousing him.

The hoboes turned too and crowded a bucket brigade but it wasn't much use. The fire gained headway rapidly. Then Mrs. Martin called for assistance with a blast on the police whistle while the hoboes tried to save her property. The bewildered children were carried over to the Western Union Telegraph office where Operator Benson locked after them.

Patrolman Saunders answered the whistle and sent in an alarm from box 13 at 1:35 o'clock. The fire department responded promptly. When the 1:37 train from New York arrived with City Judge Bunyon on board, the Judge found the scene of the chemical engine was used and soon extinguished the flames which were gaining good headway. The principal damage was to the wall and first floor. The loss to the building, which is owned by Morgan C. Bird, will amount to $100, covered by insurance.

Warden Tommy's loss was occasioned by the rather rapid exit of some of his property. He had no insurance. One window was wrecked as Tommy didn't stop to open it when he threw out some of his valuables.

New Officers of Co. M.

Company M, of Somerville, have elected the following new civil officers: Joseph Vickery, Jr., captain; Fred M. Hoagland, 2d lieutenant; Andrew G. Koehler, treasurer. Committees will not be appointed until a new commandant is elected.

Entertained at Cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard S. Smith, 9 Deer street, entertained Thursday the card club of which they are members. The usual membership was present and all thoroughly enjoyed the genuine hospitality of the host and hostess.

Favorable Rainfall Prove of Hydrants.

The Union Water Company has declined to reduce the price of water hydrants in Cranford. The present charge is $25 per year and Mr. Bergen assures the committee they cannot supply them for less.

Celebration of the Holidays.

The members of the Gesang and Turn Verein are making preparations for a celebration of the holidays at their hall on Somerset street. The usual festivities will take place.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

WOMEN WERE BURNED IN A GAS EXPLOSION.

Dangerous Experience of Mrs. Chamberlain and Daughter.

OCCURRED IN THE CELLAR.

TRYING TO REPAIR A LEAK IN A BARREL OF VARNISH.

It Was Getting Dark and as Mrs. Chamberlain Struck a Match There Was an Explosion, Which Ignited the Clothes of the Two Women—Acted With Presence of Mind, But Seriously Injured.

An accident that narrowly escaped being a fatal one occurred Sunday noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Chamberlain, East Third street when Mrs. Chamberlain and her fifteen-year-old-daughter, Lottie, were frightfully burned, and are now in a critical condition

There was a barrel partially filled with varnish in the cellar, and Mrs. Chamberlain discovered that the varnish was leaking. Her husband was in the barn at the time, but she thought that with the assistance of the hired man, Joseph Stevens, she could repair the break. So she went down stairs with Stevens, the daughter following soon afterwaod. It was very dark in the cellar and Mrs. Chamberlain, in order to see what she doing, struck a match. As she did so a gas was formed, and thes followed a terrific explosion.

A large flame shot out from the barrel and instantly Mrs. Chamberlain's clothes were ablaze, as were also those of her daughter, who stood fully ten feet away. Stevens, who stood near, was burned in the face, and was so dazed that he was of little assistance. With rare presence of mind the mother and daughter rushed to the kitchen, where they secured cloaks with which to wrap themselves in. They then rolled about the floor until the flames were extinguished.

In the meantime Stevens called Mr. Chamberlain and told him the house was on fire. He ran to the house and into the cellar, where everything seemed ablaze. With the assistance of the hired man he finally succeeded in putting the fire out. Fortunately the damage was slight.

As Mr. Chamberlain was walking from the cellar he saw his wife and daughter standing on the back porch, and then he knew for the first time what had happened. He got them to go in the house, and as quickly as possible a physician was summoned. Several were sent for, but Dr. Lowrie, the family physician, was the first to arrive. The mother and daughter were put in bed at once and proper treatment given.

Mrs. Chamberlain's burns are chiefly about the face, head and arms. Her hair is almost burned from the head, and her face is burned to such an extent that she can scarcely see from her eyes, while her arms are in a frightful condition. The daughter's burns are principally about the arms and back. In fact the flesh is burned entirely off the back, while her hair was also nearly burned off. Both suffer the most excruciating pain and constant applications of soothing remedies are applied.

Great assistance was rendered by the neighbors, who were attracted by the explosion, and they did all that was possible until the physician arrived. Among those who gave valuable aid are Miss Sadie Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. John Hope, Mrs. Loughlin, Miss Loughlin, Scott Mollison Mr. and Mrs. Thorn, Miss Webster, Mrs. Peterson, Miss Dell Randolph.

Both of the sufferers are in a precarious condition. It is not known how much of the fumes were inhaled, or if any, but Dr. Lowrie is afraid that there may be some internal troubles. At present they both seem to be doing as well as can be expected. Stevens, the hired man, was not seriously burned, and he is able to be about. His escape was miraculous.

HOPE CHAPEL DEDICATION.

Special Services to Mark the Opening of the New Edifice of the West End Society.

Preparations are now being completed for the proper dedication of Hope Memorial chapel, the new edifice on West Fourth street, that has been in course of construction. Sunday morning, December 31st, the last service will be held in the old chapel, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a Sunday-school session, when an offering will be taken to be used in furnishing the new edifice. At 7:45 o'clock in the evening will commence the dedicatory exercises.

Then will follow this programme: Monday, January 1st, 2:30 to 5 p. m., New Year's Day reception, entertainment and recitations by Lieut. Charles E. Scott; 8 p. m., service of praise and thanksgiving; Tuesday, January 2d, 8 p. m., "Home Missions," address by Dr. Thompson, secretary of the Board of Home Missions, or by Dr. Dixon, assistant secretary; Wednesday, January 3d, 8 p. m., "The Church," address by Dr. Thomas C Hall, of Union Theological Seminary, New York city; Thursday, January 4th, 8 p. m., greeting from the pastors of Plainfield; Friday, January 5th, 8 p. m., "The Bible," address by Dr. Erdman, of Morristown; Sunday, January 7th, 10:30 a. m., morning worship; 3 p. m., Sunday-school; 7:45 p. m., song service; 8 p. m., evening worship. Then from January 8th to 12th, the regular week of prayer services will be held, concluding with the communion of the Lord's Supper Sunday evening, January 14th, 8 p. m.

Death of Francis Con bee.

Last Saturday afternoon occurred the death of Francis Edward Conshee, aged 38 years, of 45 Watchung avenue. Death was due to consumption, and the deceased had been ill for a long time. The funeral services were held from the late residence Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock and from St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetary.

General Trolley Inspector.

Charles Lister, of Watchung avenue, has secured a position as general inspector of the Plainfield Street Railway, Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway, and his duties are to travel over the lines and see that everything is operated right. Mr. Lister's friends will congratulate him on his success.

How Are Your Kidneys?

Dr. Hobbs' Pancreatic Pills cure all kidney ills. 50c per box. Add Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or N.Y.

ENDEAVORERS WILL CROSS THE OCEAN.

New Jersey Union Will Charter a Special Steamer

HONEYMAN TO TAKE CHARGE

INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION IN LONDON OBJECTIVE POINT.

The Steamer Will Be Limited to 250 Persons, Who Will Be Required to Pay $298 Apiece, Which Will Also Include Expenses of Many Side Trips to Points of Interest in Europe.

The New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union announces to the Endeavorers and friends that it has completed the arrangements for a trip to the Christian Endeavor convention at "London 1900," the Paris Exposition and a tour through the continent. A. V. D. Honeyman, of this city, who has conducted European tours for fourteen years, will have charge of the party. John J. Ross, of Newark, having lived seven years in Paris, will assist Mr. Honeyman.

Arrangements have been made to charter a special steamer from the Hamburg-American line, which will carry the party from New York to Plymouth and from Cherbourg to New York in return. The advantage of having a special steamer with full control of the vessel and opportunities for Christian Endeavor meetings, musicales, games, etc., will be apparent to all and cannot but make the ocean voyage a delightful one. There will be no crowding but the same number of passengers will be put in each room as on all first class steamship lines. The capacity of the steamer is limited to 250 persons. The price for this complete tour will be only $298. The staterooms will be assigned in the order of application, first applicants having the best rooms.

For those who cannot take the Continental tour the committee will endeavor to arrange for a trip to London and Paris. Those desiring such a trip must communicate with the committee at once or positively not later than December 30th, for the steamship companies say there will probably be not a first class stateroom left for the season of 1900 after January 1st.

All applications for passage or information should be sent to the committee of the county in which applicants reside, and the committee for Essex and Union is E. E. Anthony, Plainfield.

The following is the itinerary of the trip: Leave New York Tuesday, June 26th. The steamer will let a few days' party at Plymouth, and will proceed by rail to London, where they will be comfortably quartered for a period of nearly two weeks. From London there will be special excursions up the Thames by steamer, and by railway to the old University Town of Oxford, to Stratford-on-Avon, Windsor Castle, side trips to Canterbury, Brighton, the Isle of Wight. The party will see London quite thoroughly before the beginning of the World's Endeavor Convention, which will be from Saturday, July 14th, to Wednesday, July 18th.

The day after the convention closes, the party will proceed to Antwerp, to Cologne, thence up the Rhine by steamer; thence to Heidelberg, to Baden Baden, and an excursion through the Black Forest. From thence by railway to Lucerne in Switzerland, and a side trip up the Rigi. Proceeding next over the Brunig route to Interlaken, a portion of the party will remain at the latter place for Sunday and a portion will go forward to Geneva. At Interlaken, if the weather be clear, a delightful side trip will be arranged for to the Staubach Falls, at Lauterbrunnen, and and over Wengernalp to Grindelwald and its glacier. At Interlaken, there will be a stop at Berne, and, if practicable, the railway journey to Geneva will be broken at Lausanne, so as to proceed over Lake Geneva by steamer. From Geneva the party will go to Paris, reaching there July 30 or 31, and remaining there about one week, so as to fully take in the Exposition and vicinity. In the week beginning August 6th the party will sail for home from Cherbourg, arriving in New York somewhere between August 10th and August 20th.

Arrested From a Hand C

Michael Fabik, an Austrian, residing at Bound Brook, and employed on the Jersey Central as a laborer, was thrown from a hand car Saturday night and sustained three scalp wounds and a dislocation of the hip. The cause of the accident was the breaking of a handle on the car. The man was brought to the hospital, where he is improving and will in the course of time be able to go home.

Accidently Shot Himself.

Ludlow Pearce, a painter, well-known in this city, who lives at Greenbrook, accidently shot himself in the side, Saturday night, while handling a revolver. The wound is not considered serious.

NEW INDUSTRY TO EMPLOY 800 HANDS.

Organ Trust Factory to be Located in Garwood.

TOWN NAME TO BE CHANGED

THE PLACE WILL PROBABLY BE RENAMED AEOLIAN OR VOCALION.

The Work of Putting Up the New Factory Buildings Will be Started at Once—Three Big Companies are Concerned in the Deal—One Factory Will be Established There at a Time.

It can now be stated as a definite fact that the negotiations that have been pending between the Garwood Land Improvement Company and the Organ Trust for the location of the consolidated factories of the Trust at Garwood have been completed, and this new industry for Garwood is assured. Work on the factory buildings will be started at once, and when completed the establishment will furnish employment for 800 operatives.

The Organ Trust, or more properly, the Aeolian Organ Company, was formed by the consolidation of the three leading organ manufacturing companies of the country, the Aeolian Company, of Meriden, Conn., the Votey Company, of Detroit, Mich., and the Vocalion Company, of Worcester, Mass. Factories are now located in the cities named. Owing to the rush of orders confronting these companies, the factories will be moved to Garwood one at a time and each put in running order before the next is moved. The factory of the Votey Company will be the first to be transferred to the new quarters.

The contract for the erection of the building has been given to the Wales, Lines Construction Company of Meriden, Conn., and representative of that corporation arrived in Westfield Saturday and started preparations for the excavation and foundation work.

The new concern will employ a number of skilled hands while there will also be an opportunity for the employment of many women and girls. Many of the employes from the cities where the present factories are located will undoubtedly come to Garwood and Westfield to seek employment at the new factory. When all the factories have been moved, the 800 operatives will mean a large increase in the population of Garwood and a substantial increase here. The trolley will furnish an easy means of reaching the factory. The buildings will be ready for occupancy in the spring and it is expected that all the factories will be successfully moved inside of a year.

When the negotiations were first started, it was one of the conditions of the organ trust that the name of the town of Garwood should be changed. Therefore it is very probable that Garwood will soon end its career. Instead, Aeolian or Vocalion will be seen on the time-tables of the Jersey Central Railroad.

NO WORDS, MADE LOVE.

DEAF AND DUMB COUPLE IN BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT.

Metuchen Girl Claims That Her Feelings Have Been Wounded and Now She Sues in Court for $5 Financial Ruler.

The court officials of Middlesex county are on a hunt for an expert interpreter in the deaf and dumb sign language to officiate in what will undoubtedly prove one of the most unique and interesting trials that has ever been held in New Jersey.

It is the breach of promise suit of Miss Hannah Adam, of Metuchen, five miles southeast of this city, against George H. Bigg, of Burlington county. The plaintiff and defendant are both deaf and dumb, Miss Adam and Mr. Bigg both attended a deaf and dumb school in Trenton, where they both became expert in carrying on a conversation with their fingers. While there they became acquainted, and that acquaintance, the young woman now claims, eventually ripened into a good deal more than is common among school mates. In fact, she claims that Bigg made love to her, and that she ardently reciprocated his attentions and finally they became engaged.

After they parted from one another as schoolmates it is alleged that Bigge' devotion to the young woman similarly afflicted as himself, grew less gradually, and he at last refused to wed her. This wounded the young woman's feelings seriously and was a great shock and disappointment to her, so much so that it is now claimed that the only balm that will be so prized by her is a financial one determined in a court of law by a jury of both his and her supporters.

Voorhees & Boorman, of New Brunswick, are the lawyers for the plaintiff. It is thought the case will be ready for trial by the end of this week.

To Cure Indigestion Forever.

Take Cascarets. Candy Cathartic. 10c or 25c. If C. C. C. fail to cure, druggists refund money.

PANAMA PEARLS.

Value of the Gems Secured in a Year's Harvest.

The magnificent pearls which ornament the crown of Spain, and which are so much admired by tourists who visit the cathedrals of Seville and Toledo were found in Oyster shells in the Bay of Panama, and the large strings and clusters which the Spaniards took from the Indians both on the north and west coasts of South America came from the same source. Pearl fishing is still carried on to a considerable extent at Panama. In the spring of 1899 a boy fifteen years old found an oyster that concealed a jewel now offered for sale in Paris for $10,000. He received $4,000 for it from a negro speculator named Justiana. The latter brought it to Panama and sold it to Felix Erhman, the banker, for a considerable advance on that price. At the Erhman banking house the other day I saw an assortment of pearls all the way from $50 to $4,000, which are Panama pearls, and considerably lower than those that would be asked for the same jewels in London, Paris or New York. Few pearls are sent to New York because of the duty imposed upon them by the government. Those that go are smuggled. The annual harvest of pearls at Panama will average a value of about $150,000. There are several firms engaged in the business—Prospero Perez Pita & Co., Arosemena Hermanos, Madura Hermanos and others. The Erhman's do no fishing, but buy pearls of speculators.

Pearl oysters are found in all parts of Panama Bay. Two years ago an ordinary fisherman found one near Taboga Island, not more than half a mile from the regular steamship anchorage, that contained a pearl worth $2,400, but the largest beds are about thirty miles from the city. The oysters are much larger than those found in northern waters, and the shells are even larger still. The oysters are rank and coppery, but are healthful and are eaten by the natives. The smaller ones are often brought to the Panama market.—Chicago Record.

COMPANY DINNERS.

Dreaded by Guests and Keep the Hostess in Anxiety.

Writing on "Making Company of Guests," Edward Bok, in the December Ladies' Home Journal, considers "it a curious fact that American housewives are so loath to believe that a dinner with fuss and feathers is dreaded by the majority of people. The highest compliment we can possibly show a guest at dinner is to let him partake of an ordinary meal; to let him come quietly in and be one of the family; yet this is the very compliment which we withhold from him. Instead of giving a guest what he would relish most, we give him what he really ought not to eat. It is better be ever so graceful and tactful, let there be years of experience on her shoulders, yet nothing can conceal from the guest that the dinner which she is serving is other an unusual one. It is a formal affair, and no amount of grace can make anything else of it. For nothing speaks so loudly or so unerringly as a formal company dinner. Every course shows it; every movement of the waiter proclaims it; every piece of china fairly cries out the occasion. And, of course, no one at the table really enjoys it. The guest certainly does not because he knows that he is being made company of, and that feeling is always enough to offset every enjoyment. The hostess does not, for she hasn't the time. Her eyes are for the table and her servants; not for her guests."

If I Knew.

If I knew the box where smiles were kept,
No matter how large the key,
Or strong the bolt, I would try so hard,
I would open it, I know, for me.
Then over the land and sea, broadcast,
I'd scatter the smiles to cheer and bless,
That the children's faces might hold them fast
For many and many a day.

If I knew a box that was large enough
To hold all the frowns I meet,
I would like to gather them, every one,
From nursery, school and street.
Then, folding and holding, I'd push them in,
And using the monster key,
I'd hire a giant to drop the box
Into the depths of the sea.

Quite Natural.

A recent issue of The Manila Freedom contains this sample of American journalism:

Whew! Hot!

Yesterday was a scorcher.

Have you sampled Tony Arm strong's latest invoice of Milwaukee beer?

Why don't they order put the street sprinklers?

Billy Kennedy is putting up a new tonk down here. Billy has faith in Manila.

What's the matter with American hams at Wilson's?

Sewing machines and pianos on the instalment plan at Johnson's.

Nothing new from the front, but we're going to take the starch out of Aguinaldo right away.

Send in you subscriptions.

Protecting Carrier Pigeons.

In China carrier pigeons are protected from birds of prey by an ingenious little contrivance consisting of bamboo tubes fastened to the birds' bodies with thread passed beneath the wings. As the pigeon flies the action of the air passing through the tubes produces a shrill whistling sound, which keeps the birds of prey at a distance.

Continent of Plateaux.

Africa is the most elevated of all the continents. It is the continent of plateaux." The great tableland in the south has a mean altitude of over 2,500 feet; the west tableland on the north has an average elevation of about 1,300 feet.

The young Maori dash who have been to college apparently become as white men in their ways, but after a couple of years at home drift back into their gipsy customs.

"What a popular chaperone Mrs. Courtney Dobbs is!"

"Yes; she is a trifle deaf."

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in speaking of the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one would become a gladiator, linguist, and do a hebdomadal duel—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Thirteenth Hospital Report, which is Notes on the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a hatchway and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn the Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have to ask them to call for them?"

He was referred to a gentleman who is in charge of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and gratuitous advertising through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the best guarantee for the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Peekskill Heights, a part of New York City, and who is so fortunate as to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter of the writer: "I have used your preparation and did so on the part of a friend. I had no faith at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and bought a five-cent carton at once. I have never been without them since. I have never been without them since. I have never been without them since

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1899. NO. 52.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

WELL-LAID PLANS FOR CHRISTMAS TIDE.

Many Sunday - Schools Hold Annual Entertainments.

FINE PROGRAMMES HEARD.

SUCCESSFUL CULMINATION OF PLANS FOR THE CHILDREN.

The Young People Were Entertained in all Sorts of Ways and Received Many Gifts and Candy—Santa Claus Put in His Appearance, and Made Lots of Fun for the Small Ones.

The exercises at the Park Avenue Baptist church Tuesday were the most interesting of any held by that society in some years. The church was profusely and artistically decorated with festoons of evergreens and flags, while the words "Merry Christmas to Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school" were conspicuously suspended at the front. The entertainment provided for the children and the large attendance consisted of recitations by Misses Dorothea Demarest, and Messrs. Winant and Bond, of New York, in songs, dialogues, etc. The feature of the evening, however, was the big chimney with the fireplace and the appearance of "Santa Claus," who was introduced by little Florence Smalley, attired in her night dress and bedecked her eyes. The mythical "Santa Claus" was impersonated by Gwen Lloyd. Miss Florence Cuming represented the "Fairy" and with her magic wand directed "Santa Claus" to take from the fireplace small stoves and distribute them among the children. The stoves were found to contain candy.

Previous to the appearance of Santa Claus a telephone was used to announce his near approach, and at frequent intervals the telephone bell would ring to tell that he had reached different cities. During these imaginary talks over the 'phone numerous humorous messages were sent as well as received. The message that appeared to greatly please the older members of the Sunday-school was the receipt from Santa Claus of "Congratulations to T. A. Cuming." Besides the gifts to the scholars of the school Santa Claus presented a bag of gold to Pastor J. W. Richardson and 100 singing books to the school. The affair was well gotten up and highly creditable to the efforts of the committee, consisting of T. A. Cuming, chairman; Mrs. W. S. Lowrey, E. F. Vail, Miss Ada Runyon, Miss May Thompson and G. E. Hall. The latter gentleman was the designer of the fire-place and had charge of the decorations.

MONROE AVENUE M. E. CHURCH.

The children of the Sunday school of the Monroe Avenue Methodist church had a royal time last evening, and for more than one hour were highly entertained by a magician from New York, whose clever tricks were the source of delight to the older scholars and wonderment to the younger members of the school.

Miss May Lucky, a recitationist of considerable local ability, pleased the older members of the school and the large audience, by her splendid recitations of humorous and pathetic prose and poems. The musical portion of the programme consisted of the singing of Christmas carols by the school under the direction of Walter M. McGee, the superintendent. After the entertainment bags of candy and oranges were distributed among the scholars.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

There was a very large attendance at the Congregational church Sunday school entertainment, both of members of the school and of the church people. The church was decked with evergreens, and in one corner stood a large and elaborately trimmed Christmas tree. The exercises began with a carol, and prayer by A. C. LaBoyteaux. Recitations were given by Miss Marion Dwight, Miss Jean Miller, and Miss Elsie Smith, Miss Smith's recitation, "The Boggles's Christmas Dinner" from "The Birds' Christmas Carol," being the principal one of the evening. A motion song by the primary department, and the singing of Luther's Cradle Hymn by three little girls, were pleasant parts of the programme. John M. Whiton told a bright Christmas story about Mrs. Santa Claus, then Mrs. Santa Claus made her appearance, in the person of Mrs. Leighton Calkins, bringing gifts for the primary department. Fruit and confectionery were distributed to the whole school. The members of the church had also an opportunity to give as well as to receive, bringing gifts and making an offering of money for an Italian mission in New York. The primary department made a gift to the Children's Home, a box containing the birthday offerings of several years being broken before the audience by Gansevoort VanAlstyne.

GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

Grace M. E. church was filled to overflowing Tuesday night when the annual Christmas entertainment was held under the auspices of the Sunday-school. Superintendent John Valiant was in charge, while a committee consisting of Mrs. Mont, Miss Mary G. Steiner, Miss Alice Carroll, Miss Belle Longer and Andrew Wilson, had charge of the entertainment, which consisted of a cantata entitled "Jenny Doubter," who did not believe in Santa Claus. In the play there were a number of characters who did their utmost to prove that there is a Santa Claus. There were three scenes, two representing home and the other a street scene. Those who took the several parts were as follows: "Jenny Doubter," Jennie DeMott; "Queen of the Fairies," Ethel Mont; "Old Mother Goose," Edith VanDyke; "Old Mother Hubbard," Edith Mann; "Old Woman in the Shoe," Rachel DeCamp; "Little Red Riding Hood," Anna Hoagland; "Jack Horner," Harry Schuck; "Little Miss Muffet," Violet Titus; "Little Boy Blue," David Fairchild; "Jack and Jill," Russell and Bessie Conroy; "Little Boo Peep," Eva Higgins; "Chinese Maid," Alice DeMott; "Rootback," Willie Higgins; "Little Miss Nobody," Helen Major; "Newsboy," Charles Powell; "Santa Claus," James Steiner. Gracie Powell and Margaret Darby took part in the two home scenes.

After the entertainment Superintendent Valiant made a few presentations. A handsome silver-mounted umbrella was given to Bert Simpson, who has faithfully presided at the organ. Mr. Hoagland, the sexton, received a purse of money. The Sunday-school class taught by Mrs. Powell gave their teacher a handsome wicker chair. Then Santa Claus appeared and distributed gifts of candy, books, games etc., to all the scholars and teachers.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

The Sunday-school of the First M. E. church held its Christmas entertainment Tuesday. The primary department was entertained in the afternoon with a series of stereopticon views. Besides a number of colored slides, there was a series illustrating the life of Christ. J. B. Joy explained them. At the close, Nelson A. Miller appeared as Santa Claus and distributed gifts and candy among the little people.

A cantata, entitled "Christmas a Day Late," was the principal event of the entertainment for the intermediate and senior departments in the evening. The argument of the cantata told of the troubles of Columbia and Brittania in caring for their numerous children and incidentally proved the fallacy of trying to plan for Christmas without the assistance of Santa Claus.

Miss Mabel Tompkins was "Columbia" and Miss Cora Harris "Brittania." Watson Derby impersonated "Neptune" and Nelson A. Miller "Santa Claus." The Misses Frances Bittenhouse, Helen Joy, Minnie Conover, of this city, and Miss Dorothy Welch, of Middletown, Conn., made very fair little angels. There was also a chorus of the various possessions of "Columbia" and "Brittania."

At the close of the cantata there was a presentation of gifts. A volume containing handsomely engrossed resolutions, signed by all the teachers in the school, was presented to J. W. Jackson, who retires this year as superintendent after thirty-three years' service. The resolutions expressed their great regret at his departure.

The committee in charge consisted of Clifford McGee, chairman; Miss Elsie Horne, Miss Persis Snodgrass, Miss Cory, Miss Elizabeth Stackhouse, S. A. Miller, G. M. Bittenhouse, J. B. Joy and Stephen Tugwell.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Tuesday afternoon in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church the Primary Department of the Sunday-school enjoyed their annual Christmas entertainment. There were recitations and songs by the little folks, and Santa Claus appeared in the person of Edward Burroughs who made things pleasant for everyone. In the evening the older members of the Sunday-school had their entertainment which consisted of the Edison perfectoscope pictures. These moving pictures were greatly enjoyed for most of them were new. This comprised the evening's entertainment, after which came the distribution of presents. Every scholar was remembered nicely as well as every teacher. Superintendent E. M. Cave was in charge of the affair.

EAST THIRD STREET CHAPEL.

The Christmas entertainment at East Third Street chapel was held last Tuesday and was largely attended. It opened with Scripture reading and

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 4.)

LOVE FOUND A WAY ACROSS THE OCEAN

Long Voyage to Find a Convenient Place for Nuptials.

JERSEY LAW TOO STRICT.

SO THE CEREMONY WAS PERFORMED BY NEW YORK ALDERMAN.

Charles and Fanny O'Brien Were Prohibited From Marrying in England on Account of Their Relationship, So They Came to This Country to Overcome the Obstacle—Visited Here.

It is not often that lovers take a voyage across the Atlantic Ocean in order to have a nuptial ceremony performed, but such is the experience of Charles O'Brien and Fanny O'Brien, of Liverpool, Eng., who were married in the City Hall, New York, Saturday morning last at 11 o'clock by Alderman Smith. Their long trip was taken because they are brother in-law and sister in law, and the laws of England prohibit marriages between such relatives.

In order to overcome this obstacle to their entering into matrimony they journeyed to this country by the steamer Teutonic, which arrived in New York last Thursday. They will return to their native land today by the same steamer.

The groom is a cousin of Hughes Fawcett, 105 Rockview avenue, North Plainfield, who is a New York business man. During their visit to this country they were stopping with him at his home. Their mission was explained to Mr. Fawcett by letter before their arrival, and it was left to him to fix the details for their becoming husband and wife under the laws of the United States. Mr. Fawcett is a prominent worker in the Y. M. C. A. Brethren, a gathering of Christians who have no regular ministers. He did not want to appeal to a minister of another denomination to celebrate their marriage, and so he decided to have a civil one instead.

He interviewed Justice of the Peace V. W. Nash, of this city, on the subject before the arrival of the couple and he consented to perform the marriage. After the couple arrived on Thursday it was decided to have the ceremony performed by Justice Nash on Saturday. When the time came for it, however, it was necessary for the couple, being non-residents, to take out a marriage license. One of the stipulations of the marriage license law of this State is that the applicants must wait five days after the license is issued before the wedding can take place.

When the O'Briens learned of this part of the law they were in a plight, as it would be impossible for them to delay the ceremony so as to comply with the law and at the same time be able to return to England on the Teutonic. Then it was that Mr. Fawcett came to their rescue with a suggestion that they go to New York with him Saturday morning and go to the City Hall and have an Alderman tie the nuptial knot. The change in the plans was agreed to and Saturday morning the trip was made. Alderman Smith performing the part of Hymen. Mr. Fawcett and a friend acted as witnesses.

After the ceremony the couple returned to Mr. Fawcett's home in this city.

When the groom was seen last night by a local reporter he said: "We wanted to get married, and as the laws of this country were the most convenient to the conditions that confronted us we decided to come here and have the ceremony performed. That is all there is to it."

FIFTY YEARS WEDDED.

Golden Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac F. Scudder, of Westfield, Celebrated Yesterday Afternoon.

Westfield, December 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Isaac F. Scudder, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding yesterday afternoon from 1 to 5 o'clock at the residence of their son. They were married in 1849 by Rev. James M. Dunting, pastor of the Presbyterian church. Guests were present from Newark, Elizabeth, Rahway, Plainfield, Fanwood, Cranford and this place to the number of about sixty, six of whom were present at the marriage. All had a pleasant time about old times after which refreshments were served. The happy couple became received a number of handsome presents.

Had to Pay a Fine.

Cornelius Driscoll was drunk on East Second street last Saturday night. Patrolman Saunders arrested him. Yesterday City Judge Runyon sentenced him to pay a fine of $2

SOMERSET COURT CASES.

ENGINEER RICK SUING THE LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD.

North Plainfielders Interested in Cases on the Calendar—Circuit Court to be Called January 22—Chancery Case Off Term.

Somerville, Dec. 27.—Announcement of the several cases for the January term of the Somerset County Circuit Court was made yesterday and a number of cases of interest to North Plainfielders, as well as Plainfielders, are down. The Supreme Court issues include a case of Howard W. Rick against the Lehigh Valley Railroad, in tort, for injuries received in January of the present year. The case of Ernest M. Mise against the Lehigh Valley Railroad, in tort, is off for the term. The case of Nellie Steger against Andrew Dominick, in tort, is now ready. Both parties reside in North Plainfield. W. E. McClure represents the plaintiff, while J. P. D. Kirch represents the defendant.

The Circuit Court issues includes the case on contract of George Hummer et ux against J. W. S. Lonchlin, of the borough. This will be called January 21, and Charles J. McNabb will represent the plaintiff, and William Newcorn the defendant. In this court the case in tort of Wesley R. Brokaw against W. L. Saunders is off for the term by consent, owing to the absence of the defendant, who is abroad. There are a number of other cases, but of no importance to boroughites.

FIRST ELECTION ILLEGAL.

Officers Chosen by Winfield Scott Post Two Weeks Ago Were Not According to Rules.

It was learned within the past few days that the election of officers at the meeting of Winfield Scott Post, No. 72, G. A. R., Tuesday evening, December 12th, was illegal, and in order to comply with the rules and regulations of the G. A. R., another election was necessary. Therefore action was taken at once to hold an election at the regular meeting held Tuesday when the following persons were chosen: Commander, Dr. Berg; senior vice-commander, F. M. Whiteley; junior vice commander, Augustus Runyon; chaplain, J. A. Goodwin; surgeon, Israel Compton; quartermaster, John B. Naylor; officer of the day, I. L. McVoy; officer of the guard, John Finley; trustees, W. G. Smith, William Hand, M. C. Dobbins. The result was a joint installation of the above officers, together with those from the Woman's Relief Corps and the Sons of Veterans on the evening of Tuesday, January 9th, and the affair will be marked by the usual pleasant features.

"CACK'S" WIFE IN LIMBO TOO

Esther Barrett Alleges That She Stole a Skirt—Election Officer Held Her for Grand Jury.

Eva Carter, nee Eva Jackson, who claims to be the wife of "Cack" Carter, the negro, who was Tuesday sent to jail for threatening his stepfather, is also in the Elizabeth jail awaiting the action of the Grand Jury charged with stealing a skirt from Esther Barrett, of West Third street. The alleged theft was committed on the 14th inst. The Carters occupied rooms in the same house with the Barrett woman, who claims the skirt was taken by Eva Carter. Justice Mosher, before whom the accused was arraigned Christmas, held her in default of $100 bail.

PRESIDENT C. A. REED.

Annual Election of Somerset County Bar Association Held.

Somerville, Dec. 27.—A meeting of the Somerset County Bar Association was held in the courthouse yesterday morning. The annual election of officers was held and all the old officers were re-elected as follows: President, Charles A. Reed; secretary, Miss Steele; financial secretary and treasurer, Nelson Y. Dungan.

Literary Note From The Century Co.

The January Century will contain a poem by Rudyard Kipling, "In the Matter of One Compass." Dr. Mitchell's story, "The Autobiography of a Quack," ends in that issue, but another serial by Dr. Mitchell will begin in the March number. It is called "Dr. North and His Friends," and one who has read the manuscript calls it "an epitome of the science, culture and common sense of the nineteenth century."

Two Primary Classes Taught by Miss Anna O. Merch on the clavier and piano, met last Friday afternoon to illustrate their work to their mothers. Their quick fingers and clear comprehension of time pleased all. Varieties of touch were illustrated, and piano selections, which had been memorized on the clavier, were rendered.

ROEHRICHT ACTED WITH HIGH HAND.

So Says Judge Magie in Sentencing Mrs. Fingerhuth.

MERCY WENT WITH JUSTICE.

JUDGE SEES A TRICK IN THE ARREST OF THE HUSBAND.

Says That It Is Obvious That It Was Done When Attack Was to Be Made Upon the House—A Subscription Paper Started for the Purpose of Raising the $200 Fine That Was Imposed.

Somerville, Dec. 27th—In passing sentence Tuesday upon Mrs. Henrietta Fingerhuth, convicted of manslaughter for killing Emil Roehricht, Chief Justice Magie said:

"Among the unpleasant duties I have had to perform in the course of my official career, none have been more trying to me than the one which has to be ended by the sentence of this prisoner.

"It is quite obvious how the jury reached the conclusion they did to recommend the prisoner to the mercy of the Court. The sympathy of the community, of the jury and of the Court has all along been with the prisoner, and the reason is the peculiar circumstances under which she did the act for which she has been convicted.

"She is of foreign birth, speaking our language imperfectly; living in a house with her husband and son. The owner of the house desiring its possession, undertook to take possession with a high hand by force. The relations that existed between him and this defendant's husband were not such as justified his doing that act without an appeal to the law. He ought to have undertaken to turn out Mr. Fingerhuth by law, and not by force.

"The woman was left alone in the house, and it is quite obvious that she was in fear that the owner had or somebody armed her husband and take him away, and with him her son, at the time when this attack upon the house was made.

"This woman has been furnished with a deadly weapon, and it is obvious she had been told by her husband and her son that she had a right to use it to defend the house. They made no deduction between the defense of herself, which of course she would have a right to resort to, and the obviously lead her to understand she should use that weapon in the defense of the house.

"They cannot be punished, but she took their advice—their wrongful injudicious advice. Advice which, if given by anybody who ought to know, is criminal; she used the deadly weapon.

"Now the jury have said that is a criminal act. They have said though, that under the circumstances of its use, the highest degree of crime was not exercised and they have convicted her of the lowest degree and have coupled that conviction with a recommendation to the mercy of the Court.

"Now the Court can not fail to recognize that there was a crime; we think that the verdict of the jury was entirely untenable; but we, how ever, think it is part of crime that the due administration of criminal justice requires a severe penalty.

"The sentence of the Court is that this defendant be confined in the County Jail for the term of six months, less one day, and pay a fine of $200, and stand committed until the fine be paid.

"Let the prisoner be removed."

A subscription paper has already been put in circulation to raise the $200 fine imposed upon Mrs. Fingerhuth. One of the first to subscribe to it was Sheriff Selah Schoonemaker, who pledged himself to give $5 towards defraying the fine. A number of others in court also subscribed to it.

Resignation of C. W. McCutchen.

Pastor Jackson and the Sunday-school of the Mt. Olive Baptist church desires to express their thanks to C. W. McCutchen for his kind consideration given them in the purchase of a piano for the Sunday-school, also Mr. Stitzel and the First Baptist church for their encouragement and assistance. The pastor says that Deacon Daniel Brown carries off the laurels this year for the rich supply of a Christmas dinner.

Byron Mac' Visit Plainfield.

In response to a letter from J. E Martine, Hon. Wm. J. Bryan writes that he appreciates the invitation to visit Plainfield and be a guest at Cedar Brook. Notwithstanding that Mr. Bryan's stay will be short in New Jersey, Mr. Martine hopes to have Mr. Bryan in Plainfield.

INTRODUCED TO SOCIETY

"COMING OUT" OF MISS PHILLIPS A DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR.

The Reception at the Rockview Avenue Home—Holiday Decorations Gave a Very Pretty Effect to the Rooms.

A very delightful affair of the holiday week was the reception given Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Henry Russel Phillips, of Rockview avenue, when her daughter, Miss Helen Phillips, was formally introduced into society.

The house was beautifully decorated with Christmas greens and pink roses and the combination of greens and flowers on the dining room table with pink shaded candles was a very novel and artistic one.

Mrs. Phillips and Miss Phillips received their guests in the parlor while sweet strains of music floated in from the hall where the band was hidden from view by palms and evergreens.

In the dining room Mrs. Slawson and Mrs. A. E. Fabir presided at the table and were assisted by the Misses Francis Phillips, Elizabeth and Mary Hull, Margaret McDutcheon, Sadie Howell, Miss Montgomery and Miss Francis Phillips, of New York.

LICENCE GRANTED

For Hotel On Somerset Street Where Somerset Hotel Stands—Action Delayed on Another.

Somerville, Dec. 27. — Application was made before Judge Bartine yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas for a licence for a hotel on Somerset street, North Plainfield, where the Somerset Hotel has been kept. A licence was obtained by Mr. Boice sometime ago, but the new place has changed hands and Herman Deike is now the proprietor. The application was made for Mr. Deike by Francis J Black, of the law firm of Murphy & Black. The application was granted

W. K. McClure presented the application of Sisser for a licence for a hotel on Somerset street, near the Green brook bridge, North Plainfield. As the place is a new one, the Judge decided to let the application lay over until the end of the term. He will then announce his decision.

SIGNALS FOR TROLLEYS.

New System Being Arranged to Prevent Delays on Trains Long—Push-Button for Use of Conductors.

A system of signals is being arranged by the Plainfield Street Railway Company so as to prevent delays on account of the lateness of cars on the South Plains extension. A push-button is to be placed at the switch, East Second street near Richmond street, whereby the conductor of a car at that point can notify the inspector at the North Avenue crossings. A push of the button will illuminate a colored light. If there is time for that car to make the trip to the North avenue switch another colored lamp will be lighted at the Second street switch as a signal. The system of wires for the signals is now being put up.

Died of Heart Trouble.

Mrs. Mary E. Martin, aged 71 years, formerly a resident of Martinville, died of heart trouble Tuesday at 9 o'clock at her home 18 Harmony street. She was a sister of Mrs. Andrew Huff and George Watts, and had been a resident of the borough since last spring. Her illness was of about three weeks duration. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock from the residence of Mrs. Andrew Huff, Chatham street, and interment will be at Bound Brook.

Little Girl was Hurt.

While running down Park avenue Tuesday morning, Nellie, the eight-year-old daughter of Andrew Meier, an employe of the American Steam Laundry, fell over a coal chute and was badly bruised. At first it was feared that Nellie's collar bone was broken or shoulder dislocated, but Dr. Boone, who was called to attend the little sufferer, does not think that any bones were broken.

Miss Price Now Mrs. Marsh.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Emma L. Price, of New Market, and Franklin T. Marsh, of this city. The event took place last Thursday at the Seventh Day Baptist church parsonage, and Rev. Dr. A. E. Main, pastor, officiated.

Fish Meeting for 1900.

Friday evening of next week there will be the first regular meeting of the Mayor and Borough Council for 1900. At that time the matter of widening Somerset street from the county line to Jackson avenue will be taken up and considered.

Out of the Hospital.

October 31st of the present year Jacob Gutmeir, of this city, fractured his knee pan, and since then has been at the hospital for treatment. He was discharged Tuesday, cured.

SOLD CIDER SUNDAY—MUST PAY A $20 FINE.

Borough Officials Are Hard After Vito Feraro.

MAYOR SMALLEY HEARD.

NO POSITIVE EVIDENCY, BUT BELIEVE HE RUNS A BAD PLACE.

Former Account of Violating Peace and Good Order of Borough—Specific Charge Admitted in Court and Sentence Long Imposed a Fine of $20, But Contingent the Seven Days in Jail.

Vito Ferard, an Italian doing business on Somerset street, opposite Manning avenue, was arraigned in the borough court yesterday before Recorder Long, on a charge of illegal Sunday selling. He was represented by Lawyer Walter L. Heitfeld, while Borough Counsel Reed was present for the borough. Chief Marshal Campbell was the complainant, and the charge was that the defendant had been December 17th and 24 violated the ordinance relating to the peace and good order of the borough, and that more especially on Sunday, December 10th, did sell a bottle of wine and a bottle of cider. The purchasers were Special Marshal Brock and Geo. W. Gaddis, aged 17 years, a resident of the borough.

Mayor Smalley, Chief Campbell and the two informants were placed on the stand and they told what they knew concerning the place occupied by Feraro. His Honor said that he did not keep the right kind of place, and he had received a number of complaints about people coming out of the place intoxicated, and while he had no direct knowledge concerning the place, only what he had received from the police and others, he believed that Feraro was violating the borough ordinance Chief Campbell told about the condition of things as he found them, and how he went to trouble to locking into the place, and how the curtains were drawn every time he put in an appearance. The informants told how they went there on Sunday, December 10th, and purchased the cider and wine.

Lawyer Heitfeld stated that he had no defense to make as the accused could not deny but what he sold the two bottles of cider and wine on the date mentioned, but he brought out by facts that the man had been warned, and this being his first offense, he asked that the court suspend sentence

Counsel Reed argued that the man had sold the wine and cider and it was the old question of a cider joint. He pointed out the fact that the man admitted his guilt and that he was violating the borough ordinance, and while he had no particular interest in the case aside from his position, he thought the court should do its duty.

Recorder Long then imposed a fine of $20, omitting the seven days imprisonment, which accompanies it at the option of the court. The fine was paid.

Christmas at the Parochial.

The children of the parochial school attached to St. Mary's Roman Catholic church were treated to a Christmas entertainment Tuesday afternoon in the hall of the school. The entertainment was under the direction of the Sisters of Charity, which carried out an interesting programme. There was a tree and a play on the stage where some clever acting was exhibited. The affair was not the least pleasant of those frequently held by the pupils of this school. There was a large attendance of the parents of the scholars and friends of the school.

Married in London.

Mrs. Ida G. Simmonds, of Watchung avenue, received a cablegram Tuesday telling her of the marriage of her niece, Mrs. Genif Baker, to Cecil Gabriel Lindo, which took place yesterday in London. Mrs. Baker is the widow of Genif Baker, formerly of Baltimore, and is a daughter of Henry G. Carey, of Lake Roland, Baltimore county. Mrs. Baker has lived in England for about eleven years. Her husband died about two and a-half years ago. She is known in this city by several persons.

Sentenced to Second Year a Week.

Elizabeth, December 27.—John L. Blackford, the confessed bigamist, was to be arraigned in the Union County Court this morning for sentence, but it was announced this morning that sentence would be deferred for a week.

—Shoes sold by Flynn Brothers, 222 West Front street, near Main Hall, are made right and made to fit. You can get what you want and be satisfied if you buy your shoes of them.

AN EDITOR'S LITERARY CHASE.

How the Author of "In His Steps" Was Finally Run Down.

Three months ago the editor of The Ladies' Home Journal concluded that his readers would doubtless be glad to read a fresh article by the author of "In His Steps." He wrote to the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon soliciting a contribution. But editors innumerable had sought their prey before Topeka minister, and to Mr. Bok's request he sent the same reply as to the other editors. But the Philadelphia editor wrote again, more strongly and more urgent letter. Again the clergyman declined. He had written nothing since "In His Steps," and did not wish to write anything then. Meanwhile Mr. Bok had gone to Europe, and Mr. Sheldon's second refusal was cabled to him. Back came the response to Philadelphia: "Spare no effort nor time to secure Mr. Sheldon, but get him." The editor's private secretary then tried his hand on the Kansas minister, but again he refused. Mr. Bok returned from abroad, and calling one of his editors directed him to see Mr. Sheldon, at Topeka if he was there, or wherever he might be. Upon reaching St. Louis the editor located Mr. Sheldon at Buffalo, and later learned that he had gone to Detroit. Starting at once for that place the editor learned at Chicago the minister had just left Detroit to rejoin his family at a summer resort in Upper Michigan. By more telegraphing Mr. Sheldon's family was finally located at Old Mission, a most inaccessible summer resort on Traverse Bay, and by the first northbound steamer the editor hurried on his journey. A voyage of a day and a night brought him to the place where he had hoped to intercept the minister, but failing to do so he embarked in a small boat for a day's sail toward his destination. At the nearest landing he pressed a farmer's team into service and drove through an almost blinding sandstorm along the bay shore—accordingly half-way across the peninsular—reaching Old Mission a few minutes before the arrival of the minister. This was too much for Mr. Sheldon. The fight was won, and in the November issue of The Ladies' Home Journal the article appears. It occupies barely a page, and the venture cost the magazine several hundreds of dollars for traveling expenses alone. But the article contains Mr. Sheldon's first word since his "In His Steps" has become famous. It answers the question which every one asks after reading the book: "Is this theory practicable?" and answers it forcibly. And the magazine is content.

Story of Stevenson.

Stevenson was still a rather little boy, says Chambers's Journal, when in the Summer holidays, having been reading a "penny dreadful" or novels of a bad kind, he was passing one Sunday afternoon along a road which led through one of the suburbs of Edinburgh, and there he suddenly, but left furnished, but without apparently a caretaker. It suddenly struck Stevenson that here was a very gallant thing to break into this house. No one was in sight, and stealing around he found it possible to easily open a window of the kitchen and so climbed in. It really was unoccupied, and he prowled from room to room, looking at the books and pictures until he heard, as he thought, a noise in the garden. This sent him immediately, in an instant collapse of courage, under a bed, and then terror seized him. He imagined himself poisoned upon, charged with robbery, marched home with gyves upon his wrists, and arriving half dead there found something to attend evening services. He burst out crying and could not stop, and his sobs echoed in the empty house.

He crept out when he had crept in, having done no harm to anything except his little tender Scottish conscience. But the spirit of adventure was native to him, as exemplified in the story, and also a sort of solitude, as of a boy obliged to play by himself for want of other pirates and burglars to combine with.

Backing Up.

Not all of the driver's skill is devoted to driveway; it takes a good driver to be able to back up in good shape. Not every driver, by any means, can halt and then back up to a curbstone and hit it square and true with both wheels the first clip. That is something that requires more skill than might be imagined by one who had never tried it.

But in backing up on the level, if a man fails to hit the curb exactly the first time, he can maneuver until he does. There are places where skill must be exercised and where a level head is called for, too. For instance, in backing up, or rather, backing down, into an excavation, on the inclined causeway left for that purpose. The excavation is begun at the rear of the shaft, and the earth forming the causeway, running up to the level of the street at the front, is left until the last. In the later stages of the excavating the causeway is left just wide enough at the top for the carts or wagons to move on, and its sides slope down precipitously. The driver who backs down on one of these narrow cellar causeways, simply must hit it right.

Anthony's Retirement.

Susan B. Anthony, now approaching her eightieth birthday, is preparing to retire from the presidency of the National Suffrage Association, and with characteristic zeal has set herself the task of raising half a million dollars for the use of her successors in the movement. She says:

"I shall continue to work as hard as ever, but shall devote my energies to the raising of a memorial fund of $500,000, with which to carry on the work. The interest of that sum would lubricate suffrage machinery nicely, and it is my one desire to see the needed half million raised before I die. I don't want the younger generation hampered by the lack of money, as I and my colleagues have been."

Window Guards.

Windows without guards, especially in nurseries or chambers or playrooms occupied by children, are fruitful sources of terrible accidents. In fact, invitations to fractured skulls and sudden death. All windows to which children have access should be protected by proper fastenings inside and proper iron guards on the outside.

KIMBERLEY'S VAST RICHES.

The Enormous Value of the Diamond Mines Threatened.

Kimberley, which it is said the Boers have invested and isolated from the outside world, is the diamond region of the world, far surpassing the mines of Brazil in richness.

The report of the mines is true, this is the most serious blow which Kruger has struck at the commercial interests of Great Britain in South Africa. Cecil Rhodes is in the town and its defence will be stubborn. Kimberley is not a city in the modern use of the word. It is a great camp in which men's passions rise and fall as the treasures of the earth are uncovered or not found. The camp is in what is called the Vaal Basin, the wash ground of the river which divides the Transvaal from the Orange Free State. The first diamond discoveries there were made about 1870, but it was ten years later when Englishmen and others realized that the spot was the most valuable of its kind in the world.

By 1881 the mines which had been opened had yielded gems to the value of $20,000,000. By 1887 seven tons of diamonds had been taken out valued at $250,000,000. This record placed the Brazil diamond mines in the shade and made Kimberley world-wide in its fame. The Cecil Rhodes syndicate, known as the De Beers, came into control of all the mines after much negotiation. This syndicate is capitalized for $75,000,000 and pays interest at the rate of 5½ per cent per annum and an annual dividend of 20 per cent. Since Cecil Rhodes came into control of the mines they have given out 2,500,000 karats of diamonds. To get at these it has been necessary to wash 2,700,000 loads of the blue earth in which they are found.

In the working of these diamond mines there are employed about 1,500 white men and 6,000 natives. The greater proportion of these men are employed in the De Beers and Kimberley mines, the two biggest holes which greedy man has ever dug into the earth. The punishment for stealing a diamond is fifteen years' imprisonment. All diamonds, except those which pass through illicit channels, are sent to England, the weekly shipments averaging from 40,000 to 50,000 karats. The greatest outlet for stolen diamonds is through the Transvaal to Natal, where they are shipped by respectable merchants.

It is said of the mining interests in the mines that they take good care of their workmen. They have built a nice village called Kenilworth, within the precincts of the mines. In this village are cottages for the white workmen, and a hospital has been built for their use and there is a public library. The equipment of the mines is something remarkable. Each mine has ten electric cults of electric lamps. They contain seven groups of from 1,000 candle power each, and 191 glow lamps of 16 and 64-candle power each, or a total illuminating power of about 64,000 candles. Thirty telephones are located in each mine and over 100 electric bells are in use for signaling. The lives of the workmen are insured and every precaution is taken to make their condition tolerable. The rate of wages runs from $2 to $8 per day, unskilled labor receiving the low price. What effect the closing of the mines by war will have on the world at large it is hard to say. Diamonds have already risen in price, but there is a large stock on hand in English and French banks, of course all labor has ceased at Kimberley, and if the Boers get into the mines they may win rich prizes.

WHERE THE OLD CARS GO.

Many Uses to Which the Cast-Offs of City Lines Are Put.

On all metropolitan street railways new cars are constantly appearing, and the question naturally suggests itself, Where do the old cars go? A street railway man of long experience answered this question for a Sun reporter the other day.

"We sell a number of our old cars," he said, "to other cities, where, after they are painted and otherwise refurnished, they are used as trailers on electric roads during periods of inflated traffic. They are merely hitched behind the motor cars, and answer the purpose to which they are put very well. However, the demand for horsecars is slight, and it is sometimes a problem to dispose of old electric cars to advantage.

"Now and then we sell an old car to someone living in the country, who wishes to convert the vehicle into a playhouse for children. It answers this purpose very well, for cars are invariably well made and will stand hard weather and the severe use which children are liable to give anything they come in contact with.

"In the agricultural districts beyond the city proper you can find scores of old cars which have been converted into chicken houses by the vegetable gardeners, who are always on the lookout for bargains in these cast off vehicles. They remove the glass windows, the cushioned slides and thus make the finest possible kind of a chicken house. Hundreds of old cars are doing duty as soda water and peanut stands in various parts of the country. Cars which saw service thirty years ago are now to be seen waiting cars, where passengers can linger while awaiting transportation to other parts. A few such are to be found in Manhattan, but most of them are in New Jersey."—N. Y. Sun.

At Munich there is a hospital which is entirely supported by the sale of old street pens and nibs collected from all parts of Germany. They are made into watch springs, tailors' and makers

TOILET HINTS.

Care of the Complexion and Hands in Winter.

It is very important, especially in the winter time, that the skin should be thoroughly dried after the hands or face have been washed. A soft, dry towel should be used and every trace of moisture removed. Otherwise chapping, roughness and redness are almost sure to ensue.

After walking or driving in an open carriage and always before going to bed the face should be thoroughly washed with warm water to remove all dust. To retire at night with the complexion covered with powder and atmospheric impurities is a practice which greatly impairs beauty. The French are fond of saying that one need not be beautiful, but one must not be ugly. To take care of the teeth, skin and hair, to dress neatly and becomingly and to cultivate so kindly and cheerful a disposition that its reflection softens and brightens the countenance will effectually prevent any woman from being ugly, even if she has not a good feature in her face.

CLOTH COAT.

The illustration shows a coat of mastic cloth, close at the back and half loose in front. It is trimmed with bands of black velvet, which are arranged so that they follow the rounded outline of the coat. Horizontal bands of velvet cover the sleeves. The collar and double revers are of black astrakhan. A black satin skirt is worn, a white mousseline cravat and a hat of black velvet trimmed with white feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

ORNAMENTS.

Trimmings and Jewelry For the Winter Season.

Louis Quinze knots continue to be a favorite device in dress decoration. They are incrusted in velvet on cloth or applied in beads on tulle, and they appear in embroidery of all kinds, forming designs about the edge of bands.

A great deal of jewelry is worn with gowns of almost every sort, but especially with evening costumes. Brooches, barrettes, buckles and clasps are seen, and pins representing flowers, birds, bo-ties, butterflies, etc. They are used in the drapery of the bodice, at the belt, in the cravat, in the hair and upon millinery.

MORNING BLOUSE.

One of the prettiest of hat or hair ornaments is composed of small peacock plumes, the eye of the plume being set with jewels. Fine aigrets are also combined with other feathers very effectively. Butterflies of lace and spangles are also worn in the hair with evening dress.

Black velvet belts, fashionably adopted, are very narrow, except where the buckle is attached. At that point they widen somewhat.

The fancy for making flowers in the picture is of surah. It has a wide collar edged with a band of embroidery and a ruffle of lace, which continues down the front in a double jabot and around the waist. In front the blouse ties with two long ends, also embroidered and bordered with a lace ruffle. The petticoat of heavy silk has two circular ruffles of plain silk edged and headed with silk ruches.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Slanders.

"Never waste time in denying slanders," said the corn fed philosopher. "Start a new slander about some one else, and yours will be forgotten."—Indianapolis Journal.

FASHION HINTS.

Millinery Novelties—The Question of Gloves.

Fur borders on toques and hats are much worn and are usually very becoming.

Fringed scarfs of silk, satin or gauze are a winter millinery novelty which is rather picturesque. The scarf is twisted around the crown of the hat, the fringed ends being allowed to drop a little at the side or back.

The question of gloves is one upon which uncertainty sometimes exists with regard to the proper time of wearing or removing them. It is a rule that they should always be taken off at table when eating whether the meal be luncheon or a full dress dinner. On any informal, friendly occasion the gloves need not be replaced when one returns to the drawing room, but at formal dinners, where evening dress is worn, the gloves are resumed. Men, however, may dispense with them after dinner.

RECEPTION GOWN.

The reception gown shown in the illustration is of blue taffeta. The skirt is sun plaited and has a train, the redingote front of black lace spangled and beaded with jet being open at the back to allow the train to emerge. The back of the bodice is plain, but in front the lace opens over the folds of blue taffeta, which inclose a plastron of black embroidered lace. Across the front is a drapery of black net spangled with jet, which is held in place by chaux and fobus epaulets. The sleeves are of black lace, the little belt of jet and spangles on black silk.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

VARIOUS NOTES.

Fur and Thick Materials—A Dainty Fur.

Fur, which is still on the pinnacle of favor, as it was last winter, is used in several new ways. It composes some very attractive hats. For example, a hat covered, crown and curling brim, with chinchilla is trimmed with a drapery of violet mousseline de soie, and at the left side is a large bunch of violets. Fur boleros are much worn, short pile furs being selected for them. A bolero of otter opens over an ermine plastron and has a flaring ruffler lined with ermine and large ermine cuffs.

Cape mantles are made on the lines of the old fashioned visite. They have no sleeves, but are close about the shoulders and come and are generally stiffly in the figure at the back. The richest materials are employed for them, with equally rich passementeries and applications. They are worn at the theater, for ceremonious calls and at church.

MUSLIN WRAPPER.

The jacket is by no means thrown out of fashionable calculation, however. It has a genuine vogue as a general utility garment, comfortable, warm and convenient, and for walking, shopping, skating, etc., nothing takes its place.

The picture gives a charming wrapper of the finest transparent nainsook. It has lines of valenciennes insertion and is inset with Louis Quinze lace of the finest description. The yoke has long ends, which tie at the back, and is edged all around with a ruffle of valenciennes lace, a similar lace ruffle finishing the end of the wrapper and the edges of the half length sleeves. Down the front is a fine plaiting of nainsook. A colored silk sash is worn beneath.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Adultery.

"Billy, why do you take that homely Miss Hopkins to the opera every night?"

"She don't very pretty, that's true, but she doesn't know any more about music than I do."—Chicago Record.

TRIMMINGS.

Decorations of Greater or Less Elaboration.

The general form of garniture being simple in the extreme, much depends upon originality and variety of trimming, and an immense choice is offered in decorations of all kinds. Passementerie is immensely used and ranges from the narrowest silk gimp arrangements to elaborate mantle trimmings, in which jet, metal threads, lace and fur have a part. Fewer loose or floating ornaments are employed, close applications being preferred. Incrustations of white or yellow guipure are seen on skirts as well as on jokes and plastrons, and detached motifs are cut from the lace and used in the same way.

In some exceedingly elaborate embroidered applications the petals of the flowers are cut out separately and painted by hand, but these are less costly embroideries which are practically quite as effective.

BENGALINE GOWN.

Fur, velvet, lace and mousseline de soie are now combined without hesitation, the old prejudice against putting together these and thick goods having entirely disappeared. Flowers and gauze are as much worn in winter as in summer and no longer seem incongruous.

The picture shows a gown of French blue bengaline. The edge of the skirt is cut in points, falling over a wide band of French blue velvet, and the points are heavily embroidered with blue velvet applications. The blue velvet bodice has a peplum basque, the bengaline sleeves being embroidered with velvet and opening over a velvet plastron of bengaline. Bows of plaited bengaline fasten the bodice. The close sleeves are of velvet, the belt of embroidered bengaline. The hat of French blue felt is trimmed with gray plumes and with a bow of mandarin velvet.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

BODICES.

They May or May Not Be Like the Skirt.

For small evening functions bodices of flowered or corded silk are worn with skirts of plain silk. Sometimes plain velvet with rich applications forms the bodice. The coloring is kept in relation throughout. For example, a skirt of thick pale pink changeable silk is worn with a bolero bodice of garnet velvet, with an open, cut dpsign thrown into relief by a lining of the pink silk.

The bolero claims all seasons for its own and appears year after year in every variety of form and with all sorts of additions and trimmings.

The bodice differing from the skirt clings tenaciously to life and is still well worn, in spite of repeated attempts to suppress it. There are innumerable very attractive silk bodices, ranging from the simple plaited waist of gray silk, with tie to the most elaborate arrangements of lace, embroidery and spangles, to be worn at theaters, concerts or small informal evening parties.

SILK BODICE.

The bodice shown in the picture is of laurel green grosgrain. It is slightly gathered at the waist behind and stretched in front, forming a pretty effect. The yoke is closely shirred, as are the close sleeves, and there is a short, tight bolero of antique guipure, fastened by a brooch. A band of velvet ribbon finishes the corsage. The belt is of moss green velvet, with jeweled buckles and slides, and the collar is also of velvet, with a guipure ruffle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE WINTER MODES.

Perforated Cloth Goes Again in Fashion.

Perforated cloth has come into favor again, but it is now not simply cut in patterns. The perforated design is also embroidered. This cloth is used for toilets and for entire gowns and is made over silk or a contrasting cloth. Black over red and black or light gray over white are the most fashionable combinations. The perforated cloth is often closely applied to the silk lining, the contours of the pattern being stitched to hold the two together. When it is left free, a thickness of gauze is applied under the open goods, interposed between it and the lining.

Delicately tinted silk embroidery with cut-out angles is seen on some of the newest evening gowns.

A great deal of velvet is used for trimming, as, with the exception of lace, it is the only decoration available for materials covered with elaborate designs such as are now much seen. The other more elaborate trimmings are employed upon plain goods.

CLOTH COSTUME.

The gown depicted is of chamois cloth, and the skirt, which has a slight train, is bordered with fur and adorned with heavy applications of mastic cloth. The coat bodice is cut away in front and forms tabs at each side. It is covered with applications of mastic cloth and closed by a large steel button. There is a valois collar ornamented with applications, as are also the sleeves. The revers are of fur and there are cuffs on the wrists. The vest is of mastic cloth with steel buttons and the cravat of white tulle. The hat of chamois felt is trimmed with a drapery of velvet velvet and with turquoise blue quills.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

TAILOR MADE STYLES.

Stitching the Fashionable Form of Decoration.

The tailor made gown is so important a factor in the wardrobe that it must be again referred to, for it is the accepted costume for traveling and walking, although it does not properly appear at more elaborate or ceremonious occasions—formal calls, afternoon "at homes" and similar functions.

While retaining its conventional simplicity of material and cut, the tailor made gown is nevertheless susceptible of considerable variety and may also be decorated a great deal, provided the decoration is of a suitably reserved character. Stitching is at present the ornamentation chiefly favored. Also the newest finish for a gown consists of collar, cuffs and revers of black velvet closely stitched with white silk.

SATIN TOQUE.

With a waist or gown thus trimmed it is considered appropriate to wear a hat also stitched. It may have a flat, stitched brim or may be a toque draped with stitched material. Velvet ribbon for the trimming are also made by folding bands of velvet double, with a stiff interlining, and stitching them lengthwise in many rows. These ribbons are used to form stiff, wingline bows.

An illustration is given which is both a toque of gray cloth. The cloth is laid in plaits and stitched, then draped over a shape. In front is a twist of gray velvet, passing under the brim, and there are also two erect pieces of gray velvet and an ornamental quill having a painted design upon it.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

An Incitement.

Hilton—Congratulate me, old fellow. Miss Sweetser has accepted me, and we are to be married next month. Only think, I was only a mere acquaintance of hers when she declared she wouldn't marry the best man on earth.

Wilton—If she only sticks to that, you are all right.—Boston Transcript.

DELICIOUS ASSURANCE.

The Last Resort of a Modern Verse Composer.

I heard yesterday of a writer whose opinion of the merits of his own work is in no wise affected by the dictum of others. A friend of Oliver Herford, and it is because of this assurance disregard of his for editorial opinion that the most-talked-of verses he has ever written came to be published. They were submitted to the editors of "Life," and they were returned, not once, but, as I remember it, twice. They started on their third journey to "Life," accompanied by a note to the editor.

"My dear Mr. Mitchell," it began, or, come to think of it, I believe it had the confidence to begin, "My dear Mitch," and it continued, "During your recent absence from your office, your office boy has been returning masterpieces, one of which I inclose. Please remit at your earliest convenience."

And the editor did remit.—Exchange.

Won at Last.

The Wicked Man who owed his ruin to the Devil met that personage one day.

"You have wrecked my life by your persuasive ways," said the man ruefully, "but some day I will fool you."

"Pshaw!" laughed the Devil. "You can never get ahead of me."

But the man did. When he died he had his friends cremate him, thus forestalling the Devil.—New York World.

A Wise System.

Saloonist (to new bartender)—One rule of business I want to never fail are more liquor to a man after he has had enough.

Bartender—How am I to know when he has had enough?

Saloonist—As soon as his money gives out.—Baltimore American.

At It Again.

The Savage Bachelor—I don't see why a man should get married when a good parrot can be bought for $15.

The Sweet Young Thing—As usual, woman is at a disadvantage. A good grizzly bear can be bought for less than 10 times that.—Indianapolis Journal.

Fixing the Blame.

He—That Miss Simpkins is awfully shy, isn't she?

She—Yes. I wonder if she gets it from her mother?

He—No; from her father, I imagine. I understand he is noted as a great poker player.—Chicago News.

Ordained.

"There is no reason why a politician should be dishonest."

"No; it's just one of those things that happens. There is no particular reason why grass shouldn't be black; but it's green, just the same."—Philadelphia North American.

Angel Cake.

Mr. Newlywed—What is this I am eating, dearest?

Mrs. Newlywed—That is angel cake, darling.

Mr. Newlywed—Ha! See me make it fly.—Philadelphia Record.

Cautionary.

(Slipping the ring on her finger)—Let's get married a little while, darling. Don't say anything about it. (In a whisper)—I won't, love—(I find out whether the engine is genuine or not.—Chicago Tribune.

The Classic Snooze.

Dingman—We are to have no more Wagner evenings ours.

Higgins—No, sir. The snorers in the berths will continue to render Wagner selections just the same.—Baltimore American.

Then She Went Out.

Tom—What do you think she did when I asked her to let me be the light of her life?

Dick—I don't know. What?"

Tom—Turned me down.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Must Stand Together.

Katie—Don't you think the white goose is ever so much prettier than the others?

Bessie—No. And if I did think so I wouldn't say so. He's the gander!—Chicago Tribune.

One Way of Getting It.

"The only trouble with Plimmer is he lacks push."

"Well, he's overtaking that now. I've been riding with the baby carriage several times lately."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

His Benefactor.

Every old maid has at least one consolation."

"And what's that, pray?"

"She has helped some man to enjoy single blessedness."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Took Him Up.

She—Will you buy me that hat?

He—My precious little—

She—Look here! You can either buy me that hat or you can love me precious little!—New York Press.

For Mercy's Sake.

"His wife's name is Mercy. She keeps him busy, too."

"Indeed?"

"Why, running on errands of Mercy."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Rural Wit.

Visitor—Tell say those two Hill brothers are deaf and dumb?

Native—Yaas. We allers call 'em that when Bill's without a holler.—Indianapolis Journal.

The Tie That Binds.

"Do you favor trusts?"

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum. "I see. You mean Cupid's combine."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Strictly Defense.

"Define divorce."

"It's defined in the ragtime melody."—Chicago Record.

GEORGIE'S STORY.

He Tells How Paw Learned to Doctor the Baby.

"I like to sa," says Paw, "How the hed of a Family Kin ern a Liven in the Day time if He Don't git no Rest at nite. Here I am paying fifteen Dollars a Week for a House that I Don't need to no Enny more about a Baby that me and Not Half as much Becos I had two Before this one. It's a Blame swindel, all them Nurse Girls and Nonsense they go into in the sitty. Look at our Mother Out in the country. They Didn't Haft to have no Profite like these when the Pore-ist we Gittin are Being they Haf to Bild a naddishen onto the house Every year or so. But you Got to have a trained nurse or Else you Won't be Enny in Society enny more Than of you Done your own Housework and Didn't go round tellin' Folks it was Becos you advertised ate times for a Hired Gurl and never got a nanser."

The nurse Told paw he wasen't Fit to be a fawther, and he was agoin' to Walk Back, only Uncle albert thrown a Tooth Brush at the pupp and nocked a Hole thru one of the Windows, so they dropt the Subject.

After Dinner Aunt Fanny came in and when she Herd about the Baby be in sick she says:

"You must stop given it that kind of food rite away. When my little Florence was borned she had the same kind of Trubble, so I fed her condensed milk and she cum thru all rite."

Then Mrs. Rawson and Mrs. Pond came in.

When paw named Mrs. Rawson sed when she Told Her about the Condensed milk: "Don't give her That. It would Kill the poor Little Thing. I always Bring my Babies up on Stunby's cow's milk. That's What they never Give me a Bit of trubble."

"I wouldent Dare to give no child of mine that kind of stuff," Mrs. Pond told paw. "I always Feed it from Clean Cucumbers and be Done with it. They ain't nothink Like Malted milk for a Baby with the Cullick, and if the nurse Thinks Different she would of knowed it at the start."

They was about Half a Dozen other Ladies Come in and paw was Thinkin about it to tell Him what of to Do dons, and nerely all of them sed they Had the Best Dockter on erth and paw ort to Send for Him at once. It is Late or he wouldent Have no luck with the Child.

After they all Got thru paw went to the Basket where the Baby was Sleepin as peaceful as a Lam, and looked at it a Long time, and then He went out in the Hall, and got little albert's drum and Stick Journal it and Jump up and down and Sing git Your mummy's Wurth.

Purty soon After that the Dockter come, and Him and the Nurse sneeked up Behind and the Furst thing paw now the Dockter was Holdin his arms Past to His Side and tryin to push Him into a closet where they wanted to Lock him up.

"Here, confound It," paw Hollered, "what are you tryin to Do?"

"Be Cam," the Dockter told Him. "We are your friends. We are Goin to Purtect you. It's all rite."

"No, it ain't," paw Hollered. "You may think it is, But I ain't Payin You three dollars a Visit to Come Here and Try to play Horse with me."

By this time The Dockter seen paw wasent Crazy so he let go and ast what he ment by makin Such a Racket.

"I was a-tryin to tell you what Uncle albert the Day time so it would Give a person a Chanct to sleap a Little at nite," paw told him.

"Then Take it all Back," the Dockter sed. "I thot the Wimmen what are alwais Cummen in and Tellen what to Do with the Babies was the Worst Fools on earth, But they ain't. GEORGIE.

—In Chicago Times-Herald.

An Extinguisher.

Thump, thump! Rattle, rattle, crash! Young Percey Stonebroke rolled down the steps of the palatial residence of Mr. Goldbonds.

Mr. Goldbonds returned to the house, rolling down his sleeves.

"Percy, papa, what have you been doing?

This question came in anguished tones from the ruby lips of Arabella Goldbonds.

"Putting out the light of your life," answered papa, who had done a little saving-clipping in the hall the night before.—Baltimore American.

Natural Results.

"I understand that many of the volunteers for the Philippine islands are getting married," said Cawker.

"It would not be strange if some marriages followed so many engagements," added Cumso.—Detroit Free Press.

Couldn't Be Disputed.

Hoax—There goes a woman whose husband has had one foot in the grave for many years.

Joax—Why, I thought he was dead.

Hoax—So he is, but he was a one-legged man.—Philadelphia Record.

An Early Attraction.

Overheard in the Garden of Eden—

Adam—Where's your mother? I'm getting awfully lonesome for company.

Little Cain—She went out about four hours ago, and said there was a bargain sale at the fig-leaf counter.—Philadelphia Record.

Trop de Zele.

Proprietor (to editor)—Well, the first number of your paper looked well, but here is one thing I don't like.

"What?"

"Why, this communication signed 'An Old Subscriber.'"—Collier's Weekly.

Well Recommended.

He—So Miss Prettyface really married old Moneybags! Whatever induced her to do it?

She—She found out from his doctor that he positively has a curable heart disease.—New York Wor.d.

A Leisure Class Ornament.

"What a petted ale your cat has, Mrs. Slimmer."

"Yes; she used to catch mice—think of it! But we've fed her so well that she quit."—Indianapolis Journal.

Safe.

"Dispra-eful! I should think society would turn him down."

"No danger—of that. He's one of the high tighes." —Philadelphia Bulletin.

WOMEN AND HOME

Useful Things to Know.

General tidiness not only pays on its own account, but because to be tidy is to be economical. It is the few things, not the many, that have most influence on the household purse. Therefore observe carefully, arrange methodically, and keep at it, are useful things to know how to do.

Who ever regretted their mother's teachings in making us prompt, neat, industrious and economical? Some of the little things learned at home help to make us good housewives, and there are a few practical helps which may be of use to young beginners, who have to go through the lesson of life.

It is the wise woman who keeps posted in the small economies of the home, and knows where leaks are to occur. An inch in time saves a pound—a new binding goes on the frayed skirt, gloves are pulled smoothly into shape and have a spectacle of their own. The ruffled flounce, carefully ripped from last year's hat and packed away in boxes. Crushed velvet is made to look as good as new at times of general other cleaning. When a more thorough cleaning is necessary use any good silver polish, but rub lightly, as the bright lustre when worn dull will not polish well again.

Silver washed after each meal in very hot water, with a spoonful of ammonia in the water, will be bright and shining for one of the

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force. Editor and Proprietor

The Silk Industry.

The manufacture of silk is one of the "infant industries" of Plainfield at the present time, but as time passes it will undoubtedly increase and may eventually rank as the leading industry of the city. Be that as it may, it is interesting to know something of the manufacture of silk as it concerns New Jersey, and in this respect the report of the Bureau of Statistics, which has been compiled by Chief William Stainsby, will be interesting.

The report shows that more than twenty millions of capital are invested in silk manufacturing and allied interests. The number of separate concerns and the amount of capital is larger now than ever before. The value of the product is nearly double what it was ten years ago and more than three and one half times as great as in 1870 in spite of the fact that the tendency has been during this period to locate important branches of the industry in other States.

The value of the manufactured silk product is one half again as large as the total value of farm products in New Jersey, according to the United States census of that year Thousands of people are given employment in this great industry for the year 1899, for which this record is made, more than ever before, and the average paid in wages is higher than in preceding years. The total number of hands employed in 1899 was 26,045, against 17,317 in 1890 and 12,549 in 1880.

The facts rehearsed above show that the silk industry is one of the biggest and most valuable lines of manufacture followed by Jerseymen, and one worth fostering with care and enterprise. Plainfield has started in a small way in this line of trade, and judging by the experience of communities whose industrial activity has been turned into the manufacture of silk it will be worth the while of every citizen to aid the industry all that is possible.

The Rendition of "The Messiah."

The fact that the large auditorium of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church was crowded to the doors, and so many more persons were turned away unable to gain admittance, at the public rendition of Handel's sublime oratorio "The Messiah," testifies more than anything else to the great success of the popular movement that led to this impressive musical service.

Since there was nothing exclusive about the event, and the talent was equal in every respect to that evidenced in any previous musical rendition of this kind effort, it can be regarded as one of the greatest musical affairs held here in recent years.

The committee that has had the management of the affair in hand deserve unstinted praise for the excellence with which their efforts were rewarded both at the rehearsal Tuesday evening and again at the public rendition last evening. The expense involved in the two performances reaches the sum of $600, every penny of which was raised by private subscription. Though it was not an easy thing to secure the assurance of such a fund, those who undertook the work express great gratification over the the readiness and liberality with which their appeals were responded to by the Plainfielders who were sought to aid the movement.

The great numbers who had the pleasure of hearing "The Messiah" sung in such glorious and inspiring manner, should be appreciative of the unselfish labor and energy that this fact involves while yet praising the performance itself. On the other hand the contributors to the fund will undoubtedly find ample gratification in their giving by realizing that in so doing they have aided in one of the most notable and up-lifting musical services ever held in Plainfield—one which the great throngs that clamored for a chance to hear affords evidence of its perfect success.

As the originator of the idea of the popular rendition of the oratorio, and as one who has devoted a great deal of personal attention to the preliminary details, Rev. W. R. Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, deserves great credit.

Shopping Made Easy.

There is no need for shoppers to fatigue themselves by going from store to store in the endeavor to find what they want or to decide what to buy says the Philadelphia Record. With their favorite newspaper in their hands they have spread before them for convenient inspection, as it were all the prominent stores in this city, with all their desirable contents. The merchant who wants customers advertises.

The Backward Step.

As a musician by continuous practice keeps himself from falling off in skill, so the merchant preserves the full measure of his traffic by persistent advertising, says the Philadelphia Record. In business it is easier to take a step backward than to regain lost ground. The merchant who discontinues advertising takes the backward step.

"Freeholder" in the New York Press says that estimates put the increase of population in this State since 1890 all the way from 100 000 to 200 000. The work of taking the census scarcely has begun, but the sanguine Jerseyman is certain that there has been a tremendous growth. If the number of industries has increased by half in ten years it is figured that the population has grown at least a sixth greater. The largest increases probably will be found in Essex, Hudson, Passaic and Union. Of the cities Newark, Paterson, Jersey City, Elizabeth, Trenton, Camden, Plainfield and Perth Amboy will show large additions in population.

BLOWN FROM A TRAIN.

South Plainfield Boy Stealing a Ride When the Wind Took the Part of the Railroad Company.

Early Sunday evening Fred Arrowsmith, aged about twenty years, a resident of South Plainfield, a machinist by trade, was taken from his home to the hospital in an ambulance, suffering from severe scalp wounds received about 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon while stealing a ride on a freight train on the Lehigh Valley railroad from his home to Roselle to see a friend.

At the time the wind was blowing a gale and young Arrowsmith was standing between two freight cars. He held on as best he could, but as the train passed through Picton he suddenly lost his hold and the wind blew him from the train. He landed on his head, where most of his injuries were received. When he was found soon afterward he was in a semi-conscious condition but was able to tell his residence. He was then taken home, from which place he was taken to the hospital. This course was decided best for the injuries were such that proper treatment could not be given home. At the hospital an examination proved that the skull was not injured, and chances of complete recovery are almost assured. Monday he was doing well and when his folks called to see him he was able to converse a little.

MRS. F. E. KINSMAN DEAD

Succumbed to an Illness That Extended Over a Period of Over Two Years.

After an illness of the most intense suffering for the last two years during which time a noble fight was made for life, Mrs. Florence Kinsman, aged 48 years, wife of F. E. Kinsman, of Sherman ave nue, succumbed to the disease that was rapidly taking her life away, and died Christmas morning at 4:30 o'clock. Although she underwent an operation in New York a year ago last October under the direction of Dr. McGosh, who said that she could not possibly live long r than the following April, she rallied and her life was prolonged. Several times afterward she was given up, but it was not until last Saturday night at 11:30 o'clock when Dr. Endicott, the family physician, said that she could not live much longer, that she gave up hope. During Sunday she recognized her family occasionally, but for the most part she was unconscious.

Mrs. Kinsman was the daughter of the late Rev. Samuel T. Hillman, of New York, who died three years ago. She has been a resident of this city seventeen years, where she was well known and highly esteemed. She was a faithful member and regular attend ant at the First Baptist church and an exemplary Christian woman. For the past six months she had been unable to leave the house. The funeral services were held in the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock and interment took place in the family plot at Leominster, Mass., yesterday. A husband, son and two daughters survive her.

Death of One of Plainfield's Oldest Firemen.

James F. G. Fraser, for many years a resident of Plainfield, engaged in the carpentry business, a member of Gazelle Engine Company, and for several years one of the chief engineers of the fire department, died Sunday at his home in Brooklyn, after a long illness. The funeral services were held last Tuesday from the home of one of his daughters, Mrs. E. Gruenberge, 1372 Bushwick avenue, at 8 o'clock and interment took place Wednesday afternoon in Evergreen Cemetery.

Over 1,000 Sacks of Holiday Mail.

A fair idea of the amount of mail matter received and sent out of Plainfield during last week can be obtained when it is known that from Wednesday to Sunday morning over thirteen hundred sacks of mail were handled by Mail Messenger Priebis. This includes that going out and coming in. From last Wednesday to Saturday evening 630 sacks of mail were sent out, and from Wednesday to Sunday morning 507 were received.

THE POOR MADE HAPPY.

CHRISTMAS TREE AT THE HOME OF MRS. W. A. WOODRUFF.

Tree Was Lighted Saturday Night and Presents Distributed to 150 Children—Mrs. Woodruff Resigns Her Position.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Wm A. Woodruff, superintendent of the Organized Aid Association, and the generosity of some of Plainfield's benevolent citizens, many poor children and families of those who are classed as indigent, were enabled to enjoy a very merry Christmas. As has been the custom for a few years to remember the city's unfortunates, a Christmas tree was provided at Mrs. Woodruff's home on East Second street. Upon this tree were placed gifts suitable for the children.

The tree was trimmed and lighted and Saturday afternoon the children were invited to Mrs. Woodruff's to enjoy its beauties and receive kind remembrances from those who had contributed towards the pleasant event. There were presents, besides popcorn and oranges, for 150 children, representing 73 families. Besides this number, 10 poor families were helped to good Christmas dinners. Many of the donations for this joyous happiness for the little ones and their parents came through the Sunday-school of Trinity Reformed church. Besides the contributions to the general fund for this Christmas tree some of the classes of the Trinity Sunday-school took it upon themselves to remember poor families which Mrs. Woodruff recommended to be worthy.

Owing to ill health Mrs. Woodruff has been compelled to resign her position to take effect January first. Her successor has not yet been appointed. Mrs. Woodruff's untiring zeal in the noble work in which she has been engaged in the past six years is highly commendable to her self sacrificing spirit. The poor children of the city will, indeed, miss her kind offices.

VERY LIGHT SENTENCE.

MRS. FINGERHUTH WILL NOT GO TO STATE'S PRISON.

Judge Magie Sentenced Her to Six Months Less One Day in Jail and to $500 Fine—Time will Be Served in County Jail.

The recommendation for mercy of the jury that convicted Mrs. Henrietta Fingerhuth of manslaughter had its effect. Tuesday morning she was sentenced by Chief Justice Magie to go to the county jail for six months less one day and to pay a fine o. $500. In default of her fine, she will serve time instead.

Mrs. Fingerhuth was brought into court Tuesday A. M. at 10:45 o'clock when sentence was pronounced. She took it very coolly. Neither her husband nor son were present. Judge Magie arranged the sentence that she can remain in the county jail here instead of going to State prison.

A term of six months or more necessitates the removal of the prisoner to the State prison. So she received six months less one day. As she has no money with which to pay the fine, she can serve time at the rate of a dollar a day.

Mrs. Fingerhuth afterwards expressed herself satisfied as long as she could stay in the jail here and not go to State prison. She is now the only occupant of the women's ward in the jail here.

PULLED HIS TRUSTY GUN.

Christmas Cheer From a Tin Can Made Watson Randolph Overstep Bounds of Propriety.

There was very much Christmas in Fairchild's store Monday. The fact of it was Watson Randolph had too much Christmas and thereby forgot what he doing. Tuesday he began to realize that he had overstepped the bounds of property when he drew a revolver and started in to make a selve of William Marsh.

The trouble occurred in Mrs. Jennie Jefferson's home in the alley. Her husband was away and she entertained a select number of guests during the afternoon and evening. The "growler" was brought into frequent requisition. At last Watson called another colored guest some names and when his hostess objected he started in to hammer her face.

William Marsh stepped between and Watson drew his gun. Marsh immediately got under the gun and prevented a fatality. Patrolman Saunders was summoned and found Randolph quietly reposing under a bed.

Monday, the Judge fined Randolph $5, and suspended sentence on Marsh.

Beauty is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clear skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean your blood by making it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to get beautiful. Ten cents buys Cascarets, and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets quickly for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

Presentation to a Teacher.

The teachers of the primary department of the Sunday school of Trinity Reformed church, Christmas morning, presented to Mrs. Josephine Tee, the superintendent, a handsome picture, elaborately framed, entitled "The Shepherdess Leading Her Sheep."

HARD LUCK FOR "CACK."

FAMOUS CRAP SHOOTER TO SOJOURN THREE MONTHS IN JAIL.

When Solomon Lewis, His Stepfather, Ordered Him Out of the House, Carter Threatened to Take His Life.

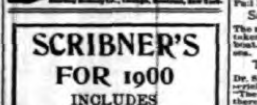
Plainfield will be deprived of the pleasure of the company of the illustrious "Cack" Carter for another three months. But in his departure "Cack," as usual, furnished some excitement. He gave the throng of Christmas shoppers, who crowded Front street Saturday evening, the privilege of witnessing a race that for real excitement far surpassed the famous chariot race in "Ben Hur."

Last Wednesday "Cack" was gently but firmly requested by his stepfather, Solomon Lewis, to keep away from his father's home on East Third street now and forever. "Cack" and his stepfather, it will be remembered, have had some trouble and the former has been serving a term for burglarizing the Lewis home.

When Cack was ordered out, he drew a knife and threatened to carve Solomon's heart out. So a warrant was issued and given to Patrolman McCarty to serve Saturday night. McCarty spotted his man on Front street about 9 o'clock. Then "Cack" bolted with the officer in pursuit.

The chase continued out West Front street when "Cack" doubled and came back to Voehl's alley. He dodged in there and sprinted through Second street. McCarty led the van and over a hundred men and boys joined in the hunt. At last, the fleet-footed policeman overhauled Carter and Plainfield's crack crap shooter was lodged in jail. Monday morning "Cack" was sentenced to fifty days in jail and to pay a fine of $60.

—Sunday afternoon, December 31st, there will be held in the W. C. T. U. rooms a meeting for the G. A. R., of this city. Rev. Dr. W. G. Nelson, of the borough, will deliver a patriotic address, and there will be special music.



SCRIBNER'S FOR 1900

INCLUDES

J. M. BARRIE'S "Tommy and Grizel" (serial)

THEODORE ROOSEVELT'S "OLIVER CROMWELL" (serial)

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS'S fiction and special articles

HENRY NORMAN'S The Russia of to-day

Articles by WALTER A. WYCKOFF, author of "The Workers"

SHORT STORIES by Thomas Nelson Page, Henry James, Henry van Dyke, Ernest Seton-Thompson, Edith Wharton, Octave Thanet, William Allen White

SPECIAL ARTICLES The Paris Exposition

FREDERIC IRELAND'S articles on sport and exploration

"HARVARD FIFTY YEARS AGO," by Senator Hoar

NOTABLE ART FEATURES—THE CROMWELL ILLUSTRATIONS by celebrated American and foreign artists

PUVIS DE CHAVANNES by JOHN LAFARGE (illustration in color)

SPECIAL Illustrative schemes (in color and in black and white) by WALTER APPLETON CLARK, E. C. PEIXOTTO, HENRY McCARTER, DWIGHT L. ELMENDORF and others

Illustrated Prospectus sent free to any address

Charles Scribner's Sons, Publishers, New York.

DYSPEPSIA

"For over twenty I was a victim of Dyspepsia in its worst form. I had given up all hope of ever being cured, and thought I would suffer until death relieved me. I was induced to try CASCARETS, and before I had used one box I felt that they were helping me. I used them for a year and a half, and was entirely cured."

DAVID E. KUSSEY, Detroit, O.

CANDY CATHARTIC

Cascarets

REGULATE THE LIVER

Prevent Pimples, Poison, Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c.

CURE CONSTIPATION.

Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York. 311

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to cure Tobacco Habit.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE

In 1900

NOVELTY IN LITERARY AND ART FEATURES

PRINTING IN COLOR.

THE BEST ILLUSTRATIONS, with Cole's Engravings and Castaigne's Drawings.

A New and Superbly Illustrated

LIFE OF CROMWELL

By the Right Hon. John Morley, M. P.

THE conductors of THE CENTURY take especial pleasure in announcing that an important work by Mr. Morley will appear in the magazine during 1900. No man is more competent than John Morley, who was selected by Mr. Gladstone, and has written a biography of Gladstone, to treat Cromwell in the spirit of the statesman and of the historian.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS

will be remarkable. Besides original drawings, there will be valuable unpublished portraits of Cromwell and his contemporaries, owned by the Duke of Portland.

Ernest Seton-Thompson's

"Biography of a Grizzly," delightfully illustrated by the artist-author,—the longest and most important work yet published by the author of "Wild Animals I Have Known."

Paris, Illustrated by Castaigne.

A series of papers for the Napoleonic year. Mr. Castaigne's drawings of "The Paris Street," splendidly illustrated with notes by Richard Harding Davis, Paul Bourget, Castaigne, and other writers of the Paris Exposition.

London, Illustrated by Phil May.

A series of papers on the East End of London by Sir Walter Besant, with pictures by Phil May and others.

Sailing Alone Around the World.

The record of a voyage of 46,000 miles undertaken single-handed and alone in a 40-foot boat. A most delightful autobiography of the sea.

The Author of "Hugh Wynne."

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, will furnish a short serial of a remarkable psychological character. "The Autobiography of a Quack," and there will be short stories by all the leading writers.

A Chapter from Mark Twain's Abandoned Autobiography.

Literary Reminiscences.

Familiar accounts of Tennyson, Browning, Lowell, Emerson, Bryant, Whittier and Holmes.

Important Papers.

By Governor Theodore Roosevelt, President Eliot, of Harvard University, Thomas Nelson Page, Woodrow Wilson, John Burroughs, and others.

American Secret History.

A series of papers of commanding interest.

The Art Work of the Century.

It is everywhere conceded that THE CENTURY has led the world in art. Timothy Cole's unique and beautiful wood blocks will continue to be a feature, with the work of many other engravers who have made the improved wood engraving of the last decade a complete—engraved by wood engravers—for THE CENTURY's readers. In the school, will appear with new methods of printing and illustrating.

Begin new subscriptions with November. Price $4.00 a year. Subscribe through dealers or remit to the publishers.

THE CENTURY CO., UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK.

The best of all Children's Magazines.—London Spectator.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR YOUNG FOLKS.

A Monthly Magazine Edited by MARY MAPES DODGE.

For 1900 A Splendid Program of Art, Literature and Fun

TEN LONG STORIES, by Mary McNeery Stuart, Mary Mapes Dodge, Elizabeth S. Phelps, and other well-known writers, complete in One Number.

A SERIAL STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "LADDIE" SKYLARK, &c. (Mrs. Dorothea Gerard) New York.

A SERIAL STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "DENISE AND HER TOMBOY," a capital story for girls.

A SERIAL STORY OF ATHLETICS.

A SERIAL STORY FOR LITTLE CHILDREN

STORIES OF RAILROAD LIFE.

AN IMPORTANT HISTORICAL SERIAL of Colonial Life, by Everett T. Tomlinson, author of "The Century Book of Famous Americans," &c.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, Governor of New York and Colonel of the Rough Riders, promises to contribute a paper on "What American Experts Say of Her Boys."

IAN MACLAREN, JOHN BURROUGHS, and many other well-known writers will contribute.

NATURE AND SCIENCE FOR YOUNG FOLKS will soon be begun as a new department.

ST. NICHOLAS LEAGUE. Readers and Membership Prizes. Send for leaflet.

FUN AND FROLIC, both in prose and verse, pictures and puzzles, will be, as always, a striking feature of St. Nicholas.

Everything Illustrated.

A Free Sample Copy on Request.

Remember begins the new volume. Price $3.00. All dealers receive subscriptions, or remittance may be made direct to the publishers.

THE CENTURY CO., Union Square, New York.

CLEARING SALE OF PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of good second hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7 Octave Square	$ 40
7¼ "	75
7¼ " Upright	150
7¼ "	165
7¼ " Hallet & Davis	190
7¼ "	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20 $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

Second up, and 3 years' time if you want it. Or my matchless Hallet Grands, all improvements. $350—$7 per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,

94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

1831 Seventieth Year. 1900

THE Country Gentleman.

THE ONLY Agricultural NEWSpaper, AND ADMITTEDLY THE Leading Agricultural Journal of the World.

Every department written by specialists, the highest authorities in their respective lines.

No other paper pretends to compete with it in qualifications or editorial staff.

Gives the latest and most reliable Crop Reports of full—new and corn, because not even all—Bureau of the Crops.

Best Market Reports. Best Accounts of Markets. Best Everything

Indispensable To All Country Residents WHO WISH TO KEEP UP WITH THE TIMES.

Single Subscription, $2; Two Subscriptions, $3 50; Four Subscriptions, $6.

Special Inducements to Raisers of Larger Clubs.

Write for particulars on the point Club or Agents Wanted everywhere.

Four Months Trial Trip 50 cents

SPECIMEN COPIES

will be mailed free on request. It will pay anybody to send for them. Address as above.

LUTHER TUCKER & SON, 10 29 S ALBANY, N. Y.

P. P. VanArsdale, PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 180, or left at Wiley's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 F. Front street, corner Elm street. 9 3 97

GEORGE W. DAY, General Auctioneer

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 139, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. B. CODINGTON, Counsellor-at-Law,

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Office Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

Children Teething

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa.

Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POST OFFICE.

NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7:30, 9:15, 11:20 a. m.; 12:30, 3:00, 5:30 p. m. Close—7:30, 9:30 a. m.; 12:00, 1:00, 3:00, 6:00 p. m.

SOMERVILLE and EASTON.

Arrive—8:15 a. m., 12:00 and 6:30 p. m. Close—8:30 a. m., 12:00 and 6:30 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7:30, 9:15, 11:20 a. m.; 12:30 and 6:30 p. m. Close—7:30, 9:30 a. m.; 12:00, 1:00, 3:00 p. m.

Through mail for West and South, close at 1:00 p. m.

WARRENVILLE.

Arrive—12:30 p. m. Close—12:00 m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9 to 10 a. m. Mail closes at 4:30 p. m.

E. H. HEDGES, P. M.

CLEARING SALE OF PIANOS

We are Closing

out a number of good second hand pianos at extremely low prices, and on easy terms of payment. Now is the time to get a bargain.

7 Octave Square	$ 40
7¼ "	75
7¼ " Upright	150
7¼ "	165
7¼ " Hallet & Davis	190
7¼ "	210

ON PAYMENTS $3 to $8 MONTHLY.

Lot of good second-hand Organs at $20 $25 and upward, $4 per month.

A large assortment of elegant new

Hallet & Davis

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

Second up, and 3 years' time if you want it. Or my matchless Hallet Grands, all improvements. $350—$7 per month.

Free music and Catalogue for the asking.

THE W. F. TWAY PIANO CO.,

94 Fifth Avenue, New York.

1831 Seventieth Year. 1900

THE Country Gentleman.

THE ONLY Agricultural NEWSpaper, AND ADMITTEDLY THE Leading Agricultural Journal of the World.

Every department written by specialists, the highest authorities in their respective lines.

No other paper pretends to compete with it in qualifications or editorial staff.

Gives the latest and most reliable Crop Reports of full—new and corn, because not even all—Bureau of the Crops.

Best Market Reports. Best Accounts of Markets. Best Everything

Indispensable To All Country Residents WHO WISH TO KEEP UP WITH THE TIMES.

Single Subscription, $2; Two Subscriptions, $3 50; Four Subscriptions, $6.

Special Inducements to Raisers of Larger Clubs.

Write for particulars on the point Club or Agents Wanted everywhere.

Four Months Trial Trip 50 cents

SPECIMEN COPIES

will be mailed free on request. It will pay anybody to send for them. Address as above.

LUTHER TUCKER & SON, 10 29 S ALBANY, N. Y.

P. P. VanArsdale, PIANO TUNER.

Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let. Orders by postal, P. O. box 180, or left at Wiley's shoe store, No. 107 Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence 301 F. Front street, corner Elm street. 9 3 97

GEORGE W. DAY, General Auctioneer

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 139, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

W. B. CODINGTON, Counsellor-at-Law,

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Office Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

Children Teething

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over Fifty Years by Millions of Mothers for their Children while Teething, with Perfect Success. It Soothes the Child, Softens the Gums, Allays all Pain, Cures Wind Colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa.

Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Central R. R. of New Jersey

Anthracite Coal Used Exclusively, Insuring Comfort and Cleanliness.

Stations in New York, Foot of Liberty, and South Ferry Whitehall Terminal.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT NOV. 19th, 1899.

For New York 2:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 a. m., 12:30, 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 p. m. Sunday at 2:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 a. m., 12:30, 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 p. m.

For Newark at 2:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 a. m., 12:30, 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 p. m. Sunday at 2:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 a. m., 12:30, 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 p. m.

For Long Branch, Ocean Grove, etc., 8:30 a. m.

WESTWARD CONNECTIONS.

8:30 a. m.—For Phillipsburg, Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Tamaqua, Upper Lehigh, Harrisburg, Pittsburg, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

7:30 a. m.—For stations in North Jersey, connecting with Lehigh Valley railroad for Wilkesbarre and principal points in the Lehigh coal region.

8:30 a. m.—For Flemington, D. L. & W. R. R. branch, Washington and Mauch Chunk.

9:30 a. m.—For Phillipsburg, Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Harrisburg, Pittsburg, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

4:30 p. m.—For Phillipsburg, Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Harrisburg, Pittsburg, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

4:30 p. m.—For Flemington and Junction.

5:30 p. m.—For Easton and Phillipsburg.

6:30 p. m.—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Harrisburg, Pittsburg, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

7:30 p. m.—For Easton and Phillipsburg.

8:30 p. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Harrisburg, Pittsburg, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

9:30 p. m. Sundays—For Flemington and Junction.

10:30 p. m.—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Harrisburg, Pittsburg, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

11:30 p. m. Sundays—For Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, St. Johns, Harrisburg, Pittsburg, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

For Long Branch, Ocean Grove, etc., 8:30 a. m.

For Lakewood, Toms River and Seaside, 2:30, 8:30 a. m.; 1:45, 3:45 p. m. Sundays 8:30 a. m.

ROYAL BLUE LINE.

Leave Plainfield for Philadelphia, 2:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30 a. m., 12:30, 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 p. m. Sundays 2:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 a. m., 12:30, 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 p. m. Sundays 2:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 a. m., 12:30, 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 p. m.

For Philadelphia, 2:30, 8:30 a. m.; 1:45, 3:45, 5:30 p. m. Sundays 8:30 a. m.

For Lakewood, Toms River and Seaside, 2:30, 8:30 a. m.; 1:45, 3:45 p. m. Sundays 8:30 a. m.

For Baltimore and Washington at 2:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 a. m., 12:30, 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 p. m. Sundays 2:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 a. m., 12:30, 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30 p. m.

For Buffalo, Chicago and all points West, leave Plainfield at 9:30 a. m., 1:30, 6:30 p. m. (Pullman parlor and sleeping cars to Buffalo and Chicago.)

(Pullman passenger cars on trains marked.)

Through tickets to all points at lowest rates may be had on application to agents at the stations, or address

J. H. OLMSTEAD, General Superintendent.

M. P. BALDWIN, General Passenger Agent.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect Nov. 19, 1899.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Time given for Plainfield is leaving time of stage from City Ticket Office, 20 West Front street, allowing for connection with trains at South Plainfield.

Leave South Plainfield 7:00 a. m.

Leave South Plainfield 8:00 a. m.

Daily express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

Leave Plainfield 12:10 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 12:15 p. m.

Daily except Sunday, Black Diamond Express for Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

Leave Plainfield 4:00 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 4:05 p. m.

Daily, Weekdays only, for Niagara Falls, Chicago and principal intermediate stations.

Leave Plainfield 6:15 p. m.

Leave South Plainfield 6:20 p. m.

Daily, Exposition Express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto.

The stages will also meet Eastbound trains 8, 6, 12, 4 and 10.

For rates of local trains see pocket time-tables. Telephone No. 125-2.

ROLLIN H. WILBUR, General Superintendent.

CHAS. S. LEE, General Passenger Agent.

26 Cortlandt St., New York.

FRANK NORTHEY, City Ticket Agent, 236 West Front St., Plainfield, N. J.

BEHIND THE OLD RELIABLE

Woolston & Buckle, PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

For sale by all druggists. L. W. Bandolph, Wholesale Agent.

YULETIDE SPIRIT IN THE CHURCHES.

Special Christmas Programmes Were Carried Out.

LITTLE PEOPLE TOOK PART.

MUSIC FORMED BRIGHT PARTS OF THE EXERCISES.

The Day of the Nativity of the Redeemer Made a Significant One This Year — Appropriate Sermons Were Heard for the Holiday — Inclement Weather Interfered With the Services.

The usual Christmas services were held at the First Baptist church Sunday morning and afternoon, but the very stormy weather interferred materially with the attendance. In the morning there were about seventy worshippers present to enjoy the fine music arranged for the occasion. In the afternoon the attendance was much larger and the service was under the direction of the Sunday-schools. The church was appropriately decorated for the event, and consisted of a large star of evergreen illuminated with incandescent lights, while about the platform was an arrangement of potted plants and palms. In the morning the regular choir rendered a special programme of anthems, while there was solo work of a superior excellence by Miss Hart, soprano; Mrs. Ward, contralto; William Grimes, bass, and George Smith, tenor. Dr. Perkes delivered an intensely interesting sermon in harmony with the occasion.

The afternoon service was very interesting and the programme included prelude, trio, procession from "Lobegrette," organ, piano and violin; carol, "Jesus Is His Name;" invocation, Dr. D. J. Yerkes; anthem, choir; responsive reading, led by the superintendent, G. H. Batchelor; carol, "Christ Was Once a Little Baby," primary department; prayer, Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church; carol, "Once in Bethlehem of Judah;" Scripture response and song, "Story of Scripture," intermediate department; offertory, trio, "Barcarolle," organ, piano and violin; reading, Miss Bertha Whitney; contralto solo, "The Christ Child," Mrs. Ward; responsive reading, led by M. C. Dobbins, superintendent of the Mt. Olive Sunday school; carol, "'Tis the Birthday of Our Saviour;" responsive reading, led by W. Bodine, superintendent of the East Third Street mission; carol, "The Day of All the Year;" postlude, trio, from "A Sonata," organ, piano and violin. Howard Case presided at the organ. Mrs. R. T. Barnes at the piano, while P. Ludwig Conde played the violin, L. H. Bigelow, Jr., led the singing, while Mrs. Powlison and Mrs. Harold Serrell had charge of the primary and intermediate departments respectfully. There was no evening service. Special mention should be made of the part taken in the programme by Miss Bertha Whitney, who gave an appropriate reading.

TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH.

The severe storm on Sunday morning prevented a large attendance at the churches throughout the city. At the 10:30 o'clock service at, Trinity Reformed church, seventy-five persons however gathered to worship, which is considered a good number.

The edifice was beautifully and artistically decorated by Mrs. L. J. Dutcher who was assisted by a committee of ladies and gentlemen. There were two stately trees on either side of the pulpit and numerous palms were used the whole presenting a very pretty effect. Between the trees and immediately over the pulpit desk was suspended in large white letters the words "Son of the Highest," standing out boldly as you entered the church door.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck the pastor preached an able sermon, his text being chosen from Matthew 1:25 — "And He Called His Name Jesus." Owing to the absence of one of the choir, the musical programme, as arranged by Organist A. L. Titsworth, was postponed until next Sunday.

The exercises by the primary department of the Sunday-school were held at 1:30 o'clock, and were as pleasing to the children as the older members of the school. Mrs. J. M. Tier had charge of this department and it was through her excellent training that the little folks were able to acquit themselves so creditably.

After prayer by Pastor Schenck and the reading of the scripture, little Miss Helen Wooley gave a "Christmas Greeting," followed by Nettie Robbins with "Gifts for Jesus." Other recitations were by Rowland Relshton, Perry Roider, Anna Bodine, Ira Vail, Sadie Huviler. "God's Gifts to Us," by Anna Bose, Ella Case, Lela Sutton, Fannie Yeager, Edward Anthony, Hermina Lotheusen, Ralph Martin, Russel Vail and Mildred Caleo, was cleverly rendered and greatly pleased the audience.

The "Christmas Fairies," who were represented by Helen Smith, Anna Bose, Ethel Vail, Cathie Gray, Helen Wooley, Edna Cole, Nettie Robinson and Ida Tier, was also one of the interesting features of the occasion. The singing by the little ones, and led by some of the older scholars, was not the least of the interesting parts of the programme. After the exercises Pastor Schenck and Superintendent E. E. Anthony made brief addresses to the school directing their remarks principally to the primary scholars.

The attendance at the Sunday evening services at 7:30 o'clock taxed the church auditorium to its limit. The Christmas choral services by the adult members of the Sunday school and an augmented choir of 12 voices were very interesting, the singing being beautifully rendered and highly appreciated. Short addresses were made by Dr. Schenck, Dr. A. H. Lewis and Superintendent E. E. Anthony. Dr. Lewis' address was a scholarly and able one, in keeping with that gentleman's well known ability as a speaker.

On Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the Christmas festival for the primary department will be held. It will be an informal affair, and every scholar is expected to be on hand early as a surprise is awaiting them. In the evening at 8 o'clock the older scholars will hold their Christmas festival and exercises.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

The Christmas services in St. Mary's church opened Monday morning at 6 o'clock with a High Mass, at which the church was crowded with the faithful who had come to pay homage to the Saviour of mankind. The interior of the edifice was beautifully decorated with roping and wreaths of evergreens, and the altars, with their numerous lighted candles, lent beauty befitting the occasion. The stable at Bethlehem, depicting the birth of the Saviour, is also faithfully represented. Rev. Father Hedges, Paulist, of New York, preached a sermon at the above Mass appropriate to the day. Services were held also at 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 10:30. The 9:30 Mass was for the children and was celebrated by Rev. Father Weerman, who also preached a short sermon. At the 10:30 service Rev. Father Hedges preached the sermon. The music was under the direction of Miss Smith, who presided at the organ.

The musical programme at the services was as follows:

Asperges	Werner
Kyrie	Van LaHache
Gloria	Van LaHache
Credo	Van LaHache
Adeste Fidelis	Novello
Sanctus	Van LaHache
Agnus Dei	Van LaHache
Marche Triumphal.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Special music and a Christmas sermon marked the morning service at the Congregational church. There was an instrumental trio, "Lobesgrin Marche Bellecuse" by Mrs. R. T. Barnes, clarinet; Mrs. M. E. Dwight, violin, and P. Ludwig Conde, violinist. A special quartette, composed of Miss Bertha VanNuise Wilds, Miss Julia Belknap, Morris C. VanArsdale and Stacy Reynolds, rendered several carols. There were also two solos by Miss Willis with violin obligato by Mr. Conde. Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, the pastor, preached a sermon on "Good Will to Men."

In the afternoon the Sunday-school held special exercises. There were carols by a chorus of boys, selections by a quartet e composed of Miss Willis, Mrs. C. E Steiner, M. C. VanArsdale and Stacy Reynolds. Rev Dr. A. H. Lewis made an address.

The church was prettily decorated with evergreen roping which was draped about the side of the main auditorium.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

Christmas was observed at the First M. E. church Sunday with special services morning and afternoon. In the morning, Rev. G. W. Smith, presiding elder of the Elizabeth District, preached a Christmas sermon, while the choir, augmented for the occasion, rendered several extra anthems. In addition to Miss Utter at the organ, those who assisted in the instrumental music were Wilson Derby and Clarence Mills, violins; Archibald Derby, double bass; Robert Davis and John Lewis, cornets.

In the afternoon, the Sunday-school gave a special Christmas service, entitled "Spread Wide the News," in the church. The principal parts were taken by the superintendent, J. W. Jackson, Miss Edna French and Miss Gertrude Geyer. Owing to the storm, several of the other participants were unable to be present and their parts had to be read. The primary department also took part. There was no evening service. There were the usual decorations of greens.

CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH.

The Christmastide was observed at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Sunday with special music at all the services and a union service of the Sunday schools of the church and its chapels in the afternoon. At the morning service, the pastor, Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, preached a sermon appropriate to the day. There were several special carols by the quartette choir.

In the afternoon the union service of the Sunday schools was held in the church. Stages brought the members of the Sunday-schools of Hope and the Warren chapels while those from Bethel chapel were also in attendance. Owing to the stormy weather the at tendance was not as large as it otherwise would have been.

There were carols by the schools, responsive readings, a solo by Miss Perry and a brief address by Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards.

At the Christmas praise service held in the evening, the musical programme, as published in The Daily Press Saturday, was followed out. There was a large attendance.

The usual palms and potted plants and greens were used in the decoration of the church.

MONROE AVENUE M. E. CHURCH.

There were no evening services at the Monroe Avenue M. E Church Sunday. Instead, the Sunday-school held Christmas exercises, which included the singing of carols and responsive readings. Some of the scholars gave recitations and Rev. W. C. O'Donnell made a short address.

GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

Special Christmas services were held at Grace M. E church Sunday. In the morning the attendance was very small on account of the storm, but special music was rendered by the choir, and the pastor, Rev. G. W. Gardner, preached an interesting and appropriate sermon. In the afternoon there was a very good attendance when the Sunday-school held its service. There were recitations and songs by the scholars and singing by the primary department. Superintendent John Valiant was in charge. In the evening there was special music by the choir which was greatly enjoyed by a good-sized audience, and another excellent sermon was given by the pastor. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion with potted plants, greens and flowers.

ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH.

At St. Joseph's church Monday the usual services were held, the only feature being the Christmas entertainment, which was held in the Sunday-school room in the afternoon. There were about 200 members and friends present and all had a jolly good time. The exercises opened with singing by the school, after which Lulu Jacot made a pleasing address. Then appeared "Santa Claus" in the person of J. E Bailey. He came down an improvised chimney, and made the hearts of all glad, distributing dolls, candy, books, games, etc., to the scholars, while the teachers were also well remembered. The last number on the programme was a song by Edmund LaForte. During the exercises Santa Claus, the teachers and Father Miller were heartily cheered by the scholars.

MT. OLIVE BAPTIST CHURCH.

Last Sunday evening at the Mt. Olive Baptist church a Christmas service was held, consisting of recitations, songs, etc., by members of the Sunday-school. The services were in charge of the pastor, Rev. E. E. Jackson, and there was a very large attendance. Those who took part did so in a creditable manner.

ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH.

The Christmas services at St. Stephen's church were made especially attractive Monday morning by the splendid music, prepared especially for the occasion by Mrs. Buckley, the organist. The vested choir was augmented by the services of Mr. Johnstons, tenor, and Mr. Martin, bass. There was an early celebration of the Holy Communion at 7:30 o'clock and again at 11 o'clock. The festival for the Sunday-school will be held Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

GERMAN REFORMED CHURCH.

The annual Christmas festival was held at the German Reformed church Monday, and a large number of members and friends enjoyed the programme. There were instrumental selections by a quartette consisting of P. Ludwig Conde, Edna Conde, Emma Almer, violins; Mrs. George Hauser, organ; Lord's prayer by the children; vocal selections by Mrs. A. J. Bilfitz, soprano; Mrs. Bush, alto; Mr. Ebel, tenor; Rev. George Hauser, basso. The following young persons spoke in German: F. Bach, E Krause, R. Reinold, Flora Krause, Bird Newmiller, R. Hook, W. Newmiller, Fred Krause, I. Hauser, C. Bender, E. Ebel, Irma Hauser, E. Conde, A. Bush, Karl Hauser, L. Bender, E. Almer and E. Butterleb. Presents were then given to all, and special presents were given to Miss Anna Bartian and Miss L. Ebel, organists, and Eddie Krausse.

HOLY CROSS.

The beautiful Christmas eve services at 4:30 Sunday afternoon at Holy Cross, in spite of the stormy weather, invited a large congregation, who were well repaid in listening to the splendid music prepared by Prof. Geo. Hosking, the organist and choir master. The anthems were sung in good voice and were most inspiring. At the Christmas morning service yesterday the music was equally as well rendered. There was a large congregation present. The rector, Rev. William Montgomery Downey, preached an excellent sermon on the incidents leading up to the birth of the Savior.

SWEDISH MISSION SOCIETY.

The Swedish Mission Society held its Christmas festival last evening in the rooms of the W. C. T. U., when the tree was lighted and a pleasing programme was presented. There was singing by the congregation, Scripture reading by H. Jorgesen; prayer by Prof. Mengus; songs and music by the string band; declamation, "The Holy Night," Christie Pearlson; songs and music by the children; recitation, "A Star in My Crown," Jenny Svensson; Bible recitation by the children; declamation, "The Sunset," Frida Svard; address, Rev. O. G. Tingloff; declamation, "Star of the Homeless," Hedge Alvan. After the above was rendered there was the distribution of gifts from the tree.

GRACE P. E. CHURCH.

The usual Christmas services were held at Grace Episcopal church Sunday evening with appropriate music by the vested choir. The Christmas services at 10:30 Monday morning were well attended. The music was of high order of excellence, consisting of the usual anthems appropriate to the day. Rev. Dr. Redman, delivered an interesting discourse on the subject of the Nativity. The edifice is beautifully decorated and about the chancel were palms, potted plants and flowers.

ST. PETER'S LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Last Sunday evening the Christmas entertainment was held at St. Peter's German Lutheran church. Rev. Mr. Schaffer, pastor, was in charge, and made a fine address. There was a programme of recitations and songs by the children. Instrumental music by Leuter Shaffer on the violin and Miss Sarah Shaffer on the organ. After the entertainment gifts were distributed generously to all pre sent.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE ON ALL.

Recorder Long Was Lenient on Prisoners Arrested on Christmas.

For the first time in several weeks there was court in the borough Tuesday morning, but Recorder Long felt kindly after observing Christmas himself and was not disposed to be hard on the offenders of the law, consequently he suspended sentence on all. James Vail, of this city, was arrested at 2 o'clock this morning by Marshal Emmons for being drunk and disorderly; Michael and James Mattea, of Rose street, father and son, were arrested Sunday afternoon for fighting by Special Marshal Bloch. Michael Smith, of this city, for being drunk and attempting to fight, was arrested yesterday afternoon at the corner of Somerset street and Craig place by Chief Campbell.

WELL-LAID PLANS FOR CHRISTMAS TIDE.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.)

prayer by the superintendent, L. W. Randolph. The programme included a piano solo by Clifford Braidler, a doll drill by nine little girls, violin duet by Robert Barnes and Robert Speer, piano duet by Clifford Braidler and Robert Schriever, dialogue by Oliver Ulmer and Eugene Walsh, recitations by John Frank, Henry Bender, Geo. Hook, Carl Ulmer, Fred Cook, Henrietta Walsh, Lillian Stromberg, Josie Ammon and Nettie Ammon.

The feature of the entertainment was a "patent Keely phonograph," conducted by Mr. Evans, with Jeremiah Manning on the "inside." Distribution of gifts and refreshments followed.

THREATENED HOMES.

Firemen Saved Neighboring Dwellings From Flames of a Barn.

Log Barn.

Small boys, cigarettes and matches were the dangerous combination that finally resulted in the destruction of a barn belonging to Frank Cullen, grocer, who lives at 202 South Second street, yesterday. The barn was located near his home and in a cluster of small cottages occupied by employes at the Rood Tool Works.

The fire was not discovered until it had gained good headway. Then an alarm was sent in from box 47. When the firemen arrived, they were compelled to devote their attention to saving the adjacent buildings. The barn was completely destroyed.

The neighboring houses were all saved although the danger appeared so imminent that several families scarted to move their household goods out of the threatened dwellings.

The total loss will reach $1,000 which was partially covered by insurance. The barn was partially filled with hay and straw that burned readily.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal trouble, the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

Exercises Postponed.

The Christmas services that were to have been held at the First Presbyterian church last Sunday have been postponed till next Sunday. This change was made on account of the very bad weather last Sunday, which kept so many persons at home.

A DAY OF CHEER FOR THOSE AT HOSPITAL.

Christmas Festivities Held There Monday Afternoon.

PRESENTS GIVEN TO ALL.

AN APPROPRIATE ADDRESS BY REV. FLOYD APPLETON.

Exercises Were in Charge of the Board of Governors and the Women's Auxiliary Board of Managers — Many Were One of the Features — Patients Received Many Callers During the Day.

Monday was a bright and cheery one for those who were so unfortunate as to be detained at Muhlenberg Hospital as patients. The usual Christmas festivities were held at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and all those who had anything to do with the affair did the best to make it an exceedingly pleasant occasion. The customary Christmas tree formed the centre of attraction for those present, and of the large number of people at the institution were greatly interested in the exercises. There are about fifteen patients, and of this number a small per centage is in a critical condition, so that the majority were able to join heartily in the celebration.

The members of the Woman's Auxiliary board of managers together with members of the board of governors had charge of the exercises, and they were ably assisted by the matron, Miss Moss, and the nurses, in carrying out the plan of arrangements. The choir from Grace P. E. church, in charge of the organist, Mrs. W. H. Freeman, gave several appropriate selections, including hymns and anthems, while the feature was the violin playing of Miss Hyatt.

A very interesting and pleasant feature was the reading of appropriate Scripture and the address by Rev. Floyd T. Appleton, curate of Grace P. E church. The speaker's remarks were instructive. He dwelt upon the fact that people rightfully associated Christmas with the giving and receiving of presents, and it was doubtful in his mind which afforded the most pleasure. He then spoke of the best gift of all, the Son of God, and how we should appreciate that wonderful gift. He then said that all should be more appreciative, and where we receive gifts, assistance, etc., we should be equally glad to give. He cited the needs of the hospital in brief, and paid a rich tribute to those whose duty it is to alleviate the suffering of others, saying that money alone would not give that relief if there was not the spirit of love and devotion accompanying it. In closing the speaker gave some very strong and helpful suggestions, and pointed all to Him whose birth we celebrate.

After the address and more vocal and instrumental music, gifts were distributed among those at the hospital by the choir boys under the direction of the women in charge. There was a gift for everyone. Among the things distributed were oranges, candy, grapes, and useful as well as ornamental articles.

During the afternoon a number of persons called to see friends or relatives that are detained by illness, and the meeting was a pleasant one for all, and thus it was made possible for this event of the year, to be celebrated in a manner that brought happiness to those in a way associated with this worthy institution.

How Are Your Kidneys?

Dr. Hobbs' Sparilla — Cures all Kidney and Blood Diseases. Ask Druggist for Pamphlet. Price $1. Jersey City, N. J.

GERMANS HAD A GOOD TIME.

Krio Kringle Visited the Saengerbund Hall Yesterday Afternoon.

Monday afternoon at Saengerbund Hall, Somerset street, the usual Christmas festivities were enjoyed by the members and their families. At that time the Christmas tree was lighted and during the whole afternoon there was plenty to amuse both old and young. This is one time in the year when all genuine Dutch gathering is held and everyone has a jolly good time. There was also a programme of recitations and songs by the young people, and several feats in gymnastics. All of the young people received presents from the tree and their hearts were made glad. An enjoyable feature was the serving of refreshments by a committee in charge.

The Ladies' Society presented the Gesang and Turn Verein with a handsome purse of money, and President Gardner made their Eisbeers a present on behalf of the society with a purse of money. Music for the occasion was furnished by Eugene O'Reilly's orchestra.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

No.	Cures	Price
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
5	Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic	.25
6	Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Vomiting	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
17	Piles, External or Internal	.25
18	Ophthalmy, Sore or Inflamed Eyes	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
21	Asthma, Difficult Breathing	.25
22	Ear Discharges, Impaired Hearing	.25
23	Scrofula, Swellings and Ulcers	.25
24	General Debility, Weakness	.25
25	Dropsy, Scanty Secretions	.25
26	Sea-Sickness, Nausea, Vomiting	.25
27	Kidney Diseases	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
29	Sore Mouth, or Canker	.25
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
31	Painful Menstruation	.25
32	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitations	1.00
33	Epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance	1.00
34	Sore Throat, Quinsy, Diphtheria	.25
35	Chronic Congestions, Headaches	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists, or mailed free.

Sold by druggists, or sent on receipt of price. Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

HUMPHREYS' WITCH HAZEL OIL "THE PILE OINTMENT."

For Piles — External or Internal, Blind or Bleeding. Fistula in Ano, Ulceration of the Rectum, Itching of the Private Parts. Relief and Cure Warranted.

PRICE, 50 CTS. TRIAL SIZE, 25 CTS.

Sent by mail or express, on receipt of price. Humphreys' Med. Co., 109 & 111 William St., New York.

THE CLEANSING AND HEALING CURE FOR CATARRH is Ely's Cream Balm

Easy and pleasant to use. Not drying. Relief is quick and certain. Ely's Cream Balm is quickly absorbed. Gives Relief at once. Opens and Cleanses the Nasal Passages. Allays Pain and Inflammation. Heals and Protects the Membrane. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail. Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.

ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren St., New York

MARRIED.

MARSH-PIZE—At the Seventh-Day Baptist parsonage, Plainfield, on October 26th, 1904, by Rev. Arthur E. Main, Mr. Charles A. Marsh, of Plainfield, and Miss Emma L. Pize, of New Market.

DIED.

KINSMAN—In this city, Monday, Dec. 26, 1904, Florence, wife of Frank S. Kinsman, and daughter of the late Samuel T. Hillman, aged 40 years.

WANTS AND OFFERS.

FOR SALE or exchange for house and lot or small farm, a fine farm of 20 acres, well watered and timbered. Address Albert, care Daily Press. 12 21 tf

News and Opinions OF National Importance.

The Sun ALONE CONTAINS BOTH.

Daily, by mail - $6 a year
Daily and Sunday, by mail $8 a year

The Sunday Sun

is the greatest Sunday newspaper in the world.

Price 5c a copy. By mail, $2 a yr

Address THE SUN, New York.

To Cure Constipation Forever. Take Cascarets. Cures or your money back. 10c or 25c. If C. C. C. fail, druggists refund money.

THE WISE WEATHER CLERK.

The Pennyland clerk of the weather Doesn't waste his time finding out whether It's warmer 'n the blazes
Or sunny or oh, my,
Or that he's wiser than that altogether.
He carefully studies the past,
And notes the present as time goes fast,
And then he gits out
If there's going to be
A thunderstorm or work before hast.
And when yeou see him a-settin' in fair
When the rain of 1 he had and hailstorm,
He gits bitten a bellyful
To the edge of the shanty
And lives off and early spread in the air.
For clear forever and dreadful in the air.

—Albert W. Smith, in the January Ladies' Home Journal.

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE.

Between Front and Second streets.

Tinners, Plumbers Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gasfitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

Sanitary Plumbing,

Brick and Portable Furnace

Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,

Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 113 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues.

First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 241 West Front street, to South side of Somerset street, first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

A Free Trip to Paris!

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE

A COMPLETE NOVEL

IN EVERY NUMBER

$3.00 PER YEAR. 25 CTS. PER COPY.

POPULAR STORIES, ARTICLES AND POEMS.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, PUBLISHERS, PHILADELPHIA.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

A new room ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.

EDWIN B. MATHARD.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue,

Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale or Exchange. Money to loan on Approved security.

CRANFORD CHOIR WON SILVER CUP.

Contest in Singing Church Music by Colored Vocalists.

MT. OLIVE SINGERS SECOND

DECISION MADE BY JUDGES REPRESENTING EACH CHURCH.

Choir From the Colored Church of Westfield Failed to Appear to Contest in the Vaudeville—Anthems and Hymns Were the Selections Rendered—Audience Favorable to Crawfordites.

The choir contest by the colored people Thursday at the Mt. Olive Baptist church was one of the successful entertainments attempted. The choir of the Baptist church of Cranford was the only organization from out of town present to contest against the choirs of the Mt. Olive, the Fillmore Avenue and the Mt. Zion A. M. E churches. The Westfield choir did not appear. The contest did not begin until about 9 o'clock and at that hour the Mt. Olive Baptist church was nearly filled with the members of the various denominations and their friends. The judges of the contest were: Mildred Maynard, chairman, and Charles Baldon for Mt. Olive; Henry Jackson and Rudolph Connett for Fillmore Avenue; Walter Peterson for Mt. Zion Methodist, and Henry Brown and Miss Alma Ward for Cranford Baptist church.

The choirs first gave an exhibition of their singing from the platform. The first choir to sing was Mt. Zion, led by Adolphus White. They were followed by the Cranford singers with Coley Scott as leader. The Fillmore Avenue choir came next with Percy Randolph at the head. Mt. Olive's choir, led by Thomas Toney, was the last.

The pieces selected were anthems and hymns. It was evident from the reception given each choir that the Cranford singers were the most popular and efficient singers, though those from the Mt. Olive and Fillmore Ave nue churches came in for a good share of applause and deserve credit for their efforts. The Mt. Zion choir, however, lost being in practice, was not as efficient as the others. It was apparent that the contest was between the Mt. Olive choir and the visitors from Cranford. When the final contest was made, each choir singing the hymn, "Praise Ye the Lord," the Cranford singers gave evidence of being the more proficient and when they finished a storm of applause, lasting several minutes, greeted them.

The judges had no hesitation in deciding the contest in favor of the Cranford choir which was awarded the silver cup, the prize contested for.

After the contest the members of the choirs enjoyed refreshments served in the basement of the church. The proceeds of the entertainment were for the benefit of the pastor, Rev R. R. Jackson, who was present and assisted the committee in entertaining the visitors.

STRUCK BY TROLLEY CAR.

Two Summit Women Upset on Fourth Ward Street Throwing Them—Motorman Said to be to Blame.

A serious accident was narrowly averted Thursday noon at the corner of Park avenue and Fourth street, when a woman and young girl riding in a dog cart were run into by a trolley car in charge of Conductor Fahy. The occupants of the cart were from Summit and they were driving through Fourth street. Before the approaching car was reached, the horse, rather frightened, became excited and began to back into the car tracks.

The car was going at a lively rate of speed and those who saw the accident place the blame on the motorman. They say he did not slacken his speed. The result was a collision. The cart was upset and the occupants thrown out, while the horse came very near getting away. It was thought by several persons who saw the accident that the women were seriously injured. They proved to be more frightened than anything else. The axle on the car was twisted out of shape and that was the amount of the damage.

COURT WATCHING OFFICERS

Annual Election of the Independent Order of Foresters Last Night.

Court Watchung, No. 3871, Independent Order of Foresters, met last night and elected the following officers for the coming year: Chief Ranger, John B. Naylor; vice chief ranger, N. Brouard; past chief ranger, W. L. Benson; recording secretary, J. M. Lewis; financial secretary, A. F. Randolph; treasurer, O. S. Rogers; senior woodward, A. M. Vanderbeek; junior woodward, G. Brouard; senior beadle, Thomas Stafford; junior beadle, D. L. Hulick; court deputy, Charles Vanderbeek; court physician, Marcus L. Dawson; chaplain, Charles Vanderbeek; trustees, R. H. Radford, R. E. Randolph; finance committee, A. M. Vanderbeek, W. L. Benson; apothecary, R. S. F. Randolph.

AMERICAN LUMBER

The Demand for All Grades is Enormous and Increasing.

In the fiscal year of 1898 the exports of forestry products, of which lumber was, of course, the chief item, amounted to $20,000,000. In 1897 this had been to $40,000,000 and from present indications the export will exceed this year $30,000,000. Lumber dealers everywhere throughout the country report that the demand for all grades of lumber is greater than at any time in the recent years. Yards are running night and day, with two shifts of laborers, and still falling behind. Every sort of a seaworthy vessel that can be hired or bought has been pressed into service by the lumbermen on a great scale, and the arrivals of lumber from southern ports are enormous.

Exclusive of furniture, the value of which is an inconsiderable item in American exports compared with the chief shipments of American lumber are to England and Canada, and of timber moved and hewn, to England and Germany, and to Australia and South Wales. In the former countries the Canadian lumbermen are urging the propriety of putting a tax on lumber coming from the United States, while Canadian and English lumber are now admitted free. On the average 20,000,000 feet of logs are cut in Minnesota, and Wisconsin every year and shipped to Winona. The lumbermen of western Ontario and eastern British Columbia say that under the Dingley law lumber taxed $2 per thousand feet upon entering the United States and they ask the Dominion Parliament to levy a similar duty on American lumber entering Canada. The exports from the United States during the fiscal year of 1897-98 amounted to nearly $10,000,000, including logs and pulp wood. Canada imports annually 100,000,000 feet (including logs) last year to the value of about one-quarter as much.

The chief cause, however, of the enormous American lumber market and of the increased prices for American forestry products does not arise from the demands for building in this country and Canada, but for the increased local demand for American lumber for building purposes. There has been a great boom in building operations throughout the United States during the first six months of 1899, as compared with the first six months of 1898. The rate of increase is fully 50 per cent. The cities showing a large increase are New York, Cleveland, Kansas, Boston, New Orleans and Toledo. Washington, Milwaukee, Chicago and Minneapolis show a large but a lesser proportion of increase, and the only American cities which, to July 1, fell off in the building record of a year were Philadelphia and Louisville.

It is estimated that $200,000,000 was expended in building operations in American cities in the first six months of 1899, a considerable item of such expense being for lumber. The wood now used is drawn from all the Atlantic States—Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia—supplies many American requirements in building and finds, too, a ready sale in Europe.

Among commercial men, it is said generally that, iron excepted, lumber is the best business barometer. Bridges, trestles, cars and houses are built in good times. With the improvement in business there is an immediate demand for lumber, and it need be no cause for surprise if the present lumber market is booming.—New York Sun.

Dewey on Discipline.

"Dewey," said an old friend of his the other day, "is a man with an ideal, and he has lived up to it nearer than most men. His first ambition is to do duty before him with all his strength and all his might. Long ago, when he was only a subaltern, one of his shipmates said to him: 'Look here, Dewey, if you don't let up a bit on your all dred discipline you'll have all the crew down on you, sure enough.' 'I shall be very sorry for that,' responded the young officer, 'but it will not deter me from doing what I know is expected of me.' 'Go on,' replied his companion, 'but you're going to be unpopular.' 'I shall be sorry for that, but I did not come true, however. There is no officer in the Navy who is more esteemed and beloved by his men; yet he has invariably kept them up to the highest state of discipline. He has at the same time treated them as men, established their confidence in him in their welfare and stretched a point now and then to let them have a good time."—New York Tribune.

Iced Chloroform.

According to "The Medical Times," iced chloroform has been used as an anaesthetic in the Johns Hopkins Hospital at intervals for over fourteen thousand cases with the most excellent effect. It is said to be much quicker in its action than chloroform at the room temperature of the ordinary temperature, and to have none of the nausea and depression which almost every one who has been operated upon has unfortunately experienced. It is also believed to be much safer than other preparations. Altogether, so much is claimed for it that we suppose it will soon be tried in the English hospitals.—London Globe.

How Postal Cards are Often Wasted.

"Women often send messages to their dressmakers or to dry goods shops on postal cards," says the September Ladies' Home Journal, "attaching a bit of cloth, ribbon or sample. This makes the card 'unmailable,' so that it is always sent to the dead letter office and heavily discriminated against. Supposedly men—not infrequently begin a letter or a telling political fragment upon a postal card and send it to a friend in town, after all it has to go no farther. Nothing can be attached to a postal card, nor may one word be written on the address side except the address itself."

Plants Which can Bear Furnace Heat

"I am asked to name several good plants that will grow in living rooms and parlors where the heat is from a furnace and the temperature is kept from 70 to 75 degrees," writes Ellen H. Reynolds in the September Ladies' Home Journal. "There are few plants which will stand such heat. It is too dry. The life-giving element has been burned out of it. The Aspidistra will be more likely to flourish under such circumstances than any other plant that I know of."

PORTO RICO BRIGANDS.

A Business That Has Been Abolished Since the American Occupation.

The death knell of brigandage in Porto Rico was sounded when the American troops landed at Guanica. Up to that time the brigands had been active. Now few, if any, remain. Since early last January there has been no indication whatever of their existence, and the hope that this is a manifestation then was believed to be the only one that had not yet quit business. Its experience on that occasion was such that the brigands who had been active no sooner began operations than word was sent to the military post at Arecibo about them. A squad of sharpshooters was immediately detailed to look after them. The soldiers soon came up with them and opened fire. The brigands were far in advance at the time and were mounted on the swift-footed little mountain ponies which Porto Rico produces. They, therefore, escaped, but the incident opened their eyes to the fact that the American troops have a different and far more unpleasant way of dealing with such things than the old Spanish civil guard.

Prior to this, from the beginning of the American occupation, there had been few and poorly organized raids. Indeed, it long ago became a matter of certainty for the leaders or captains of the bandits of Porto Rico had forsaken the calling. The overthrow of Spanish sovereignty was certain to fill the island with brigandage, and the country people say that at these spots was hidden the plunder of these outlaws prior to the American invasion.

They were brigands in every sense of the word, not merely petty malefactors, but robbers, kidnappers, murderers and highwaymen. They waylaid travelers, levied blackmail on planters, pillaged homes, killed for pay and even made descents upon villages and towns, carrying off as a specialty of removing hated persons, receiving for their services from $100 to $500, according to the financial ability of the person to afford them and the importance of the intended victim or his lighting ability. The people of Porto Rico tell to-day with a certain pride that these out-throats never betrayed a patron. The two most famous leaders in the business up to the time of the American capture of the island were Aguila Blanca, or "White Eagle," and Aguila Blanca, or "White Eagle." When the city of Ponce fell into the hands of the American troops Aguila Blanca fled incontinently. His record was so bad that he could expect no mercy. Aguila Blanca stood his ground and decided to see what the American army were like. The result of the scrutiny was favorable, so he came into the city, said he wanted to lead a better life and would return if the American would permit him, and asked for and received a sort of safe conduct.

Aguila Blanca's life is exemplary, duly justifying the safe conduct which General Henry gave him. When Aguila Blanca asked for it he wrote that he had been one of the woods out of undying, implacable hatred for Spaniards; and now that they had been driven from the island he had no further incentive to fight against authority, and, therefore, he desired to return to civilized life and be a law-abiding citizen of his beloved native island.

Horse Breeding in England.

Some attention has been paid in England to the breeding of the useful horse as distinguished from the animal used for racing may be gained from the fact that the second London show of the Shire Horse Society the total value of the cash prizes for excellence in this breed alone aggregated $1,275. There were classified 100 stallions, six for mares, and two for geldings, and there were a number of cups and special prizes as well. There are also three classes for thirteen hands number, for stallions and mares, and two for geldings, with first prizes of £10 in each. This is certainly an incentive for farmers to raise the good, well braught horses, and an example that it would be well to follow in this country.

The Most Restless Bunyon.

A writer in Science, M. Hyde Mason, argues that the Asiat Indian dugong or amatin is the natural foundation for the myths of sirens, nereids, and tritons. The female dugong was first captured in the Red Sea has a head and bust which, when seen at some little distance, might be taken for a mermaid. The mother has a very distinct voice, and these two combined make a good base for the theory which the writer has advanced with a good deal of elaboration.

Novel Way to Clean a Chimney.

An easy way to clean a chimney of soot has been discovered by a Maltman. Instead of going to the top of the chimney and pouring with rock salt the bottom. There is an opening is made, and he fires upward a receiver charged with a blank cartridge. The explosion, it is said, will clean out the soot. He also claims that the burning of a piece of zinc in a stove will clear the stove and its funnel of soot.

The Compressed-Air Disease.

Dr. Thomas Oliver of England, who has been investigating the cause of the "compressed-air disease," which is so fatal to caisson workers in caissons, has come to the conclusion that it is due to the increased solution of the blood of the gases met with in the compressed air. The liberation of these gases after the person escapes from the compressed atmosphere.

Columbia.

The Columbia has yielded more wealth than any other river in the world. Its vast schools of salmon are enriching thousands of men and given employment to innumerable people.

Turkey.

The turkey was first discovered in America and was taken to England in the early part of the sixteenth century, and has since been scattered in nearly all parts of the world.

VAST AUDIENCE HEARD "MESSIAH."

But as Many Were Turned Away as Got Admittance.

THE CHURCH WAS PACKED.

CHORUS AND SOLOISTS DO EXCELLENT WORK THURSDAY.

Long Before the Church Doors Were Opened a Great Concourse of People Gathered in the Hope of Obtaining Entrance—Fully Half of Them Had to be Turned Away Unsatisfied.

A vast audience of twelve hundred people listened to the rendition of Handel's great oratorio of the Christmastide, "The Messiah," in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church last Thursday. There were twice that number who wanted to hear it but were turned away owing to the inability of the church to accommodate them all. For an hour the church was besieged by great crowds and it was after 8 o'clock before the last of the disappointed ones departed homeward, giving up the vain endeavor to get inside.

With one of the best of the famous oratorios in prospect to be rendered by a quartette of talented soloists and a trained chorus of local voices, particularly when it was free, it was but natural that there should be a big crowd. The promoters of this service expected one but not in the proportions that did appear. That this crowd was handled without someone being injured in the crush for the doors is as evidence of good management and considerable luck.

The doors were advertised to open at 7:30 o'clock. An hour before that time there were fully a hundred people gathered about the various entrances to the church. At 7 o'clock the crowd had grown to three times that number. When the time came to open the doors the numbers had been swelled into the thousands and the crowd stretched into the street. The people were told that the front doors would not be opened, but still there were many who congregated about them.

The vast throng was good-natured and took the long wait patiently. But when the doors were opened, what a crowding and pushing ensued. Fire Chief S. B. Dunavan and William Audis, Jr., were on duty respectively at the right and left entrances. They did the work of heroes. Women were literally dragged into the hall by them after being pinioned by the mass of struggling humanity against the sides of the steps.

In the rush that followed children were separated from their parents, husbands lost their wives and women were dragged from their escorts. Some of the separated ones were united in the church, but others had departed for the evening, part inside and others shut out when it was necessary to close the doors.

James Everett Kimball had charge of seating the people and he was assisted by a large corps of ushers. They had their hands full in handling the people and packing them into the pews. It was remarkable in what a brief space of time the church was filled. Then the doors were closed and those who were not fortunate enough to make their way in before, were disappointed in their attempt to attend the rendition. The money bits of families were hunted up and dressed in but the remainder of the crowd, and it must have been well above two thousand, was sent away.

Every inch of available seating space was occupied and there were a few who stood along the side aisles and at the back of the church. A more heterogeneous crowd, it would be hard to find. There was a little of everybody there, all attired in their best and thankful indeed at having safely braved the ordeal of entering.

Musically considered, the evening was an entire success as the public received Tuesday evening. The members of the chorus had had much more practice, and so were better prepared to render the grand choruses with spirit and sympathy. Nearly all the choruses of the oratorios are bright and joyful, and the singers entered warmly into the spirit of gladness. The different parts took up their leads with promptness and precision, this being one of the strong points of Conductor Fitzhugh's training. There was no over-predominance of any one part, the general effect being that of a fairly balanced choir.

As a conductor, Edward J. Fitzhugh is well known in Plainfield, having successfully directed many concerts here. His conducting last night was as able, careful, and enthusiastic as usual.

In an oratorio like "The Messiah" much depends upon the soloists. A large part of the story to be told comes in the airs and recitatives sung by them. The first voice heard in the whole oratorio is that of the tenor soloist, in the beautiful recitative beginning "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God." The soloist of last night, E. C. Towne, of New York, had one very fine quality of pure, penetrating sweet word as that it could be understood in the farthest corner of the house. The bass, Dugland Lane, also of New York, was a young man with a very clear and pleasing voice. His singing was characterized by feeling, producing an excellent effect in the sympathetic manner in which he sang "The Lord ..... shall suddenly come to His temple." The soprano was Miss Annie L. Walker, of New York, with a sweet voice and an unassuming manner. Her most important solos were "Come unto Him" and "I know that my Redeemer liveth." Both were sung simply and pleasingly, and many a listener felt a thrill at the quiet emphasis laid upon the opening words of the latter. The contralto was no stranger to Plainfield musicians, she having been a pupil of Perry, of the Crescent Avenue church choir. Her solo work was well done, especially attractive being her rendering of the exquisite air "He shall feed His flock like a Shepherd."

Miss Jessie Urter, who presided at the piano, made, as always, a most acceptable accompanist, managing difficult accompaniments skillfully and following conductor or soloist with care and ease. The organ, under the charge of William H. Miller, added much to the musical effect, giving a depth and fullness to the accompaniments that no orchestra could obtain without it. In many places the soft, sustained organ notes formed a kind of obligato, upholding the voice and greatly enriching the effect. The orchestra of instruments played by New York musicians had each its place in producing the musical and emotional result desired by the composer. The trumpets were especially effective in the bass solo beginning "The Trumpet Shall Sound."

The affair was, as was intended to be, more like a grand musical religious service than like the ordinary concert. The applause was absent, the audience was quiet, reverent and intent. The climax of the oratorio came when, with the beginning of the magnificent "Hallelujah Chorus," the entire audience rose, and remained standing until the final "Hallelujah" died away.

CARNIVAL OF DREAMS.

CLEVER ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN BY BRYANT SCHOOL PUPILS.

Children Were Trained by Miss E. V. Shattuck—Eighty Participated in It—The State Superintendent Was Present.

State Superintendent of Schools Baxter and Superintendent Maxson of the Plainfield Public Schools were included in the large number of parents and friends of the children who were present at the Bryant School Thursday afternoon on the occasion of the entertainment held in the chapel by the pupils.

The entertainment, styled a "Carnival of Dreams," was as unique as it was cleverly portrayed by about 80 of the children who attend the primary and grammar departments participated. The children were trained by Miss E. V. Shattuck, the principal, assisted by the other teachers. The carnival was divided into five separate parts, all having to do with the nursery rhymes. In the first part were seen "Mother Goose," "Mother Hubbard," "Little Red Riding Hood," "Little Boy Blue," "Hot Cross Buns," "Jack and Jill," "Little Bo-peep," and "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son."

The second act showed "Jack Frost," snow fairies, mermaids, etc.

Part third exhibited characters to impersonate "Mars," "Neptune," "Apollo," "Diana," etc., while part fourth showed some of the little folks as "Grace Darling," "Rip Van Winkle," "Hiawatha," "Minnehaha," etc. The fifth and last scene introduced "Santa Claus" on his yearly rounds. The "Dreamer" calls upon the "Fairies" to guide the good "Santa" to all the children in the land. He has with a white duck uniform and a golf cap.

His manner did not noticably change all through the morning. He showed the strain, perhaps, but very slightly. It was, however, like Dewey at a stroll than one of the battles of history. The shots did not come near enough to him to worry him, they did come near we were too busy to pay them much attention. People who are pretty busy have no time to heed trifles.

"Swear? Well, no; not exactly. The nearest that Admiral Dewey came to swearing during all that engagement was when he found that one of the battle for the third time. I think. I remarked to the Admiral 'It's damnable that we have not done them up before.'

"'I think it is damnable, Lieutenant,' he replied with quiet emphasis.

"I'm afraid I'm responsible for all the oaths that Admiral Dewey did use that day, although I know that he is capable of using strong language where it is absolutely necessary.

"There is one story, by the way, that would bear telling if enough to run down. It cropped up for the last time in the smoking room of the steamer Capitol. It was told to me by a man who was on our fleet into Cavite. That story is of a piece with the one that popped up in London that we had English gunners. One had just as true an origin. We had no English pilots and our gunners were Americans. Then I may say there was no truth in the report that two of the officers of the hydrography and the defenses of the harbor from the Conseil there."

CAVALRY HORSES IN WAR.

Manner in Which They Act During the Turmoil of Battle.

A veteran cavalry horse partakes of the hopes and fears of battle just the same as his rider. As the command swings into line and waits, the horse grows nervous over the waiting. If the wait is spun out he will trouble his rider and grow ungovernable. If he has been six months in the service he knows every bugle call. At the call comes to advance, says the St. Louis Republic, he will spring into action at the bit with his tongue to get it between his teeth. As he moves out he will either seek to get on faster than the rider wishes or to shy back. However, the lines will carry him forward, and after a minute, he will grip the bit, lay back his ears, and one can see that he is going to do his very worst and have done with it as soon as possible. When the troopers begin to cheer and the sabres to gleam the horse's breath fills him with fire in his heart, he will often scream out, and his eyes blaze and are fixed steadily in front. No matter how obstinate he was at the start he will not fail or refuse to carry out the last fifty feet of space. If a volley comes and he is subject, he will lower his head, and then take a fresh breath for the charge. If charging infantry will meet the cavalry at a run and knock him down, if against a line of horsemen he will hit his head and front feet as if going to leap a fence.

A man seldom cries out when hit in the turmoil of battle. It is the same with the horse. Five troopers out of a hundred will be killed, but the noise of the saddle within a minute. If hit in the breast or shoulder, up go their hands and they get a heavy fall; if in the back they fall forward; if in the head and roll off. Even with a foot cut off by a jagged piece of shell a horse will not drop. It is only when shot that he will fall to the spot that he comes down. He may be fatally wounded, but he hobbles out of the fight to right or left and stands with drooping head until loss of blood brings him down.

The horse that loses his rider and is unwounded himself will continue to run with his set of fours until some obstacle stops him. Then he goes galloping here and there, neighing with fear and alarm, but he will not leave the field. In his racing he may run over the dead and dying wounded, but he will dodge them if possible, and in any case leap over them. When he has come upon three or four other riderless horses they "fall in" and keep together, as if for mutual protection, and the rally on the bugle may bring the whole of them into the ranks in a body.

A horse which has passed through a battle unwounded is fretful, sulky and nervous—the same as a man—for the rest of the campaign. He is not to be relied upon, and thereby become a danger to himself. If the test has not been beyond him, he will go into the next fight with a rush, and the flecks of foam blowing from his mouth as he thunders over the earth.

Dewey Refused Medals.

Lieut. Charles G. Calkins, who navigated the cruiser Olympia, the flagship of the United States squadron, Admiral Dewey and his fleet in their immortal victory at Manila and the morning of May 1, upon arriving from the Orient said:

"I will not try to tell you how many times Admiral Dewey and Admiral Dewey looked and acted and spoke on that occasion. Still it is a story that is always pleasant to recall. I had known Admiral Dewey for thirty years, and I cannot say that his demeanor that morning was greatly different from what it always is. Always he impresses one as a man who knows himself, who knows what he has to do, and who means to do it. Such was Admiral Dewey then. He was cool, alert, intense and for the most part silent.

"No, I cannot recall any particular immortal words on his part. He coolly issued the movements of the fleet from the light compass platform where we stood.

"Much has been made about the attempt of the admiral that morning. A popular monthly pictured him in a long frock coat twining about his legs. Another magazine hastened to correct this by depicting Admiral Dewey as wearing shoulder straps, the gold lace on his sleeves and three-inch stripes on his trousers. None of these latter is the case. Admiral Dewey is a stickler for full dress, but as a matter of fact the Admiral mounts them once or twice a year. At the battle of Manila he wore a white duck uniform and a golf cap.

"His manner did not noticably change all through the morning. He showed the strain, perhaps, but very slightly. It was, however, like Dewey at a stroll than one of the battles of history. The shots did not come near enough to him to worry him, they did come near we were too busy to pay them much attention. People who are pretty busy have no time to heed trifles.

"Swear? Well, no; not exactly. The nearest that Admiral Dewey came to swearing during all that engagement was when he found that one of the battle for the third time. I think. I remarked to the Admiral 'It's damnable that we have not done them up before.'

"'I think it is damnable, Lieutenant,' he replied with quiet emphasis.

"I'm afraid I'm responsible for all the oaths that Admiral Dewey did use that day, although I know that he is capable of using strong language where it is absolutely necessary.

"There is one story, by the way, that would bear telling if enough to run down. It cropped up for the last time in the smoking room of the steamer Capitol. It was told to me by a man who was on our fleet into Cavite. That story is of a piece with the one that popped up in London that we had English gunners. One had just as true an origin. We had no English pilots and our gunners were Americans. Then I may say there was no truth in the report that two of the officers of the hydrography and the defenses of the harbor from the Conseil there."

ONE MAN KILLED IN WRECK ON CENTRAL.

Rear End Collision Occurred at High Bridge Thursday.

CARS WERE SET ON FIRE.

DETACHED COAL CARS MADE WILD RUN ON DOWN GRADE.

Struck the Locomotive That Had Been Uncoupled and Gone Ahead, and the Engine Was Shoved Into the Passenger Cars With Terrific Force—Several Persons Were Also Injured.

One life was lost and several persons injured in a rear end collision that occurred on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, directly in front of the depot at High Bridge Thursday. A heavy east bound freight train stopped one mile east of the station and the engine was detached to run to the depot to get orders. There is a heavy down grade at that point, and shortly after the locomotive was uncoupled the coal cars commenced to move. The brakemen applied the brakes, but were unable to stop the cars. They gained rapidly and at last the cars were rushing towards the depot at a terrific speed.

Standing in front of the station was a combination milk and passenger train, to the rear end of which was attached two coaches. The locomotive that had been uncoupled was struck first by the coal cars that were running wild, but it was not derailed. It was pushed into the rear end of the other train with great force. The train crews and the passengers had no knowledge of the impending collision till it occurred on account of the detached cars having no lights on the forward end.

The passenger coaches were raised high in the air by the force of the collision and toppled over into the ditch. Both were telescoped, and the wreckage took fire at once. There were only five or six passengers in the cars.

Christopher Hulsizer, a grocer, of Annandale, N. J., was instantly killed, and before his remains could be rescued from under the wreckage his body had been partially burned.

Conductor Bell, of Annandale, another passenger, had his arm broken and was imprisoned under the wreckage. The railroad employes set to work at once to rescue the imprisoned passengers, but before they could free Bell one of his legs had been burned by the flames. He is in a critical condition.

An unknown man and woman were also hurt, but not seriously.

The wrecked cars were totally destroyed by the flames. The two freight cars in front of them were also wrecked and blocked the track, but the wrecking crew had the road clear by morning.

PARKS UP AGAINST IT.

Local Bowlers Lose Three Straight Games to the Roselle Cubists.

The Park Club bowlers were up against it Thursday. They went to Roselle to roll three games in The Daily Press Bowling League against the Roselle Casino team and lost them all. The story of their defeat is not a pleasant one to hear. The official scores have not yet been received here but will be published later.

The Roselle team did some great bowling. Their best game was 111, the record for the season. They defeated the Parks twice by nearly two hundred pins and again by a score which sounds like a triple. The Parks rolled over 700 in every game and in the other fell below that.

VanBuren, who is usually considered one of the steadiest bowlers on the Park Club team, was way off his game. One game he failed to do better than 90, and his average for the three was only 114. The others were afflicted with the same trouble while an unusual share of hard luck came their way.

JUST MISSED HIM.

Young Man Slipped and Fell in Front of a Train at the North Avenue Station Friday.

A young man, whose name is not known, narrowly escaped being seriously injured at the North Avenue station Friday when one of the fast Philadelphia trains was coming into the station on its way to the Quaker City. The young man started to cross the track on which the train was moving, and he had went flying in the air. The engineer tooted the whistle, and just as the young man had picked himself up and got out of the way, the train went by and just missed striking him. A number of people who saw the affair expected that the young man would be struck.

Consul Griffin Appointed.

Consul Webster P. Griffin, United States Consul at Lagunas, Panama, who has been enjoying a much-needed rest in this city for some time past, expects to sail, with his private secretary, for his post the last of this month. Mr. Griffin has leased a residence on La Grande avenue, and his wife and daughter will reside there.

WHOLE BOROUGH WILL PAY FOR WIDENING.

Somerset Street Improvement Said to be Assured.

NO ONE IS OPPOSED TO IT.

COUNCILMEN AND INTERESTED PROPERTY OWNERS TO MEET.

By Placing the Tax for the Cost of the Improvement on the Whole Borough It is Thought There Will be No Dissatisfaction—Will Bring More Trade to All the Borough Merchants.

Some evening this week there will be a special meeting of the Mayor and Borough Council and the property owners on Somerset street, who will be affected by the widening of that street from the county line to Jackson avenue. There seems to be no doubt but what the improvement will be made.

At present some slight changes are being made in the map, and this will be presented at the coming meeting for discussion. It has been determined that the cost of the improvement will be about $5,000, and the best plan under consideration now, is to place this amount in the tax bud et next year, and thus let the entire borough pay for the work. In this way the expense will be light on everyone, and the benefits to be derived from it will more than pay for the cost.

In the canvass thus far made no one along the line can be found who is opposed to the widening, and all agree that it will be one of the greatest improvements to the borough. It is realized that if the street remains as it is that trade will not come to the borough as it would otherwise. The narrowness of the street makes it unpleasant and often times dangerous to drive through on the account of the frequent running of trolley cars.

Other advantages of this improvement will be the laying of a surface drainage to carry off the water that often makes Somerset street muddy and invariably keeps it in an unsatisfactory condition most of the time. With this improvement would come the placing of over head wires underground, and this would be a great benefit to all.

HELD UP ON DARK ROAD.

Thieves Hall Mr. Boehder's Rig and Relieve Him of Christmas Gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Boehder, who live on the Perth Amboy road, nine miles from New Brunswick, were held up by tramps early Wednesday morning at Tot Pines, a clump of woods at a lonely spot in the road between New Brunswick and Metuchen.

Mr. and Mrs. Boehder, with two young women, had been to New Brunswick to do some Christmas shop ing. They had their wagon filled with bun dles when they started for home. I was 1 o'clock when they reached The Pines. Two men sprang out from the hedge, seized the horse's head and demanded money. The men emptied the wagon of the bundles, took two horse blankets and a purse containing $1.20 from one of the young women.

While they were looting the wagon one of them covered Boehder with a revolver. There is no doubt that the robbery was committed by tramps.

Iona Council Officers.

Iona Council, Degree of Pocahontas, last week elected these officers: Prophetess, Ella Sebring; Pocohontas, Mrs. Catherine Westphal; Wenona, Mrs. Christina Deucklau; Powhatan, John Montrose; keeper of records, Mrs Levina Holdsteil; collector of wampum, Mrs. Andrew Mattis; keeper of wampum, Mrs. Johanna Allen; trustee, Mrs. Amelia Westphal. Before the election three candidates were initiated. After the exercises the members sat down to a supper provided in the ladies' best style.

Jerusalem Lodge Officers.

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F and A M., has elected the following officers: Worshipful master, Robt. A. Meeker; senior warden, Frank DeHass; junior warden, Walter A Freeman; treasurer, Calvin H. Bagg; secretary, Charles Yaeger; trustees, Lemuel B. Woolston, James Shaffer and Garret T. Dunham

Warrior's Degree Conferred.

The Warrior's degree was conferred upon eleven candidates at last week's meeting of Panghesunhsingue Tribe of Red Men. There was also one application for membership received. After conferring the degree new officers were nominated to be elected next Wednesday night.

Another Second-Hand Cars.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company has just received some more second-hand trolley cars from Brooklyn. It is not expected that their new cars will reach this city much before spring.

Lawyer J. P. D. Kuon has been out of town for a few days on business.

Miss May King, of Newark, has been visiting Plainfield relatives for a short time.

Mrs George Ballentine, of East Second street, will spend Christmas in Philadelphia.

THE "SPEAKING STATUES."

Superstitions and Beliefs of the Ancient Egyptians in Regard to These Gods.

M. Gaston Maspero, the well-known French Egyptologist, has recently written an interesting article on the "speaking statues" of ancient Egypt. He says that the statues of some of the gods were made of jointed parts and were supposed to communicate with the faithful by speech, signs and other movements. They were made of wood, painted or gilded. Their hands could be raised and lowered and their heads moved, but it was known whether their feet could be put in motion. When one of the faithful asked for advice their god answered either by signs or words. Occasionally long speeches were made, and at other times the answer was simply an inclination of the head. Every temple had priests whose special duty it was to assist the statues to make these communications. The priests did not make any mystery of their part in the proceedings. It was believed that the statues were intermediary between the gods and mortals, and the priests themselves had a very exalted idea of their calling. They firmly believed that the souls of divinities inhabited the statues, and they always approached them with religious fear and reverence.

These priests would stand behind the statues and move their heads or hands or speak for them, never doubting that at that moment their movements and words were inspired by the divine spirit dwelling in the statues. The statues were placed so as to very much alive that in war they were carried into those people whose deities they were. They were taken prisoners, condemned to death or given into slavery—in other words, placed in the temples of the conquering gods. If they were returned to their own temples, they bore inscriptions testifying to their defeat and imprisonment.

How Fishes Breathe.

Fishes breathe, as is well known, says Ulric Dahlgren in Popular Science Bulletin, by passing a stream of water through the oral cavity, in at the mouth and out at the gill openings. It is realized that if the stream remains as it is that trade will not come to the borough as it would otherwise. The narrowness of the street makes it unpleasant and often times dangerous to drive through on the account of the frequent running of trolley cars.

Other advantages of this improvement will be the laying of a surface drainage to carry off the water that often makes Somerset street muddy and invariably keeps it in an unsatisfactory condition most of the time. With this improvement would come the placing of over head wires underground, and this would be a great benefit to all.

HELD UP ON DARK ROAD.

Thieves Hall Mr. Boehder's Rig and Relieve Him of Christmas Gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Boehder, who live on the Perth Amboy road, nine miles from New Brunswick, were held up by tramps early Wednesday morning at Tot Pines, a clump of woods at a lonely spot in the road between New Brunswick and Metuchen.

Mr. and Mrs. Boehder, with two young women, had been to New Brunswick to do some Christmas shop ing. They had their wagon filled with bun dles when they started for home. I was 1 o'clock when they reached The Pines. Two men sprang out from the hedge, seized the horse's head and demanded money. The men emptied the wagon of the bundles, took two horse blankets and a purse containing $1.20 from one of the young women.

While they were looting the wagon one of them covered Boehder with a revolver. There is no doubt that the robbery was committed by tramps.

Iona Council Officers.

Iona Council, Degree of Pocahontas, last week elected these officers: Prophetess, Ella Sebring; Pocohontas, Mrs. Catherine Westphal; Wenona, Mrs. Christina Deucklau; Powhatan, John Montrose; keeper of records, Mrs Levina Holdsteil; collector of wampum, Mrs. Andrew Mattis; keeper of wampum, Mrs. Johanna Allen; trustee, Mrs. Amelia Westphal. Before the election three candidates were initiated. After the exercises the members sat down to a supper provided in the ladies' best style.

Jerusalem Lodge Officers.

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F and A M., has elected the following officers: Worshipful master, Robt. A. Meeker; senior warden, Frank DeHass; junior warden, Walter A Freeman; treasurer, Calvin H. Bagg; secretary, Charles Yaeger; trustees, Lemuel B. Woolston, James Shaffer and Garret T. Dunham

Warrior's Degree Conferred.

The Warrior's degree was conferred upon eleven candidates at last week's meeting of Panghesunhsingue Tribe of Red Men. There was also one application for membership received. After conferring the degree new officers were nominated to be elected next Wednesday night.

Another Second-Hand Cars.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company has just received some more second-hand trolley cars from Brooklyn. It is not expected that their new cars will reach this city much before spring.

Lawyer J. P. D. Kuon has been out of town for a few days on business.

Miss May King, of Newark, has been visiting Plainfield relatives for a short time.

Mrs George Ballentine, of East Second street, will spend Christmas in Philadelphia.

PERPLEXING HAWAII

AN ISLAND WHICH HAS NO NORTH, SOUTH, EAST OR WEST.

The Difficulty of Getting One's Bearings—Terms Used in Indicating the Different Sides of Streets—Are Official and Used in All Legal Documents.

Visitors to Honolulu are often perplexed to get the points of the compass fixed in their minds with reference to streets and houses, and are still more perplexed to find nobody who knows them and nobody who feels the need of knowing them. To the visitor, especially from the Mississippi Valley, where the Congressional survey of public lands has laid out everything four-square, so that directions and distances are always thought of in their relation to north, south, east or west, this is incomprehensible.

But it does not take a very long residence there to learn that the points of the compass in the ordinary matters of direction are of very little practical use, and the prevailing system including terms and phraseology, adapted from that used by the native Hawaiians and continuing the use of their nomenclature, is a very practical one and well adapted to the needs of the case.

The islands are small and of volcanic origin. There is at least one main range of mountains on each island, though there are often subsidiary ones. As is well known, mountains do not run with special reference to the points of the compass. And the narrow valleys that are crowded out of the volcanic mass and extending from the mountains to the sea bear still less appreciable relation to them. So that if one were to count the points of the compass with relation to any one of these valleys a quarter of a mile would bring him to another, for here he would have to take his bearings all afresh. But there are two objects he can never get out of sight of. These are the mountain and the sea. And on this fact the whole system of nomenclature and of the system of direction rests. With relation to any point the two cardinal directions are toward the mountains and toward the sea. Now, the native Hawaiian terms for these are "mauka," toward or in direction of the mountain, and "makai" toward or in direction of the sea.

The topography of the country, a series of valleys extending from the mountains to the sea, and the fanlike texture under which land was held in the ancient day, led to the division of the country into narrow strips, or districts—ahupuas, they were called. An ahupuan, the next smaller, and ili, those still smaller, but all, with very few exceptions, extending from the mountains to the sea and the fanlike way common people, restricted to their own ili, yet had access to the sea to fish and swim and ride the surf, to the mountains for fuel, thatching and building material, and to land between to cultivate taro. The boundaries of these districts were all carefully defined, and the description of each is much the same to-day. Moreover, each district had its name, and that name remains.

With the mountain above and the sea below and the narrow districts in succession, each with its boundaries and name well defined, the basis of the system of nomenclature of directions was complete. A given point or object is "mauka," toward the mountain, or "makai," toward the sea, in relation to any other point or object, and it is "waihihi, or "ewa," in the direction of the district of Ewa, for the other relations of direction.

Ewa is a small district, for instance, where no street runs north and south, or east and west, and few streets run straight in any direction for any great distance, and the sides of the north and south side of the street—no one cannot of the east and west sides. But every street has a mauka and makai side, or a waihihi and ewa side to a particular corner may be precisely and accurately described as the mauka- waihihi corner, or the makai-ewa. And this is the condition of affairs not only in Honolulu, but official. They are used in contracts, deeds, wills and statutes. They suit conditions and have grown out of them.

More Favorable.

"Dar's one of de ma'ms'est mules in dis city," announced the proud proprietor of an ash cart to one of his patrons. "He undahstan's ebery word I say, same like he was a person."

"Hardly, I guess. Tell him to go ahead a little."

"Git up, Mr. Sunshine!" and the mule began to back.

"Look at that, now."

"Dat's what I'se telling you, boss. Sh! I make dat mule understan' one perfect, how do he know to do de opsite ebery time? He never miss since I had him, boss."—Detroit Free Press.

A Strange Animal.

Devil's Island, made famous as the prison of Dreyfus, has a strange species of animal found nowhere else on earth. This odd animal has been called the coati, and is a peculiar combination of mammiferous, carnivorous plantigrade.

It is about the size of a cat when full grown, with a long head shaped like a pyramid, a tremendous nose, making it look as though it had been put on sideways. Its feet are long, like those of the young alligator and it uses its forepaws to carry its food to the mouth, as monkeys and squirrels do.

From the Other Side.

Here is a "personal" that appeared not long ago in a London newspaper:

"Willie, return to your distracted wife and frantic children! Do you want to hear of your old mother's end? Oh, Willie, if you will let us know where you are. Anyway, send back your father's colored moustachuns."

And yet we say the Briton has no very lively sense of humor.

The City of Ghent.

The famous old city of Ghent, Belgium is built on twenty-six islands, which are connected with one another by eighty bridges. These bridges, streets and thirty public squares are contained in these islands.

The Mushroom Lover.

In London a paving stone which weighed 500 pounds, and which was wedged in on all sides by other stones, was lifted up by a mushroom.

REMINISCENCES OF HOBART.

Former Mayor Plans Well Acquainted With the Late Vice President.

Now that Garrett A. Hobart, our late lamented Vice-President, has been laid at rest, I feel as one who knew him well, from my acquaintance formed during the heated political contest in 1880, that I have a right, and deem it a privilege to give some reminiscences concerning him.

It was my privilege in 1880, '81 and '82 to be a member of the Republican State Committee, and one of the executive committee of that committee, Mr. Hobart was made chairman, succeeding F. A. Potts, and some of the best men from among the older political leaders were members of it, such as Mr. Conger, of Newark, Gardner B. Colby, of Morristown, Comptroller Anderson, of Trenton, and John Y. Foster, of Newark, who was its secretary. James A. Garfield and General Hancock were the candidates for President, and Frederick H Potts and George C Ludlow candidates for Governor; Mr. Potts' candidacy called forth the full energy of the party leaders, as no Republican candidate for Governor had before, and General Garfield did the same thing. Mr. Hobart was exceedingly anxious that Mr. Potts should carry the State, as he was that General Garfield should. The great interest as a member and chairman of the State Committee, as well as his personal friendship for Mr. Potts, served him to forsake everything else, and throw himself in the contest.

Our headquarters were at the Taylor House in Jersey City, and the executive committee met twice a week after the campaign opened. Mr. Hobart was in attendance at every meeting. At the same hotel, on the same floor and at the other end of the hall, the Democratic State committee had its headquarters. One day some member of our committee asked Mr. Hobart what he thought would be the effect of the close proximity of the two committees. "Well, gentlemen," said he, "I think the gentlemen who are against us will endeavor to, and probably will, get some of our secrets, but we must keep even with them. I would advise, however, that our committees keep its own counsel and not talk too much with the gentlemen at the other end of the hall."

It was during this campaign that the first house-to-house canvass probably was ever made by our party in this State, under the advice of Mr. Hobart, and ably managed by him and Secretary Foster. And so well was that canvass made, when the committee met Friday preceding the election day in 1880, that every evidence was that Mr. Potts would be elected, and a close fight between General Hancock. As is well known our opponents only carried the State by a very small majority, when they usually had from 5,000 to 12,000, or more sometimes.

The 1881 National campaign, when Mr. Hobart was the Republican candidate, found Mr. Hobart a member of the National Republican committee and remained on it until he was twelve years after nominated for Vice President. Mr. Cleveland was the Democratic candidate and Mr. St. John the Prohibition candidate, and his friends knowing he had no chance of election were working hard to defeat Mr. Blaine, which they accomplished One day I called at the Republican headquarters in New York city, and said to Mr. Hobart, in full judgment of the Prohibition vote was to be a mighty factor in the contest, and asked him if it were not possible for his committee to get Mr St. John in some way out of the canvass. Turning to me with fire in his eye, a fire of indignation, he said, "Place, we have done all we possibly could to accomplish that very thing, but the Democrats have succeeded in blocking our game." "Do not," said he, "let the Republicans lay awake nights on that account, we are going to elect Mr. Blaine in spite of the Prohibition vote." As well known as came near being correct in his prediction, for Mr. Cleveland was only elected by carrying New York State by less than twelve hundred votes.

Mr. Hobart later on made another prediction which came true. Soon after the last election when Leon Abbott was elected Governor of this State, I met him in New York and said to him, "Mr. Hobart it seems discouraging for the Republicans to fight in New Jersey against odds. We spend our time and money much each year for nothing, for almost invariably our opponents carry off the prize." Looking me squarely in the face he said: "As sure as the sun rises in the east and sets in the west, New Jersey is soon destined to become a Republican State, and Leon Abbott will help make it so."

Personally Mr. Hobart was a very attractive man. His political judgment was equal to any man in his party, and he became a power in the National councils. It was an admirable thing for the American press and American people, irrespective of party, to lend a man whose honesty and integrity was of such a high degree, as to call forth such commendation at the end of a pure and noble life.

Chas. Place.

QUIET HOME WEDDING.

MRS. FLORENCE CLARKSON BOOM S THE WIFE OF HENRY H. BOH...

Ceremony Performed by Rev. C. L. Goodrich at the Home of the Bride's Parents—Couple Will Live in Scotch Plains.

A quiet home wedding took place December 20 th. at 7.30 o'clock, when Miss Florence L. Clarkson, daughter of Thomas Clarkson, of Orchard place, and Henry H. Bohl, of the borough, were united in marriage at the bride's father. Only the relatives and immediate friends were present to witness the happy event The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, and it was made more attractive through the use of the ring.

The bride wore a handsome gown of grey cloth, trimmed with white silk, and she carried bride roses. She and the groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Bensinger, of the borough. Mrs. Bensinger was gowned in a dress of garnet cloth, trimmed with lace.

After the ceremony and congratulations, a wedding supper was served. Mr. and Mrs Bohl were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents. They will go to housekeeping at once at the corner of Stone street and Greenbrook road, where the groom has a house already furnished and awaiting their arrival.

During last evening the bride and groom held an informal reception when they received some of their friends. The affair, as stated, was a quiet one and a limited number of invitations were issued. Mr. Bohl is a contractor, and both he and his wife are very popular young people among a large circle of friends, all of whom wish them much joy and happiness as they journey through life.

PRESENTATION TO TEACHER.

Bryant School Pupils Had a Floriferous Surprise in Store for Miss Shattuck.

Wednesday afternoon at the close of the play given by the pupils of the Bryant School, Miss Shattuck, the principal, was presented with a beautiful madonna picture, by the pupils of the Bryant and Lincoln schools. Miss Shattuck was taken completely by surprise, as the children had kept the secret so perfectly that she had not the slightest suspicion of what was in store for her. The picture rested upon an easel, and was tastefully presented by Master Harold Lavell, in behalf of the pupils of both schools.

On the Road to Recovery.

Mrs. W. J. Chamberlain and her daughter, Lottie, who were reported so seriously last Sunday, are now on the road to recovery and Dr. Lewrie is now quite confident that they will get through all right. Mrs. Chamberlain is suffering a great deal from the burns about her eyes, but as a rule she and her daughter have less pain now and are fairly comfortable.

Celebrated Her Birthday.

Miss Romie E. Giles celebrated her eighteenth birthday December 20 at the home of her parents in the Babcock building Guests to the number of 40 were present from this city, Bound Brook and New Brunswick Music was furnished for dancing by Pro Frazee, and refreshments were served with refreshments. The affair was a pleasant one and thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Entered Fythian Knights.

Goodwill Lodge, K. of P., met last week and elected the following officers: Chancellor Commander, Jos. H Saunders; vice chancellor commander, W. D Johnson; prelate, S. H. Smith; master of exchequer, George W. Alexander; keeper of records and seals, L. L Croom; master-at-arms, Henry Jackson; master of work, A. Thompson.

For a Midnight Mass on Dec. 31.

Vicar General O'Connor, of the Catholic Diocese, of Newark, has notified the priests of the diocese that they may, at their options, celebrate midnight mass on the birth of the year 1900, in celebration of the Pope's Jubilee. The Vicar General is acting head of the diocese during the absence abroad of Bishop Wigger

Alexander Muir is Noble Grand.

The following officers were elected by Quaeg City Lodge, No. 228, I O O F, at their meeting last week: Noble Grand, Alexander Muir; vice-grand, John Cose; recording secretary, James Neal; financial secretary, H. H. Hoffman; treasurer, J. P. Allis. The installation will take place New Year's night.

To Watch Old Out and New In.

Several watch night services will be held in this city New Year's Eve. Owing to the fact that it falls this year on Sunday, much amusement of a secular nature will thus have to be omitted.

W. W Corbell, of West Front street, has gone south with some friends on a hunting expedition.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crevelling, of Summit avenue, are rejoicing over the arrival of a bouncing boy.

Mr. and Mrs. H. I Cooley, of Rockview avenue, are entertaining a visit from Mrs. Morgan S. Taylor, of New York.

COLOR OF RAGE.

Discovery That Red Affects Men Similarly to Animals.

Why does the bull so strongly object to a red rag? While the professional physiologists do not, as a rule, appear to have found any satisfactory explanation of the fact, a French manufacturer of photographic materials appears to have discovered that bulls are by no means the only members of the animal kingdom who are excited by anything red. A large number of men are employed in the manufactory, both male and female, and most of the work has hitherto been performed in rooms to which all the light that was admitted came through panes of red glass. Hardly a day passed without some terrific disturbance taking place among the workpeople, and at last it was decided at once to the death between two of the men, now between two of the women; sometimes the males and general "workshop rumpuses" were absolutely ignored, and no amount of fines or other punishments seemed to have any permanent effect. Finally a state of affairs was assumed, until recently, to be inseparable from work carried on in uncomfortable conditions. At length it was discovered that the trouble lay in the red panes of glass which were at fault, and it was decided to try what the effect of green panes would be. The effect was instantaneous. From that day a sudden peace fell upon the whole workshop that had never been known before. It is hard to imagine a change as if by enchantment, and voice of man or woman was never heard raised above a whisper.

Flower's Experience in Congress

The late Roswell P. Flower, of New York, used to tell some amusing stories of his Congressional experiences.

"I let Congress alone severely in the only place I ever got into where money didn't count," he remarked the last time I saw him, two months or more before his death. A rich man is usually handicapped there. In the first place, a country member is naturally prejudiced against a rich man coming from the city, particularly those from New York city. They seem to think that the New Yorkers are a lot of highwaymen, and that they will profit by national conventions and State legislatures, and the fact that a city delegation wants something is a good reason why a country man should vote against it. The easiest way to kill a bill in Congress is to have the New York delegation support it. I once had a memorial asking its passage. Then every countryman will vote against it sure.

"When the city member is rich that hinders him all the worse. During the first session I was in Congress I spent more than $10,000 trying to convince my fellow members of the House of Representatives that I was a good fellow. I gave them dinners and wine and plenty of cigars, but it was of no advantage I got, and while they enjoyed it as much as anybody, it only made them suspicious. They could not understand my motive in doing it, and I failed in taking them without some base motive behind it. I was a city man representing a country district. In other words I was a man of people's clothing, and they were very shy of me. I didn't ask anything of anybody. I only wanted to be one of the boys. I had a good time, but the more I spent on them the worse they got.

"Toward the close of the first session, however, after everybody in the House had accepted my hospitality and drunk my wine and eaten my terrapin, I tried to get a bill passed—a bill giving a pension of $12 a month to a poor old woman up in my district, whose husband and son had been killed in the war. I felt sure that all of my dinners would have paid her that pension all the rest of her life. Somehow I couldn't get that bill up for a vote. I could get it up, but it got pretty nearly everybody on the Democratic side voted against it. I went over to Joe Blackburn and I said: 'Joe, what's the matter? You don't you fellows vote for my bill?' and he took me over in the corner and gave some pointers. I saw then that I had got the situation, but I didn't believe him. I could not conceive that the Democratic members of that House were such egotistical fools as to think I was trying to play them for suckers, and I says, 'Hows, Joe, you take that bill and see if you can get it through.' I carried it in my hand all the next day during the morning hour, and it passed without objection; but if they had objected it was my bill it wouldn't have got a vote.

"This feeling were off after a while. They found out that I wasn't a highway man and a pickpocket, but just an ordinary good fellow."

Curious Christian Names.

I recently heard an interesting story from the late Canon Bardsley, author of "English Names and Surnames." There was once a woman—a little Irish girl—who came to the Canon, by way of parenthesis—who had a son whom she had christened "What." Canon Bardsley asked her how that when in after days he was asked his name, and kept saying "What," amusing scenes would follow, which was likely to prejudice him. "Oh, sir," she was careful to pronounce the aspirate, "such a scene did, I believe, occur once when he went to school, and was told, in a little confusion, to write down certain particulars. "What is your name?" asked the teacher. "What," blurted out the boy, amid the laughter of the class. "Your name, sir," he then asked the master again, with more emphasis. "What," replied the boy. "Your name, sir?" roared out the infuriated pedagogue. "What, What!" roared back the terrified urchin. The sequel I forget, says a writer in Notes and Queries, but I have known one or two cases in which the follies of the parents are visited on the children of the next generation.

Mr. Filter Foreign Water.

Most of the great water filters now in use are supplied by the Jewell system in all parts of the world are the product of this firm. The largest of these is the filtering plant in St. Thomas, Canada, which has a capacity of 3,000,000 gallons daily. Other large plants from New York are in New South Wales, Colombo, Ceylon, Germany, Russia and Siberia.—New York Sun.

"I understand you were drunk again Saturday night."

"Why, You're misinformed. It was merely a renewal of previous drunk."

SMITH TO PRESIDE OVER THE COUNCIL

Republican Majority Decide in His Favor Last Week

DUMONT GOT THREE VOTES.

COUNCILMAN CORBELL FAVORED THE FOURTH WARD MAN.

On the Final Ballot the Vote Was Smith, 4; Dumont, 3; Meilick, 1; Blank, 1—Smith's Chance Twice Made Unanimous—Proceedings Held Behind Closed Doors—Change in Committees.

Frank H Smith will be the president of the Common Council for the year 1900. A caucus of the new Council was held last week and a combination of the Councilmen from the First and Fourth wards determined the matter. Councilman J. B. Dumont will probably be the leader on the floor.

There were two names mentioned for the presidency of the incoming Council One was Frank H. Smith, of the Fourth ward, and the other J. B. Dumont, of the Second ward. Mr. Dumont has served the longest of any of the members of the Council and has also been president of the Council a term.

It can frankly be said that the best of feeling has not prevailed in the Republican ranks during the last year and that the Fourth ward leaders felt that they had not received their due recognition. Some time ago it was announced that the Fourth ward wanted Mr Smith for presiding officer of the Council. The First ward leaders found the choice acceptable, Councilman B. Frank Corbell aided with them. The rest of the Council thought that seniority of service entitled Mr. Dumont to the honor.

The caucus was held last evening at the Council Chamber. It was a secret meeting. All the members were present. As informal ballot was first taken and it was found that a majority of the members favored Mr. Smith.

Councilman Corbell then made a speech in which he told his reasons for wishing to see Mr. Smith as presiding officer. Besides referring to the excellent qualifications of Mr. Smith for the place, he pointed out that the Fourth ward was entitled to the honor. Mr. Smith president of the Council had never come from that ward, except in a Democratic regime, and he felt that it was time the Republicans recognized the magnificent work done there for the party. He pointed out with pride the huge Republican majority there at the last city election.

Councilman George F. Mellick advanced the reasons why he believed that Mr. Dumont was best suited and entitled to the honor. He has served on the Council eleven years although not consecutively.

A formal ballot was then taken which showed the following result: Smith, 4; Dumont, 3; Meilick, 1; blank, 1. It was declared that it was the sense of the caucus that Mr. Smith should be chosen presiding officer. Mr. Dumont was the first to congratulate Mr. Smith on the honor.

When Mr. Smith will be unanimously elected president of the Council. The decision of the caucus will be final and all the Councilmen expressed their pleasure in supporting the candidate thus chosen. Mr. Smith is very popular with the associates and has shown much efficiency when temporarily called upon to take the chair.

It was decided at the caucus that hereafter the important committees of the Council shall consist of five members instead of three so as to allow each ward to be represented on it.

SICK ONLY A DAY.

Mrs. William O. Baldwin Died Suddenly Last Week From an Attack of Peritonitis.

The death of Mrs. William O. Baldwin, of West Fourth street, which occurred Dec. 19th, at 5 o'clock very suddenly, is a great shock to her many friends and acquaintances in this city. Mrs. Baldwin had been in excellent health, and it was only about a day previous to her death that she was taken ill with peritonitis.

The best of medical skill was employed and everything possible done to bring about a recovery, but all efforts failed. Mrs. Baldwin was about 33 years of age, and has been a resident of this city for a long time.

She was formerly a Miss Lawson, daughter of the late Peter Lawson, of New Market. She was an attendant at the First Church of Christ, who is survived by a husband and two children.

St. Patrick's Clock to Perform.

The new clock for St. Patrick's church, Elizabethport, is being placed in position. The timepiece cost $2,700 and has six dials, three in each spire. The clock will be started New Year's eve.

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral.

NOT NARCOTIC.

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of

NEW YORK.

4 th months old

35 DOSES – 35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

LITTLE CHANGE IN THE CITY OFFICIALS.

Present Incumbents Will Probably be Reappointed.

TALK OF POLICE CHANGES.

PROBABLY THAT IT IS NOTHING BUT IDLE GOSSIP.

Some Talk That Chief Grant Might be Retired, But He Will Probably be Retained in His Present Place—City Clerk MacMurray Will be Re-elected to His Present Place in the Council.

It is a little early to make guesses concerning the people who will fill the appointive offices in the city government for 1900, but there are a few things about which there is a reasonable degree of certainty.

There is no doubt but what James T. MacMurray will be chosen city clerk. He has the business of the city down to a fine point, and is so thoroughly conversant with all its affairs that the new Council will much prefer a person of experience in that position. This will facilitate matters a great deal, and besides there will not be the trouble of breaking in a new man for the place.

Andrew J. Gawett, the present street commissioner, will undoubtedly be retained in office. He has served the city well and is also thoroughly posted on every detail in his department. He is conceded by the majority to be the right man for the right place, and the machine is not disposed to displace him.

It has been hinted that there is to be changes in the police department which is practically the same hint that is heard every year, but there is no reasonable assurance that there will be any change. It has been reported that Chief Grant is to be placed on the retired list, and that a younger man be put in his place. A little question by among the members does not prove the truth of this report and it is quite likely that Chief Grant will remain where he is. This department may be increased in efficiency through the use of the police call system, which is needed and which could have been had a few years ago, had it not been for a member of the police department who threw cold water on the scheme and thus discouraged the police board from doing anything at that time. Two members were afraid that if the system should be introduced that its efficiency would not be maintained, and it would not show to the best advantage.

Overseer of the Poor Hansen is quite likely to remain in his position, as no fault has been found with his service and the department has been conducted in a manner to suit the city fathers, and more especially the alms committee.

Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, is destined to stay where he is. He holds office under the veteran act. It is hinted that there may be some minor changes in the fire department, but nothing definite has been decided at present.

As regards the positions of sergeant of police and roundsmen there is not likely to be any changes. These officials seem to be doing their work in a satisfactory manner to the police board, and in fact the whole police department is considered to be in good condition.

Taking it all in all there is not likely to be any great changes in the make-up of the city government for 1900 and as each department appears to be working well, the incoming councilmen will not be disposed to make a change unless something warrants it.

There are many improvements that the city needs and no doubt some of them will be given during next year. There is a possibility that there will be some talk about a new city hall, with all the combinations, such as jail, city offices, etc. One matter needing attention is that regarding the establishment of a police ambulance. This is needed and the councilmen believe it would greatly aid the department.

No doubt some great improvements will be made in street work, and the Council will undoubtedly endeavor to do something toward establishing permanent roads. There is every indication that next year's sessions will be lively enough for anyone, as with the incoming Council there are some who will make themselves heard on the floor and some agressive work is looked for.

NEW TELEPHONES.

Many Plainfielders Become New Subscribers to the Local Exchange.

The business of the New York & New Jersey Telephone Company in this city has been increasing rapidly during the past few months and especially during this month. It is believed that by January 1st there will be five hundred subscribers in this city. Telephones have been placed as follows during December: W H McGee, 40 Westervelt avenue, No. 616; Harrold Serrell, Myrtle and Sycamore avenue, 1065; F. J. Harris, South Second street, 1106; Monarch Printing Company, West Fifth street, 1065; Mrs. L. J. Denton, West Front street, 731; Harry F. Johnson, 1220 Watchung avenue, 1175; Mrs. W. L. Hull, 36 Norwood avenue, 611; Edward V. French, Babcock building, 1075; Mrs. J. M. Stillman, residence, West Seventh street, 1081; office, West Front street, 1132; George Eglo, 191 Somerset street, 1193; Walter L. Hetfield, 149 Park avenue, 712; B. F. Crane, 9 Somerset street, 1114; Frank Curtis 93 Mercer avenue, 1151; John T. Bantle, 428 Watchung avenue, 1163; Henry Hanson, 144 East Front street, 1091; Dr. H. V. Merrill, 420 Central avenue, 1086; Mrs. H. L. Warren, 109 West Seventh street, 1142; A. Kane, 409 East Third street, 913.

COULDN'T RETAIL TURKEYS.

A Flemington Trouble Went Contrary to the City Ordinances.

Farmer Mahoney, of Flemington, arrived in Plainfield about 8 a. m. Friday with a load of turkeys, and while going up North avenue his wagon broke down. He then thought he would try and retail the turkeys from the street. This is in violation of the city ordinance unless a license is secured. Accordingly the man was arraigned before City Judge Runyon. Mahoney was told what he could and could not do. He escaped further trouble by selling the entire lot to a local butcher.

SOCIETY BUD BLOSSOMS.

"COMING OUT" OF MISS STRONG A NOTABLE SOCIAL EVENT.

The Affair Held at the Home of the Debutante's Parents Friday, and Attended by the Elite of Local Society.

A pleasing event of Friday was the "coming out" of Etna Strong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Strong, of 1020 Central avenue, when a very large number of Plainfield's society folks called to do honor to one of the most popular debutantes of the season. The hours were from 5 to 7 o'clock and during that time the house was thronged with guests. Seldom has there been such an attractive gathering of fair women and such a handsome display of elegant gowns and ornaments.

The beautiful home was charming in its decorations, appropriate to the holiday season. Through the use of holly, evergreens and palms, and that favorite flower, red pine feather, a perfect picture was presented. In the parlor the prevailing colors were green and white. It was here that the guests were received. The debutante received with her mother, and they were assisted by Miss Merrill, Miss Quackenbush and Miss Western, of New York; Miss Strong, of Bryn Mawr, Pa.; Miss Todd and Miss Miller, of this city, and Mrs. Williams, of Hartford, Conn. Miss Strong was was gowned in white silk illusion, and she was greatly admired by all. Her mother wore a gown of black net over white. The former was the recipient of many handsome floral pieces.

The dining room was in charge of a caterer and there there was added pleasure for the very excellent service here. During the afternoon hours delightful music was furnished by a string quartette in charge of P. Ludwig Conde, and after the reception music was furnished for the younger set that remained for the dancing.

Other decorations of more than passing interest were those in the library, where the colors, green and pink, were brought out to the best advantage, through greens and pretty buds. The whole affair was complete to every detail and it can be said that no more charming event has taken place this season.

PRIZE FOR AN ESSAY.

Daughters of American Revolution Offer Prize of $5 for Best One on Patriotic Subject.

The Continental Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution is seeking in a most commendable manner to stimulate the interest of the rising generation in persons and events concerned in the foundation of the nation.

In a recent communication to Superintendent Maxson, the Chapter offers a prize of $5 to any member of the Plainfield High School who shall write the best essay on a patriotic subject. The committee in charge, of which Mrs. M. E. Dwight is chairman, has selected for the subject, "The Battle of Princeton." The essays are to be presented on the tenth of February.

It is the purpose of the committee to include the prize essay in the programme of exercises to be held in commemoration of Washington's birthday.

GIFTS TO HIGH SCHOOL.

Several Presentations Made at Christmas Exercises at Plainfield High School Monday.

There was a little surprise at the Christmas exercises at the Plainfield High School Friday morning. At the close of the programme which included readings by the Misses Jessie Dunham, Mary Lock, Elsie Smith and Edna Burr and an address by Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, Miss Marion D. Woodcock, president of the Senior class, presented the High School with a "Sistine Madonna," by Raphael, framed, and also a model of the statue of Minerva Museum. Principal Ira W. Travell accepted the gift in a short speech.

Two pictures, Turner's "The Old Temeraire," and a Dutch landscape, "The Mill," by Habbenia were presented by the Fourth class to the High School. The presentation speech was made by Hervey K. Deane, and George Weeks Sandford responded in behalf of the school.

War Hurts This Industry.

The war in South Africa is having its effect on the Regina Box Company, which is the leading industry in Rahway. During the summer the company employed over 200 skilled mechanics, while the plant was run overtime. The company had a heavy export trade with England and the Transvaal. Now the trade with the latter country is entirely stopped because of the war, while the English trade has greatly fallen away. The Regina plant is no longer running overtime and may not run even full time after January 1st.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away. To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac. the wonder-worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

BACHELORS WINNERS

DEFEATED BEN DICTS IN THE FIRST BOWLING MATCH.

Exciting Game Rolled on Park Club All-pin Saturday Night—The Single Man Won Easily by Score of 30 Pins.

The Benedicts laid their plans well but the Bachelors laid theirs better. That was why the Bachelors of the Park Club won the first of the bowling matches between their ten men team and a like team composed of the married men of the club. The Benedicts set the running for half the match and then the single men stepped in and took it out of their hands.

The Bachelor-Benedict matches have become regular events on the Park Club alleys during the Christmas holidays. The first of the series this year was rolled Saturday evening and was witnessed by quite a number of spectators.

Nobody did anything brilliant in the first frame except Dr. Thiers. He managed to get just one pin on his first ball and fouled on his second. Nevertheless the Benedicts led by 16 pins. That lead was steadily increased to 33 in the fourth frame. Then a change came and the single men. They recovered somewhat and strikes and spares began to follow. The lead was cut down until in the sixth frame, the Bachelors were 21 ahead. Hibbard made a triple header but that failed to save the day. VanBuren followed with another just like it.

Once on the run even the weakest of the Bachelors quite distinguish themselves, while such veterans on the other side as Peck, Ostrom and Dr. Thiers fell woefully behind. Hibbard carried off the honors for high score. Dr. Thiers was appointed hours delightful music was furnished by a string quartette in charge of P. Ludwig Conde, and after the reception music was furnished for the younger set that remained for the dancing.

Other decorations of more than passing interest were those in the library, where the colors, green and pink, were brought out to the best advantage, through greens and pretty buds. The whole affair was complete to every detail and it can be said that no more charming event has taken place this season.

BACHELORS.		BENEDICTS.
McCutchen	193	F. O. Ball	178
White	119	Ostrom	168
R. C. Peck	146	Dr. Thiers	136
A. Murphy	138	Nichols	162
Hibbard	202	Van Buren	170
H. Peck	147	McCutchen	152
H. Cowperthwaite	147	Hibbard	202
C. Murphy	111	F. O. Ball	152
O. Marsh	111	Hibbard	202
O. Dupee	100	Hibbard	202
VanBuren	179	Dr. Thiers	136
	1394		1554

Morris Will Probated.

The will of Freeholder Justus Morris, of Elizabeth, has been admitted to probate in the Union County Orphans' Court by Judge Vail. The estate is estimated at fully $1,00 000, most of which is in Elizabeth real estate. Mr. Morris made an equal division of his property among his three sons and left his second wife the valuable homestead in Linden Township, which has fourteen acres attached to it.

In College Minstrels.

At a minstrel show given by the students of Lehigh University last week, Everett J. Peck, of Myrtle avenue, and J. Vincent Rittenhouse, of East Sixth street, took part. Peck was in the chorus, sang a solo and took part in the olio act. Farce that followed while Rittenhouse was a member of the gymnastic team that did stunts during the performance.

To Drill the Naval Reserves.

Lieut. Kemble, Adjutant of the Battalion of the East, New Jersey Naval Reserves, has made application to the Hoboken authorities for permission to use the armory in the City Hall one evening each week. The officers of the battalion want to drill the men in infantry tactics, but are unable to do so on board the training ship Portsmouth for want of space.

Sketch of Lake Dr. Lowry.

In the last issue of The Christian Herald there was devoted a full page to the picture and a sketch of the life of the late Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry. The picture was one of the best ever taken, and the sketch was very interesting. It was written by Robert Main, a well-known hymn writer, publisher and a personal friend of Dr. Lowry.

Grand Jury Will Act.

"Gus" Schenck, the Newark man who is locked up in the Union county jail on a charge of passing a forged check for the amount of $16 on the Rahway Bank, has refused so far to be persuaded by County Detective Keton to plead guilty, and it now looks as if the prisoner's case will have to be acted upon by the January Grand Jury.

Enhance Your Beards With Cuticura. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, the great skin purifiers and beautifiers, do more for pimples, blackheads, red, rough, chapped and oily skin, dandruff, and shedding hair, than all other remedies. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston.

TROLLEY LINE MAY GO ON TO CARTERET

Important Compromise Proposed in Elizabeth.

A WAY TO REACH THE PORT.

IT WOULD EXTEND THE RIKER SYSTEM VERY MUCH.

Company Has Expressed a Willingness to Make Liberal Concessions if They Can Get Right of Way to Elizabethport—Approval of County Board of Freeholders Would be Necessary.

There has been no official communication received from the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railroad Company since the Elizabeth City Council adopted the ordinance which grants to the company the privilege of coming into the city through Jersey avenue.

The Members of the City Council insist that they will not recede from the position they have taken, and the probabilities are that the ordinance will be annulled on the 27th by reason of the expiration of the 30 day limit.

If the company does not carry out its intention to go into Elizabeth by a private right of way or by a consolidation with one of the existing companies, a new ordinance will probably be considered by the City Council.

The company has expressed a willingness to make liberal concessions, provided a right of way could be given for it to reach the lower portion of this city. Several suggestions for routes have been made, but the difficulty lies in the law, which will not allow a grant for a line to parallel an existing line within 1,000 feet.

It is said to be the wish of Mr. Baker and his associates to extend their line to First or Front streets, and thence along the shore of Staten Island Sound to Carteret.

It was asserted that it was probable that a new ordinance, with practically the conditions of the one now in possession of the company, with an extension of the route as a compromise feature, will be the outcome, and that it will be acceptable to the company, and will have the support of all the Councilmen.

The report is that the North Jersey Company would waive its rights under the 1,000 feet limit law, and would give consent to the new company going to the lower part of the city. The proposed route would necessitate the use of the North Jersey Company's tracks on West Jersey, Broad and East Broad streets. The plan would be to enter the city through Jersey avenue, connect as proposed in the original application, with the tracks of the old company in West Jersey street, and then run over the West Jersey, Broad and East Broad streets route to Magnolia avenue. The cars then would be from that point down Magnolia avenue to Division street, through Division under the Central Railroad bridge to Court street. The line would extend to First street, and along the sound to Tremley and Cartaret.

To complete an enterprise of this kind franchises would be necessary both from the city and county.

MASS NEW YEAR'S EVE.

Solemn Service to be Held in St. Joseph's Church in Accordance With Decree of Pope Leo.

Next Sunday night at 12 o'clock an important event will take place at St Joseph's church on Manning avenue, when solemn mass will be held in accordance with the decree of Pope Leo. This celebration is in honor of the new year, 1900, while it is not obligatory, the Pope has given his approval of the celebration. There will be special music of a high character and at the same time communion will be celebrated. The service will commence promptly at midnight and will last about one hour. This is a very unusual celebration and no doubt the attendance will be very large.

THE CLARET FLOWED.

John Stein Had His Head Gashed by Being Hit With a Chair.

John Stein, a well-known character about Dunellen, got into an altercation at New Market late Monday and was hit with a chair which cut a severe gash in his head and rendered him unconscious.

For a time there was considerable excitement and the rumor prevailed that Stein had been killed. He was finally brought around and is not considered dangerously injured. His assailant, a well-known character about town, was arrested.

Invitations Out "Coming Out."

Invitations are out for the reception in honor of the "coming out" of Miss Lydia Ackerman, daughter of Mrs. James Henry Ackerman, of West Seventh street, to be held Thursday afternoon, Jan. 4th, from 4 until 7, at the residence of Mrs. H. R. Ackerman of West Eighth street. Mrs. J. H. Ackerman and Miss Ackerman will be "at home" at their residence on West Seventh street, Thursday and Friday afternoons, Jan. 11th and 12th.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a reporter M. D. said: "Several years ago I became satisfied that if one wished to become a philanthropist, and do a beneficient deed—one that would help the whole human race—the best thing he could do would be to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabule, and cause it to be put up in the form of a lozenge or tablet and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter called there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling, and bought a five-cent package. He asked:

"Do you have much call for them?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the beneficial character of the information in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. In fact, since they are known to the people a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the honest, fair character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Peckham Heights, a suburb of New York City, and who was known to be a warm admirer of Ripans Tabules for their excellent qualities, was asked by a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had been employed a year or two and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time I resolved to have both a rest and a change, and, having seen many patent medicines, had become sure Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald columns, I got a package of them and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that is a matter of 20 s ago."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS. R·I·PANS ONE GIVES RELIEF

A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar. All the time of this I was there were people who were passing two dozen Ripans Tabules, objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but in the this there is no objection. There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the world about my case in the papers reading some other person similarly afflicted to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I am unobjection." The druggists, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

ALFRED SPEER,

THE ORIGINAL

Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had.

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

Everything for the Garden

Sweet Peas the choicest, Fancy Lawn Grass Seeds and odorless Lawn Dressing.

Telephone Call, 6.

A. M. GRIFFEN'S,

119 East Front st.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

100 PAGE BOOK MAILED FREE.

CONTENTS:

Part I.—Diseases of Horses.
Part II.—Diseases of Cattle.
Part III.—Diseases of Sheep.
Part IV.—Diseases of Hogs.
Part V.—Diseases of Dogs.
Part VI.—Diseases of Poultry.

Above book at home Standing 50 cts. Specifics 25 cts. Humphreys' Med. Co., New York.

VICK SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands of homes this season. Our Floral Guide is to introduce the seeds that grow or flowers and vegetables. Mailed to you if you send a Special Catalog Edition of which is a work of art. It has 10 pages lithographed in colors, 4 plates engraved, and nearly 200 pages filled with illustrations of the choicest flowers, Plants, Fruits, etc., originally found in nature's wilds, and by us improved. It tells how to grow them for all seasons of pleasure and profit. It is a good garden to have a copy, therefore at so low a price as 15 cents. Send for it to-day.

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide

Vick's Guide with a PACKET SEEDS, for 25 cents worth of flower seeds, for 15 cents.

It tells how crudit is given for full amount of purchase to buy other seeds.

Vick's Little Gem Catalogue. A perfect baby gem of a book. Only 3 inches by 4 inches. Tells about the Little Gem Vegetables. Mailed for 5 cents.

Vicks Monthly Magazine, enlarged, improved, and up to date in all respects. Price 50 cents a year. Sample copy 5 cents. Special 1900 offer—the Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 75 cents.

OUR NEW PLAN of selling Vegetable Seeds gives you more for every ... money than any other seed house in America.

JAMES VICK SONS, ROCHESTER, N. Y.

SEEDS FOR THE Garden and Farm

Vegetable and Flower Seeds. All the best varieties. Catalogue free. Mailed to applicants. Illustrated Catalogue FREE.

WEEBER & DON, 114 Nassau St., New York City.

Quality Rather Than Quantity.

Presidential Elixir of Starwort, 25c.

"The International is a wonderfully complete dictionary."—Chief Justice Fuller.

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Best for the Household.

Words are easily found. Pronunciation is easily ascertained. Meanings are easily learned. The growth of words is easily traced, and the orthography of spelling is easily settled. Information of quality can be obtained in every department.

Write for specimen pages, etc., to G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

DIME Savings Institution, Of Plainfield, N. J.

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President.
GEO. W. ROCKEFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from that first.